Chapter 55: Chance Meeting

Year 7442, Month 4, Day 14

Everyone started on the trip home this morning. I'm already alone. For the time being I'll hang my sword on my waist and try wandering around Keel for today. Since it's my first time entering the city I'm restlessly looking around showing how far off in the countryside I came from but that can't be helped right? In any case, he said that the inn was already paid for 10 days worth, I'll take my take to look around here and there.

I aimlessly look around the main street. It seems like there's quite a few street stalls. I tried doing some window shopping but it seems they're mainly selling daily necessities so there wasn't anything particularly interesting. Ah, that's right. Since I'm in the city I want to try taking a look at a blacksmith. I wonder if weapons and stuff are left laying around? Or is there something like a weapon shop? Also, if there's something like a magic tool shop I want to try going there.

Come to think of it older brother said that if I'm going to do some shopping that the knight group would introduce me to some places.

If I use the name Greed and then show them my Status then he said they would introduce me to shops that can be trusted wasn't it? It's too troublesome to go to the knight group's guardroom or station or whatever right now. Yeah, then I'll take care of stuff like that tomorrow. I want to slowly enjoy the aroma of the city for at least today.

Even if you say Keel is the city after window shopping at various stalls down the main street it didn't even take 30 minutes. I guess that's only obvious. It's not like there's a town like that even in Japan. After taking a different path and returning back to near the inn I think it was still around 7 in the morning.

Somehow...I imagined it as being more... lots of people wandering around and stalls lined up along the streets with almost no space in between. I guess there's no way that would be the case. I have way too much time to waste, guess I'll show my face in the knight group and have them introduce me to some shops. If there's any jobs suited for adventurers it might be good to see about having them introduce me to those at the same time.

I return to Bins Manor once and replenish my wallet with 2 gold coins before heading to the knight group. After arriving at the knight group's station this time I was challenged by the soldier that seems to be the guard. I guess the free-pass was because I was with father, I guess it's only obvious they wouldn't remember me after only coming once. I politely give my name, tell them that I'm here to confirm if there's any jobs suitable for a new adventurer and since I don't know the name I say I want to greet the Sendhel the Webdos knight group leader and just in case they confirmed my identity with Status Open. I'm sure they can't let anyone who they don't know the identity of on to the property, so there's not much choice other than quietly obey.

I don't know if it's because of the influence of rubber or my older brother but someone came to call me after about 10 minutes. I was lead by the squire that came to call me into the knight group building. It's the same splendid stone construction as the Bins Mansion that I've been staying at for the past few days. I was brought into a reception room near the entrance and told to wait for a bit so I just quietly wait for a bit. The room is about 8 tatami wide and there's a table and four chairs in the middle.

I can't help but to show off my Salary-man nature so instead of touching the chairs I spend a short while staring at the flag of the Webdos Knight Group on the wall.

After a few minutes knight group leader Sendhel appeared in the room accompanied by a few squires. The female squires seem to have brought tea, after placing it on the table they stepped back.

"It's been a while, Lord Webdos, thank you very much for meeting with me today even though it was so sudden."

"Yeah, since Shani's wedding. Well, take a seat. I've heard about you since the other day. They say you're going to become an adventurer? It can't be helped since you're the second son. Give it your best."

I sit down at the table facing knight group leader Sendhel.

“Yes, and, today along with greetings I came to ask a bit of a favor. You might have already heard but I’m a countryside person who hasn’t left Bakkudo village since the time I was born. So, knowing it’s impolite I decided to endure the embarrassment of asking if you could introduce me to a blacksmith that can be trusted?”

“Yeah, about introducing you to a shop right, I’ve heard. If you have time for today then I’ll have one of the squires show you around but is it convenient?”

“Eh...That certainly would be of great assistance but is it okay?”

I’m sure the squires have jobs and training to do. I don’t want to be a hindrance to that.

“Yeah, I don’t know mind. Since you’re the brother-in-law of Shani after all. You’re almost like a son to me. And as the leader I’m allowed to mix work and private this much.”

Is it that sort of thing? I guess it’s true that it wouldn’t make a huge difference for a new squire that’s not used to things yet. After that we had a conversation about current affairs and the leader told me about some current adventurers he knows as the conversation just kept going but it seems that we’re almost time.

“Then, I have some matters that I have to take care of so I’ll take my leave here. Ah, the jobs suited for adventurers are posted at the reception desk near the gate so it would be good if you try asking there. They aren’t very often but I think there’s about one monster subjugation job per month. I’ll send a squire to accompany you right away so wait in this room until then. Then, give it your best and stay healthy.”

Knight group leader says that while shaking my hand as I thank him and leaves the room. There’s a monster subjugation job once a month huh? In Bakkudo village father would make groups to patrol around defeating monsters every 10 days or so, so there was no need to request subjugation jobs but I heard that was just because father and mother were ex-adventurers and used to fighting monsters.

If I remember correctly sister-in-law was surprised as well that there was almost not damage from monsters even though Bakkudo is such a remote region. I’ve heard that other villages spend a considerably amount of money on defeating monsters as well. I don't know how much the compensation is but there's over 30 villages and towns in Marquis Webdos territory so I'm sure there's a decent number of villages and towns that can't defeat monsters on their own or even if they could don't want to risk taking any damage to the villagers.

I wait for a few minutes while thinking about things like that and a young female squire about the same age as me enters the room. Since she's about the same age as me I'm sure she's a new squire or a position close to that. It was a bit of a disappointment that it was a young female squire but after introducing ourselves and leading the property of the knight group, I decided to have her show me to a food shop that deals in preserved food. It's a store I'll definitely be in the care of when I go to leave Keel after all. After that I had her bring me to a blacksmith. The blacksmith wasn't in the middle of the town but near the edge a bit of a distance away. I guess they're at the edge away from the center of the town because they're always using fire.

I thought that if it was a blacksmith then they would be "come from any type of metal product" but just as expected from a store introduced by the knight group it felt like there was a wide variety of weapons and armor. There was about 10 swords in stock and there was even armor made of metal. Hohou, so this is the so called split mail. It's my first time seeing it. I tried talking to the blacksmith a bit but this shop didn't have the thing I was looking for and I found out that they don't seem to be able to make it as well so it was a bit disappointing.

It's not like I particularly wanted armor at this point. If anything the things I wanted are more related to daily life. For example thin wire or small springs. Even if I were to try and make something like that in Bakkudo I didn't have the tools and even if I put some effort into making them it takes a tremendous amount of work so I gave up on mass production. I was able to guess that I'd have to start making the tools from the jig but I thought if there was a jig in this shop then I could use it as an example.

However, I found out that these sorts of blacksmiths that produce metal products get small metal parts made by the gold smiths rather than making it themselves. I see, gold smiths huh. Only a bit but I had known there were craftsman that manufacture gold and silver into accessories but since I've never left Bakkudo and it seems that because I was focused on mass production I was limiting my outlook.

After politely saying thanks to the craftsman I had her show me to the goldsmith this time. The goldsmith's store is located on the main street and it was a place I had glanced at earlier and passed by thinking, "I have no interest in accessories." After entering the store I thought there would be a lot of accessories but the store itself was more like a workshop and there was only a countable number of sample products in the corner. Since I didn't come for accessories they don't matter though I felt like if they had more stuff I'd be able to tell what kind of things they can make, and I'm getting myself disappointed with them already.

The owner of the store is a middle-aged male dwarf just like the blacksmith from before and at first he was making a moody expression but after realizing that we're potential customers he softened his expression and went into business mode. I couldn't help but make an awkward smile at how quickly he changed his expression but I politely ask if he can make wire or springs. I wonder if he can understand my explanation? For example even if I say spring, there's also the type of board spring that is used for crossbows so while he might know but if you don't have the knowledge of coil springs then trying to explain it could be difficult.

Just as expected it seems he didn't know about coil springs so I ended up having to explain compression springs to him where the coils are spread apart at a fixed distance and pulling springs where the coils are completely making contact. However, the response I received was that as long as it's making it using an iron wire when manufacturing it then it should be possible but trying to make it into a coil would be difficult it seems.

The reason is because it's too difficult to try and bend it while heating it. It's only obvious but putting aside metals made through magic, normal iron purified from iron ores eats up a lot of MP when heating it. I was thinking that even without magic he would stick a wire into a furnace and after it was heated wrap it around some kind of circular material but it seems that only the blacksmith has a furnace that can produce such high heats.

Since their primary products are accessories made from gold and silver it's fine as long as they can reach temperatures high enough to melt gold and silver and don't need a furnace that burns that hot. In Keel the blacksmith and goldsmith are separate stores but if you go to the capital then it seems there are blacksmiths where they are integrated into one as well. I guess I should consider it good just that I know that the craftsman could possibly be able to make it. When it comes to coil springs then if you use a large one then it can be used for suspension on a carriage and the smaller they become the applications they can be used increase quite a bit even to things like scales. If I could make something even smaller and more durable then...Yeah, it's fine for now.

I want to try confirming about *Osmunda Japonica as well but since I would have to try explaining starting from the appearance of it I gave up quickly. I politely say thanks to the craftsman and buy a small polished brooch from 5 silver coins. Since it seems this store is fine and I needed to get change from one of my gold coins so I paid with that. It was a slightly expensive purchase but I intend to give this as thanks to the squire for accompanying me later.

After that we ate lunch at a restaurant the squire suggested where the meals are cheap and pack a lot of food on to the plate then I had her take me to a store where I can buy underwear and clothes. Since I have several pairs of clothes I'm not troubled for them right now but I wanted some underwear and socks. Particularly, I haven't really experienced wearing shoes all that often until now so I didn't have any socks. Though I'm wearing my knit boots, my feet are bare on the soles and I desperately want some socks. The store I was brought to had a decent stock of socks, it seems that there's a considerable demand for socks for the boots they wear in the knight group as well. It's probably the merchant that they use. I immediately purchased 6 pairs, one weeks worth of socks, it was a bit embarrassing but I put them on right away.

It seems that the squire noticed my boots for the first time then and was curiously looking at them. I'm sure that boots that completely use strings that aren't just decorations don't exist. I used plenty of ebonite and hard rubber for the soles and taking into consideration the possibility that the tiptoes could be stepped on I made them ebonite tipped. Since I plastered rubber all over a double-layered pig skin with holes for the strings, they're strong against water but the ventilation is pretty bad. It would be good if she doesn't realize my feet smell from how stuffy they are. Ah, I'm using healing magic everyday so there's no need to worry about athlete's foot. In order to take into consideration my future growth I made them considerably big and I've wrapped my foot in a worn-out cloth to fit so she was surprised by the difference in size of my feet.

The next place I had her lead me to was the general goods store where they sell a variety of daily necessities. I thought I would try buying something if there was anything convenient that I didn't know about. However, I didn't see anything in particular I wanted and ended up not buying anything in the store. I think it's probably around 2 pm now. Ah, that's right. I want a clock magic tool. Along with the light magic tool I've heard that the clock magic tool is one of the top two cheapest magic tools. Even if I say cheap since it's still a magic tool I'm sure it'll still cost quite a bit but if it's way too expensive then it'll be fine if I just give up on buying one.

I had her lead me there right away but the cheapest of both the light and clock magic tools we're 20 silver coins. The clock magic tool we had at our house was pretty simile and when I used identify on it the value was around 12,000 so they're pretty expensive. It can't be helped, I guess I'll give up. Come to think of it, mother said you can sell magic stones at the magic tool shop. I guess I'll try bringing in several types that have different values tomorrow. I want to know how they measure the value of them as well.

After walking the squire back to the knight group station (It seems that call it the headquarters. I asked if that's the case then are there branches, but there weren't any. What's that?) and as thanks for showing me around various places today I gave her the brood. I say thanks once again to the squire who seems a bit troubled but happy and return to Bins Manor. After leaving the luggage I purchased today in my room I intend to ask the clerk where a bar with cheap alcohol is. My objective isn't alcohol but gathering information. You can't forget. One of my largest objectives in staying in Keel, getting rid of Begulu.

Since the clerk of Bins Manor was out, I tried asking a kid that seemed to be an apprentice what kind of places the ruined adventurers and hoodlums go so I can avoid the dangerous areas, and he told me. There's two bars that in seriously dangerous slum like areas. After that, there's one restaurant. Both of them are cheap but there's really a lot of hoodlums and it seems you can tell just by looking that it's difficult for a newcomer to enter. Also, in an area that's a bit of distance from the slum there's one bar and restaurant. It seems it's not all that dangerous there and it seems that a lot of the customers are commoners. I guess I'll try going there first. I return to my room for a bit and take the gold coins out of my wallet and make sure there's only 3 silver coins, 2 Silver Shu, and some copper coins in it. I'll be holding roughly 40,000 yen. I'm sure if I have this much then there's no problem with ordering some food and drink.

Just as I was taught there was a restaurant already open along the bank of the central river. It's a restaurant with an atmosphere like those in Southeast Asia though. The front is wide and there's tables both inside and outside, it has a mixed feel to it but just from looking from a distance the customers don't seem all that rough. Yeah, the name matches as well, it might be good to hang around in here for a while today.

After passing by the sign that had "Binsil's Food & Alcohol" in patchwork I sit in an open seat. I look around inside the restaurant but there's no menu written anywhere. I thought these sorts of places would be like the pubs in Japan with a menu stuck to the wall.

Even though it's still only about 4 pm it seems like half of the seats in the restaurant are filled. It doesn't seem like there's any customers covered in dirt from farm work so I guess it's restricted to the townspeople inside of the town. I'm sure the farmers are all doing work in the fields until close to when it gets dark and since it would take time to walk through the city I guess it's only obvious they wouldn't eat out at a place like this.

After I take a seat a courteous old lady cheerfully came to take my order. After asking what kind of things they have in addition to the usual brewed alcohol of beer, ale, and wine, they also have distilled alcohol like wheat vodka. Since I'm not here to get drunk I order a beer and ask what kind of things they have to eat and she says that they'll make anything I ask for. She said that the ingredients they've got today are two types of fish, pig meat, and several types of vegetables.

I tried asking for pork and vegetables and boiled fish.

Boiled fish is a big hint as to what kind of taste a restaurant has to offer after all. Even in my past life I liked boiled fish. When I was young I thought it was a boring food but after I passed 40 years old it suddenly started to taste good. Putting aside sugar, I didn't think I would ever be able to eat it again in Orth where there's no soy sauce or sake so I'm moved. My beer and meat and vegetable stir-fry came out quickly. It seems that you pay in this restaurant when the food comes out. I pay a few copper coins just as the old lady asked and get right to picking away at the stir-fry and washing it down with beer while listening to the conversations of the surrounding customers.

I don't know if it's because the time is bad but the only customers are normal people talking about vague topics. I hope my boiled fish comes soon. I throw some food in my mouth with my hand and wash it down with some lukewarm beer while waiting in anticipation and a customer entered the restaurant. It's a man with black hair and black eyes similar to me. I guess he's about the same age as me as well but the young man entered the restaurant and after sitting in an open seat told the old lady "the usual". I wonder if he's a regular? After losing to the temptation to identify him I ended up using it.

His level is just a bit higher than average for his age. However, all of his physical abilities like strength considerably stronger than his level. And above all 【Unique Ability: Charm (Lv.3)】!? Is this guy a reincarnated person the same as me!?

I guess he realized that I was staring in his direction, or a little bit off (the identify window), in surprise, he started looking over here as well. After exchanging stares for a bit we both look away. Even though I came here to gather preliminary information about Begulu but I feel like I've caught a completely different bastard. I timidly return to looking at him and he also returned his sights to me.

No wait, since he's entering a restaurant like this while his appearance is pretty worn-out it's still well within the range of normal and not as unclean as the hoodlums I imagined but this is a restaurant that I heard ruined adventurers come to. In the worst case, I don't think I would lose if it comes to a fight but it's possible he could have other troublesome allies. For the time being I'll try opening the sub-window of the Unique Ability which I've never heard of.

【Unique Ability: Charm; Ability to charm the opposite sex of the same race as the user. It is common for the one that has become the target of the Charm to good favor like sexual love towards the user. The duration of the effect is the level of the ability to the power of 2 number of days. It's possible to use Charm again during the duration of the effect. In that case, the continuing time of the duration is invalidated and it isn't added to the new duration of the Charm used. Also, it's possible to use Charm on another target when someone is already under the effect of it. If the target completely enters an area where mana is neutralized or invalidated the remaining duration of Charm will be canceled out. Even after the duration of the Charm completes the target will still retain the memories and feelings of the time during the duration. Furthermore, in order to exercise Charm on the target the user must be within 1 cm of the target, make sure the target's attention is on the user, and the user must appeal to the target in a language that the target understands. Simultaneously it is necessary to specify the use of the ability in thought. The effect the Charm has on the mental state and it's depth depends on the content of the appeal used when exercising Charm. The target that is captured in the effect of this ability will not be able to recognize that their mentality is under the effect of some sort of magic influence.】

What in the world is this? It's an amazing~ Unique Ability but I don't really get where you would use it. It's a relief for now that it doesn't seem like it would have any effect on me though. Ah, it's probably convenient if you were trying to gather information or just simply trying to hit on someone I guess. It's an extremely enviable ability as a man but it's close to harmless. And even though the level of his ability has gone up, it's not at a very high level, I guess he hasn't really abused it very often? I can understand that he at least has enough cautiousness to restrain himself when testing it out. After further opening the window which shows the experience points for it, it's at 74(80), it seems he's used it over 70 times though.

Though we're both glancing at each other back and forth, nothing decisive happens, and we didn't even speak to each other. And when the boiled fish was carried out I was even more surprised.

The waitress who said that while bringing out my boiled fish had black hair and black eyes. Again! This waitress wasn't here until now. Was she in the back of the restaurant?

I somehow was able to reply and take the plate of boiled fish. The boiled fish is considerably expensive. I pay in silver Shu. And after the waitress started at my face for a bit she went over to the guy with black hair and talked about something while glancing at me. Hey, where's my change? Since that guy seems to be a regular it makes sense that they're acquaintances. I forget to identify the waitress and poke at my boiled fish with my finger while drinking beer but I couldn't calm down. I guess it's only obvious but the boiled fish wasn't like the ones in Japan with sake and soy sauce but western style where it was made with salt and some kind of bouillon used as stock for flavor. However, I wonder what this stock is? There's no way there's seaweed or katsuobushi in Keel but somehow it reminds me of Japan.

Suddenly I realize that the waitress is approaching me. I was too focused on the boiled fish that I didn't realize the waitress got up from the table with the man.

What is it? Ah, change. It would be nice if we could talk a bit though.

"Here's your change."

After saying that she puts 11 copper coins next to my food in front of me. And gently takes out some chopsticks. After putting the change away and receiving the chopsticks I poke at the boiled fish.

Chopsticks? Chopsticks!?

I was about to let it float by for a moment there but after realizing it I looked up at the waitress. I might have been staring with my eyes wide open.

"Thanks."

I reply with that in Japanese and,

"You're welcome."

Just as expected a response comes in Japanese.

"I want to talk a bit but do you have time?"

I try asking.

"Would you switch your seat over to the one over there? I want to open up the table."

The table that the waitress designated was the one that man was sitting at. If I remember right it said Baladik. Since she's telling me to sit with him each though more than half of the seats are available I guess she's saying OK.

"Sure."

After saying that I pick up my beer and plate with a bit of stir-fry remaining and the waitress brought the boiled fish and chopsticks for me.

I sit across from the man and think about what to talk about while going to drink my beer quickly realized it was almost empty and it suddenly feels awkward.

“Is beer okay?”

The waitress probably realized my cup is almost empty.

“Y..Yeah, I’ll take some more.”

After losing my cup right away she took it and left the seat. The guy I’m seating at the table with just keeps looking over here and isn’t saying anything. It can’t be helped, I guess I’ll start talking here. Thinking that I went to open my mouth but the guy started to talk to me.

“What’s your name?”

“Eh? Ah, Alan Greed.”

He nods at my words and,

“So that one comes first huh, I’m Kojima Masashi, over here it’s Kroft Baladik.”

Ah, that sort of meaning.

“Ah, sorry about that. I’m Kawasaki Takeo.”

“So you were Japanese after all. It’s better not to carelessly talk in Japanese. There’s no one around here that understands it but since there’s no one smart enough to speak foreign languages you might thought strangely of. If there’s less people then it’s fine though.”

“Here’s your order. It’s 200 zeni.”

The waitress brought out my beer. There’s 3 cups. One is mine but after that I guess these two will drink as well. In other words this waitress is a reincarnated as well. I’ll try identifying her later.

“Mary, he’s Alan Greed supposedly. We’ve already finished introductions.”

Kroft Baladik says to the waitress who is sitting next to him.

“Oh, is that so? I’m Sutou Yayoi. In Orth my name is Marissa Binsil.”

“I’m Kawasaki Takeo. Over here I go by Alan Greed. Al is fine.”

“I see, then it’s fine to call me Kuro.”

“I’m fine as Mary as well.”

We introduce ourselves to each other. Now then, since we’ve finished the first meeting ceremony, if possible I’d like to have a conversation where I understand their personalities but I should start with information gathering first. I guess I’ll see how they move.

“Then, Al. I’ve never seen you in Keel but did you come to Keel with a caravan or something?”

“I was born in a remote village in the Marquis territory. This is my first time leaving the village. Obviously, it’s my first time in Keel.”

I want to hold back on exposing as much of my information as possible. I don’t want to lie but I still don’t know what kind of people they are.

“The same as me. I was born in Bafuku village. I came to Keel two years ago.”

“I was born and raised here. I’m the daughter of this restaurant after all.”

I see, after all there’s no reincarnated people in the same area.

“Ah, sorry, I forgot to mention but my village is Bakkudo village.”

“Bakkudo...I feel like I’ve heard of it somewhere..Ah! The one who made rubber was you?”

“That’s right. Since there was unexpectedly rubber trees near the village.”

“I’m using the sandals.”

“He~ Thanks for the business there.”

The conversation between Mary and I gets started.

“It seems like you’re profiting quite a bit. I can tell from your appearance. Those clothes look pretty expensive after all.”

Kuro says while looking at me like he’s evaluating me. While they’re worn-out it seems like you’re properly washing your clothes as well right?

“I received a bit of money when I left the house after all. I got new ones after arriving in Keel.”

“Left your house...I doubt it’s running away from home but what do you mean? Did you have some sort of job in Keel?”

Kuro asks curiously.

“No, I have an older brother and older sister. Since my older brother is married and children were born he’s inheriting the household. That’s why I thought the hindrance of a second son should aim to become an adventurer so I received some money and left the house. My older sister left the house about three years ago too.”

After I responded like that the two of them exchanged glances and started laughing. I wonder if I said something strange? Is it strange to become an adventurer? No, father and mother were both adventurers after all and even when I said I would become an adventurer for a while they weren’t opposed to it at all. Older brother and sister-in-law weren’t opposed to it either. I wonder what’s so strange?

“Yeah, I guess so...But..pu..A, I’m sorry, I guess all men aim to be adventurers? I didn’t have any interest in stuff like that so I’ve never even thought of it though.”

After all it seems that they were laughing at the “aiming to become an adventurer” part. Even though the knight group leader and squire that accompanied me today didn’t even react when I said I was aiming to be an adventurer, their reaction is way too different. I’ve suddenly started to worry about it.

“I just came out of the countryside and I don’t really know, so I can’t say much but my parents were former adventurers. Today, when I met the leader of the Webdos knight group and I said was aiming to be an adventurer“Wa??!? You met the knight leader..”

Why are they snapping at that bit so much?

“..Yeah, that’s right. Until 3–4 years ago my older brother was in the Webdos knight group. He met the daughter of the knight group leader then and after retiring married her.”

“Ah, I think I’ve heard about that. Since she’s the daughter of the knight leader that means she’s the grand daughter of the Marquis right? And your older brother was in the knight group...are you a noble?”

It somehow seems they hate nobles.

“If you say nobles, then I guess you can’t say I’m not a noble but my household was a Viscount, which is the lowest rank of noble, and I was the second son so it’s not like I inherited anything, it’s the same as a commoner? My house was pretty old and damaged in various places, since we didn’t have enough rooms I ended up sleeping on a dirt floor in a storage closet.”

It would be good if it sounds a bit like a story of my hardships.

“The dirt floor of a storage closet, that’s even worse than me. Even in my house we had a floor..Ah, I was originally part of the serf standing but it seems Al has gone through quite a bit of hardship as well.”

No, it wasn’t miserable at all. I was able to properly eat every day and I’ve never been troubled over something to wear. I’m sure my living situation wasn’t as bad as Kuro is thinking. However, there’s no need to resolve the misunderstanding, if they pity me for my living situation then that’s fine.

“I see, no, you’re serious about aiming to become an adventurer huh.. I ended up hitting a setback with it after all.. It’s not as if I can’t teach you about various things, but it’s not like I’ve ever precisely done a job perfectly myself...”

“I’m sorry for laughing. But, Al, as a warning from me I think you should abandon your dream of becoming an adventurer and just work normally. Only a small handful of people succeed at it and they’re all strong.... or rather they all have a power strong enough to defeat monsters. It seems that you have confidence but honestly speaking, I wouldn’t suggest it.”

It seems that while Kuro is progressively supporting it he’s pretty much in a position of letting me do as I please and Mary says that it’d be better to just take up an occupation. I guess they won't so easily become my allies. Since reincarnated people's abilities increase three times that of the average person on level up I think we're pretty suited to becoming adventurers though. After saying "Don't reincarnated people get all sorts of bonuses when they level up?" their response was, "That might be true but the only thing we have that levels up is our Unique Abilities and since we can't use magic it's no joke facing monsters." Even if it comes to fighting monsters if you select your opponent then I don't think it's all that difficult. Ah, that's right, I'll try identifying Mary.

Somehow it seems both of them are pretty salty. No, I guess I'm just the strange one. However, Mary's Unique Ability sure is high. I wonder how she polished her resistance to poison? After confirming in the sub-window it seems that the experience is already close to MAX.

"A, that's right. It's a bit difficult to talk about but if you know I'd like you to tell me. In this town...I guess so, I think there's something like a boss of an illegal organization, but do you know of a guy named Begulu?"

“If it’s Begulu then he’s famous around these areas. I guess if you were to put in Japanese terms it would be, “rampaging group or punk, or the head of the Yakuza, well, the leader of a DQN group so to speak”. Just, it seems that he’s reasonably intelligent as well.. Al, you, do you want to enter Begulu’s organization? If that’s the case then don’t get involved with us anymore.”

Kuro put emphasis on it with a bit of Japanese. I guess he couldn’t think of a word to compare it to or rather he probably just doesn’t want anyone hear the content of what he was saying, I guess. It seems that neither of them wants to get involved with Begulu. I see now.

“No, sorry for letting you misunderstand. Rest easy since I have no intention of that. I just heard a few rumors about him and thought I didn’t want to get near the territory of a guy like that.”

After that we continued talking about vague things as time passed. Since I realized that they were avoiding topics reincarnated people would wonder about like Unique Abilities I was careful not to touch on there. Probably, unless I become intimate with these two I won’t be able to have an honest conversation with them. I would be troubled over how to explain my Unique Abilities as well, it’s better to have some time to think. I ate and drank an adequate amount as time passed by. It seems that Kuro has a break from his job today but he’ll be leaving Keel for a job tomorrow and the after that. When I asked Mary if I could come again tomorrow she said it was OK so I think I’ll use this restaurant as a base for a while as I gather information.

After returning to the Bins Manor the clerk said there was a message for me. It seems to be something they were entrusted with and wanted to hand to me sometime after the evening of today.

It’s not like I have any acquaintances in Keel. I wonder what in the world it is and ask who requested it and it was older brother. What is it~ Seriously~ Wouldn’t it have been fine for him to just give it to me in person~ However, while I’m wondering what it is and I receive the goods I felt like I was about to fall over. It was 10 packs of rubber products with 10 in each pack. After that there was a memo list with what appears to be various stores names, there's a couple of words written on the thing enclosed. Older brother....

...Seriously thank you very much.

Chapter 56: Where's Begulu?

Year 7442, Month 4, Day 15

After returning to my room while preciously holding the gift from older brother I touch the light magic tool and turn it on. I quickly organize all of the luggage on the bed that I purchased today, take off my shoes and lay down on the bed. There's no where on the walls where the plaster is peeling and there's a board on the roof as well so putting aside the retro feel it's an extremely comfortable hotel. It's worth the cost of 50 copper coins per night. Though I say that it's limited to just what I know about Orth so far.

While enjoying the luxury of having a hotel room all to myself I think about the two I just met today. One is male and says he's a failed adventurer. Judging on the reaction when I mentioned the name Begulu he might have some sort of connection to him. No, I don't know that for sure. However, it seems they knew a reasonable amount about Begulu. Whether or not Begulu knows about him or not I still can't decide.

The other one is a female and she says she was born and raised in the restaurant and bar of this town and just like that started working there. It seems that she knew about Begulu as well but how much she knows about him or what their relationship is I can't determine just the same as the guy. However, both of them refused getting involved with anything related to Begulu. And it was a refusal that seemed to be based in fear. Was Begulu someone who is that feared in this area?

7 years and a bit ago or rather 8 years ago is fine, I killed a person for the first time. The spy adventurer that came to receive information from Myun. If I remember correctly he said, "Boss Begulu". A man who's the same age as my father using the term "Boss" allows me to imagine what Begulu would be like.

1. His age should be at least in his late 20s (I think most likely much older) 2. Gender is male.

3. He's normally in Keel.

4. He doesn't normally appear on the surface and only when there's a job related to spying does he directly appear where the subordinates are and give orders based on the content.

Going off of this info I thought he would be a man in his 30-40s, maybe even 50s, that normally has an honest business or front that he wears a mask or using illegal methods he's integrated into the underworld of Keel. To the point where I was thinking that Begulu could even be a fake name he uses only for jobs. Since he's acting as the manager of spies I made mental image of him as being a vigilant and prudent person who is very crafting in how he conducts himself. That's why at first I thought the reaction of those two was a bit unexpected.

I couldn't imagine at all that Begulu is boldly showing himself on a normal basis and is the leader of an organization of hoodlums. That's why thinking it was impossible on purpose and tried asking about it but both them knew about the existence of the man named Begulu and furthermore say he's famous among the lower social caste in Keel. It could be possible there's two Begulus and the manager of the spies is using the name of the famous one in order to avoid attention.

Since the famous Begulu seems to be feared by everyone I'm sure he stands out quite a bit and has garnered quite a bit of attention. If he was captured or some kind of investigation was performed I'm sure that information would travel around quickly. There's a high probability the information that he's being investigated for being a spy could even start to spread. It's even possible that could be a safety method for the real Begulu to protect himself.

In that case it's hard to lay a hand on the famous one. In other words after all it's probably better to follow the connection starting from the contact agent that was temporarily hired by that construction company. Honestly speaking, I was resolved to talk to that contact from the start so I already had returning to Doritt in my calculations. Since it's about 100 km one-way to Dorrit, putting aside a normal horse, I'm sure the war horse older brother used has a lot more stamina and endurance and has been trained so it should take around 1.5 to 2 days I guess. I'll stay at the inn for the time it's been paid for then depart after that. Eh? Even if I depart tomorrow I'll just end up overtaking father and the others.

It's not like it's tremendously urgent as well, it should be fine if I don't hurry that much.

The next morning after waking up before sunrise I put on my protectors and leave the inn to go running. It's also because I want to quickly get used to my protectors and boots that I made a big larger than my size, it's best to keep my stamina in as top shape as possible as well.

As the sun rises I'm satisfied with my training after running for a total of 2 hours. It seems I'm being looked at as strange for running with my protectors on but it can't be helped worrying about the looks of strangers. It seems that the morning sun has already risen and since I haven't eaten breakfast at the usual time I'm hungry. Returning to Bins Manor to take my protectors off is a pain so I'll go to eat breakfast just like this.

I head to Binsil's restaurant while cooling down. Since I'm wearing my protectors today I probably seem imposing but it can't be helped. I call Mary and along with ordering a breakfast set I bring her to a table outside saying I want to talk for a bit.

"What...is with that outfit? How amazing. You're almost like a knight."

"Yeah, it's protectors I made with rubber. It's like armor. More importantly, there was something I wanted to confirm so let me talk for a bit."

"I don't really mind though. What is it?"

I guess it's because my protectors is unusual she's touching the shoulder and forearm guards checking the texture. Please do, with that sort of feeling I take off the forearm and place it in front of her.

"What's your age? I'm 59 years old this year. Honestly speaking, I'm a bit envious of Kuro and your relationship. After talking to you guys yesterday I knew it but you two aren't bad people... No, I think I was able to confirm that you haven't been completely taken in by the common sense of the lower caste of Orth or rather of a large city like Keel. I felt like there was still a portion that was Japanese that remained and I almost felt like crying several times.”

“I’m 53 years old. Right, we were happy we met another Japanese as well. You said you’re envious of us but we both are envious of you as well. Unlike you we haven’t been able to make any sort of influence on Orth. Particularly me, I never thought of trying to make something that everyone would find convenient to use... Though, both Kuro and I feel like we’ve been giving it our somewhat best. But, we didn’t succeed like you. Kuro is acting like he doesn’t care but even like that it seems he put a considerable amount of effort into things in his village way back. Everything failed though it seems. And then when he first came to this city he started to go down the wrong path. Now he’s working his hardest though.”

She continues talking while tampering with my new forearm guard.

“Yeah, we’re both a considerable age. Also, in regards to rubber I think I just had good luck though... ‘I’m going to talk in Japanese from here on out. I’m going to ask you outright but would you tell me anything you know about Begulu? Honestly speaking, I can’t believe the stuff I heard from Kuro yesterday. Ah, no, I don’t think that Kuro was lying but the impression I got from him about Begulu was far too different from how I imagined.’”

“Why do you want to know about Begulu? I think it’s better if you don’t get involved with him. He’s the leader of the gangs around here.”

After raising her eyes from the forearm guard she stares at me while asking. Since I’m scooping up oatmeal with the spoon if you stare at me that much it’s difficult to eat.

“My benefactor is troubled by that Begulu guy. After gathering information from various places I found out that Begulu seems to be giving information to the Kingdom of Devas. In other words, something like a spy. It’s not like I particularly have any great attachment to the Kingdom of Rombert so that doesn’t matter at all.

However, all of the circumstances surrounding that and the conjectures I made based on information I had gathered until now was completely unexpected for the type of person Begulu is that I heard from you two. At first when I asked I tried to make a bluff to get more information but since he was far too typical of a villain that it was unexpected. And rather than you two not wanting to get involved it sounded more like you're afraid of him. But, I can't overlook the fact that he's troubling my benefactor."

"Can't overlook, huh? Then what do you want to do about it?"

"I want to erase the cause of my benefactors trouble without letting anyone know that I did it."

I return the spoon to the oatmeal while saying it.

"You don't mean like you want to chastise or beat him up right?"

"If I could erase the trouble with that then that would be fine as well. However, it's easy to imagine that things won't go as simple as that."

Mary returns to looking at the forearm guard again while saying.

"I don't mind telling you. But, I probably can't tell you anything more than just rumors that are around the street. It's not like I'm particularly hiding it I just don't know anymore than that. If you're fine with that then I'll tell you, but honestly speaking, I don't think you could manage to do anything about Begulu. He has a lot of allies, or rather subordinates, and if you mess with him in a bad way you'll end up in a bad situation. You might be killed. Even if you say they're failed adventurers it's certain that they're strong. Supposedly he's defeated several orks all on his own and I think he originally had enough ability to make it on the low end as an adventurer."

I can't say anything since I don't know how strong orks are.

"I see, how strong of a monster are orks? Since they aren't in the area around Bakkudo I've never fought them so I don't know. About as strong as a Horned Bear?"

"Eh? There's no way they'd be as strong as a Horned Bear. I don't know because it's not like I've ever fought against monsters either but. If you say Horned Bear it's the strongest monster around this area it seems. It's impossible for a normal adventurer to defeat it and usually the knight group all goes or several of the top class adventurers in Keel go to defeat it. What are you saying? I'm amazed you could say you're going to become an adventurer like that.. Putting aside Horned Bears it seems that Orks are about the same strength as Hobgoblins. Since they move around in groups of families it seems if you don't have the strength of an adventurer the best you can do is drive them away. It seems they don't come out around Keel though. If you're saying things like that then it's 10 years too early for you to take on Begulu. I won't say anything bad so forget about him."

"What the, just that much huh. Then the subordinates are weaker than that right? As long as I don't take a surprise attack, no, if I can surprise attack them then it seems like there's no problem. I'm not trying to brag but I don't feel like I would lose at all one on one. Or rather, it seems I was deceived by the term failed adventurer. I thought adventurers were way stronger. My parents are ex-adventurers but after all they were considerably strong ones."

Mary looks at me like she's looking at an idiot and opens her mouth.

"You, saying lies that will quickly be exposed, are you making fun of me? Even if you can see Status or use magic in Orth it's reality. Even if you don't lie to put on airs I won't make fun of you so talk about things honestly."

I wasn't putting on airs though... there's no point in trying to insist on it here. In the first place, let alone other people you normally can't even tell your own level, abilities, and HP after all. You can only confirm the level of your Special Skills of just yourself.

"No, sorry, sorry. I thought if I didn't say that much you wouldn't tell me about Begulu. Really, I'm sorry. I apologize. Just like this."

After saying that I put both of my hands on the table and lower my head.

"Wouldn't it have been fine if you had asked with that attitude from the beginning? It's not like I've said I wouldn't tell you after all."

After saying that she fixed her posture.

"It seems that Begulu was an adventurer that drifted along from somewhere in the past. He was doing reasonably well in Keel at first but discord happened with the group he was always working together with. And thanks to that he ended up leaving the group it seems but as expected he couldn't do any decent jobs by himself so he ended up falling to the end. However, his skill is true and since he's strong he quickly was able to become the leader of the other failed adventurers wandering around this area. After that he started doing whatever bad stuff he wanted. Putting it simply.”

“Why are they ignoring someone like that? Does the Marquis and Knight Group not capture Begulu? They’re doing things like the police right?”

“The same reason as the Yakuza in Japan. They suck up to the knights that are in charge of these areas and give them bribes. I’ve heard that they occasionally offer up some subordinates at sacrifices as well. It doesn’t seem like anyone has directly seen them committing crimes like robbery or murder and they haven’t left any evidence as well. Putting aside bribes, I think the knight group can’t arrest him because there’s probably no evidence.”

I see now. It seems he isn’t a complete idiot. Though it’s still strange that a small-time villain like this would be the manager of spies after all. As expected I feel like he’s different from the Begulu that I’m searching for. But, it’s still too soon to decide for sure. Mary continues to say as I’m nodding to myself.

“In any case, if you defy him you’ll be unable to properly do business and Kuro used to be together with Begulu but it was difficult for him to leave the group... It was really difficult..That’s about all that I know.”

I’m sure that Mary knows what kind of treatment he received when he left Begulu’s organization. She’s grasping her fist while looking down.

“I see, I won’t ask what kind of things happened. That would be better to ask Kuro about. I still haven’t confirmed it so I can’t say for sure but I’m praying that villain Begulu isn’t the Begulu I’m searching for.”

“Listen to the rest from Kuro. I think he’ll return tomorrow night and he’ll definitely come to this restaurant when he returns. I think it’ll be past 5 pm in the afternoon.”

I scoop up the oatmeal that’s cooled down considerably and say thanks for taking up her time, then returned to Bins Manor. I take off my protectors go to the well near the stable behind the inn and pretend to start pouring water on myself while using Shower to refresh myself and return to the room.

It’s still the morning after all and it seems that Kuro won’t return until tomorrow night. I wonder what I should do.

I'm heading towards the knight group to confirm if there's any jobs for adventurers. After confirming if there's any jobs in the shed near the gate and currently there were no jobs. I try asking the servant or official in charge of the reception desk how the job system works. Fundamentally the jobs that the Webdos knight group receives are the leftovers from the government office it seems. In the Marquis territory if you want to request a job of adventurers then you fundamentally request the job at the government office it seems. Among those it seems that the majority of them are subjugation type jobs but the jobs that seem difficult end up being turned over to the knight group. It seems that they post the jobs in the knight group for 2–3 weeks but if there's no adventurers who take the job then instead the knight group finishes it.

I see, in the case of subjugation, if you think that you don't have enough skill to take care of it then most people won't accept it. Although, just because of that doesn't mean they can ignore the problem so after it exceeds the limit the knight group takes care of it huh.

Then it seems likely that there's a variety of jobs if I go to the government office instead. I say thanks for teaching me and head towards the government office.

I didn't know where I could confirm the jobs at the government office so I grabbed someone that seemed to be a staff member and asked them. And it was good that they kindly showed me the way but it seems that they always disclose jobs in the afternoon. It seems that all of the jobs are disclosed on a large board with the job details. Since they're writing the details on the board in the morning they might only do reception for it in the afternoon. It doesn't matter though.

There's a number written on the board for each job and if you tell that number to the official standing near the board then you can accept that job. On that occasion your Status is checked and your name is recorded. Simultaneously you're issued a note and you take that note with you to meet the one who posted the job it seems.

The compensation is paid directly from the one who requested the job when the job is completed, and there's cases where a certain portion of it is paid in advanced, it varies heavily on the situation but you always return here when you complete the job and return the note you received at the start. It seems that only after you've done that is the job treated as completely done. It seems that they're imposing taxes on the one who requests the job based on if the note is returned and the job is completed.

If the note never returns then the job is seen as incomplete and the reputation of the adventurer who accepted it gets worse. Also, since the government office is unable to take taxes from the one who requested the job they don't want to offer jobs to people like that, seems to be the case. If you return the note without completing the job then it'll definitely be exposed when they request the taxes so the result is the same.

Just like this they are weeded out and I'm sure the ones known as failed adventurers occur. I see now. Incidentally, that income tax is applied to the adventurer as well. They become like someone running their own business it seems. That's double taxation. In the first place the one who requests the job is paying a special tax, I was about to rage over the clear case of double taxation.

Nevertheless, it seems that taxes are only taken on commoners. As long as the adventurer that is a noble isn't the family head them self or own any territory then they aren't charged any income tax. Since they're paying a 60% tax on the head of the household. Free People pay a per head tax to the territory that they're registered in so they don't pay income tax as adventurers as well. Since slaves can't maintain their lifestyles all on their own in the first place, slaves can't take jobs on their own, and since their owner is seen as the one paying the tax just the same as others they don't pay taxes. It probably ends up coming down to them taking the job along with their owner.

Since it seemed like commoners had quite the disadvantage there I tried asking about it but it seems that the moment a commoner leaves their household they're seen as a household all on their own and thus have an income tax of 10%. It's not 60% because they don't own any land and it's not agriculture, it's taxed as business it seems. I guess it's fine about the special privilege of nobles. It's easy to imagine just from the fact that they're nobles that there are some special privileges and since I'm the one receiving the benefit from it, I have no complaints at all. Free Peoples are only allowed to act freely within the territory and they're paying a per head tax so it's not like they're paying no tax at all so this is fine as well. And unlike commoners and nobles they aren't allowed to own land in different territories so it seems they can't do farm work.

The reason why only commoner adventurers have an income tax is because of slaves. The amount of per head tax that commoners and nobles pay per slave is 1–2 silver coins a year so it's an amount that can be ignored. However, when it comes to Free People this isn't the case. Free People aren't prohibited from owning slaves but when a Free Person owns a slave of all things the per head tax is the same as the Free Person, 1 gold coin per year. That's why regardless of whether they're an adventurer or not it's probably fine to think that there's no Free People who own slaves.

Unless there's some reason why a certain number of people is specified for a job for adventurers it doesn't matter how many people you accept it with. If you take it alone then you can monopolize the reward and if there's two people then you can split it evenly or based on skill or how much work was done. However, what about commoners and nobles that own slaves? If there's a difficult job that definitely can't be achieved alone then they can accept it using slave power. Obviously they can monopolize the reward.

If I were to use one example then let's say there's a job to guard a caravan. The condition for accepting it is 6 people and each one gets a reward of 10 silver coins. If it's a normal Free Person adventurer then they have to gather 6 people and the reward will be 10 silver coins per person. In comparison if the slave adventurer that has 5 people is a commoner then they can take all 60 of those and then pay a 10% tax of 6 leaving them with 54 silver coins. As long as they can buy equipment and food for their slaves enough to maintain their stamina then you could say it's considerably tasty. Even food as long as you don't make it luxurious you can get it considerably cheap so as long as you can do something about the initial investment of buying slaves and their equipment then you could say there's few problems.

I didn't hear all of the details but the adventurer who returned back to Bakkudo, Desdan might have brought back several slaves with him when he returned. Ah, the reason why father gave me a lot of money might have had the meaning of buying slaves huh? But, wait a minute. If I remember correctly I thought my parents were adventurers with just the two of them. I haven't heard that there were slaves with them.

Since I was able to confirm the posting place there's no other choice than to kill some time until the afternoon.

I guess I'll randomly wander around as I walk around Keel. I think it's probably still around 10 am so I have plenty of time. Come to think of it, it might not be half bad to try visiting the store that was listed on the memo from older brother. But it's a pain to return to Bins Manor so I'll put it off for today.

Having nothing to do puts a surprising amount of mental pressure on you. Up until now I've had sword and magic training and the development and production of rubber products so I've never even thought of having time to spare. I can't swing the sword around in the middle of the town and I can't carelessly use magic either. I can't do anything about rubber products since I don't have the raw materials. Since I have a considerable amount of money I guess I could go enjoy myself somewhere but in the first place I don't even know what to do to start enjoying myself. I feel like going to the store that older brother suggested to me in the middle of the day, rather before noon like this and forming the bond of true brothers is somehow different as well. There's probably no discounts for early morning and the daytime.

It can't be helped so I enter the first eatery I find and somehow pass the time sipping at bean tea until noon then go to the government office. I go to where I just heard the bulletin board should be but let alone the bulletin there's no one there. I guess I was a bit early? When I'm standing around there bored I think it's the receptionist in charge of taking jobs but two of them bring out a wooden stand. After placing the stand down the two of them go off somewhere and bring out another stand sort of thing again. I wonder if this is a stand to put the job board on? If it's a wooden board that can fit on this sort of stand then it should be about 3

I don't know how high it will be but I can only hope there's a considerable number of jobs. After a while the two from just now return carrying a board. So that's the job bulletin board? While waiting for them to set it up I excitedly approach the bulletin board.

There's several jobs written on the bulletin board. It seems they're done by directly writing with charcoal or something on the board.

There seems to be a lot of abbreviations. I don't want to understand so I should probably confirm what the abbreviations mean with the official. Since I'm the only one here right now it's not like I'd be a hindrance for their job.

There fundamentally wasn't anything difficult with it. For the sake of my own review I'll explain them in order. The numbers on the left edge of each job is the day the government office accepted was requested the job. Next is a simple explanation of the job content. After that is the name of who requested it. The next number after that is the compensation paid on job completion and the amount is in (Z) zeni. After that differs depending on the job.

The first two jobs are special cases and it seems they're contracts for a certain period of time. The content of the job is patrolling and defense of the territory.

In other words it kind of like the patrol the squires did in Bakkudo village but it's necessary to confirm the content of the job directly with the requester. After having the official explain it to me it seems that the Some Travel portion is suspicious. I somehow understand that the reward will increase or decrease based on the number of monsters defeated but it seems that the majority of the people who make the requests have a certain threshold and if you don't defeat a certain amount of monsters a reward of zero is even possible. That's why the jobs been ignored for several years since it was accepted.

In other words the real jobs are starting from the second one. The content of the job is gathering. Byorg is the name of a doctor that lives in Keel so it's probably gathering the materials for some medicine. Dalgil produce fruit in the fall. Around this period it would be after all of the fruit have fallen and there's probably still not flowers. Though 10 silver coins (100,000 zeni) for 10kg is a good deal you can't accept it even if you want to.

The fourth one is Escort. The requester is Viscount Rushmore of Baalag Village and since it says Send/Return Baalag you have to go to Baalag village and then escort Viscount Rushmore them self or whoever they designate to Keel. Then return them back to Baalag village again. It seems that the number on the far right edge is the day they want to depart Baalag village. In other words you have to get to Baalag village by this day. I skipped over it a bit but there's two numbers written after the compensation. The number on the left means that's the minimum number of people the requester thinks is necessary. The number on the right is the number of people still required. In other words the total compensation of this job is 1 gold coin (1,000,000 zeni) but in order to have enough guards you need four people and there's already one applied for it, so there's still three people that can receive it.

Skipping over the fifth one to the sixth one. You already know right? It's a job from Mins Company and you have to escort round-trip to Belus village. The reward is 40 silver coins (400,000 zeni). However, you need more than 2 people in order to accept it.

The seventh one is carrying luggage. Zulaid Metal-smith is the blacksmith that makes all of the equipment for the knight group that I went to yesterday. For a reward of 8 silver coins (80,000 zeni) you have to deliver a sword to Bessh village. The weight is 3kg. When you deliver it you have to return with the payment for the sword. Also you have to return within 15 days of accepting the sword to deliver. If it exceeds that then you become a criminal. Delivery fraud huh?

There's no need for explanation for the ones past the eighth right? You already know. Now then, among these a job that I can receive is...and there is one. Right, the ninth one I skipped explaining. It's a delivery but the destination is Doritt. The reward is 10 silver coins (100,000 zeni). It's fine as long as I return within 20 days of accepting the job. Since I have a war horse if I hurry I should be able to do it in 4 or 5 days I'm sure. I should have plenty of time to achieve my objective over there as well.

Alright, I'll try accepting this. I go to the official and say that I want to accept the ninth job. And then the official hands me a wooden tag and asks my name.

After replying with my name they quickly recorded the information written on my Status Open. It seems that this is all you need to accept a job. A line was immediately put through the ninth job. I guess this is the symbol that a job has already been taken. I was instructed to go and meet the person in charge at Zulaid Metal-smith within one week (six days).

When I looked at the tag I noticed a weird symbol was written and it seems that's the tally. I guess this is proof that the one who accepted the job is an Adventurer (Handyman). I put the tag into my pocket and as I was about to return I heard several voices talking as they approached. It seems a group of adventurers has come to confirm the jobs. I guess I'll take a look at them for a bit.

"Oh, five jobs were added and...one was taken huh?"

"Since we just returned can we rest for a bit?"

"I'm hungry~ I wanted to come after eating first."

"There's a fixed trip to Rombertia, isn't this fine?"

"Ah, that sounds good~ All thanks to rubber right. 500,000 in two months is delicious right?"

"There's no point in choosing right?"

"Hey, the price is going up. And it's 10 people this time."

"It's good we weren't beaten to it this time."

"Ha~ Five carriages huh? Webdos Company sure is making a profit~"

"It was worth coming here in a hurry. Then, I guess the rubber escort is fine right?"

It seems to be a group of six. They're noisily quarreling but it seems they're going to accept the most expensive escort job to Rombertia. By the way, that rubber, I made it~ When I tried identifying them they were all Free People and over level 10, the leader looking guy in his mid-30s was at level 14. Amazing~ So that's a real adventurer huh. I'm sure they've left their heavy luggage and armor at the inn. They're all wearing light outfits of pants and shirts and some of them aren't even armed. A number of them are wearing rubber sandals. Ah, those sandals as well, in fact I made them~

Since I was even able to see real adventurers, my business here has ended. I guess I'll return to the inn one. Zulaid Metal-smith? I won't go until the last minute.

My inn has already been paid for after all.

I stopped by the clothes shop when I was returning to the inn and bought some wrinkled long cuff pants and a worn-out shirt. After wearing the pants long enough to hide my boots and changing shirts I put my sword on my waist. And without taking along my wallet I put two silver Shu and 10 copper coins in my bare pants pocket before preparations to depart are complete. It looks extremely unnatural because I don't have a scabbard for my sword but I've hidden it by wrapping the blade with a leather string. It's {OK} as long as I look like a poor failed adventurer so this is fine.

I head out to the bar in the slums that the apprentice told me about yesterday. I want to collect information about the famous Begulu (he's fine as Begulu A).

Honestly speaking, if this Begulu A is also the same person as my objective Begulu B then it would be convenient for me. Since I can just use magic to take him out when he's in a place with no people around.

Just, since I don't know the face of Begulu A I'm going to have enter the bar for a while and just keep identifying the names of every one who enters while gathering information on Begulu A. I'm not taking into consideration the possibility that Begulu A is using a fake name. Since he's a failed adventurer his real name should be exposed through Status Open.

Alright, I'll head out.

I'm not dirty but with an appropriately seedy appearance I curl up my back and start walking. Hmhn, with this no matter how you look at it I look like a failed adventurer. In order to make it seem like I came from a different town when no one is watching I should roll around in the dirt on the road a bit I guess. Since this area is still the area of living for the upper layer of people there's not very many people walking around so I should do it right away.

I enter a path that it doesn't seem like anyone would enter and roll around. And around my thigh I felt a disgusting sensation and a disgusting smell. This smell is...the smell of shit.. it seems I crushed the shit in the middle of the path by rolling around. It stinks~ I guess the surface was dried because I couldn't smell it until I crushed it or my nose has broken because of the smell of sewage from all over the place, whenever I roll around in the middle of the streets from now on I'll need to be careful. I might do it again tomorrow after all. I quickly try to wash it off with water magic but it didn't completely come off. I tried to hide it by drying it after but I wonder if this is okay? Well it's fine.

Really though, don't take a shit in the middle of the street. Since Keel is clean town where there's a lot of sewage streams made that flow into the large river that flows through the center. Not to mention this is the area where the reasonably rich people live as well. God said that the culture level was up to the 15th century of Earth but isn't the toilets around here at the lowest 7th century level? It doesn't really matter much at this point but still. What's unpleasant is unpleasant.

After preparing myself again I head towards the bar in the slums. This time I really started curving my back while restlessly looking around. After all, I don't want people to think I stink. I can see a bar close to the corner of a crossroad. I wonder if this is the place? It seems that this place has several tables sticking outside just like Binsil's restaurant. If I look at the customers all of them look similar and are unclean, it feels a bit dirty as well. There was a small table on the border of the outside so I sit there and shortly an unsociable middle aged man came to take my order. I asked for beer and some cooked beans. It seems he didn't notice the smell of shit coming from my thighs, or he realized and ignored it.

The beer was 70 Z and the cooked beans were 30 Z for a total of 1 copper coin = 100 yen, idiotically cheap. However, the beer doesn't just have some remaining sourness to it but it's considerably cheap, and the cooked beans were boiled too long so the majority of them didn't even retain their shape, and frankly put not good at all.

I start drinking with a grim face as I observe the store. I grab some of the strongly salted beans while washing them down with sour beer and start identifying all of the people in the store one at a time. All of their levels are low and let alone a unique ability there's not even a single person with the special skill magic.

At best there's a couple of non-humans who have their characteristic special skills.

I sit back on the crude wooden train just like the other customers while spending my time identifying. I endured drinking this cup of beer while listening to the conversations of the customers for 30 minutes but I didn't hear anything in particular about Begulu. As I was preparing my resolve to stick around until night I asked for an additional order of beer from the unsocial middle aged man and he said "use at least 300 Z per hour" as returned 3 large Shizu in change. I see, it's not just cheap it has that sort of system.

I added a couple of additional orders and entered into the posture to persevere for a while and then a new group of customers came in. The group this time all had swords and spreads. They weren't wearing anything like armor but their clothes aren't any different than the rest of the customers. I wonder if these guys are the so-called failed adventurers? It's a group of seven so I start identifying them one at a time but there's no one that seems like Begulu and their levels are only 4 - 6, nothing significant. Since the highest level guy is 25 years old I'm sure their skill is really not much at all. Since they're all making sour faces I'm sure they don't have much money as well.

However, I'm sure there's a possibility that if they're failed adventurers they might have some information about Begulu. I decide to concentrate on just them while listening in.

"This beer is disgusting as usual."

“Don’t say that, we’re not making anything after all~”

“The jobs that come from above are all just stingy transportation jobs after all, I want to make it big here pretty soon~”

Above? Someone above them I guess? I wonder if it’s some sort of organization?

“It sucks that we can’t take on proper jobs right~?”

“Ha...you reap what you sow there”

“That’s true though~ The looks of those officials at the government office gradually get openly worse. I don’t feel like going anymore~”

“The one who fails jobs countless times is the problem.”

“It’s not like you can take on jobs anymore because you’ve failed so many as well~ Don’t say it so arrogantly~”

“If I hadn’t teamed up with someone like you then even I would have been able to manage one or two escort jobs~”

“Stop it, you guys. It’s boring even if you fight.”

“If you open your legs~ you can earn something right? Ah, with that ugly face I guess it’s impossible huh. Kehheee~”

“What was that? You just did me last year after you were infected with crabs didn’t you! It was terrible after that.”

“That was a~ moment of stupidity. As long as I have money there’s no way I’d touch you.”

I reflexively tried identifying the two of them but both of their conditions were Good. I guess since parasites are different than diseases they aren’t shown in Identify or because they’re already finished removing them, I wonder which? I have a feeling it’s probably the ladder but I have no way of being sure on it.

“Aaahh~ Isn’t there some kind of big chance laying around?”

“No way, like there’d be somethin like that.”

“But you know~ We can’t keep up like this forever right~?”

“...Yeah, that’s right. If I had 4 — 5 gold coins...No, 2 — 3 would be fine, I’m sure I could make some kind of business~”

“Yeah, really though. But business is impossible for you right? Since you’re an idiot.”

Since they’re all having such an idiotic conversation I’d say both are bob. Hm, after all it seems like it’d be okay to think of these guys as the base level of failed adventurers.

“But ya’ kno~ Wer still several levels better than Azzas and dos guys that cudn’t pay properly pay taxes, got thrown our of Keel and hav ha to camp for several years. It’s them right, that attacked some caravan last month and was chased off by the guards?”

“Ah, I’ve heard about that as well. Azzas face looks good but he has no brains, and since he’s weak.”

“I’m sure if Jild hadn’t grouped up with Azzas he wouldn’t have died~”

“Trash groups up with trash~ How many are in their group now? If there’s too many of them a subjugation job will appear, gyahaha.”

“I think it was 4 or 5 of them? They can’t even attack a small single carriage caravan~ Since there’s at least 2 guards. If one of them gets done in then there’s no next time after all.”

“Then why did they attack a caravan?”

“Well Azzas is an idiot after all. Most likely he tried taking one out with a surprise attack even though if that fails there’s no other choice than run~ That’s the limit of Azzas idiocy right.”

“Even though it’s better to think that if they’re a proper guard they can use magic, it’s because idiots all think using themselves as the standard~”

Ah, I’ll order one more cup of ale.

“Come to think of it, what was it, that brat?”

“Like we’d know with just that”

“That one that did it well, the guy who got hired by Mizbel Company.”

“Ah, Kuro huh?”

What? The chair creaks.

“Playboy Kuro huh. We all say that exclusive escorts are just small groups but you know. He did it well right~ In reality, even if the pay for a single time is cheap I’m jealous he always has a job available to him~”

“Yeah, everyone says he’s a failure as an adventurer but, that’s just everyone jealous of him~ Really, I’m envious.”

“I thought he had seduced the old woman of Mizbel Company but I guess it’s different. A while back I saw him getting yelled at.”

“He~ I could have sworn he had seduced the old lady. Even for him I thought his interests were too bad~”

“Only his interest in women was good after all. It’s no surprise he would just ignore Jelil.”

“What was that? I would refuse that myself. The black hair and eyes are creepy.”

I’m the same, sorry about that, you ugly bitch.

“Recently ya know~ He seems to be infatuated with that pretty daughter of Binsil. That’s a good woman right~”

“Binsil huh~ So the great exclusive escort-sama can enter a store as expensive as that~”

There’s no way Binsil is expensive.

“Hmph, that woman is black hair and black eyes right? Don’t they suit each other being creepy.”

“She ain’t that creepy right? Well she has no luck being targeted by Kruo though. Isn’t she going to have money sucked out of her like all of his women until now?”

“I wonder about that? She’s not falling into his lap like they usually do it seems~”

“He has enough fixed income to go to Binsil’s restaurant and he’s seducing that beauty, really I’m envious~”

It seems that Kuro has going through some trouble. It’s a pun though. But, he, managed to escape from here it seems.

“Speaking of Kruo, he left Boss Begulu’s place right?”

Oh..

“That’s right. It seems he was burnt quite a bit. According to the story I heard his body is messed up pretty bad~”

“What’s that?”

“That’s why when he left the Boss’ place, that, what was it again, he was done in by the magician at the Boss place.”

“Eh? It’s my first time hearing that~ What was done to him?”

“It seems he was burnt with {Flamethrower}~”

“Eeh...Are you serious?”

Eeh..Are you serious.

“And? And?”

“Obviously it’s a huge burn. Supposedly he has a huge burn mark from his back to his stomach. As a bonus it seems Begulu’s name was carved into his back with a sword. Well, several days after that he crawled into and had healing magic used on it so it seems the sword wound was fixed though. But it seems that the burn marks are amazin~ Remember, when I screwed up and broke my arm, I heard from the healer that time.”

“The burn didn’t recover?”

“It was supposedly too late. Since he quickly was able to use magic on it he was able to recover without a trace but. Supposedly the longer the time passes the more of the wound or burn can’t be fixed.”

I know that. I had a scar remaining on my leg when I scratched after being bitten by a mosquito until it bled. I never thought of trying to use magic after being bitten by a mosquito after all. I realized after it started to scab and used healing magic, the scab immediately came off but the scar remained. After growing up when I started training with healing magic I went all out and tried gouging out that scar with a knife and after using healing magic it completely disappeared.

“He~ then, no woman will go near him because it’s disgusting huh. I guess no matter how much of a playboy Kuro is no woman would have sex with a guy with a body like that.”

“Then, I wonder if that Binsil girl doesn’t know about it?”

“I’m sure, if she knew there’s no way she would pay attention to him.”

It seemed like Mary knew.

“Come to think of it, if we’re talking about Boss Begulu, it seems like he’s trying do some big job wasn’t it?”

“Big job?”

“I don’t know that much, but it was going to earn a lot right?”

“I guess that’s true. But ya know, if he’s gonna profit I’d like to get on it too, right~?”

“Right, but, I’m afraid to go to Janlud’s shop. That place is dangerous. Since I’m a weak girl I might suddenly get attacked.”

“Not happening~ Are you sayin that knowing your face, retard.”

“Anisa, you’re saying that but the other night ‘Shut the hell up~’”

It seems that Janlud’s store is Begulu’s base. It’s the other bar that I heard was dangerous that’s further in the slum’s center than here. What the, I heard good information from the first day. Then, I guess I’ll head home soon. I’ll show my face at Mary’s place. I guess I’ll head out when I finish off my food.

“But ya know, I wonder what in the world that big job is?”

“No idea. Is he going to attack a caravan or something with all his followers?”

“Unless they manage to kill everyone it’ll get exposed and they’ll be on the course to being in the care of the knight group. I wonder if the Boss would do somethin like that?”

“If they can kill everyone then there’s no way to tell who did it so it’s possible.”

“Since there’s close to 20 people~ Last year the one who attacked Gelufn’s caravan was the Boss right? Can’t he manage it if he tries?”

“Hey, don’t go running your mouth. If someone from Boss’ place hears ya, yer... this.”

It seems that after all Begulu A is a pretty bad person. When I stood up from my seat and went to leave the store, I was told by the ugly bitch.

“What the, I thought something stinks~ but it was you~ Don’t go leaking shit you, poor ass~”

“Ey, Sorya abou’ tha, sis. But, I din’ leak it~ So forgive me~”

Damn it, but just as I thought I still stink.

“Shut up~ Don’t talk to me virgin brat.”

Viviivii...I’m not a virgin! Ah, no, I’m a virgin in Orth aren’t I?

I try to use the tone of a small fry as best as I can imagine while leaving the store but somehow it pisses me off. I can hear them saying, “That guy’s black hair as well, that shit bastard is the same as Kuro with black hair right?” “Hey Jelil, you’re saying black hair, black hair an awful lot but unexpectedly you were after Kuro weren’t you?” “Ah~? When did I try to get Kuro’s attention?” “Haven’t you been talking about him since earlier.”

Jelil huh? I’ll remember you. Ugly bitch.

Since the smell was bothering me I didn’t go to Binsil’s restaurant. I’ll hurry back and wash my pants.

When I returned to the Bins Manor the clerk made a disgusted face.

I washed my pants near the well in the back while half-crying.

Since no one was looking I tried washing them with a hot water shower but the smell got even worse so I ended up throwing away my newly purchased pants. It pissed me off so I burnt them all at once.

Trash must be sterilized.

I'm already sick of everything, I don't want to go anywhere else today.

Year 7442, Month 4, Day 16

Now then, it's a different day, I'll change my feelings and head out. First I need to get some new pants. After that I'll go to Janlud's shop that Begulu A is using as base and gather information for breakfast. I've heard it's dangerous and that they'll pick a fight with me or all sorts of troublesome things but for the time being I still haven't done anything for Begulu A to think of me as an enemy so if I go in the same poor person appearance as yesterday I doubt it'll be very dangerous.

Even if they do pick a fight with me I can use that as a leverage point to bite into him. It's fine if I discipline anyone not related to Begulu A, and if they are related to him then I might be able to make contact. Since I have magic even if it becomes a slightly bad situation I should be able to cut my way out, I think...

I'm a bit too easy-going. According to the conversation I heard yesterday there's a magician on Begulu A's side as well. If it were a matter of persistence then it'd be no problem but if I take a surprise attack, it could be bad. Since it's my first time, I guess it would be safer to stop at just taking a look. It's probably best not to overestimate my power too much.

If I look at the results of Identify then it's true I'm strong because my level is high. However, this is limited to "for a 14 year old". I'm sure there's adventurers and failed adventurers the same level as me and I'm about the same or a bit behind them. It's amazing that a 14 year old brat can match up with a 30 year old adventurer but putting aside sword technique, mana amount, and magic if it just comes down to the power of my body I'm at the same level as a normal adventurer or a bit weaker. I've only ever done Judo or those sorts of hand-to-hand combat in the far past when I was in the self-defense force after all, it's no good to get self-conceited. It's better to think that I have no advantages.

After preparing my resolve once again, I change after buying some more pants and then head towards Janlud's shop. The normally clean scenery of Keel gradually becomes worn-out and filthy. There's still uneven portions of the ground remaining along with sludge and mud, trash that you can't tell what it was is laying around along with an increase in the number of dirty human and non-human vagrants sitting and laying around (to be more accurate there shouldn't be vagrants around so they're probably the super lower earners|). If you were to ask then the majority of them are either extremely young or old. I guess people of a good age to work don't have that much trouble finding it. Since children younger than five and elders over 50 are exempt from taxes it seems to be mostly those ages.

I walk while making sure to step on the decent areas in order to prevent my boots from getting dirty and enter Janlud's shop calmly as if "I've come to eat breakfast". While this shop is facing the road there weren't any tables outside. Although, since the road is cramped there just might not be enough room to put tables outside. It was surprisingly wide inside of the shop and there were 12 tables. The entrance facing the road was open and if you go further in from the left of the entrance it's the kitchen.

I sit down at a seat close to the entrance and immediately start identifying the customers. I guess it's only obvious but because it's still early morning there's not that many failed adventurers or yakuza-like hoodlums yet. I order the breakfast set of black bread and soup for 50Z and slowly started eating. I dip the black bread that's as hard as a rock into the lightly salty soup with almost no vegetables and slowly eat the soup while sipping it. Yeah, it's bad. Even if it absorbs the soup the black bread isn't getting very soft, and the soup itself has almost no stock used so it's just like lightly salted hot water.

I'm aware of the fact that I'm gradually making a bitter expression as I continue a useless fight with the hard bread and soup and somehow manage to finish eating.

Hmn, since sunlight is valuable in Orth, fundamentally people wake up with the sunrise and start activity and go to bed with the sunset, and since my habits are pretty much the same I wonder if I misunderstood? Since light magic tools are pretty common in a city the size of Keel, it's possible there's a lot of stores open at night.

We had a lighting magic tool in my house as well. However, since it uses magic stones, we almost never used it and whenever we absolutely needed light at night we just used the type of lamp that burns tallow. Since magic stones are a source of income after all. In the 14 years since I reincarnated the only times I've stayed up late when I'm going to hunt at night and for that I just went to sleep right away then wake up once in the middle of the night, exhaust my mana and then sleep until morning again. That's why I thought it was good that it was pretty healthy for that portion but it might be good to give up on sleeping more than 10 hours a day as an adventurer.

Since that's all settled I'll head to the magic tool shop and check the retail and selling prices of magic stones and if necessary ask the way to manufacture them as well. Putting aside a clock it might be a good idea to purchase a lighting magic tool. I leave Janlud's shop that I went to the trouble of going to and return to Bins Manor. After changing in to high-quality clothes I head to the magic tool shop.

I enter the magic tool shop that I was brought to by the squire the other day. It says "Magic Tool 7-9 Shop" on the doorplate. As I identify the value of the magic stones decorated along the counters in the store the prices are roughly nine times the value listed using Identify.

Since I brought along several types of magic stones I immediately ask the store clerk to buy them and the middle-aged master of the store brought something out from the back. It seems like a scale. It seems he prepared a lighting magic tool as well. I wonder what in the world he's going to do with those? When I'm curiously watching he sets the magic stones I brought in into the lightning magic tool and lights it up one after another. What meaning is there in this? I was thinking that so I tried asking and it seems he has to be cautious of fakes being brought in so in order to prove they're real magic stones he tests them out.

It seems this lightning magic tool for the sake of testing is special and the place which is like a battery box in the stand of it is larger than normal so any size of magic stone can fit, also it was adjusted so the sensitivity of it is kind of bad as well it seems.

After testing all of the magic stones to see that they lit up this time he places them on the scale. The scale is a balance scale the type where you place a magic stone on one side and a weight on the other side. It seems that the weight is precisely different proportion of the amount of mana packed into the magic stone. Even if they're the same size if one has a lot of mana in it then the weight will increase and if it's low then the weight will decrease. Even if the size of magic stones that have completely exhausted their mana are different they all weigh the same it seems.

The sizes vary heavily from ones as small as the nail of the little finger on an adults hand and the big ones up to the size of a child's fist, but if you keep using the mana in them they all end up the same weight in the end. It seems that this is the same even if you fuse several magic stones into one. How mysterious. Also it seems that the maximum amount of mana they can have depends on the size of them, the larger one is the more its maximum mana amount is and the smaller the size the lower the maximum amount of mana.

Since you can measure the amount of mana based on the weight, if you subtract the weight of a magic stone that's exhausted it's mana from the weight of a magic stone that still has mana then while there's a bit of measurement error you can almost precisely guess the amount of mana in the magic stone. That becomes the value of the magic stone. So the reason why the sensitivity on the testing lightning magic tool is intentionally made bad is this. He was making sure that the magic stone didn't have anything stuck to it or was covered in dirt to falsify the weight.

However, it's not like they can make perfectly accurate weights in Orth so I still feel like you could fake it if you tried. Though I do think they are weights made as accurately as possible. I guess he realized that I was staring at his hands so seriously that he made a bitter smile and said to me.

"It's fine, I won't fake the weight. Since faking the weight of magic stones is a felony on the level of murder after all."

I see, I guess it's fine to relax a bit. I was able to sell the magic stones at roughly seven times the Identify value. The ones lined up in the shop are roughly nine times. The total profits are about 22% huh. I guess that's about right. Ah, buy at 70% and sell at 90%. I guess that's why it's the 7–9 shop.

I started running again until close to lunch and head to Janlud's shop again. It feels disgusting but I intentionally didn't take a shower. I smell like sweat but I figured it would raise the reality. It should dry by the time I get to Janlud's shop so it's not like I'm entering soaking wet, it should be fine. I walk down the road of the slum in a seedy outfit.

It seems that Janlud's shop is open for business the same as this morning and I order a beer and some cooked beans as I sit at the same table as this morning. I slouch over while looking around the shop with just my eyes and the customers are different from this morning, the number of hoodlums of both genders has increased.

I wonder if these guys are Begulu's subordinates? I start Identifying them from the seat nearest to me and check their name and abilities one after another. Every single one of them resembles the guys from yesterday and their levels aren't very high and they don't have any special skills.

And then he was there. In the back of the store sitting the two of them were sitting at a table drinking something while talking to each other.

Don't fuck with me. Aren't they both Begulu? Going off their levels and age the one who can't use magic seems to be the boss. I properly engrave both of their faces into my heart. Hmn, I think there's no mistake that guy is Begulu A, but which is Begulu B? Or is there someone else as well? Hmm, this is troubling. They're both past 40 years old, and let alone adults they were past 20 years old in the year 7426 when Myun said she came to Bakkudo so it's not unnatural.

I intended to kill Begulu B so that's fine but it's not like I have any sort of grudge against Begulu A. At most how he lynched Kuro for leaving the group? It seems he's doing bad things in various places as well but it's not like I'm a police officer. It's true it pisses me off that he's causing trouble for Japanese the same as me but I feel like it's misplaced for me to get revenge for just that.

Even when I tried opening their names up in a sub-window there was nothing at all related to the Kingdom of Devas or the Sagual family. At most that they were Free People who were born in a different territory of the Kingdom of Rombert. The one that can't use magic was born in Viscount Penlaid's territory and the one that can use magic was born in Count Farlelgaz's territory.

It's close to being a situation where my hands are tied. It seems it would be faster to just go to Doritt and tie up that contact agent. I guess I'll just be satisfied that I was able to confirm their faces for today. I guess I'll head out.

That night I departed to Binsil's restaurant. Obviously I changed. I took a shower as well. I wonder if Kuro is already here? Ah, that's right, tomorrow is Kuro's day off. If I want to have a complicated conversation then we need a place we can talk without reservation. If it's after noon then Mary should have some time as well. Three days ago that restaurant I went with father and the others the day before they departed should be good. It had private rooms after all.

I enter the restaurant and make a reservation for a private room for tomorrow afternoon. Since the clerk remembered my face I had no problem making the reservation.

After arriving at Binsil's restaurant, Kuro was already there. He's taken position in the corner quietly eating and drinking again. Since the restaurant is reasonably packed I guess Mary must be busy. I sit across from Kuro and call out to him.

"Yo."

"Ah, Al huh. What's up?"

Kuro looks at me with a calm face.

"I heard you have a day off tomorrow. Do you have time in the afternoon?"

“Yeah, I’m open. Is coming here fine?”

He said with a curious face. That’s right isn’t it. If I have something to talk about then I should just do it now. Though you know, since I don’t want anyone to hear it, I want to talk in Japanese.

“No, I reserved a restaurant. I wanted to talk in {Japanese} after all. If possible it’s better if Mary can come along as well.”

It seems he’s worried about the fact that I reserved a place.

“You don’t need to worry about that. Think of it was my treat. Let’s meet at the restaurant tomorrow at 2pm or so. It’s a restaurant with the name “Dakkuluton”. Do you know it?”

“! How would I not know of it, it’s a super high-class restaurant on the central street! Is it okay?”

Eh? Is that so? Since it’s the restaurant I had my final meal with father and the others before separating, it has private rooms, and it was good so I chose it though. I wonder if it was a bad idea? Well, I’m sure I can pay for it, I guess it’s fine.

“Yeah, I don’t mind. Since we managed to meet in Orth I’m sure it’s some kind of fate. I want to have a bit of complicated conversation as well, let me treat you the first time at least.”

“I see, I’ve never been to “Dakkuluton”. I wonder if it would be better to skip lunch tomorrow?”

This guy is adorable. I knew that Mary was around the same age as me when I talked to her but Kuro might be young.

After that I talked about Kuro’s escort job and the delivery job I accepted yesterday, and some random conversation before I returned to Bins Manor. It seems that Mary will come tomorrow as well. She was delighted hearing it was my treat as well but didn’t say anything about skipping lunch before coming.

As expected of an adult I guess.

Chapter 59: Exchanging Information

Year 7442, Month 4, Day 17

When I'm waiting in front of "Dakkuluton" the two of them quickly appeared.

"Yo, Al, thanks for today."

"Really, thanks for the meal."

"Yeah, It's fine. Let's enter?"

While talking we enter the door of the restaurant. Just as expected of a high-class restaurant enough for Kuro to be surprised, even though it's already afternoon they don't leave the door open. After opening the heavy Oak door and there's a carpet right away, the restaurant is lit up by lighting magic tools. The brightness isn't set very high but rather a refined slightly dim light. After telling the clerk at the counter near the entrance that I have a reservation and the young 20 something clerk said courteously.

"Customer, the clothing that they are wearing is, um.."

Kuro and Mary's facial expressions change. My expression changes as well. Ah, it's true that while Mary and Kuro's appearance isn't unclean, but they're clothes are ONLY not dirty. The frayed sleeves stand out, the collar of the shirt is stretched out. Even the cuffs are like the head of a worn-out mop. Mary is using rubber sandals and Kuro isn't even wearing anything. He's barefoot. I guess it can't helped being that it was mentioned.

However, there was a dress code? I didn't know. It's true there's character to a restaurant, and clothes that match the place are necessary. But, I've reserved a private room today. Since we won't be seen by other customers, I wonder if he'll let us go?

"Al, umm...we're fine."

Wait just a second.

“Ah, umm, I’ve reserved a private room so we shouldn’t attract the attention of other customers, is it no good?”

“I’m very sorry, it’s the rules of this establishment, I can’t do anything...”

“Don’t say such stiff things, how about it?”

I put some silver coins into the clerk’s hand. If this doesn’t work then I’ll have to use my heirloom treasure sword, the Marquis Webdos plate I received from sister-in-law. Even in the worst case I don’t want her to know I used it for something as insignificant as this though. However, in any world bribes, no, gratuity works. After the clerk confirms the silver coins I handed him and, “It’s special for just today.”

Said that and let us go. Fu~ Good.

“He says it’s fine. Let’s go.”

I say after looking at the two of them and they followed right after me. We were shown through the store the private room but there wasn’t a single customer at a table in the restaurant. Since it’s not dinner, I guess this is about right for a high-class restaurant. However, the last time I came I was too excited since it was the night before I was on my own, I didn’t pay much attention but it’s really a high-class restaurant. The space between the tables is extremely comfortable and those tables themselves are high-quality goods. Come to think of it both the table and the chairs are made of wooden but the surfaces are properly processed and they’ve been plastered with varnish or something so they shine. There’s no tablecloths that cover the tables but there’s something like a luncheon mat at every table, and unusually there’s knives and forks all present. This is bad~ I should have confirmed the fees.

I’m sure it’ll be fine though.

After entering a private room in the back and the table in the room was large enough for 8 people to comfortably fit and there was something like a decorative plant in the corner of the room, in the middle of the table there was also some flowers. The walls have a white wallpaper like thing just like the halls of the restaurant.

Lighting magic tools are set on the roof of the four corners of the room and are giving off a soft light. I immediately take a seat and Kuro and Mary line up sitting across from me.

“It seems that for the menu you can only choose today’s course so let’s order drinks. What would be good?”

“Uah~ W..Wi..Is it fine to ask for fine?”

“Really, relax a little bit, I want wine as well.”

“Then, I guess I’ll ask for a bottle of wine to match the course.”

I get up from my seat and ring the small bell on a stool near the entrance. When I came last time I saw them call the bellboy with this.

The boy quickly appeared with a knock so I ordered wine for three that matches the course today. Ah, don’t worry about it, there’s no brands like in modern day Earth. There’s nothing but red, white, and rose. There’s no foaming wine either.

“Thanks for coming today. Now then, before the food comes I want to explain a bit of the reason I asked you to come today. Is it fine?”

Both of them quietly nod.

“No matter what I didn’t want anyone to interfere with the conversation today. That’s why I made it a restaurant with a private room and being cautious just in case I’m going to do the entire conversation in Japanese. You get why right, I want to exchange information about the reincarnation. If there’s some personal circumstances that you don’t want to talk about then I don’t mind.”

The two of them are still paying attention to me. Their faces are considerably serious.

“Then I’ll start things off. Once again my name is Alan Greed. In Japan my name was Kawasaki Takeo. I was 45 years old when I died. I was a Salesperson for a Foodstuff company. I was married but unfortunately I didn’t have any kids. In Orth I was born in Bakkudo village and until the other day I had never left the village. In order to become independent I left the village aiming to be an adventurer, ah, no, I am an adventurer. I think you already know about God, but I met God quite a while ago, when I was still a baby.”

“While you were still a baby..”

The two of them are surprised. Well, since you can't meet it unless you manage to level up. Depending on your Unique Ability then it's possible it could take quite a while, and God said that among the reincarnated people I was the third one so I was probably one of the faster ones I'm sure.

“First off, try using Status Open on me.”

I say that and stretch my right hand across the table. Mary and Kuro quickly touched my right hand and said {Status Open}.

“..Amazing! You can use all types of magic?”

Almost simultaneously they both raise their voices. It seems that even reincarnated people can't see Unique Abilities. Also, level as well. I'm a bit relieved. After all the red character portion can't be seen by anyone but the person them self. With this I can say the things I've been planning to for a while.

I said a huge lie. However, if we end up working together from here on out the fact that I'm good at magic will quickly be exposed, and anyone with slightly good intuition will quickly realize the fact that I have a lot of mana. Rather it would be more difficult trying to hide my magic. Even if we don't start working together I'm sure the fact that I'm skilled at magic will eventually be exposed, but if I say it like this then it shouldn't cause any damage.

“During the naming ceremony when I learned Status Open I was amazed. After that I quickly started my own method of training magic. My magic special skill leveled up quickly and I was able to meet God.”

Kuro gulps down some saliva. Mary is still surprised it seems.

“Well, since that's the case I'm considerably skilled in regards to magic. I think I should be able to use it as well as any magician.”

At that moment, the door was knocked, and the boy carries in an ice pale with the wine and some water. A different boy brings in the wine glass and a basket with the tableware. The wine glass is thick glass with a green tint, something which is considerably expensive in Orth. I wait for the boys to return and I take out the wine out from the decanter in the ice pale and pour some wine in everyone's glass, then do a toast. I could have sworn that the wine would come out in a bottle.

"Going back to the conversation. Since that was the case I met God when I was still a baby. I'll talk about the information I was able to confirm at that time.

You're interested right?"

The two of them nod.

"I think I talked about the level up bonus the other day. That time you guys said the only thing that you have that levels up is your Unique Ability right?"

The two of them nod again.

"That's a mistake. According to what I heard there's at least three types of level up. Depending on your way of thinking you could say two as well."

This time the two of them are making a confused face.

"First, you know that there's skills other than Unique Abilities right?"

"Yeah, of course. Small magic and magic right?"

"After that is the skills that non-humans are born with."

It seems that they know, obviously though.

"Among those pretty much the only ones with a level are magic. Since magic is a skill just the same as Unique Abilities you could think of them as the same type, so there's one more type of level. Do you know it?"

The two of them think for a bit but quickly shake their heads.

"For convenience sake I call it the body level. The two of you, at some day, some moment have you ever felt your body suddenly feel lighter?"

"Hmn, I don't know."

"Me too, I don't know."

"I see, but, according to God it exists. It seems that if you gain experience through jobs, training, practice, and combat this body level goes up. I've experienced my body getting lighter countless times. Since I had heard something like that existed from God I've never skipped out on sword training since I was an infant."

"Body level huh, it's almost like an {RPG}.. Uwa, how many years has it been since I said the words {RPG}..."

"What's an {RPG}?"

"It's an abbreviation for {Role-playing game}. Like Dragon Quest or FF, don't you know? Those."

"Ah, video games huh. I know the name but I've never played them. My son got absorbed into it but, Pokemon I think it was."

"I'm not familiar with them as well but I don't think Kuro's understanding is far off. Since I used to play the Famikon {NES} and those sorts of old ones. And, Kuro, try to remember back to it. There's level ups in those sorts of games right? What happens when you level up?"

When Kuro was talking to Mary he was surprised that I suddenly interrupted but immediately replied.

"Your abilities grow and you get stronger. Depending on the title or what game you're playing you might learn new techniques or incantations but fundamentally you get physically stronger. Strength goes up, speed goes up, and stamina and mana increase..Ah."

"It seems you've realized. That's right. It seems that when you level up it's the same in Orth. However, it seems that it's a very minuscule thing but supposedly we reincarnated people have a higher degree of growth. Though since there's no way to confirm the body level I don't know for sure."

"He~ You heard that from God?"

Mary curiously asks.

"Yeah, that's right. According to God the growth rate of us reincarnated people is three times that of the people of Orth. It seems that this is the level up bonus we get."

While the two of them are quiet I continue talking.

“Just as you know, 39 people died in that accident and reincarnated in Orth. And it seems that in the order we met God I was the third one. Before I met God two other people already had. And God said that one of those had already died by the time I met it. Other than that seven people, in total eight people, were supposedly already died by the time I met God.”

“Since medicine isn’t developed it’s understandable that a lot of babies die soon but...it’s still terrible.”

The two of them are surprised.

“Yeah, it’s a terrible story. I forget the exact causes of death but starvation, disease, and what was it after that...I forget.”

“Putting aside starvation, disease is possible.”

The two of them are making unusually understanding faces while nodding and Kruo says.

“I’m sure there’s starvation as well. It doesn’t happen very often in the Marquis territory but when I was still a kid I heard that the development of wheat was bad and a lot of people died from starvation in another territory.”

He~ I didn’t know about that.

“Yeah, that sounds possible. It’s just my thinking, but I think that the Marquis territory is considerably blessed. The climate is good and there’s not much trouble with water. Since the area of flatland is considerably high it should be one of the tremendously blessed places in Orth. I don’t know much about other territories so it’s just my image though.”

After I say that Kuro agrees with my opinion.

“I see..Since I’ve always been in Keel I don’t know much about farming villages..”

Mary said.

“And then. In other words that would mean that there’s only 31 Japanese left in Orth for the time being. There might be people who died after I met God as well.. I think it’s possible that there’s a lot less.”

After I said that far, Kuro says.

“Wait just a minute. The two of us have already exchanged information. We knew from that but the amount of time we had to ask questions from God was only one minute.

Al, you, why do you know so much?”

Huh? One minute?

“One minute you say? It was close to 20 minutes for me? It was to the point where it said that the time is decided so in order to not waste any time I should ask things quickly.”

“Eh? You had 20 minutes?”

Mary said surprised. Kuro is looking suspiciously at me. Somehow this is bad, is what I thought but I can’t helping something I’ve already said. Just when I was about to open my mouth there was a knock on the door, after replying the boy carried in the food.

Until the food was finished being carried in and lined up on the table we quietly waited. I effectively use the short time I earned to think but since I had already planned to talk about things truthfully to some extent I should just continue as planned from here. After the boys leave the room I start talking.

“That’s right, I had close to 20 minutes. I don’t know the reason. At first I asked about things related to me or that I can’t return anymore and about my wife that I left behind but since I was afraid of wasting any time I started to gather information. Thanks to that I found out several important pieces of information. Though you might already know.”

“I’m interested in the important information, but Al, sorry I don’t have any guarantee that you’re just trying to deceive us “Kuro, stop doubting him so much. Why don’t we listen to Al’s story first? It’s not like we’ve just lived without thinking about anything until now right? I think it’s better to decide if what we hear is the truth or a lie ourselves.””

“But you know, doesn’t it suck to be tricked? I hate being ticked.”

After all Kuro is a kid. I guess he only sees the surface.

“..What do you want to do? Should I stop?”

“No, please continue. I’m interested.”

“I understand. There’s several things but first off about the culture of this world. I think you already have realized but in Earth it would be about the 7th century to the 15th century, and in terms of AD it would be the era from 600 AD to 1400 AD it seems. Even then the Kingdom of Rombert is considerably high on that ranking in Orth. As far as I know in terms of farm work, fishing, forestry are at best 10–12 century. Manufacturing and production are about the same but these might even be as low as 7–10 century. Though when it comes to just woodwork if you look at this table you’ll know but it might be even further. However, if you look at the stalls in Keel and the service industry might be close to the highest level. The political structure is also pretty high since while it’s feudalistic with noble rankings the bureaucratic mechanisms are done properly. Going off of my feel for it, it might be a bit past the 15th century. Of course, it’s still the 7th century in some weird places. Since I can’t remember much from world history that I learned in the past I can’t say too much. Just think of it as a probably.”

Kuro is listening to the conversation while eating the thick soup and soft white breast.

“But, the military level is considerably poor compared to that, I think it’s probably not past 10th century. Since there’s knights and a knight group, if you just look at that then it seems to be 14–15 century or maybe even greater, but I still think it’s about that. I came to this conclusion based on gathering information from various sources along with what I heard from God.”

“From other sources...Ah, since you’re a noble, you might know various things we don’t know.”

“That might be the case. Since my father is a viscount I’ve heard a reasonable amount about the war with the Kingdom of Devas and since my brother retired from the knight group and returned to the house I've heard various stories. My sister-in-law is the granddaughter of Marquis Webdos as well so I was able to hear some things about the noble rankings that were good references. Well, if there's anything strange then ask as I get there. It's not like I know everything myself."

"I'm envious of guys with such leeway. I had to give it my best just to eat so I didn't have that much free time."

This guy...he's gotten quite rebellious. I wonder if Kuro was born in a rich house in Japan and his friends were like this as well? No, I should stop thinking with prejudices. I'm sure it's just an inferiority complex because he had an unfortunate upbringing. He said he was born as a serf after all.

"Well, don't say things like that. It can't be helped. It's like I'm the one in the wrong. Is it fine if I continue?"

"Yeah, of course. Kuro, stop doing that already."

"After that is, I guess so. The plants and animals. It seems they fundamentally have the same characteristics as Earth. However, there's a lot that's different as well. The distribution is all over the place as well. It's not a plant or animal but no matter how you look at it there was no volcano near my village but there was sulfur. There's also a lot of plants and animals that didn't exist on Earth. It's probably safer to just use the knowledge from Earth as a reference point. If anything I think that the animals have the biggest difference from the ones on Earth. God said that the foundations of evolution are fundamentally different. A good example of this is monsters. They're someone that definitely wasn't on Earth. There's a lot of monsters that come out in legends and myths, literally all over the place. And non-humans as well."

"That's right, I remember being surprised about that as well. Kuro, what about you?"

"I wasn't actually all that surprised..I knew about it from novels and manga after all. And games as well. All of the characters of the monsters that appear are the same as those as well. Non-humans are as well. They were the same. They are slightly different but it's roughly the same as a monster with the same name coming out in a different game. I thought of it as a difference at that level.”

I see, I’m jealous of that. I was troubled over how many unexpected things there were without that sort of knowledge.

“Next is the dates and seasons. There’s 24 hours in one day. This is supposedly the same as Earth. But, one week is 6 days. One month is 5 weeks and 30 days. One year is 12 months and 360 days. You already know this right?”

“Yeah, though it was mostly just that I thought it was probably 24 hours in 1 day. I know that much.”

“Me too.”

Well, I guess that’s only obvious. It would be inconvenient if you didn’t know.

“After that is magic. For this it would probably be faster to ask how much you guys know first.”

I finally start eating my soup. Just as it looks it’s a soup with a deep flavor. There’s a lot of stock and it’s already at the level of one step before becoming stew. It’s good.

“It’s a special skill where Earth, Fire, Water, Wind, and Void all have levels. Due to something related to mana amount you start training with it once you become an adult and those with talent can use it. It’s said to be roughly one in ten. That’s why magicians aren’t uncommon but in order to use it practically you need at least level 2 and in order to get it that far you have to train a bit. It seems that Free People and commoners with a high skill level of magic become adventurers or enter the army.”

“I see, anything else?”

“If you combine magics you can get effects like in games. There’s also names like, {Flame Arrow} and {Wind Cutter}. Also, there’s a healing type where you speak an incantation to recover injuries. However, they’re all not that much different. In the past I’ve seen {Flame Arrow} used but the speed was about as fast as you can throw a stone, and if you miss that’s it, if it’s an adult then unless it hits a bad spot you can’t defeat them so easily.”

“Yeah, anything else?”

“I guess so, other than that is... I’ve heard that you can control the elements that you’ve made. Not the stuff that already existed but only the stuff that you create.”

“After that is.. there’s various troublesome things if you use magic too much and run out of mana, I guess. I don’t know what happens though. I’ve never seen it after all.”

“I see. It’s somewhat correct until now. However, there’s several things that are incorrect and several things that aren’t sufficient. Things in relation to magic is knowledge that comes from my experience. That’s why it’s probably not perfectly correct but even then I know a lot more than that. Then I’ll tell you the things I know about magic.”

I pick up some of the relishes that came out with the soup. What is this? It’s an unusual flavor but it’s good.

“First off, you said that you have no experience of running out of mana from overusing magic. Is that the case for both of you?”

“Neither of us can use magic. Want to check our Status?”

After saying that Mary stretches out her left hand. Kuro stretched his hand out as well. While stopping that I said.

“Yeah, Status is fine later. I understand, I’ll have to digress a bit but listen to what I say. You guys said you met God when your Unique Ability leveled up right.

I’m the same but at the start when you use your Unique Ability don’t you get tired?”

The two of them respond simultaneously.

“When did the two of you meet God?”

“When I was 8 years old.”

Kuro said.

“I think it was when I was 5 or 6 years old.”

Mary said.

“I see, after that have you ever gotten tired or noticed a change in your body from overusing your Unique Ability?”

“Just at first. Since I would immediately start to feel tired or feel hungry I only used it once a day or so.”

“I also started to be careful using it after I noticed that I would get tired from overusing it, so it was just in the period after I first started using my Unique Ability.”

“That’s running out of mana. If you overuse magic you get symptoms similar to that. By the way, as far as I’ve analyzed, when you run out of mana the desire that adapts to the situation you’re in is the one that you become most unable to control. Primarily the three great desires of humans. Hunger, sleep, and sexual desire.

According to what you said since it was when you were still kids first off is the desire to sleep. If it’s when you’re a bit hungry then your appetite will completely come out and you’ll find it difficult to endure. When it comes to your age right now then sexual desire might come out as well.”

Both of them were dumbfounded.

“In other words, the usage of your Unique Ability and mana are in a close relationship. Unique Abilities aren’t magic but they use mana. Since I’ve tested this out quite a bit I’m pretty sure it’s true. For a short while after I use my Unique Ability Magic Acquisition it becomes considerably easy to learn magic. I kept record of the number of times I could use magic without using my Unique Ability at all and after I used my Unique Ability so I had quite a bit of trouble analyzing things.”

After saying that I drink the soup with a indifferent face and eat some of the oeuvres.

Kuro seems to be nodding as he opens his mouth.

“I see. I get it know. My Unique Ability is.. it’s embarrassing but the so-called Charm. I can Charm the opposite sex, Human women. It’s kind of like a love drug. If I use this Unique Ability then for a short while after that I can make the woman’s feelings directed towards me. It’s no good against different races and men it seems. I don’t know for sure since I’ve never tested it though. Ah, of course I’ve never used it on Mary as well. Let alone that, I haven’t used it at all recently.

In order to use Charm there’s some procedures I have to follow but I had God teach me that...aa, I see, God came out that time because my body level had gone up!

Since I was too happy I must not have heard it. Sorry, Al. I doubted you.”

Hmph, so he has enough discretion to recognize his own mistakes and apologize for them.

I felt a bit of admiration. I just nodded as if to say not to worry about it.

Mary was quietly listening to what Kuro said but since it seemed that Kuro reached the end of talking about his Unique Ability, Mary started to talk.

“My Unique Ability is Resistance, there’s Poison in the parentheses. In the past when I was cutting a fish that had poison I stabbed my finger on it’s fin that was the first time I used my Unique Ability. Up until then I didn’t know how to use it. It’s not like I could try drinking poison after all and I couldn’t get my hands on poison. After that I trained it by stabbing my finger with the poison fin. Now it’s level 8 and most poisons don’t work on me.”

She properly looked at my eyes while talking. There’s no poison in the food here so relax. However, Resistance (Poison) is somehow amazing. Since there’s parentheses there might be something other than poison.

“He~ Both of you have amazing abilities. Charm is amazing and resistance to poison is amazing. Well, putting that aside and returning to the conversation on magic and while you can’t confirm it in your Status, mana definitely exists. You’re using that as a fuel to materialize magic. Even if you use up your mana if you eat some food or rest then it’ll recover. Even if you don’t use it all up and a bit is remaining it will slowly recover as well. That’s about it regarding mana.”

At that time, there was another knock and the boy carried in some food. It seems to be some sea food. There's a boiled fish that I've never seen before. It looks delicious.

After the three of us enjoyed the food for a bit, I started talking again.

"There's five types of magic but if you generally classify it then there's three types. Water and earth quite literally create those elements. The amount you can create is based on the level of the magic of those elements. It's also possible to reduce them. If you were to try and make even more of the element then if you put more mana into it, it's possible but it's inefficient. If you just use these two types of magic on their own then you create water or dirt and that's the end. Ah, the water tastes bad but it's safe to drink. I think it's probably pure water. The dirt you can make is a fixed dirt quality as well. I've never tried using it in fields so I don't know what kind of effect it might have. I don't there would be any probably?"

The two of them are focused on me.

"Next is fire and wind. Fire magic level you control the temperature in an area based on the level of your magic. It's possible to raise the temperature and the opposite of lowering it is also possible. I use it in combination with water magic the most. If you use it on its own without thinking then fire comes out. I think it's probably burning some flammable gas in the atmosphere but I don't know for sure. The composition of the air in Orth might be different from the air on Earth."

It seems they were a bit surprised at my guess.

"Wind is also a bit different. If you use on its own then you create air. And quite a bit I think. Even if you inhale this air it's not something bad for you. But, you might hurt your lungs or throat if you use it for breathing for too long. Since it doesn't seem like there would probably be any moisture included in this air.

Wind magic is the same as fire magic in that you use it in combination with other magics a lot."

I guess they've already gotten used to my unexpected story so the two of them are nodding to themselves.

“Lastly is void magic but this is the most important. It’s mostly used to apply some sort of power to the elements you’ve created with elemental magic. Firing off, changing shape, or controlling. It’s also possible to use it on its own. Since it’s the magic you use the most even if it’s a magician that can use several types of elemental magic the level of their void magic is almost always the highest.”

“He~ The magician adventurer that I did jobs with for a bit in the past didn’t teach me that much. By the way, Al, how do you do magic training? There’s a possibility that I could be able to use it as well right?”

Kuro’s eyes are sparkling. It seems that Mary is hoping for it the same as Kuro. I guess that’s only obvious. Since you can’t use magic on Earth. I know those feelings.

“Yeah, I’ll teach you later. It’s nothing particularly hard. Between the method my mother taught me and the normal method, which would be better? The result is probably the same for both. The method my mother taught me is probably more difficult but you might understand the result right away. I think there’s a bit of time required to get used to the normal method.. I guess about one week or so but it’s probably not difficult.”

“Either way is fine. I want to try both methods.”

The two of them are leaning towards me.

“That’s why I said later. I still have a bit more to talk about in regards to magic. And like I just said, it’s common for magic to be used as a combination of various types of magic. Since the applications are limited with using a single type. For example, using fire and water magic to make ice. I’m sure the ice that’s cooling this wine down was made with ice magic.”

After I say that the two of them were looking at the ice pale. The rough rock ice has already mostly melted. I take the decanter out of the ice pale and put my left hand above it then made a bit of ice. After the palm of my left hand shines with a bit of blue light some rock ice like ice falls into the ice pale and splashes water in it around. I return the decanter to the ice pale before opening my mouth again.

“Just like this you make ice. Just now was an example of using fire and water magic. I didn’t use void magic. If I use the appropriate void magic along with them I can make the ice sharp and shoot it and I can make not just ice but hot water and take a shower as well. Depending on the combinations and your imagination the applicable uses get quite a bit wider.”

After saying that I eat the boiled fish again. This is delicious.

“My story is about that much. After that I want to hear what you guys have to say.”

The two of them exchange glances but Kuro nods and looks at me. It seems that Kuro is going to talk first.

“Just like we said, we only had one minute to ask questions. In my case I was only able to ask how to use my Unique Ability and it ended. It seems to be the same for Mary. Sorry, but I don’t think we have much useful information that we can tell you.”

I somehow had that sort of feeling but it really was just that much. I guess it can’t be helped. If they had some more important information about Orth then I honestly doubt they would be living here like this after all. If you just are aware of the fact that leveling up exists then you definitely know when it happens after that. And after that you should be able to recognize a lot of things. I guess you could say the fact that the two of them are still low level is a valid point itself.

Depending on how they train these two can become much stronger than a normal person. There’s no better person than this for my first comrades. However, since both of them have an occupation and Mary is living with her family. On top of that they both are prejudiced towards adventurers. I wonder how I should go about it.

“I see, don’t worry about it the two of you. I’m not worried about it after all. Well, isn’t it good luck that we were able to get to know other Japanese? It’s valuable to all of us with just that I’m sure.”

There’s another knock and the boy carries in more food. It seems to be a meat dish this time. There’s a mysterious sauce on top of a saute of pork. I’ve stopped using Identify on food so often since I came to Keel. Since the surprise disappears. I'll use identify after I eat it. Ah, of course if it's obviously rotting or suspicious then I'm obviously still using identify though.

"It helps that you're willing to say that. We don't have much of any information about Orth. That's why about the only things we could tell Al are about the society in Keel or the common sense of a city."

"No, just that is helpful. I'm estranged from those sorts of things. That's why it helps a lot."

Even if the appearance of the two of them is worn-out they skillfully use the knife and fork to cut the pork saute and bring it to their mouths. You can feel that they've lived in modern society from that area.

"Now then, I still have two more things to talk about. First off is regarding adventurers. Do the two of you have any intention of partying up with me as adventurers?"

After looking at the faces of the both of them and they were both looking at me with awkward expressions.

"Al, since I was aiming to be an adventurer in the past and have tried it for a bit so I know, but only a small handful of amazing guys can properly earn as it. I know that you can use magic but I doubt you can match up with monsters. Ah, don't take what I said the wrong way. Since I've seen monsters in the past as well but those are the lukewarm things like in RPGs. They seriously come at you to kill. You have to always take them on with your full ability. If they come at you in succession then you'll eventually run out of mana right? I know several guys who were killed by fighting monsters with that much confidence."

"That's right, and Kuro can use the sword a bit but I can't fight. I haven't used any blades other than a kitchen knife. I have a family and I can't leave alone the restaurant. I said it the other day but there's no way to succeed as an adventurer. It's better to search for a job and live normally."

The two of them say various objections. Yeah, I expected that.

"I already get that it's difficult being an adventurer. I have no intention of forcing you, since I don't have any authority to do so after all. However, I want comrades I can trust. Monsters... Speaking honestly in regards to monsters, I've fought and defeated every type of monster in the surroundings of my home town. I've killed four Horned Bear up until now. Putting aside Horned Bears, if it's Kobolds, Goblins, Hobgolbins, Brown Slime, Giant Leech, or Green Crocodiles, then at that level even if they come at me in groups of a bit more than ten then I can annihilate them all myself. I have that much experience fighting."

After the two of them made a dumbfounded expression from hearing my story they immediately said, "Don't lie" just like before. It's not like it's necessary for them to believe my achievements just from talking but I decided to keep talking.

"Well putting that aside, even though I've reincarnated, even if the 14 year old I am in orth says that I know it's hard to believe. But, that I really want allies, particularly allies that I can trust is true. It seems that it's common for an adventurer to buy combat slaves and complete jobs with them. That's fine as well but I don't have any experience using those sorts of slaves myself so I thought it would be unlikely to get lucky enough to get my hands on a slave I can really trust. In the first place, I have a bit of mental rejection towards buying and selling slaves as well. Ah, obviously, it's not like I want to use you two as a substitute for slaves. Believe me on that."

"I wouldn't particularly think something like that. If you really have the strength you say then there should be plenty of people who want to be your ally. And if you're that strong isn't it fine alone?"

"That's right. We want to go without getting involved with that sort of world as much as possible. I know it's weird coming from that's an exclusive escort for a caravan though. The company that I'm working for just does round-trips to safe places. But if you're really that strong then.."

"Wait just a minute, Kuro."

Mary talks to Kuro worried about him.

"Ah, sorry. But if he's really that strong then shouldn't he be able to become top class in Keel right away?"

Kuro apologizes as if to parry what Mary said, it seems he has some admiration for it.

I guess I'll leave this topic around here. I bite into the saute while saying.

"Then let's stop with this conversation for now. Finally is about Begulu. Did Kuro hear why I was searching for Begulu?"

"Yeah, I heard from Mary yesterday. I also heard that it might not be the Begulu I know about as well."

"I see, as a matter of fact yesterday I tried going to a shop called Janlud. I used quite a bit of time but I was able to take a look at Begulu's face. There's two of them. Since I don't know which one is the one I'm searching for I didn't try talking to them and they didn't try to make contact with me as well."

They two of them flinched after hearing what I said but quickly calmed down. Kuro stands up from his seat and slowly lifts his shirt. There's a celluloid like large burn scar on his stomach. After Kuro saw that my facial color changed he showed me his back. When I'm eating such delicious food don't show me such weird things.

"This is the literal branding that was done to me when I left Begulu's group. It's horrible right? I thought I was going to die when it was done. I had all my money stolen from the healer old man as well. Do you understand why we don't want to get involved with that guy?"

Yeah, I know.

Mary is looking worried up at Kruo while holding the knife and fork.

"How cruel. So you had something like that done to you.."

I said it with pity.

"Yeah, I won't say anything bad. I think it's better for you to avoid getting involved with him."

"I see now. I get it well. However, I won't stop following Begulu. No matter what if I don't find and kill him there's a person that can't sleep in peace after all.

Ah, I'm sorry for saying something like killing. Of course, I think it might not be the two I saw yesterday. Just, even if it was just one of the two of them I intend to do it. And I think I can probably manage it after all."

Mary sighs and looks at me as she opens her mouth.

“Al, it’s good that you have confidence but you know. Begulu’s group is really unreasonable. Even the knight group has their hands full dealing with them.”

“I see, come to think of it there was no proof of their crimes right... I don’t know if the one I’m looking for is one of them or maybe someone different but I think it’s only a matter of time before that’ll become obvious. If it’s one of them, then I’ll definitely kill them. It’s best if I can wait for them to be alone before killing but if they never are alone then I’ll kill them both at once. I should know that probably within another three weeks or so.”

Since I was saying I would definitely kill them with a serious face it seems that Mary got scared. Kuro says to Mary to try and help her relax, “It’s not like Al is saying we have to get involved with it right” and said to me “It would be good if you can do it. I feel bad for you but I’m hoping that the Begulu you’re searching for is that Begulu. There’s a lot of people that would be glad if you could do something about that Begulu. I have no intention of helping but even if it’s just feeling I’ll be rooting for you.” Well, he was done something would make him hold a grudge so I guess it’s only obvious.

After leaving the restaurant when we were about to split up I decided to ask something I’ve thought for the past few days.

“Are you guys dating?”

Since they were just looking at each other without confirming or denying it I gave them a pack of older brother’s present as a gift. Neither of them knew what it was at first but Mary quickly realized and violently threw it back at me while saying “We’re still 14 years old!”.

Ku...she treated the crystallization of us siblings so roughly.

Chapter 60: Sales Promotion

Year 7442, Month 4, Day 17

I return to the inn and organize the things I talked about today.

..It was mostly just me giving handouts. Is what I thought for a moment, but since the things I heard about Keel's common sense were of pretty good reference so the 42,600 Z I paid for "Dakkuluton" wasn't a complete waste. Ah, I paid an extra 10,000 Z for bribes. I guess that doesn't matter. And I think I got a bit closer to those too as well, I guess it would be better to be satisfied with that for today.

Also, that as well. The dessert at the end. That was delicious. Of course, sweets exist in Orth as well but until now I've eaten a difficult to make sweet like Western confectioneries like that until now. Things like frozen fruits made into gelatin or sweet bean jelly, after that at best it was something like failed pancakes. I didn't think there were sweets as delicious as that in Orth. It was a fruits bavarios that had sour-sweet gelatin like mousse on the surface and there was something like fresh cream used for decorations. Kuro and Mary let out a sigh just looking at it and even I was about to let out a sound.

In my past life I didn't really care for western confectioneries so I rarely ate them and don't know them well, but I still think that "Dakkuluton"'s dessert falls behind the sweets you can buy at a convenience store. However, it still feels like the first time I've eaten a delicious dessert as good as that since my past life so for a moment I still felt like I was going to rise into the sky. Ah, just remembering it makes me start to drool.

Oh~ I should stop there in regards to the food. I want to make those into my allies but it's already seeming impossible. Their aversion towards adventurers is too strong after all. Maybe I should just think about of hiring them with some reasonably high compensation. They say you can earn a ton of money by entering the dungeon near the capital and getting out of it with loot. I'm sure it's still impossible with how weak I am though. It seems that the top class adventurers of various territories challenge it in large groups, end up being defeated instead, and only a portion of them return. They also say that among the guys that return alive another handful find enough treasures and magic stones to live comfortably their entire life as well.

I'm aiming for that as well. I'll challenge it a number of times and build a fortune, and using that as funds I'll start a country somewhere outside of the kingdom.

According to a story I heard Kolakut Kingdom in the east was founded 100 years or so ago by an adventurer and there's a lot of countries that have similar stories.

And the borders between various countries are pretty vague so I could aim for the gaps and declare the foundation of my country, and have a country that's not far from mine recognize that as a country, as long as I can glare back at other countries with effective military action most countries will recognize it a bit at a time it seems.

It seems that in the end a lot of the small countries around Rombert were founded like that. Since it's just going off of the information I gathered and guessed from a remote region I doubt it's that simple but if I remember correctly there was a powerful family in Japan that was made in the same way. In the end you can get the Emperor to say "I'll leave that territory to you" then it's your win, and even if he doesn't say it there were a lot of local clan leaders that made it to feudal lords. If I possess power then it's not incorrect to say that somewhat little by little it'll become a country.

No matter what I do, I need money to start. The amount of wealth that can be amassed by selling rubber products has its limits. At best it's enough for a regional Viscount territory to profit reasonably. It would be different if you could increase the area of the rubber trees planted by more than 100 times but that sort thing will take decades. It's suspicious if I'll even still be alive by then. That's why I have to rush with my life. In order to do that I need money. Obviously power as well. If I get too impatient and fall into a careless train of thoughts and end up failing it's shameful as well so I need to be careful, I'm sure there will be many times where I need to proceed with patience and discretion. Of course I'm sure there will also be times to aim for a large and bold hand to play as well. Yeah, I have a lot to think about. I guess I'll sleep already for today.

Year 7442, Month 4, Day 18

I head to Binsil's restaurant from the morning. In order to teach Kuro and Mary the way to train with magic. Obviously since there's a lot of customers in with the sunrise I'm sure it's busy with preparations of breakfast so I just need to go in between 8 am and 9 am. Until then I'll do some running and sweat a bit. Ah, Kuro won't be there today or tomorrow because of his job. Having two days of work and one day off isn't that the work schedule of a prostitute, it doesn't really matter though. Eh? Why do I know something like that? Isn't everyone forgetting that my occupation used to be a salary-man in my previous life? I did some business entertainment I couldn't tell to the company. There's no way I wouldn't know about it.

I arrived at Binsil's restaurant after 8 am. It seems that Mary is here. I sit at the edge seat that Kuro is always sitting at and order a breakfast set. Mary quickly brought out a breakfast set.

"Thank you for the meal yesterday. It was very good. It felt like it's been decades since I had food as good as that."

"I see, I'm glad you liked it. And, if you have any time right now I can teach you the magic to train with magic but what do you want to do?"

Different from the way home yesterday Mary is smiling as I say it so I immediately got to the point.

"Right now is fine but how long will it take? If it takes too long then I have to start preparing for lunch.."

"Hn? The first time takes a few minutes up to a bit more than ten minutes I guess. And if I teach you once then after that if you want you can try to do it yourself whenever you want."

After hearing what I said Mary leaned forward towards me.

"It's that short!? Then teach me, right now!"

"At least let me eat first. Also, just as I said yesterday, there's two types of methods. Which is better?”

Mary thinks about it for a bit before saying.

“The method that gets results faster is better.”

“I see, then, prepare a thin stick that you don’t need. I’ll eat quickly.”

After hearing past “quickly” Mary left the seat and ran to the kitchen. You can tell from her back how much she’s anticipating it. I bite off some bread and come to think of it how much MP did Mary have again? And I use Identify on her back as she crouching down at the stove in the kitchen. 16 huh, it’s plenty for starting out. Ah, I guess I should look at the explanation for Resistance (Poison) as well?

【Unique Ability: Resistance (Poison); A type of resistance ability. It activates via resistance or feelings of fear felt towards poisons that have entered the body through absorption or other factors. Therefore, if the user isn’t conscious of the poison or is in a mental state where they accept the poison the ability doesn’t active. Also, the poisons that are possible to resist must be poisons before they enter the body of the user. Inside refers to the surface of the body. In other words, there’s no effect against poisons that are produced within the users body. All poisons that this ability has no effect on are processed in the same way the body normally treats poisons. If the ability activates the effect of the poison doesn’t disappear, the effect of the ability manifests by weakening the effect of the poisons. Level 0 the effect of the poison is reduced by 55%, every level after that the effect of poisons are reduced by 5% more. At the maximum level there’s a 100% reduction. Also, regardless of whether the poison is produced inside or outside of the body in the case that it’s a poisonous substance that has a negative effect on the body it will be decomposed and ejected. At Level 0 it takes at most 20 days after the ability is activated to completely decompose and eject the poison, for every level after that the time required will reduce by 1 day. However, it is possible for that to activate the ability through resistance and feelings of fear as well. Furthermore, because the poison listed above is any substance regardless of organic or inorganic that provides a negative influence to the vital activity of the owner of the ability, it doesn’t take consideration the selective toxicity of other living things】

He~ This is certainly amazing. As long as the person them self is conscious of it they can become almost invincible against all types of poisons. I wonder if you can understand the strength of the poison you absorb? For example, this isn't much at all, or if you take this you'll normally die.

She brought a thin wooden stick that seems to be something like a fire lighter from the kitchen as she heads over here. Then, I guess I'll start.

“Alright..and just as you can see I just lit it up with fire. Hold both of your hands over the sides of this and try to pass mana through the gap of your hands. If you succeed then the flame will sway and you'll have completed acquiring void magic. Since even if I say that you probably won't know what to do I'll help out for just the start.”

After saying that I place both of my hands on the outside of Mary's hands that are surrounding the fire and start sending in mana. I guess she felt the flow because Mary raised her voice with a “hya” while still properly looking at the flame swaying in the wind.

“If you can cause the sensation from just now on your own then it's perfect. However, if you try too hard then you'll end up overusing your mana so be careful. I guess so, I think it would be good for Mary to try practicing 10 times in the morning and 10 times in the afternoon. If your talent with magic is high then you should be able to do it in a few times. However the trick to it is difficult. If your talent is low then it takes quite a bit of time. I'll come again tomorrow so if you still haven't done it by then we can try doing the normal method.”

“..Yeah, I understand.”

Mary couldn't make the flame move before the time I finished eating. There's no helping it just watching Mary get lost in training with magic so I left the restaurant. When I left the restaurant the poor people who were all checking out the food inside faced downwards.

If you work you can eat it. It's not that expensive after all.

Well then, it's not like I have particularly anything to do but there is one thing that I must do. After returning to Bins Manor I took a shower, changed my clothes and cleaned up my appearance then grabbed one of the apprentices and asked where the store called "Ritton" listed on the memo from my older brother is located.

I whistle as I head towards "Ritton", check the bond between brothers that's in my pocket and think about how to conquer it. I think it would be better to get a hold of someone as high up as possible at first. I shortly arrived at my location and was a bit disappointed that it wasn't a building as extravagant as I thought it would be. The first floor is made of stone and the second floor seems to be wood. It's not extravagant but the surroundings of the building are clean and tidy and there's no dirt anywhere. Hm, it seems they've put work into training the employees.

After confidently opening the door and entering there was a counter in front of me. Both halls that go further in from there are hidden by a black curtain like cloth. There's a middle-aged man with good posture that you can only call a gentleman standing at the counter in a coat and after he realizes me he lowers his head and calls out "Welcome.". I held out my hand while saying, "It's my first time here but I heard rumors of this place."

The gentleman gently grabs my right hand with his left hand and uses Status Open. Hm, it's just as I thought from the store's appearance. That's great. After confirming my status the gentleman smiles lightly and asks, "Welcome to our store. Greed-sama, who were you referred to us by?" since I wanted to make his impression of me as high as possible I secretly showed him the plate I got from sister-in-law.

After getting a glance of the plate the gentleman made a face as if he understood everything, quietly nodded, and guided me through to the back through the curtain on the left side. Further behind the curtains was a hallway just as I thought but a few meters further than that there's another curtain blocking it. The gentleman slips through past me and opens the door on the left side of the hallway as he lowers his head. I guess he's saying to enter.

I enter the door and sit down on a chair in what seems to be a conversation room. The gentleman disappears after saying, "please wait just a moment". Hm, as expected of the power of the plate. It's VIP treatment. After waiting for about 10 minutes the door was knocked and opened. After the gentleman from just now politely opens the door the person behind him slowly enters the room. While feeling like my chest is going to burst with expectation I look at the person.

Oh my, it was too much of a happening that my brain stopped for a moment there.

The {OS} in my brain takes as much time to restart as s {VAX} machine in a certain university. The {VAXstation 3100} in my brain is somehow able to activate {VMS}.

The person who just gently sat down across the table from me is truly a being not of this world. While clad in garments that seem to be silk, with a shining gentle smile on their face, the pair of blue eyes are shining as they stare prudently over here, making me feel as if they can even see through my body itself. The gentleman closed the door without making a sound and is already no longer here.

For the next dozen minutes, no depending on the situation several hour period, I'll be challenging this opponent to a fight. This is a crusade. I close my eyes for a short period of time and once again look at the person in front of me. Now then, I wonder if the crusade will take place here or we'll move this battle to another place. At that moment, the opponent opened their mouth.

"Welcome to our shop, Greed-sama. I am the owner of this "Ritton", Yoshilmil Haritaid. For what business are you here for today?"

It's a voice almost as if the gates of hell themselves have opened. The person in front of me opens their mouth that's wide like a toad, and the skin that's covered in pimples jiggles as they talk. Ah, it's my first time seeing a human as negligent of their health and unsightly as this. It reminds of that {Jabba.the} something or other. Why did this happen? Damn it. I...I really... I had such expectations. What's this? Is it a candid camera? Quickly bring out the signboard Akaheru-sa~~n!

I'm confused over the truly unexpected situation. Older brother~ Save me?! Older~ brotherrrrr! Older brother? Ah, that's right.

"U...Umm, that is... I....I..I..I..I have a product that I would like to be used here. I'm here today to introduce it to you."

I was in a bit of a panic but I somehow managed to smooth it over and talk. I showed the power of a top salesman.

"Ho~ Since you visited in possession of the Marquis plate, I thought that as the owner I should greet you first, but.."

After saying that Haritaid snaps his fingers. While snapping his fingers his cheeks jiggled again.

The door quickly opened and the gentleman says, "Now, show him your faces." and invited several women who were waiting in the hall into the room. However, Haritaid opened his mouth once again.

"Ah, it's fine. Sebastian. Have the women step back. Also prepare two drinks."

Are you serious.

I made a huge mistake~ What was that about top salesman. Being smeared in shit matches me perfectly.

"Now then, what kind of product is it? In order to respond to all sorts of requests I believe that we have a perfect collection of articles though.."

I hold back the fact that I want to cry with a will of steel and somehow pretend to remain calm while I take the condom out of my pocket. I put it on the table and start explaining while smiling.

"I hear that the, umm, gentlemen who are in search of a social life fall into a passionate relationship with the employees of this store. I'm sure that is because the gentlemen are very charming, I also heard that the employees are caught up in that passion with a high probability."

Haritaid was staring at the condom in my hand with a dubious look but after looking at me with an expression as if he read what I was saying he opens his mouth.

“H~m. Greed-sama uses very refined expressions. However, that expression is splendid indeed. It’s true, I’m sure that the gentlemen who visit this store are very charming. It does seem that the employees get engrossed with them.”

Alright, the catch was {OK}.

“And, when you want to develop a passionate relation there is a problem that absolutely cannot be ignored I’m sure.”

“Ho~? A problem that can’t be ignored..What in the world is it?”

At that moment along with a polite knock the gentlemen entered the room with a tray with tea on it.

After politely placing the tea, he closed the door without noise again and left the room.

“It’s the problem of population that the gentlemen and employees don’t wish for and the disease other than love that a portion of imprudent gentlemen bring in.”

“Hohou, I see now. However, in order to avoid those sorts of problems our store has already prepared the highest quality of goods. The goods prepared at this store are all products that were prepared from only healthy subjects that were slaughtered the day before and of a high quality where there is no need to worry about mold or drying. In order to guarantee the quality we hold back on business the day after the slaughter house is closed.”

Haritaid said with full confidence.

“I see, I’m sure that’s true from the “Ritton” that I’ve heard about. However, I wonder if you can still say such things after you’ve tried using this product that I’ve brought in today?”

This is the place to make the push. For older brother’s sake I can’t afford to pull back here.

“Mu.. It’s a back and forth way of putting it, can I take that as a challenge towards the quality of goods prepared at our establishment?”

How annoying~ Jabba.the something raises one his eyebrows while looking at me. I'm scared.

I drink down the cup of tea that was prepared for me and reach out to the pack of condoms.

And I cut the seal on the pack. Though it's just tearing the edge with my nails.

A bit of the seaweed lotion that was sealed overflows and fell onto my cup but I guess it's fine. I emptied my cup for that reason.

And along with the lotion in the 10 slits I squeeze down on the opening to one of those slits and take that out.

"This is made from a material called rubber. Do you know about rubber?"

Jabba who was making a displeased expression says, "Of course I know of it. It's something that's started to appear on the market recently. I've purchased the shoes and cushions myself." with a slightly proud expression. Since rubber products are expensive I guess just owning them is a bit of a status. Especially the cushions are considerably expensive so I can understand wanting brag about it.

"This is a hygiene product created using rubber. Please try holding it in your hand. Ah, that liquid is not something that is harmful to the body. Depending on the case...I guess so. It's a completely harmless substance which the lubrication is high so that even the employees who can't get into the mood can easily accept the gentlemen. Since the raw material for it is a food product even if you put it into your mouth or swallow it there's no negative effects at all."

Jabba was staring at the circular rolled up hygiene product that was covered in an unknown liquid as if it was creepy but timidly reached out to it was it was on my hand. I hold back the nauseous of seeing the caterpillar like fingers coming towards me as I continue.

"This is rolled up so that the gentlemen can easily put it on. You equip it just like this."

I take the hygiene product being pinched by the caterpillars and start spinning it onto the caterpillar in the middle of Jabba's hand. This is somehow an unpleasant picture, is what I'm thinking while I'm making sure not to forget my smile. Obviously it's really loose.

"Now, have you been able to understand the thickness and durability of this rubber? Try touching it. It's fine if you try pulling on the rubber as well."

After staring unpleasantly at his finger covered in the lotion Jabba touched the cup while it was still covered with the hygiene product. Then he made a surprised expression and started touching the surface of the table and the surface of the cup other than the handle. Also, he tried touching the caterpillar on his other hand while checking the sensation and started pulling it to check the strength. It seems to have greatly grasped his interested.

"Hmm...This is..The temperature passes through extremely well..Not to mention this thinness... A proper sensation still remains..Hm..mm..It stretches well...And it doesn't tear as well, huh.."

He touches various things while grumbling and in the end was playing with the cup through the condom while thinking. Just one more push from here.

"Haritaid-sama, I'm always thinking. That a first-class establishment needs first-class products available. Of course I already know from local popularity that this establishment is super first-class. Starting with the clerk and the education of the employees, the appearance of the employees themselves as well, this is only obvious but an important point. Obviously the gentlemen that are the customers are thinking they're going to receive a first-class service as they knock on the door.

This product still hasn't been introduced to any other place. It's precisely because I thought your establishment was first-class that I had the pleasure of bringing it in to your shop first."

Jabba makes a shocked expression as he looks at my face and nods.

"Greed-sama, just as Greed-sama has said, this Haritaid has been extremely deeply impressed. A first-class establishment needs to provide first-class products and first-class service, I see that is exactly true. Please definitely let me purchase this product. How much is it?"

He fell. Now then, from here on out is the real fight.

"Not at all, Haritaid-sama, that sort of impatience decision will hurt the judgement of an owner of a first-class establishment such as yourself. I offer this pack that I've brought in today to you as a free promotional sample. I've already opened the package but if you put it over ice water without letting the water get inside then it can be used with no problem at all for the next two days. It's better to have the best customers of your store who come during that try using it and listen to their thoughts on it first. Otherwise, I think it would be best if Haritaid-sama should try testing it out yourself and check the abilities of it. I'll try coming again in the evening the day after tomorrow. We can decide on the cost on that occasion..”

Haritaid opens his eyes after hearing what I said. The fact that I gave a pack of a supposedly expensive rubber product to him for free his eyes opened wide but after hearing me say to ask the customers their thoughts on it he opened them so wide I thought his eyes would fall out. It seems he received a deep impression from super basic marketing. It might be different though.

“Oh~ For you to be concerned about things such as that, this Haritaid, will definitely meet up to the expectations of Greed-sama, I'll carefully select the gentlemen who test it out. Also, if I am able to find the chance I promise that I myself will test it out.”

He's completely fallen. I'm the one who gained victory on this crusade.

“Please don't be bothered over it. I just want you to know this is a portion of my feelings that I wish for your establishment to prove that it is a first-class place even more so.”

After this I just need to leave right away. There's not much meaning in talking here anymore than this.

Haritaid snaps his fingers to call Sebastian and tells him politely lead me out.

I feel like tears are going to come from my eyes as Sebastian lowers his head deeply to see me off, but I endure that and returned to Bins Manor.

I bury my face into the buy while thinking, “What was that? There was an amazingly~ good women there! What in the world was I doing?” while rolling around until I realized that I was starting to get hungry so I went to Binsil's restaurant.

I enter the store while avoiding the poor people that are watching from a distance as usual and sit down at a seat while ordering some wheat vodka. I guess she saw my expression in a bad mood Mary didn't come near me.

The alcohol today is bittersweet and covered in feelings of regret.

I shouldn't have pretended to be a guest of honor while showing the plate I got from sister-in-law.

After all, I'll never use it for something insignificant again.

I swore in my heart as I returned to Bins Manor drunk and fell into bed.

Ah, wouldn't it have been fine if I just went to a different place? But you know, that one girl I got a glimpse of was just my type~

If I went to a different place at that point then I would just end up discontent that there's no women on that level.

Either way I'm going again the night of day after tomorrow. I guess it's fine at that time.

Chapter 61: Magician

The next morning when I woke up my head hurt from a terrible hangover. I know that I can recover from it with detoxification magic but a simple resolution is bad for the health, or rather if I get strangely used to it, I just don't want to get into a habit of heavy drinking. It's not like there's an urgent crisis I have to take care of either, if I go running and sweat a bit I'm sure it'll calm down. I drink plenty of water before going for a slightly long run, after taking a shower just as I thought I felt refreshed so I decided to go and get some breakfast. I thought for a bit about where to go but since I promised to help with magic training I decided to go to Binsil's restaurant. If you say I have no taste then it's true but being able to talk in Japanese is valuable and I want to leave Mary and Kuro with as good of an impression of me as I can so I'm not particularly discontent. The food is good as well.

I head towards Binsil's restaurant and break through the encirclement of poor people staring at customers that are eating then sit at the usual seat on the edge and order a breakfast set. Black bread and soup, with some pickled vegetables on the side. Mm, it's the usual menu. However, you can normally drink the soup and the content of the vegetables always changes so there's no getting bored of it. I think it's profit to get this for 250 Z. I always ask for an additional parched egg for 50 Z though. If you add some salt and seasonings then place it on the black bread it goes together quite well.

After keeping an eye that I finished eating Mary sat across from me.

"I tried doing the magic training for the day yesterday but... I wonder if I have no talent? It was no good."

Mary said sadly.

"Then it might take some time but do you want to try the normal method?"

"Eh? The normal method..Yeah, would you teach me?"

Why is she getting red and embarrassed? The fidgeting disease?

“Do you have a kindling magic tool?”

“We have one. I’ll bring it.”

I was looking at Mary who went to the kitchen while somehow disappointed and started searching through my pocket. I thought there might be one magic stone or so left but of course that wasn’t the case.

“According to what I heard this is the normal training magic. I think there are other methods but I don’t know them. To explain it simply you leave the flame from a kindling magic tool running. And you use the small magic {Cantrip} mana detection and just keep repeating detection. If you do it enough times then it seems you’ll be able to use the void magic mana detection.”

“Eh? Leave the flame running, won’t that use quite a few magic stones?”

“Of course. Since it uses mana from the magic stone while the fire is going after all.”

Mary bites her lower lip and a crease appears in her eyebrows.

“If that’s the case then it’s a bit impossible. I can’t waste magic stones.”

“I see, then, I’m sure it’s difficult but there’s no choice than to do as I taught you yesterday.”

Hmhn~ This might be the reason why only the people more wealthy than commoners can use magic in the city. In Bakkudo it was a custom for the lord to give serfs a small magic stone when they become adults in order to practice acquiring magic. Even then only about one in ten was able to acquire magic.

If you don’t have a magic stone then there’s no choice other than to buy one but even the cheapest ones from Goblins cost over 1000 Z. Especially when the only way to obtain magic stones is a magic tool shop in a large city like “Magic Tool 7–9 Shop” and it’s rare for a low value magic stone taken from a single goblin to be lined up as well I’m sure. Even if you had a lot of low value ones managing the stock would be annoying after all, if you’re taking stock at fixed periods it would just increase the amount of office work as well. I doubt they count the inventory though.

I'm sure it's only nobles and wealthy shops that purchase magic stones. It's easy to imagine it's all corporate* youths. That's why the magic stones that it's possible to buy are all valued at several 10,000 or 100,000 Z in price. Of course they're using both lighting and kindling magic tools at Binsil's restaurant but that's using it as a business. Since it would take too much effort to often go and buy cheap magic stones and I'm sure changing them out is annoying as well. They probably only go and buy a reasonably expensive one when the mana in the magic stone runs out.

Even a magic stone production family like mine where we went out hunting monsters on a daily basis and collected magic stones I was taught to avoid wasting magic stones as much as possible. If they're a consumer then I'm sure they would be far more stricter than my house with the usage of them.

If you were to use a kindling magic tool, which is said to consume a small amount of mana from magic stones, with a magic stone with a value of about 100 (900Z selling price at 7–9 shop), then it can make a flame for about 100 seconds. So it uses up 9Z per seconds. It's understandable that it would be considered a waste. Even in our village the magic stone father gave to serfs when they became adults was one combined from about 7–8 goblins. That means it would be able to make a flame for about 1000 seconds. Hm, I wonder how many times you can use small magic in 1000 seconds. I'm sure you would have to split it into several days but around 200 times I guess. If you do it about that many times then you can for the first time know whether or not you can learn void magic.

“Will you show me an example one more time?”

“Sure. Let's try doing it.”

Mary brings the thin stick used for kindling the furnace. After setting fire to it I put my hands around Mary's hands around the flame and start passing mana through them. Mary's making a serious face she tries to feel the sensation of the mana passing through. Honestly speaking, I think there's only about a 10% chance that Mary will be able to use magic so don't think it can be helped expecting too much. Well, I think it should be fine if she does it until she's satisfied. I can really understand the feeling after all. I guess I'll give her a bit of a hint.

“There’s a bit of a trick to passing mana through. This is my method so it’s not definite but try matching an opened hand in your imagination. While you remain aware of the mana circulating through your body. Probably..I guess so, just try to imagine as if the mana has melted into your blood. And then, in your imagination connect your hands and think that the blood vessels in both of your hands are connected together. While making sure that the point where you’ve matched your hands together in your imagination overlaps the flame. After that it’s patience and frequency I’m sure. If you have talent then you should be able to do it by today.”

“I understand. I’ll try doing it. Thanks.”

“It’s fine, I have plenty of time to spare for the time being after all. Give it your best. I’ll try coming back again tonight when Kuro should be here.”

On my way home from Binsil’s restaurant I remember how it’s been over 10 years already since I started training magic for the first time. If I remember correctly older brother, older sister, and I were all able to do it within the first 10 minutes. It’s probably no good for Mary. I feel it’s a bit of waste even though she has 16 MP.

Just like that I headed towards the headquarters of the knight group. I had something I wanted to ask about the Begulu A that they have their hands full with. I go to the cabin on the side of the gate and check the jobs for adventurers while asking the 20 year old or so receptionist about it.

“It seems there’s no jobs today as well.”

“Of course. If there were always subjugation jobs it would be terrible.”

“That is true isn’t it. By the way, does the knight group not exterminate or arrest the outlaws in the town?”

“Exterminate... They’re not monsters..Well, I guess they’re similar.”

Just like this I lead the conversation Begulu as if it’s social chat. And then it comes out and just keeps coming out, one after another crimes that Begulu was supposedly involved with came out. It seems that the knight group really wants to take him out but can't catch his tail. It seems that Sendehel the leader was called out once to face down Begulu but there was no definite evidence, and he just acted as if he was a good citizen who was properly paying taxes, so blood vessel came out in his head and went into a rage against him. It's true that the knight group that protects the order and rules in Keel can't arrest someone without evidence.

"But, if he's just doing that all over the place won't he buy someones resentment and get killed?"

I tried asking that but,

"You'd think so right? But you know, he's extremely careful and almost never alone it seems. Since he's always acting together with his partner the magician, so supposedly they can't manage a surprise attack on him."

And replied with that. And then,

"It seems that the magician with him has quite a bit of skill as well. Since he isn't working as an adventurer no one seems to know his real name as well. No matter if it's a criminal or otherwise the temple definitely won't tell us the status information as well. Since they're always together it seems he's called small Begulu though. Well, since that's the case if you want to surprise attack him it takes the resolve to make some sacrifices. Even though he's obviously a villain because we have no evidence we can't go after him with force as well. Since the opponent is a skilled magician we can't do anything that would make victims on our end as well.

I'm sure it's painful for the leader as well."

And added that. I see, though he's called small Begulu, it's not known that magicians name is really Begulu. Depending on the circumstances he might really be Begulu B.

"It seems the knight group has it tough. By the way, I've heard that they're using the lower parts of Keel as a base but the hoodlums around that area are usually doing various bad things. Since picking fights is an everyday occurrence. Isn't the Boss Begulu doing things together with them? Wouldn't there be a lot of evidence?"

“Yeah, that seems to be the case. But, he really won’t let us catch his tail. The ones who do the robbery and forcing protection fees out of shops is always the underlings. We’ve done as much as we can to block it but it’s impossible to do perfectly. When it’s a more large-scale trick it seems that Begulu takes command of the underlings himself.”

The official says with a difficult face.

“He~? Large scale trick..”

“Ah, that’s right, like attacking a caravan and stealing the goods. In that case, he kills everyone so there’s no witnesses remaining.”

How do they know it was Begulu if there’s no witnesses?

“He kills everyone that could become a witness huh... That’s cruel isn’t it. By the way, how do you know it was Begulu that did it?”

“Circumstantial evidence. Though they all hide their location all the time but every time there was an attack the day before they all disappeared from Keel, and after that they start spending money wildly. Also, the goods that were supposedly being carried are being sold by the underlings.”

“Even though he’s a villain he must be quite cautious and intelligent I guess.”

After hearing my impression the official sighs and says.

“Yeah, really. But, it seems that the one who is intelligent is his partner the magician. Well, it doesn’t matter which but it’s true we’ve got our hands full with him. You should be careful as well. They probably won’t attack any caravans from Bakkudo. Since the luggage is too unique they’ll get caught trying to sell it. And the caravan from your place has Lord Greed and the young miss together as guards, so I’m sure they’d be afraid of the damage they’d take as well. It should be fine to rest easy I think?”

Oh~ Until I was told it I didn’t think about the possibility that a caravan from Bakkudo could be attacked. But, it’s true that it’s just as this official says.

Since there’s someone from the Marquis direct bloodline with them so if they were to take some damage it would be a huge uproar, I doubt leader Sendhel would care about evidence in a raging frenzy as well.

“Hmn, I guess so. Well then, I’ll take my leave here. I’ll stop by again sometime.”

I make a bitter smile while giving salutations.

I was able to gain several pieces of important information. Probably no one other than me would realize. It’s still not enough to be completely sure but I was plenty satisfied with feeling the progress of a step forward.

Evening, I walk through the messy road along the central river and look at the poor people that I’m used to seeing as I head towards Binsil’s restaurant and Kuro and Mary were doing something.

It seems that Mary is teaching Kuro the magic training method I taught her. I order a beer from the older lady, call out to the two of them and sit at the same table.

“Al, will you really be able to use magic liek this?”

Kuro says discontent probably because he wasn’t able to get any results.

“Yeah, you’ll be able to use it. Should I show you an example?”

After saying that Kruo said “Then please do” while looking at me.

“Here, you hold your hands up like this to the sides of the flame. The distance is fine like that. And then like this.”

After I put my hands outside of his and send mana through and he said “muo” in reaction to the mana.

“It’s {OK} if you can cause the feeling from just now yourself. Did you hear about the method to get a hold of the sensation from Mary?”

“Yeah, that thing about imagination palms of a hand and connecting the blood vessels?”

While holding his hands to the side of the tree branch that Mary is holding with a serious face, Mary and I are watching Kuro. And then, what about it. After just concentrating for a bit over 10 seconds Kuro’s face distorted and his hands shined with blue light for a bit!

When I identified Kuro in a hurry his MP had decreased by 1. The movement of the flame was close to a measurement error but the light of magic appeared and his MP decreased. Yeah, I'm sure you can definitely say he was able to use magic.

"Congratulations, Kuro. If you put a bit more effort into you'll probably be able to use void magic."

I said that while smiling at Kuro.

"..That just now was...Just now was magic huh...Ffu. Fufufuffu. Aha. Alright..Mary, you saw it right. I, did it. Even I was able to use magic."

Kruo is grinning while chewing through the joy as he reports happily to Mary. I'm sure she knows since you did it right in front of her.

"Your hand...shined? Your hand shined just now... Amazing, so you can really learn to use magic with this method."

It seems Mary is a bit happy as well but, "this method" and "really" I heard some things that can't be ignored. So she was doubting it.

"Kruo should...I guess so, you should do it another 2-3 more times so you don't forget the trick to it. Don't try to do it in a hurry. It's fine if you take time so slowly, concentrate as you do it. And Mary, you said that almost as if you know a method other than the one I told you that is more believable but for reference tell me the method you know to train with magic."

I said it to Kuro with a smile and a grimace to Mary.

"Eh? Ah, since the two methods Al taught weren't the normal method.. A bit, umm, I couldn't believe it... I'm sorry."

Mary raises one hand as if begging while apologizing. Well it's fine though. But, it sounds like she already knew the normal method to train with magic. I only know the method that Sharl thought up this method and the method that uses a kindling magic tool that I heard from Sharl? So there's another method...

"What kind of method is The normal method that Mary is talking about? Is it different from the method I told you about?"

The method that Mary told me about to train magic seems to be the method that the citizens of Keel use. When I tried asking I understood just how inefficient of a method it sounded.

Eh? You're interested in it? Then I'll say. I think you already know but the method that Sharl created to move the flame is a training method to gain the void magic special skill. Making a small flame sway is something that can be done simply physically. It can be done with just a small movement of the air. It will sway from electrical differences and depending on the type of fuel it's burning on it will sway from magnetic fields. The mass of a flame is extremely small and thin so it is easily influenced. That's the same if you use mana to shake it. It'll easily be influenced by a small flow of mana.

After organizing up to there and thinking about it again, but Sharl might have really thought it through quite a bit when she created this method. It's unfortunate while the flame will easily be influenced, since it's not a flame that you created yourself it requires a considerable amount of concentration to influence it.

Though objects (I'll intentionally use object for the expression here) other than ones you've made yourself require consuming more mana than normal in order to influence them, if it's something as small as a flame on a tree branch it only takes about 1 MP to shake it. It's a magic training method that only uses 1 MP and you can quickly confirm the results and simultaneously use mana (MP), so I think it's a truly rational and good method for training.

Compared to that, the other method I said. The method I heard from Sharl in the past about feeling the mana in the flame from a kindling magic tool, this is a method of acquiring void magic as well. At first you use the small magic {Cantrip} to detect mana and once you've gotten used to that you just keep on using it over and over.

If you repeat it several times a day for several days then there's a possibility you could acquire void magic. If I were to explain the trick, this is getting used to the small magic {Cantrip} to detect mana and while getting used to touching the flowing mana countless times you wait until you awaken to the special skill of magic, that sort of passive method. I thought that this was the normal method.

However, the method that Mary told me about with her face red wasn't a method to learn void magic but a method to learn elemental magic. What they all have in common is that you go to sleep early the day before and take plenty of sleep, after waking up the next day you carefully clean your body, have sexual intercourse with your partner, eat plenty of breakfast, and then do it in a quiet environment where you're alone it seems. It seems that sexual intercourse or masturbation is fine but since this is thought be necessary they say it's a method that you can only start training once you become an adult. Well, up until here there's things like a secret ceremony involving sex and masturbation but I can feel the consideration over running out of mana so it's not that I can't understand.

After making such preparations the next thing you do to actually start the training is what I say next.

You hold something small and burning (you pour a bit of sperm or juices gathered in the morning on to a paper) in your hand and stare at that while just repeating "burn" in your mind or put your clenched fist above a cup or something and just keep thinking "sperm/love juices come out" and that sort of thing that would make you wonder if they're developing a love potion or training ESP? Or at least it's a method that's close to that. I wanted to ask about earth magic and wind magic as well but I was told "stop with the sexual harassment already" so I gave up. In other words, if you were to ask me, if you can learn to use magic like that aren't you a genius? was my opinion.

For the most part, I think they're all active methods of acquiring magic like shaking the flame but I don't think it's even worth a comparison in how difficult they are. Furthermore, the method of learning void magic that Mary said was to materialize void magic using the small magic {Cantrip} Reservation. I think that's a pretty high hurdle to do from the start.

However, since there's actually people who can learn the special skill magic using that method it seems it's normally believed in. Mary was saying that this is a method that was made more efficient and polished over a long period of time it seems. Of course, since the Japanese that reincarnated in this world won't have used magic so if you were to say that this is the correct way to learn magic and there's actually been people who learned it using this method, if several people were to say that there's no option other than to believe it. I'm sure even I would have believed it. Since it's a content where you have sex and use your own body fluids as a intermediary for the magic, cabaret was it? Since it seems like a secret art I think it's easier to believe.

Most likely, in order protection against mana exhaustion to some extent, in order to make sure they're older than an adult they probably used sex and masturbation to leave an impression, since there's not much other amusing things they probably made sure the content was connected with sex. When I tried imagining a young couple of 15–16 years old holding a piece of paper with their fluids stuck to it staring at it with a serious face and saying "Come my!/Burn!" and I felt this somehow inexplicable helpless feeling.

At the very least I've never heard of this method in Bakkudo, and I've never heard anything like that talked about in the indecent conversations between rubber production so it must be a difference between what they're told in the countryside and city. If it's a city other than Keel, for example the capital Rombertia I'm sure it was handed down quite a bit different. Well, culture is something that develops with roots in the customs of that area and the majority of people will never move from that land so even if it's the same it will be different based on the area I'm sure.

By the way after concentrating for another hour until he was exhausted Kuro used up another 3 MP and was safely able to get void magic to level 0. I think there's a 90% chance that Mary can't use magic but it seems she'll put a bit more effort into it.

Well, do as you please. I'll be rooting for you from the shadows.

Chapter 62: Details

Year 7442, Month 4, Day 20

The next morning, I run as usual after waking up and after changing into a some worn-out clothes I had some breakfast in a random store before going to Janlud's store. I doubt I'll run into Begulu at this time. After keeping an eye out for a while from outside I enter the store after all of the tables are full.

Obviously I'll have to share a table but that was originally my objective so there's no problem. I sit at a table with an especially rough looking bro and order that disgusting breakfast set. After handing over the 5 large Shizu coins to pay I smile once at the bro in front of me eating this shitty bad food as if it was the best thing ever and bite into the hard black bread.

"I somehow feel full."

I whisper with a grim face after eating about half of it.

The bro that hadn't paid much attention to me until then hears my whisper and his pointed ears move a bit. An elf huh. I continue to whisper.

"I need to earn some around here~"

The elf bro stops eating and is paying attention to me as I hold my cup of soup while talking to myself.

"Hey, bro, don't be grumbling while making such a gloomy face. By the way, about that bread but are you not planning to eat it?"

I make an expression as if I just noticed the elf bro that started talking to me with a face as if he wanted the bread.

"Hn? Ah, you're saying to me huh. Did I say it out loud, sorry about that. I couldn't help but let it escape from my mouth."

"Yeah, it's fine, don't worry about it. And, that bread, are you planning to eat it?"

He was eating this places food that deliciously. I'm sure he's gluttonous after all. It doesn't particularly matter though. But, it seems he jumped on the conversation well.

"Hn? Ah, do you want to eat it?"

I intentionally make a vulgar grin while saying it.

"Ah, no, if you're not going to eat it, that is. And, what about it?"

I'm sure my expression was the same unpleasant face as the poor people who wander around here. The bro was a bit overawed but still looked at my black bread while saying it. I make sure not to change my unpleasant expression while saying.

"I don't particularly mind giving it you but do you know of any kind of job? If it's one I can make a lot of money all at once then I'd have nothing to say."

"If there was a job like that then I'd be doing it myself. No way there would be one. It's already fine. I'm leaving."

After saying that the elf stood up from the seat and left. Hmn, I guess it won't go that easily. I guess I should think about it a bit more. Since he seemed pretty rough I thought he might be one of Begulu's underlings so I tried testing him but it seems to be different. I guess that's true. According to what I heard Begulu's group is only about 2-30 people it seems so I won't be able to meet them that easily. See, you already understand as well right? I'm trying to gather information about the things I heard from the failed adventurers who called me a shitty bastard the other day, "Come to think of it, speaking of Boss Begulu, it seems he's going to do something big".

Ah, just remembering it pisses me off. I haven't forgotten that ugly bitch Jelil.

That ugly bitch doesn't matter at all but I have interest in the "something big" that Begulu is about to do. Well, it's something that those failed adventurers who are the losers of life were saying in analogies so I think it's most likely attacking a caravan somewhere. I want to confirm the date and location of it. If he's going to do "something big" then Begulu will probably directly take command and if that's outside of Keel then it's convenient for me. If I can confirm which Begulu is my target until then I can snipe him outside of the city where no one can see me right?

In another few days I'll go to Doritt and tie up that contact agent and take his information and determine which Begulu I'm searching for. Even if it's neither of those two if I follow the line from the point of contact then I should be able to find the real Begulu that is Begulu B. That guy always had his mouth half open with a spaced out face and no matter how you look at it he doesn't seem like he has any loyalty towards Begulu or an organization (though I don't think there is one).

When he honestly came to say thanks to me I'm sure it was just because he had a favor towards me. It was for an accident I caused myself though. Come to think of it appearance and loyalty aren't related huh.

However, it's certain that point of contact lives in Doritt and he seems to have been born there so I doubt he has contact with Begulu all the time. I think it would be best to just think he is connected by money. I regretted it when I couldn't kill him in the first place but I guess it's good I left him alive. I can't seem to hate him though. However, if it's for Myun's sake even if it's just for sealing his mouth that's plenty of reason for me to kill him.

He seemed like an idiot but when we faked Myun's death he properly came back once more to confirm it so I'm sure Myun's death was told to Begulu B. There was nothing after that as well. Well, it's better to do it just in case. You shouldn't stray far from your initial resolution. I'll return my debt of gratitude to Myun.

Just like this I put some more resolve into it and ate some food that wasn't good and pointlessly treated others while gathering information but in the end I wasn't able to gather any new information at all.

I mostly just got more support that Begulu has some kind of plan to earn big.

I changed as it gets closer to evening and started on my way to "Ritton". Hehheee, I'll definitely take one shot at that good looking girl that's just my type that I couldn't get more than a glance of last time. I carefully use my hand to brush my hair before opening the door to "Ritton". I'll quickly finish the conversation with that Jabba bastard and finally get the real deal of VIP treatment with some ultra first-class service.

After opening the door, the gentlemen named Sebastian was standing at the front desk with a good posture so I greeted him. After immediately realizing me Sebastian brought me to the conversation room like, ah, is it a waiting room? invited me in, and asked me to sit and wait as he disappeared. It seems he went to call for Haritaid. After waiting for more than 10 minutes, though it was considerably faster than last time, Haritaid appeared.

“Oh~ Greed-Sama, welcome and thank you for coming today. I had been waiting for you.”

Jabba is saying something with a creepy smile stuck on his face.

“No, not at all. And how was the results? Will you start using them?”

In order to not lose to him I returned the smile.

“Yes, yes, of course please let us start using them! I won’t forget the favor of letting me a product as wonderful as that! I definitely would like to sell them! Our establishments good customers “instinctively made a noise” and that was itself a great delight! I myself couldn’t hold back from testing it out but in comparison to that product I couldn’t help but think that what I’ve used until now was less than trash. I ended up getting excited beyond my age!”

Hm, of course that’s the case. Jabba continues on,

“That product will without a doubt become greatly popular. I am really grateful to you. Ah, that’s right, about the price but..”

Mu, come to think of it I was promoting the condoms, or rather “Scabbard”.

After saying that he raised up 8 of his caterpillar fingers on both of his hands. 8000 Z huh. It’s slightly cheaper than what older brother guessed but it’s a lot more expensive than the amount I predicted. However, I couldn’t help but for my blood from my sales days to boil.

“Mwu, no matter if it’s a small product, 8000 Z is...That is something that takes a considerable amount of work in the production. Thinking about that I’d like 10,000 Z.”

After I say that, Jabba says with a respectful expression.

“Certainly, certainly everything that Greed-sama says is completely right. I’m very sorry. I’ll purchase it for 10,000Z. However, while I know it’s a wonderful product, I know that the limit of that product is 10,000 Z. While I’m running a humble establishment such as this, in order to manage it proper and honestly, I must pay my employees compensation, I must pay the government taxes as well.”

“Of course I’ve thought of adding a service fee on top of the cost of that product but not all of the good customers that come to our establishment are nobles or extremely wealthy like Greed-sama. As far as I can imagine, you eventually plan to spread this product to shops other than ours right? In that case, if it’s that expensive I don’t think other shops will be able to purchase it. I really want to hold a monopoly on that product as this store but I doubt you’re aiming for that sort of thing.”

Mu, as expected of a manager. Going off of Jabba’s appearance and occupation I had decided that he was honest with his desires, greedy, and had a petty personality.

However, the statement just now had enough persuasion to overturn all of those. It might just be me seeing things favorably but it seems he’s doing a reasonably serious job of management and it seems he’s thinking about the spread of the condoms. I want to poke at him a bit and confirm things.

“Then, what kind of thing do you think we are aiming for?”

After hearing my remark Jabba opened his eyes a bit and immediately replied.

“You say some unusual things. Things that are already obvious. You have two large goals. One is known without being said improving the quality by putting it on the high-quality route. Of course this has a variety of meanings included within it. Even if you compare it to the bowels of a pig, the looks and sensation of putting it on, the sensation of touch during the act itself is important as well but above all the feel of luxury that you’re using such a high class good as rubber for such an act is an important point as well.”

“The other one I was certain of after actually trying it but is to prevent the spread of illnesses among the employees of this establishment and the gentlemen that are our customers, is it not? I believe it's as expected because the raw material of that product is different, unlike the bowels of a pig, while it's extremely thin and easily exceeds its ability to relay the sensation and warmth but what isn't even worth comparison is the durability. I have foolishly guessed that the durability of this product is its primary characteristic. Since the bowels of a pig go bad just from being even the slightest bit intense. In addition to that if you were to allow me to express my thoughts the amount of rubber actually used in this product being extremely small is also big."

Hmm, I had actually thought that the durability of the pigs bowels might be a bit higher though it seems that's wrong. Even if I identify the pigs their status just shows up as Pig (Selectively breed for livestock use) so I thought they were the same as the pigs on Earth but I guess they are different things that resemble each other. Or rather I didn't know about using the bowels of pigs for anything other than sausages. Also hormone cooking. Ah, if I think about that then the bowels of pigs on Earth were probably less than rubber as well. The amount of power put into biting a sausage won't be able to tear that condom, or rather thin rubber.

However, there's various meanings hinted in Jabba.the.Toad's statements until now.

In the first place my objective, or rather, he's pretty much perfectly guessed the original characteristic of condoms. With just that you can guess the height of his observations. And the second. It's only obvious that after using it you would be able to tell they're better than a pig's bowels but not just confirming the improvements in comfort from there but the ability to prevent the spread of disease from the increase in endurance shows he has a considerably high ability to think.

I'm sure he also heard some opinions from customers but the fact that he can use his own experiences as a base and give an impression that is organized like that is worth high points.

I guess it's only as expected of the one who manages a shop older brother suggested to me. I don't think older brother is related to this though.

And the largest point of them all is that he doesn't try to take a monopoly on them. Monopoly itself isn't a bad thing but the degree with its relation to life, in other words it's demand and use as a necessary product and the supply power for it and depending on the price decided for it the macro economics could end up causing it be only a temporary profit making it into a limited item.

Particularly in an industry like this, the most important thing obviously is the product that is the quality of the employees so it's difficult to make a huge mistake in regards to the synthesized service offered and the price the service is offered at. The condoms are limited to an additional service offered and it's not the thing the clients are coming for. Even if there was that would probably just be at the start. Since the amount of rubber used isn't a lot he references the fact that we should be able to create a reasonable amount as well...This guy... he's good.

Honestly speaking I made light of him. I thought it would be fine if I just sold the few I had on hand, write older brother an appropriate letter and have some tea but I feel that we would profit the most in the end if I properly interact with this guy. Even if it's an occupation I guess you could say as expected of the mouth of a chicken*. I wonder what the owners of other places are like? Do they all think on the same level as this guy? I've only heard a bit but it seems that this guy brought "Ritton" to this point in just his generation. In other words this guy must be special. I guess I'll listen to a bit more of his story.

"As expected of Haritaid-sama. You see very well. The fact that you've understood that far, this Greed is in great admiration. Just as you said we have no intention of selling them in monopoly to just this "Ritton". And that you were able to see through their original intention, I respect your great insight. This is just my prediction but Haritaid-sama doesn't intend to continue with just this "Ritton" right?"

I tried baiting him. If it's just as I'm imagining them he's not just planning to make his store bigger. A second store, or third store, or depending on the situation he might even try to develop it into a chain...can't be right..I guess it probably wouldn't go that far. Even if Orth's culture level is all over the place if he was able to think as far as making a chain store it'd be some abnormal that I'd have to start doubting if he's a reincarnated person.

It's the same as about Earth's 16th century on Orth and there's disciplines and apprentices that work for shops and craftsmen and after the employees become independent they are treated as a completely different store. Obviously it's normal for them to have some connections to the store of their origins but it doesn't go as far as the "shareholding businesses" on Earth. I think it was just that Japan was unusual in using the same name for reputation purposes early on something like a voluntary chain. Even that Japan only started establishing voluntary chains on a high level around the 20th century and there was no sign of franchise chains until Old Man Colonel brought in his fried chicken place. Normally when someone goes independent they only have their own to rely on.

"Mu..It seems that I can't keep any secrets from Greed-dsama. Even though I haven't talked to anyone about it yet I feel as if the inside of my head has been peered into. Just as you were able to discern. Fortunately I'm a commoner so there's no obstacles with moving around within the kingdom. In the vicinity...I guess so, I want to make another "Ritton" in Viscount Penlaid's territory and leave it to someone."

Mwu, after all. I guess as expected it's not a full-on voluntary or franchise. However, he had the idea of stores after a second store. But, it seems that after all this guy is abnormal. The toad continues,

"I want to make it common sense that if you go to the store "Ritton" you will receive the finest service. That's if you only sell that product to just this "Ritton" then it's inconvenient for me as well."

And said that. Depending on how things go it could be a long relationship with this guy. He's a too valuable of a talent to just leave in the sex industry.

"I see now, "Ritton Second Store" "Third Store" is it... It's certainly a splendid idea."

Just like modern day Earth, there's no bank or organization like that in Orth yet. Even on Orth banks were created around the 15th century I think it was. There were syndicates from further back than that but it was limited to just the model, I think it's core was a city state government. I don't know if there's syndicates in Orth or not but even for large companies that do transactions all through the Kingdom of Rombert like Webdos company I've never heard of them holding branch stores.

The currency is being made by the temple as they watch the circulation and it seems that there's a common currency for all countries so there's no such things as money exchange.

"!! Second Store..It has a good ring to it. It seems that Greed-sama is clever in the expression of things. No, as expected of someone born in Bakkudo which produces rubber it seems you have an extremely high level of education."

Huh? Come to think of it, did I mention where I was born? I guess he read my confused expression, the toad says.

"Ah, if you're mentioning rubber then it's produced in Bakkudo right? And the lord there is Viscount Greed. Since you're in possession of a plate with the emblem of Marquis Webdos it was simple to guess."

I guess that's true. Sebastian saw my status when I first came to the store as well so he should already know I'm the second son of Viscount Greed.

"Well then, about the cost, I'll convey to the family to sell it at 10,000Z per unit. The first delivery will be after July, after that a caravan will come to Keel from Bakkudo once every three months. What kind of quantity of the product would you need for each delivery?"

"I guess so, if it's every three months then...Hmn, please wait just a moment."

After saying that the pseudo-frogman started doing math with his caterpillar fingers. Like I could wait.

"Around how many customers do you get per day?"

"Eh? A, Ah, around 30 people per day.."

"Then I guess it would be around 6000 units. Then I believe that around 600 packs would be good. If it's too many then you can just reduce the orders for the next time by a bit but if it's too few you'll end up having to be patient without them for a while."

Don't open your big mouth so widely it's ugly. He was shocked and opened his mouth again.

"As expected of Greed-sama, your calculations are fast. But, for what reason is it that amount?”

“There’s 30 people in one day for three months, in other words you can think of it as 90 days. This means that there’s a total of 2,700 customers per 3 months.

However that’s just that the number of customers is 30 and the “strong” ones could end up going several rounds on their own, so taking that into consideration I thought double? or so would be.”

“Hmm, it’s just as you’ve said. I believe that your predictions and thoughts are correct. Particularly if we use that product then we won’t have to take into consideration the days the slaughterhouse is closed, so we’ll be able to operate everyday.”

I nod while smiling. I thought as far as that. The toad continues

“Then, 10,000Z for 600 packs worth, 60,000,000 Z it is.”

And said confidently. Huh? Can this guy not do calculations? Ah, I was thinking of it as one pack. If it was 10,000Z per each individual condom then no matter how much you think about it, it’s excessive profits and spreading it is just a dream. Older brother said that the cost of a pig’s bowels is 1,000Z or so for one. If I don’t make the price the same as that then it won’t spread. Even if I increase the price at most it’s be 10% or so.

“No, the cost is 10,000Z for one pack. So it’s 6,000,000 Z. We are thinking that we want to supply it at the same price as the bowels of a pig.”

“!! What! So that was the case. I’m very sorry for trying to haggle the price down without confirming this! It seems that this establishment will be able to go without hiking up the price. I’m truly very sorry!!”

He started apologizing while rubbing his head to the table. Ah, no, even with this cost it’s still blowing up the price considering the amount of raw materials used to make them. In the first place I thought it would be a huge profit if we sold them for 500 Z each after all. Honestly speaking it doesn’t take much effort at all to produce them and the only work is drying them out. Even with that if it’s just this quantity then if everyone makes them it should only take a few hours. Since we are doing production with about 15 people now. 40 packets per person. All they have to do is roll up 10 condoms and put some lotion with it into a rubber bag and close the opening. For an operation that doesn't even take a day getting 6 gold coins is an insanely good trade.

“No, not at all, please don't mind it. Please forgive me as well for my rudeness in objecting to it without confirming first.”

After that I mentioned that I wanted him to come to the knight group every three months to pick up the deliveries and I was finally about to switch over to the thing I really wanted to talk about.

“Now then, Greed-sama, since we've safely finished our business, as a sign of our friendship please definitely let me offer you with the greatest service I can offer, do you have the time?”

And he said that. Uhhyaaaoo~~

“That is, for an inexperienced person such as me..I'm greatly indebted for your consideration (grin).”

“Then..Sebastian! The preparations from before!”

Oh~ He said preparations. Does this mean he had already prepared for it in advance! As expected of Haritaid-san, he can see beyond just business. Well done!

I follow after Sebastian who quickly appeared. Haritaid-san is following after me with his flabby body as well. Yeah that's right, the owner himself is going to give out the order for no omissions in the service. It can't be, for him to go that far for my sake..Sorry about that.

H..Huh? Huhuh? That should be the direction of the exit? Sebastian? Huh? We left. Haritaid-san is smiling without showing any sort of strange place. Ah, I'm sure this is, we'll leave once, and enter again through the back? There's no way that'd be the case.

Right now I'm...eating together with Sebastian and Haritaid in a private room in “Dakkuluton”.

In other words...It's serving (food).

Chapter 63: Thread

Today it's exactly one week since I accepted the job. I pulled it out to the last moment but it's already at the limit. I need to go to Zulaid Metal-smith. I take a shower after going running and head towards Zulaid Metal-smith with my full rubber protectors equipped and my bayonet. I was being careful so they think I'm a proper adventurer doing their job properly.

I go to Zulaid Metal-smith and show the receptionist that tally thing and even though it was at the time limit I wasn't particularly scolded or told any sarcasm, they just handed me the sword for the job along with the scabbard. It seems that the receipt address is Viscount Kindou. I see, I guess he bought a new sword, and as I was thinking that I tried identifying it but it's nothing particularly special. The price is 1 gold coin, 1,000,000 Z. It's a standard long sword.

After receiving the sword for delivery and I was also given a receipt document at the same time which I put into my pocket and then left Zulaid Metal-smith. After this I just need to deliver this to Viscount Kindou in Doritt and then when I receive the payment I get him to sign the letter of receipt and then if I can return to the government office by May 11th I'll have completed the job.

I immediately return to Bins Manor put down the luggage and take off my armor changing to a casual appearance and head towards Binsil's restaurant. Since Kuro was on his day off and hanging around in Binsil's restaurant for most of the day I figured I would just be intruding so I held back. Just lying. I was kidnapped by Haritaid and imprisoned in "Dakkuluton" until late so I just couldn't go.

After arriving at Binsil's restaurant I sit at the usual table in the corner and order a breakfast set. I chatted with Mary for a bit but it seems she still has an attachment towards magic so she's going to keep training while hearing the trick from Kuro. It's nothing for me to comment on so I'll just leave her to her own.

It's still only the 2nd or 3rd day after all. Since she was actually shown Kuro being able to use magic in front of her I'm sure it's not so easy to give up on. I taught her the trick to it a bit more and showed her how to do it get but since it was approaching the busy lunch period I left.

I've already given up on having fun at "Ritton". Somehow it feels like after going that deep into it I can't enjoy it anymore. I had the feeling like my type would end up being found out by the toad owner as well. And if he knew I still had a bit of stock the "Scabbard" he would probably bite on pretty hard. Last night he almost persistently kept asking me if he would really have to wait another three months, or telling me how he wouldn't be able to face the good clients.

Ah, that's right, about "Ritton" though, it seems that one play there costs 3 silver coins. It was 30,000 Z. It was a lot more expensive than I thought. Since Kuro's weekly wages are 40,000 Z after all. If you take into consideration about half from there is used for the per head tax then he would have to live the bare minimum lifestyle for two weeks or so in order to go once. If you go off buying food and other daily necessities then you would be able to take it at the face value of about 30,000 yen but if you follow back from the income of an average farming family then in Japan of my past life it would be a price of over 100,000 yen. It changes a bit in the city but even then it's an imagine close to 100,000 yen. It was an insanely high class shop. It's not a store you can go to casually.

If he had really hopped on at 8,000 Z or 10,000Z for 1 "Scabbard" then wouldn't his customers have really started to disappear? After doing the math if he has 30 customers or so a day that's 900,000 Z in sales, 27,000,000 Z in a month, and 320,000,000 Z in sales in a year. I'm sure the employees the prostitutes are mostly of the slave ranking so the majority of the sales will enter Haritaid's pockets. From the 320 gold coins if you take out the 10% tax and various expenses even if it reduces to just 2/3rds it's still 210 gold coins.

He's earning my entire fortune right now on a monthly basis.

Suddenly I remember Kuro's Unique Ability. Charm huh. It's valuable. I'm amazed he can endure. It's the same as a beast at 14 years old. Since the mental age and body age are different so when it builds up, umm, it's difficult, various things. Even if my MP is super human level it doesn't mean that my desires disappear just from controlling them. There's a limit to just controlling myself from hastily giving into my desires though.

It's an extreme conversation but if there's a feast in front of your eyes, it's difficult to starve to death just looking at that. But, I can probably endure longer than normal people thanks to my MP. Just the same I can probably resist the desire to sleep and keep staying awake as well. But, along with the breakdown of my body my MP will eventually run out and even if someone tries to stop me I'd devour a meal down and go to sleep. There's a limit to holding things back with just the power of your will. And it's just enduring it, your desires don't disappear. It's like only pretending to endure for the sake of pride.

It's a serious conversation but I know what it feels like to experience the desire to sleep or eat when your MP hits 0, I have experience with it after all. You're hit with strong desires that are hard to resist even if you're enduring like your life depends on it. If both of those were satisfied but you were pent up when your MP hit 0 what do you think would happen?

It's frightening just imagining it. That's why that training method that Mary told me about is logical.

I'm thinking about such idiotic things while wandering down a road off of the central street while trying to find a store other than "Ritton". Come to think of it, it's a bit early but it's a good time to have lunch. I guess I'll go after having some random lunch.

Thinking that I asked the apprentice boy at Bins Manor about another high class shop than "Ritton" and he told me about "Pink Monsoon" when I went there, a toad was there. Why in the world!? Obviously I ended up being found and in the end I was forced to have the same conversation with the owner of "Pink Monsoon" about the scabbard. Different from Haritaid, the perfectly normal looking owner said "I want you to sell them to us as well."

It couldn't be helped so if it was just a bit I decided to sell them there at the same price as "Ritton". However, I limited it to just 400 packs per three months for this store. Totaling it together with "Ritton" and it's 1000 packs. Since it only adds up to about the amount of rubber that 30 pairs of sandals would use I doubt there's any problem. If it's sandals then 30 pairs would only add up to 1,200,000 Z but scabbards will add up to 10,000,000 Z so I'm sure it's fine.

After talking to him I felt like the owner of "Pink Monsoon" was the type to understand what a person is saying. I thought I could hold some hope for VIP treatment but he said "There's no way our employees could be a good match for Greed-sama" so I ended up being served (food) at "Dakkuluton" again. It's fine already. Since my face is already known in the industry in Keel it's already impossible to go and play.

After departing Keel the day before yesterday I was safely able to deliver the sword to Viscount Kindou. Also, I went to Sagulett Company which has a fixed caravan to Bakkudo every month and gave them a letter to my older brother. Of course, the content is about making deliveries of the Saya. In addition, I asked the whereabouts of that point of contact. Since he had previously come to Bakkudo as an escort for the caravan here.

I had expected it since I hadn't seen him come to Bakkudo as an escort for the caravan since then but it seems that Sagulett Company isn't hiring him right now. It can't be helped. When asking if they had any ideas about his location they told me about a bar around here. It seems that it's the cheapest bar which there's only three of in this Doritt. I immediately was going to head to that bar but I realized that my horse is an intrusion. This is bad, what should I do? I guess it would be better to look for an inn like Bins Manor in Keel where I can let them look after my horse. It was a bit embarrassing but I went back to Sagulett Company once more and had them introduce me to an inn. It seems that it's a place where the caravans from Bakkudo often use. Then it should be safe.

I enter the inn, take a room and ask them to look after my horse, put all of my money and valuables into a rubber back pack and left it in the care of the front desk before immediately heading to the bar. I made sure to go wearing my rubber protectors so they would know I was related to Bakkudo. It seems that the squires who escort the caravan keep it on other than when they sleep so it should be fine.

I quickly was able to find the bar I was told. Doritt isn't as large as Keel and the roads aren't so messy for it to be called a city. It's just like a slightly larger and crowded version of Bakuddo village. Even if you want to get lost you cant. In the first place, the only building that's more than two floors other than Viscount Kindou's mansion is Sagulett Company.

Obviously most of the buildings are made of wood.

After arriving at the bar I was quickly able to find that guy so I was relieved. It's convenient because you can easily notice his characteristic spaced out idiotic face even from a distance. I'm sure he realized that I entered. The point of contact came over to my table and started talking intimately with me.

"This is, the young master from Greed-sama's place. It's been a while. I'm Hendel. Do you remember me?"

"Yeah, it's been a while, Hendel. Of course I remember you. How's your leg been after that? Does it not hurt or anything?"

I respond as friendly as possible.

"Of course not, thanks you so, look, just like this. It's completely healed and I've been greatly saved by it."

"That's great. It was worth the effort of me fixing it...How about it? Want to drink with me for a bit? I don't have much money but I have enough to treat you at a place like this."

"ehh...Is it okay? Then, I'll take you up on the offer."

After saying I'd treat him the color of his eyes changed.

After that we talked about pointless things for a while but it's started to reach a good point. Since Doritt isn't a city like Keel I thought they would start closing places up early on but a light was lit in the lighting magic tool. It's not as far into the remote areas as Bakuddo I guess they keep the bars operating somewhat late.

"Come to think of it, Hendel. I remember you being pretty interested in that time when the maid that worked at our house was attacked by a goblin and killed. You, were you possibly interested in that maid?"

It's about time the alcohol has gotten to him. When I pretended to go outside and take a piss I used detoxification magic so I'm not drunk at all.

"Ehh... No~ as expected of the young master. You're watching properly, however, that wasn't that sort of thing. It was a bit related to a job of mine."

"Eh? Job?"

I ask curiously. And the point of contact made a bit of face like he screwed but quickly covered it up.

"No~ when I did a carpenter job there quite a while before I was taken care of by that maid."

"He~"

"Well, it wasn't anything special though, that's why I was interested.."

He's started to act suspiciously. His eyes are darting all over the place restlessly.

"Hey now, what's wrong? Calm down. Well, drink up."

I said that and offered him some wheat vodka.

"He~ thanks for that. No~ I guess I can't keep it secret. As a matter of fact just as the young master said, I was a bit interested in that maid-san..I'll get a bit embarrassed. It's unfortunately that she was killed by a goblin."

..Hmn, so that's how he's come out.

"Was that how it was? That's completely unfortunate. Any ways, drink some more."

"He~.."

I guess I'll change the approach of my attack a bit. If this doesn't work then I'll just have to tie him up tonight and finish him off after he says everything.

"It's changing the conversation a bit, but you know I'm unlucky as well, I was chased out of the house and told to become an adventurer because I'm the second son.

It was good this time since I was able to find a delivery job though. I wonder if there's some kind of job I can make a good profit on somewhere?"

I continue pouring him tons of alcohol.

"No way~ there's no way there'd be a story as delicious as that around anymore..Ah, you're being an adventurer? In Keel?"

"Yeah, that's right."

"Keel huh... I've been in the care of the young master after all..I wonder what...Hmn."

"What is it, talk properly, have you not had enough to drink? Here."

I push the most expensive pork skewer in this bar in front of Hendel and pour him some more alcohol.

"Ah, thanks~ for thaa... Is young master usually in Keel?"

"Ah, that's right. I don't come over here very often~"

I say that and take a big drink.

"Hmn...Then I guess you won't butt heads with me..."

"Ah? About what?"

I put my elbows on the table as it seems like the alcohol has finally started to disturb his words.

"No that is, I've been in the care of the boss in Keel as well. It's looking after the west of Doritt though, and, well that doesn't matter but since I want to return a bit of the favor to the young master I've been in the care of so I thought."

"How roundabout~ What is it? Are you going to pass a good job around to me?"

I wonder if this is about Begulu? The core of my head cools down.

"I guess so. In Keel there's a, well normal inn, called "Roberikk". If you tell the boss named Begulu who uses that place as a base that you heard from me, he'll probably give you a job."

“He~ Begulu huh. I somehow feel like I’ve heard the name before.”

“Yeah, there’s a famous boss Begulu as well. The guy who often comes out as controlling the hoodlums in Keel. The Begulu I’m talking about is like the brains behind the boss Begulu who rules over all of the hoodlums. I don’t know his real name and I’ve only met him a number of times I can count. Well, it’s not something I should say since I’ve only met him 2–3 times but I think that he’s calling himself Begulu in order to keep his identity hidden behind that famous Begulu.”

It seems that the alcohol is doing a good job on him and along with the pork skewer covered in oil his mouth has gotten lighter as well.

“I see, Hendel went all the way to Keel to meet that boss?”

“No way, I did it here in Doritt. And that was through an introduction, he went out of his way to come over here. Does the young master remember.. in Doritt in the past there used to be a guy named Baluk. That old man Baluk told boss Begulu that I was going to be his successor.”

!! Baluk is the adventurer I killed in the past. He came to Bakudd as the escort for a caravan and the one who made contact with Myun his name was Baluk. He was the partner of my first time after all. As expected I won’t forget his name. And I was able to confirm his connection to Begulu. Now I just need to pull in this thread.

“He~ I see. Is it fine if I go to this “Roberikk” inn and say I want to meet boss Begulu?”

“No, the boss is a very careful person so you have to hand him a mark then. Hand the old man who’s a receptionist as “Roberikk” a red cloth and say “It’s From Rombert” then. Then the older will call out to boss Begulu. And then you can talk with him.”

“I see now, is it fine as long as it’s a red cloth? Isn’t there various things like size or tint?”

“Ah, it seems that most things are fine.”

Got it, then it should be fine. After that I continued treating Hendel until closing time. Just as expected of a cheap shop the bill wasn’t even 6000 Z. Even though we ate and rank a lot it was just this amount of money.

I worried about it quite a bit during the conversation but I decided no to kill him. Either way if I kill Begulu this guy won't have any connection to contact the Sagual family in the Kingdom of Devas remaining and I thought he wouldn't be able to report it until he makes a connection himself. It's fine if you say I'm too naive.

After staying Doritt another night I slowly returned to Keel. It's already close to night. I guess I'll go to Bins Manor for the time being. 5000Z per night hurts but just as expected from a high-class inn it's comfortable and I can request them to look after my horse. And above all it's a luxury not having to worry about my luggage left in the room at all.

After I take a room and ask them look after my horse, I take off the protectors and change into my worn-out clothes at the bottom of my back pack, just in case I hang my sword on my waste and immediately head off to "Roberikk". It's gotten to the point where it's bad just wrapping a leather string around it. I guess I should at least buy a scabbard? After deciding to buy a scabbard tomorrow if I have the time I head to "Roberikk".

I draw along my shadow in the time close to night, after shaking on the horse all today, I'm pulling along my body as well as I walk. By the time I arrived at "Roberikk" the sun had finally started to set. Well, if I can meet Begulu B today then that's fine. If I can just confirm then after that I can just wait until he's alone and finish him off with magic and all of my worries and problems will disappear. Even if he's not in "Roberikk" then I can just come tomorrow or later.

I purchased a cheap red handkerchief or some kind of cloth.

I open the door to "Roberikk" and tell the receptionist old man "It's From Rombert" while handing him the cloth. The old man glances at the cloth then just in case checks the surroundings before opening his mouth.

"He's not here today. He's out on a big job. I don't know if he'll return today. If it's a hurry then take this and go to the restaurant called "Binsil". The boss should be there.”

What’s he saying? Binsil? He must have noticed I was making a confused face as I received the black coin. The old man continues to say.

“The stage of the big job is the restaurant called “Binsil”.”

!! What’s that mean. I want to hurry and go to the “Binsil Restaurant” but I also want as much information as possible. I forcibly hold back my feelings of impatience and ask.

“he~ What kind of big job? Some kind of burglary?”

“..Since you have the red cloth and the password, you’re a point of contact for Devas as well right? What corps?”

This is bad. Ey, I’ll just go with it.

“..The Sagual.”

“Sagual, huh. It’s been a while since I’ve heard that name. There’s a front for Begulu and that guy’s name is, ah, the name that’s not his family name but it’s called Begulu. And this guy is a violent failed adventurer but since he’s considerably strong and a bit intelligent he’s partying with him as a cover. Since their names are the name he’s a perfect match as the cover right? And, even if I say that front is a bit intelligent, it’s still only at the level of a failed adventurer so if he doesn’t let him kill some stress occasionally then that intelligence melts away.”

The old man of “Roberikk” said uninterested.

“And then, that stress killing is a big job?”

“Yeah, the stress-killing isn’t particularly the big job or anything. I don’t know the details but it seems that the objective this time is to kidnap the daughter of that “Binsil” restaurant. She’s the same black hair as you and while she will sell for a good price though. They’re going to make a ruckus in that restaurant and use a debt to make her into a slave. It seems that they’re going to do it a bit after that sun sets. That’s why he might not come back today. If you need to get in contact with him in a hurry then it might be good to go and take a look.

“Binsil” is along the riverside along the eastern road near the southern part so if you go I think you'll notice it."

What was that? He's going to make Mary into a slave and sell her off? It's not the time to be wasting time.

"He~ I see. Then, I'll head over and take a quick look. Is it fine if I show this coin?"

"That's right, see you later."

I left "Roberikk". The sun has more than half set. I take a look around and take off running at full speed. I'm sure I still have a bit of time to spare but I don't have enough time to return to Bins Manor and put on my protectors or go into the knight group.

I don't have the obligation to save Mary and Kuro...Let alone the favor...Shit!!

Chapter 64: Myun's Release

Year 7442, Month 4, Day 28

My head is telling me to organize the situation but there's not enough time to think and summarize it all up. After leaving "Roberikk" I made sure no one was observing me before running through the night city of Keel at my full speed.

While losing myself in running in order to arrive at Binsil's restaurant as fast as possible I knock anything in my way out of the way just focusing on running faster. I'm sure I'll barely make it. The sun will set soon.

Make it in time!

I was able to get a sight of Binsil's restaurant before the completely finished setting. It's on the other side of the river but one of the only two bridges in Keel is on the way so there's no problem. Thank god... It seems it's still before anything has happened. Including the bridge there's only about 300 m to the restaurant.

In order to prepare for a fight it would be best to catch my breath.

I stopped running and started walking. Simultaneously I started to observe the surroundings of the restaurant after it entered my field of vision. For the time being I still don't see anything particularly suspicious. There's no group of hoodlums standing around outside and no sign that a ruckus is going on inside as well. It's the usual scenery. There's citizens on their way home from their jobs and vagrant kids and elders laying around the sides of the street in the filth. My sight doesn't reach far into the alleyway so there's no way I could find the position of anyone in there but while I'm walking if anyone were to start approaching me from out of the alley it should be possible for me to deal with it.

After gaining a bit of composure my head cools down and I continue observing the surroundings a bit more closer. Somehow but I feel something is off with the restaurant. If I think about it calmly I don't see anything different but it's true it's somehow different from usual. What is it? What in the world is strange?

I continued to observe it as I cross the bridge but I couldn't shake off the feeling something was off.

There's no suspicious looking people in the surroundings of the restaurant. I don't see anyone peering into the restaurant nearby as well. The people who are coming out from the alley are just passing by as if nothing is wrong as well. There's tables outside of the restaurant as well and it seems there's no customers there but the people who are passing in front aren't paying any attention to it. In other words there shouldn't be any abnormalities in the restaurant right now...I think.

I was about to start running but I move at a fast pace so as to not stand out from my surroundings and I got close to the restaurant. Just 50 m more or so. I stop once and observe the surroundings of the restaurant again...Yeah, there's somehow a feeling of discomfort but I don't feel like there's any problem. There's no sign that a disturbance is taking place in the restaurant as well. It seems the sun finally set. It was red until now but the sky is quickly getting darker.

I guess it was too impatience of a thought that Begulu would attack the restaurant. That's only obvious right, attacking a restaurant in operation in the middle of the city would leave tons of evidence I'm sure. In that case, even if they were to attack it then I guess Begulu himself wouldn't participate? Just let the underlings do it and he himself just made the plan, afterwards collect the underlings and deliciously enjoy the results I guess? Wait a minute, I'm thinking too hastily again. There should be a method to attack it without leaving any evidence. As I thought, it's impossible for him to just make the plan and leave all of the execution to his subordinates. They'll become unable to deal with unexpected situations. Otherwise there should be someone who is reasonably intelligent give command on the spot who has prepared somewhat for unexpected situations.

I try organizing my thoughts somewhat as I head towards the restaurant with a quick pace but my head isn't functioning well. However, since there's no disturbance with the restaurant and no one peeking in it should be before they've started the plan. If they were in the middle of carrying out the plan I'm sure yells and the sounds of a struggle would leak out and the people walking by would pay attention. I take a look at the people wandering by...Ah, I see, there's no poor people looking jealously into the restaurant. Come to think of it they were always there. Why aren't they there today?

I was astonished as the city of Keel starts getting dark. That's right! The guys that should always be here aren't around. It's not like they've directly entered the restaurant, since I didn't think of them as anything other than an obstacle I was late to notice. There's light coming from the restaurant so there should be people inside but.. depending on the situation it might be best to pass by while looking at the situation inside.

I lower the speed I'm walking a bit as I pass in front of the restaurant and pretend I'm just somehow looking into the restaurant as I pass by. Just as I imagined there were people inside the restaurant. I hear voices talking as well. Mary and her parents are in the kitchen and I see Kuro standing in the gap between the counter and the entrance to the kitchen. There's a bit more than 10 customers in the restaurant and they're all sitting. Other than the fact that Kuro is standing in a weird place there's nothing that looks strange from a glance but there's a worn-out doorplate in front of the door that's always open with "Reserved for Today" written on it.

It seems that Kuro, Mary, and her parents are all making a stiff expression and seem to feel afraid of the customers. Since they're paying attention to the customers they don't realize as I pass by. It seems that there's customers talking to each other as well but fundamentally they're paying attention to Kuro and the Binsil family. They're saying various things but "Sis~ Sis~ Bring it out fast~ I can't wait any longer~" I hear voices like that. Among the customers there was just one looking outside and he looks at my face. I intentionally try not to make eye contact with that customer as I pretend to pay attention to the doorplate and then pass by. I could only grasp that far from just passing in front of the restaurant. It's best to think that things have already started happening.

I know the guy that was paying attention to outside. It's the magician Begulu.

If I remember correctly his name was Zakkwaiz. I haven't made direct contact so I'm sure he doesn't know about me from his end. However, that face was something I properly engraved into my mind the other day. I couldn't afford to stare at his face or body so I couldn't identify him but there's no mistake.

After passing by the restaurant I calmed down and started thinking at high speed. What sort of situation is this? It didn't seem like something was going to happen right away so I should have some time to think. The old man of "Roberikk" said "the goal is to kidnap and sell Mary".

Is it a kidnapping for money-making purposes? No, even if Binsil had saved up some money it would at most be around a couple million zeni. I wonder if you can make that much money from selling a slave? I've heard that serfs are at most 3–5 gold coins and combat slaves are around 5–7 gold coins. It's true that it's a lot of money, it's an amount of money that 20 people can go for several months without trouble eating. If they add that together with the money saved up in the restaurant then they could probably enjoy themselves for six months or so I'm sure.

If I think about it like that then it's true it's a "big job". Certainly all of the stories I heard about Begulu until now we're of his group committing all different kinds of crimes. Pulling an idiot into an alley in the middle of the town and stealing from him is on the cute side and they've even gone so far as to attack a small-scale caravan outside of the town so I'm sure it's a piece of cake to kidnap and sell a good looking girl. However, since you can't falsify status that story won't completely work.

I'm sure they can forcibly kidnap her but even if they go just like that to the temple in Keel if the person them self doesn't consent to it then they shouldn't do the naming ceremony. Even if they're killed the priests in the temple won't use the naming ceremony for their own profit. It seems that the moment they think of doing something like that the special skill for naming is stolen or sealed by God after all. If there's no official procedures followed then they can't forcibly perform the naming ceremony.

If that's the case then how do Begulu and the others intend to change Mary into money? I don't think it's impossible for them to forcibly sell her to somewhere but since it's an illegal slave sale the other party is taking on a considerable risk as well so that limits where they can sell her. I'm sure it'll leave evidence as well. However, it should be considerably difficult to kidnap Mary in that situation. If Kuro or someone were to make a fuss then it would all come to nothing after all. In that case do they plan to get rid of everyone there other than Mary including Kuro? Without letting them raise a loud voice? Well, it's not something to think about right now but if I can think of the method then I should be able to think up some method to prevent it, right I need to be careful to think of the {TPO}.

In the first place, the reason I rushed here was so I could beat down the magician Begulu and not so I could save Mary and Kuro...should be. If possible I do want to save them as well but that's limited to a bonus...or should be. I twist my head from a place that can't be seen from inside the restaurant and think about how to beat down Begulu.

There's no need...to keep Begulu alive even for a short period of time to gather any information.

I'll kill him without giving any time to make up excuses. I won't give him anytime to beg for his life. It's common for the advantages and disadvantages to reverse while listening to the tedious talk of the opponent. It's particularly popular in stories of entertainment like drama and novels. Right now I'm assassin targeting Begulu. The one who requested the job is me though. There's no need to question him, if he shows any chances I'll definitely attack there and finish him off. In any case, if I kill that Begulu then I should be able to disturb the control a bit and depending on how it goes it might be the decisive action to save Mary from this dilemma.

Alright, let's do this. If I'm going to do this then I want to settle things with a single attack of magic. And I don't want these guys remembering my face. Then it would best to use a magic attack from a distance I'm sure. Hardening them in things like ice and earth isn't a good choice. They'll cause damage to the restaurant and just because they've been hardened in place doesn't mean they can't use magic. If they can make eye contact then they can use magic. However using attack magic that is fired from the hand is impossible. In any case, the risk of hardening him in something is too high so I need to kill Zakkwaiz.Begulu in a single attack.

Well, if I can just hit him with a serious attack then he shouldn't be able to use magic so that's fine as well.

If I think about the damage to the restaurant then something too flashy like {Fire Ball} is no good as well. If I cause an uproar by breaking the restaurant in a flashy way then I could be made into a criminal for breaking the restaurant. The poison gas {Kill Cloud} might end up getting everyone inside involved and killing them all...Ah, Mary might be fine. However, Kuro and Mary's parents wouldn't make it I'm sure.

Putting them all asleep with {Sleep Cloud} would work as well but since I haven't practiced this one much it would probably take at least a minute for the sleeping gas to completely appear. Depending on how things it might take longer. If they just ignore me when I have my hand up facing them during that time then it's good but I'm sure that's impossible. Then how about sniping with {Stone Arrow Missile} or {Ice Javelin Missile}? If I hit a human with that it might penetrate through and injure someone other than Zakkwaiz. Even if the rest of Begulu's group other than Zakkwaiz are criminals and there's grudges against them strong enough to kill, it's not like I took any sort of damage. It's probably best not to do it from a distance. If I use {Flame Thrower} then he might end up rolling around and setting a fire as well. I wonder what I should do.

Ah, I guess it's fine if I just make him go into convulsions with "Lighting Bolt". I can probably kill him with just that after all. Let's go with this. There's a chance they'll see my face but it can't be helped. Well it's fine. It's good to hurry.

I start walking towards the front of Binsil's restaurant again, just as I passed in front of the restaurant, I made eye contact with Zakkwaiz.Begulu. And simultaneously raised my left hand towards him. He went into a panic and tried to yell something with his mouth open and aim both of his hands at me but it's already too slow.

In an instant a high voltage electric current stretched from my left hand wrapped around Zakkwaiz's body. It was only a short period fo about 3 seconds that I released it but Zakkwaiz is probably dead. Putting aside the high voltage it was probably a DC current that reached several dozen amperes. If it's a monster like a Horned Bear, no it's different if it's a monster but it would be stranger if a human didn't die from that. Ah, it might be possible that he's still alive. If he still is then at that time I'll hit him with one more or slowly cook him with a different magic. It's reliable if I stab him to death with a sword as well.

I did it, Myun. As long as I kill this guy the rest doesn't even matter much.

Just in case I use Identify but his condition has become death. This is good. From the sound of the electricity Kuro and the others look at me and the surprise of them from Begulu B falling over the customers in the restaurant, rather, the Begulu group turns around. I take the sword off my belt and slowly unwrap the leather string while saying

"Now then, your bag of wisdom has died."

And act cool as I continue,

"Jump up high!"

And after saying that in Japanese I use magic again against the guys that have started to run towards me. This time it's a combination of water and fire magic, I just made adjustments to the amount. Immediately the floor was covered in ice 30 cm high and everyone's feet were frozen inside.

The guys who were in the middle of standing up and the ones who had already stood up and were heading towards me are all fixed in the ice. Ah, what's that, Kuro landed on his ass on the ice and he's slipping on the smooth ice, it seems Mary failed on landing as well and can't stand up. Such an uncool ending.

They're all yelling something or other. Shut up~ I wanted to speak for a bit so I stop using continuation on the temperature of the ice for a bit.

"Hey, Kuro, Mary. These guys are loud~ Can I kill them?"

I lightheartedly try saying that. In an instant things quieted down. Everyone is dumbfounded by the sudden happening.

"Hey, how about it?"

I say as if it's troublesome while pointing my sword towards a guy nearby. Really~ reply already. I'll end up with no choice other than to kill them~

"Eh? A, Al. Wait just a minute. Hey, Mary."

Kuro finally manages to stand on the slippery ice with thanks to the counter and calls out to Mary.

“Eh..Kill..that can’t be.”

It seems Mary can’t grasp the situation. She was saying while Kuro gives her a hand in standing up. I kick the corpse of Begulu B, Zakkwaiz. Begulu who died from electricity and fell to the ground having half of his body frozen in ice while glaring at the rest of the Begulu group, “Hmph, then, let’s ignore these guys for a bit. Ah, that’s right. Until I say it’s okay, none of you say anything. If you talk I’ll kill you. Also, if you don’t want to end up like this guy then don’t move. You get it right?..Kuro, Mary what happened?”

I asked. And then continued,

“Ah, before that we should let out Mary’s father and mother. Wait just a minute.”

After saying that I get on top of the ice and go into the kitchen then use the left hand that doesn’t hold a sword and expand a small {Anti-Magic Field} that I use to erase the ice on Mary’s mother and father’s feet, and said to leave the restaurant together with Kuro and Mary. Ah, come to think of it, only Kuro isn’t wearing any sandals.

“Kuro, hurry up and leave the restaurant otherwise you’ll end up with frostbite on your feet.”

After saying that I push Kuro into leaving the restaurant. I give a glare so everyone can safely leave the restaurant. After confirming that Kuro went outside I was going to continue as well. But, wait a second.

“Kuro, come to think of it you, were done in good on your stomach and back right. Who did it?”

After I said that everyone who has their feet frozen flinched. However, no one is opening their mouth. I point my sword towards Begulu A who is looking at me with just his neck while he’s still sitting at a seat in the back (in other words the closest to me) closest to the exit, and say “Is it this guy? It’s fine to burn him with the same {Flame Thrower} as well?”

And said that. Begulu A shakes his head while saying.

“I..I..“I didn’t say it was okay for you talk.””

I stuck the sword a bit into the hole of his nose and made a 1 cm or so cut. The blood spurts out in a showy way but it’s far from a fatal wound, the bleeding that looks flashy isn’t anything that will risk his life. Begulu A says “Bugya” and holds on to his nose quietly. There’s blood leaking from the gaps in his fingers holding his nose. I start maintaining the ice again before slowly walking outside of the restaurant. It still hasn’t become an uproar but I guess they noticed the incident onlookers are starting to gather.

I say to Kuro

“When I was in the restaurant these guys gradually started to gather. I wasn’t paying much attention to it at first but when Begulu came in last I realized it. These guys we’re waiting for Mary to resist them touching her. It’s a hand these guys use often. If Mary dislikes it and uses violence then that establishes the “crime of assault”. After that they reconcile it by making them prepare a tremendous amount of money and have them write a loan bond.”

Kruo said the “crime of assault” part in Japanese. I guess he probably couldn’t find the right word for it. I don’t know the correct legal terminology for the kingdom either. However, hmph. I see now. Touch Mary like a molester and forcibly get her to resist. If they can get injured skillfully then they profit. Then they threaten with assault and injury. Since there’s no proof of molestation, as long as these guys match their stories then I guess it’s fine? However, isn’t it still poorly-prepared? Well it’s fine.

“And, did Mary resist?”

I ask Mary.

“When I was about to resist I was stopped by Kuro.. It was dangerous. I was about to hit them with a frying pan.”

Hmn, so Kuro was able to calmly deal with it? However, I guess that means Begulu B who has fallen over and is frozen must have been being cautious not to let any excess customers in then? Isn’t that the job of an underling...Ah, I see, if it's an underling they might focus on trying to touch Mary. You can't leave the job of being cautious of the outside to an idiot after all.

I say to Mary

“Go and call the knight group. If you use my name they should come. Just, do it slowly.”

said that, and made an expression that I wouldn't accept objections. Mary seemed to have some regrets but quickly nodded and started to head towards the knight group.

“There's no need to worry about the restaurant. I'll erase all of the ice later. Please forgive me that it's a bit dirty.”

I try to calm down Mary's parents and I faced Begulu and his group that are still frozen in the restaurant.

Now then, what should I start asking? Or else..

Chapter 65: False Accusations

Year 7442, Month 4, Day 28

I point my sword at the guy closest to the outside of the restaurant while saying.

“It’s okay for only you to talk, respond to my questions. What did you come to this restaurant to do? If you say it honestly then I might think about letting only you. However, don’t lie. If I think it’s a lie I’ll immediately kill you. Start talking.”

The guy I pointed my sword at was a gnome that 2 years older than me at 16 years old. Come to think of it the group in Binsil’s restaurant this time are all men.

One..two..three..Including the Begulu B that I beat down there’s 14 people. There’s 13 people and 1 persons corpse in the restaurant now. I had heard that Begulu had close to 20 subordinates so it obviously wouldn’t be strange for women to be there but I thought the ratio would have been 9:1 for men:women. It seems that the ratio for women is a bit higher.

“Pl..Please don’t kill me. I’ll talk!”

After the guy said that there was a voice from further in the restaurant.

“Hey, Jones! You..buge”

The one who raised their voice from further in the restaurant was Begulu A. I used {Air Cutter} without a moment of delay to lightly cut the arm that was holding his nose. I glare at Begulu A and, said that, and faced the Gnome guy again. And with a smiling face, “Sorry about that, there was an hindrance. I won’t let anyone intrude again so rest easy and start talking.”

“You, this is my second time telling you not to talk. If you talk again I’ll kill you. You should be glad, I’m busy right now.”

said that. The Gnome guy held back his trembling voice as he started talking.

“I, I just did as bro Begulu said to do! It’s true! Believe me!”

“Yeah, I believe you. You just did as bro Begulu told you to do right? Tell me what the details of what you were told and the goals of it was.”

I continue to say with a smiling expression.

“Since I hadn’t had any ways to earn money for the past two months or so, he had me mark this restaurant. I was told to observe the customers who enter this place.

He said it was finally about time and decided to do it today. It was a job to kidnap the daughter of this restaurant and sell her as a slave. The method is... Um..”

“The method is? It’s okay, you don’t need to worry, just tell me about it.”

“We harass the daughter and if she resists we do it well so one of us gets injured. Then we use that as basis to blackmail her. “If you don’t want to be reported to the authorities give us money”.”

He~ It’s just as Kuro said. I was able to gain backing to Kuro’s statement.

“Give us money? About how much?”

“1...10,000,000 Z.”

That’s certainly unreasonable. It’s not an amount that can’t be paid but being forced to pay that much for an injury caused with a females power is abnormal. And is it time for the entrance of the bond of debt?

“Hmn. 10,000,000 Z. You, what do you think about that amount?”

“Eh? Ah, no...I.. think it’s expensive..”

“Right. Well it’s fine. And do you think they’d really pay 10,000,000 Z for that sort of reason?”

“I don’t think so..”

“Yeah, that’s right, what are you doing demanding it if you don’t think they can pay?”

I continue to ask with a delighted expression.

“Ah, since this restaurant doesn’t seem like it can pay we were going to make it into a debt... According to what bro said we would get her to sign a bond of debt with a deadline of tomorrow morning... And since there’s no way they could pay we would stop it at making their daughter into a slave..”

Hmn, he can’t get to the point. Since he’s a part of a group of idiot thugs like this I wonder if he’s an idiot? I guess I picked the wrong guy. Well I guess it’s fine. I got the gist of it. I continue to say with a smiling expression.

“Then, if they were to say, we can’t pay so go ahead and report us to the authorities, what did you plan to do?”

“A, Ah. We intended to keep coming back any number of days until the restaurant goes out of business. If we’re always in the restaurant then other customers won’t come after all.. Bro said that eventually they would give in.”

Uwa, how nasty. Molestation doesn’t leave any evidence after all. In the first place it’s suspicious if it’s even a crime.

“I see, by the way, when your Bro said you were going to do that sort of thing at this restaurant, was no one against it?”

“Za...Zakk bro was against it at first.”

“Ho~ Which of them is Zakk?”

It can’t be right.

“Th..The person you killed at first. He’s dead over there.”

The Gnome pointed at Begulu B. He~ Well, I doubt he was against it for moral reasons. It’s probably something he considered after weighing out the risk and return.

Even if he was against it for moral reasons it wouldn’t matter either way though. And he’s already dead, so even if he was a little bit of a good person, I’ve already killed him after all.

“Ah, this guys huh. And, when this guy was against it, no one agreed with that? What about you? Say the truth about out.”

“Eh, a, ah. I didn’t do it. I’ve done something similar before as well...And bro Begulu said that it would be fine as well..”

“I see, I get it. Then the next question. What kind of harassment did you do the daughter of the restaurant? Don’t speak any lies. Since there’s people who saw the entire thing behind me?”

It’s gotten to the point where about 10 onlookers have gathered.

“Ah, umm...We touched her ass, grabbed on to her, groped her breasts from behind..”

I thought it was something like that.

“I see, who did it?”

“Eh? No..everyone..”

Well, I’m sure that’s the case.

“Everyone huh? Hey~ You, what do you think? Gathering together to do harassment like that to a daughter properly doing her job in a restaurant. Did it feel good?”

I let my expression collapse as I continue saying it.

“Well it’s fine. Alright, you’ve spoken well. It’s already fine, stop talking for a while. Then, next is, anyone who feels like talking, raise your hand.”

They all raised their hands. Everyone other than Begulu A. What low loyalty... I turn around and try asking Kuro.

“Who seems good?”

Kuro was confused being asked so suddenly and stutters a bit while saying.

“Ah, eh, th, then..Angado.”

The one called Angado was a 25 year old blonde human with a good build. He was in the middle of the restaurant and sitting in a chair about to turn around when he was frozen in an incomplete posture.

“So you’re Angado huh? Then, since you’ve been named. What are you going to tell me about? Don’t lie to me.”

I’m sure Angado thought I was going to be asking him questions, he panicked a bit but opened his mouth.

“Ah, I, I was actually against it. I didn’t want to do something like this! Believe me.”

Aaa~

“That’s a lie right. I hate people who lie to me..How unfortunate.”

After saying that I slowly raised my left hand towards Angado. It’s just a threat though. Everyone swallowed.

“Ah, pl, please stop it! I’ll tell you the truth! I won’t say anything but the truth!”

“I see, the guy in back didn’t listen to what I said so he suffered an unnecessary injury. Be careful.”

I returned to the charming smile again. Angado nodded several times before starting to talk.

“At first I thought we were just going to sell her as a slave. We occasionally do it. In reality, the daughter of this place is a beautiful girl. It’s the same for you but since black hair and black eyes are uncommon we thought she would sell for a lot. In the past we just thought of her as an unusual brat but in the past couple of years since she’s suddenly gotten feminine a number of guys have been aiming for her. You get it right? I get that it’s not something to brag about but I thought it would be fine to enjoy myself with her for a bit before selling her. Since there’s still a young son for this restaurant bro said they probably wouldn’t oppose it as much even if we kidnap the girl...”

He~ So Mary had a little brother. I didn’t know. And I wonder where he is right now?

I asked Mary’s parents if they should bring the child out with them. Her father said he would go around the back entrance and bring as he went.

“I see. I get it. It’s fine already. Next, then you.”

I pointed my sword at the guy next to Angado. A 22 year old dwarf.

“I, I was invited by bro Begulu since there’s going to be money as well.. It’s true that girls face is good looking and while it’s a bit thin her facial features are good. The long slits eyes and small nose are good as well but.. since I'm a dwarf, she's not my type, but umm, I thought if I would make some money then it would be fine.. Now I think that I was doing something wrong, it's true."

Who said to praise Mary? That sort of stuff doesn't matter at all.

"Ah, I see. It's fine already. Then, hey, the purple hair elf over there, what about you? Is there something you want to say?"

A somewhat good-looking 23 year old elf, though he's thin. I bet he could become a popular idol in Japan. Even coming from another guy I'm envious of that face. I'm sure he's popular. Come to think of it all of the elves I know are good looking. I wonder why?

"A, ah. Of course. I didn't really think about it much at first since bro said we would get paid. I'm reflecting on it now. That girl but I like her lips. I can't stop looking at those glossy pink lips."

This guy as well? It's true I think that Kuro and Mary have decent looks. They look like halves. Even on Earth it seems that a lot of Westerns see Asians as having an exotic charm as well but I wonder if it's enough to say that far? I haven't seen a clean mirror so I've never seen it but I'm sure I look like a half as well.

Putting aside individual interests, going off of my aesthetic sense I don't think Mary or Kuro are any match for elves, and there's some considerable beauties outside of elves even among humans and non-humans. Of course there's also the opposite of beauties as well.

Previously, I've talked to Mary and Kuro about it but we came to the agreement that we weren't particularly good looking. It's true we have deeper features than a pure Japanese and it's a half looking face with western influence mixed into it, and if we were to go to Japan just like this then we would be considered good looking is what was quarreled about but putting aside becoming intimate, we definitely' aren't beautiful is the conclusion we arrived at. At the very least by looking at each other we could tell "they're Japanese".

"Ah, it's fine already. I get it. Then next, you."

I put my sword at the Wolf-people guy in front of me and said.

“M..Me? I tho’ tha’ girl was gud too. Her har was always preti and looked wet.”

You as well..

“That’s right, her proportions are childish, and honestly she didn’t seem like a woman..”

“It’s fine already. Is there anyone that will talk about the story I want to hear? I think it would be best for you to talk here. Things regarding the girl are already fine. What about you?”

I point with my sword again. This time it’s a 27 year old Rabbit-people guy who seems cautious.

“M...Me? I guess so, first, won’t you do something about this ice? My feet are cold and it feels like the sensation is about to disappear.”

“Hn? I see. I’ll do something, wait a moment.”

Ah, I forgot about the ice. I put my hand on the ice and lower the temperature. It’s probably about –20 degrees C right now after all. After putting some effort into it for about a minute I lowered it to around 6 degrees C.

“Alright, this should be good. Now start talking.”

“Eh? Weren’t you going to let me o“There’s no way I’d do that right””

The guy got depressed but I guess he gave up and started to open his mouth.

“Last year, after bro Begulu called out to everyone here and..4 women who aren’t here we all attacked Geluf’s caravan. It should have been a considerable profit but we only received 1 gold coin each. After paying taxes it’s gone. That was a small caravan but there should have been 50,000,000 Z in goods. Begulu and Zakk bros should have split up more than half of it.”

Oh~ I wanted to hear those sorts of things.

“He~ I see, then, that means you held a grudge against your bros right?”

Mary’s father returns with a 5 year old boy. So his name is Yoshif.Binsil huh. Her little brother seems tired.

I asked again with a smile.

“Ah? Yeah, honestly it wasn’t amusing. Even though we did all of the attack..Even though they were just sitting the back giving out orders they took more than half of the profits.”

Hoho~ that is still

“He~ Then, you don’t have any kind of favors to your bro right? Can you say that story again? If you properly talk, I’ll consider about you, but how about it?”

Time passes while saying these things. Without mistake I’m gradually reducing the temperature of the ice. Of course I can normally maintain the ice while talking as well but it’s a pain. Ah, it doesn’t shine for just the portion I’m maintaining it so no one can realize I’m using magic but concentrating on both isn’t easy. I can do it, I just don’t want to do it. In addition I’ll also say it but it’s not easy for me to normally use magic as well. It’s only a really short period of time but obviously I have to concentrate quite a bit. If possible then I don’t want to use it because it’s troublesome.

Well, just like this as I made them spit out all of their crimes, I think a bit over 10 minutes passed? The knight group came running brought by Mary. I reveal my social standing and have them confirm it with Status Open while exposing all of the crimes these guys just revealed. There’s no evidence but there’s testimony. Also, I don’t know what is against the law and what isn’t but I said it all. In addition, I said I obtained some special information, and when I was about to peer into this restaurant I often come to Begulu B suddenly tried to use magic on me so in order to protect myself I reflexively used attack magic and killed him. However, it seems like the situation in the restaurant was strange so I used ice to restrain everyone, and anxiously ask if I committed any kind of crime.

After listening to my story the commander of the knight group said, “Greed-sama, please rest easy. The moment that frozen man tried to raise a hand against a noble such as yourself in the town it would have been the death penalty.

Much less, just like you said he suddenly used it without reason right? A sudden counter-attack, as expected of Lord Greed’s little brother. I believe it was your older sister...Oh pardon me, your older sister Lord Greed received investiture as a knight in the first knight group...No, of all things, we the Knight group of Webdos can't sleep at night with our feet facing Bakkudo. Also, about the testimony I just heard I'll immediately confirm it from those here."

"Is that so? That's great. Thank you very much for your good job of keeping the peace in Keel. Now then, I'll start separating them from the ice one at a time."

"That's plenty well, also what was the special information?"

"I'll definitely talk about that after this. First you should start with investigation I'm sure."

After saying that I erased all of the ice except for the bit at each of their feet. It can't be helped so the guys sitting in seats I kept the seat frozen as well.

After that I went to the side of the commander and talked to him.

"With this you can carry them out. Also, about the testimony, him, him, these three, and those two over there should give you testimony. Also, if you ask any of the people here you should be able to gain testimony from a third person, and I think it would be good if you quickly took testimony from the victims here this time the Binsil family and Baladik-san."

"That's certainly true. Hey, everyone from the third platoon immediately start taking testimony from the people around here. The first platoon carry out the suspects from inside the restaurant. The third platoon should keep guard of the surroundings. Get to it."

After hearing the commanders words 1 platoon of 6 people, for a total of 18 knights started at their own jobs. After about 10 minutes the entire Begulu group was lined up along the street still frozen in ice and the testimony was taken from onlookers and the Binsil family. Even if I say testimony it was just confirming there was no difference in all of the crimes I told them.

After that, they were able to confirm the story from all the guys in the Begulu group that I just told them about. They seemed nervous but after I nodded at them they all agreed it was true. The ones who gave testimony and the ones who didn't were all made to bite a gag and had their hands tied behind their backs.

Eventually, one of the knights that was checking their belongings took two magic stones and piece of paper out of Begulu's pocket and started reporting it to the commander.

What is it? When I tried asking Kuro and "You didn't even know about something like that?" with an attitude like that told me. In order to prevent counterfeiting of important documents and bonds, a magic stone is made into a powder, which is mixed with the blood of the parties that sign it it seems. With this it becomes an official document. No, I was from the countryside so I didn't know. But, it's true it's embarrassing that I didn't even know how to make official documents even though I'm on the edge of the nobility.

It seems that them having the two magic stones and a piece of paper prepared works as evidence. Incidentally, unless you have an insane amount of power you can't destroy magic stones. And even in that case they just split and aren't turned into a powder. In order to make them into a powder you have to have two magic stones of similar value and rub them together. Normally you gather together ones with close values (= weight), and then use a random magic tool to use mana up a bit at a time until they have the exact same value before using them. Therefore, if these two magic stones that came out of Begulu's pocket have the same value then it's plenty of evidence to prove that this was a planned crime. Ah, it seems that you can quickly tell if they have the same value by rubbing them together and seeing if they become powder.

Even though there's no special business just carrying around two magic stones with the exact same value is rare so it seems this can be used as a good piece of evidence. I wonder if the magic stone simply became powder. Begulu tried to give testimony that "I was holding on to it so I could do a deal with a restaurant" but he tried saying that different place was "Roberikk". Fu...This idiot. It's good timing. I started whispering to the commander.

"Ah, about that special information from just now but the manager of "Roberikk", I'm not sure if it's correct or not but the master there is a spy of the Kingdom of Devas. If you use this coin and a red cloth and use the password "It's From Rombert" and he'll show his tail, so I suggest you capture him. This is information I got my hands on during an investigation of a man named Hendel in Doritt. After returning from Doritt to Keel today I immediately went to confirm it. The reason I was late on reporting it was because I was confirming the information I heard at that time, when I stopped by this restaurant it was this uproar...and what I heard was that a man named Begulu was a spy for Devas.”

Hendel, I sold you out. Well, don't think badly of me. It doesn't particularly matter if you do though. You're happy as well being of use to me, your benefactor right? Die for my sake. In any case it seems that spies are executed without asking questions after all.

“Is..Is that true! Hey, Shulaf! Come with me!”

The commander whispered something to one of the platoon leaders. And finally, “Immediately go and confirm with your entire platoon. Listen well, first pretend to be a spy of Devas and get him to show his tail. The moment he shows his tail immediately capture him and bring him here!”

And said that with a severe expression. The commander continues saying to everyone.

“We'll bring another witness. The verdict will wait until then.”

Wow, I had expected it but they don't just have the right to police but they also have the right to administrate justice. As expected of a feudalistic society. Ah, no, maybe spies just exceed the normal right to administrate justice and are the territory of military law? I don't know if there's something like that or not though. Since it was going to take some time I ended up getting bored and felt like picking my nose but I stopped at just rubbing my nose.

The onlookers are noisily talking.

Kuro is telling Mary about the details of when she wasn't here and Mary and her parents are relieved that the knight group has arrived and there wasn't a lot of damage to their restaurant.

The knights watching over the Begulu group are poking them as they fidget and move.

I'm sure the temperature of the ice has finally started to go up. It seems they can move a bit but I'm sure they won't be able to move for a while longer.

After about 20 minutes the knights that went to “Roberikk” returned. Being pushed by the knights the old man of “Roberikk” was brought along. The old man was biting a gag and had his hands tied behind his back.

“It’s certain that the master of “Roberikk” was a spy. Since he showed his tail on my signal we all went in and captured him!”

“Yes, he certainly said the name Devas. And during the process of investigation I tried asking him about Begulu as well. It’s also true that Begulu is a spy! Also, it seems that group was helping out with Begulu’s jobs all the time!”

“Alright, I’ll confirm it. Remove his gag.”

After the commander said that one of the knights took the gag off of the old man from “Roberikk”. And the old man said with a voice filled with misery.

“I..I...I just did as Begulu said and acted as point of contact! That they were spies...that can’t be..Ah, you! I just met you right. I handed you the coin and told you Begulu’s location right? That’s right! Knight-sama! This guy is a spy!”

The old man glared at me while saying it. The commander said, “Hmph, I’ll tell you something good. Greed-sama over here just left Bakuddo the other day and came to this Keel right now he’s an adventurer. Between that job he heard information about you from a man named Hendel. And after that as he proceeded with a secret investigation he managed to get this evidence that you were a spy and told me about it.”

Oh~ Nice misunderstanding! Since the Sagual spy that was Myun was supposed to have been reported as dying two years prior, he must have guessed that she was killed.

This guy must not have known the cause of death. Then it’s not a misunderstanding for this guy though. Most likely Hendel didn’t report anything other than “She died”? He’s an idiot after all. I, “Hmhn, it’s the duty of my family of nobles that is given care of a territory to get rid of spies!”

And covered it up.

“Shit!! You pretended to be a spy and deceived me!”

The old man is saying but I won’t pay any attention to him anymore. I say to the commander.

“It seems that all of the evidence is present. What is the judgement?”

“Umu, it’s already fine so make him bite down on a gag!”

After the commander gave out that order a knight behind him put a gag on him.

“Hey, bring Begulu.”

After the commander said that he drew his sword.

Carried by knights on both sides with a different knight behind pointing a sword at him as he’s sitting on the chair, Begulu was dragged over. The commander glares at Begulu that’s become pale and,

“I, Webdos Knight Group, First Company Commander, convict you in the name of Viscount Goful. I give you death under the charge of spying.”

And the moment he said that without listening to any excuses he cut his head off. Eeh!!? That just now was the trial? Cheers of joy were raised from the onlookers. I heard a small “Kya~” voice from Mary and her mother. And the old man from “Roberikk” had his head cut off in the same way. Though even if I say it like that it’s not like their heads literally flew. They just had their throats slit. There’s no way a caste sword could cut through the bone in someones neck right?

However, the old man from “Roberikk” is fine but Begulu A wasn’t a spy. It’s completely close to false accusations. Close but he was used a bit for helping out with Begulu B’s spying jobs so.. Well, wouldn’t his fate of being executed be the same? Putting aside the spying he seems to have done quite a few bad things after all.

“The primary spies were disposed of! The remaining judgement will take place tomorrow afternoon in front of the government office! Everyone breakup!”

After the commander yelled that and “Capture everyone and throw them in a cell!” he’s saying that. It can’t be helped.

“Um, Lord Goful, when I just interrogated them a moment ago. In exchange for their testimony I promised them. I’ll think about is what I said.”

After saying that there was a bit of relief on the faces of the guys who gave testimony.

“Mu, that is..”

“Yeah, and then, I thought about it a bit but since they far too villainous, so I think it would be good to ask the knight group to make judgement here.”

I heard Kuro say “Cruel~” in a small voice behind me. I can hear you properly, this guy.

Despair appeared on the faces of Begulu’s group. It can’t be helped right. I never said I would save you or make your crimes lighter after all. In the first place, there’s no way I’d have that sort of authority. I thought about it just as I promised but I thought it would be best to leave it to the knight group.

After the knight group pulled out the onlookers left in small groups as well. The commander said it was payment for the chair and gave Mary’s father a couple of silver coins. I use water magic to wash away the large amount of blood from Begulu and the others being executed then hand Mary 2 silver coins and asked for a beer.

There’s no one inside of the restaurant and since several chairs have disappeared it feels empty. The fact that I asked for a beer must have been the start. We all entered the restaurant and gather at an open table to sit down. Mary brought me a beer so I thanked her and took a drink. My throat was dry.

Mary, her family, and Kuro started to thank me. It’s fine something like thanks. In some meanings it was a coincidence after all.

After listening to their story it seems that Kuro gave it his best protecting Mary as well.

Mary said, “I saw from behind but Kuro’s legs were trembling so I realized I wasn't the only one and was a bit relieved. But it was still scary." Her father and mother were both too scared and couldn't do anything in particular but it seems she was happy that Kuro protected her even if he himself was scared.

It seems that since Mary was going to get touched Kuro started carrying the food out himself. He was kicked, tripped, spit on, and seems to have had some pretty cruel things done to him.

After the conversation continues it came to my skill with magic and the sword that I used to cut just Begulu's nostrils. Our way of training is different. I've been ringed out considerably by father, older brother, and sister-in-law. Kuro is even saying "The cost of Al's work is 1000 pounds of gold. After all he even exposed a spy right?" and flattering me. Her father aligned with that and said "Really thank you very much. I heard the details of what they were just saying but if they demanded 10,000,000 Z there's no way we could have paid it. You're the benefactor of our family.". Mary added in as well with "I thought it was over already and started to resign myself, really thanks. No matter what I do I can't say thanks enough to you."

Hahahaha, say some more~

"Thank you very much for saving us. If it's something we can do then we want to do somehow repay you for this." "No, we we're seriously saved. I know I'm no match for Begulu but in the end I thought there was no choice other than to fight." "Al, I think it's really great that I didn't end up having to become a slave, it's all thanks to you."

Eventually while that was happening the alcohol started to kick in. Every time I ask for some alcohol the old man says he'll treat me but I properly paid for it.

Right, I still haven't properly received any expression of gratitude. Rather~ like I would let it disappear into vagueness just from being treated.

Now then, I guess it's about a good time.

"I've understood you're feelings about thanking me. In that case since it's this occasion I'll say it without reservation. Just as I was introduced by the commander just now, I'm an adventurer. After doing a couple of jobs in Keel I'm thinking of going to Rombertia and challenging the dungeon. But since I'm still a newcomer and I still don't have any allies. If, you absolutely feel you want to thank me, please give me Marry. Ah, obviously as an ally for being an adventurer. Don't misunderstand it in a weird way. Kuro as well. Since you're not Mary's family you're a different lot. Adventure together with me. I'll properly paid you two your share."

The old man opened his mouth dumbfounded,

The mother was also dumbfounded holding her hand to her opened mouth with her eyes opened wide, Mary's facial color turned white, Kuro's making a face like he can't believe it and staring at me, Yoshif is napping peacefully on a chair at the edge of the restaurant.

"Just now, you appraised my work today as "10,000,000 Z of work" right. I'm not particularly in need of money right now so I don't need any at all. Since it's so sudden I'm sure you need to organize things. It's fine if you think about it well for tonight. Well then, tomorrow at noon, I'll be going in front of the government office to watch those guys punishment so receiving a reply at that chance would be good."

And said that, leaving the four remaining in a daze as I quickly stood up from my seat.

On my way back to Bins Manor, I was smiling while thinking, it fell in a good way for me. I wasn't originally thinking about this but since they were so enthusiastically offering to thank me I just thought of it. It's not that I don't think it's a bit crooked but it's true that I want to pull reincarnated people over as my allies.

Well, Mary has no experience with combat at all so it would be difficult to think of her as war potential right away. It seems that Kuro can use the sword a bit but as far as I've seen he still has a long way. It's probably best to think he's just a bit better than Mary. That's why in the worst case, if they refuse with enough force to dogeza I think it can't be helped. At that time I'll completely give up on those two as it wasn't meant to be.

It was a refreshing and good waking. The alcohol from last night is already no longer remaining. I suddenly realize that the sun has risen and it's probably 8 or 9 am in the morning right now. If I sleep in this much then I guess it's only obvious it would be a good awakening. I'm hungry but training is first. There's an event in front of the government office before noon today as well. It should be fine if I go a bit early and eat something at a restaurant near the government office I'm sure.

I head out to do my running with my rubber protectors on. There should have already been several hours since people started getting active in the town of Keel but the number of people is less than at night. Even though it's a town where the population exceeds 10,000 I wonder why there's such few people out. I think about that while running through the side streets in order to not get in the way of anyone. I ran until I got outside of the town turned around and ran down another path.

I continued running while using the towel on my neck to prevent sweat from getting in my eyes. It's been about an hour soon. Just halfway more. Starting from here is the true part of running. Give it your best, me. I encourage myself as I bully my body. I haven't run in the week since I went to Doritt the other day so I thought my body would be stiff but that wasn't the case it seems. Hmm, the body of a 14 year old is amazing. It's super energetic every morning after all. It's the angle of a thumb after all. Doesn't it hit the belly button?

When I was about to give it one more and running towards the outskirts of Keel, I noticed that a group of horses was approaching from the front. What is it? is what I thought but that can't be anything but Webdos knight group. Most likely they're going to do some training outside of the town I guess. In order to not get in their way I move to the edge of the road and watched the march of an official knight group. There were close to 20 knights on horseback, there's also another group of dozens following along with the knights, probably squires.

Amazing~ How cool~ They're all wearing armor and equipped with swords and spears. It's my first time since I was born seeing this many knights and squires marching so I got excited watching it. I'm sure my eyes must have been sparkling. The one standing at the front is Leader Sendhel I guess? He's wearing a helmet with a visor so I can't see his face well. Hmn, it has a different type of intensity to a parade of the Self-Defense Force. Their armor is all different and it's not like their equipment is standardized but this is cool. I wonder if the march of the horse warriors from the Sengoku era was like this?

As I was spaced out and watching the gallant march get closer when they passed in front of me the knight at the front raised his left hand. And then the knight right behind him sent out the order "Everyone, stop!". What is it, what is it?

The knight at the front raises his visor and calls out to me.

"Ya~ Alan-kun. You got right to making some grand achievements. I heard the report about last night's incident. As expected of Farne's little brother. You did a good job."

As expected it was Leader Sendhel.

"No, I didn't do anything significant, rather the matter last night was resolved quickly thanks to the decisive judgements of commander Lord Goful and his subordinate knights and squires' rapid actions. I didn't do anything more than offering him a bit of materials for him to make judgements."

I kneel just as I was taught my older brother and meekly responded.

"Fu..Alan-kun, if modesty goes too far it sounds like sarcasm. I heard the report and we've been packing them all into the knight group headquarters since last night for interrogation. The report on the offenses went to my father's side early this morning. On that occasion it was also reported about you. After all, I was the one doing the reporting. After returning to the headquarters, I was planning to send a messenger out to the inn you're staying at but this is good timing. The punishment of Begulu's group will be given today at noon in front of the government office. Come to that place. Okay?"

Leader Sendhel grinned as he said that.

“Yes, just as has been requested of me I will appear before the government office today at noon.”

“Yeah, putting that aside, what are you doing? It seemed like you were running with your armor on but..”

Ah, I still had my towel wrapped around my neck. I take my towel off in a panic as I turn red from embarrassment, I couldn't help but talking as I put it in my pocket.

“U..Umm, I was running to train my body. I would run everyday in the village with my older brother and..that is...um..”

“Ho~ you can train your body by running?”

Really, why does he get so into it. Just ignore it.

“Ha, if you're in combat for a long period of time then it makes it less difficult for your breathing to get rough so it trains it a bit..it doesn't cost any money at all..”

“Hahhahaha..Certainly it doesn't cost any money. Ku, fufufu. However, it's a good way of thinking. And I like the fact that you're continuing the training you did with your older brother even after leaving the village!”

After saying that Leader Sendhel raises the visor again with his left hand and grabs the reins of the horse.

“Everyone, forward!” along with that order the gallant march started again. I just continued watching in a daze as the knight group passed by.

After I finished my remaining running and returned to Bins Manor it had passed 11 am. I take a quick shower at the well in the back and since I didn't have a scabbard for my sword I put the bayonet together and put the scabbard on just the tip before throwing that over my shoulder and heading to the government office.

Since I didn't have any time I was going to grab some skewers on the way but all of the stalls were closed. It wasn't just that but a considerable number of restaurants were closed up. Could it be that they're going to watch?

Just as I thought, when I arrived in front of the government office it was already jammed with people. Is it a festival or something? Is what I was thinking but I remember that whether it was Japan or Europe enforcing the sentences of criminals was a good show. I see, it was a festival as well. This is the reason why there was almost no one in the back roads. It seems that there's stalls as well. Thank god. I was in trouble with how hungry I am. I bought a number of yakitori and greedily ate it. Delish~ It's only a simple flavoring with salt but no matter what you eat when your stomach is empty it's good. Ah, if I had some soy sauce I could eat sauce fry. I'm in the faction that uses sauce on their yakitori. I don't hate salt but sauces are different for every store and I liked searching for stores with sauce I like. Come to think of it, Shiina said that she liked sauce on yakitori as well.

I suddenly remembered my past life but it's more important to devour the yakitori in front of me right now. I eat the hot meat with the skin still on it while wondering why the yakitori in Orth isn't split up into different menus based on the pieces. The menu for skewers for pigs is roast, stomach, fillet, and there's different menus for each part but for chickens there's only yakitori and no menu. They're all cut straight into bite-sized bits that are stabbed on to a skewer and cooked just "yakitori". This can't be forgiven. I like bonchiri.

I stroll around while thinking about pointless things heading towards the front. The plaza in front of the government office is like a 400 m track in width so even if I say it's crowded with people it's not as tight as the Yamate track during the commute to work. Since it's like the Shinjuku station at noon, anyone can go wherever they want without any problem of bumping into someone. I think there's about 10,000 people?

Just like that by the time I finished my yakitori I arrived at the front row and sat on the ground. Since there's a simple border made of rope I'm sure it means don't go any further than that. There's a 3 m high stage in front of me. It's not very big but if the Marquis Webdos is going to give a speech then it's plenty high enough. On my way here I looked around the surroundings but I don't see Kuro or Mary. Well it can't be helped.

When I was using one of my remaining skewers from my yakitori as a toothpick and spacing out waiting, it seems that the underlings of the knight group are looking around at the people's faces from behind the rope border. I wonder if they're searching for someone. And quickly one of the underlings came over to me.

"Umm? Are you Alan Greed-sama? The one from Bakuddo?"

Eh? They were searching for me? I nod and they said to follow them. It seems that leader Sendhel is calling for me. However, I'm surprised they knew my face, is what I was thinking but it seems that they had an idea that I was from Bakuddo because of the protectors I'm wearing. I see.

Lead by the underling I went the main hall of the government office and the knight group leader and Marquis were there. It seems that the two of them are talking about something but after noticing that I'm being lead in they waved with their hand to invite me over. I leave my bayonet and knife with the underling that lead me this far and go to their side and the Marquis says

"I met you during Shani's wedding I think it was? It's delightful that Shani doesn't just have a good husband but a capable brother-in-law as well. It seems that you're an adventurer right now. If it's like this then in the future you might conquer Baldukk. Hahahaha"

Said that and laughed. Baldukk is the underground dungeon in the area near the capital Rombertia. Putting aside conquering it, it's my current goal to challenge it.

It's not that I'm particularly hiding it so he must have heard from someone.

"Father, more importantly than that but what should we do about the reward? I'm thinking of the case this time as something that you can't return with just money but.. in any case since we weren't just given spies but we were able to capture the entire Begulu group that's been the source of headaches for recent years."

Oh~ I was wondering what it was about but it seems they're consulting over giving me something. Alright~ I use my iron will to keep my face from naturally turning to a broad smile and maintain a quiet expression.

“Oh~ That’s right. However, isn’t it fine as money? If he has anything he needs then he can buy it after all.”

Yeah, that’s right, no matter how much money you have it’s not something that’s a problem. Even if I just receive 1 gold coin it would be a tremendous profit. If it’s 2 pieces then I have nothing more to say. In order to earn 1 gold coin I would have to make deliveries to Doritt 10 times. Of course the necessary expenses are out of my own pocket as well.

“Hmn, since he is a noble I thought of giving him a horse but Farne already said he was giving him a horse after all~”

Uah...A..A horse! 6 gold coins! If I have one more horse I could even use a carriage. I guess it would be fine if I did some business as well. If I’m given the same amount of money then it might be good to buy a horse with that as well.. In my head some over-optimistic calculations have started but of course I don’t show it in my expression. After seeing me the Marquis opened his mouth.

“Do you have any wishes? It’s fine to say anything, ask for it without restraint.”

Muhho...Wh..Wh..Whatever I want is fine? Obviously I’m sure 100 gold coins would be rejected though, I guess something realistic would be good huh...A small carriage that one horse can pull seems convenient. Hn? Here I should..

“Then Marquis-sama. Relying on your kind words please allow me to speak my wish. The thing that I want is..”

I returned to the plaza again. Since my throat is dry I guess I’ll buy a beer from the stalls. Or else, it seems like things are about to start so I’ll endure it for now and watch first..

Oh~ I see the Mary-family over there and the bonus Kuro as well. What the, that guy Kuro, already completely acting like one of the family? Just joking. There’s no way that would be the case. They probably just discussed things together with Kuro since then I’m sure. Since they’re both related persons and since he was a frequent customer in the first place I'm sure he was reasonably intimate with the Binsil family. Well, they still haven't noticed me yet so I'll go to a different area. I don't want to talk to them now after all.

After a short while not just the underlings of the knight group but the knights themselves came along to the plaza on the other side of the rope. This time the knights stand at the stakes holding up the rope and the underlings enter the crowd of people and start calling out to organize them. It seems they're telling the people in the front row to sit down. He~ watching like this it seems that they've done training for suppression of a group.

I sit down at a place about 30 m away from the Binsil family and look at the stage. I wonder if it's about time for the Marquis to appear? The double-doors of the government office opened. The voices of the crowd that were noisy until now completely stop. The only thing you can hear is the crying voice that seems to be from infants or babies. I'm sure it's impossible to control that far so it's plenty to call it quiet.

From the door leader Sendhel and after him Marquis Webdos appeared, after that several men that seem to be officials slowly appeared and walked towards the stage.

There's several chairs prepared on the side of the stage and they all sat down there. And then another man appeared from the doors alone. He's a mature 50 year old Dog-race man. I felt the urge to use Identify but unless it develops into combat or is a situation where it could end in harm to me I'm trying to stop using Identify as much as possible. Since I think it's worse to use Identify on someone just out of curiosity than it is to suddenly use Status Open on someone you're meeting for the first time. The fact that they don't realize the Identify is another reason as well. Putting aside when I was a child or didn't know the common sense of the world, but I don't want to use Identify without any sort of goal. It's different if I have a goal though.

The man steps on to the stage and starts talking in a loud voice. It seems that the man is the head of the officials of Keel. Managing the practical work of the government office, if you were to put it in terms of Japan, he would be in the position of assistant official of a city or town. He's saying that from here on they're going to hand out sentencing based on the law. I guess he's not normally used to raising such a loud voice, his voice died down by the end of it.

Next the leader got onto the stage and the criminals were all dragged out. They're all the members from yesterday. There's also some other people that I don't know and there's several women as well. A total of 24 people. There were 13 carried away yesterday. Other than that there's 5 women and 6 men. They're all made to kneel on the front of the stage. Furthermore, the 13 carried along yesterday all have either an official or an underling from the knight group carrying them from both sides. I wonder if their feet had become frostbitten.

Marquis Webdos stands up and rises up on to the stage changing places with the assistant official. He stands on the left side of the leader on the stage and raises a loud voice. It's a volume that is several levels higher than the assistant official just now. I'm sure there's various chances you have to speak to crowds if you're a Marquis. He's saying something or other about enforcing the punishments of the criminals from here on out. After the Marquis finishes talking the leader next to him opens his mouth. Starting with the first one. A man I don't know. It seems it was theft. The leader asked the man if he admits to his crimes. The man continues to hang his head while consenting. And then he was handed the punishment of 5 lashes with a whip.

It seems that the punishment is enforced right away. He was dragged in front of the criminals and then whipped by an underling of the knight group. The whip tears into the back of the man who's upper body was tripped as he groans. It seems that by the 5th time the man had passed out he was completely limp.

Just like this the enforcement of the punishments proceeds. The stingy theft is 5 lashes. Rape is 5 lashes as well. Fraud is 1 time and a fine. Robbery is 15 times.

Murder is having one leg cut off. The man who had one of his legs cut off with a giant axe was screaming. I thought he would die if they just left him like that but it seems they immediately used magic to do the bare minimum treatment for the bleeding. Since it was just the bleeding I'm sure the pain still remains. Since he just kept screaming he was brought off somewhere.

Furthermore, if you denied the charges when asked again the witness is called in a loud voice by the leader. And after letting the witness provide testimony the Marquis listens to the points of both the witness and the criminal and gives verdict on it. There wasn't a single one that was overturned but there was one who under circumstances was given a lighter punishment. It's an immediate trial without lawyers. Ah, I guess the defendant them self is acting as the lawyer as well. The prosecutor and judge are separate as well. Thinking that then I guess it's better than Bakuddo? In Bakuddo father held the post of everything but the defendant. If he wanted to do something arbitrarily then he could have done it. There were no crimes like murder or rape and at most there was theft.

And 6 men and 1 woman for a total of 7 were judged. It seems that the remaining 4 women were members of Begulu's group. The first crime the knight leader said was the one from last night. Obviously the four women denied it but the men all consented. The leader called for the Binsil family and Kuro. Also, me as well. I wonder if the Binsil family knew they would be called as witness, their clothes are neat. Even Kuro is a bit better than usual it feels like. When they meet faces with me they didn't say anything and just faces down. It can't be helped, I guess after all they don't want to suddenly become adventurers.

Just as the leader said we gave testimony. Obviously the women weren't involved in the incident last night so it was just the men. The crimes were blackmail and fraud. It's 2 lashes with the whip and a fine. After the testimony ended, for the time being we were told by the official or knight or squire or something to standby so we moved to the edge to wait so we weren't in the way.

The punishment still hasn't been enforced and it seems that the charges will continue. The knight leader says the charges but several crimes came out. Murder is included in them as well. The case of them attacking the caravan of Geluf company was included as well. They're all details that I had them confess to at Binsil's restaurant last night. The leader says these aren't crimes that someone brought forth but all ones that were confessed and the criminals all faced down, there was some that were crying as well.

In the end the punishment turned into something absurd with a fine of 2 gold coins and 25 silver coins along with 87 lashes of the whip, 3 legs being cut off, and 2 arms being cut off. Only the women got 85 lashes with the whip. Hmn, if it was all done wouldn't they become Daruma? Ah, the women don't have 3 legs. If it was me I'd be begging them to just kill me in one go. It's only obvious they'll die if all that is done to them.

In the plaza that fell silent there was only the sobbing sounds of the babies and the criminals remaining. The Binsil family and Kuro were looking at the silent leader. After the leader looks at the criminals he declared in a loud voice that the punishment will be enforced. However, since there's far too many punishments so it'll be the death penalty. There's no way they can pay the fine as well. It seems to be death by hanging. The punishment will take place an hour later so until then they're on show for the crowd.

Well then, since we've reached a pause I face the Binsil family and Kuro. I say to the old man who flinched.

"What about it, were you able to organize your feelings?"

And then it wasn't the old man who responded but Kuro.

"Al, you... Even if you want allies isn't this too overbearing? Taking advantage of weakness and saying things.."

"Well, isn't it fine, I was just requesting it. If you guys refuse then I think that it can't be helped. In the first place, were you properly listening to what I said yesterday? I said to give me a reply today. I never said a single word about forcing you to come along with me. I said I don't need any money as well."

They're all looking at me with surprised faces.

"Eh? Ah, it.. it's okay to refuse it?"

Kuro said it as if he was playing dumb.

Mary's parents were also looking at my face with a surprised expression.

"I..I mean, you said as thanks for saving us to become your ally..Ah."

Mary said it in the same way.

I nod to Mary as I say.

"I didn't say a single words about you guys not being able to refuse it. I mean, you guys should already know I don't have the right to order you. In the first place, if I wasn't willing to accept rejection then why did I tell you thing about it for a night? If you don't want to then that's fine. It seems like Mary thinks it's better to have an occupation where you settle down after all. I don't know about Kuro but since you were an adventurer as well I thought you had less mental obstacles towards it than Mary. More important than that, did you properly think about it last night?"

I cut my words once there and continued with an coercive expression.

"I don't think it's possible but I really don't think so, but you guys weren't just quarreling and complaining about me all night right? Thinking about it at this poi...Che."

They were all hanging their heads down together. Shit. Am I the villain here? Even though I saved them I didn't demand money, being treated, and I just asked them to become my allies, what kind of mean things were they saying?

I endured unintentionally letting my displeasure comes out of my mouth.

"You know..Well, it's fine. And, did you come to a conclusion? Let me hear it."

They're all exchanging glances with their heads down and fidgeting. Is this a flock of Fidgety-kuns?

"What about it? I won't know if you keep remaining quiet."

They're all still red and facing downwards as usual. Since they're all embarrassed over it, in other words they didn't think about it, this is.

"It's fine already, wait a moment."

After saying that I walked by the group members who were carrying the stands out for the hanging and went to call for the leader Sendhel. After I talked to the knight leader about something, they saw me returning together with the knight leader and all of their eyes went wide at once. Pieces of shit.

"I'm sure you obviously already know but this is the eldest son of Marquis Webdos and the leader of the Knight group, Lord Sendhel.Webdos. Lord Webdos, I'm sure their introduction isn't necessary right?"

"Yeah, since I just called them up as witnesses myself after all. There's no need for introductions."

The leader said it gently.

“Now then, let me hear your reply. The knight group leader is the witness. He’s the perfect person for the job right?”

“Hey now, Alan-kun. You’re a bad person. Did you properly talk to them about it?”

It seems that the Binsil family and Kuro were a bit afraid. It can’t be helped I guess.

“It’s a bit late at this point but I’ll increase your options. You can come together with me, refuse it and continue with your lifestyles just as you have... or one more, enter the Webdos knight group and have them train you, choose. In the case that you enter the knight group by the time you become official knights I’ll come once more and listen to your intentions. At that time you can choose if you want to come with me, retire from the knight group and return to your old lifestyle, or continue with the knight group. During the time you’re in the knight group obviously you’ll receive wages. During the time you’re a squire it’s supposedly 43,000 Z per week.”

After saying all that in one breath I looked at all of them. They’re all dumbfounded. Well it’s not surprising. The silence continued for about 10 seconds. It seems that leader Sendhel couldn’t endure the silence and started laughing as he said it.

“The two of you were 14 years old right? 14 years old is a bit fast but it’s the age the sons of nobles can enter the knight group. This Alan-kun’s older brother entered the Webdos knight group at 14 years old and in 2 years received investiture as a knight. Although, I’m sure it’ll be starting from the basics with you two so it will take a while longer but I don’t think it’s impossible. After that, I’m sure that you already know this but just in case I’ll say it. Normally only those that are commoners or greater is a condition for entering the knight group. And normally they must be 15 years old or greater to enter. Also, obviously there’s an entry exam as well. It’s nothing too special but if we let in someone who is lacking too much in ability enter then it will just take time and money to train them. In order to exceed these conditions, Alan-kun handed over all of his reward for exposing the spy and capturing the criminal group this time. It's unusual saying this but normally I'm sure the two of you wouldn't have been able to enter the knight group. Consider this a special chance that is limited to just this time."

After the leader said that he took a step back. I'm sure he means that it's up to me from here on. I beckon Kuro and Mary over and put my arms around their shoulders while whispering in their ears.

"Listen well, I said it before but the growth rate of reincarnated people is different from those of Orth. You guys saw me yesterday right? There will never be a chance like this again in your lives. Either spend the rest of your life in a corner of Keel afraid of everything or enter the knight group and have them train you, decide right now. Even if you refuse it I won't resent you. It's your guys life after all."

I whispered that at a fast pace in Japanese.

A light appeared in the eyes of the two of them.

Chapter 67: A New Meeting 1

Year 7442, Month 4, Day 30

It was the night of April 12th that I came to Keel with my parents. I went to Doritt for several days in-between but after a short 3 weeks I'm finally leaving Keel.

After watching the enforcement of the punishments yesterday I went to the job bulletin for adventurers in the government office, handed over the payment for the sword and the tally then received the reward of 100,000 Z before returning to Bins Manor. On the occasion I was there I also checked if there were any good jobs on the bulletin board but there wasn't any in particular, after resting for one night I'm currently preparing to leave.

After organizing my luggage I store that away in the saddle bag of my horse. In the end I didn't have a scabbard made for my sword. I'm sure it'll be fine if I have it made where I end up after this. Either way I'll just have it in bayonet form while I'm traveling so there's no problem even without a scabbard for the sword mode.

Rather if I had one it would just be in the way.

In the end Mary and Kuro decided to enter the knight group. Kuro had his own sword and while it was cheap some leather armor but Mary didn't have any of that combat use equipment. Putting aside armor she'll definitely need a sword. I was a bit worried about if she could afford to buy one but it seems that her parents will pay for it out of savings so there was no problem. Eh? Since you have money then you pay for it? Why? There's no way I would go that far in taking care of them.

In the first place being able to enter the knight group is the same as not having to worry about their employment at all from now on, it's the same as becoming an elite. There's no reason why Mary's parents would oppose it. If she were to receive investiture as a knight then she can become a commoner as well, there's no mistake it's all good things. They provide a place to live and food for no cost and even give you an education. In addition they even receive wages. That sort of splendid environment, I went to the point of giving up on my reward to prepare for them. There's nothing more than that I can do for them.

I'm sure they understand that, the two of them came early in the morning to see me off. It's not like I have enough belongings to need help with packing though so they really just came to see me off. It seems that they're entering the Webdos knight group as squires tomorrow along with the changing month. After putting my luggage together and sitting on the rubber cushion on my horse Kuro is looking up at me.

"Al..umm..I'm really grateful for everything. I'll...give it my best. Since it's a chance I've finally received. I'll definitely make it my own. I won't forget this debt. I'll definitely repay it.. it doesn't seem like I'll quickly be able to be of use to you but I'll definitely pay this debt. "Thank you very much!"

After saying that Kuro lowered his head deeply. Kuro quit the company he was working at yesterday and is moving out of his inn today it seems. Mary is looking up at me besides Kuro.

"Al, I feel the same way as Kuro. I don't know how to use the sword, let alone that I've never even fought before but on this Orth I already know it's something necessary in order to live. I just didn't want to accept that until now.. I've really been helped a lot by you... I'll show you I can make the best use of this chance as well! I'll definitely return the debt. Thanks, no "Thank you very much."

After saying that Mary lowered her head deeply along with Kuro. I look down on those two from atop my horse and, "Well, don't worry so much about it. I can only do this much for you. It depends on how much effort you two put into it from here on out. It's not as much studying as you'd do in Japan but it seems that training with the sword and horse is considerably difficult so try not to lose heart on the way. Well, remain patient.. Then, I'm heading off."

After saying that I was about to pull on the reins but I remember one thing I had to add to that.

“I forgot to say one thing. In around 3–4 years I intend to come back once and check up on things. If I don’t show up in over 5 years then...think that I’ve died and you guys can do whatever you want after that. Also..I guess so, I’ll give this to Mary. Since you get driven out of the knight group if you’re pregnant, be careful.”

After throwing the rubber bag I pulled on the reins and tapped the horse’s sides. A well-trained war horse will go into a trot and the horse continues along the road going Northeast. I didn’t face behind me. After all, I can imagine what kind of face they’re making.

I passed through the streets of Keel, the number of houses has gotten sparse. I continue along the road as it turns into a pastoral scenery covered in fields. The fields that surround the river and road on both sides are tilled well and the ridge is properly stretching out parallel. As expected it seems that they’re using horses and cows for agriculture and the farm-work is being done efficiently and {systematically}.

I can see horses and cattle pulling plows here and there.

The two villages of Rudo and Horug are at the end of this road and beyond that is the town of Kilug. After passing Kilug you leave Marquis Webdos territory and enter Viscount Penlaid’s territory. There’s roughly 65 km until the town of Kilug. If I put some effort into it I could arrive by night but I’m not in that much of a hurry.

If there’s an inn open at Horug village I’ll stay there, if there isn’t one open I’ll ask the lord if I can camp in an empty lot.

However, it’s that right. If you get used to these horses they’re really interesting. Just by delicately controlling the reins they go the direction you want almost as if they’re reading your mind. Right now it’s walking through the middle of the road but if I want to go to the left or right side just by pulling the reins slightly it immediately moves just the amount I want it to.

Since the road follows along the riverbank there’s no problem with letting the horse drink water during short breaks on the way. Although in my case I can use magic to make water as well so there wasn’t much to worry about in the first place. I leisurely let the horse walk as I listen to the stream of the river. I can probably pass through Rudo by noon.

Passing through the fields, I continue through the thick bushes. A bird is flying in the distance. There's no need to be careful of monsters in this area when I'm still this close to Keel. I had Kuro teach me about it but it seems that animals that existed on Earth are beasts and anything other than that on Orth is classified as a monster. Anything that would come at you to attack it's fine to think of as being a monster.

In Africa, India, and China in the mountains there were things like lions, leopards, and tigers, dangerous beasts that would attack you but it seems that he hadn't heard of any dangerous carnivorous beasts in this area. If there was anything dangerous it would be monsters. And those monsters are for the most part not seen in the surroundings of Keel, and it seems that there's rarely only a bit of damage from them but I can probably take a nap until I get to around Rudo.

Thinking that as I doze away and I reached Rudo by noon. After passing Rudo, not quite as much as Bakuddo but it seems there's more damage from monsters so you need to remain cautious. I'll have a meal in this village. I've prepared preserved food but I want to eat proper meals when I have the chance. There was a restaurant in the middle of the village so I entered there and had a meal.

Since Webdos Company periodically has caravans running between Keel and the Capital of Rombertia, they also end up doing trade with Viscount Penlaid's territory so there's a demand for restaurants, and along the roads between Keel and other territories any place there's houses I won't be troubled finding a meal. After eating a lunch of a porridge with wheat, eggs, and some vegetables and a black bread sandwich with pork-ham or something like psociutto on it I pick the vegetables stuck in my teeth out, get on my horse again, and leave Rudo village.

I'm heading for Horug today. There's roughly 20 km from here to Horug. I should think of these 20 km as similar to the km from Bakuddo to the neighboring village of Badett and proceed cautiously. I confirm the bayonet tied up to the back of my saddle and continue moving forward carefully. For the time being it should be fine not to pay attention to the river flowing by on the right side. I focus my attention on the left side and continue at a leisurely pace as usual along the road.

Without being attacked by monsters I arrived at Horug village before night.

I took an inn without problem, ate a pork steak and oatmeal for dinner, and went to bed early.

.....

Just like this I passed through the suburbs of the town areas and tensed myself up as I entered the outskirts as 2 weeks (12 days) passed by. Right now I've already passed through Viscount Penlaid territory and I've traveled several hundred km down the road after entering the King's territory. I'm heading for the town in the vicinity of the capital, Baldukk, I think it will still take around 10 days probably. And, if you're wondering why I'm saying things like this as I space out, it's because roughly 500 m ahead of me there's two people, I found them walking in the same direction as I am.

Since they're still too far I can't tell what gender they are but they somehow look like children. One of them seems to be a man from his figure. It seems like he might have a firm build so while he looks like a child but it might just be a dwarf. The other one looks thin compared to their companion. Either a child or a woman.

If I continue walking like this I'll probably get to within 10 m of them in about 20 minutes.

Up until now I've been attacked by groups of hobgoblins and goblins on the way but I didn't meet any thieves. In any case, the time is still before noon and I have no other choice than to pass by them. I guess it would be best to just be cautious and quickly pass them. Just as I was getting my horse into a trot to pass by them I thought it would suck if they misunderstood it as an attack so I decided to just keep going like this.

I hang my bayonet on my shoulder again and have the horse continue walking. If you continue along the road from here it was bushes on both sides of the road but it seems that it becomes a forest filled with broad-leaf trees. If possible I wanted to pass them before entering the forest. They walk surprisingly fast. It seems they're quite used to walking. In the end I continued for another 25 minutes and entered the forest. If they spent the night in the same village as me last night then they must have either left quite early or come from a different path. There were several roads that merged into this one after all.

The two who were in front of me once turned around looking back here. It seems to be a man and woman. Just as expected the man is a dwarf and while he has a solid build his height is short. He looks to be about the same size as the woman. It feels like they're around 150 cm. From her stature it seems that the woman isn't a dwarf but either a human or an elf. She has hair down to the middle of her back and it's not tied up so I can't see any ears.

The woman's hair is black. However, while it's uncommon it's not as if there aren't people with black hair. Ah, that's right, I already found out that there's almost no people who dye their hair. It was really true that there were people with unbelievable hair colors like pink, green, and blue. By the way, the hair of the dwarf man is a light pink color.

The two of them are carrying something like a large backpack. They might be peddlers. It seems they don't have swords at their waist but axes. It might be a large hatchet but that shape is an axe I'm sure. It's probably a one-hand axe that can be used with one hand. Then I guess they also use that axe for cutting through bushes as well?

For a while now the road has had some sudden curves but it's gotten straight ahead again. They once disappeared from my field of vision but I saw their backs carrying their luggage again. There's only about 100 m left until I catch up to them. They're still walking at the same pace. Hmn. If their walking speed is this fast then we both might end up at the same village that I was planning to arrive at by tonight. Just as I was thinking that it happened. Several wooden spears {Javelin}'s came flying from the forest. Ah, not at me, towards the two person group ahead of me. It seems that luckily the throwing spears didn't hit either of them.

Wait just a minute, it's not the time to be casually giving explanations. It's an attack by someone! I don't want to get caught up in it but unfortunately this road only goes in one direction. I wonder if the attackers have recognized me? If they have recognized me then there's the option of turning back as well but in that case I probably won't make it to the next village before night. If they've recognized me then even if I turn back at this point there's not much meaning to it. If I run on the horse then I don't they would catch up but in any case I have to follow this road to get to the next village.

If I leave and return then in the end if I get ambushed like this then it's the same. I guess it would be best to help them here or run past on my horse huh... I'll decide if I help them out or not after getting a bit closer and checking the ones doing the attack. I made the decision in an instant and lower the bayonet on my shoulder, I raised the horses speed a bit so it would be fine no matter which direction things go.

"Zenom, on the right!"

"Ah, Ralpa, you watch my back!"

I hear the yells of the two of them.

The attacker was a humanoid the size of an adult 180 cm or so. No, not a human. After using Identify it seems that they're Pig-people {Orks}. It's my first time seeing one. So that's an ork huh? They have arms and legs of a solid build and plump bodies but while it's crude they're wearing some kind of leather armor. It certainly feels like they're face is if you wear to make a pigs look human. It seems that they're using swords and spears as weapons. Level is 4–6 or so. They're quite strong. It seems that all of their physical abilities are a bit higher than a human of the same level.

There's 10 or so of those Orks. I'm sure it will be difficult for just the two of them with one a woman. I guess it would be best to help them out here. I raise the speed of my horse and let go of the reins with one hand thinking I should use magic I aim it towards the Orks. Ah, this is bad. It's too unnatural to use magic here.

I guess I'll stop. Since the bayonet is too short compared to a spear it's at a disadvantage against an opponent with a spear while on horseback. I guess it would be best to get off. If I get off then there's no problem with using magic as well.

The combat started between the attacker and the ones being attacked. It seems that the two of them are going to defend with just the axes they had. In the time before the attackers reach them they quickly lowered their bag and went on guard with their axes. It seems that both of them are considerably used to fighting and they aren't letting their guards down but it also seems that there's no fear in their expressions as well. I thought they were peddlers but they might be adventurers.

“Murrroo.....!!”

The dwarf let out a battle cry while stepping in at a tremendous speed and slamming his axe into the spear of the ork at the front. The woman is in the back left side of the dwarf and positioning herself to protect the dwarf's blind spots when he swings the axe. Their movements are coordinated and skillful.

However, between a spear and an axe, the axe is at a disadvantage. I get off of my horse at a distance of about 30 m and start concentrating in order to use magic.

Just like I used against the Horned Bear once upon a time I make 5 ice spears and immediately fired them off.

Since I didn't make some distance between the acceleration wasn't enough but it should be plenty enough power to injure them through leather armor. The spears fly at the group of orks. The spears are moving in a group that's almost like a 50 cm pentagon with the distance between them. Obviously I can't guide them individually so I adjust the angle while trying to hit at least 2 of them.

After all it seems that the power of them wasn't enough to kill them but I was able to injure two of the Orks. Also I used the same magic once more and injured another 2 Orks. They won't die but it should have been a considerably deep wound.

The dwarf is using the strategy of breaking the spears that are coming at him with his axe. The two of them are covering each other as they smash the axes into the spears aiming for them. Yeah, if it's that much then they should be fine for a short while. I couldn't tell when they were carrying the backpack but it seems that they're wearing a leather armor below their leather overcoat as well.

I guess it's only obvious but after 40% of their fighting potential was rendered powerless the intensity of the orks disappeared. However, they probably think that they still have double the number advantage even including me, I noticed they're rebuild their formation in order to protect their injured allies.

By the way, I was concentrating in order to use my next magic. In just a bit longer I should be able to shoot the magic. I hold my bayonet with my right hand and have my left hand still aimed at the Orks. The blue light gathers in my left hand. Now! I shoot a 20 cm in diameter smoldering rock from my left hand.

The magic {Fire Ball}. No, spell. The ball of fire flies at the group of orks at an extreme speed aimed at the one in the center. At the same time as firing it I, “{Fire Ball}!”

yelled that in a loud voice. Obviously I was just acting cool yelling out my certain kill technique. It’s a lie though. I was yelling in order to warn the dwarf and woman, don’t misunderstand.

Hearing my yell the two of them started to move back to take some distance from the Orks, but I’m sure they couldn’t move more than 1 m or so. The Ork that the {Fire Ball} directly impacted on caused it to rupture sending burning stones tearing apart the surroundings.

There wasn’t a single ork that was able to escape that attack unharmed. I’m sure the only one that died instantly was the one it landed on but the rest of them are all rolling on the ground with burns screaming pugipugi.

It seems that the dwarf and woman protected themselves from the burning stones using their coats. As expected they’re quite used to it. However, I guess they didn’t expect the power to be this high, they’re watching the pigs roll on the ground crying with a surprised expression.

I cautiously held my bayonet at the ready while pulling the reins of my horse and approached them. After getting to within 5 m of them I let go of the reins and stabbed the orks that are rolling around and the first orks that I injured in the throat with my bayonet putting them out of their misery. After confirming that all of the orks had stopped moving I face the two of them and open my mouth.

“Sorry about that. I’m still not used to using {Fire Ball}. Since it takes some time to use it..Do the two of you have any injuries?”

After I say that the dwarf responds. I only noticed it after coming close but this dwarf seems like a 40 year old middle-age man. The woman seems to be young. I wonder what kind of combination this is?

“So you were helping us? Thanks. Since we didn’t defeat even a single one of the Orks, these guys magic stones are all yours. Don’t hold back.”

And said that. It seems he’s admirable. I face the woman and was going to confirm if that was okay. But, after seeing the woman's face I stiffened up for a moment.

The woman has black eyes and it's true she has the features of a human of Orth mixed in but it was a Japanese face. I..Is she another reincarnated person!?

It was only for a moment though after seeing my face at a loss for words, I knew she was at a loss for words as well.

"Is that okay for you as well?"

I somehow managed to say that but the woman just remained speechless nodding and trembling.

Seeing that I guess the dwarf was suspicious, he called out.

"Ralpha, at least say thanks. Sorry about that, she's usually someone that talks more but.."

The dwarf first called out to her and then in addition to me.

"A, Ah, it's fine, I'm not bothered over it. Rather than that, I only killed these guys, it's not like I put my body on the line and fought them. Just as you said I'll take the magic stones but you guys can have the spears and swords."

After I said the dwarf and the woman both opened their eyes in surprise but quickly said.

"Is it fine? There's two spearheads and even one iron sword. No matter how you think about it these are worth more."

It's true that does seem to be the case. But, there's rust on the sword and spears, in order to be able to sell them you'd have to do quite a bit of maintenance work on them. Even if it's just like they are now you could sell them to a blacksmith that deals in equipment but the spearheads would be at best 5 silver coins and you'd profit if you make 10 silver coins from the iron sword. I'm sure my Identify would show the value as being higher but this is the value when they're lined up in a store sold to users.

In comparison the strength of an ork is the same as a hobgoblin. Since the magic stone of hobgoblins are about 4–5 silver coins, it's probably fine to see the ork's magic stone as about the same. Since there's 10 of them I can guess it'll come out to about 40 silver coins.

In Keel's 7–9 shop it would be about 30 pieces.

And, the experience points from 10 orks is huge enough I can't ignore it. If they had the same kind of action patterns as hobgoblins then it's difficult to quickly annihilate them, if I had been fighting them alone like in this case then after I kill or injure one of them they could have all retreated leaving me almost no experience points.

It seems that Orks aren't as intelligent as hobgoblins. It's considerably tasty that just killing a single Ork I get several hundred experience points thanks to {Gift of Natural Talent}. And there's 10 of those. If I was alone I'd feel like jumping up and singing a song about now.

I recover my composure and smile while responding.

“Yeah, it's fine. However, would you at least help me out with taking the magic stones?”

“Of course, it's no problem. Hey, Ralpa, you gather the heads of the spears and the sword.”

I guess the dwarf liked my response, he gave instructions to the woman and got close to one of the orks nearby and stabbed it in the chest with a knife. I start cutting open the chests of the orks with a knife as well. In less than an hour there were 10 orks worth of magic stones in my hands. After identifying them it seems that as expected the values of all of them are vaguely different but for the most part they have a value of about 4,500 each.

In other words $45,000 \text{ Z} \times 10 = 45$ silver coins worth of magic stones.

The woman ignored the spears made carved from trees and just went to cut off the ends of the metal spears and is holding on to the one sword. It seems there were three metal spearheads. The leather armor stinks and it was pretty crude in the first place so they're just ignoring it.

It's bulky so I'm sure it would just add to their baggage after all.

The time is just past noon. I wanted to try talking to the woman. I wash my dirty hands with water magic while, “Hey~ you two, want to eat? It’s just the right time and you helped me with taking out the magic stones so if it’s soup made with preserved meat then it’s my treat.”

I tried saying that. According to what I heard at the village I departed this morning it’s a distance of 40 Km to the next village. Taking into consideration the time and the speed of my horse there should be about 15 Km remaining I’m sure. Their walking pace is fast but it should be enough distance that it takes them another couple of hours. After I said that to them the two of them exchanged glances with a slightly surprised face.

“Ah, sorry about that. If you’re in a hurry then don’t worry about it.”

After saying that I take my flask and some dried meat and bread out of my saddle bag. If they end up going ahead then I feel bad for the two of them but I’ll just secretly use identify, eat right away, and follow after them.”

“No, it’s fine as long as we make it to Foshil by night, there’s no problem. Since it’s this occasion, we’ll take you up on your offer. However, at least let us provide the bread.”

The dwarf says that while opening their bag that they threw on the ground and took out a container. It’s probably the bread. The woman opened her mouth for the first time here.

“Hey~ can we go a bit further from here? The smell of blood from the orks is bad here.”

That’s true. After hearing it said it’s indeed strange to start eating lunch surrounded by the corpses of orks. However, isn’t there timing to invite someone to eat lunch? It’s not like I specifically wanted to eat next to the corpses of orks, don’t misunderstand that.

“Yeah, that’s true. Then..How about we move over to there?”

I said that while returning my food to the saddle bag and started pulling the reins. I can see several rocks lined up 200 m away. I’m sure they’ll be just right as chairs.

Since I started moving they picked up their bags and started walking with me.

“My name is Alan Greed. I was born in Bakuddo on the Jindal Peninsula. Feel free to call me Al.”

Come to think of it we hadn't introduced ourselves yet. The woman was called Ralpa and I feel like I heard the dwarf's name said at the start but I forget it.

“I'm Zenom, Zenom Firefreed. This is my daughter Ralpa.”

Huh? Daughter? No matter how you look at it this woman isn't a dwarf? And she doesn't seem to be an elf either. No matter how much they look like a Japanese if there's elf mixed into their blood they should be, umm, a bit more beautiful. No, I don't particularly intend to say this woman is ugly. In Japan she would be considered plenty good looking. Since she looks like a half as well.

I'm sure it's enough that she'd be treated like an idol at school or work. However, on Orth she's not particularly beautiful. The people of Orth prefer more European looks. Come to think of it, I wonder if from a biological standpoint the humans on Earth are the same as the humans here? Suddenly that sort of thought floated in my mind.

I guess he noticed that I was surprised she was introduced as his daughter. Zenom continued speaking.

“Of course, she's not my real daughter. I picked this child up when she was a baby.”

Oh, so that was the case. I was surprised.

“Ralpa.Firefreed. Ralpa or Ral is fine. Call me how you like.”

She replied bluntly. She must be shy. Or I guess not. However, I would prefer if she didn't mention Ral since it reminds me of the wind, sensation of touch, and things*. Even if it's just being stubborn I won't call her by her pet name.

I sit down on just the right size of rock where they were lined up and change the water in my flask to hot water. I immediately put an appropriate amount of dried meat inside and then closed it with a rubber cork, then after 2–3 minutes I told Zenom that it was ready to be eaten and handed it to Zenom before opening a different bag. I put ham inside this bag. I use a knife to cut the ham and handed it to Ralpa this time. Ralpa takes that, puts it in between some bread, and hands it back to me.

“Thanks.”

I said that and took it but with this I can't cut the next piece of ham. For the time being I put the bread down on the side and cut off several pieces of ham as I hand them to Ralpa. And then she was spreading something on the next piece of bread. What's that? It looks too soft to be butter. Is it Mayonnaise? I wonder if it's on the bread she handed to me? Since I was making the soup I didn't notice it.

In any case, I hand over the ham and bite into the bread beside me. After taking a bite and tasting that in my mouth I immediately realized. What's this, it's insanely good. This sharp smell that goes through your nose and sourness that has depth...It's mustard Mayonnaise!!

I was so amazed that I couldn't help but speak Japanese.

“..I thought that was the case. There's mayonnaise in this world but none that was mixed with mustard so I made it. Bakuddo.”

Huh? Ba..kuddo? Why is she bringing that up right now?

“What are you saying?”

Zenom asked curiously. It's only obvious, he doesn't know Japanese after all.

“It's a dialect of Bakuddo. That guy we did the job with before, what was his it again... I had that person teach me. That person said he was from Bakuddo as well.”

So that's what she meant. This woman, she's a pretty fast thinker. And, she's definitely a reincarnated person.

In that case there's no need for restraint. I'll try Identifying her.

Since there's no level display it seems she hasn't used it. However, I still remember that I couldn't open the sub-window of my Gift of Natural Talent until the level display appeared. Is it possible to Identify in the case of other people's Unique Abilities? Or is it that there's different types of things that can be seen and can't be seen? I'm curious about it but there's no way I could know the answer just by thinking about it.

More importantly than that, this Spatial Understanding, depending on how you think about it... And if you aimlessly raise the level too much as well..No, if it's at the maximum level of 9 then the maximum range is 50 m radius huh? Hmn...

Also, not only is there no traces that she's used her Unique Ability but she has no magic special skill either. Her MP is at the standard for her age as well at 3.

Her level is considerably high for her age. It's normal to be around 5 for an adult when they become a squire and it's the same level as sister-in-law Shani when she married into the family at 16 years old. Going off of her movements from the fight just now it seems she's considerably used to fighting, I wonder if these two are adventurers with a lot of experience? In that case...

I chew on the sandwich while troubling my head with thinking about how I can earn the trust of these two.

Chapter 69: A New Meeting 3

“By the way, you two are pretty amazing. Are you you considerably skilled adventurers? The way you counterattacked against that ambush just now was splendid.”

Of course, it's flattery. It's true it's amazing how they were able to construct a stance for counterattack in that short period of time but as expected it would have been pretty difficult for them just like that. I'm sure they wouldn't be killed by the orks but it can't be denied that they could have been injured depending on the situation. They were just hitting the spears with their axes after all.

Though it's certainly true that there was a possibility things could have gone well with just destroying the spears. Depending on the situation they could have injured or killed several of them and I can't deny the possibility it could have been enough to lure them into retreating. However, in order to get to that point it would have taken them several minutes to several dozen minutes in time and during that time they would have had to remain focused in order to evade the enemies weapons while destroying them. It can be said to have been quite difficult.

“No, though it's true we're eating by being adventurers we're not that great of a thing. Rather than something like us, Al, you're pretty amazing. Being able to use that magic in succession is quite something. I've been an adventurer for close to 20 years but it's my first time seeing a magician this skilled. It's quite significant being able to use a spell of that level while remaining composed. I'm sure you probably used quite a bit of mana right? I'm really grateful.”

After saying that Zenom lowered his head to me.

Ralpa lowered her head along with Zenom this time.

“It's fine. Since it's fine as long as long as I can make it Foshil today, it can't be helped being reluctant to use my mana.”

After I said that the two of them exchanged glances before lowering their heads to me again.

“Thanks, honestly speaking we were really saved that you used magic there. I had resolved for that to eat up quite a bit of time. And not just the first magic but you even used {Fire Ball}..since I had heard it was common sense for magicians to leave some mana remaining so I was surprised you were still willing to use magic. You even left the orks equipment to us.”

Ralpa said that. Hmm, they admit that it would have taken some time and been a difficult battle but they had no intention of losing huh. It sounds like in the past they may have experienced a much more difficult fight.

For a short while after that the three of us used our mouths for eating. After we finished eating Zenom opened his mouth again.

“Not only did you save us and leave the equipment to us but you even treated us to a meal. Just now, you said you were going to Foshil right. Since you were using magic during the fight with the orks and the soup, no, hot water, you heated it up with magic as well right? No matter how I think about it you shouldn't have any leeway left with mana. Since you're riding a horse I'm sure it's fast but even if it's a horse then it should still take at least 3 hours for you to get to Foshil from here. If you're not in a hurry then would you at least let us accompany you to Foshil? If you run into a group of monsters like the one just now I'm sure it'll be tough alone.”

No, it's not particularly tough at all though this proposal is just what I wanted. He probably intends to be an escort as thanks.

“I see, if you're willing to say then I'm grateful as well. If I have the horse run then even if I encounter monsters I'm sure I can manage it but as expected it's difficult. If I can get there by slowly walking then that's all the better. Rather it's almost to the point I want to ask for the favor.”

I said that while lowering my head. Even if it's only for a short period then it's necessary to understand their abilities. I'll try identifying Zenom as well.

Uho...He's level 16. It's my first time seeing it. Even though his physical abilities should already have started decreasing because of his age, his strength is amazing~ His dexterity is higher than a humans as well. However, his speed is considerably low. The characteristics of a dwarf are strong in him. I see now, with this that method of fighting makes sense. I'm sure he can't carelessly charge in. Zenom just firmly stands on guard and Ralpa moves around covering his blind spots.

For the time being, I can accompany them until the next village. Since he's a reliable dwarf adventurer, I want to try listening to various stories as an adventurer. Ralpa is a reincarnated person as well and these two say they're in a relationship of adoptive father and child. I definitely want to keep acting together with them from here on out.

Close to evening of that day the three of us arrived at the village of Foshil. Without encountering anymore monsters along the way it was a peaceful path. Thanks to that I was able to hear various stories of being an adventurer from Zenom and Ralpa.

Just as would expected from the village of Foshil being a part of the King's direct territory, the houses are decently well-organized and you can feel that all of the buildings are somewhat new. According to Zenom and Ralpa it seems that the village only has a history of about 10 years itself. Until then it seems that this entire area was a wasteland. This village Foshil is something that a man who was granted the nobility of Viscount by the King cleared up and it's still a new village. It's population is still only about 200 or so, as a village it's still like a baby with how small it is.

Obviously there's nothing as convenient as an inn and there isn't even a shop. At the edge of the village there's some vacant land that's been smoothed out, it seems that caravans use that to rest. Since there's no caravans staying here for tonight it seems that we have it reserved for just the three of us. We went to the lord's house and after asking if we can borrow the land for the night to setup camp we started making preparations for camping out. Zenom entered the village saying he was going to get some firewood. He probably went to negotiate with a villager to sell him some firewood.

Yeah, now's the chance. I started talking to Ralpa.

"Hey, Ralpa. You're Japanese as well right? I'm Kawasaki Takeo. I was a salary man. I was riding on the train when the accident occurred. If possible I want to have a conversation and exchange information."

"..Ono Misa. I was on the bus on my way to return to school. I wanted to talk as well. Do you have any alcohol?"

Ralpa replied in Japanese. These past few years my thoughts have started to focus on the words used over here but I guess it's because I talked with Mary and Kuro last month, I've started to think a lot in Japanese again. I feel nostalgic whenever I talk in Japanese.

"Eh? Alcohol? Sorry. I don't have any alcohol. Why? Do you want to drink it?"

"Not me. I want to let Zenom drink. He's normally careful not to drink too much but just on nights like these where there's no need for someone to keep watch he starts drinking and after falling asleep doesn't wake up very easily."

Without getting angry at my impolite misunderstand Ralpa correct me. Well, it's not anything to get angry over. However, I see now. Since she says she was “returning to school” she must have either been a student or a teacher. If I remember correctly I think the accident occurred just after noon so if she was a student then I guess she was a college student. I’m sure that as a woman she would be happier being thought of as younger.

“Hatsudai academy high school... Since I wasn’t very smart.. It’s been over a decade since I said the name of my school...It’s true it’s nostalgic.”

After saying that Ralpa closed her eyes in the setting sun. I guess she’s remembering the days far in the past. The red light from the sun reflected off of her hair and was beautiful.

..So she was a high school student. Even though I’m sure it was a happy period for her, suddenly dying in an accident and finding herself reincarnated a world that’s not the Earth. Just for reference I’ll say it but I’ve never heard of Hatsudai academy high school. Just as she said herself it was probably a low standard school. However, that doesn’t really have much relation here on Orth. It’s probably much more important that the both of us were Japanese. Rather than something like how low or high the standards of your school were the fact that you’ve survived 14 years on this Orth is more important, or at least that’s what I think.

“But, if we don’t have any alcohol Zenom might wake up. It would probably be best to talk a bit of distance away from here. Kawasaki-san, can you wake up in the middle of the night?”

“Haha, there’s no need to force yourself to speak politely. I said Al was fine right? And we’re the same age here. It’s fine if you talk normally without restraint.”

After hearing I was a salary man though it was slowly she started to talk politely so I stopped her.

If possible I want to build some familiarity after all.

“And then, I have no problems with waking up in the middle of the night. Would it be better for me to wake you up? However, I don’t have the confidence I can wake you up with Zenom noticing. He's your father right? If it seems like I'm trying to wake you up in the middle of the night I'm sure he'd get angry."

I tried joking with her a bit. She must have felt that the atmosphere got a bit lighter with that, Ralpa said

"Yeah, then, I'll keep watch of the fire first. And under the pretext of changing with you in the middle of the night I'll wake you up. Then we can put in a bit of extra firewood and move a bit away..let's talk around that area."

She pointed to the edge of the vacant land while saying that. It's about 20 m away from here. Since we setup the campfire on the side of the vacant land closer to the village if we move to the opposite side there's a decent amount of distance. Certainly if we're that far away and whispering then I doubt anyone would notice it.

"I understand. That's fine. Let's do that. Then, let's quickly finish preparations. After Zenom returns I need to go and see about getting them to share some fodder with me."

"Yeah, got it."

After saying that while looking at my horse that's licking some rock salt and eating some grass in the surroundings of the vacant land and Ralpa consents before we go off to make preparations for camping.

I went to sleep after eating a simple dinner and around the middle of the night I was woken up. Since I still haven't lost my habit of waking up once in the middle of the night even if she didn't wake me up I would have gotten up all on my own but since it would have been a pain explaining I just kept quiet and let her wake me up.

After opening my eyes and confirming the one who woke me up and it's only obvious but it was Ralpa. I,

"So it's time to switch, it's fine, I've woken up."

And unnaturally said that while raising my body up.

“I’ll go for a short walk.”

Said that and went to sit on a rock near where Ralpa pointed in the evening.

After adding more firewood to the campfire Ralpa quietly walked over and sat next to me. In order to prevent even a bit of our voices reaching Zenom we sat with our backs facing the campfire.

“Zenom is sleeping well. If it’s a voice this loud then I don’t think he’ll wake up.”

Ralpa says that when I’m nervous of Zenom opening his eyes.

“I see. Then, let’s talk for a bit.”

After I said that and was about to continue talking Ralpa interrupted me saying.

“First off, let me confirm something. What’s your Unique Ability?”

Ho~ so for the time being she cut straight into one of the most important parts huh?

Since the small flame from the campfire is barely reaching our backs even if I look at Ralpa’s expression I can’t tell what it is.

“I see..I thought it was something like that. My Unique Ability is called Spacial Understanding. But I don’t know how to use it. In the past, I tried asking Zenom what Unique Abilities were but Zenom replied that he didn’t know and he had never heard of them. I intended to ask when I met God but when I was confirming other stuff my time ran out..in the end I couldn’t ask. If it’s fine with you could you teach me how to use Unique Abilities?”

“Before that let me confirm several things. Around how much time did you have when you met God? And when did you meet it? Incidentally I met God when I was still a baby.”

“It was a lot later for me. I think it was when I was 4 or 5 years old. Since it was the first day I was injured by a goblin. I was underestimating goblins at that time. Until then I had killed a number of goblins together with Zenom. Since I had never had a hard fight..After that, Zenom carried me to the healer of a village nearby. I think that was the first time I saw magic.”

Hey there, you’re straying off topic. It seems that Ralpa intends to continue talking.

“And then, after going to sleep that I met God. I was only given 5 minutes to ask questions. I remember confirming countless times that I couldn’t return anymore and despairing over that. After that I ran out of time while asking the types of currency and things about Zenom or about the people who reincarnated. I’m sure you already know about the currency and time but since I had heard about other reincarnated people at that time I thought I wouldn’t be able to meet anyone else, so I was pretty surprised when I saw Al today. I’ve wandered around here and there for over 10 years as an adventurer but I’ve never met another person who reincarnated.”

5 minutes huh? It’s still better than Kuro and Mary but it’s true that with just that amount of time the amount of information you could gain is limited. I’m sure that the way to use your Unique Ability is important but I think there’s a lot of stuff that’s more important in order to go on living that you should confirm as well. It’s not unreasonable. And she’s been adventurer for over 10 years already. Isn’t she a super veteran? Looking for my point of view with a history as an adventurer of one month she’s a great senior.

“Hey, did you know? It seems that the people who reincarnated are all born a considerable distance apart. God said that we were all born more than 100 Km apart. Since it was chosen from people who just happened to be pregnant at the same time with a minimum distance of that then it’s possible that there’s people that are a distance of several hundred Km apart as well. Have you met any other reincarnated people besides me?”

He~ I didn’t know that. I feel like I asked the location of other reincarnated people as well but they didn’t tell me right..I wonder if my way of asking was bad? Well, it’s too late to regret it at this point. However, that information for just now will be a big reference. There’s 39 reincarnated people. All of whom were born at least 100 Km apart. If I remember correctly it said I was on the edge.

“I have. I’ve already met two reincarnated people..that’s how I’m calling the Japanese who were reborn on Orth. Yeah, I’ve met with two reincarnated people. They’re in the capital of Marquis Webdos Territory Keel. I helped them out a bit and the two of them are now in the Marquis knight group. Of the two of them one is a woman.”

After I said that much and Ralpa says, that. I understand those feelings.

“I said it right, right now they’re on the lowest standing of the knight group. I’m sure you’ll be able to meet them in several years.”

After hearing that Ralpa said a bit disappointed.

“I see..but, what kind of people were they? It’s nice reliably knowing their whereabouts. God wouldn’t tell me the center point. It seems that I was born a bit south of the center. According to Zenom he picked me up in a cave near the village of Ralpa in Count Hentil’s territory. That’s why he gave me the name Ralpa.”

Since I was just quietly listening Ralpa continued talking to me.

“I...If I wasn’t picked up by Zenom I think probably would have died just like that in the cave. I didn’t know what the situation around me was at that time since I couldn’t do anything and I was just confused...I was a baby after all. Zenom carried me and went to look for my parents in Ralpa village it seems but he said he couldn’t find them. I think I was probably abandoned.”

It’s a heavy story.

“I see, but, Ralpa had good luck it seems. Since you were picked up by Zenom and he properly raised you right?”

I said that. What else could I say?

“Yeah, I really think so. That’s why Zenom is my dad even though he’s a dwarf.”

“Yeah, I guess so. Then I’ll tell my story next.”

I said the same kind of story I told to Kuro and Mary.

“..That just now is the method to train with magic. At the very least using that I was able to use magic. That’s why I don’t think whether or not you’ve become an adult and whatever is related. I know other people as well that were able to use magic before becoming adults using this method as well.”

“So that was the case, then I might become able to use magic as well. Also, about Unique Abilities but, how do you use them?”

“That is..I don’t know. Going off the name wouldn’t it be fine to try using as you jump into the air or something? The way to use them should just be to think of the name of the Unique Ability in your mind. However, when you use it, it uses mana. You should be careful not to overuse it.”

I pretend to say it randomly while teaching her the method to use her Unique Ability. Since I don’t feel like Ralpa would become my enemy for the meantime after I talked to her for a bit. And if I say this much then putting aside right now, she should be able to confirm the authenticity of my words by tomorrow morning. And then her faith in me should go up as well. Well, if she were to think of doing it right now I’m sure she should though. Since there’s a chance Zenom would wake up.

“..I see. Also, I want to ask one thing but where is Al planning to go tomorrow? You’re an adventurer right? Are you in the middle of a job?”

“No, I haven’t accepted any jobs right now. I thought of switching my base from Keel to Baldukk. I intend to go to the dungeon there.”

Come to think of it I hadn’t said it. Ey~ as a bonus. I guess I’ll try asking if she wants to come along... No, is it still too soon? But depending on the case she might suddenly say we’re separating ways tomorrow...

“Baldukk dungeon huh..Yeah, I see..”

Ralpa repeats the words I said while digesting them. Hmn, I wonder if I got ahead of myself. If we can go together partway then I somehow want to make a recovery during that time.

“Yo~to”

Huh? What’s she doing... I turn around look at the area where Zenom is sleeping. After hearing my words Ralpa suddenly stood up and starting jumping. I hurried and tried identifying her and her MP decreased by 1, the remaining amount is 2. She used it! I turn around again and look at Zenom. And I look up at Ralpa who’s in a daze. I turn around and look at Zenom. Am I pendulum?

“Hey, you..”

“Hmn, so this is Spacial Understanding..”

She’s not listening to what I’m saying.

“Zenom! Wake up!”

Why did things become like this?

Chapter 70: A New Meeting 4

Year 7442, Month 5, Day 12

I saw Zenom jump awake at the edge of my sight after hearing Ralpa's words. What in the world is she thinking? I feel like I want hold my head but while ignoring me Ralpa runs over to Zenom after waking him up. Ah, damn it. I don't think they'll suddenly turn into enemies but...there's a worst case. I stand up while glaring at Zenom as he gets halfway up and Ralpa as she runs to him.

Along the way, it seems that Ralpa flinched for a moment but she quickly ran up to him and called out to Zenom again.

"Zenom! I was able to use Spacial Understanding! I finally was able to use my Unique Ability!"

Huh.....?!? What's that? What is she doing telling him about it!?

I opened my mouth so wide I thought my jaw would dislocate.

While I'm dumbfounded hearing Ralpa's words I watch as she runs up to Zenom while calling happily out to him.

"Ah? Unique Ability? Eh? What? Oh~ I see!"

It seems that Zenom woke up right away and was confused for a moment but immediately replied delighted as well. Moreover he doesn't even question it.

Ah, come to think of it.

"I see.. as expected I thought it was something like that. My Unique Ability is called Spatial Understanding. But I don't know how to use it. In the past, I tried asking Zenom what a Unique Ability is but Zenom just said he didn't know and had never heard of it. I intended to ask God but I started asking from other stuff and ran out of time.. in the end I couldn't ask. If it's okay with you, would you teach me the way to use Unique Abilities?"

.....

I just ignored it a moment ago but hasn't she already consulted with Zenom about it! In other words...

It can't be, has she said everything about being reincarnated as well? If she has said something how much has she said I wonder? And, I wonder how much of that Zenom believes?

Ah..I feel dizzy.

It seems that Zenom and Ralpa are happily talking about it.

Depending on how things go, it's not my intention but I might end up having to seal their mouths...Huh? Why? If I think about it a bit more it's not like reincarnating is something bad. It's nothing I'd be charged with a crime over. If I end up serving under someone then there's a possibility I could be used for the sake of my knowledge that doesn't exist on Orth but that shouldn't particularly be a bad thing as well.

While looking at Ralpa happily talk to Zenom, I decided that it wasn't something I need to deal with urgently while getting lost in my thoughts.

If the fact that "knowledge from reincarnated people is effective" is made public, I'm sure I would be forced to cooperate in ways I didn't intend to but what does it matter? If I have "effective knowledge" then I shouldn't be treated badly, it only makes sense that I would receive considerably good treatment. Since if they were to try and forcibly get the information out, without the cooperation of the person them self it's completely impossible, at the very least the side planning to make use of me should offer favorable terms first.

Why did I hide the fact that I reincarnated from my parents and siblings again? Ah, it was because I didn't want them to think of me as strange as much as possible.

Since I didn't want them to think of me as the child of a demon or the descent of a God or something...that's why I made it that my great-grandfather appeared in my dreams. Since it was way~ in the past I completely forgot about it.

Since it seemed like Kuro and Mary were hiding the fact that they reincarnated from being Japanese so I had completely gotten into the mood. Ralpa was being careful saying things like Bakuddo dialect when referring to Japanese at first after all, furthermore she waited until Zenom was asleep to talk, that's why it came to this situation.

Why did I think that was unusual?

It's simple. It's because conveniently thought everyone had the same values as me. Since I wanted to make my own country, since I wanted to become the king of the hill, it's because I wanted to avoid letting anyone conveniently use the knowledge I have. Since it was coming from a small child it's hard to have any faith in it and rather because of the difference in power something that isn't pleasant could be done. Depending on the case you could be ostracized or killed for being too abnormal and that's how I analyzed the situation when I was still a baby. I wanted to hide it at the very least until I had grown up a bit because I wanted to be treated the same as other children. As a result it seems I was considered abnormally good of a child compared to other kids though that's thanks to keeping an eye on the situation as I gradually thought I could go a bit further at a time. Eh? It's fine, since I think that way.

If you look at it in reverse you could take it that I doubted Hegard and Sharl's love as my parents when I was still an infant. Ah, I don't doubt it now. I have no doubts about whether I was raised with my parent's love. My parents on Orth loved me just as much as my parents in my past life after all. If I said anything wrong and hurt anyone then Hegard would have gone as far as hitting me to make me revise it and Sharl would have slapped me as well. And I'm sure they would have lowered their heads to the one I who's feelings I hurt. However, that's in the case that they think I need discipline. The border between discipline and things outside of that is clear. If there was someone who I truly hated and can't give up on hating at all, no matter how good of a person that is I'm sure they would have cooperated with me and killed them together or killed them in my place. I don't know what would happen if my opinion was at odds with Farne or Mill but if that's not the case then I'm sure father and mother would have definitely been my ally unconditionally. I'm sure if it was a case of a conflict between us siblings then I feel that a judgement would befall us within the limits of discipline.

If I remember correctly I started talking around the time I was one year old. I think it was around that time I said some occult stuff about my great-grandfather visiting me in my dreams or something. After that, I asked about the farm work in the village and the mechanisms of nobility but the first I actually started suggesting things and started messing with rubber and stuff was...4–5, no, after I was 6 years old. Ah, no, if I remember correctly we started saving up money in order to introduce large livestock for making farm work more efficient. Around that time my MP had increased considerably so even in the worst case if I were to be ostracized I had enough confidence that I could somehow survive on my own, though it isn't the completely the reason. Of course it was around that time that I started to think that sort of thing wouldn't happen even in the worst case and I started to think about how I could be useful to my family, and what I could do.

I was considerably luck as well. After all I was able to be born from those parents. If that wasn't the case then what would have happened? For example what would have happened if I was born a serf like Kuro, there's no doubt I would have gone through quite a bit of trouble just like him. Since Marquis Webdos territory is a considerably good land even in the Kingdom of Rombert, if it was as a serf in a different place then there's probably a high possibility I could have easily died from an illness in my infancy.

In some ways, it's the same for the time when I was in Bakuddo but it's definitely not a bad thing being used by others and the opposite of that is the same. Rather the me at that time was progressively trying to be used by others. It's only obvious to employ the work of someone based on their abilities and be employed yourself.

I think there's a lot of people would agree with my opinion. After all, if that wasn't the case then everyone who works in a business or management on earth would be villains. Politicians and officials would be villains as well and below that the citizens who pay taxes in order to be guaranteed safety and social securities are all villains in other words the Earth would be a plant of evil.

Everyone knows that's not the case. Even the people of Orth know it. Obviously the reincarnated Japanese know as well. Don't misunderstand. I don't want friends. Of course, if there's someone who I'm able to create a friend-based relationship with then I wouldn't be against it. Just, the things that I'm trying to do have no relation to making friends. It's plenty as long as I can create a relationship where I use and I'm used by others. Ah, of course I'm on the side of the relationship doing the using. I guess I'll just correct it, rather than just saying only a relationship of using and being used.

I want to become the King of the country I create, it means I want retainers and subordinates. In other words the place that I'm aiming for I don't need the people who support me to be my friends. If you're making a company then a president and the subordinates who become their arms and legs are necessary and it's better to have subordinates and more subordinates under them right? It's fine if I declare that I'm going independent and claim a territory as my own all by myself but in that case no one will come along with me and no country will recognize it as a country. It's only obvious that no matter how strong I become as an individual, I can't win against an army of 100 all on my own.

In addition I'll say it but I don't want to make a democratic country. I want to make an autocratic state that's on the border of being a dictatorship with me at the top. What I'm aiming for is a Sengoku feudal lord who raises up in the world. I'm not aiming for a socialistic or communism doctrine that tries to release the oppressed people from the noble and royal ranks. Society is perfectly fine just as it is now. I'm also not intending to unify the continent. If I could do it then I would but those sorts of things I'll worry about after I make my own country. Shining example of a man*, I'm sure it's better to have big dreams but I understand that in order to make them reality you have to take various steps.

If there's someone who wants to serve me and they are useful then I'll give them a warm welcome. If you come with me I'll make sure you're this well taken care of, how about it? in other words that sort of thing. See, there's no particularly need to become friends with anyone right? It's fine as long as they're capable and loyal subordinates. And, in that case then I guess there's no particular need to hide the fact that we're reincarnated right? Whether they believe it or not depends on the other side after all. Well, I'm sure normally they wouldn't believe it. If they don't believe it then they could just ignore as a drunk story, in terms of harm there's none other than being thought of as a liar.

I'm sure other people who have reincarnated would definitely believe it though.

The problem is the demerits of having the fact that you're a reincarnated person exposed to someone who intends to use you. However, if they're trying to use us then in other words that means they've recognized the value of reincarnated people. In other words what I can think of for the time being is that other than the fact that we're a reincarnated person, what other ways we can be useful is difficult to expose. However, there's my case as well. In the case that someone who reincarnated in this world is born in a social standing that is far above mine...

Putting aside the individual doctrines and personality of reincarnated people it's certain that we're above the people of Orth in terms of knowledge and abilities. We even have Unique Abilities. Kuro has Charm, Mary has Resistance (Poison), Ralpa has Spacial Understanding.

Since Unique Abilities are powerful and my Identify and Gift of Natural Talent don't fall behind theirs and can be considered cheating with how excellent of abilities they are. Depending on how you think about it, if I were to take on Kuro, Mary, or Ralpa as opponents it's even possible for me to fall to my knees. It's best if I make as many reincarnated people into my allies or at least keep them neutral. I just need to avoid becoming enemies with them.

By the way, it's almost been about 30 seconds since Ralpa started noisily talking with Zenom.

I'm sure it's fine by now.

"Ralpa, I get that you're happy but what is it all of a sudden?"

I pause organizing my thoughts and call out to her as I approach. I understand that she was able to use her Unique Ability Spacial Understanding but I need to pretend that I don't know that was her using it but I can also understand that she was able to do it by listening to their conversation so there's no point. I'll change tracks.

"Zenom, Al taught me how to do it. The method to train with magic as well!"

Without paying any attention to me Ralpa continues talking to Zenom. I wonder if she couldn't hear me?

“And then, he says he’s going to the dungeon ins Baldukk! After all it’s just as I said. The people who have reincarnated that want to get stronger will aim for there!”

What?

“Yeah..That seems to be the case. Ralpa, what are you going to do?”

“Isn’t that only obvious! We’ll go together! I mean since he can use magic that well then I’m sure we can even make it to at least the 2nd floor right!?”

Huh? Eh? What are the two of you talking about on your own?

It seems that Zenom noticed me after I approached within 5 m.

I’m sure he saw my idiotic face...

“Ralpa, I get what you want to say. But, did you tell the person them self before telling me...I’m sure you didn’t ask right? Being impertinent is a bad habit of yours.”

Zenom says that chiding Ralpa.

Ralpa turns around. Hey, it’s been a while.

“Hey, we’re you listening!?”

She said that with a sparkling expression.

“..Yeah, for the most part.”

I responded a bit disappointed.

“Then“Wait just a minute.””

Since it seemed like she was going to continue the conversation all on her I interrupted her. It’s true it’s going just liked I predicted where it feels like they’ll come along with me. Ralpa looks over here as if she wants to become allies.

“Let me confirm several things. It’s important. Zenom, how much do you know?”

I looked at Zenom who was sitting halfway up while saying that.

“..How much do I know? About what?”

I guess as expected he wouldn’t know with just this...

“About Ralpa’s Unique Ability.”

I wanted to ask about reincarnation and things like but there’s the possibility that Ralpa hasn’t revealed that much.

“Ah, I’ve heard from Ralpa. She was able to use it because you taught her. Thanks. With this that shikoki or whatever”“Eh?””

Just now, what did he say?

“No, won’t she be able to use the shikoki now?”

“Huh? Eh? Shikoki?”

I reflexively looked in Ralpa’s direction.

“How far have you talked to Zenom about reincarnating?”

“..I’ve talked about everything that I know? Why?”

I guess that was the case after all.

“Then, why did you refer to Japanese as the dialect of Bakuddo and try to hide it?”

“After all, Zenom can’t talk in Japanese~”

Since I said it in Japanese, Ralpa replied in Japanese as well.

“Next, in that case then why do you go to all the trouble of waiting for Zenom to sleep before talking? At first you were trying to get Zenom drunk right?”

“I didn’t want to give Zenom false-expectations..Huh? Was something bad about it?”

It seems she finally realized it. If it’s the father that raised her for 14 years without expecting anything from her then it’s not particular bad though. The problem is anyone else.

“No, it’s already fine. Zenom, you know that Ralpa was reborn from another world right?”

“Yeah, I’ve heard from Ralpa. Since Ralpa talked to me about a variety of things. You are as well right?”

It seems that Zenom noticed what I was trying to say from the start of the conversation. His expression changed.

“It can’t be helped denying it at this point. That’s right. I was born and raised in the same country as Ralpa and a person that was reborn in this world.”

I continue saying.

“And, just to confirm but the ones that believe that Ralpa was reincarnated, no is there anyone else than you who knows that she’s saying that?”

There was a moment of silence. Is he trying to remember?

“There’s none. I told Ralpa not to carelessly talk about it. In the past, there was one person that Ralpa talked about it with when she was still little but after that before they met anyone I killed them..”

It seems I made him say something he didn’t want to say. After hearing the conversation just now Ralpa is holding her mouth.

“I see, sorry about that. I’m sure you didn’t want to say that in front of Ralpa..that was my bad.”

“It’s fine. And while I said that she’s not supposed to talk about but as an exception she can progressively talk about it with other people in the same position as her. Since I’ve been dragging this child all over the place since she was young she has no friends. She was always afraid, according to what Ralpa says that it’s something that everyone who reincarnated would feel and they shouldn’t have all that different of a way of thinking about it..and that there shouldn’t be any problem with talking about it with people from the same country and.. so that’s what you meant, I guess I was a bit too easy on my own daughter.”

It seems that Zenom comprehended it.

“Yeah, that’s right. I think that the most dangerous ones are those who reincarnated like us.”

I face Ralpa and say it once again.

“Ralpa, it would have been dangerous if I had been trying to use the knowledge you possess. Well, I can't say much myself as well. Since I lightly told you the method to use your Unique Ability after all. However, since I've talked about it this far..you two should prepare yourselves."

I looked at the two of them with a serious expression. While the two of them were overawed by me, they started to be more cautious. I guess that aspect is the veteran adventurer part behind Ralpa's carefree behavior.

"I don't intend on fighting. I'll promise you that. At the very least I don't intend on fighting right here and now. It's repeating things but I'll promise you on that. First, I want you to listen what I'm about to talk about. I saw where Ralpa and Zenom were fighting against the orks during the day. It should be difficult for you to take me on without a weapon right? That's why even if you listen to what I'm about to say it won't change your situation. I can use magic but your weapons are over there. I don't mind it if you take it as me threatening you. In any case, I want you to calm down first and listen to my story."

Every time I say something Zenom who's still only sitting halfway up and Ralpa on his side flinch in reaction. I watch that while saying.

"..For the time being I don't intend to become enemies with you two. If I had those sort of intentions I wouldn't have given Ralpa advice on how to use her Unique Ability. And I wouldn't have taught her the method to train with magic as well. Though it's not definite that you'll learn magic with that method of training. At the very least I've given Ralpa knowledge. Think about that."

"It seems that Zenom has already realized but since it doesn't seem like Ralpa has completely notice yet I'll explain it. Ralpa, think about it for a bit. Would your knowledge be useful in this world?"

"..I think it's useful."

She still hasn't completely grasped the situation, shes just gotten tense over reacting to my words "prepare yourself" and different from Zenom her attitude has softened quite a bit.

"I guess so. That mustard mayonnaise that you let me eat for lunch and dinner was delicious. I'm not familiar with seasonings and I didn't think of making it myself so I didn't do anything but I think that taste is plenty to make into a business. However, it's not a conversation of that level. Ralpa, think properly. Is the knowledge that you that could be useful in this world only limited to that?"

"..Eh? After all I'm an idiot, I went to "Hatsu school" after all.."

"Hey now, it's not related to what "school" you went to... For example what about farming? No matter how you put if you've made it to "high school" then even if it's not precise you should have a reasonable amount of knowledge right? It's not a question of if you have that sort of knowledge or not. Do you get that the problem is whether or not other people think you have it?"

I asked her seriously. Since the words "school", "high school", and "Hatsudai school" aren't in this world I used Japanese for just those parts though.

"Think carefully about it. You should know various things that aren't know on Orth. How did you get your hands on mustard? You found a mustard plant right? I never even thought of something like that so I didn't even try searching for a mustard plant. If it's just at the left of mustard then it's fine. But, depending on the case you understand that it can be dangerous right?"

"..Ah..I see..I guess."

Did she understand? I continue again.

"That conversation about the airplane just before is a good example. You get it right?"

"Yeah, I understand."

"Alright listen, Zenom listen closely as well. The two of you were in an extremely dangerous situation. First understand that. Up until now was fine. You had good luck. No one has put their eyes on you yet after all. Up until now you've done quite a few jobs as adventurers right? Just think you had good luck not running into anyone like me while wandering around all over the place."

According to the information I just heard it seems that you can't so easily run into other reincarnated people so I feel it's far beyond the level of just good luck but, well it's fine.

“Zenom, it seems that you’ve somewhat realized so I think you know but the knowledge that Ralpa and I possess is considerably ahead of Orth. Putting it frankly there’s a lot of extremely dangerous things as well. Just now you said that we were reborn right. Did you hear the reason?”

“Yeah, I heard that a lot people died in an accident and the ones who died were al reborn..”

“That’s right, and then?”

“..The accident was caused by something like large carriages colliding. You guys got dragged into the conflict between Gods..and all the people who were reborn start over as babies. Retaining their memories. Each person has a different Unique Ability and they can get stronger more easily than people normally born in this world..I think was it? I didn’t really want to say it but it’s true that Ralpa talks about things that I don’t know about or things that I can’t even imagine, even the time when she started talking was considerably early. For her age I think she’s excellent in a variety of ways. From my standpoint I can’t help but believe it, were my feelings.”

“..I see.”

“According to what Ralpa said in the country she lived in the past there were no monsters and magic but a lot of people lives happily and she said it was unrelated to conflict. I couldn’t believe it but since Ralpa knew far too much about various things. There’s an expression of lying as if you saw it yourself but I quickly realized it wasn’t something like that. If I talked about the same sort of things and she would reply with the exact same thing precisely. She was even able to do calculations from the time she was born. She said she was born in that sort of world. And she also said people in that world fundamentally don’t fight and should dislike it. That everyone should be people like Ralpa..that’s why, I couldn’t help but get a bit too soft as well.”

“Sorry, please understand that I’m not criticizing you. I just wanted to confirm.”

I apologized to Zenom from my true feelings. I really don’t have any intention of criticizing him at all. Rather, it’s strange but I actually feel grateful to him for raising Ralpa, since we’re from the same country, this well even though he’s not her parent or anything.

“Let’s organize things a bit. I call the people like us that were reborn On Orth reincarnated people. And reincarnated people possess a variety of knowledge that the people of Orth still don’t know. Also, our growth is fast. This doesn’t mean we become adults sooner. It means that our stamina and strength grow faster, would be a better way of putting it. In other words it’s easier for us to get stronger as individuals. Also, we have a magic like power called a Unique Ability. Ralpa’s Spacial Understanding and my Magic Ability. Up until here you could say we’ve already surpassed the average person.”

“Eh? Wasn’t it Magic Acquisition...”

Ralpa retorted me on it. Ah, that was close~

“Yeah, rather than Acquisition I thought that it would be easier for Zenom to understand if I said Ability.”

A cold sweat is dripping in my heart. In any case it’s critical to casually let it pass.

“Hn, I guess that’s true.”

Ha....Thank god.

“And then. Next is the demerits of reincarnating. For starters the first one. Since your memories are remaining you can’t help but feel differently than the people of Orth. There’s a system of social rankings on Orth. They’re split up between noble, commoner, and slave rankings and each of them have different things that they’re allowed and not allowed. In the place that we reincarnated people were originally born it was like that in the past but that sort of stuff has long since been abolished and we’ve all become commoners. Since I’m sure Zenom has heard about stuff like that already but, well just think of it as a review. That’s why I think there’s a trend for reincarnated people to be displeased by the social ranking system itself.”

The two of them are listening attentively. It seems that their tension has softened quite a bit.

“Frankly this is dangerous. Just because you expressed your displeasure it’s not like you would suddenly be punished for it but if that reincarnated person was of the slave ranking then their owner would find it very amusing I'm sure. If they had already been heard saying clever things until then and even more so if they had said things that were helpful. If someone like that were to try saying "It's strange that I'm a slave." There's no way it would be amusing. I doubt it's something would suddenly be killed right away for but depending on the situation they could have various things added and go to the point where they feel death would be better than their situation."

Did I surprise them a bit too much? But, I need to say at least this much.

"Next is in relation to killing. Since you've probably heard various things from Ralpa already I don't think there's a problem but reincarnated people have no experience of catching their own food from the start all on their own. The reason for this is the place and period we reincarnated from I'm sure. It's true that the reincarnated people's country..Japan, even in Japan there were hunters and agriculture was done as well. But, I doubt there's any reincarnated people with those sort of experiences. Even if there was it would be at most 1 or 2 people and that's just because they were born of a farming family. In the past, they probably just helped out with their father's occupation a bit I'm sure. In regards to hunters I can assert it. There's no way. Of course, as a possibility I'm sure it's not zero but I think it's at a level we can ignore. Ralpa, what do you think about this? Let me hear your opinion."

"I guess so..I think so as well. In the first place there shouldn't have been any people that lived as hunters right?"

"I'm sure it's not as if there weren't any at all but going off that time and that place then it's difficult to imagine there were any. That's why it's difficult to think that there were any people who had experience killing something. Of course, it might not be so strange for something small like bugs, or a dog or cat. If it's at the level of a chicken then it's also possible. But it's just at that level. I doubt there's anyone that's killed a larger animal than a pig. Obviously it's the same for a human or a living create with limbs like a human as well. It wouldn't be strange for someone with experience in committing murder but considering the population of that town then I think it's at a level that you can ignore it as well. In Japan the killing of large animals is almost always done by humans who specialize in that in certain facilities. And murder is harshly judged. In other words, reincarnated people aren't used to using their bodies to fight things and fundamentally have feelings of aversion to killing anything."

The two of them are quietly listening.

"That's why even if they possess the qualities to become stronger they aren't making use of that or it can be thought that they're preventing themselves from making use of it. Ah, I don't intended to say Ralpa is different. Rather, I think you're pretty amazing. Probably, if all of the reincarnated gathered here and fought, I think you would come out pretty high in the rankings? I think it's okay for you to be proud that you've trained yourself that much. Since even in Japan there are techniques that have been passed down for using your body to fight so I think there's plenty of people who can damage their opponent but I wonder about people who can go as far as taking life? I don't think even half would be able to let alone finishing off a weakened opponent who's begging for their life I don't think there's very many. It's weird putting it this way but if you've been an adventurer for that long then you must have taken on people as opponents as well right?"

The atmosphere of the two suddenly changed.

"Of course I have. I've even killed."

Ralpa said that.

"Yeah, I'm sure that's the case. I've killed people as well. But, could you accept it as something that couldn't be helped? Or do you still regret it?"

"I guess so. I don't regret it. It couldn't be helped."

"Yeah. However, what about the first time you did it? I got a bit sad after I killed someone. Even if I understand the logic but it was more like my feelings weren't able to accept it..I can't go back any longer or that sort of weird feeling. I've already accepted it so I'm fine now though."

"It was the same for me as well. I think it was close. I thought that the first time I killed a goblin. I couldn't see it as anything other than a person."

Ah, that's right. I thought goblins were people at first as well. I thought they were like barbarians or primeval people. That's why I unconditionally thought Farne was cool when he protected me from a goblin for the first time. He protected Mill and I with risking his body and even going to the point of sinning is what I thought. It's not like goblins are people though, oh, though that feeling hasn't changed at all even after understanding that they aren't thought to be people. I know that goblins are people as well. They come up using Identify as Small Ogre People race after all. They probably show up like that under Status Open as well.

It's the same as Elf, dwarf, and human race. Since I looked up to that Farne I was able to kill the man spy in order to protect Myun as well. I think that Farne's appearance at that time was probably the origin for my life on Orth.

I got lost in my thoughts a bit there.

"Yeah. That's right. That's why I think reincarnated people will largely be split into two groups. The first is people who continue to maintain their values to some extent from their life before reincarnating. They'll probably try to live separating themselves from conflict. It might be fine to think that this group won't fundamentally cause any major problem. The other group is people who accept it like Ralpha and I. If they become adventurers like us then it's fine. I'm sure they'll have become reasonably strong. However, depending on their situation after reincarnated they may not be able to become adventurers, I don't know how people like that would be able to find chances to fight. Depending on the situation they might have even been born as high rank nobles close to lords. The problem is people like that. They should probably realize that their knowledge is far above the people of Orth shortly after being born. And by thinking that they themselves have no need to fight depending on the case it's possible things could become bad. They're born with a lot of subordinates and even have authority after all. And they know that reincarnated people are useful as well. If they were to inherit the family and become able to do whatever they want, the first thing they would do is.."

Their eyes suddenly widened.

"Hunting reincarnated people, huh?"

Zenom sighs while saying it.

"Yeah, that's right. For example think about if they were born as the son or daughter of the King of Rombert. Since they don't know the words at first and they don't know the situation I'm sure they would be patient. But, assuming they were originally a baby then they should have been a reasonable age already. In addition to that they'll learn the words quickly thanks to the soft brain of a child. Up until here you understand just from Ralpa right? And, just imagine if that person realized they were born in an extremely high class family. Simultaneously they also realize that their knowledge is far beyond that of Orth. They'll gradually come to understand things about Orth. There's wars almost every year and even monsters. There's magic as well. There's a system of social rankings being maintained and they hold immense authority over that close to the top. They'll gradually understand things like that. And, at some point, just like us they'll meet God. They'll be taught that there are other reincarnated people like them and they all have a Unique Ability. Ralpa. Up until here what would you do if you were born as a princess of Rombert?"

It seems that Ralpa is still shocked by Zenom's words from just now but opened her mouth.

"If it was me then..Yeah, I think I might start with reforming the kingdom. Use a lot of people and remake the town, depending on the circumstances prohibit slaves.."

"Do you really think so?"

I stare at Ralpa's eyes while saying it.

"Eh? Yeah. I think I would probably do something like that. I think I would try to make it into a country which can live without war. Wouldn't try to do things helpful for that sake?"

"..Well it's fine. What about after that?"

"Eh? After that? But I think there would be a lot of things to do so...wouldn't I need to keep doing that forever?"

Since it seems she was a high school student in her past life. After that she's been an adventurer since childhood so I guess she's never thought about things like this.

"Alright, I'll digress a bit but it's fine. You understand that there's no way they would listen your words as a baby right? That's why it should take an age of at least 5 or 6 years old I'm sure. Once they reach that age they might have an attendant as well. Ralpa would make a plan until around that age. And, one day, you start saying organizing town blocks or water supply. Let's saying you successfully manage to convince them. You're a princess after all. As long as you don't say anything too unreasonable I'm sure they would do it for you. I'm sure you would start making requests starting from small things as well. And that goes well. The next one went reasonably well too. Starting from the King your assessment is high for everyone. Since you've done it several times you think it's about a good time so you try saying we should prohibit slavery. What would the people around you think?"

"Wouldn't they agree with me? I would have gotten results up until then after all."

"I wonder about that? Slaves are an asset. Do you think nobles would obey the demand to release them with no compensation? Well, it's fine if you were to start from just the royalty as well. Since even the royalty possess a lot of slaves. Let's assume the royalty releases their slaves. There's a lot of servant slaves and combat slaves in the army. You've suddenly made them into Free People. You say you'll give them wages and tell them to pay taxes. Up until now it was fine if you just looked after their daily necessities. What would happen?"

Ralpa opened here eyes wide.

"Ah, I think it would cost money."

"That's right, would that money naturally appear from nowhere? There's no way that's the case right? In that case then while it would be a bit of an inconvenience you would reduce the number of people you employ I'm sure. Then what would happen to the ex-slaves that fell through? Would you use them as construction laborers? What if it was women that fell through? If it was the elderly? No one might hire them. In that case I'm sure the ex-slaves would think of selling themselves as slaves since they can't make a living."

"..Yeah."

Ralpa faced down.

"See, if you think about it a bit you can quickly understand. There's no easy way to do something about a system of social rankings. Just now was too extreme though.

But it shouldn't be all that mistaken for a large current. And next. Just like through your various reforms the Kingdom of Rombert has become wealthy. It's gotten to the point where it doesn't even need it so it can just give something like the Dirt Plains to Devas. The need for war has disappeared. Happily ever after. Do you think that will be the case? Would the Kingdom of Devas be satisfied with just the Dirt Plains?"

"I don't think, it would."

"Yeah, I'm sure that's the case. After making some base villages in the Dirt Plains I'm sure they would start making passes on the Kingdom of Rombert that's gotten so wealthy. Even Devas wants to become wealthy."

Ralpha raises her head.

"I understand. I would probably do some amount of reforms but in order to prevent being invaded some amount of protection is necessary. It's necessary to make the army bigger as well. Otherwise making some sort of weapon that can you can use to protect even with a small number of people."

"Well I'm sure that'd be about it. But can you do all of that yourself?"

"It's impossible. I would need people I can trust..I might gather reincarnated people together. Since I know they have knowledge and their Unique Abilities might be useful as well. Yeah, I understand what Al was trying to say. If it comes to that then I'm sure they'll probably try to offer employment with good conditions at first but they might quickly start gathering right and left without a care. And they might even try to force them to work."

Well I guess I'll say it's the correct answer. Though she's skipped over a considerable amount but it seems she's understood the flow it. Since I lead her into arriving at this sort of conclusion after all.

"That's the case. Were you able to understand what I was worrying about?"

The two of them nod in agreement.

"Alright, then let's return to the discussion. Since we've concluded the concerns let's move on to the next topic. About how much do the two of you earn in one year?”

“Huh? Eh? Why?”

Ralpha says that. Zenom is confused as well.

“Nn..About 4,000,000 Z between the two of us I think. We pay the 10% tax from there so it’s probably a bit less though.”

Zenom responded to me. It’s quite a bit more than I imagined.

I say while smiling.

“I see, I understand now. Then, I’ll pay 400,000 Z per month. In one year it’s 4,800,000 Z. Just like Ralpha just said I’ll start off by offering good conditions.

I’ll throw in bonuses in addition depending on work done in special cases. Ah, for starters we’ll try going to the dungeon Baldukk.”

The two of them exchanged glances.

Side Story 11: In the case of Sema Yousuke (Age 21 at time of accident)

I was on a date with my girlfriend who I've been dating for close to one year. Today is valentine's day and already I received chocolate this morning. After this we're going to watch a movie in Shinjuku and then I have reservations for a slightly good restaurant that we're going to have dinner at. Our conversation picks up as we talk about the movie we're going to see today. It has good ratings overall and is said to be a masterpiece.

It's a movie that both of us have been looking forward to. There's no way we would run out of conversation. My girlfriend who is smiling at me was chosen as Miss Campus at the school festival last year. Even though close to a year has passed I still can't believe a girl as cute as this is my girlfriend. Since we were both born in the same prefecture and we both went to the same school I had talked to her a reasonable amount but when I was gathering together my very little courage to confess to her it was to the point where I had already made preparations to go drinking with a friend to comfort me before-hand.

I'll probably never forget the look on my friends face when I showed up with her at that place. Even I thought it was impossible after all. It couldn't compare to how surprised they were. It was the first time since I was born that I've had enough alcohol to exhaust the store and gotten so drunk that my memories disappeared. When I woke up in the middle of the night and was throwing up in the toilet I realized for the first time that I had gotten an OK for my confession.

I'm definitely not someone who stands out at my college and the circle I'm a member of is even a plain culture type one. Even then I like her and I couldn't give up spending my days hesitating over it. After consulting with my friends I finally decided to confess to her in abandonment with the resolve to be crushed.

After I started dating her my world spread out and I felt like colors started to become more vivid. Almost as if everything in the world was offering us it's blessing and without reason I would become happy. I made progress with my studies and while it wasn't a major company I was able to receive an unofficial offer from a decent company. Everything is good. I felt happy. Up until that moment.

I guess this is what they say when you don't feel like doing anything. After losing her I spent countless months like a shell. I've somehow gotten a grasp on my situation but just with her not being around my heart is disturbed and I end up crying in a loud voice. I'm crying or sleeping or sucking my mothers breasts. I'm not doing anything but one of those.

Naming ceremony? Ah, I have the feeling I did it but it doesn't matter at all to me when I'm at the bottom of despair.

After a few years had passed and I was almost ready to give up. One day after I finished swinging the sword without thinking all day my tired body fell over into the bed and I fell asleep. I met God. After listening to various things I was shocked but these words flashed through my mind like a divine revelation.

"About Souma Asuka? Yeah, she's reincarnated just like you. It would be good if you can meet her."

I felt like the world was filled with color again. I'm still a child and I have no stamina. There's monsters wandering around in this world. Even if I wander around aimlessly search it's easy to imagine that I would run out of strength on the way. My parents and siblings were happy that I had started to train with the sword so enthusiastically but I didn't care about that stuff at all. I started training with the sword like a crisis was drawing near.

Thinking it might be useful I also practiced using the Unique Ability I heard about from God. Until then I hadn't used Status Open on myself so I didn't notice it. In the first place, Status Open isn't something you use on yourself that often so I didn't really pay attention to it.

Although, I doubt that my Unique Ability "Scale" will be useful in searching for her so only appropriately training it. It's an ability where as the level goes up I can separate solids and liquids as I please. At first I only was able to figure out the point to evenly split up things like string and wood but eventually I was able to figure out how to unevenly divide them and I became able to divide things like cotton. Furthermore after leveling the ability up even more I became able to cut bread up into pieces that have the exact same volume. And I became able to split up fine things like wheat based on their weight. It might seem random at first sight cutting and tearing it but I'm probably the only one who can truly accurately split them up.

I somehow understand that only I'm able to divide things up precisely almost as if I were using a ruler or scale. However, I quickly realized it wasn't very useful. It doesn't particularly seem like something that will help in my search for Asuka. If I overuse it then I start to feel tired or hungry so it's not a good thing. Well, after eating dinner and before I go to sleep training it a bit is plenty. There's a lot of days where it's too much trouble and I don't do it as well.

At first it was evenly dividing by length, next it was dividing unevenly. It's fine for there to be several denominators but there's only one numerator. Next was even division by area, after that was uneven division, after that was even division by volume, I think you already get it. Incidentally, I do trained using wheat after that. After that was liquid. Right now I've just become able to evenly divide liquids. I need a container though. I'm sure next I'll be able to unevenly divide liquids. In addition I'll also say I can also do comparisons. I don't know what kind of logic is behind it but I can know things like how much of the weight of wheat that's inside of this box is equal to how much of a fraction of the weight of this squared lumber. Only when it comes to these comparisons is both the denominator and numerator not fixed to one.

More importantly than that, training my body and cultivating my stamina so I can endure a long journey is far more important. And I'm sure the Special Skill, Infrared Vision, that I was born with is a lot more useful than "Scale". There's no level to the skill Infrared Vision. Since it seems that the distance you can make vision is dependent on the growth of your body I'm putting it aside since it doesn't need training as well.

obviously there's some impatience. While I'm sitting around here doing nothing she might die. She might get attacked by monsters while waiting for me. If she was born in the slave ranking then she might be forced to do severe labor. I don't want to think about it but she was that cute. She could even be meeting a worse fate...

No, worrying about it right now won't change anything. In any case, I need to be able to save her no matter what kind of situation she's in. At the very least I know that at the point I met God when I was 8 years old she was definitely alive and healthy. Though that is unless God was lying to me.

Even if I'm finally able to meet her if I can't save her because of my own lack of ability then it's meaningless. Rather, I could end up causing Asuka to suffer for the portion she had expectations for me. There's no other choice than to do everything I can. There's not even a single second to be playing with kids the same age as me.

I don't know where she is but I'll definitely find and save her. No, she might not need saving but I'll meet Asuka and this time marry her.

Several more years passed. I'm already 13 years old. I understand that I've trained myself a decent amount. My skill with the sword should have gone to a considerably good level.

I'm going to tell my family in Orth what I had been planning for a while that I'm going to become an adventurer. Since I'm the third son of a regional Viscount, I think my wish will be granted without problem. I'm very grateful to my parents who raised and trained me to the point where I can't repay them. However, I have something important to me. I feel sorry but I think I'll work together with my older brother to make the house bigger after I bring back Asuka.

One day, it was the first time but I was able to defeat my second brother. As far as I can tell my second brother is considerably strong. I was finally able to come this far. It was long but I'm sure I can already protect myself plenty. I still haven't experienced live combat using a real sword but while I just became an adult I have enough skill that I was able to defeat that second brother. My oldest brother who has entered the knight group I'm sure I'm still a step below but it's already plenty.

Today, I'm going to get permission from my parents and leave on my journey to search. I'm going to leave Yogutte village of Count Rozenhaim's territory. I received a single long sword, some durable leather armor, and 2,000,000 zeni in cash from my father. This rucksack with a variety of luggage is my entire fortune.

I, Sema Yousuke, also known as the Elf warrior Tolkeris Kalstalan, am on my way.

Just wait for me, Asuka. I'll definitely find you.

Side Story 12: In the case of Souma Asuka (Age 21 at time of accident)

When I gave You-chan the chocolate I made myself he was extremely happy. It was worth putting all the effort into making it. As a matter of fact it was my first time making chocolate myself. There was a boy I dated for a bit in high-school but we separated before Valentine's day. I didn't hate him but he tried to kiss me when we hadn't even dated for 3 months yet so I got scared.

Now I know that was normal. After 3 months have passed it's even possible for more than that to have developed. However, since I was still a child that didn't know how the world works at that time I couldn't help but be afraid of him drawing near me. I think I did something bad to him but there's no helping it at this point.

I somehow was able to enter a university in Tokyo and started living alone which I had always admired. There's a lot of interesting things at college and time passed so fast it was no comparison up until now. I met You-chan who was born in the same prefecture as me in college. I wasn't particularly conscious of him at first but eventually I realized that You-chan likes me. I knew he was looking at me while trying to act normal during the times in the school cafeteria and when I was writing a report at the library on campus and I return home he always gave me gifts. Since his home town is close to mine a lot of the desserts were ones I was familiar with though. However, I wasn't particular conscious of him.

Right before I was about to advance to my third year You-chan confessed to me. Up until then I had been dragging along my broken heart since high-school so even if someone confessed to me I wouldn't go out with anyone but the way he was so frantic, stammering as he gave it his best in confessing to me I suddenly thought, "I'll try dating this person." I don't know why I felt something like that but I didn't regret it at all.

Just from a glance he's a normal person. He's not particularly good or cool looking. It's even suspicious if he's paying attention to his clothes. But, he's always wearing clean looking clothes and if you look closely then his face isn't all that bad. At least to me. It's not like I'm in love with his appearance after all. The conversations with him are interesting and he casually checks the movies that I might like. And when I get stuck on the report I'm writing he discusses it together with me. We have the same interests in music and comedians. It's also a high point that he's always paying attention to me.

I thought I would definitely end up marrying him just like this. Since we both happily received unofficial offers from a company in the metro area. But, I couldn't even dream that something like that would happen. We went out together to enjoy ourselves that day. We didn't go out to meet this sort of fate.

I was surprised at the time of my naming ceremony. I was amazed. I was shocked. I thought I would fall over. It's magic. I've been making use of the fact that I was a baby until now and wasting time. It's not like I didn't have any thoughts about the fact that I was reborn but since I was a baby I didn't particularly think of doing anything.

After my naming ceremony I devoted myself to trying to gather information on Orth. I wonder if it's because I heard English? No, that's wrong. It's because I heard English itself. I heard some amount of English words and nouns. However, since there's magic. And I was moved by the fact that there was English included in that.

Since it's still true that I'm a baby it would be unnatural if I were to start talking in a rush. I started living listening carefully with my ears held high and learning the words within myself. It's not a matter of expression that I had my ears held high. Since I'm a Rabbit-person Bunnyman I was born with some splendid ears. Rabbit-people are different from normal humans, they have a pair of ears like a rabbit in an area a bit of where ears normally are. Normally they're just drooping down in the back but when they're standing high they stick completely up on end. It's small and round but I have a tail as well. There's light fur growing between my hair and tail on my back as well. Other than that no matter how you look at it we look like normal humans though.

In any case, I want to try out my Unique Ability that I found out about thanks to Status Open. However, I don't think I'll even be able to test my Unique Ability until I get a bit older. It's called "Shooting Intuition" after all. Since it's called shooting I wonder if it's useful when firing guns or something? By the way, even when I try throwing things nothing changed at all. I guess it can't be helped because these aren't actually projectiles or throwing. In the first place I don't even know how to use my Unique Ability. I have another Special Skill called "Super Hearing" as well but I can use this whenever just by concentrating on my ears and trying to pick up sounds.

I have the feeling that I can hear the surrounding sounds better than normally when I'm concentrating and straining my ears. Even if I use it there's nothing that particularly changes but maintaining my concentration isn't easy. As far as I've heard listening to the conversations of my older brother, older sister, and parents this "Super Hearing" is a Special Skill that Rabbit-people are born with and Rabbit-people can use it whenever and however much they want it seems. Also, unlike the skill for magic there's no level for this skill. I see, there's skills with levels as well. I know at this point it's weird to be surprised by level but along with Status Open it's somehow a world like a game.

Just before I turned five years old I pleaded with my parents and had them make me a very small toy bow. Even with my small body it doesn't look like anything more than a toy. But, shooting with this I think I'll be able to use my unique ability. I had that sort of feeling.

I try firing a small tree branch. It doesn't even fly 2 m. And since it's a randomly made bow it's hard to even predict where it will fly. Even if my body is small and weak I feel like it'll break if I try to pull it with all my strength as well. I try pulling on the strings of the bow using a tree branch as an arrow and consciously try using "Shooting Intuition" while letting go of the strings. It didn't go to the place I was aiming. And I fell asleep.

After that I tried repeating shooting with the toy bow several times and I was able to understand the reason I was reborn in this world. Right, I met God. It was a short interview time of about 5 minutes but I was able learn about quite a bit. And above all I was able to find out that You-chan was reborn in this world as well.

And, I found out for sure that this isn't Earth. I also heard that "Shooting Intuition” was one of the abilities that the people reincarnated in this world was given. I need to keep this a secret. I might be envied.

Incidentally, I also heard that some of the Unique Abilities given to other people are “Identify”, “Resistance (Poison)”, and “Scale”. Come to think of it there’s also something called “Predictable Evasion” it seems. I wonder if it’s a pair with my shooting? I didn’t have enough time so I couldn’t hear them all and I forgot about a bunch of them but no matter how I think about it my Unique Ability matches my goals more than things like “Identify” and “scale”.

By the way, about the Unique Ability “Shooting Intuition” I was able to understand how it works after using it a number of times. “Shooting Intuition” is an ability that raises my skill. Even if I use it when my skill is low it doesn’t have much effect at all. In other words, I can’t just rely on the ability “Shooting Intuition” but I need to raise my own skill as well. I feel like the higher level the “Shooting Intuition” ability is the higher it will raise it as well. However, in order to make use of this ability I need to practice shooting. I got absorbed in leveling up my Unique Ability for close to two months and was able to raise it to the highest level but it should be fine if I only start using the Unique Ability in training after that.

After all, I’m going to get strong using this and go searching for You-chan.

While everyone else is training with the sword and spear I was immersing myself in practicing the bow. Of course, I didn’t just focus on the bow but I also learned the sword. Since a bow is powerless once you run out of arrows. No, to be more accurate it’s not powerless. In the past, I read about it in some sort of book. There was a weapon where there was the tip of a spear on top of the bow. However, a bow in order to be used as a spear as well required a considerably high strength. I doubt as a woman I would be able to pull the strings on a bow as powerful as that. That’s why I considered the sword necessary as well and did the bare minimum of training with it. Even if it’s just swinging I can do that with the sword after it gets dark out after all. I make up for the time I spend practicing with the bow in the day at night.

And I become 10 years and then 11 years old. There's already no hunter in the village that can use the bow better than I can. It's true that with how physically weak I am I can't shoot the arrows very far. The farthest I can shoot a target made with a wooden board with enough power to penetrate through is 13m — 14m. However, if it's that distance then I can run while hitting a target that's not moving. Of course I can't do something so skillful as shooting through the center of it but I can make sure it hits somewhere on a board that's 30 cm in every direction. Probably, if I'm in a situation where I can calmly aim without moving then I should be able to hit moving targets as well.

I want to test my skills. I want to go along with the hunters in the village as they hunt. I want to try shooting a white hair deer or a bird flying in the sky.

However, my parents keep saying it's dangerous and won't let me go hunting. I was going to complain but it's true I'm still a child. There's not just prey in the forest but dangerous monsters wandering around as well. I can accept that it's still too soon for me.

It can't be helped so there's no other choice than to start doing training using "Shooting Intuition" which I had sealed up until now. I try doing it while remembering the period in the past where I got engrossed in using it for a while. My Unique Ability's level is 9 the {Max} and after that I've practiced for several years without using it. However, there was no need to worry. Using just the feeling I thought I was able to use the Unique Ability "Shooting Intuition". I was able to fire off more than 60 arrows before I was about to faint. As expected I still can't hit the center of the target unless it's a fluke but even if I switch out the 30 cm board with a 5 cm one I can still hit it every time.

It's true that this unique ability is raising my skill. From now on whenever I practice with the bow I'll also practice my unique ability together with it. My "Shooting Intuition" is already the maximum level since way back but I don't think it's pointless to practicing using it within the range of when I start to get tired.

Around the time I passed 13 years old I was greatly troubled by something. Along with the growth of my body my breasts have gotten big as well. Even though I'm still only 13 years old my breasts already feel bigger than my breasts in my past life. It seems that this is a characteristic that's common in female Rabbit-people. Come to think of it mother has good shaped big breasts as well.

However, this chest gets in the way of pulling the string on my bow. If I'm not careful then the string I let go of with my right hand will hit my right breast. Ah, come to think of it in my past life we always used a leather or plastic made protector for our chests in archery. I guess this is the reason why. At the same time I also remember a book I read in my past life. It seems there was a bow fighter in a group of female warriors called the Amazons that cut off their right breast.

I wonder what I should do... It seems like my breasts will still get bigger. Even if I try to stop it by wearing a cloth tied around them like right now as far as I can tell from my mother and older sister this will eventually reach a limit. Even if I make a chest protector I'll quickly outgrow the size. However, I don't have the courage to cut off one of my breasts. But, just like it will become hard to use the bow. But...

In the end I was able to build up the courage and I just made a breastplate. I used a soft but durable piece of leather to protect my right breast. If I outgrow the size then the money I've used will end up being wasted but there's no other choice than to remake it. But, I wonder if this is really okay? I'm deceiving myself. The fact that it's difficult to use the bow means that my fighting power has decreased. It means that I might die before meeting You-chan. Doesn't that make it pointless either way? But, no matter how much I try I can't muster up the courage. I can probably endure the pain. If I ask the healer in the village then I'm sure they would heal me right away so I know I wouldn't die.

What I'm really scared of is.. if I might be hated by You-chan for only having one breast. The fact that You-chan might be saddened by the fact that I only have one breast. No, I'm sure if it's You-chan then he would say he doesn't mind it. But, I don't like it. After all, if I give birth to twins then I'll be troubled.

I finally turned 14 years old.

I've been telling my parents that I'm going to become an adventurer for some time. My parents didn't particularly oppose it. My father who is the lord of a village that's been around for quite a while inherited the nobility of sub-baron from my grandfather last year. It seems they went to the lord of this territory Duke Stohlz house in order to elevate fathers noble rank. Up until then grandfather was a sub-Baron and father was a viscount. Now father is a sub-Baron and older brother is a viscount. Even a second daughter like me is still a member of a sub-Baron household but it's faster counting my right to succession from the bottom and I had no intention of inheriting the house from the start.

I have something that I have to do.

Since I definitely have something that I have to do.

I can't be tied down to the house.

According to God, among the people who reincarnated I was one of the ones in the Southeast it seems. Then for the time being I should head to the Northwest, in other words, I should head to the neighboring Kingdom of Rombert. I have reasoning behind it. I don't know the name or place that You-chan has reincarnated to but I know he would definitely search for me. Since it's that person I'm sure he would try to find me in a bit of a hurry as well. But, just like I don't know any of his information I'm sure he wouldn't know my name or location as well. And in this world of Orth it's dangerous to try traveling before gaining some strength. In other words, I think he'll depart on a journey at soonest around the time he becomes an adult (you become an adult at 15 years old in this world).

Depending on what his Unique Ability is it could be difficult to protect him self. That's why I'm sure he'll endure until his body finishes growing around the time he becomes an adult. And I know we won't be able to meet so easily just wandering around at random. Normally, adventurers wander around like handymen doing whatever job that people are requesting to be and by completing those jobs they get receive money. Money should be necessary along the way as well. Unless he was born in the house of a rich person he'll definitely need to earn money somewhere.

I've already asked mother and father what the best place for an adventurer to earn money is. There's one in the Kingdom of Devas that I was born in as well but it seems that place is a dungeon. However, the dungeon in Devas is much further in the south. Then, in that case since I was born along the Southeast border of victims of the accident that were reincarnated and the Dungeon of Benkelish which is much further south than this village of Rarail that would make it outside of the range.

There's a dungeon called Baldukk in the Kingdom of Rombert and it seems to be in the Northwest direction from here. It seems they don't know how far away it is but that's probably the right answer. I'll start heading towards Baldukk now. And I'll wait for You-chan who will definitely come.

The next day after my 14th birthday I left my home town.

All I asked for was a bow, a single sword, and my skill. As a farewell gift I was given some durable clothes and a decent amount of money, while holding nothing but my necessities I, the Rabbit-people warrior, Bernadett Koloil, take my first steps towards shortening the distance to my precious person.

Several days after I had left the village, I passed the border and entered the Kingdom of Rombert. I had imagined that there would be something like a barrier along the border but just as I heard from my parents there was no shape or sign of a barrier. Since I've always heard that further west in the Dirt Plains there's always conflicts going on at the border, I had thought that there was high probability they would be cautious so I started taking a roundabout path and was careful so no one could find but it was anticlimactic.

I guess it's true, if you think about it, it's completely unreasonable for them to be cautious of the entire border line. And since a Rabbit-person like me has strong legs I can walk without much trouble through the mountains with no roads. Since I've spent my entire life since I was born barefoot I don't need shoes either.

I would be happy if I had them though.

According to the conversation I heard when I visited a village on the Kingdom of Devas size two days ago, the border is vague and the Kingdom of Rombert is to the north of that village but it seems that the mountains are roughly the border between. That's why after passing the ridge this should already be the Kingdom of Rombert. Even if I say mountain range the highest one seems to be at most 1000 m or so. I was glad I challenged it since it was like a slightly bigger Mount Takao.

Since the preserved food I prepared will last another week or so I have plenty to make it to the village I can see below. No, there's no problem with taking extra caution so I'll aim for the next village ahead instead. I'm sure if I go close to it there will be a road after all...

However, of the 30 arrows I had prepared there's already only 10 left. It's not like I can always recover them. I'm sure that will be the case from here on out as well. If I can't replenish them somewhere pretty soon things will get difficult. I wonder if it would be better to see if I can replenish them at the hunter's house in that village? Or would it be better to take extra caution and hold out until the next village?

I hesitated but in the end I decided to go without resupplying until the next village.

Year 7442, Month 5, Day 1

It's been two and a half months since I left Rarail village, I've continued walking without rest and finally arrived at the town of Baldukk. I'm not too sure but since it feels like the number of monsters I've encountered since I entered the Kingdom of Rombert has decreased, thanks to that there were some days I was able to cover a considerable amount of distance and able to arrive here this fast. In any case, I'll settle down in this town and wait for You-chan as an adventurer.

I'll wait any number of years until You-chan can find me. I still have close to 1,000,000 zeni remaining. For the time being, I'll find a cheap inn, buy some hot water for the first time in a while and wipe my body down. After I was refreshed I started to feel hungry so I decided to go out for a bit. There might be some food more delicious than Devas around here. I remember the various stalls I passed by on my way to the inn and put on my dirty clothes again to head out. I want a change of clothes already as well.

Side Story 13: In the case of ???

I've been aware of myself since the time I was born. Strangely, the language I would think in when I was first born is different from the language used in this world. I brag about the fact that my ability to think was adult-level from the moment I was born but just the same as an average child I didn't know what everyone was saying so other than not knowing common sense, my strange language, and thinking ability there was nothing particularly different. If I had to say something it would be that my hair and eyes are black but it's not as if there aren't any others that have one or the other as black. Though the only one with both of them black is me. In addition it seems that my face doesn't look cool. Isn't cool? What is this word? Yeah, I guess it's fine. I'll say it in a different way. I'm quite ugly.

Also, the shape of my body is slightly different from everyone else. Let alone just the men, the women thin, tightened bodies and there's a lot of muscular characteristics but no matter how much I train my body it seems it's difficult for me to become muscular with my constitution, and that's another reason why I'm teased by everyone as "ugly". Though I'm not particularly inferior to them in physical ability because of that. Just in case but I'll supplement that. On the contrary, I'm one of the ones among my age bracket that has quite high physical abilities. I'll raise the reasons later.

The city I was born and raised is called Ellehei. This city is in the side of a high mountain called Kinlu. I said it's a city but at the same time it's a single country. The name of the country is Lail. The King is a Queen. They say her name is Lilus. It's far too fearsome that I haven't directly seen her though. I was born in a middle-class family of this country. I have a sickly older brother above me and below I had a set of twins that were my younger and brother but unfortunately they both died from illness when they were infants. Even though he's sickly my older brother is wise so if he grows up he should be able to inherit the family. It's fine if I become my older brothers hands and legs and help support the house.

Also, it seems that it's unusual Orth but a characteristic of our country Lail is that it's composed of a single race. What is normally called Dark Spirit-People {Dark Elf}. Our skin is a deep purple that's close to black and in reverse the areas around our lips, nipples, genitals, and anus are a lighter pigment than the color of skin of the people on the surface. Since my skin color isn't very dark as well this also adds to me being ugly. Our eyes are the same as elves in that they're vaguely almond-shaped but when it comes to the color of our eyes there's dark and light but they're mostly purple. The most common is lavender color. Also, if you were to say it, light pigment hair is more common. Right white hair and extremely light purple hair that looks to be white. Of course, it's not like there's no red or green hair at all.

Furthermore, the race of Dyulo's have a Special Skill called Infrared Vision. This is not just the ability for making your eyes be able to see visible light but by wishing for it you can see infrared rays as well. Putting it simply you can visually perceive temperatures. {Thermography}? It sudden floated into my head. What is it? Well it doesn't matter. There's one more as well called {Inclination Sensing}. With this ability you can detect to what degree the path you're walking on is slanted. You're able to know if you're going up or going down. I forgot to mention it but our country of Lail is literally inside of a mountain (Inside of Kinlu mountain or rather underground? there's tunnels dug out to it) so if you don't have these two abilities it's difficult to live in our country Lail. Of course the lighting tool that uses magic stones is all over the place including individual housing but the area which that lightning can't reach is far larger.

By the way, the industry of our country Lail is a bit unique. Just according to stories I've heard but it seems that the countries on the surface are centered around agriculture and producing a plant called wheat. Our country Lail does agriculture as well but that's growing fungi so it's centered around harvesting. That's why excluding meats there's always mushrooms on the dinner table. There's a large variety of types of mushrooms but of course we don't cultivate ones with poison. No, we mostly don't cultivate them.

There's a variety of edible mushrooms that we cultivate but there's a variety of names that appeared in my head from the start for those types of mushrooms. However, it's in that weird language. At the very least the names differ from the usual pronunciation I hear from the names of the mushrooms.

The delicious mushroom that everyone calls Aberuji, of course, I call it Aberuji as well but in my head, “this is a real Shimeji” some weird knowledge is taught to me.

Since it’s been like this since I was born so I realized that I was an abnormal baby considerably soon..It’s truly lucky that I was able to realize it a few months after I was born. Thanks to that I just was intelligent, wise for my age, and had good physical abilities “excellent in various ways but still ugly like a human” thought of in a way only such as that.

My story digressed a bit there. I’ll correct it. That’s right, it’s about the industry of our country Lail. We’re not just cultivating fungi but we also have livestock for meat. That area isn’t all that different from the other countries on the surface. However, what fundamentally differs in our country from others is that we don’t have any interest in acquiring any more land than we already possess. I heard that it’s normal for countries to fight over the ownership of land for the sake of agriculture and raising livestock. No, this is a bad way of putting it. For the time being, we have no ambition for more territory. At the very least the conference of elders in our country Lail is saying that so I’m sure it’s true. They’re also saying that when the time comes we’ll move into the surface and make our country large as well. Though this is still far in the future so it doesn’t matter though.

In any case, the cultivation of mushrooms and the raising of livestock is our primary industries. However the official ones. Our hidden industry is assassination. As long as they’ll pay money we’ll take jobs from anyone and we’ll definitely assassinate anyone. Without leaving any evidence that we assassinated them. Oh~ I guess this is saying too much. Without letting the one who requested the job be known. Obviously there are cases where it fails and the assassin is captured as well. In those cases in order to protect from exposing the clients information we end up taking our own lives. Of course if we can escape then we do that though. Suicide is really the final method. In any case, we make use of sword and magic to accomplish the assassination job. That’s why the members who are given assassination jobs outside of the country and selected from those who can always use magic.

Eh? If your country can protect secrets that well then you want to request a job from us as well? Of course, if you use the appropriate route to properly pay the Zeni then without problem your job will be accepted as well I'm sure. In order to request a job from our country Lail you have to make the request at one of our institution's facilities in each of the surrounding countries. It's also fine to make the request of one of the people who has the job of directly coming to the entrance of Ellehei in our country of Lail as well. I'm sure you won't be allowed into Ellehei but they should receive the job. However, you must always pay a lump sum in advance, furthermore, depending on the target it can be quite expensive.

That's why we rarely do assassination jobs. It's on the good end if we do a couple of them per year. Our country itself isn't all that big after all and the population is only about 3,000 — 4,000 people, that's why we're almost entirely self-sufficient with just the industries within the country. That's why the hidden industry is just a subsidiary method of gaining foreign currency. After that we also sell various secret medicines made from dried mushrooms to the various countries in the vicinity for earning foreign currency. Otherwise, it's not as if we are exporting people as mercenaries as well. They also call it combat slaves though.

Since just like this we're doing jobs in secret, I think that the reputation of us Dyulo, in other words dark elves isn't very good among the countries on the surface. However, since they also know that not everyone is an assassin so it seems that we don't just suddenly have swords pointed at us. Somehow, only just somehow but I think that the people of the surface a bit too softhearted. They're far too one-track. I don't know if it would be better to say optimistic? I don't really know for sure but I can't help but feel it's unnatural.

I'm sorry to say it in the middle but our country Lail has a somewhat unique political structure. Like I just below the Queen that is her highness Lilus there's a council of elders made up of 10 people. Every year one of these elders is changed. There are about 20 families in our country Lail that can become members of the council and they are rotated in turns. All of the decisions of the country are decided by this council of elders. It's said that the her highness the Queen is a living god that hasn't shown herself in several hundred years. {Idol}? Another word I don't understand well popped up in my head. According to the elders when time has become full her highness the Queen will show herself and lead us Dark Elves into a war to create a paradise on the surface for us it seems. Among us this is called the Royal Road Paradise Construction Plan*.

It's only obvious but we revere her highness the Queen as a living God so other than people that descend(to be correct it's rise but the entrance and exit to Ellehei is only midway up Mount Kinlu so we express it like this. As a matter of fact there are various other secret entrances and exits but that doesn't matter) to the surface for jobs the naming ceremony isn't performed. Since we don't have a temple within our country. When it's necessary for us to leave to an outside country we go to a town in either the Kingdom of Rombert, Kingdom of Kanbitt, or Kingdom of Devas to have the naming ceremony performed for us. That's why the only people who's name can be seen with Status Open is limited to adults and people who are close to becoming adults. Of course, it's not everyone.

Among the people like this that can receive the naming ceremony, first, I'll introduce you to the warrior rankings. Rank 3 warrior ranking. This is because they hunt monsters in the areas surrounding Mount Kinlu and obtain magic stones, their job is to be in contact with outsiders. Obviously defeating monsters that we run into when expanding the tunnels underground is also included in their job. Patrolling within the country is as well. Next is the Rank 2 warrior ranking. Their primary job is protecting the entrance and exit of Ellehei. Obviously there's contact with outsiders. And Rank 1 warrior ranking. These are the elites that are selected for the assassination jobs that we occasionally accept. There's a necessary to use not only the sword but all elemental magics and depending on the circumstances they must spend several years concealing themselves among the people on the surface near the target so interaction with them is obviously necessary.

Next is the acquisition ranking. It's the occupation which is normally called merchants in Orth. Since they gather the precious foreign currency they're seen as a higher class than the warriors. They travel between our Lail and the surrounding countries selling our products. They can't go without the naming ceremony as well.

After that is the elders. Depending on the circumstances they sometimes have to travel to neighboring countries for political negotiations.

Other than that, though it's an exception but when someone who commits a crime is dropped to the slave ranking it's performed. They have to sell themselves as slaves on their in order to earn foreign currency to atone for their crime. If they are sold once then through that their criminal record in our country Lail is erased.

After that if they take some action and end up being released from the slave ranking they are free once again. It's fine if they return to our country Lail again and even if they don't return they aren't particularly penalized. By the way, it seems that Dyulo combat slaves are sold for extremely high prices.

Also, it only occurs at a rate of about one person every couple of years but for some reason there are people who depart Ellehei as well. It seems those sorts of people go to get the naming ceremony done first as well.

Other than those people it's normal for the majority of people in our country Lail that are considered among the service ranking go our entire lives without receiving the naming ceremony so anyone other than the slaves that have completed the naming ceremony are somewhat respected. Even if I say service ranking it's not a slave ranking. They just call the people who's jobs are to take care of cultivating mushrooms, raising the livestock, and expanding the tunnels like this.

The number of each ranking is about 300 in the Rank 3 warriors, 100 in Rank 2 warriors, 100 in the Rank 1 warriors. There's about 50 elders. And about 50 in acquisition ranking. Since there's also retirees it comes out to about those numbers. Since the families of just the elders and the acquisition rankings are hereditary they're considered separate but just the warrior ranking is selected from among the service ranking. Every year, all of the children who have reached 7 years old in the service ranking are gathered together and are allowed to train with the sword. The majority of children have already received some training with the sword from their family, warrior ranking and ex-warriors that live in their area. In my case I had already received training from father that has already passed away.

based on the individual but most people are able to use kind of magic. Among them only the small handful that are able to acquire all of the elemental magic in the year until they turn 8 years old are segregated so they can enter preparation to become Rank 1 warrior class and are transferred over to a different exclusive training curriculum. If they are unable to use magic at all during the same period they are released and returned to their families. Both of those groups make up only about 10% of all the children though. The other 80% remaining after that continue with their training. However, another year after that there's another hurdle. If they can't use their second elemental magic by that point then they're released and return to their families in the service ranking. About half of the 80% of the children remaining end up in this dropping out group. The remaining 40% of the whole continue with their training. Furthermore, anyone able to use all four elemental magics at this point is segregated in the preparation group for rank 1 warriors a year below their age.

It's digressing a little but after the first time I used magic I realized how convenient it was. Is it really this convenient being able to bend the laws of physics somewhat? It's an extreme example, things that I thought were completely impossible as well, I was able to do them with no problem. For example mixing the water I created with tea. After that I only erase just the water that I created and I can separate them just like that. As long as you have the mana, otherwise as long as the amount is low you can separate water and coffee. Hn? I wonder what coffee is?

I'll return to the conversation. After that, the remaining children continue their training with the sword and magic. Every year there's transfers to the Rank 1 ranking and other than just magic the degree of training with the sword is also confirmed, the number from there fundamentally keeps decreasing. And a further four years ago, when they reach the age of 13 years old the ones with good results are allowed to become disciples of the Rank 2 warrior class and headhunted by the gate guards, the remaining people become apprentices to the Rank 3 warriors and start their hunting and escort jobs.

The preparation group for the rank 1 warrior class that was segregated at the start continues with their training but putting aside magic if they don't meet the regulations with the sword as well then they're demoted to the rank 2 warrior rank. There as well every year those who's skills aren't meeting the regulations are returned to their families in the service rank. If you can remain in this group until you reach the age of 13 years old then you become an apprentice of the rank 1 warrior class and are allowed into the lower layer of the rank 1 warrior ranking, every year there's at most 3–4 people who manage this and some years even only 1 it seems.

For that reason the rank 1 warrior class is respected quite a bit. Depending on the situation they can earn more than platinum coins in compensation from a single job for our country Lail so it's only obvious. It's only obvious to show respect for those who put their bodies on the line to make our country more wealthy.

Obviously the acquisition rank is respected even more than that though. When those of the acquisition ranking go peddling around various countries to earn foreign currency they always have one person from the rank 1 warrior class as the commander of the escorts accompanying them, one from the rank 2 warrior class, and six from the rank 3 warrior class as escorts as well. It's seen as a requirement in order to protect the products and sales money from monsters and thieves and at the same time protect the horses and carriages which are precious in our country of Lail. When traveling through regions that are very dangerous we sometimes even hire outsiders as escorts.

It's far too rough but I'll stop the explanation of my country Lail here. If there's ever a time when a more detailed explanation is necessary I'll add to it then, from here on is about myself.

I mentioned it at the start but unlike the other children I was blessed with physical abilities and even more so I was excellent with the power of magic so I was allowed to enter the rank 1 warrior class as an apprentice. There's the study of language in the curriculum for the warrior rank as well and other than the Dyuolorish that we Dyulo speak in our country of Lail, we also need to learn the Ragudarios language that is the {Common Language} of Orth. There are quite a few common points but we are educated to learn the intonation and detailed personal differences so we can engage in our jobs in the surrounding countries without problems. For that sake I was taught not to use “Ore”, “Atai”, or “Oira” for referring to myself but rather “Watashi” or “Jibun”. The first-person in Dyulorish is separated by gender but I was taught to only use “Watashi” or “Jibun” from the {Common Language} so I somehow started to use “Jibun”. There’s no particular reason.

If there was then it would be because the person who taught me used “Jibun” I guess? Obviously in order to learn second and third-person as well as word endings, and various accents we receive corrective education as well.

Several months after I started learning to use magic when I was 7 years old, I met God. I’m sure that must have been her highness Lilus. In a white space where I don’t have any body, I was told all sorts of things I don’t understand with a fast pace, and saw a scenery I don’t understand. Rather than saying I saw it, it’s more like it was poured into my head. There’s no one other than the living God that is her highness Lilus that can do something like that.

I had various things I don’t really get poured into my head one after another about being born again, unique abilities, or my growth rate is high, when I felt like I was going to be completely confused, I was asked at the end if I had any questions. I was already confident that it was her highness Lilus by that point so I called her “her highness” but the voice that echoed into my head said “her highness?” and had a suspicious nuance for a moment, I recalled back.

This existence isn’t her highness Lilus. Because the moment this existence started talking to me it wasn’t in Dyulorish or the {Common Language} but rather the language I’ve known since I was born. If it’s not her highness Lilus then who in the world is it? is what I was thinking but at the same time that became a voice and streamed through the strange space. That existence said that it’s name can’t be pronounced so for the time being just said to call it “God” and went quiet. I went quiet from confusion as well. Since it couldn’t be helped I decided to ask about my Unique Ability that I couldn’t figure out on my own.

After a short while I realized I had opened my eyes. In front of me was a window like the one from Status Open floating. It said there “In some meanings you could say this is the real start of your new life in this world. Even now there are still people that haven't arrived at this entrance but you've already stepped over the start line. From here on out you're free to do whatever you want. Also, you will never reincarnate again so I suggest you live your life without regrets. Also, you're carrying a serious problem with you. Since I didn't have the time I couldn't completely wipe away that problem but I did as much as I could. I did a bit of help so that it would be easy to wipe away that problem but I'm sure at this point you don't notice any change at all. After another 1–2 years if there's some sort of trigger then the problem might be resolved. I don't know what the trigger will be either. I suggest you try out a variety of things.”

That was written there. Since it was written in strange characters and for some reason I could read it so it strange and remained in my memory.

In any case, the things that I knew at this time brought about a large shock to my life. I don't know if it's a true or a life and there's no way I could have any way of investigating it but I can't help but think that an existence that could do something like that is her highness Lilus or comparable to her highness Lilus.

I was born in a different world, grew up, and died in accident it seems. I couldn't possibly comprehend or accept that but I understood it. I knew those strange words and I had a strangely adult thinking since I was a baby after all. It seems that there's 39 other people in Orth with similar circumstances as me but I have no way of investigating that so it doesn't matter if it's true or a lie. And the fact that all of them are starting their lives over again doesn't matter as well.

However, if that's true then we should still possess our memories along with our awareness but in my case all I have memory of is words from that strange language coming up and I don't have any memories of living in a different world. It's unknown what definition of awareness is pointing to though if it's pointing to the ability to think like an adult then it's not like I can't comprehend it. I can imagine that this is probably the large problem I'm carrying. But, at this point, what meaning is there in recovering my memories of living in a different world?

Also, it seems that the growth rate of people who were reborn is greater than those of normal people in Orth but if that's true then I can honestly be happy over it and even if it's a lie there's no harm to it. However, I do have the feeling that my physical abilities exceed the other children the same age as me. From when I was born up until now, since it's not possible to have not grown at all until this point, so I can accept that this is true.

It's the same about the Unique Ability. I had already known that I had a Unique Ability. I haven't talked about it to anyone, even my parents, but they taught Status Open to me even when I was still small so I knew about it. My Unique Ability is called "Unit Organization". I thought I would be able to use it whenever I like similar to Infrared Vision or Inclination Sensing but that wasn't the case.

I didn't know the way to use it and since I didn't know at all I just ignored it but thanks to what the being that called itself God said I was able to understand.

It seems I can use it on people that are truly understanding towards me. In the other party's heart, if they are truly trying to understand me, or are worried about me, as long as they have that sort of awareness it seems to be fine. On top of that you focus your awareness on them while being in physical contact with them and they have to be accepting of your existence. How annoying. In the first place what will come of being able to do Unit Organization?

I thought that and ignored it for a bit but when was it, right, when I was 11 years old, I tried using it for the first time. The other person was my older brother who had already become an adult. Since my parents had already passed away by that point, the only one who worried about me and understood was my older brother. When I received some days off and returned to the house he was asking me questions about the training with a worried face so I suddenly realized it and tried using it. I held my older brother's hand that was on the table and said "Don't worry, I'm giving it my best" while trying to use it. That moment it left a bit of an impression on me because my older brother made a slightly surprised face but quickly smiled.

And then a short while after that, somehow though, I was vaguely able to recognize the location of the distance and direction of my older brother. After about an hour that strange sensation disappeared, other than that nothing in particular changed. A while after I met God I tried using it on my allies who I train together with but I've never felt this sensation.

After all it seems to be the truth. It's probably just my older brother that worries about me without thinking about loss or gain. In comparison to that, I wasn't able to get on good terms where I can really trust my allies because my looks made me close to somehow who is disliked. After thinking that I finally realized that my heart was closing off towards my surroundings. One such day, there was an incident that changed my way of thinking.

It's only obvious but the training curriculum for the rank 1 warrior class differs for each that you participate in it. The content obviously just keeps getting more advanced. And then people who end up dropping out and returning to their families in the service rank start to appear. By the time you reach the final year of the training curriculum after the 5 years of training until you're 13 years old there's only about 3–4 people who are the same age as you. It's normal for one or two children who are older than you to mix in there. Among those who were the same age as me there was one child who was always barely reaching the passing grade every year.

Even though they were barely passing, the training curriculum for the rank 1 warrior class is considerably harsh so they're still quite excellent. There was no one who would pair up for training with someone who's always getting the top grades and is hated like me but when we reached this final year of the training curriculum the child that was always pairing up with that child ended up returning to the rank 2 warrior class. The child that was thrown out was one that would always scold and tell me off about my appearance so I didn't feel a thing over it and since I had reached this point without anyone to pair with, I wasn't bothered over it.

However, that girl, Awikk.Rensaras, I thought it would be difficult for her to overcome the training this time without anyone to pair with. There the professor Dendarozz sensei said to make a new pair with Awikk and myself. I'm sure they were trying to make a pair with the Aru who has the lowest grades and myself who just has the highest grades. Honestly speaking there's no benefit to me of having a pair at this point but I'm sure that the professor has some sort of idea on it. It can't be helped so I paired with Aru. It's also big that different from Aru's pair member until now, Aru has never said anything to reject me over my appearance.

I don't know why but for some reason Aru got very attached to me. She became the first person outside of my family to call me by my pet name. It's somehow ticklish but I didn't feel bad about it. I wonder if it's because Aru's hair is a somewhat deep pigment of wine red color? I wonder if she feels the same feelings of inferiority as myself over her ugly hair color? It's pointless now.

The distance between her and I gradually got closer. It didn't take all that much time before I was able to treat her as friend without anything hovering in the background. The ditch between us that from some point only I had been digging was eventually buried and we were able to freely cross over. If it's her then maybe?

around the time six months had passed I tried using "Unit Organization" like I had with my older brother in the past. I knew that I was engulfed in the same feeling as the time with my older brother.

Aru smiled and said "I somehow feel like I can feel Miduchi close by" to me. Miduchi is my pet name and it's a shortened version of the name Midu~ritto.Chizumagulolu. I was smiling at Aru as well. After that, our pair started producing high results that overwhelmed all other pairs in the training.

On the final ascertainment day before we were to finally be accepted as apprentices I was using "Unit Organization" the same as always and was able to overcome it with high grades. This year, the only ones that were able to become apprentices of the Rank 1 warrior class were just Aru and myself.

Obviously being assigned to another group meant separation. It was disappointing but it couldn't be helped. They wouldn't go out of their way to use two young newcomers who have just finished their training curriculum in the same place. It could end up crushing the potential of a valuable rank 1 warrior class. For the time being we end up pairing up with our seniors as we do jobs. One year later there's another ascertainment that takes place and until the apprentice title is removed I have no way of speaking my opinion.

Aru and I both started to pair up and learn our jobs with female seniors of the rank 1 warrior class that were in their late 20s and core warriors. One year later, we were safely able to clear up the title of apprentice. We both celebrated the fact that we were able to safely become 14 years old and drank enough alcohol to get drunk for the first time. The rank 1 warrior class is allowed to do whatever they want during the time they're not on a job. Even if we're drinking in the middle of the day we won't be looked strangely at.

A new job quickly came for Aru. It was a job from a high-class noble of Kanbitt Kingdom. It seems to be the assassination of a political opponent. Since the target is a high-class noble as well it will probably take some time starting from preliminary investigations, behavior patterns, and information gathering. Aru is in high spirits over her first solo mission. Since I still haven't been given a job independently yet I'm a bit jealous of her.

Several months later, a job came for me as well. The details were assassination of a political opponent and the guarding of the job requester them self. The one who requested the job was Aru's target. Very rarely it seems these things happen. If possible I wanted to change with someone else but it's finally my first solo mission after being removed from the apprenticeship. And for the sake of my sick older brother, an expensive medicine is always needed. The only thing I can do is keep accomplishing jobs one after another.

I'm sure I'll never be able to forget the surprised face Aru made when I stabbed her with my sword after sneaking into the house of the high-class noble I was supposed to guard. She thought that I was reinforcements until the last moment. However, on the verge of death she apologized and said "sorry for causing you to suffer". I cried as I killed my target the one who hired Aru and in order to accomplish Aru's job as well I killed the one who hired me. In our country of Lail just because it wouldn't be exposed because we're killing the ones who made the requests, overlooking Aru isn't allowed. Since we're being paid for it we have to complete the job as accurately as possible. It's made out that Aru was in the wrong for being too weak and not being able to complete her job right away.

I felt like my heart once again closed off.

The months pass by, after completing a number of missions that were considered difficult without trouble my reputation as a warrior has risen. However, normally there should be a flood of partners for marriage with my position but between my ugly appearance and my sick older brother who is seen as a money-eating insect, there was no eccentric person to appear who would propose to me for marriage. Feelings such as disappointment over that had long since disappeared from my frozen heart.

Only, the feelings of disgust I started to feel towards the callousness of our country Lail was one of the few proofs that I still had something like feelings remaining but I can't just abandon my older brother and run away. My older brother who has gradually gotten weaker over the years is the only support for my heart.

Thanks to the fact that my good spirited uncle and aunt were looking after my older brother I was able to focus on the jobs and earn money. I can't raise my head to my uncle and aunt. Excluding the bare minimum required expenses all of the pay from the rank 1 warrior class is going towards the medicine costs for my older brother. I can't give any money as thanks to my aunt and uncle.

Around the time I turned 16 years old. I accomplished a certain stingy job and just as I was about to return to Ellehei slowly dragging along my tired body, that occurred. It was when I was in a famous dungeon in the town of Baldukk of the Kingdom of Rombert. I used up my stamina and with my nerves worn down and tired I couldn't help but trigger a trap. It wasn't something that is directly harmful to one's life but no matter how you think about it, it was a fatal one. I fell into a pitfall that continues to a floor below. Unable to resist the floor and walls of the slope that's covered in something slimy, I rapidly fell to a floor further down.

There's no need to even use Inclination Sensing, I'm sure the inclination of the pitfall has a low friction factor. There's no handholds at all so without being able to resist, I was dragged into the depths.

Chapter 71: Town in a Basin

Year 7442, Month 5, Day 13

Last night I succeeded in employing Zenom and Ralpa after explaining things. I was a bit surprised when Ralpa suddenly said “if it’s a contract let’s go over the fine details” partway through but after all it was just at a high-school level. I figured she had never seen a proper contract before and that was the case. Roughly putting it

1. I give them the two of them an advance payment of a total of 400,000 Z in wages per month.
2. The duration of employment is at least one year.
3. Every year we’ll renew the contract and discuss and take into consideration the wages for the near year.
4. Other than commands that could put their lives at risk the two of them will obey.
5. We take consideration the health and well-being of the other party.
6. I teach Ralpa how to use magic.
7. The preceding point continues until Ralpa can use healing magic.
8. Limited to this month as a service there’s no compensation (However, any income made is split up equally).
9. Any money(including rewards) or goods earned through the process of adventuring during the duration of employment belong to me.
10. When camping outside, we fairly divide the time spent as lookouts.

Is the details that it ended up. It’s too easy. There’s no good faith clause, it’s an extreme example but if I were to say, “Ralpa, go sell your body for a bit and earn some money”, “Ralpa, let me test out this new hygiene product”, “Ralpa, sell your belongings and earn some money” she can’t refuse it. Since the right to refuse only concerns commands that could put her life in dangerous. Well, I have no intention of doing that though, you never know what I'll say if driven into a corner..

I obtained Ropross and Poseidon. I wonder if there's any candidates for Rodem?

I guess it's different because they're compensated.

In any case, on the way to Baldukk, we stopped by a town or village that can make contracts and had one made and settled on both of us holding one. At the very least I don't have any intention of saying any unreasonable until then. Although, in the case that I say something unreasonable, we may be able to get over it at that time but after that the contract won't expire for at most a year so I should limit saying things like that to only when I'm driven into a corner.

Well, even if I say it in the end there's not much meaning to it though. There's almost no penalty for defaulting on a contract made between individuals in this world after all.

While thinking about that, I ran beside my war horse with Zenom and Ralpa riding it. Every day I'm trying not to miss my two hours of running as much as possible. We can also make some distance as well. But, as expected it's difficult to run on the outside roads. Since I'm running while making sure not to hurt my feet I can't really go that fast so it's just a bit faster than the speed I usually let my horse walk I guess. After running for my first two hours of the day I take a one hour break. Since the horse gets exhausted from running for two hours with no breaks as well. After that we take about a 10 minute break for every hour spent running excluding lunch. I'm getting on the horse or getting off and walking so it was big that we were able to allocate the fatigue among everyone. Huh? I feel like I'm the only one losing somehow... Well, I guess it's fine. It's not good just swaying on a horse all the time while you're young.

Along the way we would rest for almost two days at decently sized towns while heading towards Baludukk, though it took close to three weeks near the end of may we were finally able to arrive at Baldukk on May 30th. Ah, we made the contract. Even though I said I would write it as long as we had a pen and some paper she said "you have to do contracts properly" and since I couldn't explain the “the reason it’s not proper” we ended up having a scribe like place create it for us. I don’t know why but it cost 100,000 Z. Shit.

Year 7442, Month 5, Day 30

We arrived at the town of Baldukk in the early afternoon. It’s a basin town that’s at the base of the mortar shape of large gently-sloping hills with a diameter of about 6–7 km in a circle. I had heard about it but it seems that the only fields are a bit on the slopes around the town. The base of the basin is a flatland that’s about 3–4 km and it seems the famous dungeon Baldukk is at the center of that. Centering around that entrance there’s eight distorted roads stretching out connecting to the peaks of the hills to the surrounding roads. Each of the eight roads is connected by a thin path and it might be more appropriate to say it’s like a spider’s web.

Since we were heading towards Baldukk from the south after climbing a hill covered in 5 m trees or so we ended up running into a crossroad at the top. Obviously if we go straight ahead it goes to the town of Baldukk and if we were to take the left or right paths it would lead to the other roads that go around the basin. Hmm, wouldn’t this circle shaped road be good for a running course? I’m thinking about such pointless things while looking at the crowded town in the basin below. I don’t know from where but I hear the knocking sound of an axe hitting a tree.

Since it seems that it’s the first time for Zenom and Ralpa to come to Baldukk as well they’re looking at the town from the top of the hill along with me. Ralpa is saying “I wonder if this is the crater of a volcano...it’s like crater.” but it really is, I thought so as well. Although the crater of a volcano wouldn’t have such gentle slopes like this so it might be different. But, if it was exposed to wind and rain over a long period and collapsed then it might become this smooth.

Judging from experience I’d say the height of the hill is 150 m. Even the highest point would probably only be about 170–180 m. There seems to be about a 10 degree slope on the descent of the hills below of the circular hills. The places other than the sloped roads inside of the basin are different from the outside and have grass and bushes spread out so it's a good view. Since it's only this level of a incline I thought that the hills wouldn't be oblique to the slope but putting aside the outside of the basin, the hills inside of the basin are a bit oblique. Ah, I guess it's that way in order to carry water to the bit of fields on the slopes.

I see something like a pond, or lake, or pool of water on the eastern side of the town in the center of the basin. It's hard to call it a lake. It has about three times the area of Shinobazu pond in Ueno I guess. The river is flowing to the west from there. The river runs to the west cutting through the hills and going several Km into the ocean. They probably collapsed the western hills just for that sake. I can tell that there's something like a steep cliff on both sides of the river. Since there's no bridge connecting the cliffs if I run I'll have to start going while following the river up hills that surround the basin and descend the hills on the other side of the river. Seeing as how that river flows into the ocean it seems that pond is a spring and there's a reasonable volume of water gushing forth so I guess the base of the basin is a bit higher than the ground around it.

Just from looking it seems that the town is a mix of new buildings and reasonably old ones. The new buildings have walls that are plastered in mortar like the sight in Keel so it seems the foundations of the first floor at stone. I can't tell but there might be something like a stone quarry around one of the hills. Let alone three story buildings while there's only a handful there are even four story buildings. Since the land is limited I guess they're trying to rise upwards to make the most efficient use of the land there is. The older buildings are wooden and stop at two floors at best. They aren't all that different from the average building in Orth. Putting aside the fact that the roofs aren't made from tiles or thatched grass it feels like the houses look a bit like the Japanese houses in the Edo era. Of course it's not as if there aren't extravagant buildings with roof tiles as well.

In order to have lunch we entered the first restaurant we found. There we started discussing what we were going to do from here on out. First in order to settle down we need to decide on the inn. I thought we should take an appropriate inn since we're going to be staying here for a while but my opinion was split with theirs here. They're saying that a cheap inn with a price of 2000 Z — 3000 Z per person per night is plenty but I was thinking about an inn like Bins Manor in Keel for 5000 Z per night. Come to think of it the only inns that were open which we stayed at for a few days on our way here were about 5000 Z so there was no complaints.

However, it could said that being able place my belongings in the room without without worrying and looking after my horse are required conditions. It's only obvious that the fees would rise to match that. Not just that but there's a variety of services on the menu and it's important that they're tidy is how I explained it but in the end they still chose to stay at a cheap inn. It's a bit worrying that we can't get in contact right away if something were to happen but I have no intention of taking back those conditions so it couldn't be helped that we split up the inns, or at least that's how I convinced myself on it.

It's not like there isn't the option of forcing them to agree using the contract but it's not a hand that I can use that lightly. And there's no much meaning to obligating them over something like this. I'm sure it's hard for someone with almost nothing that could be considered an asset to understand. It's not wrong to be in a state of poverty but the mentality of being okay with or satisfied with it is harmful. There's a word in the world called honorable poverty as well but I've thought it was a self-deceptive word since way back. I have no intention of endorsing a life of luxury but even if you cut down on necessary expenses that's already just being stingy. Your mentality will become poor. It can't be helped if you have no money but if you don't have any then it's fine if you just earn some. Well, these sorts of things are dependent on every individuals values so it can't be helped being too persistent with it. I have no intention of pushing my way of thinking on them after all. Getting in contact will be a bit inconvenient but as long as I can approve of that then it's no problem if we both find inns that we can settle comfortably in to.

I relaxed on a reasonably high-quality bed while thinking that. After I rest for a bit longer I'll head to the restaurant we had decided on before-hand and discuss what we're going to do next. Ah, that's right, after this maybe I'll buy a big bucket. Though a bath is impossible I want to at least be able to take a slow shower without worrying about being seen. Thinking that I fell into a light sleep.

Close to the evening after being awoken by the alarm clock small magic {Cantrip}, I put on my boots wearing plain clothes and head to the restaurant that we promised to meet at. Since they still haven't come I chose a table that can be easily found from the entrance and ordered a beer. Since it's still close to evening the tables are only sparsely filled. After observing the few customers of the other tables and I didn't see any bodybuilding types that seemed to be adventurers. They're probably just the citizens of this town coming to take an early dinner.

Since I had heard there was a dungeon in the town of Balduk and adventurers aiming to get rich quick go there in swarms so it was a bit of a disappointment. However, I realized that in order to aim for getting rich quick while challenging the dungeon you need to stay in the dungeon for long periods of time so they might still be working (?) at this time. Since it's a dangerous dungeon where lots of adventurers end up losing their lives I thought of doing some information gathering but it seems that it would be best to do that on another occasion. I sip away at my beer while eating some cooked beans. These cooked beans seem to be everywhere. They were at Doritt and Keel but I even ate them at home. I've eaten them all along the way here.

I had been thinking they were like the soul food of the Kingdom of Rombert something like Japan's pickled vegetables or nattou, but since I don't have anything to deny that I'm sure that's the case. I don't hate them and since I've been eating them for over 10 years I'm already used to them.

After Zenom and Ralpa arrived they ordered the same thing. They sip the lukewarm beer while eating some beans. Around the time we finished eating and exchanged info on the inns we were staying at and preparing to make plans for tomorrow several men entered the store. They look somehow dirty and are acting a bit crudely with the light sweaty smell of body odor coming from them. I don't know what dialect they're speaking but the details are somewhat vulgar. They're adventurers. I guess these types of guys are exploring the dungeon. I wonder what level of skill they have. After casually using Identify on them they're all level 7. There's a number of guys among them that can use magic but the level of the abilities are all low at 2 or 3. Or rather I guess this is normal.

It seems they ran into a group of Gnolls on the first floor of the dungeon. Gnolls are monsters that are roughly stronger than Kobolds but weaker than Orks it seems. As expected they appear in groups and come to attack on sight. They're a monster that is like a hyena in humanoid form and they use weapons and armor as well. Zenom was telling me about how if you injure some of them they'll start to retreat while protecting their allies. As expected of Zenom, he knows everything.

In any case, the weak adventurers who were driven away by Gnolls don't matter at all. In other words this means that the first floor of the dungeon of Baldukk can be returned from alive with only this level of ability. I was thinking that while listening to Zenom's lecture on dungeons which I've heard countless times already. It's a bit long but let's review. Well listen up.

- You never know what will happen in the dungeon. Never let your guard down.

- There's a 10,000 Z tax required per person to enter the dungeon.

- The government office in Baldukk will explain a certain amount of information to you.

- Up until now 8 floors have been cleared. And that was something that happened several hundred years ago. The one who cleared them was Rombert the First. He made the foundations of Rombert Kingdom from the treasures he obtained at that time.

- A group of up to 10 people can enter the dungeon simultaneously. Any more than that and it's necessary to split the group. The reason is when you pass through the entrance of the dungeon there's an underground room and there's a crystal rod there. Everyone grabs on to that and while holding that it's necessary for someone to speak the incantation that lets you teleport into the dungeon. The incantation floats to the surface of the crystal before you grab on to it. However it changes every time you use it to teleport so there's no need to remember it. Due to the limitations on the length of the rod 10 people is the limit.

- The location it teleports you to is always somewhere on the first floor of the dungeon.

- There's a similar crystal at the location you teleport to and if you use the incantation on it just the same then it will teleport you to a room on the side of the one at the entrance with the crystal rod. However, the crystal that's in that location can only be seen and touched by the ones who teleported to that area.

–There's a similar crystal in the location that's believed to be the center of the first floor. If you hold on to it while using the incantation just the same you can either go to the next floor or the room at the side of the entrance. The incantation when you return is fixed and "return us".

–It's possible to run into other groups of adventurers inside of the dungeon. However, since it's far too wide and you don't know where you're going to teleport it's close to impossible to intentionally meet up with someone. They say that it's not impossible if both sides are considerably skilled and decide on a place to meet before-hand but...for the most part it's impossible.

–The width of each floor is tremendously vast. Just going off of the details that I was told it easily has the same amount of area as this town. It seems that they sell maps but they can't be called perfect.

–Each individual floor differs and each floor has their own characteristics. The first floor is a cave. The floor and walls are dirt or stone. There's no particularly strong monsters. The traps aren't a big deal as well.

For the time being I guess that's about it. While I do have some information about the floors after the 2nd floor but since it can't be helped mentioning them right now, I'll talk about them later when necessary. These details are ones that Zenom just heard from someone else in the past so he himself says it's suspicious how much of it is true. It's probably best to think of everything other than the first three points as fake.

After making plans to meet at this restaurant again tomorrow in order to gather information at the government office we split up for the night.

Chapter 72: Information Gathering

Year 7442, Month 6, Day 1

After waking up before sunrise I immediately head out to go running. Ah, wasn't this place a basin. It's questionable if it's really before sunrise. In any case I ran and tried following the road up the hills surrounding the basin. After looking to the east through the gaps in the trees it was just as the sun started to appear. Since I tried climbing from the eastern side I guess I'll run a semicircle and then loop back.

When I returned to the inn I wanted to take a shower but there was no back yard like Bins Manor had so I gave up. However, after seeing me covered in sweat the guy of the inn told me about the shower room. It seems that they have water storied above the roof with water magic. What's with that it's fine even if I don't buy a bucket. I take a shower in the shower room and in addition made it into a warm water shower. Mm. There's no need to worry about being seen in this shower room so it's nice.

I dried myself off before exiting the shower room and put on the change of clothes I had prepared in advance. After closing the door I flipped the "in use" tag over to "empty". Furthermore, the fee of using the shower room is 100 Z per use. Even though it's just a cold water shower it's expensive~ If I think about the effort it takes to drain it the price is set so it vaguely weighs out buying a bucket and taking one in my room.

Now then, I guess I'll go and eat some breakfast. After that I'll take a walk around the town until lunch and try to start getting the structure of the town into my head.

After eating breakfast I started wandering around the town of Baldukk. Starting with the main road that stretches from the center to the outer circumference along the river to the west the roads are numbered one to eight going clockwise. It doesn't seem like a structure that it's easy to get lost so I should be able to get used to it quickly.

On stores there's of course the usual weapon shops and blacksmiths but there's even a prop store of things that would be useful in the dungeon. Stores dealing in magic stones, stores that deal in preserved and dried foods, various things. It seems that the farmers live close to the outer edge. It makes me realize once again that this town centers around the dungeon to the extreme.

Ah, that's right. Since I have the opportunity I'll go and take a look at the entrance of the dungeon. Thinking that I walk towards the central area of the town. If you follow one of the main roads that has a number with your back to the hills then you should definitely arrive there. Before long I arrived at the entrance. But of course it's not like there's just a big hole opened up in the ground. On the contrary it was a splendid two story building.

I guess the entrance is inside of the building. I can see two guards with spears standing at the entrance of the building. Centering on the building there's vacant land of about 40 m and there's various stalls lined up in the surroundings of the vacant land. However, rather than something like that what caught my attention was.. the filthy adventurer looking people who were sitting all over the place in the surroundings of the entrance to the building. There's enough of them that it would be annoying trying to count them. How many dozen are there? It could even be more than 100.

What's up with this guys? Without approaching them I enjoyed myself at the stalls while observing for a short while and I was quickly able to comprehend it. It's not all of the people crowding around in this area but fundamentally they're all trying to get groups of adventurers to let them in as members for challenging the dungeon. If there's a group of less than 10 people that tries to pass through the entrance of the dungeon then

"I've gone to the 2nd floor."

"I can get to the exit no matter where we end up on the 1st floor."

"Do you need a spear user?"

"I can guide up to the 3rd floor."

And just like that start trying to appeal themselves. Other than that and there's

"We're a three person group that can use fire magic."

"Hey, you guys, do you have any interest in including two more?"

"We've come from Viscount Yoraiz's knight group. Do you want to go together with us?"

And there's a couple of groups made up of several people as well. Rather~ what do you mean by "we've come from XX". Is this high-pressure sales of a fire extinguisher? I bet they don't have much skill at all. In the first place there's no way a real knight would be wearing ring-mail that worn out~ For the most part it seems to still be using metal parts so it's defense should at least still be better than leather armor though. Is what's drawn on that crude shield that Viscount Yoraiz or whoever emblem? I'm sure if the person them self saw it they'd be pissed. It's way too crude.

It seems that these stray adventurers are largely split up into two groups. One is they simply feel uneasy about the number of allies that they have so they're trying to pick up more members to explore with. This is fine. The other one is, and I don't think I'm mistaken but they seem to be parasites that can't pay the tax to enter the dungeon so they try to appeal themselves to groups and get added to the group of 10 so they'll pay the tax for them.

While I used the expression parasite, since they're still technically adventurers when added to the group it's not just limited to guys that are useless. I'm sure it wouldn't be unusual for guys to be selling their abilities like mercenaries as well. I'm sure there's also a reasonable amount of business in being a skilled guide as well. Though I'm sure the compensation isn't just paying the tax for them. Hmm, it seems that gathering information for stuff like this is also necessary. There's no need to get impatient and charge into the dungeon while lacking both information and preparations.

After watching for a while longer and I was able to figure out even more. The guides (?) who are skilled don't sit near the entrance but a reasonable distance away and they don't particularly call out to anyone but just sit quietly or stand with their arms crossed. At the very least it doesn't seem like they're progressively calling out to anyone from their side. If anything it seems more like when groups of several adventurers enter the plaza they start looking around and when they find a guide they're familiar with they call out to them. Though it might just be meeting up with group members.

About 30 minutes had passed since I figured things out this far and the guys who were around the entrance had entered the dungeon and those who haven't end up scattering in small groups after giving up so it's started to get quiet. I chew on a skewer with some kind of unknown sinewy meat that I bought at a stall while looking around the area. If possible I want to talk to someone knowledgeable about things. However, the adventurer looking guys who were both nimble and properly equipped have already disappeared and this time even the regular people have started to move around so I wasn't able to find anyone I could have a conversation with about it. Hmm. I guess it's fine.

Thinking I should try calling out to the guards protecting the building that's the entrance to the dungeon I approach them. Ah, since the skewer wasn't particularly good I've long since threw it away so I don't think my appearance is too bad. I approached the guard that seemed to be middle-age and call out to him.

"Hello, thank you for your work. I want to talk with you for a little bit but is it alright?"

After the guard looked at my appearance from head to toes he opened his mouth.

"What is it?"

He said it without a smile but I feel like his tone has softened up a bit.

"I'm sorry when you're so busy. My name is Greed and I'm someone that is related to Marquis Webdos. I'm sorry since I'm from the countryside and don't have any common sense, could you please tell me about this place?"

I said that while showing him the plate and the attitude of the guard got a bit more formal but it seems he was somewhat used to these sorts of questions, and replied like that. I see now, it seems that gathering information at the government office is the usual method.

"Ah, if it's about the dungeon then it would be better if you go to the government office. If it's you then they should tell you about it in detail."

“Is that so, thank you for teaching me so kindly. Would it be alright if I inquire as to your name?”

After making an unexpected expression the guard,

“I’m Johnston.Church. But why do you want my name?”

asked that. I lightly smile while saying.

“No, there’s no way I can go without hearing the name of someone who has been so kind to me. When I offer my thanks at the government office then I will be troubled after all.”

After saying that I lowered my head and turned around to the right as I left. This should be plenty as a start.

I killed some time by walking around different places until lunch and then went to the restaurant from yesterday. Zenom and Ralpha had already arrived and it seems they had secured a table and were waiting for me to come. I apologize for making them wait, order some food, and after eating lunch and paying them their wages of 1 gold Shu and 15 silver coins for this month, we started on our way to the government office.

The government office is a large three story building that’s slightly off from the center of the town to the northwest. After entering the slightly small lobby and something like a bulletin board entered my sight. There was guiding information written on the bulletin board for residents pointing to the tax window and such. There wasn’t any guide information for adventurers written anywhere. I wonder if there’s no bulletin board intended for adventurers in this town? We continue further in while questioning it but when we approached a random window and asked about it they quickly told us.

It seems that the notice board intended for adventurers is in the back. In other words we just took the wrong entrance. Since we didn’t know it can’t be helped but write down something like that. After going around to the back we safely found the notice board. Just like in Keel’s government office there’s an official receptionist as well. I just glanced at the notice board but the details written don't seem all that different from Keel's government office. However, it seems that there's a lot delivery of luggage ones. There's quite a few delivery jobs intended to various places in the country. It seems that the artisans of this town are skilled.

I was thinking about that while calling out to the receptionist official. Obviously it's about the dungeon. Since it's pointless to have a meaningless conversation here I immediately took out the plate from Marquis Webdos and requested that he introduce me to someone knowledgeable about the dungeon and I was introduced to the knight group. Naturally there's a knight group here as well? though I quickly understood why. It's only obvious. Though it's the King's direct territory since it's probably being ruled by a governor or relative of the king, there's no way they wouldn't have some military force stationed for maintaining the peace. Saying knight group is a bad way of putting it. They're the same as the police or a force that protects the peace and in the interval between their jobs they also go on foreign campaigns or expeditions for defense as well, would be a more appropriate way of putting it.

In Japan I guess it would be like the JSDF's military police using their policing authority against civilians. Whenever I hear of knight group I think of a someone on a horse wearing armor, equipped with a sword and spear gallantly charging into war even after living on Orth for 14 years I can't seem to shake the image. If you were to say it's strange for knight group to have several types to them then it's certainly strange but even in Japan in the past there were samurai-like soldiers that held the right to police. The constables and secret policeman were only made during the Edo period. And even with that putting aside the secret policeman, the constables were one type of official position the soldiers that were the samurai held. Even if you look at it from a standpoint this is a correct flow and other than special senior officials there were many cases of soldiers who also acted as officials, it was mainstream that the army also held the right to policing.

In other words, I still haven't completely become a person lives on Orth I guess. I remain aware of the light and stiff self-derisive smile stuck on my face while asking the location of the knight group and started heading towards the quarters of the knight group together with Zenom and Ralpha.

The quarters of the knight group was located on the eastern edge of the town. After slowly walking there I start to feel the sweat gush out from the rays of the sun of early summer. Just as expected of a basin it seems that one factor is there aren't very strong winds that blow. While talking about how it might get considerably hot during the coming seasons we finally arrived at the quarters, after showing the squire gatekeeper the Marquis's plate I explain to them that I received an introduction from the government office.

The squire said to wait just a moment after that and went to confirm the whereabouts of the knight that we received the introduction for it seems. We kill time asking the remaining gatekeeper how hot it gets during the summer and talking about pointless things like that as we wipe away the sweat with hand-towels.

After waiting like that for about 10 minutes the squire returned. It seems that the knight we intended to meet gave permission for a meeting. After being lead by the squire into the building we were able to sit down in the reception room. Just the fact that it blocked the sun felt like it was cooler so I was grateful for that.

After waiting a few minutes and a knight entered the room along with the squire from just now. It seems that the squire just tagged along to make tea. After distributing the tea they immediately left the room. It seems that the knight we received the introduction for was one of the leaders a commanding officer. I politely thank him for taking the time to meet us and immediately got straight to the point. Though I'm a regional noble I'm sure it's part of the influence of Marquis Webdos for having such a large and fertile territory, the knight answered my questions considerably thoroughly.

—In the true sense, Baldukk is lined up with Rombertia as the King's direct territory and they're both passed along with the generations. (Among the King's direct territories there's various towns but normally they have relatives or governors ruling them.)

—The reason is said to be because it's the land that was the cornerstone of how Rombert the First was able to found the kingdom but considering the fact that the capital is right next to it and the fact that the artisans are as skilled as those in the capital along with the large number of commoners and Free People acting as adventurers in reality the reason would be the high tax yields. Simply put it's a huge source of revenue. I'm sure the fact that adventurers cash in their magic stones in this town is a large contributing factor to the income.

—It's true that it's possible to get rich quick in the dungeon. If you defeat monsters you obtain magic stones and since most monsters have no interest in the money adventurers hold so if you can you retrieve that then it's a considerable amount of income. Also, it's extremely rare but there's occasionally humanoid monsters with magic equipment that can't be reproduced no matter what and if you defeat them you obviously obtain them. If you sell them then they usually exceed the level of platinum coins in value.

—One force can enter the dungeon (it seems that they often call this a party) and the limit is about 10 people but because of the size of the passages it seems it's common for them to enter with less than that. Also, there's people making a living as guides that are like mercenaries. If you go to the entrance early in the morning you can meet them.

—Just as far as has been confirmed there's said to be 8 floors in the dungeon but over the past few decades it seems that no one has gone past the 5th floor. The only ones who made it to the 8th floor are the founder Rombert the First and the subordinates who accompanied him.

—The only way to get between floors in the dungeon is to use the teleport crystal. The small rooms with these crystals are all over the place in the dungeon. However, the only one you can move with is the teleport crystal you previously touched. Only the teleport crystal that is said to be in the center of the dungeon is special and can go to both the exit room (the room next to the first one with the crystal) and to somewhere on the next floor down.

—It's not guaranteed that the path you end up being teleported to will definitely have a path that leads to the small room in the center where the crystal is. In that case there's no other option than to return and start over again. (It seems that some of the parasite adventurers from this morning were lying.)

–The 1st floor of the dungeon is a cave-like den. A number of small rooms are connected through caves.

–It seems there's a pond where fairies live on the 2nd floor but since this is only known from the stories of the founder, Rombert the First and hasn't been confirmed. Also, it seems there's something like a fountain which spits out snakes as well.

–The 3rd floor is a stone dungeon and there's a variety of strange apparatus all around the rooms almost like a torture chamber.

–The 4th floor seems to be a nest for a type of monster called the Undead.

–On the 5th floor there's moving statues and something like an altar that has burning black fire that's been confirmed.

–From the 6th floor it seems that this is only known from Rombert the First as well but it's supposedly a maze-like place where teleport keeps repeating without crystals and there's boar like monsters rampaging all around it.

–The 7th floor is a dungeon protected by strong Ogres.

–The 8th floor seems to be a collective group of large caves and according to Rombert the first "I can't help but think there's various places overlapping each other". Rombert the First obtained his great treasure here and finished his adventure.

–At the very least up to the 5th floor the walls give off a strange light so there's almost no need to worry about light. Almost means that there are places where it still is needed.

–Up to the 3rd floor while they're incomplete there are reasonably detailed maps that are sold. They're sold in prop stores aimed towards adventurers all over the place but since there are no checks on the content of them it's best to think that the details of each of them can differ slightly. Also, information and maps on places which haven't been cleared yet can be bought for a high price.

–After the 4th floor only a handful of truly skilled people can get that far so for the time being there shouldn't be any maps sold for there yet. However, it seems that they're producing their own maps.

These are the new things that we found out. Finally I tried asking if the knight group doesn't enter the dungeon. After all, I was thinking they could challenge it for testing their strength or as a part of training. And I was told, "The knight group doesn't concern itself with what occurs in the dungeon. Even if it's a trained knight they can lose their life so in that case we could pointlessly lose the lives of skilled knights and squires. It would be completely different monsters came out of the dungeon in succession but since there's no way of testing if monsters can come out of the dungeon it's not seen as a problem". I guess that's true. Even if they fight against monsters it's not as if they get stronger as an army after all. It's fine as long as the knight group properly protects the peace in the town of Baldukk and participates in defensive wars and foreign campaigns when needed.

It's not like it's known that you can accumulate experience points and level up in order to get stronger a bit at a time. And even if your level is high it's not like your combat ability springs up either. If your strength and speed increase then your HP increases as well, so you can say as a whole it's not like you haven't gotten stronger but in order to control that you need to accumulate experience training on a daily basis, slowly but surely cultivating your techniques and combat experience in the true meaning.

Even level ups if the person didn't already know about it before-hand and furthermore predict it then they probably wouldn't even realize it. Even if your strength goes up by 1 point it's not like you can suddenly easily lift things that were heavy until then. I feel like until each physical ability gets to 10 or maybe a bit higher they're all somewhat proportional but after that they're probably not proportional. The actual strength of a 30 year old male who has double the strength value as that of a healthy 15 year old male probably isn't actually double. I think that the value of abilities and your actual physical abilities are on a curve when they go up so the actual difference in value of 1 point just keeps getting lower as it gets higher. If I were to make it into a graph then starting from a straight line it would suddenly and then gradually after that get farther off along something like a reverse parabola. If that wasn't the case then there would be way too many inconveniences.

If you put some effort into it I'm sure you could make it to level 10 or 20 with just smashing giant leeches but I wonder if someone like that could really so easily win against a squire that's properly trained until they could handle themselves reasonably even if they're only a couple levels. As expected if they were beyond level 100 then their speed or endurance would be abnormal so I'm sure they couldn't win but you know I'm not trying to say something like that right.

Putting it in reverse if two people both have equal levels of skill then the difference between level, age, and the values of each of their abilities will show more clearly. If the difference in ability is only slight then I'm sure you can cover for that difference with the values of each of your abilities. If you were at a level where each of your abilities was t 100 or 200 then I'm sure it would be different though. If you think about it normally I don't think anyone could ever make it there though.

In any case, it's joyous that I was able to obtain some new information. Oh~ I was about to forget. After using the name of the guard I met this afternoon Johnston.Church and how he treated me kindly I thanked him and left the knight group.

Together with Zenom and Ralpa we went to the entrance of the dungeon again but Johnston.Church wasn't there. I guess he changed shifts. I explained to the two of them that there was a guard who was knowledgeable about the skilled guides and we made a promise to meet again tomorrow at noon for lunch before parting ways.

I guess the time right now is about 4pm in the afternoon. I started exploring trying to get the geography of the town into my head by evening and after eating dinner at a random place I got in bed. After entering I suddenly realized. I hear that there are a lot of adventurers gathered in this town. Then shouldn't it only be obvious that it should exist here? But it's already night and I had alcohol and I took a shower so I guess tomorrow is fine. I closed my eyes and fell asleep.

Chapter 73: Lacking Potential?

Year 7442, Month 6, Day 2

The next day, after waking up before I went to do my daily running I decided to go to the entrance of the dungeon. Just like when I visited yesterday there were already a lot of people there. I eat some simple dishes I bought from stalls as breakfast as I observe things. Among the jumble of noisy voices I can hear “Is there one more person who can use magic out there!?”

“I’m selling maps~ I have up to the 3rd floor! 500,000 Z per floor!”

“I have a map with the locations of traps written down. Interested in buying it? It’s only for the 1st floor but how about 800,000 Z?”

“Dried meat, roasted nuts, bread! Does anyone want to bring the delicious preserved food of Dori’s shop along as their ally in the dungeon!”

“Recruiting a shield user! We need one more! Regardless of what we find I’ll pay 30,000 for just today!”

and I hear those sorts of voices, different from yesterday it seems there’s more voices trying to do business.

It seems that there’s more people seriously trying to challenge the dungeon at this time. I guess they’re meeting up with party members as well but there’s a lot of properly equipped adventurer looking people as well. They’re holding swords, spears, and shields, equipped with light leather armor, and holding a bag which probably has preserved food and small tools in it so they stand out.

In the next moment there were shouts from the entrance. It doesn’t seem like loud yelling but rather, wonder and scorn, admiration and booing, voices that have a lot of different emotions mixed in them. What is it? thinking that I started to move through the crowd towards the entrance of the building. There I saw a tall elf male with a smile filled with pride and behind him there were three large human males, one female human, a female dwarf, a female elf, and one tiger-man male. In comparison to the proud looking elf who has a smile the seven behind him all seem tired and are hanging their heads down.

After listening in on the voices around me and I quickly understood why.

“That bastard Rozwela he wasted slaves again. This time it was two of them huh?”

“Really, he’s the only one making that disgusting face. How many has he wasted up until now?”

“Like I know! In the first place it’s unbelievable that he’s still making a profit like that.”

“But you know, those guys sure have survived long. The only newcomer that’s still alive is that guy.”

“Don’t say that. If you have the money then you can even do stuff like that. Stop acting like women you poor people.”

“Shit..It’s true though...I’m envious.”

“If I had the money even I could earn like him~”

“When did he enter the dungeon?”

“I think it was three days ago..they might have gone to the 3rd or 4th floor.”

Hohou~ So that middle-aged elf guy’s name is Rozwela. It seems he’s quite hated but I guess he’s buying a lot of slaves and using them to charge in. Well, no matter how good of earnings it might make it’s not a hobby of mine to waste slaves like that but it’s not a hobby I can criticize him over. Ah, I’m sure it’s not all that profitable as well so it’s not that it’s just not a hobby of mine. I’m sure that not just me, but if anyone had enough money they’d do something like using slaves as living shields. However, slaves you can use in combat should be considerably expensive. Does it mean he earns even more than that? The cost of a combat slave is at least 6–7 or gold coins or more per head. Particularly if they were at a level where they could enter the dungeon wouldn’t they cost even more? It’s far too much of a waste so I don’t think I could just use them as shields.

Since I still have the money I received from father if I want to I can buy two or so of them but the composure in my feelings will disappear. If I end up losing my composure and get too greedy on earning I could end up making a critical mistake in decision. For now it's a method of clearing the dungeon which is unrelated to me.

I can't even use it as a reference. However, I wonder how much he can earn from just entering the dungeon to explore once? I want to know things like that. I tried listening in on people for a bit but no one talked about things like that. Well, it's fine.

Since it had returned to the jumble of noises again I was about to turn around and head off to do my running when there were more shouts for a second time. This time they're actually cheers. I hear whistling as well. Since it interested me I turned around again and looked at the people coming out of the entrance building.

It seems that the party that came out this time is several times more popular than Rozwela. They are a group of 8 as well and they're all equipped with banded-mail and splint-mail wielding swords and spears that you can tell are pretty high grade just from a glance. Since I can't see anything but the scabbard I don't know for sure if they're actually high quality or not though. They look quite well-made though. Their group is composed of one male and female human, two elf males, one male and female dwarf, a bunny-man male, and one female who appears to be a Wolf-person race.

After listening to the words of praise being directed to them it seems that they're called "Green Party {Verdure Brotherhood}". Come to think of it they all have something green somewhere on their equipment. Among them there's even a guy with something like a blue-green cloth wrapped around his arm. I thought they were starting to rust. It seems that they're a group composed of commoners and Free People. There's voices of admiration for them. They've been in the dungeon for a week straight and they arrived at the 5th floor. Isn't that top-class? Since I was interested I decided to try using Identify and wow, starting from the guy at the front who's level 19, the lowest level among them was 16. It seems they're super veterans and excluding one of them they're all around 30 years old. The remaining one is an elf that's closer to 40. He might be the leader. His level is 19 after all. His experience points have exceeded 900,000 and are close to 1,000,000.

Hya~ There's some amazing people in the world. I definitely want to try listening to their stories but I'm sure they wouldn't take a brat like me that's never even entered the dungeon once seriously. It's not as if I have any proof that they're the top but I don't think it's mistaken that they're one of the top parties. Since it seems they've gone to the 5th floor after all.

Since I spontaneously wanted to share in their good luck I was about to clap my hands together in prayer but I realized a moment before and stopped myself. I should do some running and form training and cultivate my abilities first.

Just before noon I returned to the entrance plaza (it's just the name I've given it though) and started looking for the guard Johnston.Church. I thought he would be standing at the entrance the same as yesterday but it seems he's patrolling around the plaza. It seems that two people stand guard at the entrance and two people patrol the plaza. Although the two of them aren't guarding the entrance but rather protecting the tax collector who collects the entrance tax for the dungeon. It's only been two days but according to what I've seen there's about 400–500 people who challenge the dungeon a day so they should be collecting 4–5 gold coins per day in taxes.

I called out to Johnston.Church.

“Hello, Church-san. Thank you for your kindness yesterday.”

“Hey, so it was you? It seems that you used my name at the knight group yesterday so, umm, thank you very much.”

Yeah, since it's free just to say it, and I wanted to make your impression better. Don't worry about it. And since it's you I'm sure you just said something like “I just interacted with him naturally though..” right? Then I'm sure you were praised even more for normally acting so courteously right? It's a good thing.

“Yeah, and then. When do your work hours until? I would definitely like to discuss some things with you, if it's alright with you, how about a light one later?”

I say that while gesturing as if I'm drinking alcohol. It's only obvious but I'm guessing that his work hours are prior to noon. Since I couldn't find him yesterday when I came here after eating lunch.

"Yeah, it's fine until just noon. After that I have to return to the knight group and report and then train...It isn't a problem having lunch with you for about an hour though."

Just as I imagined. They're probably in three or four shifts for the bodyguard jobs. If they're working in rotation then I'm sure they also have regulated time off as well.

"Is that so, then I'll take a look around this area while waiting until it's time."

After saying that I walk off without waiting for his response. Now he has no option to refuse me. Zenom and Ralpa might be surprised when I suddenly show up at the restaurant with a guard but he's most likely a useful source of information. I'm sure they wouldn't treat him badly as well. After randomly wandering around looking at the stalls time passed quickly to noon and Johnston Church came to my side.

"Then, let's go shall we?"

After saying that I brought him to the restaurant we were meeting up at.

Though Zenom and Ralpa were certainly a bit surprised but after I introduced him they were more relieved that some sort of crime hadn't occurred in the store or I hadn't been arrested. So you guys we're worried about that direction.

Along the way here I told Church-san about how I'm an adventurer and I came here aiming for the dungeon and the fact that I have two allies so he didn't worry about things too much and we had a peaceful meal. Obviously during that time the three of us were asking him quests but the new information we were able to gain from him was just as follows:

- The number of people in each party that challenges the dungeon is about 4–8. When they start aiming for the floors below the 3rd then it's not uncommon for them to do a full party of 10 people.

- Of course, there's also some people who enter the dungeon alone as well.

The majority of them either come out soon after or never come back though.

–Since we only have three people if we have the flexibility with money then we should expand our combat potential by buying some slaves. There's three slave dealers in this town and it seems that all of them deal in combat slaves. It seems that it's fine to buy them at any place but when I buy them I should always make sure to show the plate.

–Obviously it would be good to have a guide as well but the compensation for a skilled guide is expensive. Putting aside if it was only for a few days or a few weeks but the guide counts as an extra head in your party when you split up the treasures you obtain in the dungeon so in the end you profit more by having slaves instead if you plan to remain for a long time. (He told me about several trustworthy guides) –If you think it's dangerous then you should immediately return back to the starting teleport crystal. Since you can quickly get back to the surface it's a bad idea to push yourself too far.

–While there are exceptions, there's no decent people among the parasites who call out to you in the surroundings of the entrance of the dungeon. The worst of them aim to kill their employers in the dungeon and loot their corpses for money and equipment they can sell.

–Obviously, there are cases where conflicts occur between parties that encounter each other in the dungeon as well. It wouldn't be strange if there was a group who specializes in it but even if they end up being wiped out no one know will know.

–Even if you only intend to enter the 1st floor and return you should bring along at least three days worth of food.

–It would be best to buy a map of the 1st floor but even if you don't buy one it probably wouldn't change much. Starting from the 2nd floor the danger of the traps jumps up so it seems it's best to buy one. (If you were in a hurry then it would be different but there's no need to buy a map with information on the traps since you're just going to take your time in moving forward either way)

–The top parties right now are these five “Green Party {Verdure Brotherhood}”, “Shining Blade {Bright Blade}”, “Flames of Purgatory {Gehenna Flare}”, “Black Topaz {Black Topaz}”, and “Sun Light {Sun.Ray}”. They’re all veteran parties that are composed of first-rate members.

–Rozwela is famous but his reputation is mostly built around envy. The person himself isn’t particularly bullying slaves. Still it is unusual that everyone other he is a slave but it’s not like there’s no other parties like that and if you have the money then in some ways you could say it’s ideal. If you were to find a piece of magic equipment it’s normal for conflicts to occur over who it belongs to and even how they split up the shares of money earned from selling it can be a factor to worry about. Since there’s no absolutely no need to worry about that it could be said it leaves that much more room for them to become a party with good team work.

–The average income of just exploring the 1st floor and returning once is around 150,000–200,000Z. If you get lucky, find someones corpse, and take the equipment they used then it can easily exceed 1,000,000 Z as well. However, this number is when you’re being careful so as to avoid fighting monsters as much as possible. If you make loud noises and try to lure monsters you can earn more but the number of parties that did that and lured a ton of monsters then were wiped out is as many as there are stars.

–The treasure you can obtain in the dungeon is, 1. Magic stones obtained from defeating monsters. 2. The equipment the monsters you defeated were using. 3. The money and equipment adventurers that were killed had on them. 4. Getting lucky and finding some raw gems or crystals. 5. Anything other than that. It seems that they’re separated into those five types. It seems roughly as they get closer to the end the value gets higher. Supposedly the most valuable thing anyone has found since Church started as a guard was a short wand that made it so anyone can use the magic {Fire Ball}. It was over 20 years ago but according to rumors it was judged to be worth several 100,000,000,000 Z, but the one who found it didn’t sell and instead presented it to the royal family and they were made into a Viscount and given the position of governor of some town somewhere. He heard that the wand was placed in the treasury of the Rombert royal family. (When I heard this I thought, idiot, you should sell it and take the money, but since everyone’s eyes were sparkling like the stars I remained silent. When I think carefully about it, the fact that it can make it so anyone can use {Fire Ball} then it's a considerably outrageous thing) –Other than that it seems that there's a few magic items that come out every year. There's also cases where they've been found on the 1st floor as well. Of course, the values vary a lot but they're usually at least several 100,000,000 Z. Also, if you decide to hold on to it then after that information has passed through several countries there's the option of putting up for auction at some place and then leaking that information to sell it for a high price. It seems that the auction usually takes place in some countries capital.

We ran out of time around here. After we saw off Church as he returned to the quarters of the knight group we returned to our table in the restaurant and started sipping some bean tea while discussing what our plans are from here on out. The first one to open their mouth was of course, me.

“Well then, we've obtained quite a bit of information. About the plan I can think of here but for starters there's two options. The first is to try and enter the dungeon with just us three and see how things go. The other option is to either buy a slave or hire a guide in order to expand our combat potential. Which do you think would be better?”

And then, unexpectedly Ralpa gave an immediate reply.

“If you have the money then a slave. I think the same way as Church-san as well but in the end having the slave is more efficient I'm sure. Well, since it's difficult to tell what the level of ability of a slave is if you were sold a weird one then it's also possible to suffer a heavy loss but, that plate? was it? if you show them that then it should be fine right? Then, if you have the money I'd buy a slave.”

This, ex-high school girl has suddenly come out with buying a slave. It's surprising because in reverse I thought she would be the one most against it.

“A slave huh...It seems like it will cost some money but I think I can manage to buy one though...Other than just the cost of the slave I would also have to prepare it's equipment as well so another 1,000,000 Z or so will probably be blown away. With that.”

I was grumbling that but suddenly I wanted to hear Zenom's opinion. The one who has the most experience as an adventurer among us is him.

“What do you think Zenom?”

“Since our compensation has already been decided, it won’t change anything worrying about Al’s wallet at this point. That’s why it’s limited to supposing, if I was Al then”

“Yeah.”

“After all if it was me then I would buy a slave. If it’s a merchant that can be trusted and furthermore you can gain their trust then you should be able to buy a good slave. I’m sure there’s skilled people among guides as well but the compensation is expensive. In the end I think you’ll still just lose out. It might be fine for the first time but thinking about Al’s magic I can’t imagine we’d fall into any danger so easily. In the first place, we can immediately retreat, so even if we don’t do anything and run away then the damage is only 10,000 Z per person. It’s true that 10,000 Z hurts for us but if we can gain the first experience then it’s still cheap. I think it wouldn’t be too late to think about a guide after that.”

I was able to understand that they’re not against employing the use of slaves. In that meaning they’re both veteran adventurers who have over 10 years in their career. Zenom says he’s been at it for 20 years even. I’m sure he’s accompanied adventurers who use slaves before and he might even have experience using slaves himself. In comparison I was a young master raised leisurely in a remote village. There were a lot of serfs but just because they were slaves there was never anything that bothered me over social standing with them.

Or rather, I don’t know if I can even use slaves in the same way that people normally employ them. I can’t grasp the sense of distance. Even this sort of place stimulates my complex that I haven’t been able to become a person of Orth. But, I’m sure it’s true that it’s more efficient to use slaves. If they’re the market price then I can buy two and equipment for them but with that my wallet would get too light. I said it before but it might make get too impatient. However, if it’s just one then I should still have some flexibility so I think it might be fine. Alright, I’ll buy a slave.

“I understand. I’ve decided to buy one slave. After this conversation finishes I'll go and buy one so come along with me. Then, next is"

I take a sip of the tea and continue my words after wetting my mouth.

"Since even if we include the slave we still only have four people we won't overdo things at the start. It's fine if we go as far as we can think we can go but once we start to struggle we'll turn back. Since it's the first time let's also decide on a time limit. I think we should depart tomorrow morning but no matter how good of a pace we have going we should come back by noon. That's why, I'm sure it'll add to the luggage a bit but we should take along a clock magic tool."

After confirming that the two of them nodded I continue even more.

"Also if there's anything you think we might need tell me now. I need to buy some stuff after all."

After I said that and Zenom says.

"Some string. One that's as long as possible. It seems you use it coiled around a spool. Supposedly you tie it to a rock or something in the area of where you first teleport then release the string as you move forward. If you return while winding that back up then you can return to your original location without getting lost.

Since it seems that they sell them by the bobbin I'll prepare one after this. It's fine if you pay me for it later."

I see, that's a good idea. If it's cotton then I'm sure it's not that expensive, depending on the length of the string there's also the option of returning once you run out of string as well.

"Alright, let's go with that. Then for starters let's go and buy a slave."

After saying that I drank the last of my tea and stood up from my seat. The two of them came along with me.

Chapter 74: Oh Wind, Oh Light

Year 7442, Month 6, Day 2

Accompanied by Zenom and Ralpa I tried heading towards the slave trader. The first one is “Tani’s Slave Company”. This store deals only in combat slaves for exploring the dungeon and that’s the part where it differs from the other places. I think that something like a combat slave exclusive store would probably only be able to survive in this town? However, since it’s a specialty store I think we can hold our hopes up for the quality of the goods.

The appearance of the store “Tani Company” was a lot more compact than I imagined. Though it’s compact that’s just compared to the large inns like the one I’m staying at or the huge stores opened up near the center of one of the eight roads. The owner of the store is an old gnome man who’s name is just like the store Tani.

When I showed the Marquis Webdos plate while telling him “I came to find one combat slave” he got close while rubbing his hands together. It seems he has a stock of 12 combat slaves right now. I can choose whatever I please.

I was humming to myself about a mysterious bird, water god, and black panther running the land while sitting on the sofa waiting for the slaves to be prepared and the other two were looking at me with a weird face. I’m sure a high-school girl wouldn’t get it.

After a short while I guess the preparations were done since Tani returned. We followed after Tani and were allowed into a different room. It was a wide size of about 20 tatami and the slaves were lined up against the wall inside. I guess he means to choose from the 12 slaves lined up here.

Hmm, you can't really say the clothes they're wearing is very good but they all have good builds. For the time being I need to identify the men and check what their level and abilities are. If I don't accurately understand the abilities of my own possessions then I'll end up troubled when the time comes that I need to use them.

But I'm sure the combat abilities of the women are low so I'll skip them. The first one. A human woman. Her face is decent but I'm sure she's weak since she's a woman so I don't need her. It's not as if I think it's a waste of MP. If there's no one among the men that seems useful then I'll put her into the potential options though.

The second one is a human male. His level is 9. His age is 32 years old. Hmph.

The third one is a human male. Level is 8. Age is 27 years old. Considering the growth of their age I think this one should be better than the last? For now he's candidate one.

The fourth one was a male dwarf. Level is 10. Age is 34 years old. Hmn.

The fifth one is the same a male dwarf. Level is 9. Age is 31 years old. Mwu.

The sixth is a female dwarf this time. Pass.

The seventh is a female gnome. Pass.

The eighth is a wolf-person male. Level is 8. Age is 27 years old. Wolf-people have the racial Special Skill as the dog-people race that is "Super Sense of Smell".

For the time being I'll change this guy to the temporary first candidate.

The ninth one is a Bunny-man male, his level is 7. Age is 29 years old. Though “Super Hearing” might be useful. I’m sure it’s no good.

The tenth one is a female elf. She’s beautiful but pass.

The eleventh one is the same female elf. This one is beautiful as well but pass.

The twelfth one is a Tiger-man male. His level is 10. Age is 28 years old. Both of his racial skills {Night Vision} and {Strength} might be useful. Going off of his level and age he might be the best choice.

Hmn, if there was a Panther-race person with black fur then it would be good to name him Rodem but I don’t know if that sort of race exists when my limited info.

It’s my fabrication. I go in front of the tiger-man and observe him once again. His condition is Good. Obviously he’s not missing any limbs or fingers. I wonder what I should do~ Incidentally, none of them could use magic. The women? Even if they could use magic I’m sure it’s nothing great so I’d prefer someone who can fight. I’m passing on the women until I’m rich. Ah, I didn’t ask the price.

“How much is this guy?”

And as I asked Tani is still rubbing his palms together. Zenom is just standing there watching with his arms crossed. I don’t get what Ralpa is doing but she’s saying “open your mouth and show me your teeth” in an arrogant voice. What is she saying?

“As expected you have a good eye, just as you can see he’s a non-human but he’s powerful and can move quickly. Since he’s also trained with the sword he can immediately be included as combat potential.”

and he said that. Since they’re combat slaves if they weren’t capable of fighting right away then wouldn’t it be fraud? I think that this guy would be good but I somehow feel like this guy doesn’t touch my heartstrings.

“About the price but how about 9,700,000 Z?”

Expeensive! If I buy his equipment as well then it exceeds 11,000,000 Z. If I buy this guy then it would be a pain until I make the profits back. But, there’s still two more slave traders. It’s fine if I don’t rush. It’s not too late to go and confirm if there’s a slave that interests me more at the other two places I’m sure.

“Hmn. Can I reserve him for today?”

I tried asking.

“Reserve..huh? I guess that’s fine. I’ll keep him reserved for today. However, if I don’t get any contact today then he might be sold by tomorrow.”

Tani said that with a sullen face. That can’t be helped. It can’t be helped showing a good face to a slave trader.

“Zenom, Ralpa, we’re going to go to the other places...Hey, Ralpa, let’s go.”

After saying that we left “Tani Company”. Next up we’ll try going to “Riggus Company” I guess.

By the way when I tried asking Ralpa “Why were you looking at their teeth?” she said “In the past, I saw something somewhere. When you buy a slave you check their teeth to make sure they’re healthy.” Do you really get it? I’m not a dentist so even if I look I wouldn’t know. I’ve never heard of anyone getting cavities as well.

They don’t just deal in combat slaves at “Riggus Company” but also in slaves of all normal uses. It’s meaningless looking at the extras so I said to just show me the combat slaves and they were lined up again. There were five of them but among them four were women and the remaining one was a 40-ish old man. I don’t need one who’s abilities have started to decline from age. This store is no good.

Finally we tried going to “The Slave Store, Ronslail”. This store deals in general purpose slaves as well. But, there’s an expression that there’s a fortune in the leftovers. I’m sure I can’t hope for too much but, it’s fine, I’ll take a look. We entered “Ronslail” and called out to the shopkeeper.

The shopkeeper was a female elf. She seems to be in her early 40s. Just as expected from an elf her appearance is still that of a shining beauty and it gives her an appropriate presence for her to be called madam. After the madam closely looked at my plate,

“I just received a good combat slave.”

And after saying that she went into the back but quickly came back out and said to follow her. I guess she’s going to line them up and show us again.

After going into another room just as expected the slaves were lined up and waiting again. There’s eight of them but they’re all women. How useless. But, I guess as expected it’s easy for female combat slaves to be leftover. Just when I was starting to think it’s already fine if it’s a woman another one was added. It’s a man.

When I got right to identifying him and,

Hmm, a Lion-People race {Lios} huh? His level is reasonable but it's good that he's young. His build is good as well. What the, his name isn't leon? or lion? or something. I thought he was the disciple of Kashin Koji*.

"Instant Speed" is a skill that increases your strength and speed for the same amount of points as your level for an instant. There's no level for the skill itself but the duration is the same number of seconds as your body level and has a recast time of the same amount as your body level in hours. You can't use it in succession and while it gets more powerful as you level the amount of time you can't use it increases as well. However, it could be considered an advantageous skill when it's needed in close combat. It wasn't written on the identify window whether or not HP is also increased during the time the abilities are increased. Well, even if it did increase it would be for only a few seconds so I'm sure it's meaningless. I intentionally squinted while scrutinizing and looking at him,

"Can he speak in the {Common Language}?"

And tried asking the madam.

"Yes, but of course. This man is a prisoner that was captured in the conflict with Devas Kingdom the other day. Since it seems he was a soldier for Devas Kingdom he should be able to use a weapon as well."

Madam.Ronslail said that while smiling.

I see, so this guy became a slave after becoming captured as a war prisoner. I guess they didn't pay for his ransom. Judging off of the date on his last naming ceremony it's only been a few days since he became a slave. I guess this area is where I should negotiate.

"Is it fine if I test him out a bit? Ah, in the case that I injure him I'll heal him."

After saying that I looked at Madam.Ronslail.

"Please do, test him out as much as you please."

Madam.Ronslail said that consenting to it. I guess that means I don't need to hold back. I look at Madam.Ronslail while using the spell {Ice Gravel} sending some small rocks of ice flying at the Lios slave. The ice rock hit the slaves left arm. I was aiming for the pit of his stomach on his body so I guess that means he was able to react. Hmm, this is plenty. The slave made a face that he was surprised I suddenly used magic to aim at him but immediately made a face that he was displeased. Alright this is good.

"Since it seems I injured him I'll heal him."

After saying that I approached the slave and used healing magic to immediately fix his injured left arm. This time I didn't try to surprise them but took my time pretending to slowly use magic on him. Even after being healed the slave continued to make a displeased expression. Hmhmhm. I turn around and look at Madam.Ronslail and,

"Come to think of it, I haven't asked what the price was yet."

after saying that, this time I pretended to show interest in the female slaves this time.

"His price is 8,000,000 Z. Since he was a soldier and can use a weapon after all."

A bit of impatience appeared in the madam's tone of voice.

"What's going on with his discipline? It seems that he's displeased?"

and said that. Even then the madam said, "Of course, he's been disciplined as a slave" without panicking but her tone has gotten a little faster.

"I see, then, what's the price of her over there?"

I say that while pointing at the 30 year old or so woman who seems like she has the most power among the ones lined up.

"She's 6,500,000 Z. Of course she's been properly disciplined as well."

It's only a bit but I can see the madam is starting to hurry. Around here should be good.

"Hmn, I guess so. Since I want to maintain a good relationship with your store from now on.."

After I said that I knew that the madam swallowed some saliva.

"I guess I'll buy at the asking price here. I'll go with him the Lios."

The madam's face suddenly got more cheerful. And then,

"Thank you very much. We'll take care of the small formalities in this room over here. Furthermore, if you intend to do the naming ceremony after tomorrow then we can make the request from this store, is there a time you want to set it for?"

And asked me that.

"I understand, I'll try asking. Hey, Ralpa, try asking him as much as you can think to ask."

After saying that I followed after the madam into a different room and we produced the contract. After finishing the procedures and making payment, we returned to the original room and Ralpa and the Lios man were talking about something. Hmm, it seems she's properly obeying what I said. How admirable. It seems that Zenom is talking about the latest news with the female dwarf. Well, I'm sure they have plenty to talk about among the same race. I call out to them and tell them we're leaving this store then turned around. We need to go and prepare the equipment for the Lios after all.

After we left the store I asked Ralpa.

"And, what was his weapon?"

"Eh? I don't know."

She said it completely carelessly.

"Huh? Eh? What were you talking about?"

"Umm you know, that Lios said he likes sweet things!"

She says while laughing out loud. Something like that doesn't matter at all!

"Also, it seems he was a commoner in the Kingdom of Devas. He was captured in the conflict the other day. His father died and it seems his older brother was returned with ransom though. He has bad luck as well right."

I think my luck is pretty bad having to accompany you as well... Just as expected of a mysterious bird, you're bird-brained.

"Al, I asked him about things like that. It seems he uses a two-hand sword. Since I'm sure we can't prepare armor for a while either way he's fine without it for now, is what I guess it will be."

Oh~ as expected of Posei, Zenom. Guys that are actually reliable are different.

"I see, got it. Then let's head to the blacksmith."

After saying that I started walking towards the blacksmith. I was safely able to buy a two-hand sword for 1,200,000 Z and while we were at it we also went and bought some cotton string as well. The string was cheap at 540 Z per 100 M roll or so. It was a pain so I bought 10 reels.

I ate dinner together with the two of them and we started plotting out our actions and positions in the dungeon when we go after tomorrow, probably the day after tomorrow. We made the decision of going to the edge of the town after we go to the temple early in the morning and finish his naming ceremony, then we'll check out his combat abilities and do a bit of training in terms of cooperating with each other. After that I decided to return to my inn right away and sleep for today.

As I lay down in bed I suddenly realized. What should I do about the inn for that Lios bro? Well, I guess the same inn as Ralpa and Zenom would be fine. Thinking that way it's convenient that they're staying at a cheap inn.

.....

Year 7442, Month 6, Day 3

In the early morning I went to "Slave Store, Ronslail" and along with the Lios slave and a servant of the store we went to the temple. I thought there was something special to the naming ceremony of slaves but it wasn't any different from the normal naming ceremony.

【Male/24/5/7421 ▪ Lion-People Race ▪ Viscount Greed Family Owned Slave】

After confirming that his status was safely changed I handed him the sword. When I asked him if this would be good and after playing around with it in his hand and checking the balance he replied "This seems to be durable so it's plenty." He's not making the displeased expression he was yesterday. Then I talked with Zulu as we started on our way towards the leather craftsman store in order to make adjustments for some armor for him.

Rather than his name it's easier to call him by his family name, since it's like the phonetic code.

"I'm sure you already know about me but I'll introduce myself once again. My name is Alan Greed. I'll be working together with you from now on."

And then he was a bit surprised but immediately replied to me.

"My name is Dadino Zulu. I'll be in your care from now on. Master."

Oh, so he comes out with the master. Yeah, it's not half bad.

"Yeah, same here. By the way, is it fine to call you Zulu? Somehow your family name has a better sound than your name. Ah, if you don't like it then feel free to say it."

"Ah, yes. There's no problem. I'm happy since I am proud of my family name."

I see, that's great.

After ordering some leather armor at the leather craftsman's shop, he picked out some that was close to his size and then started measuring Zulu's body to check his sizes. He's pretty tall and his height is close to 190 cm. Lining up with the Tiger-man, Lios is a race with large builds. Though that means he'll use lots of leather to cover that area so I wonder if it'll be more expensive? I was a bit worried about it but even if the price changed a bit at most it's probably a few ten thousand Z. I realized it would be idiotic to get stingy at this point over this amount as I watched the artisan take Zulu's measurements.

After that we headed towards the grassland at the edge of the town where I promised to meet Zenom and Ralpha yesterday. In order to check Zulu's abilities and confirm our ability to cooperate.

Zulu's abilities matched up just right to his level. I guess it's because he trained for quite a while as soldier, he seemed one step behind Ralpha who was used to live combat but if we follow-up with him then I'm sure he'll be fine.

By the way, about Ralph but before I realized it she's learned Void Magic. Since there was no experience in the Special Skill I don't know if she's realized it herself or not. It seems the chances are high that she learned it between last night and this morning. Since she was injured while I noticed it when it was necessary to use identify on her. I indirectly told her to try using magic and she was able to make a small fire without problem. But, since there's the problem of exhausting her MP so I told her to limit it to once per day for now. I told her that once her Void Magic level goes up and she's learned a new elemental magic skill she should be fine using it a few more times per day.

Author's note: Since it's Xmas Eve I gave Al a slave as a present. (Though he had to buy it so it's not a present.) The reason the Identify of the females wasn't done is a secret for now. Also, here's the stats of the sword for Zulu:

Chapter 75: First Challenge

The next morning, after waking up before dawn as usual, I once again check my preparations for adventuring into the dungeon that I did last night before I fell asleep and made sure I didn't miss anything. In terms of food I've prepared three days worth for up to two people of dried meat and beans and split them into two separate bags.

Eh? Wouldn't it be fine if I just let Zulu carry it? Hey now, did you forget the important warning. You never know what will happen inside of the dungeon. If Zulu is turned to ash from the mysterious beam of a monster then what would I do?

That's a joke but don't they say you can teleport around inside the dungeon. In the case that we end up being split up having just one person hold all of the important stuff is epitome of stupidity. If it was an emergency situation where I'm injured and can't carry anything no matter what then it would be different but it's the theory of a infantry unit to decentralize things as much as possible as you go.

Putting aside individual arms, food and flask (I can make water with magic so this is for just in case) and those sorts of important items, and while we don't have any yet I'm sure we'll need first aid medicine and kits for everyone else well later. I bought new bags in order to hold those sorts of plain but important items.

Obviously I had one up until now but since I kept the majority of my luggage in the saddlebag of my horse it was a small bag, just by putting three days of food and some underwear in it and it's already overflowing, furthermore so it doesn't swinging around on horseback it has a belt attached as well so I can't quickly take it off during combat.

And taking into consideration things from here on out I listened to Zenom and Ralpa's opinion yesterday and bought two appropriate ones. The typical adventurer bags that they use are a reasonable size and most important of all there's metal clips on the shoulder strings so it's got a mechanism where if an urgent situation comes up you can simply twist those clips and throw the bag aside. When you re-attach it you have to slide the clip to the side so it's a bit of a pain but it's still convenient. The material is made of something thick and durable like canvas as well so I'm sure this was a good purchase. If possible it's the point where I want to make one with rubber cloth.

Ah, that's right, I ordered both a scabbard and belt for my sword. It seems it'll be ready in less than a week.

I put on my protectors, carry one of the bags on my shoulder, the other bag I hold, and with my bayonet strap on my shoulder I head off to the restaurant we're meeting at. Since it's before dawn and I'm carrying this much full equipment and have something long on my back (well only 1.3 m or so) so it somehow makes me remember preparing to go fishing in my past life and feels nostalgic. I guess it would be better to say the feelings of excitement like I a child when you're carrying a bag with accessories, cooler boxes on both shoulders, a fishing rod and heading from your car to the wharf where the boat is before dawn.

I arrived at the restaurant and the three of them were already there. I give Zulu his bag and have him carry it. He uses a two-handed sword but even when that sword has a blade of about 1 m and the handle is 30 cm because of his large build it seems he isn't uncomfortable wearing it on his waist.

The length itself is about the same as my bayonet.

We all eat breakfast and have the restaurant put water into our flasks. Even though Zulu is a slave he was grateful that he was allowed to eat the same food as us from the menu. It's fine, since your body is capital. After asking a bit, putting aside the amount it seems that normally it's only obvious to give combat slaves used by adventurers and in the army lower quality food. Hmph, is that so?

However, the menu that's lower quality than the breakfast we're eating at this restaurant is only 100 Z (1 copper coin) different per meal. Our breakfast is 300 Z and the one inferior to that is 200 Z. Is there any meaning in being stingy over 100 Z here... If you were in possession of a lot of slaves then it would be different but I still only have one after all.

“Zulu, it’s fine since you’re the candidate for my head slave.”

I said that. Since he was too focused on eating he didn’t respond. It’s fine though.

.....

When we arrived at the entrance plaza there was still a considerably crowd. While we were waiting in line I tried to give Zulu the silver coin to pay the entrance tax for the dungeon but I was stopped by the three of them. Paying the taxes is proof that you’re the owner so it’s fine if I pay for Zulu’s portion as well. So it’s that sort of thing.

It seems that Church-san is acting as the guard for the tax collector again today. After he saw my face he smiled at me so I smiled back. After safely paying the tax for the four of us we moved ahead and there was a stone stairway going underground. It seems that that teleport crystal rod or whatever is down here.

After going down the long stairway the corridor stretches out ahead. There’s torches along the walls so there’s no problem with light. I don’t know if it’s because it’s a wide stone hallway but it feels desolate. Several tens of meters ahead there’s a room with no door. It was just as the party of people that entered before us we’re going into the room.

We follow after them towards the room. In the space until the room at the end of the hall there’s several rooms with no doors along both sides of the hallway as well. I guess these are where you appear when you return from the dungeon. There was no party that came out when we were walking through.

In the center of the room at the end of the hall there was a square pedestal made of stone with no accessories that was about 70 cm high, above that there’s a thin crystal rod with a diameter of about 2–3 cm sticking out. The room itself is a small room of about 4 m per wall. The crystal rod sticking up from the pedestal seems to be about 80 cm. It’s true that about 10 people would be the limit for this length. On the surface of the crystal rod there was light purple sexy letters flickering. I guess this is the incantation to teleport into the dungeon. There's various letters flickering. If it's too long will I be able to remember it?

When I approached and took a look at it I dumbfounded by what happened. As far as I can tell there's three types of letters. The first one is obviously this world's letters {Common}. However, the remaining two were bizarre. They were the English alphabet and Japanese hiragana. I spontaneously exchanged looks with Ralpa. I guess the two of them noticed our strange mood, Zenom and Zulu were looking at us suspiciously. Zenom said,

“What's wrong? It seems that only this one makes sense. Ba.ru.su huh? I guess this is the incantation? I'm sure you don't see crystals like this often so it's surprising but isn't it just as we had heard? It's not too long to remember after all. Come on, let's go.”

After saying that Zulu and Zenom quickly grabbed the crystal rod. Ralpa and I exchanged looks once more and after preparing ourselves grabbed hold of the crystal rod. They're all waiting for me to open my mouth. I guess I'm the one using this incantation. This incantation which seems like it would bring everything crumbling down.

“Barusu!”

Without anything crumbling to the ground, I wonder if in that instant the teleportation was completed? Just the pedestals and crystal that we were holding hasn't changed at all but the state of the room has changed completely. I knew since I had heard the stories but when you actually experience it, it's quite surprising.

I slowly let go of the crystal while restlessly looking around the surroundings. And the moment everyone's hands let go the crystal gave off a yellow light for an instant and there's characters floating on the surface again just like before. Let's see what it says? This time it says da.ri.o.fu huh? I guess it's not particularly words that have any sort of meaning. I was a bit relieved for some reason.

The location we teleported to was like the dead end of a cave. Just as I had heard all of the walls of the cave are giving off light. If you were to say you don't need light then it's true but with this much it might be good to have one. It might be a good idea to buy a lighting magic tool that's been modified into a lantern.

Zenom got right to tying the string to a adequate rock. He's holding the bobbin with a stick in his left hand and has his axe hanging down in his right hand. I take my bayonet off my shoulder, take the scabbard off of the tip and hang it from the D ring on the waist of my protector so I'm ready for combat anytime as well. After Ralph and Zulu held their weapons our preparations were complete.

"Alright, then let's go. Just as I said yesterday I would lead at the front. Behind me is Ralph and next is Zenom. Zulu be careful of Zenom's string."

After confirming that everyone had nodded I start advancing but in several tens of meters we changed the order. The width of the cave gradually got wider and now it's about 8 meters wide. I wondered if it was really a good idea to move in a column in this cave. Now Zulu and I the two of us are standing at the lead and behind us we have Ralph and Zenom watching our backs. Also, while the ground of this cave is a bit rough and uneven it's not as if there's rocks all over the place and it's the texture of dirt. It feels more like the walls are dirt and there's stones scattered around in various places.

We add to the string of the bobbin and when we were about to add to it for the second time we could hear footsteps and voices like "buwan" and "gyau" from ahead of us. It's been a while since our eyes already adapted to the dull light. We have about 30–40 m in our field of vision. It's true we can do without a lantern I guess. Though supposedly there's places with no light at all as well so it would be better to at least have one on hand I'm sure. Since we don't intend to go to a place like that today it's unrelated but if we were to carelessly have a light on us then I'm sure they would notice us from a distance as well.

We all lower our bags and stand on guard with our weapons so if the opponent poses us any danger we can react right away. We left our bags near the edge of the cave. All of us moved to the walls on both sides and cautiously on guard. It seems that the cave continues straight ahead for a short while. Alright, Identify time. In order to depend on Identify for vision I tried using my Unique Ability. I can see the silhouette of a small humanoid 70–80 m ahead. It's a gnoll. It seems that they're all equipped with spears. The number is..11 of them huh? I used Identify on the gnoll in the center and it's level was 3. If it's this then we can do it.

It would be more efficiently to wait for them to approach a bit closer. I held my breath while waiting for the group of gnolls to get closer. It seems that they're slowly approaching us. And after they moved about 10 m ahead their movements suddenly stopped. This is bad, did they notice us? Well, even if they noticed us it wouldn't make much of a difference. The gnolls immediately started advancing. However, they're all screaming something as they charge over here. Just as one would expect of a hyena I wonder if their noses are good? I don't think they had the special skill Super Sense of Smelling though. I wonder if it's an ability that isn't to the level of becoming a Special Skill?

Another 50 m. Still a ways to go.

Another 40 m. As expected the order of the gnolls has started to collapse. It's about time.

Another 30 m. Now's my chance! I jump out into the center of the hall and aim my left hand at the gnolls and discharged my spell. It's the spell {Ice Cone}. A cone-shaped spiral of frost spreads out from my left hand and simultaneously countless small blades of ice like cutters are fired off. I can't be bothered to aim every one of them so instead I just focused on pouring MP into increasing the number of blades. I'm sure they won't die from a cold wave of -30 degrees or so but it's plenty to maintain the small razor like blades made of ice. In the 15 degree or so cone-shaped area in front of my left hand the dense number of ice blades quickly turned the pitiful four gnolls at the head of the group into bloody corpses.

While I'm at it let's go with one more. Next is the spell {Chain Lightning}. It's quite literally an improved version of {Lightning Bolt}, the amount of MP it uses increases but after the electricity from this hits it splits even further and starts hitting other targets nearby one after another. The number of times it splits goes up to four times but the weakness is that it only goes up to targets in an area of about 90 degrees behind the target up to 5 m away before the divisions stop. However, if it even splits up once then it spreads out quite a bit from there. In the end the power of it falls to about half that of {Lightning Bolt} but for a low level opponent like gnolls then it should be plenty.

I don't think that this will wipe them all out. I had to maintain my concentration for the 1 second or so to maintain the magic until the divisions of the {Chain Lightning} had completed, I succeeded in killing another five of them with this spell. There's 2 gnolls remaining. They're 30 m ahead and I guess their morale dropped losing the majority of their allies, while they were spacing out I finished them off with consecutive uses of {Stone Arrow} without making them into missiles.

I succeeded in taking out 11 gnolls in a period of 10 seconds or so. It would be fine if the average level of the enemies on the 1st floor is this amount though...

"It was an easy victory. Let's gather the magic stones."

After I said that and picked up my bag the other three followed after me in a daze. It seems that even Zenom is dumbfounded. Did I overdo it a bit? I thought so but it was our first battle. Isn't it something you put some fighting spirit into? Including the {Stone Arrow} at the end I used close to 80 MP but it's an amount that doesn't even add up to 1% of my total MP. And if it's that amount then it should recover in 7–8 hours.

I hand Zulu a knife and while waiting for the other three to take out the magic stones I stand on guard in case monsters from from a bit ahead. I can clearly hear the conversations of the three while they're working.

"So master was a powerful magician, since master only used healing magic yesterday I didn't realize it."

"Yeah, he used magic when he met us as well but for it to have been to that extent.."

Uhaha, it's fine if you say even more. Since I'm the type that grows from being praised.

"Since I've become able to use magic, it's no good if I don't quickly become able to use it like that."

I think that's impossible, young lady.

In a bit over 10 minutes they finished gathering all of the magic stones. When I tried Identifying them the value was about 2,000. If we sell them at about 70% then it's about 150,000 Z huh? Furthermore, the weapons of the gnolls were just sharpened wooden spears so I thought we wouldn't gather them but we might be able to use them for something. The length is about 1 m after all. For the time being I had Zulu carry about 3 of them. By the way, I wonder where in the world they got their hands on lumber?

We continued carefully advancing ahead. Let alone crossroads there's not even any curves. Isn't the string useless?

"Hey Zenom, wouldn't it be better to not use the string until the path splits up?"

I tried saying that but it seems that Zenom had the same idea. He immediately said "I guess so, wait just a minute" and ran off to the starting point. Since we've still only moved about 400 m, so I guess he went back to the teleport crystal in order to untie the string from the rock.

There's nothing in particular to do until Zenom returns. It's a short break of about 10 minutes. Even if I say that it's only been about 15 minutes since we teleported in and started exploring. The amount of time we spent gathering the magic stones was the longest. The combat itself was only about 10 seconds after all. We continue to remain cautious of ahead while waiting for Zenom to come back. Before long Zenom returned and started rolling up the string. Ah, I see. If we don't roll it back up then we can't use it again. I thought, wouldn't have been fine if he rolled it up as he came back, but it's certainly more efficient to have one person hold the string as another spins the bobbin.

We ended up spending a total of 30 minutes of inactivity but after pumping ourselves up again we slowly start to move forward while on guard.

We proceeded another 300 m. The same as usual the cave just keeps going straight ahead. I don't see any traps anywhere. However, it's quite exhausting to be careful of traps that you don't know where they might be. I thought we would be able to advance more comfortably but I guess I was underestimating it. Along the way we changed places so Zenom and Ralpa were at the lead and Zulu and I were in the back.

And soon after we changed positions we could hear small sounds form ahead of us. It seems like the sounds of combat but it's seems like it's quite far away as well. Zenom turns around to look at me. I nod to him and only say we should slowly and cautiously keep moving ahead. In addition I also say, “if the enemy has equal numbers to us then we’ll fight using swords this time”. It’s fine if we keep moving forward using magic like this but with that it will end up being only me that earns any experience.

We can still hear the sounds of what seems to be combat. I can’t tell for sure but it seems to have gotten louder. Ralpa turns around and whispers.

“It seems like someone is fighting. Is it fine to not go and save them?”

“Eh? Why?”

“I mean, they’ve been fighting for quite a while and they might be having a difficult time right?”

It’s true that it’s been about a minute already since we heard the first shout and sounds. I think they’re most likely having a difficult fight. However, why is it necessary to go and save them? When I’m stumped for words Zenom came to my aid.

“Ralpa, it’s their own responsibility to adventure in the dungeon. If they’re having a difficult battle then it might be a strong enemy. It would be better to proceed carefully.”

“And, we might end up buying unnecessary resentment like, don’t steal our game. Even if we went to their side like this it would probably be better not to suddenly interfere. We should limit it to just remaining spectators until the adventurers ask us to save them.”

That’s right, that’s right.

It seems that Ralpa has understood as well. I, added that to the conversation. Oh, I guess Zenom’s explanation was plenty. Since Ralpa has been an adventurer for quite a while I’m sure she can divide these things and if you properly explain it to her she’ll understand as well.

Somehow I feel like I'm being criticized when I hear an ex-high school girl with the appearance of a 14 year old girl say "Won't you go and save them?" to me.

We start proceeding ahead again cautiously. After going about 50 m the cave bends to the right for the first time. Since it's not a forked path there's still no need for the string. After turning right on the corner and the sounds suddenly got louder. I guess the sounds were being dampened somewhat by the corner until now. I can hear some shouts but it's not proper words. Just the sounds of monsters yelling and several combat sounds.

If it's an adventurer fighting them they might have been reduced down to just one left. If we run I wonder if we'll make it in time? My basis for it is weak but if it's me I could probably save them. If I use my excess mana and fire off magic consecutively wouldn't I be able to save them? Though it's their own responsibility, it would give me bad dreams to just let them die I guess.

In the next moment, Zenom raised his right hand and crouched down as he was moving ahead. What is it? is what I was thinking but after hearing Zenom's words my questions were answered.

"It's a trap. I think it's a pitfall... It seems like the edge of the cave would be alright. Be careful of it."

It's true it's just as Zenom says, ahead of him in the center of the cave there's an unnatural area of bulge that's about 5 m in diameter. That was dangerous~ If I had gotten impatient and ran to try and help there's no way I would have seen it. If I was careless then we all could have fallen into the pitfall there.

"Zulu, stand one of the spears on the side of it. It'll be a landmark for the trap."

If there's a powerful monster up here then we might need to retreat. I can't laugh at all at the possibility of overlooking the location of the trap when we're retreating and falling in the pitfall. It's a good thing we collected the spears. Though in reality I had actually had him collect them so Zulu could use them as throwing spears.

It seems that Zulu quickly realized my intention and after avoiding the pitfall he stabbed the spear into the center of the cave as a sign. There's a pitfall at the end of this spear. Another 50 m ahead in the cave and this time it bent to the left. We remain cautiously while slowly proceeding ahead. The sounds of combat and screams of a monster are still ringing out. It's already been close to 10 minutes since we first noticed it. As we approached the corner the sounds got even louder. It should already be a bit over 10 meters away. I wonder if we'll be able to see after we turn this corner?

Thinking that I stopped everyone and stuck my body against the left wall while carefully sticking just my head out and peeked into the next hallway. I've already activated my Unique Ability Identify. Incidentally, I wasn't able to see through the pitfall trap with Identify. I think there's probably a thin cloth or dirt covering the pitfall. That's why my glance can't see through the structure of the trap and thus I wasn't able to find it with identify.

In a place about 30 m ahead of the corner there's a group of about 20 goblins fighting. I see several of them on the ground as well. I don't see any figures of adventurers. It seems to be a fight between monsters. I tried using Identify on several of them but the levels were 2–4 and not that strong. I quietly returned to where everyone was and said.

"There's a group of goblins fighting about 30 m ahead of here. The number totals about 20 of them. From what I can tell if we were to ambush them then we can win I'm sure. I can end things in one hit with magic but what should we do?"

And then Zulu said surprised in a low voice.

"You can still use magic! But..I'll show you I can be useful. If it's just goblins I'll show you I can cut them to pieces!"

Zenom says,

"20 of them huh...It's quite a few but if it's just goblins I'm sure we can win. Shall we go!?"

that. It's good to see he's energetic.

"20 of them indeed. Then, we'll charge into them so Al should prepare to use magic in order to not let any of them escape."

It seems Ralpa is good to go as well. Alright.

“Then, Zulu, you take the lead. Charge in. Zenom go from behind Zulu on the right. Ralpa you cover Zenom’s blind spots. I’ll try throwing the gnolls spears but don’t count on this. I can’t do anything more than the initial intimidation. First, I’ll throw one spear from the corner. At the same time as I jump out from the corner everyone charge in. If anyone gets injured, I’m sure the goblins we be able to run away but put priority on being healed. Alright?”

I simply decide the order of assault and gave instructions on it. If it’s just at the level of goblins then I’m sure there shouldn’t be any problems with just brute-forcing through them. And as long as no one dies instantly then I can heal them so, well there shouldn’t be any problem.

After checking the timing I jump out from the corner and with Zulu at the lead, the three rangers, otherwise known as my allies let out a roar while charging in.

While looking at their backs I use all of the muscles in my body like pulling back a bow and throw the wooden spear overhead of them. Obviously my aim sucks. In the first place, I’ve never thrown a spear before. It’s fine even if it doesn’t hit. I made excuses to myself while praying for the spear to hit but I saw it stab into the ground in front of the group of goblins. How pathetic~ Next time maybe I’ll try making the spear throwing device {Atlatl}.

I quickly saw Zulu and the others attack the group of goblins. It seems that the goblins who were fighting had no idea what was going on. Starting from the unlucky one that was stabbed through the back by Zulu’s two-handed sword, and the ones who’s heads were split open by one hit of Zenom and Ralpa’s {Tomahawks} and the confusion of the goblins got even worse it seems. It seems that the group that the first three that were killed was a part of it thought Zulu and them were helpers for the other side and the other side misunderstood that their allies increased.

I watch that while preparing myself with the last remaining spear and after approaching a bit closer I threw it at the one on the end. However, the spear missed this time as well and stabbed into the corpse of a goblin that had already died on the side. I had intended to aim carefully but since it’s literally just a sharpened wooden stick, I’m sure it’s not something you can hit with so easily just by aiming as you throw it.

Zulu is swinging the two-handed sword like a fierce god, without letting any goblins get near him any goblins that existed inside of his reach just turned into dead goblins. Every time that iron storm-like gale moves forward another one and another of the moving goblins decrease in numbers. Zenom and Ralpa seem to be taking them down one at a time making sure to finish them off in one hit each.

In a few minutes the goblins had been reduced to less than half and the remaining goblins are just recklessly swinging their cudgels while screaming which doesn't seem like anything more than they've fallen into panic. I use the spell {Stone Arrow Missile} to shoot through the backs of any of them that try to run from a distance, it's already gotten to the point where I can just concentrate on the operation itself.

In the end, without even taking 10 minutes the three of them were able to wipe out a group of 20 goblins unharmed. After that we gathered magic stones again and continued exploring even further into the dungeon.

I wonder if it's still about 8 am in the morning? It's a good start for the first day.

Chapter 76: Zulu

Year 7442, Month 6, Day 4

I think we've already proceeded about 1Km from where teleported. Up until here it's been a straight path with nowhere to get lost. I wonder what part of this is a "dungeon"? When I'm thinking things like that we finally arrived at a split path. One of them is a wide cave that continues ahead. The other one is a narrow cave with a width of about 2-3m that bends to the right.

"From here on out, thinking about the possibility of shifting positions in the chance that we run into a power enemy, I think we should just keep going on the wide path for today but how about?"

I tried asking Zenom and,

"I guess so. Either way we've put a time limit on it for today so there's no need to overdo things. I agree with Al. Let's continue ahead like this."

and replied with that. If I can get Zenom to agree with me then it should be fine. Continuing after Zenom,

"What should we do about the string? Judging from how things look here I don't think it's necessary but.."

Yeah. It's true it doesn't like we need it here? Thinking that I was about to reply and,

"Just in case, I think it would be a good idea to prepare the string. There might be another forked road right away beyond here."

Ralpa said that. What the, she's acting strangely cautious. However, there's no problem with being too careful.

"I guess that's right. Since it's still our first time, let's proceed carefully here. If we don't need it then it's fine if we just return to collect it again."

After I reply like that and Zenom quickly started looking for an appropriate rock to tie the string to at the split paths. While Zenom was tying the string to a rock I tried using Identify to look down the narrow path but I didn't see anything particularly suspicious, I only saw that there was a curve a bit over 10 meters on the left.

After the preparations were done with the string we continued advancing ahead cautiously again with Zulu and I at the front.

During the period we added to the string five times there were three split paths. We continued moving forward while picking the widest paths of the cave. In terms of traps there was one pitfall but it was fine since we skillfully noticed where it was. It's a bit difficult that you can't tell it's there unless you notice the small differences on the ground. Unable to imagine what kind of traps you might run into while slowly moving forward wears away at your nerves.

Incidentally, we collected the gnoll spears again and stuck it into the ground near the pitfall like before so it should be relatively easy getting back.

We continue ahead more.

There's yet another split path. This time it's split up in three directions like a crossroad. Other than the front wide cave the other two paths are somewhat narrow caves.

However, other than just the crossroad we found another thing different from the forks until now. On the side of where the paths split there was 30 cm diameter or so normal rock but that rock had a string tied around it. The string is the same type of cotton string we're using but it doesn't seem to be a new one.

"What do you think?"

I asked no one in particular.

"If you think about it normally then a party of adventurers other than us would be ahead of this."

Zenom replied.

"But, this string is considerably dirty. It's questionable whether that party of adventurers is still alive.”

Zulu replied while crouching down and observing the string.

“Then it’s decided. Let’s try following this string. If they’re wiped out then we might be able to get our hands on their equipment.”

Ralpa makes a suggestion that you wouldn’t think she’s an ex-high school girl. Well, I was thinking the same thing but if they were wiped out then I think we would run into the corpses of humans or non-humans, I wonder if she’s fine with that? Also, it’ll be like grave robbing but I wonder if that’s fine. Though it is one of the objectives in the dungeon.

“Alright, then let’s follow along this string. If it goes well then just like Ralpa said we could get our hands on some equipment.”

After I said that and everyone started proceeding down the cave that breaks to the right following the old string. The string continues without breaks.

Since there’s a string I think it’s okay to believe there wouldn’t be any pitfalls below it. When I tried saying that Zenom said, and replied with that. It’s true that’s the case. We brace ourselves more than ever and sharpen our senses as we move ahead.

“No, I don’t think we can let our guards down. It’s also possible to think that this string itself is some kind of trap. I think we should proceed carefully just as we have until now.”

We continue past several corners and follow the string along split paths. It’s long. An hour has already passed. I think we’ve proceeded for about 1 Km? During this time other than our footsteps and voices from talking occasionally there’s almost no sound. Occasionally we can hear something like a small scream echo through.

Come to think of it, it seems that there’s a large scale tunnel like this underground but I don’t see anything like air holes or ventilation. I wonder where the air is coming from? Suddenly that thought crossed my mind.

I think about such things that don’t matter for now (no, it does matter though) as we continued moving ahead and I can tell there’s a somewhat large room at the end of the cave. At the break of the cave about 30 m ahead it seems that other than the floor the walls and roof have disappeared. The string continues into that room. I somehow have a bad feeling. I think I should stand at the head here. I gently increase my pace and stand at the front. With a simple gesture I give out instructions to follow after me.

I use Identify and look at everything that I can within my field of vision (even if I say that it's just a big larger than the cave). I can tell there's things that appear to be rocks and a wall further in. The roof is also a bit higher than the cave but not too far to be seen.

I sweep over my limited field of vision carefully with my eyes. And, I've found something artificial in the right corner blocking my vision of the cave wall. I reflexively Identified it.

It seems to be a sword.

I couldn't see anything else from where I'm standing. In order to open up my field of vision I need to move even further in. However, if I move ahead I might run into the opponent that made the owner of these weapons so they can never hold them again. If possible I'd like to Identify that opponent. If it's a monster then it might be a powerful opponent. Hmn.

However, even after holding our breath and slowly moving forward nothing seemed like it was going to come and attack us. I wonder if there's already no living creatures in this room? I want to consult with Zenom but it would be bad to make a noise. It's possible that it just still hasn't noticed us yet. I quietly turn around and after looking at Zenom, Ralpha, and Zulu I nod. After facing ahead again we start moving ahead slowly again.

I wonder how many minutes it took for us to move a few meters. Sweat is gathering on my forehead from how tense I am.

Every time my field of sight opens up I use Identify more. After all it seems to be the remains of what used to be adventurers. And the presence of a creature clearly different from that.

I can hear a small sound almost like a heavy bag is being dragged along. The one making the sound still hasn't entered my sight. I get angry at myself wondering if I should use Identify when I see it at a time like this or just use a spell to attack it right away.

If the corpse is remaining then if it's immediately after death I can identify it just as it was when it was living so I should probably attack first here.

I quietly take my left hand off of the fore-grip of my bayonet and relax so I can use a spell at any time.

I move my feet as I slowly move forward. There's already only about 10 m until the room that's in front of my eyes.

Though the range I can see has stretched out quite a bit from the 2 m or so width of the cave I still can't see the walls of the room in front of me. It's probably about 50 m in depth. Since I don't know the distance to the walls on both sides I can't just blindly freeze everything either. If my sight doesn't pass through once then I can't use dirt or ice.

I don't know if it's my imagination but the sound seems like it's getting louder.

I don't know if it's getting louder because we're approaching it or it's approaching us or both though. I wonder if this is the type of sound a monster makes when it moves? If that's the case then it's movements might be dull. No wait, it would probably be better to think it's normally dull but gets faster when in combat. And going off of the sound it's probably pretty large. It's definitely not a small monster that walks on two feet like goblins and gnolls.

Another 5 m to the exit of the cave. I can still hear the sound but it also sounds like it's getting farther as well. It's hard to tell. My field of sight has gotten a lot wider. Other than the first two there's other weapons and shields laying around. But, I don't see anything like corpses or bones anywhere. I wonder what this means? Were they eaten?

While gradually moving forward I noticed it. There's a bit of a rotten smell. I guess it's the smell of the owners of the equipment laying around. In the edge of my increased sight I can see the walls on the sides finally. It's a room that's around 50 m in every direction I guess. It's considerably large. As a bonus what was making the sounds entered my sight as well.

On the right side of the large room there's a large 3 m long or so caterpillar like monster and it's trying to move further into the large room. Since it has that large build, I think it can probably endure one or two hits of a spell just like the Horned Bear did. I hesitated for a moment but I quickly activated the spell. It's the spell {Audible Clamor}.

Since it's a caterpillar I thought it's movements would be dull. I made the noise in a place a bit away in order to keep its attention as far away from over here. Along with the activation of the spell there was a loud rupturing noise almost like when the tire of a car goes flat further in the large room. Simultaneously I noticed the movements of the monster get faster. It's surprisingly fast. If we were to run we would be faster but it's faster than I imagined.

Since I made a loud noise I guess the three behind me were surprised, they all held their breath but it seems they immediately noticed the caterpillar running further into the room and each of them prepared their weapons but aren't moving yet.

I think it took about 6–7 seconds for the caterpillar to move further into the large room where I triggered the sound. If I have that much time then it's plenty to open the Identify window and check its HP while preparing the next spell. It has about 150 HP. Next I used {Lightning Bolt}. The electricity released penetrated the caterpillar. I promptly fired off {Flame Arrow}. A bundle of five arrows of fire fly off towards the caterpillar, otherwise known as Scavenger Crawler.

The arrows of fire pierce through it's skin that looks like it's made of green rubber and it seems to have burnt the surrounding areas. It seems I fired them off into it's ass but it properly did damage. In the Identify window it's HP has gone to –23. It's still not dead but it's a serious injury on the verge of death. The Scavenger Crawler is just convulsing. Before it dies I guess I'll read out the Identify window.

【Special skill: Paralysis】

While I'm at it I'll open the Special Skill Paralysis as well.

【Special skill: Paralysis(Scavenger Crawler); There's a sharp thorn on the end of the eight feelers of the outer structure of the Scavenger Crawler and the end of those feelers are always wet from mucus secreted from the thorn. Any living creature up to 200 Kg without resistance to paralysis will immediately be violated by the paralysis and have all other voluntary motions than swallowing and breathing obstructed. The effects of the paralysis last the same amount of days as the level of Scavenger Crawler but it's possible to offset through the level of victim. However, it will still last for at least one day. Nevertheless, if the level of the victim exceeds the level of the Scavenger Crawler by more than 10 levels then they will not be effected by the paralysis. Also, if their weight exceeds 200 Kg, it requires an additional 10 seconds per 10 Kg of weight for the paralysis to take effect. In order for the victim to recover from the effect of the paralysis prior to the duration of the effect they must either use a potion to remove paralysis (limited to magic potions) or use detoxification magic. Furthermore, since the paralysis special skill of the Scavenger Crawler is not a poison but rather closer to a magic effect, in order to resist it either an ability that provides resistance to paralysis or resistance to magic is necessary.】

From just a glance it seems to be a pretty dangerous opponent. I think it would be best for our sake to finish it off right away but after looking around the large room there doesn't seem to be any other monsters than this one. Since I have some room here I should try experimenting. I sent a {Stone Arrow} flying. Along with a popping noise the arrow of stone stabbed into the Scavenger Crawler's body. It's HP went down to -34. Hmm. This time I try using {Ice Arrow}. It's HP is -43. So this one does more damage huh. I wonder if {Air Cutter} can cut through it. HP became -49. This one's no good.

With how thick it's skin seems to be I doubt any gravel-type magic that fires off stones would do much damage. It's probably no good if it isn't at least an arrow-type. The Scavenger Crawler should completely die in another 6 points of damage. Among the arrow-types {Flame Arrow} did the most damage. It was about 15 damage per arrow. I wonder if the damage is greater because it's Fire-type? Well whatever. I'll quickly finish it off. I dealt the final blow with the spell {Flame Arrow}.

After confirming that it's condition has changed to Death in the Identify window, I take a breath.

Before I tell Zulu to go and gather the magic stone, I told everyone to carefully move ahead.

During that time I tried opening the sub-window of Identify.

【Scavenger Crawler; A species of the Crawler race. Length 3m all around. Lifespan is roughly 50 years. Produced from eggs. It's always giving off a rotten smell and moves on multiple legs. After paralyzing their prey with the eight feelers, they wrap their prey up in a cocoon and preserve them. They use the large pair of jaws on both sides of their mouth to chew their prey. There's countless saw-like teeth on both sides in their mouth and they grind down their prey before eating them. They can detect sound through the ear holes on both sides of their body and can detect visible light through the two slug or feeler-like eyes on their head. They have no sense of smell. They go into heat once in a couple of years and after breeding with the opposite sex lay up to 10 eggs. During the six month period until the eggs hatch the parent stays near the eggs in order to protect them. It prefers tainted meat but in order to secure food for the future it will actively attack other living creatures. After paralyzing the prey it ferments them in the cocoon made of string from it's tail then feeds on them.】

I got a feeling of unease when I was reading the Identify window for the Scavenger Crawler's race. Ah, not in the details of the window itself. In any case, there's no choice other than to put off the feeling of unease for now. Let's quickly gather the articles of the deceased, take the magic stone and say goodbye to this place. I'm innocently missing the sun. It's a bit early but I think we should already turn back for today.

After I instructed Zulu to gather the magic stone we started gathering the equipment scattered around the large room. There's four iron swords and three spears. Two round shields made of wood and iron that are around 40 cm in diameter. Also, seven of what appears to be knives. It seems that all other organic materials than the metal and wood portions were melted in that things stomach. There's not even a single leather glove left.

The weapons aren't particularly rusted so you could probably put them up for sale just as they are. Since this large room is pretty dry. However, it's not a good idea to directly fight against a Scavenger Crawler. If it weren't for magic then let alone a hard fight we could have easily taken the paralysis and been done in.

Well, the experience was huge though. It was a bit over 7,000. I got about 3,800 from the group of gnolls this morning and about 180 for the two goblins I killed. It's huge that I was able to earn close to 11,000 experience. It's enough to start laughing. If we keep up like this and earn the same amount of experience once again then I'll level up.

Zulu finished gathering the magic stone. It's one with a diameter of 3 cm. The color is slightly grey and it has a value of about 5,000. It's not much at all. Even though the Horned Bears had a value of close to 100,000.

Putting aside the Scavenger Crawler since we obtained a bunch of equipment I declared that this was plenty for today.

On the way back without any particular problems we were able to return to the teleport crystal. Just in case I checked it but the incantation still hadn't changed from "da.ri.o.fu". Suddenly, I was interested in what would happen if you left someone behind but I realized that at most the incantation would change and nothing else so after confirming everyone had grabbed on to the crystal rod we teleported.

The time was still just past noon. In order to sell the equipment we found for money we went to the blacksmith. We were able to sell the swords for around 500,000 Z each. The spears were about 200,000 — 250,000 Z. The shields were 300,000 Z. In total it came out to sales of 3,260,000 Z. We made a killing. I gave Zenom and Ralpa a bonus of 100,000 Z each and in addition give Zulu the money for his inn and we split up until dinner for today.

After we split up from Zenom and Ralpa, I went to eat lunch with Zulu. Since we did so well I splurged a bit and added the pork skewer option to our lunch set. Zulu was extremely grateful but I interrupted his words and said.

“You know, Zulu. It’s fine. It’s true I bought you as a combat slave. That’s why there’s no mistake I’m your master. However, that’s because, I bought you because I definitely knew I needed you. That’s why, just eat your meals boldly. If I had no intention of properly looking after a slaves meals then I wouldn’t have bought one in the first place.”

Somehow I can’t explain it properly.

“Thank you very much, master. But I am the second son of a commoner and it’s not like I was officially made into a squire. It’s true that I haven’t missed out on training with the sword since I was a child. However, when I was captured in the battle a while back, my older brother was able to return when his ransom was paid but I had given up right from the start. That was quite literally, I felt I was happy just to be alive. Ah, it’s not as if I resent my older brother. I just gave up thinking that this was my fate. I thought for sure that I would end up having to fight Devas or even the people from my own village as a war slave.”

What is it? A story of his origins?

“But, after being sold to a slave trader on the battlefield I was passed around and came to this Baldukk. If I was brought into the battlefield then I thought of rampaging as much as I could. I thought I would make a it a brilliant end at least. However, it won’t go that way in Baldukk. There’s a dungeon in the Kingdom of Devas as well. It’s called the Dungeon of Benkelish. Do you know of it?”

“No, sorry. I don’t know it.”

“I see, well it is a dungeon in a foreign country after all, it’s not unreasonable that you wouldn’t know of it. However, the dungeon of Benkelish is famous for the mortality rate of combat slaves that challenge it together with adventurers. I heard that they are often used as shields against monsters or depending on the case as lures. That’s why I thought that would be the same in Baldukk. I thought I would definitely end up being left to be eaten by a monster in the place of the one who buys me in the underground of Baldukk.”

“But, I was lucky being purchased by master. You prepared a high-quality sword for me and even have prepared armor. Not just that but when I thought I would always be at the front in the most dangerous place, I was properly allowed to change positions. Just before that caterpillar monster I was surprised that master stayed at the front. Even though you don't know what is waiting, even though it seemed like a frightening large room, master took on the most dangerous position himself. It was so surprising that I couldn't close my mouth."

I didn't bother turning around every time so I didn't know.

"And by using that powerful magic in succession you defeated the monster in no time at all. Master, please tell me. Why was I purchased? I think that with master's ability then you could enter the dungeon all on your own. That seems to be the strangest to me."

"..Just like Zulu worried about several times, it's not like my mana is infinite. There's a limit to the things I can do myself."

"However, I feel that master could take on dozens of knights all on his own..."

"Yeah, if the situation allows then I'm sure I could do that sort of thing as well. If they come at me several at a time or if it's an area like in the dungeon where there's not a lot of space for movement. However, it's impossible in an area outside or a large room like the one today. And just like I said eventually I'll run out of mana, it's not like I can swing a sword forever as well. I need to eat as well and if I don't sleep I won't last a whole day I'm sure."

My ability to go through consecutive battles is just as I said but if it was just at a level of 100 or so people outside then I could bury them in dirt or other things probably.

"..It's true, that is just as master says. I just said taking on several dozen knights, though it went in a slightly different direction than what I suggested but...No, I feel that the thing that I was saying while small was understood from the response just now."

Most likely, what Zulu wanted to say was as long as I make proper preparations and remain careful then at the very least couldn't I take on any monster on the 1st floor. I wonder what I was going for hopping on Zulu's figurative example and then intentionally responding to it in a different direction? But, you know, it's hard to say to your own slave that the reason you bought them was because you wanted a human shield. No, it might be fine even if I say it though. Somehow I don't want to.

However, to the first serious question and expression Zulu has shown me I want to respond as honestly as possible.

"Zulu. Could it be you're worried that you're just baggage that's in the way? If that's the case then throw away that way of thinking right now. It's true that if you were to fight head on you probably wouldn't even be able to win against Ralpa who's woman. But, so what about that? Will you forever be unable to win against her?

And even if you can't win against her directly with a sword then isn't it fine to just find something else you can win with? Do you intend to spend the rest of your life with only as much ability as you have now? If that's the case then you would have made me your owner waste his money. Well, if that's the case then it's simply the fact that I don't have an eye for people though."

Zulu was looking at the food on the table while listening to my words but he properly looked at my eyes while responding.

"You must be joking. I'll prove to you that I was a cheap purchase."

"Yeah, that's how it needs to be. We'll enter the dungeon again tomorrow morning. For today eat properly and rest."

I grin then smile and said while bring the pork skewer to my mouth.

After finishing our meal I told Zulu that we would all be meeting for dinner at the restaurant we ate breakfast at and handed him his bag before I left the store.

Side Story 14: In the case of Chigusa Hayato (Age 27 at time of accident)

I'm not in luck. I'm not in luck at all. Chigusa Hayato has spent his time thinking that. Since he was able to study reasonably well he got decent grades and was able to graduate from a college with a reasonably good reputation, and while he went through quite a bit of trouble to find employment he was able to find a job at a company that wouldn't be made fun of as second-rate. At the start of last year he retired from that company though.

Since he had slightly good memory and was a bit mature for his age when he was young, there was a period where he was called a genius by his parents and relatives. He was good looking as well. Thanks to that his pride was naturally high and he often looked down on his classmates at school and people in his surroundings with no ability. It wasn't particularly that his physique was bad but as he grew up he gradually moved away from exercise and spent more time reading books or playing games.

Since even if he didn't particularly put any effort into it he could get good grades until he entered high school he had good enough grades to be considered an honors student. However, starting from high school the excellent characteristics he had since he was born stopped working so it couldn't be helped and he started to study but he wasn't able to get as good of grades as he thought. Pushed by an unfounded confidence that "as long as I do it seriously I can do it" even then he didn't study seriously (the person himself thought he was studying seriously though).

In the end he was unable to make anyone close enough to call friends during high school, in the end what prevented him from developing relations beyond just the surface was that he developed the bad habit of looking down on other people somewhere in his heart, and he had become a person who just points out all of the flaws of people. He looked down as people in sports clubs who put in the effort as just beating "muscle-brains" while he indulged in his hobbies of games, manga, and novels.

Also, he would call the people with even the slightest bad behavior that are in any school DQNs and openly look down on them. Obviously even among them there were those that had good grades individually but because he hated their personality that quickly picks fights and uses violence he looked down on them. However, the thing that says the most for kids between their mid and late teens is physical strength and since he also knew they had leadership as well he secretly was jealous of them as well but it's something that the person himself would never accept. After all, Hayato is a coward who never has fought anyone since the time he was child and in order to hide this complex he's taken the outward justification of "no matter what your reason is violence is the lowest behavior" in order to avoid fights.

It could be said that it was great luck for him that he was somehow able to enter an upper-middle class college in that situation but the person himself was displeased with it. The amount of socializing he had to do was reduced even further in college compared to his high school days and was limited to just going for a drink with the people he was familiar with but couldn't call friends but it never developed into anything further. Obviously he's never gone out with a girl even once as well.

The fact that he was able to find employment was such a big thing that you would almost have to doubt it was some kind of mistake but without even being grateful for that good luck, he instead looked down on the large companies who dropped him at the paperwork screening stage by thinking "they don't have an eye for people" or "that companies human resources department is incompetent so I didn't make it through the screening". Of course, since his degree wasn't in the sciences so it wouldn't have any use other than office work, sales, or logistics related but since it was written on his resume that he wanted an occupation in research and development it's that much more pathetic, but as usual the person himself continued with his unfounded confident that "as long as I do it seriously I should be able to do anything better than the average person."

Through occurrences like this his twisted complex and habits of looking down on others remained strong while only his age became an adult but there's no way he could skillfully perform himself in society. After sending several dozen companies his resume, repeating interviews, gradually the rank of places he applies for starts to drop, without even paying attention to occupation just trying to find jobs wherever, even though he was finally able to find employment, he was unable to compromise with his superiors and threw down his resignation with just momentum.

Of course, it's not as if it's not also the fault of Hayato's superiors, but in these sorts of situations, over 90% of it is the individuals responsibility. The ones who make the compromises aren't the people above you, it's only obvious that the subordinates give in. However, after finding employment and spending a few years with a stable lifestyle his natural personality started to hold its head up again. Though reinforcing his personality with info from the net, "humans are all equal", "I'm sick of lowering my head to superiors that can't even do their own jobs", "black companies are against the labor standard laws", and he started seriously believing in things that are unrealistic once again, so there's no way he could get along well in society.

Even people who think things like that don't put them into words if it's a person who has some amount of life experience then it's easy to tell from a glance that they're giving off a wrong impression and building up dissatisfaction inside them. Obviously there's no way he could leave good results on his jobs. Naturally his assessment followed the lowest line possible. However, it's also true that just Chigusa Hayato felt displeased with that assessment.

Under the false belief that "I'm a superior human. I just haven't gotten serious yet.", "Even if I quit this company that gives me unfair assessments there's plenty of other offers", he resigned but after quitting in 2014 he still hasn't found any hope of finding employment again. In other words, if anywhere in his life he had thought "My abilities are at best normal. Since I was finally able to find employment I need to do whatever I can to keep it, there's no other option than to put some effort into it." and started to take his job seriously, while listening some unreasonable aspects of his company honestly then he could have lived his life without any major mistakes. Without even realizing that the "unlucky" thing was that he made it to the age of 27 without realizing something that simple could be called his misfortune.

Once again today he went to an interview for reemployment but while replying to the obstinate questions of the human resources person he was barely able to endure throwing a temper and he thinks he was somehow able to act courteously. Since he hasn't had lunch yet today so while thinking about eating something at the final stop of the bus Shinjuku station, he ended up having a truly "unlucky" event befall him.

It was an event that happened in an instant. When I was vaguely thinking about the menu for lunch today in my seat on the bus, I felt a large shock, and soon after that my body was penetrated by something like a steel material as I died. I didn't even have enough time to comprehend what happened.

(Ah, my life is really unlucky~)

Unable to properly breathe in a pain where his entire body is being crushed, Chigusa Hayato is thinking such foolish things as usual. Well, it would be harsh to criticize him for this. In any case, just the same as all of the other people involved in the accident, he reincarnated on Orth. The place he reincarnated to was a town ruled by a Baron in the southern parts of Rombert Kingdom. Chigusa Hayato was born as the third son of a serf family that lives on the edge of a town a commoner that serves that Baron owns.

Obviously unable to understand what was happening and unable to control his emotions he cried in a loud voice. When he finally was able to comprehend his situation about half a year had passed. I don't know why but it seems that I'm living my life* once again as a baby. And while he said life* he was able to understand that his new life wasn't a human but the non-humans that come out in manga and novels. The new name he was given is Beilett Dereonola. Nickname Beil.

I don't know what the language they're speaking is at all but since it seems that English words are included it's a bit of a relief. If I just listen to the words I know then I somehow understand what they're saying. In any case in order to communicate I have to learn the words first. First I need to start listening to the conversations around me.

Another year passed like that and finally the naming ceremony was held. There he saw something happen that he couldn't help but think was a joke. The Status Open. After that when no one else was looking he tried using Status Open on himself and was shocked. Special Skill and Unique Abilities. The Special Skill is “Super Hearing”. The Unique Ability is “Highly Efficient Digestive System”. What’s that? is what I was thinking but it’s not like I can ask anyone so I’ll just ignore it. I guess I’ll try it out when I’m eating. “Super Hearing” is the racial skill of us Bunny-men and I’ve both heard about it and used it before. I guess it’ll be fine if I just consciously try to use it like that.

Right away I tried it during dinner that day. Since it’s a “Highly Efficient {Digestive} System”, it would probably be appropriate to use it after eating. When I tried using it after they fed me I was surprised. My full stomach quickly felt empty again and just as I thought that I suddenly felt tired. It might be good to try using it after meals for a while. It’s the job of a baby to eat and sleep after all. While thinking that Beil stopped resisting it and went to sleep that day.

His parents were relieved that he fell asleep right after eating. It was normal from him to be peevish during meals. Since it was common for him to still be awake even after burping after meals so they were relieved there was no need to even cradle him.

Several days after that. Beil was shocked once again. He met God in his dreams. About the fact that victims of the accident were reincarnated to this Orth and the fact that all of the people who were reincarnated were given a Unique Ability he was given an explanation on. And, the 15 minutes he was given to ask questions. That no matter what he does he won’t be able to return to his previous life already. A simple explanation of his ability “Highly Efficient Digestive System”. About the various types of magic including {Named} and {Status Open}. Monsters. Non-humans. Slave system. The lowest social class. Feudalistic government. His time disappeared in no time at all. He thought it was a dream but after waking up there was a window floating in front of him that almost makes fun of people.

It wasn’t a dream. It’s reality. For a moment I was a bit excited but it was short-lived, I quickly remembered that I was a part of the lowest ranking the Slave ranking in this world. Unable to control my emotions I cried.

I thought about telling my family about my Unique Ability but it seems that it can't be seen with Status Open so I kept quiet. Even if I did tell them about it I feel like they would just reduce the amount of food they give me. That's why I decided to keep my Unique Ability a secret. When I checked with Status Open after meeting God I noticed my Unique Ability had become level 1. After a short while it became level 2. I guess this is the so-called level up. I thought about it for a bit but there's no way I can know if that's true.

Several years passed.

Several months before he turned 5 years old Beil was sold to a slave trader that came to the village. There was poor harvests in the village that year and the entire village was gasping from the poverty. He was dissatisfied with it but it couldn't be helped and most likely thanks to "Highly Efficient Digestive System" only Beil was able to remain healthy with the small amount of food he received so Beil ended up as the target for purchase. More importantly than that while Beil voiced his complaints about it when thinking about how he might go insane spending his entire life in this village he was secretly delighted.

The place I was sold was a leather craftsman in the town of Baldukk in the King's direct territory. It seems that I have the job of tanning leathers from beasts here. The details of the job at the place I was brought on the carriage were to the point that just doing farm work in my birth village would have been much better. The operation of tanning leather requires not only strength but also alum and other chemicals. The only salvation was that I'm a child so at first I'll be used for the errands but I'm sure I'll be forced to work on tanning the leathers myself just like the other adults. Making cracks in my hands just like them, barely earning any money and using it to rarely drink to fight off the gloom. I wonder if I'll live that sort of life.

Just thinking about it I can't see anything but despair. I even thought about trying to run away if I find a chance. But, I have nowhere I can go and it's not just extremely difficult to live without having your status checked, it's basically impossible. In the first place, if I run away then there's no way to avoid the life of a slave after that. Even if a slave appears in the temple without a contract the priests will definitely not perform the naming ceremony. And if my identity is exposed then I could be chased as an escaped slave.

Of course, in reality the job is certainly harsh and you can't live in comfort but even as a slave tanning leathers is a job with reasonable wages. If you continue to work seriously and avoid living too luxuriously then you could even buy a house with the support of your owner. Furthermore since it's not incorrect to say you're an artisan of tanning leathers so if you can make a good quality of leather you could sell your name and there's even the possibility of gaining fixed clients who want the products you make.

As a matter of fact, the leather trader who owns him is in his 50s now but he was originally a slave as well. After gaining a good sponsor he was able to become a Free Person. After that he gave it his best providing the highest quality leathers he could, saved up his money, and in order to have the most leeway possible for his business bought his way into the commoner ranking. Since the commoner ranking is also the same ranking as soldiers it's believed to be difficult to become but if you just pay money to the noble who rules over the town you're in then it's not that impossible to become a commoner in name. However, the cost requires at least over 10 gold coins though that's not an amount that a skilled artisan can't save up.

However, with the personality that he has had up until now he doesn't even have the willpower to try challenging a method that would take as much time as that. If it's come to this then I'll live in the moment and it didn't take long for him to start thinking like that.

Another several years pass by and Beil has turned 13 years old. Though he decided to live in the moment he was too scared to commit any crimes. If you're found stealing then it's being whipped, it doesn't add up to how much you could profit. It's the same for robbery and murder. It was several years spent with not enough courage to completely step off the normal path just building up his discontent. After turning 10 years old he started to take on the actual job of tanning leather and since he's been doing the heavy labor as a child for the past few years he's always been tired, with no stamina remaining to play, unable to help it he just keeps tanning leathers day after day.

However, along with that whether it could be considered a good thing for Beil himself, his wages were also raised... It's true that thanks to his Unique Ability he was able to gain the maximum amount of nutrients from an extremely small amount of food. Therefore, if he puts all of his increased wages into savings then he is able to save up money at a quick pace.

He didn't have a taste for alcohol but he ended up getting hooked on the brothel that his senior slave brought him to. In his previous life Beil had a strange fastidiousness and aversion to buying a woman with money but if he's unable to live in the moment and commit any crimes then he thought it would be fine to just step off the path in a different way. And it didn't take much time at all for him to get hooked on the act that took place there. During the first few times it was with his seniors but eventually he started going alone.

It's not that he particularly became interested in a woman at the store. He just was drowning in the pleasures of the flesh. Pay money and buy time with a good woman. During that time he's buying he can own a slave. The impact of pleasure in being able to put someone else under your control was plenty to change Beil's view on life. Beil immediately thought. Ah, the people who got hooked in the sex industry in my previous life must have known this pleasure. Obviously this is a complete misunderstanding but since he had never dated in his past life, and never visited a brothel, and since he intentionally avoided socializing at work or college he ended up having no way to compare such topics.

In any case, Beil indulged in buying women and during the time he's bought them he would forcefully hold them down and rape them. Obviously his small savings quickly disappeared. Since it wasn't a particularly high quality brothel so the cost wasn't that high but if he's going there every day then it's only obvious.

Troubled over money Beil finally resolved to commit crimes. There's a high chance of being caught for stealing. In this town of Baldukk there's a judgement of criminals that occurs once every few months. The majority of them are broke adventurers who tried stealing or fought over in the party over treasures they found and caused injuries. No matter how he thought about it the adventurers who would be more suited to fights even get caught for stealing. He didn't think he could get away with it.

Then what should he do? It took Beil over six months of thinking to finally take action directly. The first time was a winter night in the middle of January when he was about to turn 14 years old. He secretly followed after a drunk woman who left the bar staggering and when no one was looking attacked her. She was suddenly gagged from behind then after showing her a blade he dragged her into an unused building and struck all of his desires into her.

Beil completely became the captive of it after just once due to the fresh reaction that was different from a prostitute. He climaxed countless times from the pleasure and felt mentally satisfied as well. In the end he strangled the beaten and worn-out woman while raping her but the expression twisted in fear with tears coming down gave him feelings of conquest and immortality for trampling her. It was a maddening level of pleasure. And before he realized he suddenly felt like he was brimming with power. He put the woman's corpse into a bag he had prepared before hand and after properly tying the opening with weights he threw it into the river of the town.

For a short while after that he lived flinching in fear but it was never exposed as Beil's crime. Since he never heard any rumors that the woman's corpse was found her origins were probably unknown. He guessed that she was most likely a newcomer adventurer that got drunk. It's true there's a lot of adventurers in the town of Baldukk and it's not like they're settled in the town. There's countless people who challenge the dungeon and never return, there's no way anyone would notice if one or two of them disappeared.

One March night as time had passed, Beil committed his second crime. This time he was cautious and set his sights on someone before-hand. In order to not attack a skilled veteran adventurer by mistake he set his sights on adventurers who are newcomers to the town and carefully waited for them to be on their own. Once again this time he was able to carry it out well. The pleasure given by his new crime was so tremendous it even exceeded that amount of satisfaction Beil felt the last time. It even came with the bonus of how much money she had, while she didn't have any gold coins, she had several tens of silver coins and silver Shu as well. For the first time in a while he tried going to the brothel but he wasn't able to feel as much pleasure as he did with those two women.

If this were to be exposed then he'd end up having his limbs cut off. However, he told himself that what he gains carrying that risk is huge. Midway through April, he succeeded at yet another crime. This time it was a beautiful elf girl. She has black hair but pretty blue eyes and gentle soft facial features. Small plump red lips. The expression of disgust that appeared on her face. That expression that gradually turned to despair.

That was all a nectar to Beil. He licked up the tears that streamed down her face and ran his tongue along her beautiful blue eyes, bit into her pointed ears, and he felt an incomparable excitement in defiling her tied up limbs unable to resist. It's unfortunate that she was gagged so she couldn't let out her voice but that alone can't be helped.

Committing the crime for a third time provided Beil with mental relief. The dissatisfaction that he had been building up had disappeared and he was able to put some energy into his work. The owner was delighted to see Beil finally enthusiastically tan the leathers. Beil was surprised that he was strangely able to feel satisfied doing his job but he accepted that after all he was born under a special star different from other people.

Near the end of such a May. He noticed the appearance of what seemed to be a new female adventurer entering the town. A black hair Bunny-man. Her facial features somehow seem similar to the Japanese in his previous life. That's right, I still haven't done it with a Bunny-man the same race as me. If she's the same race as me then I can even instill the fear of getting pregnant in her and I'm sure she'll show me even more pleasure from her expressions of fear. That woman would be a good next target.

Different from the women until now it seems that she's in her early teens but as expected of the characteristics of a Bunny-man she's got a voluptuous body with good development unlike the thin underweight elf from last time. I want to bite into that soft looking meat enough to leave marks and lick them with my tongue. No, it might be best to just enjoy biting all over her body. I'll bite off a piece of her body and eat it in front of her. I'm sure it's more of a delicacy than anything I've eaten until now.

Ah, that's right, I completely forgot. It would be bad if she uses magic. Up until now I was lucky that no one could use magic though. For me to make such a mistake and forget to confirm her status. Without letting her realize I get close and confirm her status. The crime is after that. It would be best to confirm her behavior patterns first.

After spending some time to observe her actions and I quickly realized. It seems she's searching for someone. And simultaneously I was confident of something more important. She's the same Japanese as me. It seems she's searching for a man named Sema Yousuke. I don't know what characters it's written with but I'm sure Sema Yousuke is a Japanese name. I don't know if it's a lover, sibling, or family but it's definitely a man's name.

I was able to obtain some good information. Instead of catching her off guard like usual wouldn't it be good if I become Sema Yousuke? Is what I thought. And if I can get her to believe I'm Sema Yousuke then it might be good to let her buy me and release me from the slave rank as well. If she doesn't have that much money then ... Right, if I'm Sema Yousuke then I can enjoy things in Japanese.

Threaten her in Japanese and stir up her fear in Japanese. And push down a woman who has a man she likes. Ah, I feel like I might climax just from imagining it. Being released from the slave rank doesn't matter at all already. If I can get her to mistake me for Sema Yousuke then I'm sure I can confirm her status without seeming suspicious and it should be easy to be alone with her. If I can just confirm that she can't use magic then that should be fine. I think she probably can't use it. If she's a Japanese then just like me she would have been a victim of that accident. In other words she should still be 14 years old. Since she's not an adult yet she shouldn't have started magic training yet.

Being tied up by the person you believed in. I'll expose my identity at that point. After she can't resist I'll enjoy myself as much as I please. I'm sure it's the best tasting a woman with a lover. If I have her call out the name Sema Yousuke as I taste not just her body but even her spirit. Ah, this is that. Since it's the occasion I shouldn't do it in the middle of the town but I should take her as far away from the town as possible. If I do that then I can take off her gag without anyone realizing I'm sure, I can enjoy not only the touch, taste, smell, and sight but finally the sound as well. Just thinking about it a bit makes the center of my body pulse with heat.

Since that's decided I need to start making preparations for the place. A few days, no wait, I want to at least enjoy her for a few weeks. I need a comfortable space I enjoy things with just her during that time. I guess I'll make a camp in the forest on the outside of the ridges of the crater that surrounds the town. It would be annoying going there every night after my job is over but if I complain about the small details then I won't be able to make it back big. Since this is a town with a lot of adventurers I'm sure it's easy to get my hands on a camping kit. I have a bit of money as well, I guess I'll just prepare a high-quality tent here.

Beil used the money he had from his previous crime to buy a somewhat high-quality tent. In order to camouflage the tent he purchased a net and some durable rope for tying up game. In reality he wanted to buy a table and such to tie her on top of it but as expected carrying a table around the town would be a pain. It would stand out as well and might remain in someones memory. And then he spent roughly a month going outside of the town as he searched for a good place. He thoroughly made preparations. Everything is for the moment he can taste that supremacy.

"Tonight, come to the highest ridge outside of the town on the Northwest side. Sema Yousuke is waiting there."

He put emphasis several times to definitely say that. It's something that occurred on the afternoon of Year 7442, Month 6, Day 4 at a certain restaurant. There was the appearance of Beil asking such a thing of a random customer drinking tea who he treated and gave several coins. After seeing the man leave the store Beil licked his lips with his face red from the heat as he stood up and adjusted the contents of his pants as he left the store.

The funny thing about this one is takes place right before SS15 (the one with the doctor), and the one who ended up surviving the famine from his ability was this guy.

Side Story 15: In the case of Tuschiya Ryouta (Age 51 at the time of accident)

That was a busy day. I had a case of surgery at the hospital I manage in the morning. In the afternoon I had a academic conference with my alma mater. Normally I would have traveled by car but since I had no leeway in my schedule that day, I was forced to take the train. In order to make absolute sure I wasn't late I got a ride by car to the station and it was my own decision to take the train from there so I have no complaints on that end.

And I can sleep for a short while on the train as well. Recently I've been so busy I'm lacking in sleep, even if it's just being able to rest for a few minutes it's big for me.

While I was sleeping for some reason I saw a dream about my life from my childhood up until now. The content was cut off here and there and had no continuity but I remember looking at the dream and thinking, Ah~, this is a dream. The little girl I played with when I was young and my naughty friends when I was in elementary school. My first love during middle school. Frantically studying during my high school years. It was good that I was safely able to enter university but six years of being chased around by studying. The time I was an intern at the emergency hospital I was so busy I had no time to sleep and my eyes were spinning. Marriage. The birth of my son and daughter. Watching their growth together with my wife.

Ah, it's almost like my life is flashing before my eyes, is what I was thinking but even the Buddha couldn't have guessed that was actually the case. No, maybe he could have?

In any case, at first I was wondering what in the world was going on, I couldn't understand what was happening. If there was someone that could understand that then it would be some kind of different existence that's transcended humanity. No, it's just that I was sleeping so I couldn't realize it. Since I was riding on the front passenger car when I awoke to the screeching sound during deceleration, I was distracted by a different passenger colliding with my side. I was still aware up until right after that when something hit me and I died. I somehow knew that I wouldn't survive after seeing my body pierced by a large piece of metal.

However, since I'm in this situation was I saved?

Even if I try to raise my voice, words don't come out, it's a voice like a groan, a high-pitched sound almost like crying, and my vision is hazy almost like in a fog. I can't move my body very much as well. The words I can hear are some foreign language I don't know. However, I can hear some English words mixed in so it might be possible to communicate using English. I can't properly talk and I'm strangely tired. Since I'm an injured person either way, I shouldn't be punished for sleeping at a time like this with how little I can normally sleep.

I was able to recognize my situation after a few days to a week. It's hard to believe but I've entered someone else's body while maintaining my consciousness and memories. Probably a newly born baby. I calmly try to remember the situation at that time.

Kreeeeen! along with that sort of screeching noise and the momentum of the train breaking to a stop my body was pushed into the edge of the seat I was sitting in.

From there a number of other passengers (going off the direction they were in seats behind me on the train), couldn't withstand the inertia and ended up plunging head first into my side as well.

Judging off of that amount of inertia when breaking and how they came flying at me it was probably a sudden brake from going 60–80 Km. Obviously I can't clearly remember how much inertia was affecting myself. I just calculated it based on the weight, stature, and distance of the people who were sitting near me.

If there were to do a sudden brake at that speed then there must have been some sort of urgent situation. Was it trying to avoid a full-on collision with a car stopped on the tracks? However, in the end they weren't able to prevent a collision, and it seems they hit it in full force. The last thing I remember is being cut apart through my upper arm by some sort of metal plate like that from a car or train after all.

No matter how I think about it my heart was destroyed, even if my heart was okay my left lung would have been completely gone, and my aorta or other important blood vessels should have been cut. No matter how you look at it there would have been no saving me.

I have enough regrets that I could let out a groan but it can't be helped. I died. It would have taken at least 10 minutes for an emergency worker to make it to that place. Even if I was lucky enough for it to have been right in front of a hospital I doubt it would have made any difference. Even if I had been there fully equipped and in perfect health I doubt I would have been able to save myself in that condition.

Though it's a bit occult it seems like some mysterious thing like you often hear about such as the cycle of reincarnation or possession has occurred. I might even be able to research it. After all, the greatest proof that it happened is myself.

Pediatric health is outside my field of specialty so I can't say for sure but newly born babies are normally born with undeveloped brains and bodies. Obviously, they are close to completion, but not completely developed yet. This is completely different from physical growth and it's not incorrect to say that newly born babies aren't complete humans until six months or so after birth.

Talking, looking, feeling, since their brain and nervous system aren't completely developed, I guessed that I wouldn't be able to move my body properly. This is a valuable experience. It's such a valuable experience that I want to make records of every aspect of it. It's particularly great that a doctor such as me would be able to experience isn't it?

After six months had passed I was able to move my body a considerable amount. When no one is nearby I secretly tried training to talk but even though it's about time for my vocal cords and nervous system to be developed, it's irritating that I can't speak well. It's not that I can't talk at all. But for some reason I don't know I can't control my emotions well. For the time being I'm nothing more than a baby that doesn't take much effort to take care of.

While drinking the milk from the thin woman who I believe to be my mother I wonder if it's almost time for baby food? Recently, I've felt like my father hasn't appeared very often so I can imagine it's about time to start baby food.

I wonder if another month or so has passed. I've realized something amazing. When I realized it I let out a large voice and cried. There's something that isn't human that's invaded the house. No, if you just take a glance it looks like a human. But, it has something like animal ears on its head and it has a tail as well. It was talking with my thin father. When I was being held by my mother and taken into the living room I noticed it.

What is? This?

At first I thought it was the recently popular cosplay. I was wondering what in the world a full-blown adult was doing? However, the movement of that tail is the same as a cat's. And where there would normally be a headband or the place a human's ears would be there's nothing. Since that man (?) had very short hair it was easy to tell. Since there's no ears he has no sideburns. There's just trimmed hair grown. And no matter how you look at it there's ears growing from the top of his head.

I got excited and wanted to touch them. I wanted to ask the sensation of moving your tail. However, all I could raise in excitement was a crying voice. It remained in my impression how my father talked about something apologetically with that man while he was looking at me.

Furthermore, I've already confirmed that I have normal ears in their normal place. Obviously I've already confirmed that I wasn't born with any kind of impediments as well. That's why I'm sure I'm a human.

I wonder if the nursing for lunch was forgotten today?

I'm sure it's about time for the lactation to stop so I'd like to switch to baby food already.

.....

My mother let me drink her milk while staring at my face with a sad expression.

The amount of milk isn't good.

This is bad.

I haven't been able to eat anything since this morning.

I was able to drink just a bit of milk for dinner.

The amount that comes out is very bad.

That's why I already don't need anymore milk.

Change to baby food.

I wonder if they're intentionally not providing me with any food?

A twisted viewpoint is no good, even though this is such a valuable experience.

I would definitely like them to be careful that I don't suffer from malnutrition.

I'm sure there would be a large number of journalists who would jump at this experience if it was announced at an academic conference.

It seems like I've intentionally not been given any food.

This is bad.

I'm not grown enough that I can take action on my own.

There's no choice other than to try and say something.

Japanese? Alright, it's tottering but I can somehow speak it.

English, OK. I can speak English, Ah, well, NOPE.*

The language of this world. Somehow or other. I have enough vocabulary to say I'm hungry.

I cry out. With this my mother should come quickly.

...She isn't coming.

I give up and trying calling out to my mother with this worlds language.

....She doesn't come.

I try calling out in Japanese.

....She doesn't come.

In English.

....She doesn't come.

I wonder why I'm intentionally not being giving any food?

I tried thinking about the reason on my own but the only reason I could think of, we're too poor and there's not enough food to pass on to me, I have no method of changing.

Most likely my mother can't do anything about it since no more milk comes out?

Suddenly I feel nauseous from the extreme sense of fear.

I cried. I'm hungry.

I feel like I've been neglected for several days already. It's probably only actually been about one day though.

Even if I raise my voice there's no reaction.

It can't be helped so I have to try moving before I run out of stamina.

It would be good if I can find something that I can put in my mouth.

There was no way for me to find something so easily.

I was quickly found by my parents and brought back to the room.

My parents were crying.

This is... after all is that sort of situation!?

I tried to appeal to them with every language I could think of that I was hungry but I ended up crying in an explosion of emotion.

After sleeping I cry out again.

I wonder if it's because I've used too much stamina?

There's no energy in my voice.

There's a necessity to escape from the room while my body still moves.

The door won't open.

I put my hand on the door and stand up but even if I turn the handle it won't open.

I wonder if they've placed luggage or something on the other side of the door.

My body feels heavy.

It's the starting symptoms of malnutrition.

It seems the symptoms of dehydration are occurring as well.

A baby particularly needs sugar and protein.

But more importantly than that is water.

If you don't have anything to eat you can give me then just kill me already.

I try yelling across the door.

Help me out from dying by shriveling up like this.

Shit.

Really, help me out here.

.....

I don't have enough energy to move my body.

I raise my voice as much as I can every time someone moves on the other side of the door.

I'm already too tired to say any words with meaning.

My dizziness doesn't stop.

The dizziness has stopped but the ceiling is spinning.

Ah, I guess it hasn't stopped then.

I wonder if this is what it's like to starve to death?

At least just kill me already.

Why is it necessary to suffer this much?

I can't even let my voice out anymore.

My vision has started to dim.

It takes all of my energy just to move an arm.

Ah, this is finally the end.

I guess my parents realized my room had become quiet they finally come in hanging their heads down.

While being held by my parents we went to the living room.

It seems the nutrition of my mother who is holding me and crying is bad as well.

After realizing that far my consciousness stopped.

Note: the line with * is written in English not Japanese as he attempts to speak English.

Chapter 77: Waiting There

After ending lunch with Zulu, I thought about going for an after meal walk, but before that I felt like getting some tea. Since I still haven't done my daily training for today rather than a walk I'll take a short break. After that it should be fine if I do some running. Since my throat is dry I'll have some bean tea. I'm already used to bean tea, or rather I actually like it quite a bit.

After walking for a few minutes I entered a random restaurant and ordered some bean tea and tea-cakes, after paying the 13 Z in Dai Shizu and Shizu coins I lean back in the chair and stretch my legs out. I sip away at my bean tea that's hot enough to give off steam and throw two or three roasted beans into my mouth crunching away at them. The scent of the roasted beans spreads through my mouth. The roasted beans have just the right amount of salt so while I was thinking I would come to this place for tea again I sip away at my bean tea.

I wonder if it's this crowded here even though it's past noon because of the reputation of this bean tea? It's a good thing I was able to get a seat. The conflict between goblins. Scavenger Crawler. The various items we found. If I just look at the results then I'm completely satisfied. However, what about the facts? Even though I felt like we walked around quite a bit according to what I've heard that's only a small portion of the dungeons 1st floor it seems. I wonder how many % of the 1st floor we were able to explore?

If it was only a few % then in order to explore enough of the 1st floor to make it to the 2nd floor then we would have to enter every day for a month I guess? If the place we end up being teleported to ends up overlapping then it's probably best to think it would take even longer. In the first place, even though we were only in the dungeon for a few hours it wore away at our nerves that much. Isn't it a bit unreasonable to try and challenge the dungeon every day without rest? If we don't rest for at least two days a week to relax our nerves a bit then we might end up making a fatal mistake. Since there's 6 days in a week for the time being I guess we should do 2 days of work and 1 day off. If we're going to go to the 3rd or 4th floors after this then I'm sure we'll have to camp in the dungeon as well, if it comes to that then I'm sure it'll be difficult we don't have several days for rest after we return.

What was it again? Remember, those five parties that are called the top teams, it seems that they even have tons of members of over 10 years but they still haven't broken through the 5th floor. The only ones I've seen are the {Verdure Brotherhood} but the age of the elf that seemed to be the leader of that party was 39. His level was stupidly high at 19 as well. Just thinking in terms of abilities and I can earn experience three times more efficiently, and my growth per level up is three times as well. Therefore what it took them 10 years to do I should be able to catch up with in around 1 year. Although, it would require another 7 of me for that sake.

No, even if there was another 7 of me it still would probably be impossible to catch up to them in a year. There's a conclusive difference in experience between them and I. I can't imagine that the number of times I enter the 1st floor would become 1/9th of them. I'm sure there's a lot of things you can only learn through experience like the location of traps of which is the correct path as well. I wonder if it would be a good idea to buy a map after all. Since it's only about 1 gold coin I guess I should go all out and buy one. It might fine to buy one with just the earnings from today. If we at least know the locations of traps and we don't have to be on guard as much as that then it would be a cheap purchase. However, I'm sure there's no such thing as a perfect map. I guess even if that was the case we couldn't relax.

It might be thought that if you have the money, you should just buy it but just for the map of the 1st floor that has traps added is 800,000 Z. It's 800,000 yen. I can't buy it so easily. In Bakuddo it's an amount which a family of 6–7 people can live for a year and still have change. If it's a family of serfs then I don't even know how many families could live on it. Including the equipment I just paid an amount that can buy a war horse for Zulu. And the earnings from the dungeon this time have too much of a bonus feel to them. I'm sure there's no way we could earn this amount every time. If that was the case then just putting some effort into it on the 1st floor I could earn plenty of money in 5 — 6 years. Since there's no traps on the 1st floor that will kill you instantly if you could safely earn money then who would go to the 2nd floor and beyond? It would even be a waste to even just buy slaves.

I'm thinking about things like that while sipping bean tea.

"..ra..not at all..and..long sword.."

"..ke..su..but..they are.."

"..and..other..and..joking..there.."

"..unusual..girl..that..idiot..waha.."

I can hear the talking voices of customers from all over the store. I finish drinking up my bean tea that's started to get lukewarm and go to stand from my seat and go training.

"...Semayousuke is waiting there.."

The voice I heard from two tables behind me kept me from standing completely up. Semayousuke? What's that? It sounds like something I've heard from somewhere? No, something I'm used to hearing? I secretly turned and looked around. It seems that the group of adventurers behind me is talking so I can't hear very well. At the table behind that there's two men sitting and talking about something. One is a human man and the other is a Bunny-man man. However, the hair of the Bunny-man man is black and his facial features look Japanese. The human man looks to be in his late teens but the Bunny-man man seems to be around the same age as me. On Orth we look even younger than our age but that's the face of a Japanese in his mid teens.

As expected he was a reincarnated person. I wonder if Semayousuke was his original name? I have no way of knowing the kanji for it but I guess that's the reason why I feel like I've heard it somewhere before. They're still talking about something. In order to not be suspected I moved to the opposite seat of the table I was at and continued using Identify.

【Unique Ability: Highly Efficient Digestive System; A digestive system with an extremely high ability. If it's an organic material that isn't toxic then roughly no matter what it is it can absorb the nutrients from it with almost the maximum efficiency. Consequently of that the amount of excretions also decreases. By using this ability after eating a meal it breaks down organic matter in the digestive system other than the user them self. And absorbs it. Therefore, it should be kept in mind that this ability is not always at work. Furthermore, this ability has a level for no reason other than convenience.】

How...Amazing..Or is it? No, it's amazing but. I can accept that to go on living there's no greater Unique Ability than this. If I remember correctly, I've heard that the amount of nutrients the human digestive system and absorb from food is about 1/3 to 1/4. If you were to use some extreme logic then I guess it would mean you can stay healthy while only eating 1/3 the amount of food. No, if you take into consideration absorbing the more difficult nutrients then it might be even more efficient. However..Hey? How about it? Even though he's a Bunny-man if he eats a normal meal then just a tiny small piece of round poop comes falling out? It might be different though.

I try straining my ears in order to hear their conversation. Since there's some distance and a loud group between us I can't hear it well. What I was barely able to hear is they were trying to tell someone, "This evening", "the most of the Northwestern ridge", "come", "Semayousuke is waiting there". I can guess several things from these words.

First off it's only obvious but there should be another person who can understand the details. And that other person should be someone related to either Semayousuke or Dereonola. Since they're saying Semayousuke then there's a possibility the other person is a reincarnated person but I can't tell that much. Also, it's unknown if it's pointing that this guy himself is Semayousuke. However, at the very least the possibility is high that person who this message is for knows the person called Semayousuke. It's also possible that Semayousuke is a name on Orth but somehow it seems unsuitable for Orth, no, it's safe to say it's not a name from the Kingdom of Rombert.

In that case, there's at least three people that this conversation involves. I don't know how many it could include at a maximum.

The first one is obviously him, Dereonola.

The second one is Semayousuke. It's possible this is also Dereonola. There's probably a high chance of that being the case.

The third one is the man that Dereonola is asking to relay the message. It's unknown if he's just a messenger boy or someone related.

The fourth one is the person who this message is intended for. This one's the problem. I can't identify if it's one person or several people. However, the probability that someone in that group knows Semayousuke is high.

The fifth one is if I think that Dereonola himself is a messenger for someone else. In that case it's complex as well. In that case there's no guarantee that there weren't other messengers before Dereonola and it's highly possible that the message would have changed going through countless messengers. I think it's fine to exclude this?

The next thing I can guess is their conversation or rather the details of the message. It seems to be a message to meet up. The time is "This evening". The location is "the most of the Northwestern ridges", the most what? Going off of the words in Orth the next word after this should be an adjective. Incidentally, the pronunciation of "the most of the Northwestern ridges" and "the first of the Northwestern ridges" are the same. Since the meaning is the same either one is fine. Hmn, going off the flow of the previous conversation then normally it would be the "most high" or "most low". It's not as if I can't think of things other than that but if it's to meet up then it would be strange for it to be too complex.

After that is “come”, “Semayousuke is waiting there” so going off of that it would mean that Semayousuke is going there and waiting for someone before night.

After thinking that far the man that was given the message from Derenola received something like money and stood up from his seat. What should I do? There’s definitely the reincarnated person that is Derenola involved in this case. I wonder if I should take some sort of action right now? But, even if he’s a slave would he talk to a man he doesn’t know, no, I’m unknown but still a Japanese so maybe he will listen? However, since he wants to meet not in the town but going to the point of meeting on a ridge outside of the town at night (probably). There might be something they don’t want anyone else to hear.

If I talk to him here then he might realize that his message was heard and it’s possible he could pull back. It’s in slightly bad taste but if it involves reincarnated people then I want to quickly circle around them and it should be convenient to get a grasp on the content of their discussion. After adjusting his position as he stands up Dereonola left the store and I left after that to go to the inn where Ralpa and the others are staying. If they aren’t there it can’t be helped. If I can’t find them at the type of place Zenom and her would go then I’ll have to go myself. It’s probably still only about 2 pm.

When I went to the inn just as expected Zulu was there but Zenom and Ralpa were not. When I handed them their bonus of silver coins today they said they were going to buy some daily necessities. I say to Zulu, “Sorry but there’s no rest for today. Search for Zenom and Ralpa. If you can’t find them within an hour then meet up with me at the exit to the Northwestern ridge. Don’t mistake it. Since we’re going to the Northwestern ridge then the exit should be the one straight North of the town. Main road #1. You should search the clothing stores. I’ll try checking the daily goods stores. If you find them bring the two of them with you there. If they ask the reason then say it’s related to Ralpa and I. Also, just in case take your sword with you.”

After giving him those instructions I ran off to the #5 main road where there’s a lot of stores dealing in daily goods. Zulu is heading towards the #8 main road where there's a lot of clothing shops.

Soon after I arrived at the #5 road I was able to find Zenom. He's just as he was dressed when we split up earlier looking into a store that deals in delicacies. Is he looking for snacks that go with alcohol? Even though you're a dwarf you're not that strong with alcohol right? Ah, I guess it's not a matter of strong or weak, even though he's weak he must like alcohol.

"What's wrong? In that much of a hurry."

"Zenom..It seems you still haven't had any alcohol. Sorry but the afternoon break is off. Just a bit..Ah, it's fine if I say it to Zenom I guess. I found a reincarnated person. I need some help."

"Ho~"

Zenom's expression changed. I guess he remembered what I said about hunting reincarnated people the other day.

"Where's Ralph?"

"If it's Ralph then she said she was going to buy some shoes with the bonus from today. What did she say it was again? That's right, she said it was some rubber shoes."

You can't buy those with just 100,000 Z. Rather you might be able to barely buy some sandals. It wouldn't be strange even if you can't buy them though.

"I see, then she should be at a clothing store, then I've already had Zulu head that way. I've already decided the place to meet so let's go there first."

"Is it fine after I buy this?"

What's that? It looks like the smoked leg of an octopus. Looks delicious.

"It's fine, buy as much as you like. I'm going to buy some too."

I wonder if it was good or bad that among all of the stores dealing in daily goods there was only one that deals in delicacies? In any case, I bought one bag of smoked octopus legs for 800 Z. I put one into my mouth along with Zenom and chew it like gum and it was quite good. I want some hot sake.

After walking to the meeting place and Zulu and Ralpha were already waiting for us. It seems that the two of them ran there. Sorry about that. I confirm to make sure that Ralpha properly has her axe with her.

“Why do the two of you have octopus legs in your mouths?”

In the good weather of early summer, Ralpha who ran to get here said to us who slowly walked here in a displeased tone.

“Isn’t it fine, here I’ll give you one. Try eating it. It’s surprisingly good. Zulu how about you?”

After saying that I gave one to each of them and they went quiet. It’s delicious right?

“And so. I’ll talk about the plan from here on. Everyone, listen closely.”

I look at everyone’s face while saying. Since everyone has an octopus leg sticking out of their mouth it’s a considerably stupid looking picture but it can’t be helped.

“This evening on a ridge in the Northwest someone is meeting up with someone else. It’s necessary to listen in on the details of what they’re talking about at that time. It’s a slightly roundabout way of putting it but..I only know the name of one side. One of them is supposedly Semayousuke.”

I looked at Ralpha while saying it.

“Semayousuke..A man huh. After all, um..”

As expected it seems that Ralpha quickly realized it. She’s glancing at Zulu and holding herself back.

“Yeah, probably. And, this is also a probably but I think that Semayousuke is a male Bunny-man. After that, I also think the place they’re meeting is probably either the highest or lowest ridge in the Northwest. It’s probably, maybe but I could only hear the most of a ridge on the Northwest.”

After saying that I took another look at everyone’s face with an octopus leg growing out of them. I continue my words.

“I don’t know how many people they’re meeting up with. It might be just one or it might be multiple but it’s unknown. That’s why we should split up into two groups. Zenom and I. Ralpa and Zulu. Just in case taking into consideration the reach of our weapons I split the teams up like this. Also it's necessary for Ralpa and I to split up. It's fine Ralpa knows the reason."

"The language problem."

I'm sure Ralpa knew immediately since she replied in Japanese. It helps that we can keep things short. Also, just in case, while Zenom would be better on Ralpa's side in terms of combat ability but I thought Zulu would be better as an exhaustible shield. If she can figure out that far them I wouldn't have anything more to say but it's probably impossible. It's fine as long as Zulu realizes this. I think Zulu probably understands.

"That's right. Among us there's a language that only Ralpa and I understand. It's highly possible that they'll use that language to have a conversation. That's why Ralpa and I are in different groups. Also, no matter what they talk about or what happens don't attack them from outside. Don't show yourselves either. Don't let them realize you're listening. I don't know how much power they have hidden away. Is that clear? No matter what don't attack from our side. If they find you then think about running away first. Combat is really the final option."

"I understand, Zulu I'm counting on you as well."

"I understand. No matter what I won't attack from our side as well."

I'm sure they're responding seriously but it's completely lacking in tension while they chew the octopus legs.

"Also about the time but I don't have any information other than this evening. Since they were saying this evening then I think it's probably while the sun is still out but in reality I don't even know of it's before or after sunset. Prepare yourselves for somewhat of a wait. Ralpa and Zulu should hide in a place near the highest ridge you think would work for meeting up. It's probably a good idea to cover yourselves with leaves to hide. Zenom and I will go to the lower ridge. If you manage to remain hidden until they finish their business then we meet up. The next instruction will be after we meet up. Is that fine?"

After concluding things with that we all went up the hill towards the ridges.

On the way up the hill Ralpa asked me for another octopus leg so I gave her the bag.

This is probably the lowest ridge. The highest ridge in the Northwestern area is 1.5 Km or so away from the road. I wonder Zulu and Ralpa have already arrived? It's too far and since the outer area of the ridge is covered in a 5 m or so forest, I wonder if it's around there? Though all I can do is guess their location since I can't see them.

There were several rocks there that seemed perfect for meeting up. After Zenom and I discussed we decided to hide about 3 m behind the rocks. Since it doesn't seem like anyone will pass by for the time being so I went a bit further into the forest and gathered some dead leaves to hide under before waiting. It might be good to sleep in shifts while keeping watch as well.

We tried sitting down on the rock as well and pretending to be Semayousuke. I think with this we probably won't be found so easily. Bunny-man have superior hearing capability but as long as they're not using their special skill then it's just a bit better than a humans so as long as we don't move around excessively then it shouldn't be a problem.

Even when Zenom sits on the rock and talks to himself I can hear it well. When I did it Zenom said he could hear it good as well. Yeah. It's the ideal position to hide. Then, let's sleep in shifts. I'll sleep first.

I was woken up when it was close to sunset. The sun has completely started to set in the west, the western part of the town of Baldukk which is in the shadow of the ridge is probably dark already. Since the area we're hiding is on the outer areas of the town between ridges it's still bright over here.

After taking his place Zenom starts to doze off. It's not easy just watching a road secretly which no~ one walks by. I guess I'll organize the information while laying down. First, they're meeting on a ridge in the North. This is fine. After that is the most, the location of the most is unknown. I'm guessing that it's in terms of height but if it were the place with the most excellent view or the most comfortable rock to sit on then it's not impossible but that feels so momentarily and as a place to meet up it seems too vague. It would be different if the people meeting up are extremely close and have gone there countless times though.

That's why I think it's more likely to be height which is unchanging. After that is the problem of which one but I thought it would be easier to come to one at a lower height than higher so I think this one should be more likely but after thinking more carefully about it there's eight roads that continue to ridges from the town. I chose the closest path to arrive at a ridge in the Northwest but it's not decided they would take this path to get there. It wouldn't be strange for them to go up a different road then walk along the path from one ridge to the next. Obviously about 1% of the reason I decided not to watch the path up the hill was for that reason. The other 99% is because I wanted to hear the content of their conversation, if possible I want to gather information from that conversation that let's me make some reincarnated Japanese into my subordinates, or at least that's my ideal goal.

Well, either way is fine but I want a reincarnated subordinate. No matter what can be said even though Ralpa went to a low-level school in Japanese she still has plenty of education and the level of basics she knows aren't even a comparison with the people of Orth. In addition to that the three times faster growth rate is too huge.

The sky is starting to get dark soon. The sun setting in the west slowly falls below sea level. I think the sun will have set in another 30 minutes or so.

I'm bored.

Around the time the sun had halfway set I saw Ralpa and Zulu running along the hill over here. It seems that they're in a hurry. I wake up Zenom and stand up. I tell Zenom, "it seems that something happened on their end" and after rubbing his tired eyes he suddenly opens his eyes and stands up. As expected it seems he was worried about his daughter.

"That's Ralpa and Zulu running along the path over there right? Let's go."

After I say that even though there's still a couple hundred meters away Zenom runs off. It seems that they're in a hurry but it doesn't feel like they're being chased by something. However, judging by how they look something definitely happened. It seems that their end was the correct choice. I take off running after Zenom as well. I quickly caught up and passed him.

“Al, we saw it! We heard it! It’s no good if we don’t hurry.”

“Calm down, what in the world happened?”

“That’s why I said hurry up and come with us!”

The conversation is going nowhere. I look to Zulu but,

“Master, just as Ralpa says we should probably hurry. It should be fine to talk while on the way.”

Eh? You too? By the way, it seems that you’re calling Ralpa without honorifics. Is it because she’s not your master?

“Putting it simply and there was a meeting between two Bunny-man people. One of them was a woman. The woman seemed to have come in a hurry running to the place to meet.”

“Yeah, and?”

“The woman was yelling You-chan. The man had come earlier and was calmly waiting. When the woman yelled he was a bit surprised it seems.”

“I see.”

“The majority of their conversation was in Japanese. However the woman kept talking at a really fast pace going on and on so it was hard to call it a conversation. It seems like the woman knew the man. She said that the man’s face had changed a bit. Also, the name of the woman is Asuka. She said it herself. Since the woman seemed tired after coming running it seems the man calmly gave her something to drink. I thought it was water or something but it seems to have been poison. A short while after drinking it the woman fell over.”

“Eh?”

“It’s fine so come already! After the woman fell over he used Status Open on her.”

“Huh?”

“After that the man was laughing while saying “as expected she couldn’t use magic” and carried the woman into the forest outside of the town!”

“Why would he do that?”

“Like I would know!”

I don’t get what she’s saying. Zulu added to it.

“I couldn’t tell what they were talking about but it seems that the woman wanted to meet the man and it seems she was considerably excited and happy about meeting him. The man was calm other than the first time the woman yelled in a loud voice. However, I’m sure he intended to kidnap the woman from the start. It seems that the poison he was skillfully able to get her to drink worked, that was the first time the man started laughing.”

“Kidnap?”

“Yes, that’s right. I’m sure he deceived the woman and called her out in order to get her to drink the poison.”

I don’t get it. Did he have some sort of grudge against her? Or some other objective..other than resentment what is there? specifically going for another Japanese..hunting reincarnated people!? However, even if that’s the case there’s too much doesn’t add up.

“That doesn’t matter so let’s hurry already! We might end up not making it in time!”

“What won’t we make it in time for?”

“Huh? What other reason could there be for a man to serve poison to a woman and kidnap her! What else is there other than raping her or selling her!? Didn’t you want to save her from that!?”

Since I didn’t know the other party was a woman I didn’t think of that at all. But, it’s strange. How was I not able to follow Ralph’s train of thought? Is my head worse than hers? Or else was I trying not to think about things like rape? What kind of virgin brat am I that?

“I understand. I guess that’s true. The woman was talking in “Japanese” as well right!? She’s definitely a reincarnated person right!?”

“Of-the-course!”*

You, how old are you? Are you just lying about being a high-school girl?

There's no other choice than to follow after Ralpa and Zulu's lead for now. It doesn't particularly concern me if a woman gets raped or sold but if you were to say it doesn't matter to me in a place I don't know about it then that's also true. But, after all it would make it harder for me to sleep peacefully. And since I've already found out I can't just pretend to look the other way. Even more so if it's someone who's face I know from our previous world. I guess he intended to make use of that to satisfy his desires. Does that bastard still think of himself as a man of Japan! Those sorts of things you're supposed to do with consent.

I've started to get irritated at Ralpa and Zenom's speed. I guess this is the difference between the values of Speed and Endurance. It seems that Zulu still has room to spare.

"Ralpa, Zulu and I will go ahead first. You come along with Zenom afterwards. Make sure to be as quiet as possible!"

After I say that I hit Zulu's back and raised the speed I was running.

"Zulu! Run as fast as you can to as far as you know where they were!"

If I hadn't continued running I wonder if I would have been able to overtake Zulu?

A Laio that's taken off at full is like a marathon runner nearing the finish line.

..At this speed shouldn't we be able to cover 1Km in about three minutes?

Chapter 78: Bernadett Koloil

Year 7442, Month 6, Day 4

Zulu is almost like the wind while running with powerful strides holding a two-handed sword in one hand, after advancing for a bit let alone keeping up with him I'm starting to be left behind. Even though we're still only halfway, there's already a distance of more than 30 m between us. I don't have the leeway to turn around but I'm sure that there's a similar distance between Ralpa, Zenom, and I as well.

The Wolf-race hunter family in Bakuddo was equal or a bit lower than me in terms of physical abilities as well but when Sonya would chase after game she would show off a frightening level of hand-eye coordination and physical ability. It's a way of running almost they already know exactly where every rock or the ideal place to step is before hand.

Even though I'm wearing my self-made boots with rubber-soles I still have to pay attention to the rocks and uneven ground on the hill path but Zulu is completely barefoot and running almost like it doesn't matter at all. What's going on with that hand-eye coordination? In the first place, after running up the hillside for over 1 Km and going wherever else Semayousuke went which we only know the rough direction we might end up having to fight.

I know it's partially my responsibility for saying to run as fast as possible to as far as you knew but, you, if you collapse the moment we get there I'll be seriously pissed. Not just that but whatever injuries you take from stepping on stones I'll put off for later, this bastard.

However, putting aside my worries Zulu kept running without lowering his pace at all, and after arriving at what probably was the location that Semayousuke and the other person met up at and he turned around to face me. After confirming me as I'm still breathing with my shoulders running at a distance of close to 100 m behind him and he gestures pointing to a path going off the road to the left and starts descending the hill. Since the sun is still barely out the western slope outside of Baldukk still barely has some sunlight as we descended it.

Zulu's appearance quickly disappeared into the trees on the side of the hill and I couldn't see him anymore. Shit. Even though I thought about taking a short-cut without going to the peak where they originally met up. In the end it would be faster to just follow the same path Zulu took. After I somehow arrived close to the area where Semayousuke used to meet up and there was a < symbol written on the ground. Also, there's a bow, quiver, short sword, and a bag on the ground. I guess it's this direction. The symbol arrow like mark points in the direction Zulu just disappeared. While descending the hill I glanced ahead and I could see Zulu's back.

In any case there's no choice other than to follow him. Along the way I thought there would be another arrow but I couldn't find one. There might have been one I could have just overlooked it. It doesn't particularly matter though. Because I found Zulu 150 m or so down the hill hiding behind a tree.

Since he doesn't seem to be searching I guess he found Semayousuke. According to what I heard he was carrying a woman as he moved so his speed must have been considerably slow. I lower my speed to a walk and after reaching the tree that Zulu is hiding behind I whispered to him.

"..Zulu..Did you..find them?"

My breathing still hasn't stabilized.

"Yes, they seem to be about 200 m below here. I think it's probably a tent but I see something like a hut covered in branches so it doesn't stand out. I think they're probably there."

As expected Zulu is breathing a bit heavily as well but he still clearly replied. I looked in the direction he pointed his finger but I couldn't find anything suspicious. I'll try looking using Identify. I carefully sweep over the direction Zulu pointed. And I found it. It's probably that.

From a glance it just looks like a bunch of bushes but there's some unnatural light coming through the gaps in the trees gathered there. It's probably a large tent that several people could rest in. It's not a triangle roof one. It's the type you tie to trees on all four sides for the roof. And it seems he's hidden it by covering it in branches. It doesn't seem he could completely cover it but if you weren't looking closely while trying to find something then it would be pretty difficult to find. After Identifying just like that after all it was a tent.

After turning around I couldn't see Ralph and Zenon. Ah, there they are. It's just Ralph though. I wave my hand high to gather her attention and whispered once again.

"Zulu, after Ralph comes we're moving ahead. We'll go over to there. I think we're on just the right side to be on the side of the tent."

"I understand. What should we do after arriving?"

"First we'll check what's going on. When I say "Now" you should somehow try to knock down the tent. If you cut two of the ropes holding the roof up I'm sure it'll fall. Until I give the signal just stay hidden. If there's any inconveniences then I'll give instructions appropriate at that time."

I told Zulu while glaring at the tent. Zulu immediately replied that he understood.

Before long Ralph arrived as well. I told her when she was breathing heavily that Zulu and I would go ahead and check things out and that she should quietly come when she's caught her breath, then Zulu and I walked off towards the tent.

After getting within 20 m of the tent it's about time we start proceeding carefully. I can't hear any voices at all. Although if they're normally talking in a tent then unless you're pretty close it's difficult to hear I'm sure. I can't hear any sounds of a struggle but this is probably because the woman was given poison so she can't resist at all.

We've gotten even closer to the tent. There's already only about 5 m. After all the direction we were approaching from was the side of the tent, there's no slit for entering, and it's just got branches for camouflage. I only noticed after getting closer but there's a net along the outside of the tent and various things stuck on that net. It's started to get considerably dark. If there's a lighting magic tool in the tent then I wonder if we'll be able to see shadows? In the next moment,

“Why are you doing this!? You-chan, untie me!”

I could hear that sort of impatience female voice in Japanese from inside the tent.

“Who’s You-chan? Your man?”

A man’s voice sounding like he was making fun of her.

“Eh!? You deceived me!! Who are you!? Where’s You-chan! Untie me.”

Going off the situation the woman seems to be tied up I guess.

“Hi~hhi~hhi~ I thought I could deceive with how much you were saying semayousukesemayousuke, but you, you’re way too easy. I know it’s not something I should be saying but, it’s best if you don’t believe in other people so simply~!”

Though what he’s saying is quite true, it pisses me off.

I still can’t tell if it’s just the two of them that’s inside. I’ve already confirmed that there’s no shape or sign of a lookout nearby but there’s no way I’d have enough visibility to see inside of the tent. There’s no shadows on the tent as well. There must be either no source of light inside the tent or it’s something really small. I need to get a bit more of a grasp on the situation.

“Hey, who in the world are you!? Where have you hidden Yousuke? Do you know him?”

It seems that she’s tied up but a considerably strong woman. There’s still power in her voice.

“Ah~ hhi~hyayhyahya..Like there’s any way I’d know something like that~ idddiii~ottt!!”

What’s this..this guy is irritating.

“You, do you think you’ll get off easily doing things like this!?”

“I~ think sooo~ After all I spent close to a month making preparations after seeing you. Even this tent was expensive~! And I’m a veteran as well. What number were you again? How about it? Asuka-chan~ Or what was it again? Right, status open..Is Bernadett-chan better? Or would it be better to call you Koloil?”

I strain my ears to listen to the conversation across the camouflaged tent. This bastard..he's crazy. But, I'm sure I'd be able to hear if they were yelling in a loud voice but even with my ear right next to the tent most of the sounds are reduced. So tents we're pretty soundproof.

"Hey, untie this. Why in this shape.."

The woman's voice sounds like it's about to disappear.

"There's no way I'd untie it. You'll just resist right? Just be grateful I gave you the antidote for the paralysis. It's been a while since I last talked in Japanese, let's enjoy the conversation with a bit more spirit!"

What do you mean with spirit, you trash. However, I wonder if it's just these two in the tent? Going off the conversation it doesn't seem like there's anyone else though..just in case if there's anyone else captured, or if he has any allies it wouldn't be strange. I guess I should keep an eye on things for a bit longer.

"Untie me! Untie this~!"

The woman is demanding in a loud voice. I can hear the man's voice sneering. I'm straining my ears to see if I can hear the laughing voices of anyone else but I can't tell. At that time Ralpha quietly got close. And with a voice as if she squeezed it out said,

"How are things?"

And asked that.

"It seems she's still just tied up. It also seems she was paralyzed. Though the paralysis on the woman already seems to have been removed."

"What are we going to do?"

"I still don't know how many are inside. Also, it seems that after all the two of them were Japanese, well just keep listening."

We whisper in a low voice. Judging off the voices inside I'm sure our voices weren't heard.

"I~ woooooon't~ untieeeee~ you~! You're beloved Semayousuke won't come! Gyahahahaha! It's fine if you call for him, I'm sure he won't hear you though!"

This voice hurts my ears.

“Gu! You-chan, save me! You-chan!”

The woman’s voice has started to get tearful.

“Youchaaaaan! Save me~ I’ll be rapedddd~! Is it!? Fu..fffeffe...Ah, come to think of it you’re a Bunny-man as well right, Asuka-chan? Just as you can see, I’m a Bunny-man as well. Do you know what this means? Huh?”

Like I know, you ass!

“So what if that’s the case! That doesn’t matter so untie me already!”

Her voice still sounds tearful.

“Ho~e~ You still have quite a bit of composure right, Asuka-chan~ If we’re the same race, then shouldn’t we cooperate in order to increase our race~? Look, with this.”

!Thi..This bastard.

“Hi..It can’t be..What’s that? Don’t show that sort of thing to me.”

Unfo..

“Hahha~! With this, and Asuka-chan..I’ll enjoy myself greatly~ You need to dislike it more~ Since it makes it irresistible~” Unforgi..

“Stop it..Hey, please stop. I’m begging you.”

“There’s no way I’d stop at this point~ you retard! Well~~ then, I need to start get Asuka-chan’s clothes off~ It’s unfair for just me to be naked right~?”

Unforgivable..

“Please, stop it!”

“For starters I’ll let out plenty inside of you. You can get impregnated with the child of a man you don’t like! I won’t tell you to give birth to it~! Since we don’t know if you’ll still be alive by then~! Hey~ you need resist and hate it more! Scream out some more! It’ll make me more excited!”

Unforgivable! I can’t hold back anymore! I don’t give a shit how many there are anymore! Even if there are if they're this guys allies then I'll take them all out!

"I can't hold back anymore! I'm charging in. The two of you wait here!"

I say that in a low voice behind me and run towards the entrance on the other side of the tent. I'm sure I'm making noise but I don't give a shit anymore! The blood is running to my head, I'm aware I'm agitated but I can't hold back the feeling of wanting to beat the shit out of this guy. It's something I haven't felt in a while.

I let out a roar from the entrance of the tent and enter as I hold my bayonet as the ready and I saw the two of them shocked by my sudden entrance. There's a woman laying face up further in the tent with her limbs tied to a stake in the ground. And then a man showing his bare ass as he crouches down to the woman's crotch with a knife about to cut her pants away though he's trying to stand up in a panic.

Without reducing speed I charged in just like that hitting the man aside with my gun-stock and after that I kicked him in his exposed crotch with my full strength. Gushryt~ I felt a sensation like something was crushed.

At the same time as I kicked him I glanced to the sides but I couldn't see anyone other than them and it was just an empty tent. I look at the man who's passed out from the pain and is laying on his side and step on his chest with the heel of my foot before yelling out.

"Zulu! Ralpa! Come inside!"

The two of them immediately jumped into the tent. There's something to do before explaining the situation in the tent. Furthermore, there was no sign of a lightning magic tool inside of the tent but there was something like a small wax candle. Since the light is too small I guess it couldn't pass through the material of the tent. Since it seems this tent is a reasonably good-quality one, the material seems pretty thick.

"Zulu! Watch over this guy. If he resists then kill him. Ralpa untie her legs, I'll untie her arms."

Zulu switches the two-handed sword that he was holding in one hand to the reverse direction and looms over the man with the sword to his throat. The man has started to foam at the mouth. Ralph crouches to the ground near the woman's feet with her axe in one hand and after placing the axe on the ground starts untying the rope. I,

"You can relax, it's already fine. Are you hurt anywhere?"

While saying that I crouch down near her left arm and started untying the rope.

The woman says,

"Eh? What? Who?"

And it seems she's confused but after Ralph said "Everything is fine now, that man can't resist anymore." it seems she was relieved a bit and just watched as we untied the rope. I had some trouble getting the tightly tied rope off so I grinned but "hi.." it seems I scared her. Isn't that too harsh?

Several minutes later, after untying the rope together with Zenom who arrived the woman was thanking us. It seems that the man is still unconscious after fainting in pain. For the time being I tie up the man with both arms and legs to the stakes like the woman was. I had Zulu do this. I didn't want to touch him after all. After letting the woman who had calmed down a bit out of the tent the sun had set and it was already dark out.

"Let's do introductions and that sort of stuff later, for starters, what should we do with that man? I charged in thinking it would be fine to kill him but in the end he's still alive. If we throw some water on him I think he'll wake up but you should decide."

I said that to the woman. Ralph is nodding to my words.

"Eh? Umm..that is.."

She seems to be confused suddenly having such a thing brought up to her but she should have calmed down by now. She's probably hesitating.

"It's fine if you kill him, we won't tell anyone. The only ones who know about this are probably us after all."

Ralph is saying that but if she actually tries to kill him I'd stop her. Well, it won't be too late to wait and hear what decision the woman makes here, there's no need to hurry her. During that time I'll try using Identify on the woman.

【Unique Ability: Shooting Intuition (Lv. Max)】

【Experience: 27239(28000)】

! Shooting Intuition!? Her other ability levels are the average for a Rabbit-person but her level is high as well. She's already almost level 6. I'll start looking from the Unique Ability.

【Unique Ability: Shooting Intuition; an ability which makes the intuition of the user sharper and raises their accuracy when shooting. At level 0 it gives a correction of 5% to their normal shooting capability but for every level after that the correction increases by 5%. Correction is a general term used to cover the talent and experience one gains in shooting ability through normal shooting and it does not add any sort of special ability. This ability only takes effect once on any projectile fired within 60 seconds of using the ability. Make note that this ability is limited to only making corrections to the Shooting Intuition of the user. Therefore, it has no effect on the abilities of the device used to shoot or the distance or force of the projectile fired with it.】

..This is.. you could say a rare talent. No matter what I want her as my subordinate. I want you! I guess that's different. Also I know that she's from a Sub-Baron family. Since I've never heard of the Koloil family I checked the sub-window and it seems she was born in the Kingdom of Devas. There's no way I would know it. But, since she's the second daughter then it doesn't seem like she'd have any problems with inheritance, it's very possible that she can work together with us. I've started to get excited. Calm down, me. Let's go with this in a {cool} manner.

In the next moment the woman finally opened her mouth. Well then, I wonder what kind of verdict she'll give, I'm looking forward to it a bit. I can understand a bit of her personality here.

"Let's report this to the knight group."

Yeah, that's good. It's fine to kill him as well but in that case it's possible that we could be found out from the messenger guy he used.

"Is that fine? I think it wouldn't even be enough to kill a bastard like that though."

Ralpa, let's think things through a bit more. However, I don't hate that way of thinking.

"Stop it, Ralpa, she's the direct victim and she decided on it. Now then, let me ask one more thing. What should I do about the treatment of that man? I crushed his balls. Also, there's probably at least a crack in his ribs. If it's now I think I can still treat it with magic. IF you want it's fine for me to heal him."

I continue to say while trying to act {cool}. The first impression is important.

"What do you think?"

She says painfully.

"It's fine if you decide. There's no meaning in saying my opinion."

I said it with a kind expression but the details are pushing her away. But, my opinion really doesn't matter even if it's said. Ah, I'm in the faction that leaves them on their own.

"If the injury isn't something that will effect his life then I think it's fine to leave it as it is. If we don't at least leave him with that much he probably won't reflect on his actions.. and, I want to talk to him. Why, he did something like that, and how much he knows, I want to confirm.”

I see. By the way, since I think I crushed his balls so I think it will effect his life. It’s necessary to secretly use the simplest healing magic, no, healing spell. But I don’t want to touch his exposed balls so I’ll just use it on his body.

“Got it. If it’s just talking with him then I can probably make it so he can talk right now but, is now good..otherwise if we just leave him like that he probably won’t open his eyes anytime soon. Should we do it tomorrow? But, in that case we’d have to spend the night here. If we report it to the knight group then I’m sure we won’t be able to talk to him after that.”

Honestly, since I think it would be troublesome I think it would be better to talk to him right away.

“Then, is right now fine? Can you help me with that?”

“Got it, before that let me send someone to report to the knight group. Wait just a moment.” “Hey, Zulu, go to the knight group and explain the situation and bring a couple of them here. If you use my name it’ll probably be fine. And I’ll start a campfire here so use that as a sign to find your way. The crime is..I guess, abduction and attempted rape.”

In reality I think it would be perfect if I let Zulu hold the Marquis Wbedos plate but even if it’s Zulu I can’t give it to him. And then Zenom opened his mouth. Sorry for leaving you outside of everything.

“I’ll go with him as well. I’m sure that would be better. Also, where your inn? If you haven’t taken one then if it’s alright with you I’ll add one at ours though?”

Zenom bluntly asks. I wonder if he’s being careful for her.

“Please do.”

The woman said that and lowered her head to Zenom.

“Ah, Zulu, make sure you gather the bow and sword and everything that was on the ground at the peak.”

I’ll call out to Zulu saying that as he walked off with Zenom and then I went through the entrance of the tent. Ralpa and the woman are following behind me but I tell Ralpa, “Ralpha, started a campfire. Since it’s dark.”

After saying that and Ralpha obediently left the tent. I put my right hand on top of Dereonola’s head as he’s still tied down and use a healing spell, after that I used water magic to make about a bowl of water and threw it on his face. He woke up right away.

He cursed at me for a bit but after lightly kicking his side where he’s most likely got a cracked rib and he started complaining about the pain. I’m sure that’s the case. Since I’m trying to make it hurt. I intentionally make sure he can see as I take the sword out of my bayonet and stick it in front of Dereonola.

“Answer my questions, you piece of shit. And answer them honestly. The one who will be deciding if it’s the truth or a lie is me, so it’s fine if you lie. However, if I think that it’s a lie then you’ll suffer some more pain. It would be good if you can live to see the sunrise tomorrow.”

A short while after I started interrogating Dereonola and Ralpha entered the tent. Since I already feel too disgusted to keep looking at Dereonola’s face I handed the sword to Ralpha and decided to keep watch on the fire outside. I’m sure no monsters would appear near a town right next to Rombertia and even if they did appear I almost pity them for having me as an opponent when I’m in a bad mood right now.

I can’t hear the details of the conversation from outside but fundamentally it’s how he managed to figure out that woman’s personal information or about the real Semayousuke. I’m sure it’s nothing too important or complex, it’ll be fine if I ask Ralpha later.

Chapter 79: Finding Employment

I heard a scream like gya~ It was from inside the tent. I wonder if they're torturing him? Well, just make sure you don't kill him. Since as long as you don't kill him I can heal him and there's less trouble when we hand him over to the knight group.

..For a short while I sat on an appropriate rock and watched the fire. Just staring at the small fire and I can't but think, ah, it's pretty. And at the same time I also found it strange. Come to think of it that Dereonola is a reincarnated person. Since he was speaking in Japanese and when I identified him this afternoon I confirmed his Unique Ability "Highly Efficient Digestive System" so there's no mistake on that.

But, wait just a moment? Why did I think it was a good idea to hand him over to the knight group? If it's the normal me then I would have done something like Begulu and force him to pay me an amount he can't pay to overlook his crime and then make him forcefully into a slave, even if he's a sex offender, he's still a reincarnated person...No, I guess it's impossible since he was already a slave, wait, it's not impossible. If I had requested the payment from his owner? The owner would probably just give him to the knight group without paying I'm sure. No wait, he's a sex offender? If he made the stupid mistake of putting his hands on one of my subordinates and created discord then, in the first place I've always thought sex crimes were worse than other crimes since the past.. when was the past? before I reincarnated. Theft, intimidation, fraud, murder, there's a mountain of despicable crimes but if it's a crime other than a sex offense I've always thought there was room for pardon. Even though that's the case accept him? There's no way! That's right, that woman, the Bunny-man reincarnated person named Asuka since she was about to be raped by him. Did I try to hand him over to the knight group thinking about her? If I were to just think about her then you could say that even in the case of revenge murder isn't good, so that might be ri..right. But, if I think about in another way then I'm in a situation where I want as many reincarnated people as allies as possible. Did I discriminate against him because of his Unique Ability? Asuka's "Shooting Intuition" is extremely useful after all. Putting aside combat in the dungeon it's an ability that is considerably useful outside and especially when I make guns later.. though if I'm going to say that while it's useless in battle but even Dereonola's "Highly Efficient Digestive System" can't be made fun of. If it's a long-term concealment or scouting mission then being able to have less food on hand is directly related with significantly reducing the amount of luggage. In worst case you could last quite a while just eating some insects. Though it's true that "Shooting Intuition" is a useful ability in a different direction. It's not a problem of which is better. No, it's not a problem of the Unique Ability, his personality is the problem. Just thinking about eating meals together with a disgusting sex offender who has no sense of reason makes me feel like throwing..what was I thinking about again? Stop, what point is there in thinking about these kinds of things right now! If I don't think about them now then when will I! Calm down, even if there's something I don't know don't get emotional, there's nothing good that will come from it. Yeah, that's right, I should calm down and organize things. Just like usual. Now, I'm going to do it.

1. Dereonola is a reincarnated person. His Unique Ability is "Highly Efficient Digestive System".

2. Asuka is a reincarnated person. Her Unique Ability is "Shooting Intuition".

Both of them have useful Unique Abilities. Depending on the time and place they both have their advantages and disadvantages. That's why there's no problem at all that far. I want both of them as my allies, they're talents I want as my subordinates.

3. Dereonola is a despicable sex offender.

He was a slave. I don't know if he was already a slave or was made into a slave for some reason but it's probably unrelated to his sex crimes. I think there's room for pity in the fact that he's a slave on its own but I think that no matter what reason he had I can't accept the fact that he committed a sex crime just to satisfy his own desires. Ah, it could be thought of as a type of revenge, maybe? That doesn't matter for now. It doesn't seem it's that sort of reason this time after all.

4. Asuka is searching for Semayousuke. It's probably someone she knows that died together with her in the accident.

It's certain there's a reincarnated person named Semayousuke, or rather there's a pretty high probability they've reincarnated. I'm sure Asuka is searching because she's confident of it as well. In that case then if I can make Asuka into my ally then later on Semayousuke might automatically come along as well.

5. Dereonola's history of sex crimes didn't start with Asuka. It seems he's done it several times.

Someone who's committed sex crimes a number of times is..no good I'm sure. His willpower is weak and it means he has no self-restraint as well. His MP was 7 but it's not a problem to think about just in terms of MP. I'm sure there's differences in individuals. If that wasn't the case then this would be a world where crimes don't occur. With no crimes or conflict, in terms of public order you could say it's a utopia but I'm sure that would just be dystopia. That's why crimes should have no relation to how much MP you have. It might be interesting to try analyzing it but I'll stop for now.

6. The reason Dereonola was in Baldukk.

Unknown. Was he born and raised here?

7. The reason Asuka was in Baldukk.

She most likely came searching for Semayousuke. Since it seems she was born the Kingdom of Devas. It must have been a coincidence she was found by Dereonola.

When I thought as far as that Asuka and Ralpa came out of the tent. I stopped thinking and offered the easy to sit on rock to them. Well then, let's start with introductions, I decided on you from the start, please take care of me from now I guess. Eh? Neruton Red Whale Group*, don't you know it?

"How did it go?"

When I tried asking that Ralpa responded.

"There's nothing to it. That guy is the worst."

Seeing that Ralpa, Asuka apologetically said,

“I didn’t think it through enough. We’ll talk about those sorts of things later. First let me properly offer you my gratitude.”

While saying that she continued her words.

“Really thank you very much for saving me from a dangerous situation. My name is Soma Asuka. My name on Orth is Bernadett Koloil. I was born in the King of Devas but as I’m sure you’ve already realized I’ve come this far searching for my boyfriend who died in that accident together with me.”

After saying that Bernadett politely lowered her head to us. If I take a look after calming down she’s quite cute. Since she’s still 14 years old there’s a bit of innocence remaining but for a Japanese she’s extremely cute. With this then I’m sure she must have been a considerable beauty before as well. On Orth she probably wouldn’t be that well accepted though.

“Yeah, it’s fine. I just happened to overhear that man giving the message to someone at a restaurant. When I saw that man’s face and heard him say “semayousuke” it came to me. That there was another Japanese similar to myself involved in it. That’s why, honestly speaking I had no idea what would happen. Just that I thought a pair of Japanese were going to have a secret talk so I thought to eavesdrop on it out of interest.”

Since Ralpa is here as well it shouldn’t particularly be a problem if I talk about it. It’s hard to give a good impression with eavesdropping but there’s no better way to put it and I’m sure Ralpa has already talked about it as well.

“Yeah. I’ll apologize for trying to eavesdrop as well. I’m sorry. But, since we’re both Japanese I wanted to try talking. It’s my true feelings that if possible I wanted to enter the dungeon together.”

Ralpa says apologetic.

“However, no matter what the reason it’s true that you came running in that situation and saved me. Thank you so much truly.”

Bernadett lowered her head again while saying that.

“I see, well it’s fine. “Also, from here on out let’s talk in {Common Language}.

It would be troublesome if the knight group comes.”

After saying that I continued talking.

“My name is Alan Greed. Al is fine. In Japan I was Kawasaki Takeo. I was born in Bakuddo Village a remote region of the Rombert Kingdom.”

“My name is Ralpa Firefreed. Ral is fine. Just the same in Japan I was Ono Misa. I was born in Ralpa Village of Rombert. It seems I was an abandoned child. I just said it right? I was picked up by the dwarf Zenom when I was a baby.”

After hearing what Ralpa said was so surprised her eyes widened but I’m sure she remembered that they aren’t in a relationship where they’d share every detail about their origins, while pretending to act calm she said, “Call me Bel.”

“After that is Ralpa’s father who she mentioned just now Zenom Firefreed and my combat slave the Lion-people race Dadino Zulu. Since Zenom is short just call him Zenom. Since it seems Zulu is proud of his family name feel free to call him Zulu.”

While saying that I add another branch that would work as firewood to the campfire. In the next moment, Bel nervously asked me.

“By the way, Al-san. Is that a “gun”?”

Just as one would expect from someone with the Unique Ability “Shooting Intuition” it seems she has interest in guns.

“Ah, that’s right, I thought it was strange as well. What does that have the shape of a “gun”?”

Ralpa’s hopped on the question as well. Come to think of it she never asked until now. I’ve noticed her just staring strangely at my bayonet occasionally but since she never said anything I just ignored it.

“Ah, in the past...I think it would be around 40 years in the past from now? No, around 35 years. I was a “Self-defense officer”. That’s why I can decently use the sword normally but in reality the “bayonet” is easier for me to use. That’s why I made it in this shape.”

After responding with that and Ralph says.

“Oh so that was the case. I had thought that you were a “Chuu-ni-byou Gun Mania”.”

What in the world is that?

“But, Al was in the “self-defense force” huh? Did you become a “salary-man” after quitting the “self-defense force”? How old are you?”

Ralph still talks in a way as if she doesn’t even know the existence of the word “discretion” as usual.

“Yeah, I entered the “self-defense force” after I left “high school”. I was in the “self-defense force” for about 6 years. After that I quit being a “self-defense officer” and spent close to 20 years in sales for a foodstuff company. I died when I was 45 years old so now I’m 59. Also, I wasn’t a “self-defense force” but a “self-defense officer”. Use the word properly.”

I responded with a sullen expression. Thinking of me as a chuu-ni-byou gun mania..this shitty brat.

“Uhe~ 59 like, aren’t you already an old man. Not to mention you’re so picky about everything~”

Ralph says while laughing. Th..This..

“Shut it. You were a “high school student” but in that case aren’t you already an old woman past 30? In the first place I’m still 14 years old on Orth!”

Bel started laughing at our idiotic argument.

“Then, I’m a 35 year old woman now because I died when I was 21 years old as well.”

And said that, so we stopped our pointless argument and faced her. Sorry.

I tried asking that. It’s an obvious attempt to change the topic.

“Yes, that’s right. He was a classmate in college. We were both born in the same Gifu prefecture and got along together.”

“Then, that guy isn’t semayousuke right? Well, if he’s your boyfriend then you would recognize him if you saw his face I guess.”

After I replied with that and Bel said surprised.

“Eh? Even after reincarnating our faces remain the same?”

Has she never looked into the surface of some water?

“It’s not completely the same. For example my face is like it was when I was 14 years old then made into a human of this world. In terms of Japanese I guess you could say it’s kind of like being a half? If it’s the person them self or at the family level of familiarity then I think they would easily be able to notice. Have you never tried looking at your reflection on the water’s surface Bel?”

After I say that and,

“There were no mirrors and since the water in the river moves so I couldn’t tell very well...Ah, I guess it would have been fine if I had stored it inside of something.. I never had any particular interest in my own face in the first place.”

Is it that sort of thing? It’s true that even Ralpa never thought of looking at her face on the water’s surface as well it seems. After being reborn as a baby and spending countless months unable to move, I’m sure that checking your face wouldn’t be very high on the list of things to do once you can move. If you spend several years like that I’m sure you’d become indifferent to your face..I guess? Since sheet glass with a high transparency hasn’t been invented there’s no proper mirrors. But, while their amount of reflection is bad and they’re expensive it isn’t like there aren’t mirrors at all. Since I’m a man I didn’t particularly care much about it in the first place, though Mary was a bit younger than I am since she’s still easily at the age of an old woman as well in terms of mental age so I never really thought about it.

However, Ralpa is an ex-high school girl and Bel was a college student. I wonder if a young girl that was born and raised in Japan would normally be this indifferent to their own looks? Or maybe it’s because of being born and raised in the environment of Orth? I wonder what is up with this out of place feeling. In the first place, even though I was a man even in my past life I would check my appearance in the mirror several times every day. Well, I’ll put it aside for now. It can’t be helped just thinking about it.

“Well putting that aside. And about facial features but this isn’t just my opinion. They’re not here but I know another two reincarnated people, a man and a woman. Ah, reincarnated people are what I call the Japanese that were reborn in this world. When I met them we exchanged a variety of information. Our facial features was one of those things. It seems that our faces are as if the racial characteristics of this world have entered our faces from our previous life. Ah, the man isn’t Bel’s boyfriend. I think he said his name was Kojima., it seems he was a “high school student”. Those two entered the knight group in the territory I was born and are being worked hard right about now.”

After I said that and Bel made a relieved expression and said.

“Then..Then if he seems my face or I see his then we’ll know it’s each other right!”

She seems quite happy.

“Yeah, probably.”

After I said that this time Ralpa entered the conversation.

“The knight group sure is slow.”

Mu, quite a bit of time has passed since then, it should be a good time I guess.

“I guess so. Isn’t it about a good time for them to get here? Bel, I’m sure you want to talk with a bit more detail but we’ll do that later.”

I say that while standing up and brushing the dirt off my butt.

“Umm, before that is it okay if I ask?”

After Bel said that I sat down again.

“You all are adventurers right? Are you earning money in the dungeon of Baldukk?”

Bel says while bracing herself.

“That’s right, we’re adventurers. Well, we only just arrived in Baldukk the other day, I think it was about one week ago. We’ve only entered the dungeon once so far though.”

Ralpa said proudly while sticking her chest out for some reason.

“I see. If it’s alright with you then would it be alright if I went with you until Yousuke comes, no, even if it’s just for as long as you’re in this town? Since it’s just me, alone, and that sort of thing happened I’m feeling a bit lonely..”

Mu, of course that’s fine though. Ralpa glances at my face while saying.

“We welcome strong reincarnated people. Right, Al, isn’t it fine?”

Of course it’s fine. But you know..

“Bel, are you troubled with money?”

It’s no good if we don’t decide on the conditions.

“No, for the time being it’s not a problem in particular but I’m thinking of waiting for him in this town for at least 10 years. As expected I don’t have enough money to live in this town for 10 years so..”

10 years huh? Even though she’s a foreigner since she’s a noble she doesn’t have to think about taxes..Huh? I wonder what happens in the case of foreigners? I’ll investigate it later. In any case, supposing that it’s tax-free for her and she stays at the cheapest inn, including food she should be able to go on living at about 1,500 Z per day. In the worst case if she were to camp on the edge of the town I’m sure it would be even cheaper. If it’s just the bare minimum food then I don’t think it would cost more than 200,000 Z per year. However, I’m sure both of those are impossible in reality. It’s a lifestyle that’s on the verge of begging and it could end up having bad effects on your health. If you just think about living normally for all expenses other than inn and food then it should cost around 1,000,000 Z per year. Well, since Bel is from a Sub-Baron family it seems so she should have enough money to live for a few years I’m sure.

“Of course you’re welcome to join. I’ll give you wages as well. It’s 200,000 Z per month. After that whenever we find items in the dungeon I give bonuses as well. If you’re fine with that then we can make a contract just like Ralpa and Zenom. But, before that let me ask you a question. Bel’s boyfriend.. it’s about your basis for waiting for Yousuke-san in Baldukk. Why?”

After I said that and Ralpa said.

“Ah, I want to know that as well.”

Of course you do as well. If she just passed through Baldukk on her journey searching for boyfriend then I would understand. But the way she put it was almost like she knew for sure that her boyfriend would come to Baldukk? Ah, I guess since it's "at least for 10 years" then she's not completely sure?

"Since he should definitely try searching for me as well. No matter what type of family he was born in and in order to go on a journey to search for me it'll cost money right? That's why I thought he might come to Baldukk which is rumored to be good for earning money. And there's monsters wandering around on Orth as well. I'm sure he wouldn't be able to endure a journey until he grew up to a certain extent. That's why I left my house before becoming an adult and came straight here. Since he's pretty careful I think he'll endure at least until he becomes an adult and then it's only obvious he'll come here in order to make money to search for me. I believe that he will do that."

I see now, it's weak but it's not like she has no basis for it at all. Rather, in the case that reincarnated people who are familiar with each other try to accomplish the goal of meeting each other then I guess you could say they have somewhat of a basis for it. If they were to just randomly wander around I'm sure that would be even more difficult to meet each other.

"So that's how it was. Got it. If the conditions just now are fine then I'm fine with writing up a contract tomorrow even. How about it? Ah, don't think too deeply about it. That's right, I think it would be best to do it with the feel where you're being employed in a company that I'm the president of."

However, in your case, you can't independently retire so easily though.

"Is Ral in it as well?"

Bel asked Ralpa. Are you an employee of this guys place as well? Can he be trusted? I'm sure it's something like that.

"Yeah. We properly made a contract as well. It's Zenom and I for 400,000 Z per month. Since we had good luck today he gave us a bonus of 100,000 Z each."

Ralpa says to Bel while smiling. That's good, Ralpa just like that invite her.

"And..I'll talk about it later but, I think it would be best if you were together with us. About Bel's facial features as well.. you're considerably cute. Hmn, that's not all. He probably can't hear but there's things I don't want to let that guy hear as well. If you're hesitating then I'll tell you about it later."

Ralpa says that while looking towards the tent and looking at me. What is it? I get what you're trying to say but you don't need to look at me every time.

"Al is fine. He's strong and he can use magic extremely well, and I'm being taught magic by Al right now as well."

Stop it, you'll make me embarrassed.

"Well, he is an old man after all? The faces of people over here are more my type than the faces of Japanese people as well? Zulu is cool."

"Ku...I'm not interested in a kid either, you brat!"

However, I don't get her interests, Zulu of all people? It's unusual for a commoner woman to fall for a slave. A forbidden romance across social standings huh? I guess it's not particularly unusual and it doesn't matter at all. Do it all on your own.

After seeing us like that Bel apparently found it quite funny because she laughed and said.

"I understand, Al-san, would you please hire me?"

Alright that's good girl. With an expression like a spider closing in on a butterfly caught in it's trap I say.

"Yeah, different from a brat a beauty is greatly welcome. I'm looking forward to working with you from now on."

After saying that the right hand I grabbed was rough with blisters.

I can hear a voice calling to me from the distance. It seems that Zulu and Zenom have brought the knight group.

Chapter 80: Red.Blue.Gold?

Zenom and Zulu brought with them six knights and squires. I introduce myself and Bel to who seems to be the commander of the knights that appeared and after having our Status confirmed we handed over Beilett Dereonola as a criminal. The offenses were abduction and attempted rape against a noble. Also, we added that he's a madman. Dereonola with his hands tied to his waist and a tree was looking at us hatefully but after I smiled viciously at him he got scared and looked away from me.

I don't know to what degree of a crime abduction and attempted rape of a noble is but as far as I could tell from the verdicts of Marquis Webdos it will probably be pretty harsh. I think it was 5 lashes with a whip for rape? Since it's attempted it might be a bit lighter but the problem is he tried to do that to a noble. When I got rid of Begulu B in Keel I did it like I was just wiping away someone who came at me first but I was told that just attacking a noble is plenty for being executed. Since there's also the abduction that wasn't attempted then I think his head will definitely fly.

If that wasn't the case then there's no way they could just caught off some limbs or kill him for just that crime I'm sure. There's also other crimes beyond rape but unless they actually kill the victim then I guess the death penalty is too heavy for just rape. I'm sure cutting something off is necessary though. However, it really is disappointing this guy is a reincarnated person.

While the commander of the knights was withdrawing the tent I tried asking him what level of punishment it would be. After all it was considerably heavy and it's unlikely he'll be unable to avoid the death penalty. Since there's evidence, or rather testimony from several people including a noble like myself so it seems there's no need to even interrogate him. Most likely he'll be executed in the public execution in two months or so. I guess it can't be helped. I walked over to Dereonola who is still tied to a tree and whispered to him in a small voice just he could hear.

“If you have the chance I think you should obediently confess your crimes. If you show you’ve reflected properly there might be a bit of room for pardon. If you can make up for your crimes that is.”

I whisper that into Dereonola’s ear and he made an expression like he heard something suspicious. That’s exactly the case though.

“Na...I won’t fall for that type of thing. I’ll tell them everything.”

Tell them everything about what?

“Huh? What are you going to tell them about? Could it be how we’re Japanese? I’m not particularly hiding it so feel free? I was just saying it out of kindness because we’re both from Japan. I guess it was pointless? Then, no matter what they ask, you should just say it was a sudden impulse.”

Like that’s the case. He even prepared a tent. It’s obvious that it was a planned crime. Furthermore I say,

“You should still answer the things you’re asked honestly, as long as you don’t say anything excessive you might leave a better impression right? Well, if you’re okay with that then do as you please. I won’t particularly stop you, no matter what you say it won’t hurt me. Since unlike you I’m not a criminal.”

After I said that he looked down mortified. I continue saying.

“Also you know, your balls, I can still fix them. Well, as long as you obediently receive punishment and make up for your crimes that is.”

He looks back at me with eyes filled with hope. I didn’t lie. If it’s now then I’m sure I can still fix them. Though if the wound heals then it’s probably already impossible.

“It’s fine. We’re the same Japanese right? As long as you make up for your crimes then don’t you have a pure body. Don’t they say hate the crime not the person?”

After I said that I left Dereonola’s side. This is the King’s direct territory. If he says weird things like Japanese or Reincarnated People then it might end up becoming troublesome. If there’s a reincarnated person among the royalty and if he's even a bit intelligent then like I told Zenom and Ralpa before he might think of hunting reincarnated people and that would be a problem. It's somewhat more convenient to keep it hidden at least until I get my own territory. There's not much meaning in just hiding the fact that I'm a reincarnated person but it's just being careful of another reincarnated person who might be in a higher position than me. Ah, maybe it would be a good idea to dye my hair. So I don't forget I'll make sure to properly write it in my mental notes.

Now then, as long as I say something like then in the case that this guy gets interrogated, I'm sure he won't blab about all of his crimes but he might just obediently confess to this time. Even if it's no good it can't be helped. Ah, if I think about it more carefully then it might have been better to just kill him. Even if I don't kill him right away and let him swim for a bit, it probably would have been safer to just kill the messenger as well. But you know, even though she was almost raped, I can't just tell Bel to kill him. I'm sure being whipped and having your balls crushed is plenty of a punishment. Though it would be fine to cut them off as well.

Well I can't help something that's already finished. And even if he says something about Japan he committed a crime against a noble. The chances are low that they'll report every little thing a rape demon says to the high nobles or royalty I'm sure. Just now was just something like makeshift insurance.

It seems that they're almost finished taking the tent down. I wonder what happens to this evidence? Since it's pretty nice I'd be happy if I can have it but. Ah, I'm not bothered by the fact that it was used as a tool for a sex offense. Since you should hate the crime and not the tool after all.

We climb the night path in groups and then descend after that. If the knight group hadn't brought a lightning magic tool it would have been troublesome. Since they brought four of them there's plenty of light so we can pay close attention to the uneven ground.

Once in the town we separated with Dereonola at the split up between our inn and the knight groups quarters and since we were hungry started talking about going and getting something to eat. Come to think of it from here on out Bel will be accompanying us. I need to properly introduce her to Zenom and Zulu.

Bel and them properly introduced themselves. After showing each other's Status they came to know each other. Zulu said it was too much for a slave like himself to not only be at the same table but to directly touch the daughter of a Sub-Baron family (though she was the second daughter which is far from inheriting the family) so we said not to worry about and properly had him show his Status. After eating and drinking when we were about done with our meals Ralpa started saying this.

"Zulu, you, do you have any loyalty?"

Hey now, what are you saying so suddenly? You?
There's no other response than he obviously does right?

"Of course. Out of the many slaves I was chosen. I'm very satisfied with how I'm treated as well."

See.

"Hmn. I see. Then I guess it's fine. But. I feel sorry for you but for today would you return early? Right? Al?"

Why do you throw it to me there? Well it's fine though.

"Yeah, Zulu. We're going to have a meeting on our plans from tomorrow on after this. Also, we need to go over the details of Bel's contract as well. Sorry about crushing your break for this afternoon. Feel free to go and rest first."

I said that and told Zulu to go ahead to the inn before us. Don't worry about what Ralpa said.

"Yes, I understand master. Then, I'll go and rest ahead of everyone else."

"Ah, we'll meet tomorrow at the same restaurant and time as today."

After saying that and waving and Zulu left the restaurant. Now then.

"Bel, just now was close to clearing people out. Since Zenom knows about our situation you can relax. Also, after we finish eating let's change locations. I guess we can talk at my inn."

I say that and then tilt my remaining beer mug.

“Bel, you can relax. Since Zenom is my father. I’ve talked to him about it since the past.”

After Ralpa said that as well she bit into her remaining skewer.

“Yeah, I know the majority of it. I don’t know the small details though. Well, things won’t go badly for you, I can guarantee there’s nothing to lose in just listening.”

Zenom says while throwing the rest of his cooked meat and vegetables.

After hearing our conversation Bel said,

“I’m wouldn’t feel uneasy at this point. It’s fine.”

After responding like that she ate the rest of what appears to be a type of bird meat. Were rabbits carnivorous? No, I don’t know though.

.....

After changing locations we immediately got to exchanging information. Starting from each other’s Unique Abilities (I’m still passing it as Magic Acquisition as usual), and we fundamentally talked about things related to this world. In particular it was a big harvest that we were able to hear the names of some Unique Abilities from Bel. Out of “Identify”, “Resistance (Poison)”, “Scale”, and “Predicted Evasion”, the only ones I didn’t know were “Scale” and “Predicted Evasion”. Putting “Predicted Evasion” aside, I’m interested in “Scale”.

Eh? If my attacks are predicted and evaded then won’t I not be able to hit? Don’t say stupid things. Unless they can teleport there’s no way to evade guided magic or depending on the situation burying them in wide-area dirt or ice. Though going off the name it does sound useful in close combat or shooting combat. There’s no need to idiotically stand in the opponents ring.

Also, there was the information that the location she reincarnated to was at the Southeastern edge of the range that reincarnated people appear. Since it seems that I was on the Western edge if we can find one more person who was on a different edge then we should be able to roughly figure out the range.

There's no accurate map. It's fine even if it's only general.

However, Bel is living proof that there's reincarnated people in the Kingdom of Devas as well, so this is big. Depending on the situation there might even be reincarnated people in the Kingdoms of Kanbitt, Bakuluni, or Guranan Empire.

Furthermore, the things they found out about this case with Dereonola through torture (though it was just cute stuff like kicking him or threatening him with a sword) was,

- He just happened to find Bel on a street corner.
- He paid attention to her because she seemed Japanese.
- Since she was searching for someone named Semayousuke he guessed that she was Japanese.
- He prepared the base outside of town (Including searching for the location he spent around a month on preparations)
- He paid the man who he asked to deliver the message.
- He made Bel who nonchalantly appeared think he was Semayousuke.
- After she finished climbing the hill he got her to drink water with the paralysis drug in it.
- After knocking her out with paralysis he carried her to his base.
- He tied Bel's limbs to stakes that he had already prepared in advance.
- He let her drink the antidote for the paralysis.
- Right when he was about to get to enjoying himself I charged in.

That's how it seems to have gone. Well, it's pretty much entirely as expected.

"And, Ralpa, you made sure to secure it right?"

"Eh? Secure what?"

Hey now, don't joke with me.

"The paralysis drug he used and the antidote for it!"

It's only obvious.

"Eh? There wasn't any left and in the first place it's evidence right?"

Aaaaaaa, if there was even a drop left I could of identified it...Well, if a slave can get their hands on it then I'm sure I could find it if I try as well. Since it seems they make various drugs using magic stones in this world. I'm sure there's some sort of store that deals in that stuff here in Baldukk.

"I guess that's true. It can't be helped."

Suddenly I remembered. Come to think of it the Scavenger Crawler we defeated this morning had a special skill called Paralysis. I think it was written on the window that in order to remove it if you've been paralyzed you need to use either magic or magic-based drug. I don't know paralysis magic or the magic to remove it. I've never used it after all.. I wonder if the general antidote magic works?

I somehow have the feeling that a combination of earth, water, and void magic would work but how much mana you need to pour into each of them... Being unable to use them when I need them or taking 15 minutes for them to activate isn't a joke. It seems it's necessary to practice it later. Going off of the identify window then probably even when paralyzed you might be able to use magic though. Since you have consciousness. But, it's not that sort of problem.

"What is it, suddenly going quiet...are you angry?"

Ralpa called out to me slightly nervous.

"Ah, no, I'm not. I'm not particularly angry. I was just thinking a bit. Since I've never tried using paralysis or remove paralysis magic I might need to practice them."

"Ah, I see...I'm sorry. I didn't think that far.."

"No, it's fine. Don't worry about it. If that guy can get his hands on it then I'm sure we can get it somewhere as well. If a slave can buy it then it's probably not all that expensive as well."

I cheerfully say that to Ralpa who seems apologetic and continue saying.

"And, this is changing the conversation, but I think I'll have Bel show us her abilities a bit before we go to the dungeon tomorrow morning. Also, some shopping. We'll buy enough hair dye or something like that for the three of us. Since Baldukk is a large town we should be able to find some."

After I said that I looked at Bel. I thought it might be possible she's against it.

“Of course I don’t have any problem with showing my skill but why is the hair dye necessary?”

Bel asked me as she finds it strange. And then Ralpa said something that I previously told her. That’s why I said, why are you saying it so proudly? It’s fine but you know. It seems that Bel has consented to it but with that expression I’m sure she’s worried that it will make it harder for Semayousuke to find her.

“Bel, this is just my thinking but until today including you I’ve met 5 reincarnated people. Putting me in and the total is 6 people. I noticed it on the first guy I met but I’m already sure of it now. If the reincarnated person is a Japanese then they’re all probably black hair and black eyes. It might be possible if there was a foreigner in that accident then it might be different for them but you guys saw the “television report recording” like thing right? There were only Japanese names “reported” on that. I don’t remember them all though. I can’t deny the possibility that there was a foreigner nationalized in Japan but there’s no point in worrying about such a low probability thing. That’s why it’s fine to think that all the reincarnated people have black hair and black eyes.

This is a matter of probability. Just like Ralpa just said it’s safe to safe this town is on the lap of the capital. It wouldn’t be strange for there to be a reincarnated person in the royalty of Rombert. Of course, since the capital of Rombertia has a population of around 200,000 people if you think of probabilities then it’s higher that they weren’t born as royalty.

However, it’s not limited to not being the case. That’s why this is something like “insurance”. It’s not a problem of whether a foreigner who was “nationalized” in Japan was in that accident or if someone reincarnated as royalty.”

After I said that Bel made a face like she comprehended it.

“It’s true it’s just as Al-san said. I knew that I had black hair and eyes but I didn’t know that the other reincarnated people would have the same black hair and eyes. If Yousuke hasn’t met any other reincarnated people then I’m sure he doesn’t know as well.”

Yeah, until I saw Kuro’s face, putting aside the facial features, I thought it was just a coincidence that I had black hair and eyes.

“I guess so. I’m the same. Since I was surprised when I met Al and thought he was probably Japanese. And black hair and eyes are unusual but there’s just black hair and black eyes as well. There’s also red hair and red eyes. Isn’t a red hair, red eye person just as unusual as a black hair and black eyed person? I think that brown hair and brown eyes are also unusual for the same reason, and the same for blue hair and blue eyes. Above all, the fact that all three of us have black hair and black eyes, this is already “dangerous” right?”

What’s “dangerous”? Young girl. But, what you say is quite true.

“That’s right. It’s true it’s just as Ralpa says, there’s not much of a reason to get neurotic over it. But, I’m sure if they start searching based on physical appearance they’ll look for black hair and eyes first. It would be a good idea to change everyone’s hair color.”

After I said that and Bel and Ralpa started worrying about what color they want to use. Does it really matter what color?

It’s gotten quite late at night and I’m going to wake up before 5 tomorrow morning. I’m sure everyone’s starting to get tired. There’s a bit of something that I want to think about by myself as well so I guess we should split up here.

.....

Year 7442, Month 6, Day 5

The next morning, I had Bel show me her skill with the bow and sword. Just as I had expected her skill with the bow was splendid and I’m sure she’ll be a big help in combat from now on. In regards to the sword there was nothing in particular to mention but I’m sure she can at least protect herself.

Also, just like Ralpa I’ve started to teach her magic as well. Since she has a high MP, if she can learn to use magic then there’s no doubt that she’ll add a lot to our combat potential. Please certainly learn magic.

Furthermore, about the contract but Ralpa was annoying about properly creating the contract document again. The details are almost the same as the one Ralpa and Zenom signed but I added “consult with Sema Yousuke before deciding” to the conditions for release. There was no helping this. At first they were saying “until we discover Sema Yousuke”. It was quite difficult for me to negotiate it down to here without making them suspicious. Well it can't be helped though.

In terms of hair dying, I went with red, Ralpa gold, and Bel has become deep blue. Bel and I made it a color where even if the color drops a bit or our hair grows it's easy to hide. But that idiot Ralpa ignored our advice to go with brown and used blonde.

"In the past I wanted to try becoming blonde once." was what she said.

If the color starts to fade then you pay for it~ rebel. By the way, after seeing each others face after dying it we laughed that "it doesn't suit you".

Well then, it's already passed 10 in the morning. Let's get to exploring the dungeon again today I guess. Starting today I'll have the front-line Zenom, Zulu, and Ralpa take care of the weak opponents like Gnolls and Goblins and have Bel support them from the rear. If it's a narrow area and there's 10 or 20 or so of them then shouldn't it be fine?

I don't know how well you can use the bow inside of the dungeon. I'll be careful of the surroundings. If they start having too much trouble then it'll be fine if I support them with my bayonet or magic. In addition while I'm at I'll use identify to closely examine and research experience gain. I can predict a bit of it from the information of my hunting at night in Bakuddo but there's a considerable number of places which I can't be sure of yet.

Ah, after this I should buy some writing utensils as well. I'm sure it would be more efficient if we draw a map while entering from now on. Depending on the case I could go all out and buy a map...No wait, 800,000 Z is a lot of money. I can't spend wastefully.

After saying the meaningless incantation, "ke.ru.ru.he" the same as yesterday and the five of us challenge the dungeon. Now, we need to remain cautious as we go from here. I immediately used my identify vision to sweep the area. Yesterday we teleported to an area like the dead end of a cave but today we're in the middle of a cave that continues in two directions it seems.

Mu, I don't know which way is North and which way is South.

I almost reflexively told Ralpa to use her Unique Ability Spatial Understanding but stopped myself. Though Ralpha was able to learn void magic, the special skill is still level 0. Since her MP hasn't increased yet she still only has 3. Since we can't hope for natural recovery as well in the worst case it would become a bad situation.

Just like in the past with the Horned Bear if her MP is reduced it would be hard to watch. That time Kerry was rendered powerless in a matter of seconds.

We should endure as much as possible here for now is what I was thinking while preparing to randomly draw the paths down on the paper when, she said that while looking into the still blank paper. Sh..She already used it... since I still had my vision set to Identify (raising the bright with identify makes it easier to write in the dim cave so it's convenient) I reflexively identified her and just as expected her MP had become 2. Even though I went to the trouble of looking out for her. It was for your safety, though it's irritating I can't say that.

I couldn't say anything other than, “Y..Yeah, sorry about that.” and started drawing the map.

In any case since I don't know our current position I just drew a pair of parallel lines in the middle of the paper(the direction of North that Ralpha pointed out wasn't the direction the cave goes but into the wall on our side). While thinking that it's urgent to level up Ralpha's magic special skills I finish drawing the lines and since there's nothing to decide which direction to go I say “Then~ let's try going this direction first” and walk off.

Chapter 81: Gotten Distant Again

Year 7442, Month 6, Day 5

After advancing through the cave a bit for a short while completely different from yesterday it starts bending back and forth. With this I can't draw a map properly. There's no split paths yet but by the time one appears I won't know which direction we're going. I really need to hurry with increasing Ralpa's MP amount. If we can at least raise it up to 7 MP then every 5 minutes or so we should be able to figure out the correct direction. I'm thinking about that since I've already given up on drawing the map and watching Zenom's back while making sure not to be negligent in my caution.

Zenom is slowly moving forward while he checks the ground carefully for traps. It would probably be a good idea to let him switch with Zulu soon. In the next moment Zenom quietly said.

"I really want a stick or something long for this. As expected it's a bit exhausting."

A pole huh, that's true.

"I guess so. When we return I'll make sure to prepare one. Zulu, change places and take the lead."

After I said that and this time Zulu took the lead and we started moving ahead again. Zenom is being cautious at the rear.

After that, we continued for a short while when my identify captured some monsters ahead. When I tried identifying and they were gnolls. One, two...So there's 13 of them. That's just right. I put my hand on Zulu's shoulder and stop him from advancing before turning around.

"There's the presence of some monsters. It's probably goblins or something. The number is probably around 10. Let's make some noise and lure them over. Zenom, Ralpa, Zulu stand at the front and take them head on. Bel and I will assist from the back. Okay?"

After saying that in a whisper and I had them change the line up. After I instructed Zulu to raise his voice and lure the monsters I went to the back and urged everyone else on. Obviously being careful of attacks from the back is my job. Well, there's only one direction so it's probably fine though.

Zulu is raising some sort of loud voice. They don't seem to be words that have meaning but I guess it's some kind of battle cry. The gnolls quickly noticed and started running here. Now then, I'll open the identify window and carefully watch I guess. Who should I identify? I guess I'll go with Ralpa here. Since she's the weakest one among the three front attackers and her HP is low as well.

With Zenom in the center, Ralpa is on the left side and Zulu is on the right as they're lined up, I guess the gnolls thought there were only three of us they're running over while screaming. Along the way one of the ones at the front was shot by Bel's bow. After being hit in the center of its chest with an arrow the gnoll somersaulted before falling. Since the gnoll at the head fell all of the gnolls that weren't even lined up in any order went into complete chaos as they continued to charge at us.

While thinking it might be dangerous if it turns into a melee, I stand at the ready with my bayonet so I can assist them at anytime while watching. Of course my left hand is relaxed so I can use a spell at anytime. But, contrary to my worries the three of them are calmly dealing with the gnolls it seems. The gnolls are using short spreads it seems and since they're completely at a disadvantage Zenom and Ralpa are completely focused on defense and earning time. Occasionally Bel is shooting her bow between the gaps in them.

As expected of a user of "Shooting Intuition". Since I have Ralpa's identify window opened still I can't tell if she's using her Unique Ability or not but for now she's landing every hit on the gnolls. Since Zulu has more reach with his two-handed sword he's using it to hit their spears and cause their guard to collapse then stabbing them through the gaps he made with his sword and defeating them.

Hmn, this is hard to tell, I guess I chose the wrong person. When analyzing the experience it would probably better to do it on someone who uses a short sword or club. At the very least it would be better if it was an opponent where Zenom and Ralpa can land hits with their small range.

Oh~ it would be bad if they think I'm slacking off. I'll defeat one or so of them. It should be fine if I just find an appropriate one and blow it away with {Stone Arrow}. While thinking that without any sort of danger the combat ended. Gnolls and Goblins aren't much more threatening than a group of children with weapons after all. The final remaining three Zenom threw his hand-axe into one of gnolls back and finished it off and the other two Bel shot in the back as well with arrows to elegantly finish them off.

I guess if we have several people and we're all cooperating then we won't fall behind. After all I guess we won't have any difficulties unless it's against Orks or Hobgoblins. I cut the magic stones out of the 13 gnoll corpses while thinking that. Ah, I'm the only one who's done four of them. Everyone is slow. Zenom and Ralpa have done three each, Zulu has done two, and Bel's only done one.

Since I cut a lot of pretty small fish in my past life, it's a specialty of mine cutting along the bone with a blade but your memory is more important than that. The shape and location of the internal organs and bones, what area the magic stone is around, and where is the most efficient place to put the blade in to get to that area, those sorts of things you get better at by remembering and getting used to them. It's not like you throw away all of the organs of a fish after all. There's a considerable number of places you can eat.

Ah, before it's misunderstood I'll say it but the meat of monsters is almost never eaten. At the very least Orks, Gnolls, or humanoid types which even we can't communicate with them they can communicate among themselves, who would want to eat them? Even in my past life no one ate monkeys right? Ah, or did the Chinese eat monkeys?

Since Horned Bears just look like bears with horns growing and Giant Toads and Green Crocodiles aren't humanoid so they're eaten. Well, if you're considerably starving you might eat them but even that's something emergency rations. Rather than being good or bad it's a problem of feelings.

After taking the magic stones we continued even further.

Today without finding any other deceased adventurers belongings or running into a dangerous monster like the Scavenger Crawler we were able to experience combat countless times. Of course if something like the Scavenger Crawler were to come out I intended to take it down with magic right away because it's dangerous though. In the end without me participating in the combat much at all I just remained cautious of the surroundings while analyzing the experience points.

To put it simply, the monsters level and HP multiplied is how many experience points they give. I somehow thought that was the case but in my case I have the Unique Ability "Gift of Natural Talent" and it's difficult to do the calculations so I just ignored it until now. Also, if the monster has some kind of special skill the experience points seem to increase though it's not limited to that. I still can't tell if this is a fixed amount. It might be multiplied by a certain percentage. In the first place I have too few samples. Only three Hobgoblins appeared. It might be possible that the special skills have different types to them as well.

Furthermore, if you don't kill them and just damaged them you don't gain experience. However, if that one dies afterwards then it increases. In other words if Zenom or anyone else hits a monster with an attack. But, in the case that monster didn't die in one attack, you gain no experience points. However, after that if he attacks once more and finishes the monster off then obviously he gains experience points for just that monster. I expected this. What I wanted to know was in the case if Zenom does one attack and after that Ralpa does another and finishes it off. In this case does all of the experience go to Ralpa? I wanted to know that.

Starting from the conclusion, that wasn't the case. Going off the example just now, at the moment the monster died the experience went to both Zenom and Ralpa. The amount is different in each case so it might be that it's distributed based on the amount of damage they did. It's something I was able to figure out because I wasn't participating in the combat and just watching.

Come to think of it, there's something weird I've found with the experience gained. In Bakuddo father's level completely stood out from the rest. Mother was just one level less than father so you could say she stood out as well. For a while after I went out in the middle of the night to hunt I had accepted it but when you kill a monster you gain experience points. This is fine. But, what about the Dokush family of hunters? Putting aside their son Kerry, the father Zachary was level 10, the mother Winry should have been level 9 as well. I'm sure they were killing monsters while hunting as well but they should have been killing the animals that were their game on a daily basis.

I was only killing monsters when I went hunting so I didn't really pay much attention to it. There weren't any fisherman in Bakuddo but when fisherman catch a lot of fish they end up killing in mass as well. When you're fishing in the case that you make a large catch you immediately pull it in and kill it on the spot but I wonder if that doesn't happen often with their catch? I feel like pulling it up in a boat and suffocating it to death would enter the realm of killing though... Though if I'm going to say that then Goblins and Kobolds are hunting small animals on a daily basis to live as well. I don't know if it's everyday or every couple of days but it would be strange if they weren't killing some kind of animal on a daily basis. If they're killing then they should be gaining experience points, but in that case level 2 and level 3 is too low.

Even those Large Leeches that I hunted like crazy gave at least 10 experience points or so. Come to think of it those things had the special skill "bloodsucking". I wonder if that was added as well? Since I didn't do much normal hunting or fishing my memories of identifying regular animals are vague. I've seen several of them but I couldn't be bothered remembering them. The majority of the animals I identified were after they had become Corpse of XX after all. Ah, come to think of it pigs and chickens were level 0. Though it probably can't be helped since they're not using their own power to find their food. Horses are level 0 as well. Even my war horse is level 0. Though I think a war horse would have received a reasonable amount of training.

Eh? Why didn't I do any fishing? Since there were no needles and they were valuable in Bakuddo. In the first place, I'm a part of the ocean fishing faction, how and what are you telling me to fish in Bakuddo where there's nothing but small fish in the river? There's like 5 Km to the ocean. Not to mention you have to go through the forest where monsters live. Who would try to go fishing in that situation?

Since it had reached a good time I was thinking about these things on our way back after rotating myself to the safe area in the center of our lineup. Ah...come to think of it I've seen when pigs and chickens are killed and disassembled countless times but there was no magic stone...I wonder if they have no MP then they can't produce a magic stone? Even Large Leeches had MP after all... Though I've only seen it once but the Brown Slime had MP as well. Well, I guess not all mysteries will be solved to easily.

We found 27 Goblin magic stones with an average value of 150 or so. 21 magic stones of Gnolls with a value of around 2,000. 12 magic stones from Orks with a value of about 4,500. Hobgoblin's magic stone was around 4,500 as well and we have 3 of those.

In the end we were able to collect magic stones with a total value of 113,214. That comes out to sales of about 800,000 Z. I gave Zenom, Ralpa, and Bel a bonus of 2 silver coins each and we all went to eat dinner.

Just as planned I made tomorrow into a rest day for now. After telling everyone to rest well and I started towards my inn alone. The other four are all in the same inn. I'm the only one alone...Ah, isn't this a good chance? Maybe I'll go and enjoy myself. Since it's like I earned over 700,000 yen in just today after all, even if i enjoy myself a bit...it should be fine, but I remembered I still haven't done my running for today yet. I ended up not doing it yesterday after everything as well. It's no good to skip out on it two days in a row right? Since tomorrow is a day off, shouldn't tomorrow be fine? It won't run away from me.

I guess I'll go and properly do my running to help with digestion as well..

.....

Year 7442, Month 6, Day 6

I woke up before sunrise and after creeping around putting on my clothes I went to eat breakfast. After eating some oatmeal with an egg in it and some kind of white-meat fish saute for breakfast my head started to wake up as I sipped at some bean tea. I'll go to enjoy myself today. Let's do that. I returned to the inn once and after putting 7-8 silver coins into my wallet I put my clothes to be washed in a basket and left it in the hall.

I'll wander around for a walk and look for a good place to enter. While thinking that I suddenly realized. Come to think of it I wonder if there's a designation system? When I went to "Ritton" in Keel Sebastian lined up the women and had me choose. I'm sure he meant pick one among them but I feel like that was because I showed the Marquis Webdos plate as well. If it's a normal customer who doesn't have something like that then I wonder what happens?

If I was the manager and they freely entered and it wasn't a customer that was a regular I would start off by putting them with a girl that doesn't have many customers. Like a newcomer. After that if they come several times then I'd take a survey and after comprehending the customers interests I'd give them a girl that they would like. Face and body, service, conversation since you never know what the customer might be interested in, just like that there's no other choice than slowly increasing the customers that might become regulars. Hmm. Come to think of it, I wonder if Jabba is doing good? He was a man that it was regrettable to let him just be the manger of a place in the sex industry. I never want to see his face again though.

Well, it's fine, those sorts of slightly complex things don't matter at all. Since I started to wander around in order to enjoy my day off, I just need to go all out and enjoy myself. Thinking that I started heading towards the #6 road where a lot of bars are said to be. It's a simple way of thinking but if there's a lot of bars then I'm sure it's a prosperous area and if it's prosperous area then there should be brothel in the area as well, so it might not be all that mistaken.

I was wandering around and looking at the scenery of the town as I head towards the #6 area of town. Ah, after I finish enjoying myself I should seriously try and get a grasp on the town of Baldukk, though it might better to just walk around. It's a town with a simple structure but I'm sure it would be easier to remember by actually walking and looking around.

"Hey Joshua, you going again today?"

"That's right, since it's my day off. I earned quite a bit yesterday after all, I'm going to do it until I throw out my back~"

"You really love that stuff~ Didn't you just catch that weird disease. They might refuse you with that ugly face."

"Heee~ "If it's "Rukuso" then it's fine, as long as you pay money there they'll let you in."

"It's because you keep going to cheap places like that, that you end up like that.”

Eh? I couldn't help but identify the guy called Joshua. It was Condition: Disease (Sexually Transmitted Disease). Hmn, I guess the name of the disease like syphilis, gonorrhea, or AIDs doesn't come out. He has weird smallpox like tumors on his nose and it's hard to look at his face. After erasing the identify window where it's roughly displayed and I thought a bit more. This isn't Earth. Diseases like syphilis and gonorrhea might not be the same as on Earth. If there's a disease I don't know would it be bad? I play with the rubber bag in my pocket while thinking.

As long as I can't heal an illness in one shot then I wonder if I should re-think enjoying myself? Or would it be fine if I just use healing magic on myself periodically after things have ended? If it's at the level of a cold then I'm sure I can heal it in the early stages. The method to choose a partner who's definitely alright might be... to identify the girl and check their condition but I wonder if I can identify diseases that have an incubation period? Syphilis and AIDS have incubation periods in the years. In the longest cases it can be over 10 years. I wonder if I can identify that far?

It would be bad if I got impatient and received a weird disease. Even if I have condoms they're not absolute. No matter how short I estimate it I'll be spending at least a year in this Baldukk I'm sure. I wonder if it would be better to identify as many prostitutes as I can and confirm if it's safe first? Rather, if I were be infected by an STD I'm sure Bel and Ralpa would scorn me. No matter what I want to avoid being looked at by them my subordinates like that.

Ah, even if they don't have some kind of weird disease I can't think of doing it with them as the partner at all. Even their appearances are completely those of children going from my common sense. Well, in terms of appearance I'm the same though. In any case, that's another reason I'm neurotic about the problem of exhausting Ralpa's MP. And I'm the type who doesn't agree with romance in the same company. Even if you try to develop a romance in between doing your job there's not much good to it. If you're going to do a romance within the company then I won't accept it unless you go to the point of marriage. If you marry then it's fine.

Eh? Wasn't Ralpa interested in Zulu? There's no way that's the case, I'm sure she wasn't saying that seriously. After all, Zulu is a non-human. Even in my past life, I never felt much sexual interest in black women. No, it's not a matter of racial discrimination. But, it seems to be true that when the races(though in the first place Non-humans are humans so it's not even a matter of humanity) are different it's difficult to find someone that matches up with your type.

I'm sure that international marriages are unusual in part because they simply don't have many chances to get to know each other but it seems that there's also the fundamental theory on living creatures if you wanted feel a instinctual desire to want to have kids with the other person. Even on Orth there's marriages across races but after all they're just as unusual as international marriages from my past life, and they have the barrier of it being difficult to have kids. There's also the opinion that if it's difficult to have kids then you can do it as much as you want though. That is that, this is this. If it's just a night of fun then that's fine. But, I'm talking about when you're planning to get married.

That's why if Ralpa and Zulu were to say they want to marry I wouldn't be against it but just saying they're dating or stuff like that is...I'll think about it when it comes to it. Ah, Bel has a lover doesn't she. If the partner still likes Bel then it's fine if they get married. If that isn't the case then we'll deal with it when we get there. I'm sure things will only go as they can go.

Somehow I've lost interest. Since I'm young it might be better to just run to let it all out. In the first place I'm still 14 years old. I have to question going to a brothel at this age a bit. I don't know how long this self-restraint of mine will last but..it probably won't last that long.

It might sound like I'm just trying to act cool but that's exactly the case. My motives are simple. If I think carefully about it then I'd hate it if I get infected with an STD. I might be able to heal it with magic but magic exerts its power through image. That's why if it comes to a disease that I know about then I might not be able to heal it. If I regret it at that point then it's already too late. Therefore, as long as I don't try testing it using someone else then even if I wanted to I can't play around.

Putting it even more simply and I should find a couple of seemingly healthy people and then try infecting them with STDs. And then test if I can heal them with magic. If it's OK then I can just stretch my arms out, relax, and play around.

If it's no good then I'll have to limit going to a brothel to when my MP hits 0 for some reason and I can't hold back my sexual desire.

Ah, I also want the statistics of having someone use condoms and see to what probability they can use them before they get infected as well. It's most likely a couple percent, even in worst case I'm sure it wouldn't exceed 20% but if I think about that then I wonder if I left Keel too soon? If it was the "Ritton"'s Jabba, otherwise known as Haritaid then I'm sure he would have happily cooperated with me...

Should I use Zulu? Wait just a minute, aren't I forgetting that condoms have a size? He has a height of 190 cm or so. He's a full head larger than me....It's mortifying but the only one I have on me is the M size. I have some weird pride that it's not an S but in the first place I never made an S size, so just make it your and my secret that there's only M and L sizes. Ah, six years older brother is the L. Since my older brother is a huge man in every meaning of the word.

Alright, since I've decided that I'll go with a drawn out battle here. Though it's in the middle of the prosperous area since there were originally quite a few bars I'm sure there's some places that aren't closed. I'll sit there and look at the street while identifying like crazy. It goes against my principals a bit but in the end there's a high possibility it could connect to preventing the spread of STDs and above all it's for my noble objective of enjoying myself. I'll make it so when I use Identify it only shows me their condition. Rather, unless something unusual happens I don't have any interest in their names.

After finding an appropriate bar and taking up position at a table facing the street I started identifying the people as long as my MP holds out. I started to regret it immediately. If I don't leave some records and make a statistic then there's not much meaning to it. It'll just become my subjectivity. It's a bit troublesome but I need to prepare some writing utensils and come back. Ah, my objective is just to figure out what ratio of people wandering around this area are infected with an STD when I identify them.

After returning to my inn to get some writing utensils and walking around the roads of Baldukk again and someone called out to me. It's Bel. I thought she had something she wanted from me but it seems she and Ralpa have split up looking for something. It seems that they're searching for shoes. Since they've got a fixed income for starters they want to buy some shoes I guess. And, if they're going to buy some then want some proper rubber-sole shoes so while looking for stores that sells they were looking for me as well.

Hmn. I don't think they'll be able to get their hands on shoes with rubber-soles here. If it's sandals then I think it might be possible but when it comes to shoes I think we've only made the rubber-base boots that we sold to the Webdos Knight Group. My knit boots are a one-of-a-kind product as well. When I left the house though it was a small quantity we had just started selling the same boots as we sold the Webdos Knight Group to Webdos Company. Putting aside the rubber, we couldn't keep up with the production of the rest of the boots.

I talk while looking at her feet and just like Ralpa the tips of her toes seem to have gotten hard. If it's like this then I'm sure the skin of the bottoms of her feet has gotten thick as well, is what I was thinking when looking pitifully at her and Bel acted embarrassed. Maybe because she's already used to them being seen or shes just becoming defiant she said.

"They don't look like the feet of a girl right. Even at my house only my parents and older brother had shoes but us young siblings didn't have shoes. Even though we were a Sub-Baron family, we weren't all that wealthy...One of things you could say is good is that I have no need to worry about bunions."

Yeah, I only made these shoes when I left the house so until then I was barefoot as well. Let alone just that my older brother Farne didn't even get shoes until he entered the knight group. I think the wallet was tighter in my household. Putting that aside, rubber-sole shoes huh...

"Hmn, rubber-sole shoes indeed. I think you probably won't find them or even if you do they'll be at an insane price. Normally sandals are about 3,000 Z and leather boots you should be able to buy a decent pair for 15,000 Z so wouldn't it be better to get some of those? Honestly speaking, if they're rubber made then the sale price of both of them is over 10x that amount."

I said it intended as a warning.

“Yeah, I heard about that from Ral as well. But, if it’s leather-soles then you need to spend money on repairs quickly..and sandals you almost have to throw them away after use..”

It’s true that normal leather sands will become unusable even after just using them for a week straight of working the fields or escorting a caravan it seems. They’re something you wear around town or in the house. Boots are made durable compared to sandals but even then they’re made to only last two or three weeks when travelling and then you need to replace the soles.

I had a pair of leather-sole business shoes in my past life but even if you did maintenance on them everyday if you walk around outside doing sales then in a month or at best two months you would need to replace the soles at a shoe store. Those have a thin rubber part in the center of them for the most part but it’s only about 1 mm in thickness and after that rubber bottom is shaved away the leather soles disappear quickly and you need to replace them. Since the running costs are so high unless you were rich person it would be impossible to use them normally. Rather they aren’t made to be walked in outside other than going to work. They’re something you use on carpet or tiles inside of a building. In my case I used them when I found it appropriate to show off during a business deal.

If you change locations then they become a luxury, is what I was thinking but that doesn’t solve anything. It’s true that it would better to have shoes. Even if the leather on the bottom of your feet gets thicker it’s no comparison for rubber. It could be said that it’s a huge combat potential up just being able to run without worrying about the ground. Is this that? I guess I should somehow try and get in contact with Bakuddo. Ah, I guess Webdos Company would work as well.

Come to think of it, there was an adventurer job in the government office of Keel for escorting a caravan to Romberta. After I left Keel and passed through Viscount Penlaid’s territory, and a short while after entering the King’s direct territory I passed a caravan with a number of carriages connected together. Huh, When was that again? I wonder if that caravan has already arrived in Rombertia? Or maybe it hasn’t arrived yet? Since the structure of the town of Baldukk is unique I doubt they would go through the trouble of passing by it. I think they'll circle around this town and head to Rombertia.

I feel like if we go to the capital then we might be able to find some place to find rubber-sole boots produced in Bakuddo but I think we were only selling around 10 pairs to the company was it? I feel like they'd sell out right away. I explained those sorts of circumstances to Bel. In any case, since I thought of sending a letter to Bakuddo through the Webdos Company, I couldn't think of anything to say other than endure until then or use something else until then.

Chapter 82: Reasoning

Year 7442, Month 6, Day 30

The first month since Bel has joined our party is about to pass. Every week we challenge the dungeon on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, Friday, and we've set Wednesday and Saturday as our rest days. In particular because my party does {search and destroy}, we progressively try to fight as much as possible so when we start exploring we get pretty tense and exhaust our stamina and mentality quickly. In reality I thought about putting a day of rest between each but around the time we enter the 2nd floor I thought that we might end up having to spend the night in the dungeon so I stuck with 2 days of work 1 day of rest as the base.

During this roughly one month period we've been careful not to overdo things and if anyone gets hurts or right before lunch we turn back. Combat occurs every time we enter the dungeon. That's why in regards to gathering magic stone's were largely in black on the balance right now. There were no bonuses like obtaining the articles of deceased adventurers like the first day but other than Zenom and I everyone has gained 1 level each. I've stopped at just assisting all of them occasionally and since Zenom was originally a pretty high level it takes a lot of experience points for him to get to the next level.

Furthermore, I wrote a letter to my family, and just in case Webdos Company. I drew a foot template of Ralpa and the others feet on some paper and included that. I wrote that I want Ralpa and Bel's to be made slightly large but I don't know how much time it will take for it to reach Bakuddo. I think at the shortest it should take about four months for them to arrive but I wonder if that will actually be the case? Since I left it with a caravan heading towards Keel I can't predict it at all.

Since today is Saturday it's a day off. After eating breakfast together with Zulu the same as usual, I handed Zulu his wages for this month of 5 silver coins. Annual income of 600,000 Z. It's an income that's slightly larger than a small farm owner that doesn't own any slaves and is the equivalent of 10,000 Z per week pay. Honestly speaking, in a large town like Baldukk it would be difficult to live on just this amount but since I pay for his inn and food costs it's an exceptionally high pay for a slave. Though, I decided on it after watching him for this month. He can be useful. He listens well and he can decently use the sword as well. And above all it seems that he's quite loyal so unless an extraordinary talent appears from now on then he's going to be my head slave.

Since we've only started to get to know him for about a month as expected we still haven't told him that we're reincarnated people. It's because I somehow got the feeling that if he knew there could be conflicts between groups of reincarnated people that appear from here on then he might think of searching for them. Since this isn't modern day Japan, I know it's not good to be nervous about him being scouted or betraying but I'm not so optimistic nor have I seen through enough of his personality in just one month so it shouldn't matter right. For the most part I've told the other members about this as well.

On the side of Zulu who's grateful for his high pay, I'm getting right to setting the goals for next month. This month I had made a secret goal of "confirming the ability for our party to cooperate and if possible improve that" but since you could already say we've more or less cleared it so I need to decide on next months goal.

- In regards to clearing the 1st floor we're still just randomly wandering around and haven't properly drawn a map. It seems impossible.

- I feel it's unrealistic to try and draw a proper map with this situation where Ralpa's MP is still 3. I've told her not to use her Unique Ability but magic twice every day but going off this pace it will take another five months before her void magic reaches level 1. As expected using magic three times a day and getting her MP to 0 is something I want to avoid because of her age. It can't be helped betting on the 1% chance of raising her MP and above all Ralpa seems to stay the night the same room as Zenom so it would be too late after something happens. I somehow don't like the idea of her visiting Zulu at night for sex as well. Maybe I'll buy a map. Then it's not a dream of clearing the 1st floor... If she just had 7 MP, if she could just reach 7. Since it's already started to feel annoying I was thinking maybe I should just starve her and then have her use up her MP to 0 then after feeding her let her go to sleep. If I wake her up in the middle of the night and make her do it twice then she should be able to earn 5 experience points a day and it will level up in 2.5 months. But, I guess it's a bit too pitiful...not letting her eat properly together with everyone else.

- In regards to the objective of leveling myself up I feel it's kind of half-hearted but if I were to seriously stand at the front and engage in combat all day I can solve it all at once. If I felt like it then I could even go and do it all today I'm sure. Though overdoing it is no good because I have no backup members. It's not so important to make into a goal.

- It might be a good idea to get one more additional combat slave. My earnings for this month have exceeded 10,000,000 Z by a little bit. I've given Zenom, Ralpa, and Bel about 300,000 Z each in bonuses. If I increase the number of members who can fight then we should be able to have more stability in combat I'm sure. I've used quite a bit of the money I received from father and even if it doesn't quite reach the original amount I've been able to recover back to close that much. It might be a good hand to add one more slave around here. If we earn another couple million Z then I think I should still have plenty of leeway even after buying a slave. Let's go with this.

I was lost in my thoughts while sipping at my bean tea after breakfast but after deciding on the next goal there's nothing left than to take action. I bid farewell to Zulu for a while until dinner and after leaving the restaurant I went back to my inn to put my protectors on and go running for today. Ah, I've haven't said it until now but the inn I'm staying at is the "Boil Manor" and the inn that Zenom and other's are staying at is called "Shuni" it's just a step above a cheap lodging house.

After finishing my running and washing my protectors I changed and went out to "Slave Store, Ronslail" again. I already found out. Reserving slaves is an obvious practice. That shitty gnome from "Tani Company". He deceived me in order to try and make me impatient thinking I was an amateur at buying slaves. Like I'll ever go to that store again.

After entering the store and calling out and Madam.Ronslail approached me with her usual sociable smile. As usual this madam has a strong sales disposition.

I name myself and after sticking out my right I let her use Status Open on me. After all when you're dealing with expensive things like slaves then you need to properly confirm each others identity, so I've already gotten used to this being common, or rather the correct mannerisms. It's an extremely rude behavior to suddenly use Status Open on someone but it's not rude to reveal yours from your end. Rather, it's closer to the meaning of, my identity is this, so I want you to have faith in and do business with me.

After confirming my status and the madam looked at my face strangely she finally realized that I was a previous customer since I dyed my hair. That's fine but she also said something that bothers me at the same time.

"I've heard plenty of rumors about you lately."

What does she mean? Why would there be rumors about us? Because we saved Bel and handed over the criminal?

"There's quite a few rumors that even though you're new adventurers you're earning several hundreds of thousands of Z every time you enter the dungeon. Thanks to that, we can hold our heads high in the fact that we sold you a combat slave."

So it was that sort of thing. It's true that it's normal for people to avoid fighting as much as possible and hurry to the next floor. They say that you fundamentally only find the special items that would make you rich quick starting from the 2nd floor after all and I'm sure that I'm about the only one that knows that you gain experience points from defeating enemies and level up. I'm sure if I didn't know about that then I would have been devoted to avoiding combat as much as possible and aimed for going as far in as I could as well. If that wasn't the case then who would bother fighting Goblins and things which only give magic stones with such a low value? The magic stones of Orks and Hobgoblins are considerably high but they're strong enough that someone among us gets injured pretty easily. Although, I guess it had gotten to the point where we've entered the rumors of other adventurers?

Thinking that I tried asking her about it but it seems it was a bit different. It seems she heard about the fact that we're often going to the magic tool shop to sell magic stones from the magic tool shop owner while having tea with them. She was shrewdly using that as publicity. I guess it's fine though. In any case, after telling the madam that I want her to find me a new combat slave and if possible get first pick on one and the madam immediately went into the back to prepare the combat slaves.

After waiting for a short while I was called to the back by the madam who appeared again. Che...There's nothing but female combat slaves again. Since women won't add to the combat potential...Huh? Even if Ralph and Bel are special cases because they're reincarnated people, wouldn't it be fine as long as they're in their early 20s? Come to think of it, I wonder if I was insistent on a man last time because I was feeling impatient with increasing our combat capabilities? Somehow I don't feel like that's quite right either. I started identifying with an unexplainable feeling and after all there was no one special so I ended up leaving the store with those unexplainable feelings remaining.

With my arms crossed and my head I walk heading towards "Boil Manor". Come to think of it I feel like I've had a lot of uneasy and unexplainable feelings late. I wonder what it is? This? Is it just my imagination? After arriving at my inn feeling like something is stuck in my teeth I lay down on the bed and look at the ceiling.

Well I'm sure it's nothing too important but somehow it bothers me.

I start organizing my thoughts which has already become a habit.

Huh? What was I thinking about again? Ah that's right, about feeling something is off or something like that. Somehow I feel like I was about to forget about it. It's really troublesome but I think I should write stuff down as I organize it for once.

I got up from the bed and opened the window but since it was still dark in the room I lit up the lighting magic tool. After sitting down on the chair in front of the table and I took out a couple of pieces of paper I bought for drawing a map.

I write out each and every one of the things that I felt was unnatural, felt something was off with, or I couldn't explain. A bit after I started writing them I realized.

What's this!?

Each one of them doesn't particularly matter at all. If you just look at that then there's no particular problem. But, just going off the number of times I remember feeling something was off I started trembling.

Something is strange.

If you were to ask how it's strange and I would be a bit troubled to answer.

But, I somehow think it's strange.

There's several instances where I feel like my own actions are strange. When I try my best to remember that time I can think of several things I said or did that were strange for me. Putting it simply, it's almost like I was acting like a big-headed child. If I just take a glance at it then going off the result it shouldn't be all that mistaken so I can almost just let it pass by as it being a one-time occurrence. Though going off this then there's probably several other times where I acted or said strange things that I can't remember. Or rather it's probably more realistic to think that's the case.

Huh~? I wonder what in the world this means?

It's fine if I organize and think about each of them individually but I should probably think about it generally first. Though it's important to think about what I said and did and what I normally would have done but I can't redo something that's already been done. Rather, what's more important is from here on out. It's necessary to carefully think this matter out without coming to a simple conclusion.

If I look at the outline and there's some places where it would be strange to end up with my way of thinking. For example if an event called A were to happen. And myself in the past used method B to resolve that. However, after thinking it through more calmly I felt it would have been more like me to use method C, that sort of thing. This "think more calmly" is the difficult part. Since I'm not actually thinking, I'm remembering. Going off of my actions from my past life and if I was this sort of person then I wouldn't I pick method C, that sort of thing.

Well it might be easier to figure out by remembering and matching it up right now than thinking.

I follow my memories back. Gradually, gradually I keep going back. I remember as far back as I can. My oldest memory is from when I was three years old in my past life. I remember laying down and playing around on the futon in the sun of the house that I lived in back then. The warm and smooth feeling of the futon and the nostalgic smell. I can't remember anything other than that but this is probably my oldest memory. It's vague but I remember the round lights hanging from the ceiling and the scenery I could see from outside the sliding door. Anything else than that including the appearance I've completely forgotten.

After that along with my growth my memory got a lot better. Though I say that my memories from grade school and middle school are already pretty fragmented but the number increases. If I remember right then the anime about a space battleship was broadcast before I entered grade school. My three year older brother was hooked on it. Until my later years in grade school the mobile suit was broadcast. I woke up in the early morning at around 5 am and went to the model store to line up with my friend in order to buy a plastic model with a ticket. The first one I bought wasn't the leading actors machine but that green one the villain uses.

I think it was around then, or maybe a little bit before that the I entered the boys baseball team in my local area... we never really won but it was fun. Ah, I remember playing with the dial-type TV and changing the channels while still in my uniform so I must have entered the baseball team a bit before. After I got into middle school I quickly entered the swimming club. I was in the swimming club in high school as well. I went to the point where I was almost able to enter inter-high...My first girlfriend. She broke up with me quickly. My next girlfriend after that we continued for a decent amount of time but when I entered the Self-Defense College we ended up losing contact and that was it...

After that was my rich memories of my past last until I died. Things that were fun, that were painful, that I was happy about, that I was sad about, that I got excited about, that I got depressed about...I can clearly remember the things I did that at that time. Though it's only obvious that the vague stuff from when I was a child isn't a lot. Of course, they've gotten fragmented and things like the faces of the people I met, and the faces from the last time I met them I feel are slightly different. But, I can remember them without problem. It's the same for stuff after I reincarnated. And, I was somehow able to understand it.

Since I have memories, I have knowledge and wisdom that go with it. But... but, what about the mentality that makes up the basis for my personality? It might better to call it my mental age. Though I think it's a bit different, that's fine for now. If I remember correctly then God said, "You lived until you were 45 years old in your previous life. Though you're still 1 year old in this world it's no different from saying your mental age is 46 years old. However, your current body is that of a 1 year old. Your stamina has also become appropriate for that age. Your emotions and way of thinking are being pulled by the sensitivity of the age of that body. However, in another two — three months the adjustments related to that should pass, or rather your current body should adjust to your mentality, so you should be able to speak in a way appropriate for your mental age, and control your emotions without problem. Just think of those sorts of things as occurring in a matter of time." I wonder if it's okay to take those details at face value?

In the start there was the line, "It's not incorrect to say your mental age is 46 years old". I think it's fine to take this at face value. The problem is the portion after that.

"Your emotions and way of thinking are being pulled by the sensitivity of the age of that body. However, in another two — three months the adjustments related to that should pass, or rather your current body should adjust to your mentality, so you should be able to speak in a way appropriate for your mental age, and control your emotions without problem."

It's true that the problems with my manner of speech disappeared. However, it never said that my mental age itself remains fixed. Rather, it said that it would be pulled by the sensitivity of the age of my body.

The thing that gets adjusted is my mental age gets younger to match up with my body!

Since the knowledge and wisdom I had from the start remained just as it was I didn't realize it. The way I feel and think about things has gotten younger being pulled by my body!

And that window that came out in the end. The start of my new life. Reincarnation. If you mention reincarnation normally it points to the circle of death and rebirth. In religions, how you often hear about being reborn. It's not a revival. I'm sure that revival points to your body, personality, and memories all being restored the same as before but it differs fundamentally from that. In the case of my reincarnation, my memories and personality were maintained but there's clear differences in my body.

If the body is different then there's no way it wouldn't influence your mentality or personality. Until I reincarnated I was a splendid adult. Going from that into a baby suddenly would normally cause a tremendous amount of stress. Though I can't remember for sure at first I feel like I couldn't even stand up and my sensation of the differences in length of my limbs felt different. I think I was often irritated because I couldn't properly control my emotions at all. In the first place it's suspicious if this body they call human in this world is even the same as humans on Earth. Putting aside memories I'm sure that it would be necessary to integrate the personality that is the mentality together with the new body. It's just a hypothesis but my summarized conclusion is this.

- I died and was reincarnated as a baby.
- On that occasion I inherited my memories and the consciousness, or rather wisdom that goes with that.
- I don't under the reason this works but since it's something a God probably did, I'm sure I wouldn't be able to figure it out just by thinking about it, so it's fine to put off for now. Furthermore, the reason doesn't matter at all at this point, and is unrelated here.
- But, it said that the mentality would take some time to integrate with the new body.
- That period is about 1 year to 1.5 years?
- It's just a guess but I think that it took around that much time for 90% of the integration to finish. After that I feel like it's spending a much longer period of time performing the rest of the integration.
- It's unknown if the integration has already completed.
- My mental age has gotten somewhat close to the age of my body but it's not like my original personality will completely disappear. It was limited to just integrating them after all. This isn't just a hopeful observation. I can naturally act like an adult more than what a normal 14 year old would and normally I wouldn't feel that my own actions are unnatural as well. The unexplainable feeling I've been getting lately was, over a certain action, if it's the person I know as me in my memories then they wouldn't do this, or close to that.

- I don't know what the ratio(I wouldn't try to put it into a number) of my original personality is still remaining but at the very least my current mental age is considerably younger than the 45 years old in my past life. Though I don't think it's exactly the same age as my 14 year old body. I feel it's a bit higher.

- It's unknown if the personality that I'm missing is hidden or has completely disappeared. It's just my guess based on memory but I don't feel like it's not disappeared.

I don't know if this correct. I'm sure I don't have enough material to make a decision yet. It's probably better to think that I'm mistaken on something somewhere or I'm overlooking it because I don't have enough to go on. In the first place it was difficult just trying to remember the strange parts in my own actions that I let pass by because I didn't feel there was a problem with them. I'm sure there's a lot of instances where I felt something was off and even more I don't remember. Rather it would be more natural to think there's more of them that I can't remember.

I think during the first year to year and a half I suddenly got a lot younger to around 20 years old and after that I slowly got younger over a number of years. However, it never went as far as the age of my body. Did it stabilize a bit above that? Did it grow a bit over time after that? I don't know at all around that part but if I think about it like this then it makes somewhat sense, I think. I'm not overlooking anything right? Well, even if I am overlooking something it can't be helped.

The problem is whether or not there's bad things that could occur because of this. One of them is the misunderstandings and brash decisions I might make because my mentality has gotten younger. Even if I try to be careful of this if it's a decision that exceeds my mental age right now then it would be difficult to decide. Of course, if I think carefully then I should be able to reduce the number of mistakes so caution is still necessary. I'm sure it's necessary to carefully consider everything.

Next is if something I decided in the past is strange and the potential problems that I've already caused or will cause in the future because of that. This is the difficult part. I would need to think back on everything I said or did until now and question them. In order to decide whether I made the proper decision would take an immense amount of work. If I were to think about it in extremes then I'd even have to verify if the amount of wages I gave to Zulu this morning was reasonable.

Or if I put it even further why I even bought a combat slave, or was Zulu a good choice, those sorts of things would need to be verified as well. If I go back even further then the development of rubber or in the first place if it was necessary to leave the house, or the validity of making a country, if I start thinking there's no end to them. For example, since I already know that I can make cotton gunpowder wouldn't it be better to start making guns already, and, it might be necessary to start thinking about developing a detonator and stuff like that.

After thinking about it this far, since I'm already not Kawasaki Takeo, but rather Alan Greed, is it really necessary to be so particular about the values and way of thinking of Kawasaki Takeo? and thinking like that I was even about to start abandoning the annoying thought work. I guess stuff like that is where my young mentality is kicking in. In the first place I've even found thinking itself to be troublesome lately so I haven't even made a comparison table. In the past I used to write up something like a report going over the main points in an easy way whenever I tried to organize things. I wonder when it started to get too troublesome.

Anyway, anything more than this I'll need to think about when the chance comes up I'm sure. But, it's a good idea to consider things that have happened lately. Starting with the big problem of Ralpa's mana amount. I'm sure we should hurry her magic training. If it was the me in the past then even if it's pitiful to Ralpa I would have put in the effort to make her gain as much experience as possible with the magic special skills. This is something that needs to be done. In any case, while this is a day off it's too naive to make it a completely free day. It's only obvious that it's necessary to rest and relieve some mental strain but there's no particular need to sleep it away.

Next is a new slave. Though I told Madam Ronslail to prepare some better combat slaves in stock, I didn't give her any tangible orders on what kind. I guess I'll think about it a bit. Also, when I think back to the time I bought Zulu. That time I didn't even glance at the large number of female combat slaves. I can't say it was a completely strange decision because women do fall behind men in terms of power but I can't even remember checking their ages or levels. There were even some decently good looking slaves. In my case since I have to look after the trouble of the slave, I think I would pick a male who's got as good of a disposition as possible and if I go off combat potential then a male would be better on that end as well so this is fine.

I'm not hoping for a skill with the sword like my older sister or sister-in-law who've trained in knight groups from something like a slave. Even though Zulu was a squire and he can use the sword somewhat his rough movements still stand out after all. In the first place, if there actually was someone like that there's no way they'd be at a price I could buy them. If a knight falls to a slave then it would be like Zulu where they ended up as war prisoners and no one paid the ransom for them. The ransom for a commoner knight is over 20 gold coins. It's only obvious that they'd have a price on that level and if there was a bargain like that then in the first place the slave trade would say something. There's no way they wouldn't say anything.

However, if it's slave, then, I could even use the condom...No wait, I don't have the interest of using my authority to forcefully do it. And...it's embarrassing. If it's a prostitute that takes a number of customers then even if they make fun of you it's just a temporary thing and in the first place you're paying them money so it's unlikely they'd say it to your face. However, if it's my slave then I have to remain with them even after. Even in the worst case I can't let them know that there's still an extra armor sheet remaining. If the idiot girl finds out then she'll definitely make fun of me. Until I grow, get unmasked, and become a {big} man, female slaves are prohibited from now on as well.

Though saying that is a joke but even then it's strange. I have enough self-control to not lay a hand on my own slave. I should have. I want to think I do. Then why did I insist on Zulu, no, male slaves so much that I didn't even confirm the others at that time? I'm sure it's true that one of the reasons is I was desperate for more combat potential. But, I wouldn't have lost anything just confirming them right? Was I being timid in front of adult women because my mentality has gotten younger? At this point? There's no way. Ah, since I would hate it if I'm misunderstood I'll say it from the start but I'm not a Holy Being but a Martian. A Martian. I'm a man that will go far. Go far...since I'm 14 years old hold hopes for me from here on out.

It really can't be helped just thinking of strange things like this. This probably isn't a problem with my mental age. Let's go to the next point, next. Bel's magic. She has quite a bit of MP. That's why if she can learn to use magic then it would be directly related to raising our combat potential. And just perfect she's a rear guard as well. For this past month, she's been training with magic but while she's not very good at it she's giving it her best. Since it's more unusual for people to be able to use it right after they start training I'll have her make an effort over a while.

..It's about a good time. I ended up spending several hours thinking without eating lunch. When I handed Zulu his wages I told him he could do whatever he wants for lunch on days off but without intending to I spent quite a while thinking. I'll talk about the magic training and that I intend to buy a new slave at dinner tonight.

On my way to the restaurant we're meeting up at I stopped by Ronslail's store and made a detailed order. It doesn't matter if they're male or female but if possible I want someone around 20 years old in age. It's not better if they're as young as possible so this should be about right. Also if possible then someone who became a slave from being a war prison. And I said it's fine even if it's with a wooden sword but I want to test their skill before I buy them.

When I went to the restaurant everyone was already there. While looking at the carefree Ralpa I started thinking that I would take her to the limits with magic training starting tomorrow as I started explaining my plans from here on out.

Chapter 83: Method of Mourning

On a hot day as summer nears it's end once again today the five of us are challenging the dungeon. Since we've explored the dungeon countless times we're already used to fighting the monsters that come out on the 1st floor. However, we still can't let our guards down. If we make a single mistake we could get seriously injured and even death is possible beyond that. I can't even remember the number of times the three front-line attackers have gotten injured. They usually end up being injured by opponents that appear in the afternoon when their ability to concentrate starts to break and we end up having to retreat. Today was the same. Unable to avoid the charge of a gnoll with a crude spear Zulu ended up taking an injury to his thigh.

I immediately assisted them and after wiping out the enemies I healed Zulu's wound. Zulu apologized but it doesn't particularly bother me. It's true Zulu was in the wrong by letting his guard down but it was also Bel and my mistake thinking Zulu would be fine so we weren't able to assist him right away and since we're advancing cautiously it's about the time start to become unable to focus. It's a bit early but since I'm sure there's still pain remaining in Zulu's leg we should head back for today.

It was when I was thinking that while I cut open the pitiful gnolls chest to take out the magic stone. I heard something that was clearly a humans voice from somewhere saying "save me". It's been two and a half months since we started exploring the dungeon and this is our first time coming across another living adventurer inside. We exchange glances and look further in the cave where the voice came from. Of course we can't see anything but we couldn't help but to do so. I guess this is a trait of living things.

"What should we do?"

Ralpa asked. Right now I'm strictly training her with magic. I'm sure she wants to freely use magic as well, she doesn't make any complaints and focuses on the training every day, but it will still probably take about 1 month before her void magic reaches level 1. It's really unfortunate that her MP didn't increase during her last level up. As a matter of fact a large portion of the combat we're doing lately has the objective of leveling up Ralph.

"Let's move forward while keeping an eye on things."

After I respond and Bel said as well.

"But, I heard, save me. I think it would be a good idea to hurry."

Her manner of speech has gotten a lot softer. But, she still tries to speak politely to me and since it's unnecessary to tell her to go out of her way to fix that I've just ignored it. She just learned void magic the other day. She's training the same as Ralph right now but in another week or so I'm sure her level will go up. Having more than 30 times the amount of MP than Ralph is that much more valid in earning experience towards magic and it's to point where Ralph is a bit pitiful. Zenom said to that Bel.

"There's no need to hurry. Everything that happens in the dungeon is your own responsibility. I won't say we shouldn't save them or not to save them. But, the area ahead of here we haven't passed by yet. There might be a trap. If we go to save them and get caught in a trap then it's pointless."

Zenom is a pillar of the party with how he's always calm and composed. There's a personal opinion in his words and everyone pays attention to those warnings. Obviously I do as well.

I washed my hands with water magic and after wiping them with a towel I opened the map and checked our current location once again. Going off the terrain from around where we teleported, the location we are is probably, here. If the map is correct then 100 meters ahead of us the cave should bend to the left and after continuing a bit from there it should connect to a large room. That large room should be connect to two other caves from the cave we're advancing through. Right, I bought a map, but this map was a fake. There seems to be a considerable number of mistaken places and while the traps are written down but there aren't enough to match up to them at all. We're treasuring it because it's quite a bit better than not having one at all but there's no way we can put all of our faith into it.

Zulu is watching as I confirm the map. I'm sure he wants to say something as well but he's careful of his position and actions so unless I give him permission he doesn't speak pointlessly. He's a good subordinate.

"Then, Zenom, take up the front with me. Zulu hold up the center and I'll leave the rear to Bel and Ralpa."

After giving simple instructions I ignored the gnoll's corpse and picked up my bayonet. Lined up with Zenom I cautiously start walking. Zenom hits the ground with a roughly 3 m pole as we move forward. Just before we were about to make it to the curve to the left the sound from Zenom hitting the ground changed. A trap huh? We walk around the edge avoiding the trap and after passing the trap we started walking towards the large room that should be ahead of here.

The voice calling for help is still continuing. After turning the corner it's gotten louder. I say,

"We're on our way! Give it your best!"

and just said that but after all raising our pace would be foolish so we carefully continued walking forward. I guess they heard my voice, the owner voice said,

"It's a slime! Be careful!"

And gave us the warning. A slime huh... I've seen one on the edge of Bakuddo once in the past. I'm sure the only attacks that will work on it will be my magic.

"Only magic works against slimes. I've seen one once in the past. There's no other choice than to burn it with fire...He probably can't be saved.."

After I said that I took the pole from Zenom and stood at the front. According to the story I heard from the hunter in Bakuddo, Zachary Dokush, it seems that slimes wrap up their victims and melt them. Being melted alive is a seriously frightening way of dying. It's probably for their sake that I kill them and put them out of their misery. I thought that.

I didn't turn around but I felt the presence of everyone following after me. These softies. Ah, do they intend to take the magic stone? Even I've never taken the magic stone from a human or non-human before..Do you guys seriously intend to cut open the chest of a person? Putting aside Zenom who's been an adventurer for countless years, I wonder if Ralpa, Bel, and Zulu intend to do that? I'll put it aside for now.

We approached close enough to look into the large room and nervously looked in. The large room is about 30 m in every direction and just like other places inside of the dungeon the walls and ceiling are giving off light. It was the scenery of hell inside the room. I heard Bel and Ralpa say "hi" as they held their breath behind me.

There's a green viscous liquid scattered all around the room and it's swallowed the adventurer party. There's already four people that have stopped moving. They've fallen all over the place and their bodies are covered in the slime. In the corner of the room there's one person remaining that has been swallowed up to his chest and still has his sword held in his free right arm trying to escape.

After he saw us and,

"Sa...Save me! I can't do anything about these things! No matter what we tried they wouldn't die!"

And yelled that. In any case, there's no other choice than to do something. After I put my bayonet around my shoulder I held up both of my hands and aimed them in the room. I can't do anything but burn everything that can be burnt with {Flamethrower}. I burnt all the slime in the way to where the man was and got close to him. The man is still training to escape from the slime but it's clear that it's not going anywhere. It's only a matter of time before this man gets swallowed by the slime and after suffocating to death he'll slowly be melted, digested, and absorbed I'm sure. There's no choice than to do what I can.

I adjusted my {Flamethrower} into a thin gas-burner shape and got it close to the slime being careful not to burn the man's body. When the spell was about to reach the slime it suddenly changed its movements. The slime that was slowly moving to completely cover the man suddenly rolled up into a ball after detecting the flame. Well I had predicted it so it wasn't anything to be surprised over but the problem was that the place the slime rolled up to was the farthest place in its body away from the flame. In other words, it rolled up contracting to around where the man's chest was. Since I'm sure the volume itself didn't change. It ended up creating an orb of viscous liquid right around the man's chest.

Eh~ Things that happen will happen. Try not to die. I think that was spreading out the flame from my {Flamethrower}. From the fear of suffocating and the heat from the flame near his lower body the man started rolling around with his upper body covered in the slime. But, I succeeded in killing the slime. Leaving the convulsing man just as he is I started using {Flamethrower} and it didn't take much time at all to finish killing all of the slime I could see.

In any case, I was able to get rid of the dangerous monster for now. Next is healing this man. I crouched down to the man and started using a healing spell to heal him. Simultaneously I identified him. The man is 24 years old. Level is 8. As an adventurer he's somewhere between a newcomer and a mid-class I guess. Zenom and the others started gathering what appears to be the man's allies together. At the same time I saw Bel and Ralpha pick up the magic stone from inside of the slime(since it's originally a viscous liquid, it just looks like a dirty puddle of water) with a disgusted face.

When I identified it's corpse it was supposedly a Green Slime. Since it was a deep green color liquid as if algae had floated up I thought it was different from the Brown Slime I saw in the past but as expected it was different.

In any case, it seems that the man has recovered so he should be able to at least talk.

"That was dangerous. But, I've already burnt all of the slimes to death so it should be already fine."

After I said that and the man said,

"A..Ah..Thanks. My name is Turner. Turner Doruleon. Who are you?"

Since he said that I named myself as well. And then the man said with admiration.

"However, that was some amazing skill with magic. If you can use magic this well than that..."

After saying that far and Turner looked at the corpses of his allies lined up beside him and bit his lip in regret.

Even though I'm sure the pain from the burns still remains the man firmly stood up and stuck a knife into the chests of his allies. When I was dumbfounded with my eyes wide open and he quickly cut open their chests and took the magic stones out. I'm sure she saw that scene because Bel tightly held my hand as hers were trembling. Her face is pale. My facial expression is probably pretty bad as well. At the same time I felt angry. What in the world is this guy doing cutting up the corpses of his allies!

Since I couldn't stand watching anymore I was about to call out to him but after he took out the magic stone of the first one with his hands covered in blood Turner started crying.

"~~~!!! Alice...Alice.."

Eh...What? What is? This?

"Is this your first time seeing someone take the magic stone out of a person? There's quite a few of them, people like that."

Ralpa quietly approached us and told us that. I see, I guess it's something like an article of the deceased... It's true I know of it as knowledge. When I was in Bakuddo I saw a total of five funerals. Among those one of those was the time when six people were killed by the Horned Bear. All of the funerals were performed by burning the corpse near the river and after taking the magic stone out from the remaining bones that was buried. The bones and ashes were washed away in the river. It's true that the magic stone was used in place for the remains. The bereaved family digs a deep hole at night when no one is looking and buried the magic stone there.

The location can be anywhere. It's fine in a place the person who died liked, it's fine at the edge of the fields, or in a garden. In any case, it's fine if even just one person knows in a location that no one will dig up. After hearing that I accepted it thinking that the religious customs are different so the concept of making graves would be different as well. I feel like the concept of returning to nature would be a primeval thing but the teaching of the temple that God exists in everything in this world also feels natural as well. For the most part it's not as if you can't call it a cremation so I didn't have any doubts about it back then.

However, there's times when people die inside of the dungeon like this. Obviously there's no time to leisurely be doing a cremation. Rather since it was stuck in my head that you cremate people when they die I thought it would be difficult trying to carry the corpses back to where he teleported.

While he's mourning Zenom and Zulu were gathering the belongings of the corpses covered in viscous liquid and gathering all of the swords and spears scattered around. It seems that this room was a nest of slimes and there was a considerable number of swords, spears, and shields laying around. The handles and wood parts of them has rotted and is useless but there was a decent number of just the portions that can be sold as well. The ones that are still new are probably what Turner's allies used.

After crying while holding the magic stone of his ally for a while Turner moved on to the next ally and took the magic stone from their chest. During that time we inspected the articles of the deceased and split things up into stuff that could be sold and trash. The equipment of his allies was stuff that could still be used plenty well but even though we saved them, I thought about whether it was really okay to sell off the stuff of people that were his allies for money while sorting things. The equipment of his allies was two sword, two spears, and one shield. After that there were three swords that probably weren't his allies which the handle was rotten and fell off one spear like that as well. There were four spears that had just become the tips. The things that could be sold was just that. There were also the parts of a shield that were metal but I'm sure that's just trash. Also there was money totaling 1,200,000 Z other than what came from his allies corpses.

After we had organized that far I guess he had finished taking the magic stones from all of his allies, Turner called out to us.

"I'm sorry about that. Please let me off on the gratitude with just money. This is all of my money."

After saying that Turner took out his wallet and flipped it over. Among the silver and copper coins there was just one gold Shu mixed in. Well if he's going to give it to us then I'll take it. I placed all of his allies equipment on a shield and after tying it to a spear with rope, I handed it to him along with the wallets from the corpses while saying.

“I understand. I’ll gratefully accept your thanks. Also, this is the articles from your deceased allies. Take it back with you.”

“Is it fine?”

Turner said surprised. If you hadn’t taken out all of your money from the start then it wouldn’t have gone like this.

“Yes, of course.”

After I said that and Turner accepted it with an expression of thanks.

“Thank you. I’m grateful. I wasn’t just saved but even the belongings of my dead allies..”

“Please don’t worry about it. We’ve already received your gratitude after all. More importantly, are you fine on your own?”

After I said that and Turner said,

“I’m probably fine. We walked quite a bit to get here but it was one-way with no split paths to the teleport crystal so there shouldn’t be any monsters.”

and replied.

“I see, then be careful on your way.”

After Turner thanked us once more he lifted the heavy equipment and started walking down a different cave than the one we came from. A short while after he disappeared and Zenom said.

“I was watching to see what you were going to do but for you to give him all of the deceased’s belongings including their wallets..”

His tone was cynical but his expression was laughing.

“Since I properly received the expression of his gratitude after all..”

After I said that and Ralpha,

“Coming from the miser Al who doesn’t even overlook a single magic stone from goblins..”

poked fun at me like that. This girl..who's a miser.

"You go and search if there's still any magic stones laying around somewhere. We forgot to search for magic stones from the victims that last time with the caterpillar."

I said that and drove her away. Search with Identify? Don't be stupid, if I use Identify vision then every time I move my sight the brightness of every rock on the ground lights up. I can't just raise the brightness on magic stones. It's not that convenient. Since every thing that appears in my sight is a target for identifying. I wouldn't want you to misunderstand so I'll review once here but the only things that appear in the sight of my identify vision are things that are a valid target for identifying. I identify them by clicking on and selecting them consciously. Probably everything other than vapors are targets for identify. Even if there was a lot of small rocks trying to pick just the magic stone out of there takes just as much work as normally. Other than that, I guess, if we suppose there's a person wearing a full suit of plate armor. I probably can't identify that person. Since it's too difficult to focus on my sight between the slits in their helmet. I could probably do it if they're right in front of me not moving for a while. And if they have visible hair then it shouldn't be a problem.

"But, I think Al-san is right. Taking the belongings of his deceased allies is..I'm sure that person would have felt disgusted as well."

Bel said that. That's right, allies need to be like this.

"I think that it was good I was able to serve master."

Zulu said that as well. I see, I see. I'm glad I have a good slave as well.

I gave Ralpa the honorable job of gathering the magic stones from gnolls on our way back. Ah, since I burnt close to 30 slimes to death my level went up and I became level 11.

After we sold all of the items and magic stones we obtained and it came out to a total of 2,000,000 Z. Obviously the money we received from Turner as an expression of his gratitude is counted differently. I don't know since when but I've made a rule in myself to give a bonus of 10,000 Z for every 500,000 Z earned. Since we made more than 2,000,000 Z I gave Zenom, Ralpa, and Bel 4 silver coins each as a bonus and we split up until dinner. After I returned to “Boil Manor” there was a message for me.

It’s from Madam Ronslail. It seems that she’s obtained a slave that matches my conditions. I guess I’ll try going to take a look.

After quickly taking a shower and changing I started walking towards “Slave Store, Ronslail”. It’ll be nice if she’s prepared a good slave. It’s only obvious that if the number of people in the party increase it’s directly related to an increase in combat potential but I think it’s more important that it becomes easier on our nerves while exploring the dungeon. I wonder if there’s anyone out there that is useful in finding traps? If there was then even if the guide cost was a bit expensive I’d hire them.

After arriving at “Slave Store, Ronslail” I called out to the madam.

“Welcome to our store, Greed-sama. Did you receive my message?”

I’m here right now because I heard your message, madam.

“Yeah, since you went out of your way to get into contact with me that you obtained a good slave. I thought I should definitely take a look.”

After I said that and the madam smiled but her expression clouded up a bit as she said.

“I think they’re a good combat slave but..they aren’t a war prisoner slave..”

Well, it’s preferable that they’re a slave originating from a war prisoner just because I’d like for them to have some skill, so as long as I can test their ability there’s no problem.

“I see, no, it’s fine. Let me take a look at them.”

After I said that and I guess the madam was relieved, she went into the back again.

After waiting for a short while like usual and the madam appeared again to call me back. After excitedly following behind her and going through the door and there were four people lined up. Starting from the edge I checked their facial expression and physique in order. Their physiques aren’t bad for each of their races.

“The slave I suggest this time is the woman on the far right end.”

I use Identify on the slave the madam suggested.

【Malso.Angela/12/8/7442 Malso.Angela/20/8/7421】

Hmn. She’s not half bad but why is she suggesting her? The fact that her facial features are average doesn’t really matter. But, I wonder what it really is? If she wasn’t a war prisoner then what in the world is her sales point?

“She was released from a group of adventurers that took quite a bit of damage the other day. Since she’s entered the dungeon countless times, I’m sure she’d be no problem.”

Ah, that sort of reason.

“I see. However, I’ll have you let me test out her skill.”

After I said that the madam had a male apprentice bring along two wooden swords. During that time I tried identifying the remaining slaves just in case but there was no slave that interested me. After receiving the wooden swords I handed one to Angela and we went towards the backyard while I said to her.

“I can use healing magic. Even if one of us is injured I can fix it so feel free to attack me without worrying about it. If you want to be purchased by me then it would best if you don’t go easy on me.”

I noticed a number of small cuts on Angela's skin from a close distance. I wonder if there was no one that could use healing magic where she used to be.

After I actually tried testing her out and her skill could be said to be decent. In terms of my party then in close combat it would go me, Zenom, Ralpa, Zulu, Bel from strongest to weakest but she at least has enough skill to be slightly below Bel. I try not to injure Angela as much as possible while making that apparent to her, stopping short of attacking, and my ability with the sword isn't so bad that I'd take her sword so both of us are unharmed. Well, this should be fine.

"How long have you entered the dungeon in Baldukk?"

I tried asking her that.

"Since just about a year ago. However, there was a period of about 3 months where I didn't enter the dungeon at all during that time."

"I see. How many people have you served until now?"

"A total of three people. My first master sold me right away and returned to their hometown. After that, I served a different master for a short while but that person also sold me and returned to their hometown. The one after that was my last master. It was a party of 10 people, but just the other, there was a fight where only six of us including me survived. After that, my master sold me to this store. They said they were returning to their home town."

I see now.

"Did your first master buy you?"

"No. I was born as a serf. When my first master became an adventurer they brought along three slaves including me as we left our home town."

A born serf huh? Although, if she can use the sword this well even though she was born a serf then she must have talent.

I faced Madam Ronlail and said.

"What's the price on this woman?"

"Since she has experience in the dungeon her price is 6,500,000 Z."

Hmn, it's cheap compared to Zulu but she's a woman after all. The normal price for a female combat slave is 6,000,000 Z to 7,000,000 Z and it's 6,500,000 Z to 7,500,000 Z for a male. If their origins are a soldier or squire then it gets more expensive. Something like a knight has a price that would make your eyes pop out they're so expensive. This Dog-people race slave named Angela was born a serf but since she has the achievement of surviving several months in the dungeon she's a bit more expensive.

"You are her skill with the sword right? Is it that price even with that?"

I thought this would be the case so I intentionally treated Angela like a child while parrying her.

"..How about 6,300,000 Z?"

Hmm, well I guess that's good.

"I understand. I'll buy her for 6,300,000 Z."

Chapter 84: Experiment

Year 7442, Month 8, Day 15

After finishing the naming ceremony at the temple in the same way as Zulu and Angela was handed over to me. I told Zenom and the others at dinner last night she finally obtained a new slave and I intended to buy her. Accompanied by Angela I walk towards the restaurant we're meeting up at for lunch. After I entered the place together with Angela and Ralpa called out to us from a table near the edge*.

"Is that person the new combat slave you mentioned?"

What the, was this the only place a table was open? I reply to Ralpa who called out to us while she was looking at Angela as if evaluating her.

"That's right, I tested her skill yesterday. Her swordsmanship is about the same as Bel."

I said that and turned around to Angela then said.

"Angela, everyone here is my party. Greet them."

After I said that and Angela fixed her posture and politely said.

"My name is Malso Angela. I'm a slave that is serving master starting today. I'm looking forward to working together with you."

After she finished her introduction and Bel opened her mouth.

"My name is Bernadett Koloil. Sit down here. Also, it's fine if you call me Bel."

After Bel said that she moved to the next seat to her right and opened a seat to her left between her and Ralpa. Angela made a surprised expression and wondering what she should do she kept looking between Bel and I. I nod to Angela and,

"In my place don't worry about that sort of thing. Sit."

After saying that I saw to the left of Zulu. Angela said, "Excuse me." as she sat between Ralpa and Bel.

“My name is Ralpa Firefreed. It’s fine if you call me Ral.”

“I’m Zenom Firefree.”

Ralpa and Zenom introduced each other in succession. Next is Zulu.

“I’m Dadino.Zulu. I serve master the same as you. Call me Zulu. Also, all the people other than me aren’t slaves.”

Yeah, it seems that greetings are done. Then, let’s eat.

After calling the waiter and everyone started ordering the things they want to eat. Oh~ I forgot to tell Angela about it.

“Angela, don’t restrain yourself. It’s the job of a slave to eat and create a healthy body. Ask for as much of whatever you want to eat. Ah, I want the pork saute and boiled fish. If you have any Keiswago then make it that. Also, beer.”

“Al. You never eat vegetables. Eat some vegetables as well. Bring a head of cabbage. Cut it into four parts. Then put mayonnaise on difference small plates to dip it in.”

Be quiet~ Did you think the one saying that was Ralpa? That’s exactly right, I don’t know why but this ex-high school girl always tries to get everyone to eat raw vegetables. It seems that even Zulu is starting to fed up with it but recently Bel has started to align with Ralpa. Since you’re a rabbit it’s fine. Furthermore, since it’s something she’s done for quite a while Zenom is completely used to it.

“..Umm, is it really okay?”

Angela asked Zulu in a whisper to confirm.

“Yeah, it’s fine. Feel free to eat whatever you like. I was surprised at first as well though.”

It seems Zulu is asking for fried meat. However, this guy won’t drink alcohol. Since he’s physically older than me, he should just drink. Even after confirming Angela still wasn’t sure what to order and in the end she chose the fried meat the same as Zulu. Today is Wednesday so it’s a day off. After the food came out Zulu paid for his own portion. Seeing that Angela’s eyes went wide. Of course, it’s not a large amount. The fried meat is just 350 Z and the bread is 20 Z. I smiled at Angela as she was worrying and paid for her food before saying.

“In my party I pay the slaves all at once at the end of the month the wages for that month. For this month I’ll pay for everything that you need. And the days we enter the dungeon are Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday. We take Wednesday and Saturday off to rest our bodies. Just, on Saturday only in the morning we do training to practice our ability to cooperate with each other. From here on out I’ll be giving you wages but after that starts you’ll pay for your own lunch on Wednesday and Saturday. The meal and lodging other than that I’ll continue paying for though.”

Even looking from normal common sense in this world it doesn’t appear like I’m treating my slaves special. Well, the amount I’m paying I think is decently high for a slave though. Normally you either pay them wages and leave their daily necessities up to themselves or in return for looking after everything for them you only pay them a tiny amount of wages, it’s commonly one of those. If you were to ask which one is more common then in town areas it’s the former but there is a decent number of the latter as well. In farm villages it’s the reverse and the majority take the latter option.

“Putting that aside, today I have a bit of business to take care of after this. After we finish eating I’ll go and buy some equipment for Angela but after that just make sure you check on how to cooperate.”

After saying that I crunched away at some cabbage with mayonnaise. I really want some spicy miso for raw cabbage. The one like which came with fried chicken in Japan. It seems that Zulu isn’t good with cabbage and it’s easy to tell he’s trying to hold back from it but Ralpa is mercilessly telling him to eat it too. Since he’s a Lion-people race, go easy on him.

After we finished eating, we went off to prepare Angela’s equipment. Since it seems her weapon is the sword I figured I would let her choose. I’m sure there’s balance, length, and differences in peoples tastes like that. After that is..I’m sure leather armor is necessary as well. After purchasing a broadsword for 1,000,000 Z we ordered some leather armor at the store which made Zulu’s armor. It was 520,000 Z.

After that I told Zulu to tell everyone to properly teach her about coordinating movements in the party and decided to leave the rest to them.

Right now I'm entering the dungeon alone. There was a bit of something that I wanted to confirm. Recently in going to the dungeon we've gotten a good grasp on the combat ability of our party and how to properly coordinate our movements, and I've somewhat understood about the rules of experience gain. Next is level up. What sort of rules do ability values increase during level up, I wanted to know that. I've created somewhat of a hypothesis but I want to confirm if that's correct.

It's about the ability points that increased during my level up the other day. Thanks to my running other than my level up my Endurance increased by 1 point. It's limited to my guess but you say that the effect of my training appeared just like Mill. Since I'm continuing my running I feel like it might get even higher.

Different from that something strange happened with my level up this time.

My HP didn't increase. In exchange for that my Endurance increased. MP, Strength, Speed, Dexterity, and Endurance all increased by 1 point each, and in exchange for my HP not increasing my Endurance increased 1 more point. Starting from the conclusion and this is more convenient for me. Rather than gaining 1 HP on level up it's better for Endurance to increase because in the end you gain 2 HP as well (since my Endurance increased by a total of 2 points my HP increased 4 points for that portion), so I think it's more convenient for the ability points in Endurance to increase.

I've only experienced one of my ability points increasing once in the past. During my first level up. Other than my Strength increasing by 1 point at that time my MP increased by 5 points, and nothing else increased at all. I wonder why my HP didn't increase this time? As a matter of fact I thought about this last night. My last level up was at the start of this year when I was still in Bakuddo. All of my ability points increased that time. The difference between that time and this time. I tried thinking about the differences between that time and my first level up. My memories have gotten a bit vague in a few places but I've created a hypothesis which I think is largely correct.

That is what you can see in the sub-window of Identify 【During level up the number one and number two abilities that you used the most prior to leveling will increase by 1 point. HP and MP is included in these abilities. However, if you're in possession of a Unique Ability then the ability points that increase will be the first ~ sixth. 】 I was able to imagine it. The "However" part after that is in red probably because it only involves reincarnated people but the problem is the details written down.

"During level up the abilities that you used the most prior to leveling" is written there but this is the suspicious portion. During my first level up, the majority of the experience I had gained was related to using magic and after that just swinging the sword. In other words, magic and the muscles in my arm from swinging the sword. If I remember correctly it was around when I was 5 years old. I couldn't do any proper swinging of the sword using my entire body so I was just swinging it with my arms. After learning from that level up I started to do as much exercise as I could and started enthusiastically training with the sword. Moreover in order to use my body more I made the bayonet and I started training bayonet fighting while remembering my past life. I guess as an effect of that, every level up after that all of my abilities increased by 1 point each.

However, while I felt like I was continuing that but this time my HP didn't increase on level up. There's only one difference. The thing that is the same during my first level up and this time and differs from all the others. That's whether or not I was injured between leveling up. During the first time for my first 5 years as infant I never received any injury that could be called an injury.

Of course, there were times when I was bitten by bugs, and small scrapes as well, but HP doesn't decrease for things like that. HP doesn't decrease for small injuries. I think if you take a needle and stab somewhere that isn't fatal as deep as 1 cm then there probably won't be any change to your HP. If that occurs over several places for the first time along with a stabbing wound your HP would start to decrease.

And the period of time I was level 10 until the level up this time. In other words, starting from the end of January of this year until the other day for a period of about 8 months, I was never injured. I think the last time I was injured was when I had the practice match with Mill so it would be before that period. After I hit level 10, whether it be when I killed the parent and child Horned Bear that I had a long history with, when I killed Begulu, after that on my way to Baldukk, and my combat in the dungeon. I don't think I was injured even once.

With sustaining any injuries at all I went from level 10 to level 11. That's why during the period I was level 10, I didn't use my HP ability even once..though that way of wording it sounds weird..but I haven't used it. I wasn't conscious of any time my HP decreased during the period I was level 10. I wonder if I can deliberately select what abilities increase on level up by thinking that I didn't use MP or didn't use my muscles in the same way as that time. I tried making a hypothesis for that.

Honestly speaking, putting aside HP there's one ability that I don't want to raise and in exchange for that I want any other ability to go up. I don't think it even needs to be said but it's MP. In my case, thanks to my Unique Ability I was able to increase my MP by exhausting my mana countless times, so I don't need anymore than this. Currently it's even difficult to completely use up my magic unless I use intentionally trying to do that. In that case then even if HP increases it's still more useful to my survival. That's why this is an experiment.

It's probably impossible for me to stop using MP. I use it to assist the front attackers and if someone gets injured I use it to heal. There's no other choice than to give up on that. I think I can do pretty well with just close combat but not taking any injuries at all requires too much luck and if I even get injured just once I'll end up using healing magic.

The details of the experiment this time are like this.

- Until I either consume half of my mana or I go as far as I can in two hours.
- I use magic to fight as much as possible. In any case, I keep in mind not to take any injuries.
- However, another large increase in just MP would be a problem so I need to do a bit of close combat.
- I try my best to decrease the enemies and then enter close combat in one-on-one situations.

I'm going to try experimenting like this. If a good number of Orks or Hobgoblins appear then I should be able to level up within a few days. For a while my days off will disappear but either way the only thing I'm going other than running is walking or resting. Since I haven't stood at the front during combat much lately and since we rotate the order of who stands at the lead when exploring the dungeon my mental and physical fatigue aren't as bad as when we first started. If it's no good then it's fine if I run away with my tail between my legs.

After I teleported into the dungeon I confirmed my surroundings. It's in the middle of a cave that we always teleport in to. I guess I'll try going this way. Even if I confirm the map, in this tasteless cave that goes straight in both directions I can't even tell where I am until I get to a curve or split path, so it doesn't matter which direction I go.

I face one direction, brace my legs, raise my left hand forward, and use wind magic. I'm using void magic to send a large amount of air created with mana forward. Unlike outside since this is inside a cave with walls and ceiling the air that's created is limited on where it can disperse but since I'm using void magic to push the suddenly generated air in front of me I don't get blown backwards. The reason I'm bracing my legs is just because I somehow felt that would be a good idea.

The reason why I'm doing something like this is in order to blow away the dirt that's covering pitfalls. In the 1st floor I'm on the majority of the traps are pitfalls and rarely there's a different trap that just lets out a loud noise. Although, the noise it makes can lure monsters over so without a doubt it's a dangerous trap, other parties of adventurers who try to avoid combat as much as possible hate them.

As far as I can there doesn't seem to be any traps. Even then I can't completely relax so I carefully move forward. After advancing a bit this time I use the spell {Audible Clamor} several times in succession as far as I can see about 40 m ahead and cause a large rupturing sound a number of times. With this if there's any monsters nearby then even if they don't notice the wind they'll come over here wondering what it is. I use Identify look ahead.

In any case I need to decrease their numbers as much as possible before they get close to here and think about the methods that it would be possible to wipe them out with. It's fine to bury them with dirt or ice but if I do that then I might end up burying the cave. If I ended up sealing off the only path the 2nd floor by mistake then things would be bad so I should avoid that. Otherwise only as a last resort. If I really felt like I needed to use it then it would be troublesome but I can erase it later after all.

Also, I'm sure a large number of monsters will attack me. Since I'm alone here I need to pay attention to the speed they charge at me as well. Though, if they can move faster than my eyes can see them it would be different but I doubt there's any that can go at a speed like a jet engine. As far as I know the fastest on Orth is the falcon. Though I think they can go at a super speed of 300 Km per hour during descent but I really doubt there's a living creature that can go that speed inside of a cave so I doubt anything will be able to reach me before I can use some kind of magic. And even if it comes to a dangerous situation it's just a matter of using magic with all my power 50 m ahead and then immediately retreating to the teleport crystal and running out of the dungeon.

After a few minutes a group of monsters appeared. Che...Goblins, I'm out of luck. I used {Wind Cutter} while putting a bit of extra mana into it and wiped them out in a few seconds. I haven't bothered counting them, I think there were over 10 of them but I only gained roughly 1,000 experience points. I guess I'll leave once. I quickly grab the teleport crystal and teleport to one of the small rooms on the side of the small room where you teleport. I go to the teleport room once again. As long as you don't leave the building where the entrance to the dungeon is then you can enter and leave the dungeon as many times as you want.

There's people who make use of this re-entering the dungeon countless times until they get to an easy to recognize terrain. I use the teleport crystal to re-enter the dungeon the same as them. Just the same I lure over monsters and use magic to wipe them all out except for a few weak monsters. If I think I repeat this a number of times then I doubt I'll take any injuries and can earn some experience points.

I wonder how many times I've repeated it? I think I've already done it 5–6 times. The only monsters that appeared every time were goblins. Since the value of their magic stones is low I just left the corpses as is but I've probably already killed 70–80 of them. Oh~ come to think of it, while goblins are weak, they give low experience points, and their magic stones aren't worth much but I can earn experience points towards the Gift of Natural Talent. If I keep putting some effort into it like this then after a few more days of just killing goblins I should be able to get the level of my Gift of Natural Talent to MAX. This was an unexpected byproduct. Then I guess even if the opponent is just goblins it should be fine as long as I make up for in numbers so I'll put some effort into it like this.

The experience points in my Gift of Natural Talent right now is 1524 (2560). Putting it simply the number of monsters I've killed until now is a total of 1,524. Sorry, I lied. Since I occasionally got about 10 experience points from practice matches so I think it's a lot less. I guess about 500 monsters would be right? As expected 1,500 is saying I've defeated too many. The majority of those are Goblins and Leeches. Since there was almost never large monsters like Hobgoblins. Since I was living a lifestyle where I only went hunting 1–2 times a month, so that sounds about right.

In any case, if I kill another 1,000 monsters or so then the level of my Gift of Natural Talent should increase and it'll be even easier for me to gain experience points. Even gnolls would be fine so once I fight something other than goblins I'll stop for today. Thinking that I teleported into the dungeon again. Gnolls finally appeared. Thinking it would be the last I used {Chain Lightning} in continuously and wiped all of them out but one. The last remaining gnoll was seriously injured as well so I easily stabbed it to death. The experience from 12 gnolls was just above 3,000. It's annoying but I can't overlook the magic stones from gnolls. They have a value of 2,000 each. In terms of money that's 20,000 Z. If I sell them it should be about 14,000 Z each. I can pay the tax to enter the dungeon with just 1 and still have some leftover. I quickly gathered the magic stones and went home for today.

Just as I expected the magic stones came out to a total of 162,000 Z. I earned around 9,000 experience points in today as well. If I crush another 2–3 weeks of days off then I should know the results of my experiment.

If I kill another XXXX monsters or so then the level of my XXXX should increase and it'll be even easier for me to gain experience points.

Welcome to the world of RPGs, AI, you are now officially hooked.

Chapter 85: Anxiety 1

Year 7442, Month 8, Day 16

Today when we were about to enter the dungeon, I was called out by Church-san who was guarding the tax official at the entrance. It seems that on Friday of next week the knight group of Baldukk is going to enforce the punishments of criminals they're holding including Dereonola. Bel and I were told to be there as witnesses. It can't be helped so we'll have to make that into a day off from entering the dungeon.

Furthermore, when I tried asking the reason why there was over two months between the arrest and the judgments and it seems it was for the convenience of the lord. Since Baldukk is the King's direct territory then the lord is the King but obviously there's no way the King would go out of his way to come to Baldukk for this stingy job so normally it's the governor who manages the government of the town. However, as a matter of fact that governor isn't a representative with full authority like in Japan. They're limited to just the administrative authorities. In the first place it's not even an official governor. Since Baldukk is lined up with Rombertia as the King's direct territory in the true meaning of the expression so there's no official governor.

The only one who can administrate justice is someone that has been officially appointed as governor by the lord. Since that's the case the administrative secretary (they're treated as and actually called governor out of custom) that's appointed to take care of only practical work in Baldukk can't perform the judgments of criminals. For that sake, around 4–5 times in a year, when he has some leeway the official lord that is His Highness Count Baldukk Thomas Rombert the Third goes out of his way to come to Baldukk just to perform the judgments. It seems that reason this time was that it wasn't convenient for the official lord, His Highness to make it.

In any case, so it's Friday of next week huh? I need to make sure I don't forget. Thinking that I thanked Church-san and was about to return to everyone else when I was called out again. This time it was some advice. Bel is a foreigner. She's a noble but since her family isn't in the Kingdom of Rombert her treatment is the same as a commoner. Obviously that means it's the same for taxes and she's going to the government office every month to pay taxes. It seems that just in case it would be best for her to have the documents proving that she's paying taxes at that time. I'm sure it won't be necessary but it's nothing more than a just in case so I guess I should be grateful for the advice.

Bel and I exchanged glances as we returned to where everyone else was and explained to them that in order to stand witness to the judgement and enforcement of Dereonola's punishment we would have a day off from entering the dungeon Friday of next week, then we entered the dungeon.

The combat potential of our party went up a bit since Angela joined but what was more useful than that was her special skill as a Dog-people race "Super Sense of Smell". Almost all of the monsters that live in the dungeon give off indescribable sour and raw smell that will make you feel like throwing up. She can accurately differentiate the smells of these monsters.

At least until the end of my experiment I'm grateful that we won't end up charging into a place where a dangerous enemy could be. Even with just that it was worth buying Angela. Thinking that, I was grinning on my own over how I profited, but it was quickly proven that something like that was just a bonus. Her true value was something much more important. Just as you could expect from Angela who has been entering the dungeon longer than we have, compared to us she had a wealth of knowledge about the dungeon.

For example, the location that you teleport to in the dungeon, it seems that there's some restrictions on this place you teleport to. It seems that currently there's over 400 locations confirmed that you can teleport to but in most cases there's a mark left in the area of where you teleport. Was there something like that? thinking that and since I was interested I tried asking and it was simple. The pedestal for the teleport crystal where you end up teleporting to has a variety of symbols like numbers carved into it but among those it seems that there's always at least one symbol that points to the direction. On the wall where that points to there's a small number written. The number is obviously something was carved out by the adventurers that visited until now. Also, even if you teleport to the same place it seems that the symbols carved into the pedestal aren't fixed so while we obviously noticed the symbols carved into the pedestal, until now we just ignored them not properly investigating.

What the, there was something this simple? With this we should be able to almost pinpoint the location we teleport at the start but I don't get it. Even if there's a number of inaccuracies written on the map I purchased there's a considerable portion of the 1st floor and information about the traps written on it. There's no information included in there about the teleport locations. Was it a partial map I guess? However, Angela quickly answered that question as well.

Normally, the maps that are sold are divided into four types. The first is obviously the one that has the terrain drawn. The next one is that with the information about the traps added. That's the map I purchased. And one more is the one that has teleport information listed. It seems that there's numbers written all over the map. Since this one and the map with traps from just now both have a lot of information on them it's normal that the map isn't just one page. Even the map I'm holding is made up of 9 pieces of parchment about the size of A3 and along with the terrain the information about traps is written but since there's no way it could fit with just one page it's split up. Even on this map the terrain is drawn extremely small. I think in terms of scaling it would be roughly $1/3000$ — $1/5000$ or so? The roughly is just going off our feeling but even what is it drawn on just one piece of parchment I can't help but think that the scaling differs depending on the location. That's why even if we say it's a picture of the terrain there's some inaccurate parts to it as well.

If you were to list the teleport information on this as well then obviously the amount of room you can fit for the map on one piece of parchment will get smaller. In other words it becomes a map with larger scaling so you suddenly need several times the amount of paper. Since it's parchment if it comes to tens of pieces it's heavy and bulky so it seems you split it up. I didn't even know that sort of information existed. I've never heard about it from anyone. As if it was only obvious, according to the story I heard from Angela this information and the way to obtain the map itself is special. The normal dungeon map dealers who come to the entrance plaza in the early morning don't deal in it and in order to obtain it you have to go to the edge of the town of Baldukk where they're stealthily doing business almost as if to avoid being seen.

It seems that normally unless you have the introduction of an influential adventurer party they won't sell it to you. I used the large amount of 7,000,000 Z to forcefully purchase that map. With this my fortune has decreased quite a bit. I need to earn...Though impatience is forbidden.

Furthermore, there's one more type of map with even more detailed information listed on it and it seems that it's the map created by adventurers who sell it when they retire or who's party collapse and they intend to leave Baldukk. Since it seems those almost ever appear on the market it's best to think we won't be able to easily get our hands on one.

Even with just that portion of information Angela was useful but even more importantly is that she remembered several locations where there were strong enemies. Though even if I say that she could only remember four places but even then it's a big piece of information knowing the information about strong enemies before-hand. Scavenger Crawler, Blue Slime, Propeller Tail, Gargantuan Spider. All of them are dangerous opponents if you enter without knowing them.

It's necessary to test various ways on how to insert Angela into the party for a short while after this. Until things stabilize I'm sure we should slowly train without overdoing it. However, even with being in possession of this much information Angela's skill with the sword is the lowest in our party. Though even if I say that it just falls a bit behind Bel who was born a noble and officially learned how to use the sword so I have no real complaints. The young squires in Bakuddo were like this.

The biggest question I had was how all of her parties until now almost completely collapsed. They weren't literally wiped out but they took enough damage that they can't continue entering the dungeon anymore. I think it's impossible to clear the 1st floor with just her level of skill. Even if you could clear it then I'm sure you'd take damage on the 2nd floor. I wonder why they didn't proceed more slow and safely? Could it be Angela is receiving money or something from a different party to take on the role of luring her party into destruction?

I can't tell how much of her origins and how she met her masters until now is true so I can't help but worrying about something dangerous like that. If I think about it calmly then it's clear that possibility is so minuscule that it can be ignored but I couldn't help but ask Angela.

"Angela, why did your previous masters try to head to deeper floors? It's weird saying this and don't take it the wrong way. Your skill with the sword isn't all that bad but most likely you've realized it yourself, you probably can't win one-on-one against any of us. I don't understand the thinking of someone trying to head to deeper floors with a member with only that level of skill."

After I said that during a short break in the dungeon and Angela gave me a surprised response.

"Eh? I don't understand why master would say something like that. Slaves like myself are usually made to stand at the front and while I'm enduring it or being killed the other members kill the enemy right? On the contrary in masters party I'm grateful because I don't have very many chances to stand at the front of but.."

And replied like that. Well, it's something that I had somewhat predicted.

"It's not that I don't understand that. But, if by doing that you end up collapsing won't the combat potential of the entire party drop? Since I'm not rich I can't do something as wasteful as using you until you collapse. Were all of your previous masters rich people?"

After I tried asking that and she replied a bit troubled.

"Umm? It's weird for me to say it but slaves are shields. I've heard that it's normal to use us to get through combat that can't be avoided. Of course, we avoid combat as much as possible until that point, but even then, before you can get to lower floors there's always combat that you can't avoid so slaves are something like insurance for those times. If you can just make it to the 2nd floor then after that if you put some effort into it you can find enough treasure to buy one or two slaves..”

“It’s not as if I don’t understand that logic but I’ve never heard that you’ll definitely find some treasure. You say one or two slaves lightly but there’s close to 8,000,000 Z on just you and your equipment. Alright? It’s 8,000,000 Z? If you add up two peoples worth that’s 16,000,000 Z. Even if you find treasure worth 20,000,000 Z it’s not worth it right?”

“Eh..”

“Eh..”

“Umm, why isn’t it worth it? With the calculation from just now won’t you profit 4,000,000 Z?”

“Eh.. What are you saying? Like that’s the case. As proof of that, while there’s slaves in the parties that are said to be the top teams, but don’t they say that the members haven’t changed much at all over the last few years? That sort of wasteful spending...I’m sure no would do such wasteful investing right?”

I don’t get what she’s saying. It seems that Angela still has something to say.

“That is.. isn’t it meaningless to use the top teams as a comparison? The majority of parties use slaves as shields. During that time they aim to clear through to the next floor.”

This is, not going anywhere. I was about to stick my lower lip out and say something in anger like Chousuke*. I couldn’t help but look at the faces of the other members and Zenom and Zulu were just quietly listening but Bel and Ralpa had the same opinion as me. Bel says.

“Angela, why are you saying something like that? Do you want use to use you as a shield? I’ve never used a slave myself so I can’t say anything much but I think that what you’re saying is strange. Even if you’re a slave, you’re a living person. I don’t intend to say something emotional like you’re pitiful. However, listen carefully. You’re a living person. Do you know what this means? Putting it more simply and...I guess so, I think I can explain it better based on the financial results. Al-san bought you for 8,000,000 Z. In order to recover this money and make enough to profit from it you can’t say it was profitable unless he makes back several times that amount.”

Did Bel major in business? No, it's unrelated though.

"The amount you're worth isn't just the amount of money spent to buy you. After that there's invisible money that's used up through our time spent training together like Saturday morning of last week, or time spent checking our coordination. For example, let suppose you died today. In that case and it's not just the amount of time we spent confirming our coordination last Saturday. All of the time we've spent entering the dungeon together will become pointless. Because our party has been training and fighting under the premise that you're with us. If you die then everything will become pointless. If we changed you out with a new slave then we'd have to start out from the beginning. That's why we can't do anything that would cause us to lose you so easily."

Yeah, well, there's that as well.

"And you know. For as long as you're alive the things you experience are a fortune worth so much you can't buy them with money. There's a lot of things about the dungeon that we didn't know until you came. It's the same about the map and about telling apart the teleport locations as well. That's information that people who are living can bring back with them right? It's living knowledge. It's the same for dangerous monsters. Just listening to stories about them and having someone who's actually fought them is completely different. Just the fact that you're used to fighting in the dungeon is a large asset."

That's right. What was it again? Ah, "leveling up". It was even in Dragon Quest. Since I haven't done it much I'm not too familiar with it but in order to safely move to the next area even in games don't you slaughter countless weak and innocent monsters and earn experience points in order to expand the players combat potential? Something like the hunting I did with Myun at night when I was younger. Even training with the sword in a wider sense can be applied to leveling up. The experiment I'm doing alone on my days off is the same as well and even inside of my right now there's a feeling close to that. However, it seems that Angela still doesn't understand.

"However, in that case wouldn't it take more time to reach the 2nd floor? They say that time is more valuable than money after all. The possibility of earning even more money should be increased by reaching the 2nd floor even a bit faster. My previous master said that this is was a question of probability. I can't think that person had any sort of special way of thinking."

Angela still isn't willing to bend her personal opinion. Does she want to try and commit suicide or something? this woman. By the way, on average it seems that it takes about one year to one and a half years for a newcomer party to clear the 1st floor. I think it's around there that's the key to convince her, or rather help her understand.

"Bel, it's already fine. But, Angela. Try thinking carefully over what Bel said later. Also, how is our skill compared to the parties you've been in until now? Are we lacking?"

After I asked that and Angela replied immediately.

"No, let alone lacking, even though you have such low numbers I think you're several levels higher. You almost never take any sort of injuries that can be called an injury. But, do you intend to aim for the 3rd floor or 4th floor? I thought that was the reason for coordinating movements and having me participate in the combat. Of course...even I understand that it's a waste to just let me die after one fight. However, I've heard that in order to get to the teleport crystal to the lower floors it's always necessary to pass through at least one room with a powerful enemy. I thought it was my job in order to pass through there though.."

"Hmph, so you think it's difficult for us to clear through the strong enemies in the rooms on the 1st floor even including you. Ah, we still hadn't showed you. Well it doesn't matter. Then I'll declare it to you. Once we enter the next month I intend to seriously start progressing through the dungeon aiming for the 2nd floor. And, since we already have the map I'll show you that we can reach the 2nd floor during next month. After we've earned a bit there I'll buy the map for the 2nd floor this time. It seems that the enemies on the 2nd floor are stronger than the 1st floor but I've heard that they fundamentally they aren't all that different from the 1st floor. After buying the map for the 2nd floor..I guess so... within two months we'll get to the 3rd floor. I'll show you we can arrive there without missing anyone. Obviously since there's danger in combat depending on the situation I might end up ordering you to become a shield and protect someone. However, I wouldn't use anyone including you as just a shield to clear through a specific place. Let me hear your opinion again at that time. Now then, the break is over. Let's go once more."

After saying that I stood up and started advancing through the cave at the lead.

Year 7442, Month 8, Day 23

Today is the day of judgement for Dereonola. After waking up in the morning I changed into the highest quality clothes I have and went to the restaurant I always eat breakfast. Since I told Bel about it ahead of time she's wearing some decent clothes as well but they're at best clothes that say she's a slightly skilled adventurer. Well that's actually the case, so even though she's a person from a Sub-Baron family, since she's the second daughter that's left the house and her occupation is now an adventurer it would be strange for her to stand on the witness stand in a dress, so it should be fine. While they're cheap ones she's wearing boots for the time being after all.

We talked about things in the world until close to noon while slowly killing time and when it was close to the time we started towards the government office.

I thought they would confirm the offenses of each person one at a time and then punish them like Keel but they were processed even more carelessly than that. There were even more criminals than Keel and the judge's bench was far from the seats where witnesses wait so I could only get a glance of the King from a distance but just from seeing him he seems like a normal old man. When I tried Identifying him and his age was 48 years old, level is 10. He's either training a reasonable amount or trained when he was young. I'm sure the King is obviously busy so it would be different if it was someone who's committed a grave sin or the greatest thief under the heavens but since it was just at the level of stingy theft, rape, or murder that occurred from a conflict between adventurers so the punishments proceeded smoothly like an operation. They don't even let them complain about the reason why they were captured like in Keel. Since they're all gagged.

The crimes are stated and after they're informed about the evidence and testimony the majority of them quickly recognize their crimes and nod to it. Occasionally there were some who would shake their heads when it comes to punishments of execution or cutting off limbs and during those times the witnesses are called but after giving a simple testimony and the punishment is enforced without problem. They're already giving out the punishment of the next criminal next to a whipped criminal. The punishments are enforced so quickly that it even feels like that.

Since the King was going out of his way to decide the punishments, I thought it would be more dignified, and how do I put it, would proceed much slower with everyone bowing in dogeza mode, but that wasn't the case. Of course, we're giving testimony according to the law as politely as possible and the surrounding people are trying to act with the proper behavior towards an aristocrat but I think it's only obvious. There's commoners, Free People, and slaves in Baldukk and the majority of the victims and witnesses related to criminals aren't a part of the noble standing. I'm sure they understand that there's no point in expecting the same type of refined courtesy and manners that are expected in the royal court every time. As long as they don't completely deviate from the normal with their manners then it's not seen as a problem.

The judgments gradually pass by and when it was finally Dereonola's turn the incident occurred. Of all things, it seems Dereonola attempted to escape. Obviously he was immediately captured, tied up, and dragged along.

It was abduction and attempted rape of a noble. Bel is a foreigner but she's still a noble. The conflicts with the Kingdom of Devas over the southern border are still periodically continuing. There was a period where I was a bit worried what would happen but according to the stories I've heard from various sources there's no mistake he'll be executed. However, because he caused a disturbance with trying to escape at this time and ended up delaying the progress, it seems that he caught the interest of the King. We were told to stand on the witness stand and give testimony.

I wanted them to quickly get to punishing him without giving testimony but it can't be helped, after Bel and I stood up from the waiting seats and moved to the witness stand, status open was used on us to confirm we were the actual witnesses and that our social standing was just as recorded, then we gave testimony. We said all of the facts we could other than fact that we're Japanese. Since Dereonola is still biting down on a gag and he can't scream anything so he isn't even permitted to object to our testimony.

After hearing our testimony the King thought for a moment on the stage. In the next moment there was someone who whispered something to the King. He must be the commander of his guard or something since he's wearing expensive looking metal armor. After that person whispered something to the King he asked me a question before handing out the punishment.

"You, you said you were a member of Viscount Greed family right. Were you born in Marquis Webdos territory?"

Eh? What's that? Is it related?

"Yes, I was born in Bakuddo village of the Marquis Webdos territory. My father Heguryiyal is the lord."

"After all so that was the case. Do you have an older sister?"

"Yes, one" "After this show me your face." "

Eh?

"Ha..Then afterwards I will visit."

After I said that and Dereonola was handed his punishment. As expected it was execution through decapitation. He was glaring at me with an expression filled with resentment but since he's still gagged he can't say anything. Well, since you did something bad so just die. And it was the worst that the other side was a noble.

Dereonola was executed at the edge of the execution grounds.

After receiving a summons from the King I was about to worry myself to death.

I wonder what in the world this is about? The only thing I can think it's related to is about Mill. Since he went to the trouble of asking if I have an older sister. She's an up-and-coming new knight in the elite first knight group of the country after all. I wonder if she did something? Since it's that older sister. Like being told to "serve" the King and after refusing, she slapped him... Since she's a beauty and her outward appearance is good... But, I don't think she's that much of an idiot. Then what is it?

..Could it be..She was killed in action?

Suddenly my body started trembling in fear. I returned to the witness waiting seats and Bel was worried about me as I started thinking with a pale face so she held my hand.

"It's alright. Isn't it just words of praise for cooperating with capturing the criminal?"

That's wrong, that's not it. I see, I never told Bel that my older sister was in the knight group under the direct control of the King...

Chapter 86: Margin

Year 7442, Month 8, Day 23

To Mill...Did something happen to older sister?

Like entering a battle and being killed in action?

It can't be right.

I mean, it's that sister.

Even if it's not as much as me, but sister has an abnormal amount of MP and a considerable level of skill as a knight. There's no way she'd die so easily. I've completely forgotten about the ex-Japanese reincarnated person Dereonola, that's become a part of the execution grounds, while trying to imagine what in the world happened to Mill, but I can't think of anything but bad scenarios.

Why did the King ask where I was born?

Why did the King confirm if I have an older sister?

In other words, I'm sure he was just confirming that I was the son of the lord of Bakuddo. Since it was confirmed that I was the second son of the Viscount Greed family with Status Open, so it must have been him double-checking. It doesn't mean that there couldn't be someone else with the same name.

The connection between the King and my house is light. Just the fact that my mother was born in the sub-family of Duke Sandak a family of politicians in the capital. Since it's a Duke it should have some sort of connection with the royal family but since mother is the fourth daughter of the third son or something like that, so no matter how I think about it that seems unrelated. If we were to go back several generations then it wouldn't be strange for there to be a connection but that sort of thing is the same as being strangers.

After all, the closest connection is that sister is in the direct knight group. However you know, if it's the knight leader or sub-leader then they would be the King's direct subordinates but even if he didn't know the face of a new knight below that it wouldn't be strange. I'm sure there was at least an audience when she received investiture so maybe he fell for her at that time?

While I'm thinking those sorts of things the judgments quickly advanced and when it was about over a knight came to call for me. I followed after the knight while still trembling. I was even brought into the government office building.

While waiting with a disheartened and pale face and the knight from just now came to call for me. Seeing my facial color the knight got worried and called out to me.

"What's wrong? Greed-sama. It seems like your face is pale? Do you feel ill?"

"Umm..Could it be that something happened to my older sister? My older sister is named Miluhaia Greed, she should be a member of the first knight group but.."

"Yeah, I know of her. Since I'm a co-worker after all. Greed-sama is Lord Greed's younger brother right? Then you should know.."

So this person was a member of the first knight group? What is he saying I should know?

"About what? Is my older sister alright?"

"Eh? What are you talking about? Of course she's alright. Even this morning she was lively and asking for seconds in the dining hall of the quarters in the capital.."

I...see. I quickly calmed down. But, in that case then what is it?

"If it's not about my older sister, then what in the world does his Majesty want with me?"

"I don't know? I haven't heard that far..However, I don't think you need to worry that much. He didn't seem angry...Now, we've arrived. Once you've entered you're in the audience of his Majesty. Proceed to about halfway into the room with your head down and then please offer your gratitude to his Majesty as a retainer. Since it doesn't seem you're in possession of a weapon, then you need to kneel with your right knee standing and place your right arm on your knee, and make a fist with your left hand and stand that on the ground please. Until you're given permission please face down and don't speak."

After saying that the knight from first knight group opened the door. Simultaneously he declared my visit.

Just as I was told by the knight I bowed down to my knee and offered my gratitude.

"Umu, Greed. You did well to appear before me. It's fine for you to raise your head."

"Ha."

I raised my head and looked up at King Thomas Rombert the Third.

The room is a reasonably large room with carpet. About the size of two school classrooms I guess? There's just enough ornaments for it to not feel gaudy, but the only things that stand out are a vase with flowers, a picture of some scenery, and the kingdoms national flag hanging further in the room. In front of the flag the floor is slightly elevated and the King is sitting on a chair placed there. Behind the King on the left is the metal armor that whispered to him during the judgement.

"First off I want to ask, but you, can you repair rubber products?"

Huh?

"Ha...I believe that if it's most things then I can do it..However, I don't have the materials needed for the repair here, so it would be necessary to return to the inn I'm staying at once."

I felt insanely relieved as I replied. Come to think of it, it's been considerably popular in the capital since several years ago was it? Whether it's sandals or boots I'll fix them. I'm sure it's just the belt that's snapped right? Or did a hole open in a cushion?

"Oh~ I see, then I have a request to make of you, tomorrow, I want you to accompany me to my castle in Rombertia and I have something I would like for you to fix."

After saying that the King glanced back seemed to pay attention to the armor for a moment but after facing me again and continued with his words.

“That cursed Logan, he’s using the rules as a shield and won’t lend me your older sister. If I’m not mistaken, your older sister is in the first knight group right?”

I don’t know who Logan is but he’s most likely Mill’s superior officer in the knight group or something.

“Yes, thanks to that, my older sister Miluhaia is able to serve by your Majesty’s side.”

After I replied like and the King was satisfied and nodded but the metal armor started talking.

“Your Majesty, the knights of the knight group are busy with training. If anyone in the platoon is missing for the cooperative training then it isn’t unified training. Greed is an important member of our knight group as well and since she’ll end up taking command of other knights and knight groups from here on out, we can’t slack off on teaching her the fundamentals. Even rest is a proper mission, even if it’s your Majesty using her for your own personal purposes is..”

Somehow he seems to be talking pretty frankly.

“I already know that. That’s why rather than Lord Greed, I found her younger brother, so isn’t it fine?”

The King replied like that to the metal armor and then looked at me while saying.

“Come to think of it, you, I’ve heard your occupation is as an adventurer, but are you not using that strange armor?”

“Huh? Armor? Ah..that is..”

“Your Majesty, he knew he was going to be called as a witness for the judgement today. There’s no way he would stand on the witness stand in armor.”

Oh~ Nice follow, metal armor. That earns a lot of points.

“Yes, just as your guard over there said just now, I wasn’t wearing my armor for today. If you wish to see it then I can equipment it and return after this but..”

After I said that and this time the metal armor leaned forward.

“Mu, so you’re using that armor as well..Come to think of it starting this year the appearance of Lord Greed’s armor changed, and there’s even some squires who have started to use it but is your armor the same as that?”

“Ha..That is, mine is somewhat different. Normally that armor is matched up to the user and the details are different between individuals, just like plate-mail..”

So the squires who came along with sister are properly using it. Even though it’s the mass produced model that I hurried with. Incidentally, mine has the appearance of a fourth generation protector and looks almost the same as theirs but I’ve modified things with the materials and the structure so you could call it the 4.5th generation. It’s not a big difference though. If I feel like it I’ll talk about the characteristics of each generation later.

“Mu..I see. No, don’t worry about it. Ah, no, could you spare some time for me later? I want to talk a bit.”

“Ha. Since I’m a willful adventurer I have time. Please order me without reservation.”

When I replied to the metal armor like that and the King who had been grinning at the metal armor until then said.

“Fumu, wasn’t the knight group busy? Greed, since you’re cutting your time for this guy’s sake, it’s fine if you properly take money from him.”

I’m not allowed to request money from you? I think I’m going end up using all of tomorrow for your sake. It’s a joke though.

“Ha..That, I can’t possibly do that.”

I prostrate myself while responding.

“Umu, Logan, isn’t that great, it seems he doesn’t need any money. But, you have your honor to keep up right? Make sure you distinguish between things.”

He continues grinning while looking at the metal armor and speaking. So this metal armor is Logan huh? It would have been good if I used Identify on him along with the King during the judgement. If he’s this close then I can’t readily Identify him.

“Then Greed. Tomorrow morning, you’ll accompany me to Rombertia. I’m relying on you. It’s fine for you to step back.”

“Ha...But before that please just allow me to ask one thing. What is the item that needs repairing?”

“Oh~ That’s right. I forget to say. It’s a bed.”

Ah, a water bed huh?

“Is it a hole? Or did it tear?”

What’s that? Well it doesn’t matter.

“I’ll gladly undertake the job of repairing it for you. Tomorrow morning, I will accompany your Majesty to Rombertia and please allow me to repair the bed.”

“Umu, I’m relying on you for it. Now, you’re fine to leave.”

“Ha..Please excuse me.”

I left the room and there was sweat gathering on my forehead. The knight who came to get me praised me that there were no problems with my manners. Also, it seems that tomorrow morning he’ll come to “Boil Manor” to pick me up. Ah, in addition, I’ll ask about Molin at that time.

.....

It’s close to the time for dinner. Ah, I’m glad it didn’t drag on too long. Since I still haven’t given Angela any money I was about to force her to go without dinner. Well even if that were to happen I feel like Zulu would have paid for her. When I was about to leave the government office with a mentally exhausted face and I was called out by a different knight. What is it? is what I was thinking but I was told to wait for a bit. What is it, really? I need to feed my slave a meal. Ah, Logan said to give him some time later was it?

After waiting for about 10 minutes and the metal armor Logan appeared.

“Sorry for making you wait. I’m thinking of taking my armor off and going for some dinner. How about joining me? Also, if possible would you bring your armor along? I want you to show it to me.”

“..Yes, I understand. Please allow me to join you for dinner. I’ll bring my armor as well.”

“Ah, I’ll send one person with you to hold your luggage. They know the location of the restaurant so come after that. It’s a restaurant called “Dorureon” on the #4 road. From now...I guess so, I’ll arrive at the restaurant an hour later. Sorry about that.”

“No, please don’t mind it.”

“Then, I’ll see you later.”

Logan said that and turned around walking into the government office building. While looking at the back of his head I used Identify. Roddoteri.Logan. Head of Baron Logan family. Level 17. Wow~ Level 17. That’s seriously amazing. Head of a Baron family? A Baron in the first knight group? Eh? Is he the knight leader?

I told the knight(they’re probably a squire though) that was appointed to hold my belongings and stopped at the restaurant we usually eat at along the way to “Boil Manor”. Everyone was already there but after I told them I would be eating dinner with the leader of the first knight group so I can’t together today, and that tomorrow I need to go to the capital so I won’t be in Baldukk for a day, and I said “it’s a bit fast but”, and gave Angela 20,000 Z (2 silver coins) as her wages for this month (to be more correct it’s half a months worth though). If you change it to a weekly pay it’s 8,000 Z (80 copper coins) in wages and therefore 2,000 Z (20 copper coins) less than Zulu. This is your portion as head slave, Zulu. Also, I gave them a bit of extra money for the lodging and meal costs for tonight and tomorrow and quickly headed towards “Boil Manor”. There’s no time after all.

After splitting up my armor with the squire we started laboriously heading towards “Dorureon” while I tried asking the squire who this Molin the King mentioned was. It was the nickname of the Queen. Since her name is Molail, I thought it would be Mol or Mola. However, the Queen used a sword to stab the water bed? Did the Queen go mad?

I somehow or other thought it would be better not to get involved with that.

Once we arrived at “Dorureon” Baron Logan still hadn’t arrived. However, several of the knights who were guarding the King were there. After the squire holding my armor and I entered the restaurant and several people familiar with the squire called out to them but after noticing my armor that we’re holding and they started to observe us from a distance. Somehow this feels uncomfortable.

During that time Baron Logan appeared and we started dinner. Before I realized it the squire had disappeared from our table and mixed in with his co-workers at a different table while observing us.

“Sorry about having you go out of your way like this. Is the course meal fine?”

“Yes, thank you that would be good. And, I’ve brought the armor I’m using right now. This is it but..”

While I was saying that the waiter came and Baron Logan ordered two courses before saying, stuff like that while spinning around and examining my protectors.

“Ah, would you show me it for a bit? Hmm, after all it’s light..Hmm..I see now..Hohou..So it was like this..Oh~ this is..”

“Umm, Lord knight leader, is there some sort of problem?”

Since he was getting so lost in inspecting it so I tried calling out to him with reservation.

“O..Oh. Sorry about that. No it’s just, I was interested in how it was different from Lord Greed’s armor, and Guroholetz and Amuzel’s armor..”

“Ha~”

“By the way, about this armor but is it true that it only takes two days to create?”

Oh~? Is he going to buy some?

“That’s right, if it’s roughly then two days is fine. In order to finish the really detailed adjustments then I’d like four days but if I just have two days then I can make the same one that I made for my older sister and the squires.”

“Ho~ It’s fast just as I had heard.”

After Baron Logan said that and started looking at the small parts like the forearms and shoulder portions. Since it can’t be helped I’ll focus on eating. I wonder if I’m being treated? Since the King said something about distinguishing between things it’s probably his treat. This is considerably good. I’ll use this restaurant on certain occasions from now on. Thinking that I was chomping away at my food.

“Hey, you all, come look at this. It’s the new model of rubber armor.”

Baron Logan called out to the knights who were observing things over here like that. The knights all came closer to here while saying “excuse me.” and started looking at the armor with great interest. The design has changed slightly to match my body but it’s fundamentally not that much different from Mill and the squires. It’s only limited to some improvements I made to the loins or changed portions of the ebonite plates using D rings in various places like the third generation protector I gave Mill in the past. It’s only evolved a bit generally from the one I gave them. Just, everyone is saying “light” or “if it’s this then it’s plenty strong”. Hmn, it shouldn’t be all that different from the armor I gave to sister or the squires though? Have that not shown enough of it for them to inspect?

“Umm? It shouldn’t be all that different from the one I made for my older sister and the squires but..”

I tried saying that. And,

“We were interested in the model of armor. If we’re going to buy it then isn’t the newest one best?”

“You can make a shield with this material right? Lord Greed’s has a shield attached to her left arm right.”

“If it this, then it should be plenty able to protect the hips.”

And each saying different things. I wonder if this is a chance?

“Umm, if you’re interested in purchasing this then I’ll get into contact with my home town. Should I take your sizes before sending notice? However, in that case since it will be ordering close to 10 suits of armor, I think it will take around 3–4 months for the lot of your order to be ready but..”

I tried saying that. And then starting from Baron Logan everyone jumped at my words.

“I..Is that true!? I had heard from Lord Greed and the others that I would need to go to Bakuddo in order to make it. Even if it takes a bit of time for the delivery it’s just four months right? My metal plate-mail took over a year to make. Compared to that it’s fast!”

“And if you’ll come to take our sizes then that’s even better! It’s not like we can take over a month and a half break just to make some armor after all.”

“Alright, this is the time to use my secret savings!”

“What’s the price? Hey~ around how much is it!?”

Oh~ this seems like it will be some good business.

“I guess so. Since even I can take your sizes, if you let me take your measurements then we can make it. At latest...I guess so, since it’s already close to September, I think we can barely deliver it by the end of the year. Also, about the cost, but if you’re fine with the same type as me then I think about 30,000,000 Z (30 gold coins) should be appropriate. In order to make parts of this we have to condense the superior quality rubber material so it uses a considerable amount of rubber. Ah, it’s fine if you pay half of the amount in advance and the remaining amount on delivery.”

I tried saying that. I blew up the price quite a bit. Well the real battle begins when they start haggling after all. It’s 30 gold coins. It’s the same type of price that high-quality splint-mail costs. I’m sure it’ll settle at around 20,000,000 Z (20 gold coins). Then if I take around 1 gold coin per suit of armor in profit then I’m sure I won’t be cursed.

“Gu..After all it costs about that much huh..No, but..”

“After all it’s a considerable price. I guess if you think about the weight and defense it’s cheap..”

“No, it’s cheap right?”

“What about a shield? How much do shields cost?”

Huh? They aren’t trying to haggle. As expected of the first knight group. They have a high salary. Then there's no need for me to hold back. Since it's better for me to take as high of a margin for myself as I can.

"Also, since it's an order from the first knight group that is taking care of my older sister. As a special service but I'll even put an emblem in one spot on the chest of it for you. Of course, I'll make it a relief so it doesn't have any effect on the defense of the armor. The size is..I guess around 5 cm in every direction would be good. I don't mind if the emblem is your family emblem, the one for the knight group, or one for the kingdom or anywhere else."

I added that as well. If it's Taylor then I'm sure she can make it without problem.

"Mu, I see. So you'll even put an emblem in for us.."

"Eee..Maybe I'll put in my family emblem?"

"Wouldn't it be cool to assemble this as matching armor for our platoon?"

"Oh~ that sound's good. The commander of the platoon is on guard duty right now right? Let's try asking him later."

"Wi...Will you put the emblem into a shield as well?"

Oh..they're interested. One more push.

"Furthermore, about the repairs, but since my older sister should be able to repair it you don't need to worry. Since one of it's characteristics is that you can wash it with water at any time, it won't take as much time for maintenance as plate-mail, unlike splint-mail or banded-mail which uses layers of leather on the inside it won't start to smell bad from sweat as well. Well, while it's still new there might be the smell of rubber for a bit but it's been about half a year since I made that armor of mine and the smell has about stopped bothering me."

How about that?

"Gumumu..I knew that it didn't take much money to repair at all but..it's cheap.."

"Every time I take a sword my splint-mail ends up costing money.."

"I see, the fact that it's cheap to maintain is also appealing."

"Lord Greed doesn't stink after all."

"I wonder if Lord Greed will be able to fix a shield if I ask?"

I'm getting a good feel. It's no good to get too greedy here.

“Since I’ll be accompanying you to the capital tomorrow as well, it’s fine if you give me a response at that time. And most likely I will still be in Baldukk for a few years so it’s fine if you call out for me at any time.”

It’s fine if I pull back here for today. If you hurry too much you’ll miss your chances after all. Tomorrow, after I finish repairing the King’s water bed I’ll be taking their measurements.

The dinner that night was delicious. The food you eat on other people’s money is delicious (..However, excluding Jabba).

I return to “Boil Manor” while chuckling to myself and immediately start doing optimistic calculations. Umm, I’m sure that father and brother want to get around 20,000,000 Z (20 gold coins) per suit of armor. In other words, I can take out 10,000,000 Z (10 gold coins) per suit. If it’s 10 suits of armor then that’s 100,000,000 Z (1 platinum coin). Uha, uhaha, uhahahaha. I’ve started to get excited at the unprecedented profit. Eh? Aren’t I taking too much profit margin? I mean, it uses more charcoal and sulfur for the ebonite so it doesn’t use as much rubber, and even just one suit of protectors only takes up the amount of rubber used in 50 pairs of sandals or so.

Though it’s true I’m sure there’s also the yield rate of ebonite we have so it will take a bit more though. One pair of sandals is 40,000 Z (4 silver coins). 60 pairs is about 2,400,000 Z. Even with just that it’s a huge profit, so if I’m selling that amount for 20,000,000 Z then the ones who make the most profits are father and older brother. That’s why, isn’t it fine if I take the leftovers of that? It’s amount that makes exploring the dungeon seem idiotic but I’ve heard that the number of people in the first knight group is about 100 knights and 50–60 squires. If I sell it to them once then it’s close to the end but I can still keep entering the dungeon after this.

I'm accompanying the King on his roughly 10 Km return to Rombertia from his imperial visit. Ralph and Bel wanted to accompany me as well but when I said I was going together with the King and they as expected they held back from it. Obviously I'm riding on my war horse. The King is riding on a large carriage with eight horses and the knights have surrounded it on their war horses fortifying it. The number of people was less than I thought it would be. There's only about 50 people guarding the carriage. Come to think of it, even if they're squires, they're all ex-knights aren't they. I doubt that they're all in the first knight group but I guess this is the lap of the capital so the public order must be considerably good. Since the road was neatly maintained we were able to arrive at Rombertia in about two hours.

The capital Rombertia is a huge town. There's two rivers at over 20 m in width that are so large that Keel's central river just looks like a stream flowing through the Eastern side of the town, and that river flows to the West into the ocean. The dike of the river has been properly constructed so there's something like a sandbar in between the two rivers and close to 200 m of the riverside has something like a 6 m stone wall embankment along it, so it could be said that plenty of flood control has been done. No, though I think it's done plenty well with just this.

I don't know if it's because the entirety of the town is on a bit of a plateau but there's close to 4 m between the surface of the river and the ground. There's countless gutters running through the town from there. It doesn't seem it was created with as much planning as Keel but going off the scale you could say it's plenty to call sanitary and there's the wall that surrounds the capital as well, so it looks even more splendid. This might be the ideal location to have a capital.

In the center of the town of Rombertia is where the castle is located. It's a large and beautiful castle with gold leaf on the roof tiles and three moats. I remember Osaka castle looking at it. It was almost to the point of letting out a groan over how splendid and majestic the castle of a large kingdom is with it's five layers of large castle towers. There's two outer citadels around the large castle towers as well. I can also see a large number of watch towers as well.

There was a castle in Keel as well but it was a castle that you wouldn't realize it unless you were told that was the case. It was a three story compact castle with just another stone wall and moats around it, a castle that felt a bit smaller than Marugame castle. It was at the level where if you were to say it was a large store from a distance then you would respond, "Ah, I see". However, this is the capital of Rombert Kingdom, and if I believe what father and mother said it's the great city that boasts the largest population on the Western edge of the Oladd continent. Since they say it's population is about 220,000 — 230,000 people it's got a population close to that of Tokyo and Chofu city. There's a bit more area than the city though.

We follow the winding roads and enter the castle. After waiting in an open area inside the castle walls for a short while and a person came to call for me. I take the rubber repair kit from my saddle bag and after leaving my weapon and horse in their care I followed after the person guiding me.

I think this is probably a room in the area of the third outer citadel. It's been about 30 minutes since I was told to wait here. Even though it's repairing a bed I doubt I can enter the King's bedroom to do the work so I'm sure they're taking the water bed off of the bed and carrying it right now. Since I was bored I decided to reconfirm my repair kit just in case. If I were to fail here, buy the King's displeasure, and cause trouble for my older sister then I wouldn't be able to forgive myself for my entire life.

A bottle of raw rubber, check. Sulfur power, check. Charcoal, check. Additive agent, check. The small bucket I brought along just in case because it's difficult without it, no problem. I don't think I'll use them this time but I have all of the types of acid in different glass bottles properly coated with hard and raw rubber on the outside so they won't shatter. Yeah, it's alright. After this I just need a bucket filled with water for the final inspection but as expected I don't carry that around so I just asked for one.

When I was confirming my tools just like that and the King went out of his way to come here along with the servant slaves that brought the bucket and water bed. I bow on my knee and take the pose of gratitude for a retainer, with my head lowered.

“It’s fine, raise your head. Since you came at my request and I’m interested in how you’ll do the repairs as well.”

Eh~ He’s going to be watching from nearby...This is going to be really hard to do.

“Ha, then, I’ll get to the repairs right away. Please show me where the cut portion is first..”

Oh~ Isn’t this the limited first edition water bed we sold? If I remember correctly, it’s the one we sold three years ago. So it was bought by the King. Just from a glance it seems they’re taking good care of it and other than the hole from a sword while it’s slightly worn down from aging it’s still pretty clean. It’s proof that the durability was plenty. Furthermore, the hole in the middle of the water bed went straight through the pole between water rooms on both the top and bottom. There’s two holes. But, if it’s the pole in the center of the bed then it’s useless as a bed.

Just as you would expect if it was stabbed with a sword, the cut itself wasn’t rough but a pretty clean cut. If it’s this cut then if I remove the fluffy portions around the cut and use the same material of rubber and plaster it on then stick the same fluffy rubber board on it should be fine. After a short while the work was completed. After this I just need to dry it, put some air inside, and then stick it inside of the bucket of water to check if there’s no leaks. Thinking that just as I was about to use the minimum drying spell.

An old woman entered the room. I’m sure she was quite beautiful when she was younger but since she’s already in her mid-40s she’s an old woman who’s skin has already started to wrinkle. Although, she’s still quite beautiful. Since the slaves in the surroundings were taking the retainer’s pose just like with the King I followed along and did it as well. I wonder if she’s the Queen? Was it Molin-san?

“Is it you? The insolent person who is repairing the bed?”

Huh? Eh? Isn't this person somehow angry? Rather, insolent person...

“Ha, No...Umm..”

I get stuck on my words not sure how to respond.

“What do you mean by insolent person!? Be careful with your words! I asked this person myself to come and do the repairs!”

Oh~ I'm saved. I'm saved but your majesty, King-san, your first person has changed to the formal form.

“Dear, after this is repaired you intend to drag in someone again right? Who is it this time? If it's just a slave then I'll look at it with a big heart, but I won't forgive a commoner or noble that's working as a maid servant in the castle. Do you intend to needlessly increase the number of heirs again!?”

Her highness the Queen has started talking on with an amazingly threatening attitude.

“Wh! I properly paid the doctor's fee to the second daughter of the Kongus family! Even if a boy is born they won't become an heir!”

You...

“It's not that sort of problem!..All of you, leave the room and close the door!”

After the Queen said that and the slaves all ran out of the room as fast as they could. I was about to as well as I stood up but the King grabbed on to my arm.

“Greed, you still haven't finished the repairs yet right? You're not allowed to leave the room! Continue with the work!”

“No, you stop the work and leave the room as well. Dear, I'll have you properly listen to me today already!!”

What do you want me to do? My arm is still being held onto by the King.

“No, don't bother with her! Now, Greed, continue with the work!”

“..I see, if you're going to go that far then I have my own thoughts on this! Someone! Call for Yulu, Becky, and Malin! Right this moment!”

The King and Queen are quarreling with me in the middle. In addition it seems like it's going to increase by several people.

"And..It's fine, Greed or whatever. Continue with the work. Ah, wait just a moment. Status Open..so you were someone of a Viscount family? That's just perfect, it's some kind of fate that you happened to be here. You, after hearing the conversation we're about to have tell us you're opinion. This is an order from the Queen of Rombert Kingdom. Is that alright!"

"yye, Yes?"

I couldn't help but reply.

"..Molin! Do you intend to listen to the opinion of a stranger on a problem of my royal family!?"

Right.

"It's already beyond the level of a problem that we can hide at this point!! Everyone in the capital already knows about it! In the first place, it's not a secret or anything like that, already! Greed! You get to finishing up your job right now!"

What? Is this King laying his hands all over the place that much? I'm envious. I immediately got to drying and after putting the portion of the bed I repaired into the bucket of water I blew air into the cork. It's not like I'm being stingy with MP or trying to hide my magic. I just felt like if I didn't seem like I was doing my job I might get dragged into it.

I blew air into it while Identifying the Queen. Molail.Rombert. The first wife of Duke Rombert. Level 8. Her magic is pretty high all level 3-4 other than fire magic. Umu, she's the Queen. The Rombert family has a Duke, Marquis,Count, and Viscount branch to it. For each different territory it's split up as the lord and used for those purposes. I don't know how many territories they have in all though. I've heard that when it comes to counts there's over 10 of them.

Along with some hurried footsteps another woman rushed into the room. I identified her and she was Yulusufol.Rombert. The second wife of Duke Rombert. I lowered my head with the rubber cork still in my mouth. After a short while another one, Marinen.Rombert. The first wife of Count Rombert.

After that yet another one came in, Rebecca.Rombert. First wife of Marquis Rombert. They're all exceptional beauties.

The King, his four wives, and a young man with a rubber cork in his mouth. There's no other sound in the room than me blowing air. The three who came later can't seem to grasp the situation. They're paying attention to me as if I'm the culprit of some sort of calamity. The King and first wife are also looking at me along with them.

I continue breathing as I blow air into the rubber pipe of the cork. It's should be about good. I put the cut portion into the bucket. There's no leaks in the air. It's OK.

I take it out of the bucket and after sticking a rod into the rubber cork to let the air out, I quickly wipe off and dried the surface. I politely folded up the empty water bed and after cleaning up my tools and,

"The repairs are completed. Now then, I'll take my leave.."

Said that. I wonder if they'll just let me go on feeling?

"I won't allow that. I just said it right. Now, listen from over there."

After all. I once again take the retainer's bow and remained silent.

"Now then, Greed. Do you know how many children his majesty the King has created?"

And Molin asked me. I don't know.

"No. Your highness the Queen. I'm from the countryside and I just left Bakuddo in Marquis Webdos territory the other day therefore, I only know of your eldest son, his highness Duke Ronbald, the crown prince Richard, your second son, his highness William the Marquis Rondol, and your eldest daughter her highness Biagitte who's already married to the eldest son of Duke Baguwel."

Well that sort of stuff is common sense so even I know of it.

"Ho~ So you were from Bakuddo..So that's why..Well it's fine. The correct answer is 8 people."

Molin said it. Well if he has four wives and each one gives birth to two then that sounds about right. It's less than my mother after all.

"Ha..I'm amazed at my own ignorance."

"It's fine. And, what do you think about this number?"

What do I think..It's not unusual right. Since they're royalty it's not like they wouldn't have to worry about their children dying in infancy, so it's not a low number but it's also not a high number right?

"Ha, since they are the heirs that will rule the future of the large Kingdom of Robert, in order to continue with the reign of peace and bring relief to the next generation, I believe it is a good number.."

"That's right. If it was just that then I'm sure it would be quite easy to relax. The number just now was the children of legitimate birth. The illegitimate children just of the ones that we know were born is 65 children."

Wha!? 6...5?

I couldn't help but be dumbfounded unable to believe her words.

"..That is..Um..While I'm very sorry to say..that is a bit..umm..."

After seeing that I wasn't blocked on speaking Molin said.

"You don't need to be afraid. Speak honestly, I just ordered you to do so."

That tone of voice was severe.

"I..thin..think it's..a bit too many.."

"It's already fine! I'll be careful not to make any more children than this! Isn't that fine!"

The King interrupted. He..help me. Please let me leave before a hole opens in my stomach.

"Dear! We haven't finished talking yet!! Greed, among those 65, 59 of them we're born in just over the last year. And after that there's 34 people pregnant with illegitimate children. What do you think about this matter?"

Huh...In other words..Hey! What in the world is that!

"I...I see..He must have given it his bes..No, his majesty must be in good health.."

“As if he could have that many children if there was a problem with his health! Respond seriously!”

Sc..scary~

“A, no ma, no matter how you put it I think that’s too many..”

I couldn’t help but say it.

“Hey, Greed, you..there’s things you mustn’t say..”

The King put his hand to forehead and is looking up. I..I mean.. No matter how you put it 93 children in around two years, you...There’s no way you can explain that..

Hn? In around two years? Somehow it seems like a coincidence...

“That’s right! It’s beyond the level of common sense!! Yulu! Becky! Marin! I’m sure there’s things you all want to say as well right! Say them!”

“Your majesty! My patient has already reached it’s limit as well!”

Yulu’s drooping eyes raised up.

“Today of all days is!”

Becky’s face flushed.

“I’ll let you say me everything!”

Marin’s determined looking eyes went triangle-shaped.

Oh~ how frightening.

After that it was terrible. All four of the Queens were criticizing their husband the King one after another. I just hung my head down and didn’t say anything. They were speaking ill of him for around 20 minutes. How if that’s okay for a King, or isn’t that the reason why maid servants are hired to work in the castle, or about the elasticity of the water bed and how it started after that came, or about possibility of him getting a disease, or that the doctor’s fee has exceeded 1,000,0000,000 Z and it’s putting pressure on the treasure, or recently how the people are calling him the sex crazed King or Pink King or bad names like that, or how they said he won’t lay a hand on the Queens because they have no charm and they find it mortifying...

However, I guess as expected after saying all of that, I don't know if they were able to completely say everything they wanted to but the verbal abuse gradually stopped. They might have just gotten tired though. Well, I was just quietly watching so I'm able to calmly think. There's no springs in this world. That's why even for a King, while I'm sure they're of the highest quality, he just slept on futons on top of a wooden bed.

While he was in the middle of his life like that he suddenly got his hands on the water bed, which is comfortable to lay on, durable, and made of rubber so it can handle pro-wrestling play. Even if you just normally lay down they usually transform to match your figure a bit. Regardless of whether you're on the top or bottom, or even if you move a bit intensely it won't go to the level of bouncing, there's something close to a rebound. I'm sure it was more comfortable.

In other words, it's my fault.

And at the same I remembered something important.

The average wallet in this world is made pretty big since they only hold coins. They're large like both thighs of military pants and having deep pockets to fit that wallet is normal. And since I was young in my past life, there's something that I always made sure to keep in my wallet. Even when I went out during the time I was enrolled in Self-Defense College I had it in my wallet. After I married as expected I stopped doing it though. However, as expected right now, I don't have just one, but I have a pack of 10 in it. Just in case I ever need to enter live combat. Since the enemy will never think about the circumstances on my side. Since I gave one pack as a sample in Keel and another pack to those idiots at the end, I still have 8 packs remaining. I have 80 cartridges. Though I'm only carrying one magazine of 10 shots with me.

Ah, bro...I'm going to be saved by brother again... I might really never able to hold my head high to Farne again in my whole life.

"Your majesty, and your highness-es, it's presumptuous of this humble retainer, but I have a good idea."

After I said that and everyone looked at me. Yulu raised her voice.

"You, weren't you a rubber artisan? A commoner or Free Person will be charged with disrespect for interrupting a conversation between royalty?”

She said that seeming worried about me. She’s a charming beauty with drooping eyes. However, what about it was a pleasant talk? Also, I was being called Greed. Though I guess after all she wouldn’t know a Viscount family from the countryside.

“It’s fine, that person is a member of a Viscount family. In the first place I ordered him to speak his opinion. Since I’ve given you permission, speak your idea.”

Molin said that to me. I take a breath and after resolving myself I open my mouth. This is the critical moment.

“Ha, first off, about the matter this time, but after listening to everyone’s conversation just now, there is something that I thought. It’s true that his majesty is energetic. However, as the King of a country... it’s not like he’s gotten so absorbed into it that he’s abandoned his obligations right?”

“Obviously. Even with this I’m the King after all. I’m properly taking care of my job. In the first place, whether it be the flood control, petitions, or resolving the conflicts between lords these past few years, I’ve actually raised the efficiency in getting things done!”

Even if you say that to me.

Molin said that. Is that so?

“Right? I’m sure there’s no King who has worked as hard as me in recent years. I’m carrying a lot of stress. You all lower nobles are fine just adequately eating and dancing with other nobles though! Listen well, I’m tired! Isn’t fine for me to have a bit of an outlet! Hey! Molin. The floor control construction in the Reida region has ended perfectly right!? Who is that thanks to! Yulu. Investigating the terrain of Sanglal is over as well right!? That place has been on hold since the time of my grandfather!? I finished taking care of that without even taking three years! Becky. I managed to negotiate an extension to our anti-war pact with Guranan Empire in a way advantageous to us right!? That’s something that the previous generation, my grandfather had shelved!? I resolved it! Marin. The problem of debt since 300 years ago between your family Count Faruelgaz and Marquis Rodail, that, I coordinated it so both sides would come to an understanding right! I even made a law after all. I used my head quite a bit when making that law so the next era wouldn't make the same mistake! Thanks to that I've even been thanked by the other lords! If I had just been throwing down my obligations in order to indulge in pleasure then I'd be fine with no matter how you criticize me! But, it's something saying it myself, but I've putting quite a bit of effort into it right? Isn't it to the point where I would be called the forefather that restored the kingdom! I inherited the throne when I was 35 years old. I'm 48 right now. I did this much in just 13 years, no I've done even more right! Eh? Who is it thanks to that you all can eat and dance. Speak! Try saying it!"

After the King yelled all that in one breath he was breathing with his shoulders. That's amazing~ If it's all that then I'm sure it wouldn't be strange for him to name himself the forefather of the restoration. However, separate from that, he's still given birth to too many kids.

""Yo..Your majesty the King.""

The younger wives Becky and Marin said that while prostrating themselves but the older two were different.

"That's only obvious for you to be doing! Becky, Marin. Stand up! Dear, it's true you're making achievements in politics. However, this and that are completely different. Understand that!"

Molin is pretty harsh.

"That's right. Your majesty. I understand that you're carrying a lot of stress and I won't stop you from laying a hand on women. It's fine. However, this number of illegitimate children is abnormal. Won't it reach triple digits after just one? And do you think we're just dancing? That's our battlefield. We gain information from other lords while dancing and we're reporting all of that in detail. If possible we also include our own opinions. And so you can focus on the political end of things, I'm acting as an adviser to the military affairs front. Close to these past 10 years, Marin and I are the ones who've always been inspecting the conflicts, and between watching the progress of the knight groups, and updating their equipment, there's a lot of troublesome jobs. Molail-sama has the imperial court under her grasp and ensures that all of the nobles are bowing their heads. Isn't Becky acting as an adviser to you in the office work? It's not just the achievement of your majesty alone."

Yulu may seem like an obedient, pretty old lady with drooping eyes but she says some pretty severe stuff.

"Since Molin is my legal wife it's only obvious she'd hold a grasp on the imperial court right? And Yulu, you made it up to a company leader in the first knight group at 24...You, I was in the first knight group until I was 35 but I finally made it as a platoon leader at 28. Office work is Becky's specialty because she was educated thoroughly at Marquis Rokkmolt's place, and even Marin was known as Fireball {Cannon Ball} one of the top five in the knight group at Faruelgaz's place...You're just doing what's obvious for the right person in the right place right?"

Aaa, that's something you're not supposed to say. By the way, so Queen Yulu was a young company commander in the first knight group? She's the senior of my older sister. So that's why this person is level 12, a head above the rest.

"Oh, right person in the right place. It's a good expression right. It's only obvious that you're doing the job of a King because it's the right person in the right place! It's just as Yulu said! Three digits! No matter what I won't forgive three digits! That Greed over there even said it was too many didn't he! In the first place without even using contraception..just how much are you lacking in common sense! Did you not know that we're lowering our heads to the other parties parents every time! Becky and Marin were even lowering their heads to the parents of commoners because they said they're still young!!"

Molin is criticizing him.. Oh my..After all.

"Haven't we said countless times to use the bowels of a pig!"

Becky retorted as well.

"That's right, and if that's not the case then at least outside.."

Marin continued to say.

"But, it feels better to let it out inside.."

Hey! Old man! I can't listen to anymore of this..Now then.

"Everyone, I feel that everyone is just a little bit too excited.. you should return your tone of voice. Now then, I just stated that I have a good idea, there's no way you could have already forgotten right...That's fine. First, please let me confirm two points. The first thing to confirm is with Queens. You're not opposed to his majesty the king laying his hands on women right?"

I calmly said that as the only one with a composed expression.

"..I think it can't be helped. I'm sure there's a lot of stress and there's a lot of things that his majesty must decide on alone, so I think that letting loose a bit is fine. However, that and creating children is a different problem!"

Molin said while glaring at the King. The other two are nodding as well. The King is awkwardly facing a different direction.

"Then, as long as it doesn't involve any conception then he has your permission right?"

"I guess so. However, it's no good to impregnate the other party. It looks far too bad for our reputation. If it was just around 10 or so we wouldn't think that much. The current situation was gone to another a level and is even about to reach beyond the heavens."

She continues drawing closer to the King while saying that. If I let it go like this it'll be a repeat of just a moment ago.

"Then, the next confirmation. Your majesty, I was born in the countryside but it isn't difficult for me to imagine your majesty's exhausting amount of work. However, even though I'm incompetent I also understand the feelings of the Queens. Also, while I am inexperienced in terms of age but as a man the same as your majesty I feel I understand your feelings. There, I would like to introduce this product to you. Since even I'm on the end of the nobility..it's a product I'm normally carrying around in order to prevent the undesired conception of a woman."

While saying that I took the rubber bag out of my wallet and showed it. Obviously they would have no idea what this thing is.

"Just a moment ago I stated that I was born in Bakuddo village on Marquis Webdos territory. I believe you already know but Bakuddo is the area where rubber products are produced. Along with a strong elasticity, it stretches and contracts well. It's just a fragment of the properties of rubber but this product can display all of those properties. This is a product used as a replacement for the bowel's of a pig. Please try taking it in your hand. There's 10 of them inside of the bag but up until now the bag has been sealed so there's no problem with the quality. Also, in order to improve the comfort and sliding it's covered in lotion. The lotion was made from a natural material of marine plant so, you could say it's a manufactured food product, even if it gets stuck to your body, you lick it, or swallow it there's no harm at all."

After hearing my statement Yulu looked at me with great interest and said.

"You, so you're a member of the Greed family of Bakuddo..Is Miluhaia your older sister?"

"Ha, Miluhaia is my older sister. Right now she's serving his majesty in the first knight group."

"I see. Then I'm sure there's no problem with this product. Morail-sama, please take it."

After Yulu took the rubber bag from me and she handed it to Molin. After taking the bag in her hand and timidly inspecting it Molin tried to tear the seal on the bag all at once but it seems she was having trouble tearing it. Since Marin pulled the sword (I wonder if only royalty and their guards are allowed weapons in the imperial court during times of peace) out from her waist and was about to cut it I stopped her and said.

"Your highness Marinen. If you just tear a bit of the edge on the corner of the bag then you can push the contents outside. After you break the seal then it's best to store the remaining bags in ice water without letting water get inside...If you carefully push them out they'll come out one at a time so...Yes, that's the real form of this product, the product name is "Saya". It's a new product from Bakuddo, the producer of rubber. The way to use it is the same as the bowel's of a pig but that "Saya" is normally rolled up so it's not unreasonable that the shape will feel different.."

After this was the same as the time with Haritaid at "Ritton" the brothel in Keel. I just need to watch as she timidly touches the condom and checks the sensation of it.

“..Now then, right now it’s just that one bag, but at the inn I’m staying in Baldukk I still have six more bags like that. If I write a letter to my older brother then I’m sure I could get even more by the end of the year. Well, I’m well aware that you can’t suddenly trust what I’m saying. However, how about trying the usage of it with the her highness-es tonight even..Since the bed is already repaired.”

After that, I brought up several points to be cautious (To be careful not to let any air in when putting it on. Once you use to get rid of it and not re-use them.) about when using them before leaving. If he likes them then I’m sure he’ll get into contact with me. There’s no way he wouldn’t like them though.

Eh? There should be one more bag? I know. I can count numbers.

Chapter 88: Branding

Just a note on something that might have been confusing for a while. There two different Viscounts for the Japanese, they use different kanji but both are translated as Viscount. One is the quite literally Vice-Count, it's below Count, and above Baron rankings. The other one is what is normally considered the Knight nobility, AKA the lowest noble ranking. It's harder to use knight because they are considered separate from nobility in this series. The Knight type Viscount nobility might be easier to think of as Baronet but that also seems a bit different, usually they are essentially knights who were given XXX serfs and told to pave the way for a new village and they only have one-two villages in territory, like Bakuddo. There's also the sub- classification like associate/vestment/honorary/in-name only noble ranking. I've been using Sub-Baron etc.. for that.

=====

Well not quite as much as I wanted to get done but at least only SS16 is next, so I should be able to do that later today.

Year 7442, Month 8, Day 24

After I was released from the King and Queens I returned to my horse with an exhausted face. I put away my tools for repair and this time I took out my measure tape while asking the slave or whatever that was watching after the horses where Baron Logan of the first knight group is located.

Just as I was told when I tried going to the area between the second and third inner citadels and I found the group of about 10 knights from last night gathered together. Hey now, wasn't the first knight group busy? After greeting them and I was politely lead to a room. I guess I'm going to take measurements here. There was one guy who was about to get naked so,

"The rubber armor is something you put on above your armor padding so it's fine if you keep your padding on."

And after saying that I quickly started taking measurements. Since it took around 15 minutes per person, I ended up spending close to three hours measuring sizes and keeping a record of them. They ordered 10 suits of rubber protectors, 2 kite shields, and 4 small shields like bucklers like what my older sister uses. Uwa, this is some pretty good business.

I was trying to control myself from letting the fact that I was grinning on the inside from showing while making records and Baron Logan started talking to me.

“However..can you really finish 10 suits of armor by the end of the year? I’ve started to worry about it a bit.”

It’s not particularly a problem. After I left Taylor was making armor all on her own after all. I’m sure if someone else helps then they can finish it much faster and older brother and sister-in-law would gladly help out. Even in terms of rubber they should have started gathering from field #5 by now and #6 might even be ready pretty soon. And..we’ve been under the care of the leader and Queen Yulusufol after all.

“N~~ I don’t think it will be a problem though...Since it’s a job from someone my older sister has been under the care of we can’t treat you badly. The problem is how much time it takes for my letter and the advance payment to arrive. In the case of the letter, if there’s no caravan going in that direction then it will take some time..so at the longest it might even take up to a month and a half for ti to arrive.”

“If it’s about your older sister then you don’t need to worry about her. It’s become a problem for us whether or not she might overtake us. However.. it’s true that there’s some distance to your household.. Oh~ come to think of it was Bal still around?”

“Ha, right here.”

“You were going to Viscount Penlaid’s place supervising a practice maneuver right? Take the letter and advance payment along with you when you go then. And, find a caravan that’s heading towards Keel from around there and order them to take it. Were you departing the day after tomorrow was it?”

“Ha, that’s right. That’s a good idea. Greed-kun, on the morning the day after tomorrow I'll go to your inn to receive the letter. Is it fine if I take the advance payment along with me at that time? It would have been fine today as well but the reception window for luxury tax in Rombertia is closed in the morning so I don't think it would be a problem to pay the taxes in Baldukk. If it's too much trouble then I'll pay the taxes for you over here but...What's the company registration number for Bakuddo?"

The knight named Bal asked me that. I forgot about taxes. Shit. Also what's a company registration number? I don't know about it.

"Eh? Company? Registration number? Ah, we don't have our own company. Up until now everything that Bakuddo produces that is being sold outside of Marquis Webdos territory is products we mediated through Webdos Company. What would be best to do?"

If it's something I don't know then it's best to ask honestly. If you get too proud over these sorts of things it turns bad.

"Mu, I see, if you're not registered as a company then it will be bad from here on out...Hey, someone go to the government office and register them. Since you're a member of a Viscount family it will only take a bit of money for the registration. It's 500,000 Z. If one of our members goes along with you then I'm sure they'll register you immediately as well. Also, since it'll be categorized as doing trades across multiple territories make sure you register as a Type-2 Third Variety. With that you'll be able to freely do business anywhere inside of our country. It's fine if you pay the taxes in either Rombertia or Baldukk."

Baron Logan taught me about it. I guess when you make it to the leader of the first knight group you need to know a variety of things. It's some appreciated advice. But, 500,000 Z is just a little bit of money..I don't know if it's because he's a Baron or because he's the leader of a knight group but..

"Thank you very much for teaching me about it. Well then, since I've finished recording the measurements I would like to go and register. Also, before that I would like to greet my older sister, but is it possible?"

After I said that and Baron Logan said,

"Eh...Well I guess it's fine."

He says that while grinning and,

“Ah, the third company is by the riverbed today right? I guess so..Hack. You go together with him. Including the procedures for the company as well. That thing the other day...What was it..when I bought that spear from a company in some count’s territory the one who went along to register was you right? I’m leaving it to you.”

He called out to one knight.

“Ha..I understand.”

After the knight named Hack who looks to be in his late 20s responded like that to the Baron and he said to me.

“I’ll go together with you. Then shall we go?”

I straddle my horse and then followed along with Hack to the government office. According to the explanation by Hack and the one in charge of the government office, companies require registration in each territory and it seems that depending on their classification the products they can deal in, the taxes, and the territories they can do business are different. It seems that the ultimate company that can do business in any territory including outside of the country and can deal in any type of merchandise is a Type-1 First Variety. A company which can do business in any territory including outside of the country and is limited only by not dealing in military goods is a Type-1 Second Variety. The opposite of that where it can only deal in military goods is a Type-1 Third Variety. It’s split up in the same for companies that can do business anywhere within the country under the Type-2 classification. The final classification Type-3 is limited to only the territory they’re registered like only doing business within Baldukk and Rombertia. Obviously the largest number of registered companies are Type-3 Second Variety. Restaurants and inns would be under that classification. Next is Type-3 First Variety.

Furthermore, what is considered military goods isn’t just weapons and armor, but preserved food, war horses, saddles, other horse equipment, and even military purpose tents and carriages are included. The only thing not included in military goods in modern day Japan is the food. Medical supplies, normal food, and furniture aren’t included in military goods. In other words, putting it in terms of Bakuddo's products, it's possible to force sandals through as military goods but simple rubber cloth that hasn't been sewn isn't included. Cushions and things that you can attach to the saddle are included but things like normal mats aren't included. The water bed is included..probably not.

The fee for registration is 100,000,000 Z for Type-1. However it's only in the case of commoners and Free People. It's only 10,000,000 Z for nobles. Type-2 is 50,000,000 Z. 5,000,000 Z for nobles. Type-3 is 1,000,000 Z. 100,000 Z for nobles. And in terms of classification there's no additional cost for the second variety. The first variety costs three times more. The third variety costs two times more. Huh? Don't you think it's strange? Normally it would cost me 100,000,000 Z for the Type-2 Third Variety. Even if I deduct the fact that I'm a noble it's still 10,000,000 Z.

Obviously the amounts I just said are when you have no connections or backing. However, I have with me what would make my plate from Marquis Webdos go pale, the first knight group. In order to purchase and research various equipment the knight group purchases small amounts of equipment from various places so only the first knight group has the authority to forcefully push a Type-2 Third Variety of company through for just a handling charge. If that wasn't the case then for just buying a single sword or spear there might end up being tens of companies taking their own margin between the sale.

Since my household is the one manufacturing the products it's seen as a blessing that they can deal directly with the producer. It doesn't matter if it's a Third Variety as long as the official company has been created then it's in my favor. Normally the condom's are medical supplies as well but the name of them is "Saya" after all. If I were to say they're equipment for men I'm sure the King would say, "Yeah, that's OK." If it's no good then I'll just ask a favor from them King and get the classification changed to First Variety. Well, even if I go the formal route then it's only 5,000,000 Z to make the change so if I put half a month of profits from the dungeon into it then I can do it anytime.

Rather than that it's bigger that I was able to skip over the annoying qualification inspections and procedures for issuing my license. Viva! Absolute monarchy! It wouldn't go this way in a constitutional rule or democracy I'm sure.

Also, it seems I can create a plate for the company. I wonder if it's something like the Marquis Webdos plate for proof of passage inside the country? No, a noble like myself can move around within the country with no proof of passage with no problems. Ah, I'm sure it would be convenient to bring Zulu and Angela to Bakuddo. It seems this plate will take about 2–3 weeks to be completed.

Now then, my business at the government office is completed. After this I just need to take a look at sisters sullen face before returning to Baldukk. I follow after Hack to the riverbed. Oh~ They're training. It doesn't seem like they're on horseback for today but I guess that's the training of the first knight group huh? Come to think of it I never properly saw the training of the knight group in Keel. Hack says, “Right now, the third company is in the middle of training. I'll go get permission from the commander of the third company so could you wait here for just a moment?”

After saying that and he prodded the stomach of his horse and headed towards the knight group in the middle of training. I wonder if the company commander is backbitten and called Chuusuke* in Orth as well?

“Short rest!”

The one who seems to be the company commander raised his voice. Everyone seems to have fallen over in exhaustion. Ah, is that armor sister? It was different. I guess one of the squires because sister doesn't have a physique that good. Ah, so that's sister. After being called out by Hack what seems to be Mill looked over here. After seeing me waving my hand and it seems she finally noticed me and dragged her exhausted body over here.

“Sister, it's been a while.”

I say that with a smile on my face and,

“Hey you. Get off your horse. And, what is that? That head? Did you awaken to beauty even though you're just an AI? How cheeky.”

and said that. It's true. It's painful that I can't say the real reason in response to that. It was my best effort saying “It looks good on me right?” to try and cover it up.

“What’s going on with this horse? Isn’t it a good horse?”

Sister said that while patting the neck of my war horse.

“Ah, when I left the house brother gave it to me. Supposedly it’s the one that brother used when he was in the Webdos knight group. It’s a good horse right?”

I said it proudly to Mill. Just as expected of the horse brother used it’s well disciplined and I said that it listens to my orders almost like telepathy.

“Eh? This child, it’s the one brother used..”

That’s right~ You want it right? I won’t give it to you~

“And, did you become an adventurer?”

Mill is patting the neck of my war horse while saying it.

“Yeah, I’m in Baldukk right now. I’m entering the dungeon.”

I stick my chest out a bit.

“I see..I guess if it’s you then you’d be fine on your own...Be careful that you don’t get injured.”

What the, saying such kind things.

“Fu..Did you think I was alone? I already have 5 subordinates~ I met three of them along the way and hired them. Two of them are slaves I bought. Though I say that one of them I bought using the money I got from father when I left the house though, the other one I bought with the money I earned in the dungeon~”

“Ehh..Are you earning that much? You’re amazing!”

Oh~ praise me more.

“That’s right. When I save up some money and become a rich person I’ll treat you to something.”

“That pisses me off. But, what about your armor? You have some right?”

“Ah, I was called by his majesty the King today and went to the castle“eh..Why!?””

It seems she was surprised that I was called out by the King and appeared in the castle. Well, I guess that's true.

"His majesty was using the water bed. It was for repairing that."

Mill was surprised it seems. I guess she didn't know.

"He~! That's amazing! So the stuff we make at home was even used by his majesty!"

"I know right. Not to mention, it was the first lot we made after sister-in-law got pregnant with Zett and Becky! He's a frequent customer. That had a sale price of 7,000,000 Z (7 gold coins)."

She was pleased along with me.

"7,000,000 Z huh? I can't pay 7,000,000 for a bed~"

That's only obvious.

"What's that, sister has the one I gave you at the start of this year right? You're still using that right?"

"Yeah, that bed is nice. Thanks to it I can sleep soundly."

Oh, come to think of it everyone in the first knight group was rich. I wonder how much their wages are?

"Come to think of it, since sister is in the first knight group as well your wages must be quite high right? About how much are you getting?"

I tried asking like that.

"Hnn, since I'm still young and a new knight it's not that high. Just 13,200,000 Z per year."

Huh? You're still 18 right? Rather, 13,200,000 at that age..Ama..amazing~ Excluding bonuses Ralpa is only making 2,400,000 Z per year. Putting aside me treating you, you should treat me to something. I guess she misunderstood since I was surprised so she said even further.

"Even with this it's increased quite a bit since I was a squire."

No wait, I'm not surprised because it's too little, I'm surprised at how much it is. Ah, I see, after leaving the house Mill entered the knight group right away. I'm sure she doesn't know the value of money. She shouldn't have even used money for shopping once until she entered the knight group.

“Sister..that’s a crazy high amount. It’s probably way more than the average expenses for a year of our house in Bakuddo. The weekly pay of a squire in the Webdos knight group is 43,000 Z. It’s about 2,5000,000 Z per year. I’m sure true knights don’t even get double that amount.”

I said while amazed.

“Eh? Is that so? How much was it when I was a squire again? I don’t think it was 10,000,000 Z last year. Come to think of it, according to what I’ve we’re receiving three times the wages of other knight groups. I wonder if it’s a lot?”

Don’t joke with me, shit. Mother, let’s at least teach her about the value of money before letting her out of the house~

“Sister you know..Don’t you go shopping on your days off? Do you not eat outside? You at least go and buy clothes right..”

“Eh? Since we’re told to rest on days off, I review for my academic lessons. After that is sleeping. I’m fine with just my armor padding for clothes so I don’t have any. The food is free in the knight station after all. In my case, it doesn’t cost any money to repair my armor as well. Ah, that’s right. I’m still using the sword I received from older brother while maintaining it. Even though other people’s swords got worn-out in around half a year. This sword doesn’t get damaged at all. Even when hitting them together it’s quite durable. It’s a good sword.”

Obviously don’t put it together with the average caste sword around there. It comes out as Special Forged Steel even with Identify. Even in terms of value while it doesn’t reach your annual salary it’s about the same price as 10 average swords. Rather~ so she was training seriously..I guess if that wasn’t the case there’s no way she would have been able to become a true knight. Even though I’ve been wandering here and there to try and lose my virginity..in the end I still haven’t been able to do it, but somehow I’ve started to feel apologetic.

“Is all the money you’ve received up until untouched? You aren’t using it?”

“Yeah, there’s almost no spare time to go shopping after all. Ah, when I went home on my breaks I used it on food and inns. I was surprised at how cheap it was. I wonder if they gave me a discount for being in the first knight group?"

It's already fine. I've understood.

"Well, it's not a bad thing to have some savings though, I think it would be good if you walked around the town a bit more and learned the market price of various things. If it's like that then you'll have some trouble when you get married in the future. When I left the house I was told by father to watch the town for about 10 days and learn various things."

It was my limit just saying that.

"I see. Next time I have time I'll try taking a look at the town."

"Yeah, I think it would be best if you do that. Since I still intend to remain in Baldukk for several years, let's go and eat together sometime. I'm staying at the "Boil Manor" in Baldukk. If you send me a letter than I'll match my days off with you."

"I guess so. Another time."

"Ah, and I forgot to say it. I took orders for armor from Baron Logan and 9 others. I guess it's because sister and the other squires advertised it? It seemed like everyone wanted it. In addition with Baron Logan as the mediator I was able to make a company. It's called Greed Company. I'm going to sell Bakuddo's rubber products wholesale to the first knight group. Also, what was his name again? That's right, the person named Bal-san is going to head out the day after tomorrow right? Since it seems he's going to deliver the letter for the order, if sister writes a letter before then I'm sure he'll deliver it if you ask as well."

"Eh? Bal..? Isn't that platoon leader Balmisshu of the second company! There's no way I could make a request of someone like that! You show some restraint as well."

No, there's no way I could know that...It just showed him as a Viscount with Identify after all. Since it's a knight group after all, I thought there would be Viscounts all over the place...

"And, it's fine if you take orders for armor though..It's no good to take orders for swords. There's a lot of people who want this sword. I've been deceiving them this is a heirloom that I received from my older brother but you made the materials for this right? It's not something you can make a lot of right? Be careful."

O..Oh, so that's how it was. Come to think of it, I made just one for the purpose of selling in the past. I wonder who obtained that? Well, it's fine. It seems that someone is approaching us. Viscount Segan.Kendus huh? Level 14. Since he's a viscount I wonder if he's a commander?

"Ah, commander. Please excuse me for taking up so much time."

Mill is acting respectfully. After all he was a commander huh?

"So you're Greed's younger brother? My name is Kendusu. I'm the commander of the third company. I've heard about you from Greed. It seems you're strong. If you have some time would you have a bit of a match with me?"

That's no joke, I'm still in the middle of a level up experiment. I want to avoid even taking on a scrape.

"Ah, that is..It's no good if I don't return to Baldukk after this. If it's a match then could I please request it at the next occasion. Since I'm staying in Baldukk right now, I'll be showing my face here several times for delivering armor after this. It would be fine on that occasion..I'm sorry for not be able to meet up to your expectations for today."

I politely lowered my head apologetically.

"Eh? Delivery of armor you said!? Is it this? Is it this armor!? Did someone go to Bakuddo to take measurements?"

Viscount Kendusu put his hand on Mill's shoulder while talking. Why do they all jump at it like that.

"Ah, no, it was requested by Baron Logan, today I took the measurements for those who wish to purchase the armor at the castle. Thanks to that I was able to take orders for 10 suits of armor of the first knight group including Baron Logan. Thank you very much."

I politely lowered my head again. Since he's sister's superior, I need to make sure to leave a good impression.

"Eeeh!! I didn't hear about that!! What does that mean!!"

No, I seriously don't know though.

"Eh? Ah..Even if you say that..Umm.."

Since I was getting a bit incoherent and grumbling as I said it. Sister has suddenly gotten pale over how the commander suddenly got angry.

"How could this be...Hey! Hack! You bastard! Come over here a bit!"

While Hack was talking with the knights of the third company during their break he called out to him. After being surprised he came running over. The other knights were surprised by the commanders yell as well.

"Ha, what is it?"

After running over while panting Hack stood up straight and steadfast as he said.

"Hey, you bastard, it couldn't be..you couldn't have possibly ordered some armor from Greed, this guys household right?"

Eh? What? Is it not allowed?

"Ha, eh, that is, I ordered some."

"I haven't heard about this. Hey! You bastards! Gather over here for a bit!"

The knights who were taking a break started to gather wondering what was going on. Is it no good if they order equipment all on their own? No, there's no way that's the case. Since the leader himself ordered it and Balumissh-san ordered some as well. The knights and squires all gathered together.

"Hey, you all. It seems that today Greed's house is taking orders on the armor they make!"

"Are you serious!"

"Eh? Didn't we have to go all the way to Bakuddo village?"

"I'll buy some."

"How much is it?"

All of them are saying whatever they please as they closed in on me. Hnn, so it was this popular~ I had expected it a bit after taking measurements last night but... This is troubling. Thanks to platoon leader Balumisshu the letter should arrive considerably fast but if it's this many then it would be quite difficult even if Taylor, older brother, and sister-in-law all help in the production. Since father was aiming to make it into a brand as well, it's no good if it's that easy for them to get their hands on it. I need some backup fire here.

"Umm..I'm very sorry to say this but the 10 suits of armor that I took orders for this morning was the deadline for orders this time..The next time will be when we deliver the products I took measurements for this time..So it should be 10 suits at that time as well but..I'm sorry about that."

"Ho...How cruel~ Company commander~"

"What in the world is that~? What a useless company commander. Getting us so excited for nothing."

"But, we can still buy it right?"

"When is the next time?"

"..Hack..What does this mean?"

Viscount Kendusu says to Hack with a tone of voice several levels deeper.

"Eh? No, that is..I went to Baldukk as a guard for his majesty yesterday..and after eating at the usual restaurant last night, the leader and Greed-kun came there, and Greed-kun showed us the new model of armor. Since he said a bunch of things that made us want it, umm? He said it would be fine to take orders for 10 suits of armor.."

Hack hesitantly replied.

I couldn't help but watch the series of events with my breath held. But, if I let this chance flow by then the brand power will decline. I need to take their orders. I told myself once again.

"And?"

There's a vein popping out on Viscount Kendusu forehead.

"It was leader Logan and 10 people from the first and second platoons of the second company so...The leader said not to talk about it until the sub-leader and second companies Balukisas company commander make their orders as well..”

Hack is about to cry.

“..So it was that sort of thing..Che..That old man...He’s pulled one over on us..Not to mention, for it to be a new model..”

Sca...Scaryyy..Viscount Kendusu replied with his anger boiling over. Since I had a debt of gratitude towards the leader for covering for Mill I felt good will towards him but there’s no way this person would know about that after all.

“..Greed-kun. I’ll request that you “without fail” come to this third company for the next time you take orders. Also, would you tell us the price?”

He suddenly started saying that while saying with a vein popping out in his forehead.

“Yes, I understand. Next time I’ll orders from everyone in the third company. Furthermore, the armor is 30,000,000 Z per suit (30 gold coins), and you have to pay half of that amount in advance. In the center of the breastplate we can put a relief of an emblem that’s up to 5 cm in every direction as well. And I’ll just add that the people who took orders today said they would like the emblem of the first knight group added. Also, there’s an option of either a Kite Shield or Buckler Shield for a shield. The kite shield is 6,000,000 Z and the buckler shield is 3,000,000 Z. We can put the emblem you wish for on the surface of the shield. This one everyone decided on the emblems of their families. In the case that you wish for a buckler shield then the left arm-guard of the armor will have an attachment for that but the simple metal shield inside of the left arm will be omitted. It’s just the same type as my older sister. Just take a look. Also, when it comes to the simple metal shield without the buckler shield option then have Amuzel-san and Gulohoretz-san show you theirs for examples. Furthermore, please excuse the fact that the design will differ slightly from theirs.”

I said all of that in one breath with a business smile on.
And after taking another breath I continued opening my mouth.

“When it comes to after maintenance I will be visiting the station of the knight group every month on the 15th for the time being but in the case that it’s urgent my older sister can do it as well. The cost of the maintenance depends on the condition of the damage so I won't know until that time comes but if I were to raise one example of a cut on the surface of the chest, arms, or thighs then it would be 10,000 Z (1 silver coin) per spot. If it's to repair a hole made by a bolt then it's 20,000 Z per spot. In regards to the damage to the shields then we'll only accept slight damage. Please understand that at that time a portion of the relief may be damaged during repairs."

I guess this is about it. Personally I think the cost of maintenance is a bit expensive but since it seems that the cost of maintenance for metal armor is ten times that amount, so well, it should be fine.

After hearing my speech everyone of the third company started talking about how it's cheap if you think about the maintenance cost or how the second company selfishly managed to get away with it well on their own. After that, I was forced to give a promise that I would take orders from them next time before finally being released.

On my way back to Baldukk, next time should be fine, though when it comes to a different lot in the knight group after that I can raise the price saying that the raw materials are limited, and I was satisfied all on my own.

Now, it's troublesome but when I get back I need to write a letter to older brother and the others.

.....

Year 7442, Month 8, Day 30

Yesterday night, just as I predicted an envoy from the castle came to my "Boil Manor" and my remaining ammunition was reduced to 1 magazine of 10 shots. In regards to the price of 60,000 Z (6 silver coins) but it seems they'll pay at a later date. As expected I couldn't say that I can't do deals based on faith with the King, so I started thinking about weird things like taking into consideration this time I might need to think about implementing a bulk pay system in the future.

On Saturday afternoon, in order to continue with my experiment I've entered the dungeon on my own again. My level should increase in another 10,000 or so experience points. After reducing the number of monsters with magic I was consciously killing them like crazy with close combat. I luckily managed to run into a group of orks today so I was able to gain 8,000 experience all at once and I should be able to comfortably level up.

It's doubtful whether I will level up after wiping out this group of goblins. I used magic to quickly reduce the number of screaming goblins to half. The guy who charged in all at once and is flustered not sure what the situation is I cut his throat while using my gun-stock to send the one next to it flying, while simultaneously using that force to roll to the side and stab into the flank of the one on the left with my bayonet and kick off. It's a movement that I did all the time in the past during encampment assaults. I immediately rendered three goblins powerless and there's three more remaining. I used {Stone Bolt} on the one on the left side and simultaneously stabbed towards the one in the center with my bayonet. This is just a feint and I'm holding the one in the center in check. After that I used {Wind Cutter} on the goblin on the right before smashing the magazine of my bayonet on the one in the center that had fallen over.

After that I stabbed them in the throat one at a time finishing them off.

It seems I leveled up.

Alright. Everything other HP increased, and Speed increased by a total of 2 points. Among the Patterns that I had predicted this is D. I had predicted four patterns in my hypothesis on how ability points increase during level up. The first was that completely unrelated to my will something like God was counting all of my actions during level up and manages the increase in ability points by strictly counting those actions. This is Pattern A.

The second one is where while it's being counted strictly the division of increase to ability points is decided on the number of times those abilities are used. This is Pattern B. The third one is where it isn't managed at all and it's decided entirely based on whether you were consciously using the abilities or not. This is Pattern C. The fourth one is this case. Similar to Pattern C, it's unrelated to the number of times I used the ability, the increases are decided based on what abilities I made conscious use of on a common basis. Pattern D.

The thing I made sure of during the experiment this time was to not take any injuries. For that sake I avoided all of the opponents attacks. Of course, during combat I used magic to decrease their numbers and remained strongly conscious of how I can dodge the remaining opponents in order to not take damage as I shifted to counterattack. In any case I was focused on this. Regardless of whether it was the sword or bayonet I didn't try to take their attacks and parry them, but rather I put emphasis on completely avoiding attacks without even letting them graze me.

If I calmly analyze it then the number of times I directly stabbed the opponent or even further used my Unique Ability and thus MP was far more than the number of times I dodged. But, Speed is what increased this time. In other words, what's important is how much emphasis I consciously put on the abilities while making use of them.

With this I can create a bit of a plan. Ralpa is training with magic but since she only has a little bit of MP, the actual number of times she's consciously training with magic is limited. I'm sure she's more conscious focused on how our lives are on the line in combat while exploring the dungeon than that. That's not a mistaken behavior but it's a bit inconvenient for me. Of course, for her sake as well it would be best to properly get her to consciously use MP more.

Come to think of it, we're going to start putting some effort into aiming towards the 2nd floor was it? Then, after I give it my best for a bit longer I'll go and have some food with everyone.

Side Story 16: In the case of Tezuka Yukino (Age 17 at time of accident)

Ah~ Why doesn't Misa understand how awesome Takashi-senpai is I wonder.

I got to know Misa started in high school. I was able to hit it off with her right away and become friends but she's a bit out of it. She joins into the conversations just fine when everyone is talking and you can't particularly feel any problem. She laughs along with us, gets sad with us, and gets angry just the same as us. Although, I'm probably the only one that's realized it but she's always somehow got her head in the clouds.

It might be more correct to say you never know what she's really thinking inside. Of course, she never lets out that she's thinking anything like that. I only realized, off of just a feeling somehow or other after I got to know her. That's why sometimes I think it's just my imagination. Normally she has fun chatting and getting excited over talking about celebrities on TV and cool people. I don't think Misa has her head in the clouds at times like those.

She's sociable as well. Even today she accompanied me and another girl to buy some when we forgot our obligation chocolate. It was when I was thoroughly explaining to her how good of a person Takashi-senpai is on the bus returning to school when the accident occurred.

When I realized it I had started my life over. I was reborn. Since I was born as the daughter of a serf in a remote place called Roguhots village, I wasn't just in the house all of the time but I was also made to help out with the farm work. I knew that I had a Unique Ability thanks to the Status Open I learned during my infancy but I don't know how to use my ability (I don't even want to know though), and even if someone else uses Status Open on me they can't see it so I just remained silent about it. There might be a chance for me to use this Unique Ability from here on out, or there might not be. I think it would be a happy occurrence if I can use it with my feelings behind it though. In regards to my special skill I can use it but it's normally useless so I there's no need to.

I wake up before the sunrise everyday and go to sleep with the sunset. The farm work is all done by hand and heavy labor. I don't even know how many times I regretted the fact that I didn't study more about social sciences or history. My parents and siblings all gradually work through that lifestyle without complaining. However, I'm discontent. The family of commoners that owns my family and I lashes out bitterly at the slaves and pushes one job after another on us. If this is normal for this world then this must be a cruel world.

The only consolation is that even if it can't be called plenty we receive enough food everyday for it not to be a problem and while it's small we get wages as well. It's a luxury of my household to save up our wages and buy meat from the hunter and cook it in water before eating it.

During that time I turned 7 years old and met God. God told me. The cause of that accident and reincarnation and that this isn't Earth. The fact that the other victims of that accident reincarnated in this world as well. The amount of time I was allowed to ask questions was just 1 minute. Magic. Non-humans. Social standing. It was a fast pace but I was able to hear up to there. Not to mention I was only able to understand just the surface of it. However, in any case it became clear to me. No matter what I can't return anymore. There's no other method than for me to live in this world of Orth. The despair that's befalling me.

After that I started searching for methods to escape the slave standing again. The only method I knew until now was paying 100x your price to your owner. And the fact that my price is probably about 1 gold coin. And the fact that my wages are 2 copper coins per month...It's impossible that my wages won't increase from here on out but supposing that it stays the and I don't use any of it while continuing to save it then will take 42,000 years of despair for me to be able to afford it.

There are other methods as well but I can't do them with just my own power. Somewhere I absolutely need the help of someone else, not to mention someone greater than that of a Free Person. If I can't get the help of someone else then after all I have to do something about it myself but no matter how I think about it, it's impossible. Also, even if I was able to borrow the power of someone else, if my owner doesn't accept selling me then it comes to nothing.

In other words it would be best to be hated by my owner. It's necessary to become a person who they wouldn't regret losing if it comes down to it. Should I slack off in farm work? No, that just places the burden on my family. The best thing I can think of is acting cheeky when I talk to my owner.

Isn't there any other method? Think about it. I need to think it through carefully. Should I run away...that's no good. Even if I can get away from Loghots village, if a slave is wandering around all on their own then they'll be caught right away I'm sure. Of course, if I can steal some nice clothes from somewhere and make it seem like I'm not a slave at a glance then I'm sure they won't notice but when I try to find a job they'll definitely use Status Open. If the owner isn't nearby and they don't have proof of their purchase then there's no way they could be anything other than an escaped slave.

There's the option of marrying a child of the lord as well but unfortunately the lord is a gnome. It's not like there aren't marriages across races but since it seems that the conception rate is considerably low, it's hard to imagine that a noble like the lord or his family would do something like that. Other than the merchant who comes to the village to buy and sell there's almost never any outsiders who come. Since this is a village on the edge of the kingdom we're at a dead end with the border. On the other side of that mountain is a foreign country.

..!Foreign country? What about escaping outside of country? If it's within the country then the probably I'll get caught as an escaped slave is high but what about outside of the country? On my status it says I'm a slave owned by the Ronz family. Even if I get caught as an escaped slave outside of the country, what was it again? That's right, I wonder if something can be done if I say I'm seeking asylum?

I've heard about asylum before. I feel like it was reported that there were foreign people who sought asylum in Japan as well. There's no other choice than to do it. However, I'm still a child and I don't have any stamina. I might end up dying trying to cross the mountain. It seems there's something dangerous like a monster as well. It's impossible to cross that mountain right now. It's necessary to save up my power a bit longer. I don't know if there's a village on the other side of the mountain. I'm sure I need food as well. There's no other choice than to endure for a few more years.

When I turned 10 years old my wages went from 2 copper coins to 1 large copper coin. It went up by five times all at once. With this in 8,000 years...let's stop thinking about it. One such day, my sister seven years older than me decided to get married. The other side was another slave in of the same race in the village and two years older than my sister. It seems that since they both have the same owner there's no problems with them getting married. The day before her wedding my older sister skipped out of farm work to go report her wedding to the lord Viscount Dovun's family. It remained in my impression that my parents were looking down as they saw her off.

My older sister returned at night. Since her face seemed tired after returning she didn't eat anything and went straight to bed. Even though she just went to greet them it sure took quite a while. Well, since it's my older sisters wedding tomorrow I'm sure there will be lots of delicious food. I'm looking forward to it. I only have to do the bare minimum farm work after all..thinking that I slowly fell asleep.

My older sisters wedding ceremony took place extravagantly. Of course that's by the standards of our family. The food that doesn't even reach the level of a family restaurant in my past life was considerably delicious. I ate until my stomach was full along with my older brother who's four years older than me and my other older sister who's two years older.

Four years later, my older brother got married. The marriageable age in this world is early. Particularly since slaves are assets in this world once they reach their late teens they're even pressed into marriage by their owners. My older brother's wife was the daughter of where my older sister had married into. Since our families normally are pretty familiar with each other my second older sister and I were able to give them our sincerest blessings.

I got to eat delicious food again, I was able to go to sleep satisfied.

The next year after that I finally became an adult. 15 years old. I wonder if it's about a good time? My family and relatives are good people but they don't make any complaints about their current lifestyle and just act as if they've given up on things. If it just keeps going like this then I'll eventually marry in this village, give birth to a child, raise it, and die I'm sure. I'm starting to become unable to hold back my longing for outside of the village. Furthermore, along with becoming an adult my wages went from 1 large copper coin to 2 large copper coins. It seems that after this it would increase to 3 large copper coins at 20 years old.

Like I could do that. I need to sneak away no matter what. I've started making preparations in secret. The wages that I've been saving up are nowhere near enough to be able to protect myself with. Even a worn-out cheap knife costs 2 silver coins. However, this money is in order to obtain food when I'm going to escape. If it goes well then I'll need to be able to obtain food where I end up going so it's my important war funds. I'm sure a worn-out knife would be reasonably useful but I can't ignore food which has direct relation to my life. Since I don't have the skills to catch or handle meat with a knife like a hunter after all.

When I have free time I try asking the hunter in the village what the mountain is like or about the paths. I thought there was no way there would be proper paths but after all there wasn't any. What I wanted to know was the types of places the hunter normally wouldn't go and the reason why. If I end up being chased then I'm sure this hunter would be dispatched to search for me. I need to be able to escape from that.

I need to go behind them and escape along the mountains with no paths. That's why I thought it would be better to go through areas with difficult terrain that they wouldn't approach.

While that was taking place, a reason for me to hold back on my plans to escape occurred. It's only obvious but magic training. The healer in the village said they would teach me magic. However, no one around me including my family can use magic. Even if I have the talent to use magic I'm sure that possibility is minuscule. But, I feel something more than simple aspiration towards magic. Depending on how it's used it could become a great power helping in my escape.

I'm sure there's nothing to lose in learning it. I once again had regrets about my past life here. Why didn't I study even more seriously in school? Since I realized that there were English words included in this world's language, if I had studied English I'm sure it would have been easier to learn the language, even math should have been useful. Particularly when it comes to making tools or working with wood I can't even imagine how useful geometry and physics would be. It doesn't even need to be said for history and social sciences, I'm sure even science and biology would have been useful. The only ones that don't have any direct relation to life are music, art, and calligraphy and those sorts I guess.

I seriously started engaging in magic trying without letting myself miss even a single word of the healer. In about one week we knew that I had talent with magic. I was simply happy. I thought that maybe even if I don't run away my treatment might change. However, while I predicted it that obviously wasn't the case. I was a bit disappointed when I realized that. But, no matter what is it, even if it's weak, power is power. I'll put a bit more effort into using magic properly.

The next year, a short while after I turned 16 years old my older sister of two years decided to get married. I'll be able to eat my fill of delicious food once again. The day before her wedding my older sister skipped out on farm work in order to report her wedding to the lord. Around the evening she returned with her head hanging down. Her face looked very sad. What in the world happened? I tried asking my older sister who had her mouth shut what happened. After finally giving in my older sister weakly smiled and since it'll probably happen to me in the future as well started telling me about it.

I was terrified after hearing about it.

Bridal night tax.

What a repulsive sounding thing.

The right to take the bridal night of a new wife preparing to marry.

It's unforgivable that something like that even exists.

I've heard the lord Viscount Dovun say "it's immoral to have sex before marriage" and when I was young I admired those words but it was this sort of reason...

We're Spirit-people race, Elves. Going by my own standards my parents and older siblings are considerably beautiful looking. Even though my facial features are light and there's traces of my previous life strongly remaining, I knew I had become considerably beautiful as well. However, I also understood that it seems uncommon for people across races to have romance or be sexually attracted to each other. In my case, since my values of my past life are still remaining whether it's a human or a non-human, I thought cool looking people were cool.

Since I found out that people with this way of thinking were the minority when I was still young after that I stopped bothering with outer appearances. Though it might be more correct to say I was too busy finishing up my jobs in order to be able to eat dinner that day.

I wonder if even though the lord Viscount Dovun is a gnome, he sees not just other gnomes which make up 1/3 of the village, but the second largest group of humans, and even more so dwarves, elves, and other non-humans as targets of sexual desire? I suddenly felt as if everything turned black before me as if I had been hit, shortly after, the anger swelled up from the depths of my body like smoldering magma.

Are we slaves just the tools of our owner and the lord!? We're barely even able to allowed to live like humans but do we even have to hand over our pride!? After finally finding a partner to marry, are we not even allowed that small bit of happiness during our harsh lives!?

My above older sister, my older brother's wife, my second older sister, and..me as well.

Isn't this literally slaves that are less than people! When the blood went to my head in an instant, I shook off my surprised older sister, and after grabbing the weeding sickle from my owner's shed I ran to the lord's house at full speed. At that moment the lord's family was in the middle of dinner. Just from a glance I could tell that there was luxurious menu we slaves would never get to eat even on wedding ceremonies and at the end of the year.

The lord and his family was dumbfounded seeing me suddenly intrude in the middle of their dinner with my hair disheveled. I don't remember what I was screaming but I attacked Viscount Dovun swinging the sickle.

When I realized I had been completely tied up with bruises all over my body. I can feel my body shrieking from all over. Including my owner, the commoners of the village who are squires that serve the lord at guarding me as I'm laying on the dirt floor in the shed.

"What did you suddenly attack the lord?"

"What in the world have you done!"

"Even though you're just a slave, for you to raise your hand to a noble.."

"Capital punishment is appropriate here."

"It's violence towards the lord. We have no choice other than to hand this heinous criminal over to Fogulu."

Fogulu is the name of a large town in this region and I knew that it had quite a bit of distance to the Southeast from this Loguhots village. Including this Loguhots village the one who owns the vast territory of the western Ladonna region and Ladonna region..if I remember correctly it was something or other Duke. It seems that I'm going to be brought to Fogulu as a heinous criminal and judged there.

I was already resolved for being executed after committing the felony offense of raising my hands against a noble in a rage. However, I want to complain even just one to that Duke or whatever before I die. I'm in lucky that I wasn't just executed in this poor countryside village. In the end, I'll complain about how miserable of a life slaves live and the irrationality of not even being allowed human rights before I die. There's no way I'd raise a sound no matter what happens to me until then.

A few days later, with handcuffs on my hands and both my legs tied with a 60–70 cm rope, I was made to walk a distance of close to 200 Km in a mere 10 days while tied by the waist. Since I was used to farm work my legs weren't injured but being forced to walk with such a small pace by the time I arrived at Fogulu I was worn-out stamina wise. In Fogulu I was thrown into a prison that the knight group manages and ignored for close to a month.

Obviously I had no freedom in the prison but I was properly given three meals, a decent amount of food. Of course, it was a luxurious menu but it wasn't all that different from what I was normally used to eating. So in the city they even give criminals this sort of decent food? It was a shock. I thought for sure, I would be given barely enough to keep me alive of something like scraps. In reality, on the trip until Fogulu the food I was given was that bad.

One day, I suddenly dragged out of the prison. I'm sure the day of judgement has finally come. Well it's fine. At the very least I won't lose my pride as a human before I die. I'll say everything I want to say to my heart's content, and glare at the one who hands down the punishment as I die. I was dragged to the place of judgement with feelings of abandon.

It seems that the punishments are performed in a place like a plaza in Fogulu. The one handing out the judgements on the stage must be the Duke that is the lord. I guess he's before 40? He's a human man wearing nice clothes and a good looking face. It seems that there's 50 criminals waiting for judgement including me but they all supposed committed felony crimes. I guess that's only obvious. Criminals for petty crimes like theft were judged in the village after all. I'm sure they only leave the judgement of felony crimes up to the upper nobility.

of the close to 30 criminals who were judged before me almost all of them were given punishments of execution or a fine along with having their limbs cut off. There's no way they'd be able to pay a fine of several gold coins, the capital punishment sentences keep being handed out. However, it seems they at least let you speak your defense. In that case, the witness to your crimes gets called. That's great, I'll at least have a chance to say what I want to. I'll complain about how our existence is even considered a crime to the nobles before dying.

It's my turn. I was brought before the Duke on the stage and the official read out my charges. And they asked if I admit to my crimes or not, if I don't then the Duke will ask me the reason. My charge was assault of the nobility. That's great, I was at least able to injure that Viscount. I almost naturally smiled. But, I need to deny my charges and say what I want.

"You, Arakel.Karifulolis, do you admit to that crime?"

The Duke says. It's the same format as up until now.
Since my gag was removed I said exactly what I had planned.

"I don't admit to it."

I looked at the Duke's eyes and clearly declared it.

"Then state that reason. And the witness to this case come forward."

Up until here it's just as planned. After the eldest son of Viscount Dovun stood on the witness stand I opened my mouth.

"The lord of Loguhots village that is Viscount Dovun abused his position and repeated inhumane treatment towards the slaves. I just tried to avenge the enemy of my siblings. Calling it a bridal night tax he forcefully stole the virginity of women before their wedding. It's a behavior that tramples the dignity of humans. The one who forcefully stole the virginity of my two older sisters is Viscount Dovun who is standing there. There's no doubt that my sister-in-law who married my older brother is the same. I just trying to get revenge for the dignity of my siblings. And"

When I had said up to there the Duke raised his hand interrupting my speech. This is just as planned as well. Most likely he'll question the witness on the authenticity of my statement just like the criminals until now.

"I ask the witness. Is that story from just now fact?"

See. But, I'm sure he won't admit it. I'll struggle until the end.
It was at that moment. A loud voice was raised from behind the stage where the Duke was standing.

"I object! Father, please give me a bit of time to talk to her!"

What? In the world is it? The one who raised their voice as far as I can tell is a human man who seems to be about the same age as me, and judging from the details of his statement he should be the son of the Duke but when I saw his face I doubted my eyes. It's a Japanese! He's got the facial features of human like those of a Westerner in my past life but they're somewhat light. Thin layered eyes and a nose that isn't too high. A round chin that isn't as sharp as elves. It's a face like that of a half-Japanese half-Westerner but between that glossy black hair and black eyes..Ah, so this man has followed the same fate as me...

Without waiting for a reply from his father the Duke, the man walked over to me. The events were so sudden that no one including me were able to say anything, he continues looking at my face while walking closer. He even had a light smile on his face.

"Hey, you're Japanese right. Do you know what I'm saying? If you do then nod."

He whispered to me in Japanese (!) like that. I was so shocked all I could do was nod several times while trembling.

"Alright, next. I don't know what you did and the reason doesn't matter at all for right now. Of course, I'll have you tell me about it properly later. If you'll become my slave then I'll save you. The only one who can save you from this situation is me. Decide right now."

After he said that he looked at my eyes.

"I don't care what happens to me. But allow me to say it. Why is there differences in social standing? What are you going to say I did? Is it okay for a noble to forcefully steal virg" "It's fine already. I already know exactly what you're trying to say. We want to try and change that sort of world. Will you come along with me?"

After interrupting my words the man smiled with a kind tone of voice and said. What did he say just now? Change the world? Can it be changed? This, far too unfair and irrational world!?

When I'm stuck on my words with my eyes wide open the man continued with an extremely kind tone of voice.

"I'm sure it was painful. This world is strange after all. What do you want to do? Will you become my slave and cooperate?"

“I want to kill him. Then I’ll listen to anything you say.”

After I said that and.

“Ho~ This is.. Alright, I’ll save you. Don’t forget those words. I’ll kill that Viscount. And, remain quiet for the time being.”

The man narrowed his eyes while saying that satisfied.

“Father! I was able to confirm it! Arakel.Karifulolis was one of my subordinates. I received the report from her. I once again raise charges against Viscount Serumunk.Dovun at this place! The charges are treason against the lord! She said that they certainly were planning to rebel against father. I heard the evidence myself just now! I’m the witness! Furthermore, her statement just now was a password that we had decided before-hand. I, as Count Rojibul, and as a man of the Stohlz family cannot close my eyes to the fact that a Viscount who was entrusted with our citizens to plan a rebellion against father! I myself will give judgement to this traitor in this place, purge the law and order within the territory, and show an example of a true noble left in charge of a territory! Guards! Seize Dovun!”

The man screamed that and at the same time pulled his sword from his waist as he ran towards Viscount Dovun and his eldest son. At first Viscount Dovun was dumbfounded but started to declare that they’re innocent and he had no intention of that, but he was immediately surrounded by the knights and pushed into the ground.

Without offering any time for them to say anything, the man swung his sword into the Viscount father and son’s head silencing them. It all occurred in no time at all. It was such a sudden series of events no one other than the man and the knights were able to move. Even the Duke on the stage was taken aback.

“Release the restraints on Karifulolis! She’s committed no crime! I’m her guardian!”

After the man said that a knight came to me and cut the rope that I was tied up with.

“Father! Please praise me. Just now, I, Count Rojibul, Senleid.Stohlz have given punishment to a traitor!”

It was such an overwhelming situation that the surroundings went silent. I just had my eyes opened wide and couldn't comprehend the situation. Did this man just kill Viscount Dovun right now? I timidly look at Viscount Dovun's corpse. Both father and son have had their head's split and some sort of flesh or brains are coming from the wound as they lay face down without moving an inch. Honestly speaking, putting aside the Viscount himself, I didn't have any grudge against the Viscount's eldest son. I didn't but I thought it served him right.

Several months later, after I turned 17 years old I had become Senleid's mistress. I'm sure it was just a matter of time before I fell for him. Since our social standings are too different and in the first place our races are different so I couldn't marry him but thanks to him I was able to become a Free Person. I wasn't just saved from peril but he hired me as his maid so I wouldn't be troubled in life. After that, I don't know how he dealt with the incident involving me but I have a debt towards him I can't return.

We each gave our real names and exchanged information on our upbringing. When I noticed that I was starting like him, I understood the method to use my Unique Ability for the first time. My Unique Ability is {Sexual Technique}, one of the conditions for using the ability is that I need to have at least a bare minimum of sexual desire towards the partner I use it with. If I use it consecutively then along the way I end up becoming controlled by sexual desire to the point where it's maddening, and that further stimulates our sexual feelings. Simultaneously he indulged in me as if he had endless stamina as well. The fact that our races are different is actually a good thing for both of us at this point. Since there's no need to worry about an undesired conception. We can always feel each other directly.

I was unbearably happy about that.

The first Japanese I met after reincarnating was literally my prince on a white horse.

Several more months later, I was even more surprised after accompanying Sel to the capital Randgriz. It seems that Sel remained silent about it in order to surprise me. The next King that is his highness, Alexander.Belgriddo was a Japanese as well. It seems that Sel spends half a year in Fogulu, the capital of Duke Stohlz territory and the other half in the capital of Randgriz. It seems that he spent a bit longer of a period at his main house for my sake this year.

And, Sel was best friends with the next King, his highness, Alexander.Belgriddo, to the point where they call each other Alex and Sel. I was immediately introduced to his highness Alex and talked about various things in Japanese. There were several Japanese people around his highness Alex, and I quickly got close to them as well.

When I tried asking their upbringing and it seems that I'm the youngest one. I lowered my head to the sorcerer of the royal court that was an old woman when she died and asked her to make me her disciple. Both of this person's parents are sorcerer's of the royal court and it seems she herself has started to attend to the castle as a sorcerer of the royal as well since last year. It's completely a rumor that let alone within the country she may be the most skilled sorcerer in this entire world, and there's a lot of hopes placed on her future. It's a common phrase of hers, that she says it's because she's an old woman, she's a very charming person and since her personality is good as well I even felt like she was my own mother.

When we first introduced ourselves, I didn't want to reveal my own Unique Ability. Since it was embarrassing. However, since Sel put his arm around my shoulder and declared that I was his woman, I went all out and said it. After a short silence everyone broke out in laughter. I couldn't do anything but pinch Sel's cheek as hard as I could.

Just like this I was able to solidify my position close to the center of Devas Kingdom. I can't fight and I don't have any knowledge from my past like everyone else that I can make use of towards the future so it's difficult for me to help out, but it's a satisfying lifestyle. It's still a time of remaining in obscurity right now but when everyone has gained a bit more power they say they'll start moving towards reform. Since I'm the youngest I'm like a mascot but even then everyone has accepted me as an ally without isolating me. I somehow need to return this favor.

Since it's this type of world, everyone has already given up on bloodless reform from the start. In the worst case, Alex and Sel have even resolved to kill their own parents in order to grasp authority it seems. They believe that it's for the sake of all the people who live on this land...

Slowly moving forward one step at a time has engulfed everyone in feelings of excitement and how wonderful this lifestyle where we all drink together while speaking of our dreams is.

Side Story 17: In the case of Tomura Yugo (Age 35 at time of accident)

It's been over 10 years since I started driving this bus route. It's an occupation which you can't call interesting just driving along the pre-decided road at the pre-decided time just as listed in the diagram but I like it. This time in the early afternoon, there's a comparatively low number of customers.

An old woman on her way back from shopping sits on the opposite side of the driver's seat and fee stand, there's an OL who's age I can't tell but has a good looking face sitting in the seat behind me. I saw her when she got on the bus but she's just my type. Her appearance in a suit with grey pants and coat tickled my inner fetish. After that is an exhausted salary-man and a couple of brats that seems to be high schoolers. The boys are quietly sitting without making a racket but the girls are loudly chatting. Although if it's just this level then it's not enough for a warning. It's the usual scenery.

I stop once before driving onto the railroad crossing and then enter the rails.

I died after seeing an unbelievable spectacle.

I wonder how much time has passed. How many days, weeks, or months? It's vague but I've finally started to get a grasp on the situation surrounding me. Strangely it seems that I've been reborn in the remote regions of a foreign country with my memories in tact. I can hear words that I've heard before mixed into the language they're speaking. In any case it's first priority to learn the language.

I tried speaking Japanese secretly when no one was nearby but I guess since my body still isn't ready as a baby I couldn't speak well. I'm sure it would be a problem if I spoke carelessly as well. If I eventually talk in Japanese and reveal that I reincarnated I might be able to meet my wife and son.

However, I'm sure that's a story for a bit later.

I came to realize that this wasn't Earth around such a time. I noticed it because my parents, siblings, and relatives or people whose face I've seen for the first time all kept taking a certain action towards me.

"Status Open"

I didn't know what it was at all first so I just ignored it. I didn't think of it as anything more than a prayer or something.

When I found out the real reason and I felt like I would go insane. To the point where I thought I might already be insane.

There's a blue color window floating in my vision and it says this.

【Bed(Infant use)】

What? In the world is this?

No matter what I look at regardless of whether it's a blanket or a piece of cloth as long as I can touch it the name is displayed in Japanese. However, after a short while I got bored of it.

After another short while it seems that they give names to babies that are over one year old. I already knew that I had splendid name, Myul. Why at this late point? Is what I was thinking but suddenly it came to me. I couldn't help but to touch my face and say it.

"Status Open"

【

【Male/14/2/7428】

【Human Race】

【Special Skill: Disguise Lv.0】

【Unique Ability: Resistance(Paralysis)】

Oh~ I can use it on myself as well. Since there's more details shown the window gets bigger as well. Come to think of it everyone would touch my head and hand while saying it. I don't get what special skills and unique abilities are and the different colors of the words bothers me a bit as well but I guess this is my status. I guess the reason I have no name is because I wasn't named yet? I wonder if it'll change once I'm named?

A short while after that the naming ceremony took place and just as expected it changed.

【Myuneil.Sagal/15/4/7429】
【Male/14/2/7428】
【Human Race.Sagal Family Fourth Son】
【Special Skill: Disguise Lv.0】
【Unique Ability: Resistance(Paralysis)】

Oh~ so my real name was Myuneil.Sagal? Myul was just a nickname I guess. However, to think I was the fourth son. It seems that I still have some older brothers and sisters but I only knew about an older brother 5–6 years older than me and an older sister that's about 10 years older. That's why I could have sworn I was the second son.

My father almost never shows his face but he looks like he's long-since passed 40, my mother looks like she's just passed 20 years old. Other than that, there's a woman that seems to be the same age as my father but since I didn't know the words at first I thought she was a maid. After thinking carefully about it I realized there's no way my mother could have given birth to a sister that's more than 10 years older than me. It seems that both of them are father's wives. I'm envious but while she's a bit plump I have a loving wife. I'm sure I won't be able to see her again though so it's not much different than being dead.

Several years passed. It seems that I'm the heir to the Sagal family. Putting aside my older sister, I have at least one living older brother so why am I the heir? It was simple. It seems it's because I was born with the special skill "Disguise". It seems to be a rule that's been passed down through generations in the family that the next head is a male born with this special skill. Something like a special skill passed through the generations, what sort of fictional novel is this?

It seems that in reality the eldest son Myulail was supposed to succeed it but he died from disease when he was still young. Other than the eldest son it seems I have three older sisters but the eldest daughter Myulis has the same occupation as our father of being an intelligence agent and she's currently infiltrating a foreign country. The second daughter Myunelin was born without "Disguise" so she was raised normally and has already married into a different family. The third daughter Myulos is currently away from the house in the middle of training. It seems that the fourth daughter, sister Myutans also has "Disguise" but since she's a woman she's not only excluded from being able to succeed the family but she has to undergo strict training in order to infiltrate other countries. The second son Myulond also had disguise but when he was still young he died an accidental death due to overdoing it on training. The third son my older brother Myuleil unfortunately was born without "Disguise". For that reason rather than his first wife who was in her 40s my father took on a new wife and had her give birth to me.

Also, it seems that only his highness knows currently that the Sagal family inherits the family business of gathering intelligence. Up until last year it seems that the previous king was still alive but now it seems that other than our family only the current King knows that our family does spying activity. And it seems that even his highness himself doesn't know about our special skill "Disguise". I was strictly told that I must never tell anyone outside of the family about our special skill. Unique ability, secret special skill, and my occupation is a spy. This is really a novel or manga.

It seems that I'll start training to use my special skill in a few years as well. It seems that in order to use the "Disguise" special skill preparations are necessary. In the first place, even if I've noticed my special skill or unique ability since I don't know how to use them, there's no helping it. Thinking that I just spend everyday absent-minded. Since I'm going to become the head of the family after all, I doubt I'll end up being sent as a spy so I can rest easy.

It seems that the preparations to start training the special skill "Disguise" unusually require someone of the same gender, same race, and same birthday. If they can't prepare anyone like that then it seems that they find someone who's birthday is slightly off and it seems that someone of a different age works as well but in that case there's something like an affinity and if it doesn't match you supposedly can't use the special skill "Disguise". As long as your affinities match up and the preparations are done if you think about that person in your head then you can use the skill.

It seems that they couldn't find someone whose birthday matched for the eldest daughter Myulis but in the end she had good affinity with the second daughter who was born without "Disguise" so she was used as the base for her training. In other words the "Disguise" special skill is a skill that lets you falsify your status and skill levels to the person whose status you're copying.

It seems that they couldn't easily find a boy with the same birthday as me.

However, they found one in an unusual place. The heir of the king, his highness Alexander.Belgrid. It seems that name and your affiliation are based on the target selected for disguising so I can't hide it but other than that I can, in other words, if I can hide my special "Disguise" then it's hard to call perfect but at the very least similar to the eldest daughter Myulis I should be able to hide my special skill "Disguise". He barely passes a base for disguising.

It seems that in order to register(?) the base for disguising in your consciousness you need a portion of the body of the base you're disguising using. It seems that blood is the best. It's by chance but as a front our Sagal family is a squire family that directly serves the King. Every time father was appearing in the castle he was frantically, quite literally with bloodshot eyes, trying to find a hair of the prince but all of the hairs brought back were of people who I had no affinity with. I can't even remember how many hairs I was made to eat but I remember feeling sick to my stomach countless times. Eventually father was able to discover a person who had the same birth date as the prince, in other words the same birth date as me as well. This one was a surprise as well since it was the eldest son of Duke Stahlz, Senleid.Stahlz-sama.

If it's a duke's son then I guess you could say it's an easier choice than the prince. This time for sure father started running about like crazy in order to somehow get his hands on a hair or blood. He was finally able to get his hands on a hair around the time I turned 10 years old. By that point I had already obtained the blood of a different person so the hair of such a high person in the nobility was really necessary but it's certainly true that the more base samples you have to disguise to the better. It was an idea I only realized at this point but in the worst case I could disguise my status with the princes or duke's sons and act as their body double as I die, though I noticed that it wouldn't be a joke if I were seriously ordered to do it so I shut my mouth.

In any case, we got our hands on a hair from the stepchild of Duke Stahlz. Thinking I should add the additional data to my disguise bases I swallowed it and then used my special skill Disguise, afterwards when I used Status Open to confirm I was shocked to the point of falling over.

【Senlaid.Stahlz/21/1/7429】
【Male/14/2/7428】
【Human Duke Stahlz Eldest Son】
【Special Skill: Small Magic】 【Unique Ability: Ultra Recovery Lv. 4】

..What..the hell...looking back to three years ago from now, it was soon after the first disguise base was found and short while after I started to seriously take on my combat(since our official stance is that of a squire family we have to do sword and combat training) and language training, I ended up meeting God. I found out then that, Unique Abilities are something only the victims of that accident are born on Orth with...Not to mention this duke's son's Unique Ability is extremely high at level 4. If this was the magic special skill of an adult then the level is high enough to be seen as a full-fledged magician. I wonder if this guy learned how to use his Unique Ability quite a while ago? Furthermore, even when I'm using disguise Unique Abilities can't be seen by strangers from Status Open so that was a relief.

This is a chance. I wonder if somehow I can make contact with this Senlaid.Stahlz? If they're Japanese and the stepchild of a Duke then by using them as a mediator I could get promoted. Since the Sagal family is that of squires that directly serve the King, I'm sure it would take the shape of me serving them in the background but that's fine. If I receive some money then I can get a bit closer to living a comfortable life. I'm sure the words "home town familiarity" exist even on Orth.

I twisted my head over how to get into contact with him. The best method would be to meet him in person but it's a bit too unrealistic I'm sure. The next method is to write a letter but we're not familiar enough to suddenly exchange letters. In the first place, since it was a hair that was obtained in secret it's strange to write a letter of thanks. The Sagal family is certainly a lineage that directly serves the King but for the sake of training the family, we live in a place away from the capital. Only father periodically appears in the castle. I guess there's no helping it right now? I continued my days of studying language and training with the sword to inherit head of the family while worrying endlessly.

However, the situation underwent a sudden change. During the spring of the next year, there was a garden party held by his majesty. There's a garden party held once a year and all of the officials soldiers, and influential nobles from the regional areas are invited. The Sagal family is one of the few squire families that directly serves the King. Our social standing is low but since we have the position of directly serving his majesty we're invited to the garden party every year. Father and mother always go but by chance mother's condition wasn't good this year so I started throwing a tantrum which I rarely ever do that I wanted to go. I wanted to make use of this chance to somehow get close to the duke's son Stahlz.

On the location of the garden party the children were gathered together a corner where they won't get in the way of the adults conversations. I went out to the garden party feeling excited but let alone the duke's son, I wasn't even able to meet the prince. The royalty that is the Belgrid family and the Duke that is the Stahlz family including Dantes Duke's territory have a different treatment in Devas Kingdom in the first place. Their children are different from the children of normal nobles in how they're treated so they are in the formal garden party mixing together with the adults.

I wonder what in the world I should do? I twisted my head but no good ideas came to mind. I was drinking some juice while watching a child a bit younger than me drawing something like a picture on the ground. In that instant, it came to me. It's a one in eight gamble. If they're Japanese then they should definitely notice it. If they don't notice it and in the worst case it's ignored, if I just pretend that I accidentally had some alcohol and pretend to be drunk I'm sure I won't be criticized too much. I'm still 11 years old after all.

In any case, for the sake of my excuse I need some alcohol. I quietly sneaked out of the area where the children were gathered together and moved along the edge of the garden party hiding from the eyes of the patrol knights or squires before drinking some wine from the barrel and then I returned to my original location before taking off a tablecloth. And then I spit some of the red wine I had in my mouth into the center of the table cloth. It's an improvised Japanese flag. In order to stand out with this I'll climb a tree and wave it around.

I drag along the table cloth while climbing a tree. The children are clapping their hands and laughing. I stretched out the table cloth widely and started swinging it. By the time I had started to swing it around the knights and squires had already started to gather to try and take down a stupid child who climbed a tree before they get hurt. I don't have much time.

I wonder if they noticed the disturbance? I'm a bit worried but I keep ignoring the knights words of "it's dangerous so climb down" while I keep waving my improvised Japanese flag. I'm already down to my last resort. Just when I thought about yelling something in Japanese, from the garden party I saw two children start walking over here. After being pulled down by the knights I continued to pretend like I was drunk but when the child called out "open the path" I replied in Japanese with "I'm saved you noticed it." I won my bet.

Unexpectedly the prince was a Japanese person as well. It was the first time they had met a Japanese person other than themselves as well it seems. Since I can't afford to talk about my special skill, I said I caught sight of them from a distance and since I was sure they were Japanese I couldn't take any other action than that to cover it up but it seems they believed it without particularly doubting me. Since the three of us have black hair and eyes and our features look somewhat Japanese, there's no way to hide the fact that our features are Japanese enough for a Japanese person to recognize after all.

I thought I couldn't afford to talk about the special skill "Disguise" but when they requested to use Status Open on me I released it. I had several samples for "Disguise" but the only sample I could use with a Unique Ability was the duke's son. Since having the same Unique Ability contradicts the conditions that God mentioned even if my name was the same they would be suspicious of it. It would probably be best to remain quiet that I have the duke's son's data as a base for "Disguise". From here on out I'll try to get the prince's status in secret as well.

After that, the three of us met a number of times. It seems the two of them were victims from the train side. I'll remain quiet about the fact that I was the driver of the bus. Everyone already knows the cause of the accident but in the worst case if someone holds a grudge against me it could be troublesome. If I just say that I was a salary-man then it won't be suspicious. Since there was no need to lie about anything other than my occupation I just talked about everything.

It seems that the prince and duke's son met five years ago, at the point they were six years old. They were just starting to think about how the two of them could search for other Japanese people. Even if you say to search for black hair and black eyes the Kingdom is vast and since both of them are still children at this point they don't have any authority to move officials or the army. Thinking they should make the country a better place, while they're testing out various things, since just like me they have no knowledge of agriculture at all they didn't even know where to start.

There was also the idea to strengthen the army by making black gunpowder but if they were to start making it right now without holding any sort of power it could end up becoming a hindrance in the future when they intend to usurp the authority from the country so they still haven't tested gunpowder yet. The skirmishes with Rombert Kingdom have already turned into a periodic event that's just a framework, since there's occasionally some losing and winning they came to the conclusion that it wasn't urgent business since in some meanings things are stable.

When I complained about me being the only commoner among the heirs to royalty and a duke, I received their word that one day they'll get a grasp on authority and make me into a noble as well so I accepted it. It seems that I need to make some decent achievements but I thought the conditions were better than doing a job with no prospects for the future at all.

I talked to them about my families business as well. When I told them that I was forbidden from speaking about it by my father and the only one who currently knows that my family spies on foreign countries is the King, in other words the prince's father, and the two of them were pleased. We also came up with a plan to somehow get rid of or force my father into retirement after I become an adult so I can grasp the power over my family.

We exchanged various information and guesses about Orth. Most of it was centered around things we heard from God but it seems that when the duke's son met the prince he still hadn't met God. It seems that the prince had about 3 minutes of question time but he regretted not being able to ask anything important. That's why the two of them came up with a number of questions to ask God on the occasion the duke's son meets with God ahead of time. And it seems the duke's son memorized those questions. In reality when the duke's son actually ended up meeting God he only had 1 minute to ask questions the same as me so he wasn't able to ask all of the questions they had prepared in advance but rather than the prince and I who only came up with questions on our own he was able to find out quite a bit more.

It seems that a rough outline of it was about how the Japanese people that reincarnated were scattered through various locations in Devas and Rombert Kingdoms. It seems that God wouldn't disclose the specific locations but even just this is advantageous information to search for future allies. If you know the location you were born then you can tell that there's no reincarnated people in the immediate surroundings after all. It seems that the prince wasn't born in the capital but in a villa in Radobagel around 200Km to the North of the capital. The Duke's son just the same wasn't born in the Duke's territory but rather even further North in Marquis Besshuwaid's territory, which seems to be his mother's house. I said was born in the East-Northeast over 100Km away from the capital Randoguriz in a village of my family as well.

Putting our stories together we came to the conclusion that it wouldn't be strange for a Japanese person to have born in the capital as well. In regards to the reincarnations on the Rombert side since it's a foreign country we had no choice but to ignore them since it can't be helped. That's only obvious. Also, among the information about advantages of reincarnating that we heard from God we thought about some of the uncertain points as well. I was relieved that their thinking on leveling up was the same as my own. In other words, increases in level to Unique Abilities and Special Skills are called leveling up. The time I met God should have been right after my "Disguise" special skill leveled up as well. This is something they confirmed by having the Duke's son level up in order to meet God. It seems that when his Unique Ability "Ultra Recovery" leveled God appeared.

In regards to those bonuses or whatever when leveling up we're still unsure but it seems to be related to the number of times we can use our special skills. It seems they were convinced it after nervously testing their special skills out when the skills increased in level. A short while after the level of special skills increase the number of times they can use it increases as well. My Disguise is level 3 right now but if I overdo it then I can use it over 10 times in a single day. Since there's almost no need to change the data-set with Disguise often there's not much meaning to it though. Once I use the special skill "Disguise" it keeps my status disguised for three hours. If I use it consecutively without sleeping then I can cover pretty much an entire day.

Since my Unique Ability hasn't leveled up I wonder if this one levels up the number of times it can be used increase as well? They were envious of the fact that I had two skills.

It seems that when we turn 13 years old through their introduction I can enter the number one knight group in the country the white phoenix knight group together with them. The one among us who has the highest aptitude as a knight will remain in the knight group and finally be the one to seize the army, is what we decided on. The remaining two will retire from the knight group as soon as they receive investiture and start moving to take control of the political authority.

I can tell from their expressions that they're putting their hopes on me. Among us the only one with no social standing close to politics is me. Even as a knight since I'm a commoner it would take some time to rise up. They pat me on the shoulder while saying "We'll back you up as much as we can. We'll make it so that even if you make some sort of small achievement you can easily rise up in the knight group. So we're counting on you". Damn it, so after all that's my role...Though you can say it can't be helped, once I become an official knight there's even the chance that I'll have to enter live combat you know, and all I could do is make complaints like that.

However, if I think about how even if I were to succeed the Sagal family, since

I'd still be a commoner unless something unusual happened I wouldn't be able to rise up then there's no mistake that my connections with the prince and Duke's son letting me enter the white phoenix knight group is certainly nothing but good things. My father, two mothers, and older brother were all pleased as well.

Furthermore, in regards to the spying but I reported that stuff without hiding the facts. In the first place since foreign countries are far away and there's nothing like wireless devices there's nothing like intelligence exchanges in real time. The information that comes in, or rather the best information we get is the name of the commanders of the next unit being dispatched here. If the commander is over a Viscount then the amount of ransom gets enormous so we aim for those times and send the elite knights in bulk. If we can luckily manage to capture them there's nothing more to say.

In the first place it seems like a large war that has to do with the life or death of the country only happen at a frequency of once in a lifetime so the things we can learn from Rombert King and Kanbitt Kingdom on a normal basis isn't all that important. As expected if we could move several thousand or tens of thousand then the intelligence network of the Sagal's would be able to catch on to anything in the early stages. If we can just get a grasp on their numbers since the speed of the advance is extremely slow we're fine even taking our time to prepare.

All three of us know full well that the information war is important as well but it's not like this is modern day Earth, things like a rebellion that starts right after the outbreak of a war are unlikely. In terms of military affairs if we can just earn some decent ransoms as a bonus from the conflicts along the borders then that's no problem. Even the struggles on the Dirt Plains is something that just happens in momentum between the two countries. It's certainly a good plot of land but(none of us three have actually seen the Dirt Plains) if you were to seriously grain and obtain it you would need to concentrate even more forces there and quickly take over some sort of choke point, then pour even more people in that choke point until you can fortify it into some sorts, then you should be able to have the advantage there at any point, or at least that was the opinion of the three of us.

We came to the conclusion that this is something we should leave ourselves as a future achievement. Though it is a bit worrying whether the Rombert side might do this first but in that case, we tried reversing our way of thinking on it. If someone were actually to try doing that then it would almost be guaranteed they're the same Japanese as us. In that case there should be some room for conversation and while we'll be at a bit of a disadvantage we can claim our rights to it and at least get them to recognize that. If it's between two Japanese then they should comply to things like mutual profit, as a result of that, we could gain the achievement of protecting the country from a large scale invasion through just negotiations as well, so we've decided to ignore it for now.

Rather than that in our to raise the national power, we need to reform the social structure, and make innovations on the technological portions and in terms of reform rather than aiming for a military based government we thought a socialist government would be better. The current system has a lot of useless points to it and it's easy for talented individuals to get buried but trying to make large changes to this is difficult and above all it could end up threatening our privileges. Making it into a democratic republic might be good as well but it should be fine if we just create the foundation for it to become like that after we all die. In order to keep Rombert Kingdom in check we need as much military power as possible but rather that might end up stimulating the Japanese that should be on their side so we're holding back on that end and rather focusing our military forces in the direction of Kanbitt Kingdom where there's believed to be no Japanese people, we'll focus our ambitions for more territory there, increase national power, aim to rival Rombert Kingdom in strength, and we came to the conclusion that after that we would make a treaty of friendship for both of our sake.

There were a number of reasons for this but the biggest one is that if we were to seriously fight with Rombert Kingdom right now, no matter how we thought about it unless we make use of new weapons, Devas Kingdom has no chance of winning. The new weapon is firearms. It seems they started making black gunpowder before they met me but it was quite crude and it seems it could only be used as an explosive or to launch off something like a cannon. It seems that the primary cause is how beyond developments are in regards to technology of manufacturing metals. I don't really know much about it but it seems that in order to make guns you need durable iron and steel and the current techniques to make swords and spears are nowhere near that level.

Since the Duke's son used to be a police officer that was a part of public safety, he had some knowledge about weapons and that was the conclusion he came to as a result of various investigations. The guns we're familiar with can't be created. The best we can make is matchlock guns. However, because of the immaturity of techniques to manufacture metals and the fact that we don't remember the ratios for metal alloys in the end even if we make matchlocks it would be about the same. Even then it would be something crude that can barely fire off several shots and has no method of properly being aimed. When it comes to a metal shield or suit of armor then unless they were considerably close it wouldn't be able to deal a fatal blow either. The crossbow feels like far more of a threat. Is what they concluded.

Even then I tried insisting that guns are strong and we should make a ton of them like Oda Nobunaga and have them fired in three stages. And then the prince objected. It seems they can't afford to make several thousand guns. Currently there's only a handful number of people who can use the highest level of techniques in metalworking and in order to spread knowledge about techniques something like the development of the printing press would be necessary. If we push ourselves it seems we could somehow make the printing press but since there's no technological development towards the foundations of it, it would just be used for news and wouldn't help much at all for spreading technologies. Unless we can do something like printing pictures or illustrations it's close to an empty dream is what they said. What about woodblock printing? is what I tried saying but it seems that minute figures and pictures require a considerably amount of work and even just making enough text for one book would take several years. In that case even I understood partway through that it would be faster to just make a copy by hand.

Their conclusions were the same as well. Even if it comes to trying to do something about it with magic, the three of us still haven't started magic training yet and according to the stories I've heard magic isn't something as convenient as that. It shows peerless power in regards to healing injuries and it can be used for attacking as well but when it comes to large scale things like wars a magician on the level of the imperial court sorcerers are needed and since there's only a few of them in the country it isn't worth taking into consideration. Of course, magicians are a strategic weapon, no, a valuable force that can influence a local battle so we decided to try and gather as many of them as we can either way.

It seems that only one in ten people can use magic and even among those only a small handful are talented with it. It seems even for those talented people it's considered plenty if they can use a weak magic like {Fire Ball} twice and the imperial court sorcerer Count Robotoni can at most use two shots of {Fire Ball} with a reasonable power as well. Even then the power of that attack when aimed at a group of people crowded together it will kill one person it hits directly and injure another two or three nearby. If they hold back the number of uses and pour their mana into the damage then it seems it's just a bit stronger than dynamite. However, even if it's just one blast of dynamite it has the ability to change the flower of the battlefield. It seems that a first-class magician has void magic of level 5. It seems that there's only about 100 people at that level in Devas Kingdom right now. The one who was the top imperial court sorcerer until last year has void magic at level 6.

If it was just something on that level then even if they blast one or two shots into an army of several thousand or several tens of thousands there's no way they could overturn the battlefield. After that it seems that if their level with elemental magic like earth magic is high then they can bury them to death but it seems that even with level 4 it uses a considerably amount of mana just to bury one person to death so it's unrealistic. It seems it's not unrealistic unless they're at least at level 5 but let alone the imperial court sorcerers, since the top class adventurers challenging the dungeon Benkelish only finally have level 5 elemental magic, they're far too valuable of talents. It's more frightening you might get hit by a stray arrow and die.

Rombert Kingdom and Kanbitt Kingdom are different from Devas Kingdom in that they have a reasonable amount of national power and quite a few magicians as well. According to rumors the top court sorcerer of Rombert reached void magic level 7 this year. In that case then their elemental magics should be at least level 5 or 6. I'm sure that it's necessary to train magicians for military purposes as well.

In other words we can't create any guns of decent quality, mass production is pretty much impossible, magic is crude in terms of attack power, and at best can be used to protect a commander from sudden attacks. Is the conclusion we arrived at. It seems that a frontal attack from an army with decent numbers is the strongest. For that sake it takes a considerable amount of time. We arrived at the conclusion that it wasn't something we could complete in just a plan that covered a matter of five years or so. There's almost no path other than spending the next ten or more years strengthening the army. In order to accomplish that it's necessary to raise the potential of the country and slowly increase the national power as well.

The conclusion they arrived, seems to have been to propose introducing livestock in agriculture. However, the cost of horses and cattle is extremely high and a weakness is it's difficult to increase their numbers. It seems that they're currently focusing their nerves on gathering information in that regards and trying to overcome superstitions.

It was one such day. While the three of us were in the usual empty space of the royal castle discussing our plans in Japanese a single imperial court sorcerer passed by us. Even though they're an imperial court sorcerer it's not as if they're always taking part in military activities. Rather than the magicians are closer to something like scholars in treatment and they often partake in politics and office work. Imperial court sorcerer is something like a title.

"Oh my? If it isn't Prince Alexander and his friends, the weather out today is quite good isn't it. Should I request for one of the slaves to bring you all something to drink?"

The imperial court sorcerer said while smiling.

"Ah, Baron Geguran huh? I guess so, anything is fine, so would you ask for them bring out something for everyone?"

After Alex said that and the court sorcerer called Geguran responded.

"I understand. Is peach-roll juice good? By the way, it seems that everyone's hair and eye color is the same. As a matter of fact my daughter is the same as well, she has black hair and eyes as well. If it's alright with you, would you include her in your group?"

Geguran might have simply just wanted to have his daughter get closer to royalty and the Duke's son. However, all three of us lost our words at hearing his statement. After the prince somehow managed recover he said.

"Ah, Yeah, peach-roll juice is fine. And then, baron. In regards to the Baron's daughter but there's no problem with at least meeting her. Si..Since we're all men over here, I don't know if we'll be able to get on good terms with her so I can't promise that we'll include her in our group though.."

"I understand, then I'll have someone prepare three cups of peach-roll juice. In regards to my daughter please don't mind it, it was just something like a greeting. Just as you said, I wasn't seriously thinking of adding her into a group of men."

Geguran said that but this time we were the ones who were interested.

"Ah, no, since it's just men we sometimes get a bit crude with our conversations so I would definitely like if you introduced her to us next time? I'm counting on you."

After Alex said that and Geguran apologized for the trouble but after Alex forcefully told him to bring her tomorrow he finally released Geguran.

After that we discussed it quite excited but we also laughed that it was getting impatient when we still don't know if it's really a Japanese person.

The next day, Baron Geguran brought along a girl who introduced herself as Rentia. Geguran and joined us as our fourth ally. Thanks to the knowledge about magic she brought us we all ended up becoming her disciples and started magic training.

.....

The following year, we received news that the eldest daughter Myulis who was infiltrating Rombert Kingdom had passed away. We couldn't tell the circumstances but it doesn't seem that her identity was exposed but rather she just happened to get killed by a monster by chance. The Duke's son lamented that one of our pawns for gathering information was lost but the prince and I just saw her as a single long-term spy that had been useless up until now so we weren't bothered over it at all. Something like an eldest daughter that I've never met and who left the house before I was born, she's on the same level as a stranger who's name I had heard of before.

I finally was able to use magic. Other than void magic it seems I had aptitude with all elements except for fire. Ren can use all elemental magic. Her talent with magic is no comparison to us and she seems to be quite skilled on that end. According to what she said her void magic was already at level 4. Truly a genius of magic. It seems her Unique Ability was related to magic as well and all of us agreed that she's the future top court sorcerer in our group.

Our future is bright.

Author's note: (Translator: there's some notes in regards to Myun's special skill "Disguise/Deception" and how it's easier to copy stats based on blood types/genetics, etc... Also an abbreviated chronology of how Myun was born in 7409 and a listing of all the members of the Sagal family since they have such similar names. Also how Myuns real name is Myulis, and Myunerlin was her little sister who's status she used as a disguise base.)

Chapter 89: 2nd Floor

Year 7442, Month 9, Day 1

“Then, shall we go. Is everyone ready?”

After confirming that everyone nodded I teleported us into the dungeon. We started carefully examining our surroundings and determine our current location using the map. Going off the number it's probably around here.

After advancing down the cave for a short while and it turned right. Soon after that there was a split path. Ah, then, after all our current location is here... In that case then we have to pass through three rooms in order to get to the teleport crystal to the 2nd floor. Usually it's dangerous we turn back and re-enter the dungeon to avoid the rooms but since we're aiming for the 2nd floor starting today we can't mind it. We just advance forward. Since we have the map of traps as well it's become quite easy to explore the dungeon. I wonder if we can make it to the 2nd floor in today? It would be good if no one gets hurt though.

After moving ahead for about 30 minutes and we arrived at the first room. I said in advance that I would wipe out the monsters in the rooms. When I tried peeking in with Identify and it was a Green Slime. Hmph, it's already exposed that you're weak to fire. I sterilize the deep green viscous liquid like sewage with {Flamethrower}.

I easily burnt the close to 30 slimes in the room with the spell {Flamethrower} while standing at the entrance. Angela was watching that spectacle with her mouth wide open. How's a glimpse of your master's true ability? Hn? I won't easily throw away the lives of my slaves. Since I'm a cheapskate after all. I think I probably burnt them all to death. I tell everyone to start searching for the bonus items that are the magic stones and items of deceased adventurers while I keep watch in case monsters come to the room from the path further in.

After a short while it seems that gathering the items was completed. After all it seems that there were some worn-out swords and spears but they are all too old and covered in rust so it was just stuff that hadn't even retained their original shapes. It seems that no one had entered it recently. Since we obtained close to 1,000,000 Z in cash mostly in silver coins then I guess that's enough to call plenty.

We quickly started down the cave going further in. We continue for another ten or so minutes while being careful to avoid traps. We should arrive at the next room soon. Now then, I wonder what is making it's nest in this room? Even after looking in from the entrance with Identify vision I wasn't able to see the monster. I wonder if it's hiding near the edge? I slowly approach the entrance of the room...There it is. It's like a huge insect. It has four legs and there's two feeler like tentacles growing from the sides of it's small head. It's body gets thinner as it nears the tail and at the end of it's tail there was a strange protuberance like a propeller. When I tried Identifying it and it was a "Propeller Tail".

Hmm. It's my first time against it. It's not too late to slowly read the Identify window after I kill it. I put the sling-belt of my bayonet on my shoulder and fire {Lightning Bolt} with my left hand and then immediately launched a {Stone Javelin Missile} with my right hand killing it. I feel like it probably would have died with just the {Lightning Bolt}. Since I did even further damage to the corpse it just comes up as Corpse (Propeller Tail) with Identify now. Well I guess it's fine. Since there doesn't seem to be anything else I guess we should head for the next room. Since I've already heard about this thing from Angela there's no need to make the foolish move of trying to take the magic stone from this monster.

It seems that Propeller Tail's have a special skill where any metal that touches those feelers or tentacles rust away. If you touch them with a knife on accident then it's already too late. And I'm sure any items of adventurers have just become a mountain of rust as well. It's best to just ignore them. If the corpse is still remaining on our way back and I have room to spare with my stamina and mana then I'll use earth magic to made a stone axe or something to disassemble it with. Well, I think we'll end up returning to the entrance directly from the teleport crystal of the 2nd floor though.

Up until here we've still only fought against the monsters in the rooms so far this time. If it's like this then we should be able to make it to the 2nd floor in perfect condition. Since we don't have a map for the 2nd floor we're just going to check out how things look and then return though.

We continue ahead again. Along the way there were 6 gnolls wandering around. It's fine to let my subordinates earn some experience as well but we're heading towards the 2nd floor today. I still have an excessive amount of MP after all, there's no point in being stingy with it. I felt like I wanted to show Angela my close combat skills as well so I raised my head but when I was about to put power into my legs and charge in I thought again and just killed them safely with magic.

And we arrived at the room which should be the last one. I couldn't see the enemy this time at a glance as well. However, I already know the enemies identity. If the map of the cave we've gone through up until now is correct (probably, at least on the path up until now I'm sure it's correct) then this room should be connected at the corner.

I'm sure I won't be able to see inside of the room until I get considerably close to it. However, I can grasp it plenty from here. I can see a huge spider web at the edge. I guess this is the entrance of the "Gargantuan Spider" I had heard about? I guess it's fine if I just burn the spider webs with fire magic.

I immediately shot a {Fire Ball} in. It hit the edge of the spider web and sent burning stones flying all around the surroundings. It seems that the spider web is burning well. I quickly raised both of my hands and use {Flamethrower} to send flames spewing out as I enter the room. There it is. In the center of the spider web in the middle of the room there's a huge spider that's about 2 m high, probably about 5 m if it spreads it's legs out. I sent my {Flamethrower} flying aimed at it. The small hairs all over the surface of its body caught fire. The spider is rolling around in pain.

Without letting my guard down I continue pouring mana into the {Flamethrower} increasing the intensity of the flames and burnt it to death. Since it seems these have poison, I didn't want to fight it in close combat. After I safely killed the "Gargantuan Spider" I looked around inside of the room.

Mu, is that..an egg..No, a cocoon?

There's prey wrapped up in what seems to be cocoons all over the spider's web. Goblins, gnolls, and even some adventurers that fell victim to it. Since it seems they died quite a while back we couldn't save them. The items we found that were in good condition were three long swords, two broad swords, and two spears. We couldn't find any shields. Also, we found close to 1,300,000 Z in money. Uhha. It's a large haul. The magic stone of Gargantuan Spider had a value of close to 10,000. If we sell it then it should come out close to 70,000 Z.

I peaked into the other caves confirming if it was safe while watching my subordinates gather the items. Hmn, we've earned quite a bit Oh~ that sword is in considerably good condition. However, the end of that spear is broken. Since it isn't rusted I guess we should at least take it with us.

After that we continued walking for close to an hour, after blowing away the goblins and gnolls we met along the way with magic we were safely able to arrive at the small room of about 30 m in every direction with the teleport crystal rod to the 2nd floor. I guess we should take a small break here. I tried asking Zenom the time and he checked the time on the clock magic tool. It seems it's still just past 10 am.

It's just the right time for having some tea. As expected we didn't bring any water that will add to our luggage in the dungeon but we've at least prepared flasks. I use water and fire magic to create hot water and put it and some tea leaves into each persons flask. Putting it frankly the tea of Orth isn't all that good. I guess it's different from the tea of Earth. The bean tea that I like needs boiled beans to make so as expected we can't prepare it here.

We took a break while everyone was blowing on our hot tea that doesn't taste particularly good.

Everyone was worrying about my remaining mana.

"Al, is your mana fine? You've used quite a bit of magic right? Isn't it best to turn back for today?"

Zenom said that.

"That's right. It seems that the monsters on the 2nd floor are the same as the 1st floor but we can't take things back in the worst case situation."

Ralpa said that as well.

I guess since Bel has limited knowledge about magic she's making a face like she doesn't really understand.

Zulu is sipping his tea while remaining cautious of the cave connecting to the small room.

Angela is looking at me in a daze.

I started to feel the urge to start bragging to Angela but I already said I would listen to her opinion after we reach the 3rd floor. Even if I ask her opinion here I'm sure it'll probably just be my boasting so I'll remain quiet.

"Ah, I'm still fine. Then, let's take a look around the 2nd floor for a bit before returning today I guess. Let me drink some tea before that."

It's true that I've used up some MP after fighting several times but I still have around 7,100 remaining. I haven't even used 500. Particularly against the spider or the Propeller Tail that seemed like they could be strong opponents I didn't hesitate on adding extra mana in to kill them all at once. I even feel like I used too much. It seems like it would be best to master the method of using an appropriate amount of mana against those types of enemies as well. It's too inefficient. I guess I should keep entering the dungeon alone on my days off for a while longer.

The sounds of pointless chatting and sipping of tea echo through the teleport room. And then we started to hear multiple footsteps from somewhere. Is it monsters!? We throw out our tea and after throwing our flasks into the corner of the room we stand up with our weapons in hand.

We watch the cave where the footsteps are coming from. After a short while a party made up of 8 people appeared. There was the color green mixed into their equipment and the cloth wrapped on their arms. There's a face I've seen before. The {Verdure Brotherhood} huh?

After the elf leader saw us in the room and he opened his mouth.

"Oh~ so there was someone who got here faster than us huh...Those are faces I don't know. I'm Robert. My name is Robert Vilhaima. I'm the leader of this {Verdure Brotherhood}. Who's you guys leader? Why don't we talk for a bit?"

Oh~ his voice is quite a bit deeper than I imagined. Since the appearance of elves is beautiful, even though he's a decent age, I imagined his voice would be higher.

"I'm the leader. My name is Alan Greed."

After I named myself and the members of the {Verdure Brother} started laughing.

"So that dwarf wasn't the leader."

"Isn't he still a brat?"

"That's some weird armor."

"One brat and two young girls. For half of the party to be kids.."

"The Laios man and Dog Warrior woman seem like they can fight decently well."

"Since they don't even have any blood on their clothes, did they manage to get lucky and arrive here without fighting?"

"Since you always have to pass through at least one large room after all, they probably just passed through after someone else killed the boss."

They're saying whatever they please all on their own. Well I understand their feelings though. Even if we're made fun of a bit by super veterans like them I don't even feel the urge to get angry.

"Hey, leave things around there. Sorry about that, Greed-kun. We want to go to the 2nd floor. I'm sorry to say it when we came afterwards, but do you mind if we teleport first?"

Just as you would expect from the leader of a top team, he didn't pointlessly look down on me in his statements. Yeah. The wealthy don't pick fights.

"Yeah, please do. We intended to go ahead after we took a short break, so feel free.."

After I said that and,

"Hey, let's go...do.ge.nu huh? Everyone's properly grabbed on to it right. Dogenu!"

After saying that and an instant when they seemed to turn half-transparent they disappeared leaving behind something like a powder of light. So this is how teleportation feels looking from the outside.

“What was that? They were acting so arrogant~”

Ralpa looks displeased while saying.

“They’re {Verdure Brotherhood}. One of the top teams in Baldukk. Supposedly they’ve reached the 5th floor..”

Angela replies to her. I guess they’re famous, as expected of a top team.

“I don’t get what it is about greed but I already knew since I just heard their name. In any case their attitude is too L. Do they have green rust growing in their heads or something?”

How many decades has it been since I heard attitude L. Ralpa, you, aren’t you seriously lying about your age...even if you are though it doesn’t cause any sort of harm. It’s stating false details on your resume..Ah, I didn’t have her write something like a resume.

“The 5th floor huh..That’s amazing.”

Zulu whispered while showing admiration.

“I’m sure they have a considerable amount of skill as well.”

Bel continued after Zulu.

“Well they can say that because they have that much level of ability. I can understand just from seeing them. All of them were considerably strong.”

Zenom said that closing things.

After gathering our flasks we inspect our equipment.

“Then, it’s not like we’ll end up teleporting to the same place as them so let’s go as well. We’re just taking a look for today. After we do that for a bit we’ll return.”

I said that while putting my flask into my bag and read the purple chant that floated to the surface of the teleport crystal rod. Do.ru.he.me huh. The chant that’s in yellow is the one used to return to the surface. The “return us” one.

I'm sure it teleports you to one of the large amount of small rooms lined up along the teleport room near the entrance.

"Then let's go...Everyone's holding onto it right. Doru he me!"

.....

At first glance the 2nd floor resembled the 1st floor but there's a lot of humidity. If it's this much then collecting the articles of deceased adventurers on the 2nd floor probably requires more luck than the 1st floor.

The teleport crystal rod is in the center of a cave that somehow feels very humid. We were able to confirm a symbol-like indicator as well. We searched the wall as well but we weren't able to find any place with a number carved into it. I wonder if there's no map with the teleport locations on it for the 2nd floor like the 1st floor..even if there was I'm sure the price is even more outrageous though.

Either way it's our first time after all, no matter which hall we go down I'm sure there's not much difference. I randomly said "lets try going this way" and started leading the way. Quickly Zenom lined up to my right and started hitting the ground with a 3 m or so pole. After spending time slowly going down a slightly curved cave for about 100 m or so. The sound of the pole hitting the floor changed. A trap huh? We hit around the trap that seems to be a pitfall looking for the method around it but there was the same light sound from every direction.

No way, are you serious? There's pitfalls which completely block the path?

Everyone looked at me. 1. Return and go down the opposite hall. 2. Return and go down the opposite hall. 3. Return and go down the opposite hall. Is there anything else we can do!? Why are you looking at my face?

"Let's return. We'll try going down the opposite side of the teleport crystal."

Since we don't need to be careful of traps, we walk back down the path we just came from. It took us about 15 minutes to carefully walk up to here but we were able to return to the teleport crystal in less than 2 minutes. Now then, let's try going down the opposite side.

Just the same way we start carefully going down the opposite side while hitting the ground. This when we advanced about 200 m we heard the sound change again. We carefully tried hitting some other places . Yeah, the sound on all of them is light.

..Aren't we surrounded by pitfalls on both sides!

Ah~ Shit.

"Everyone, take a few steps back. I don't know what will happen but I wanted to try it a bit."

Further. Step back further. I lead everyone to about 40 m behind where the pitfall seemed to be. I stand in front of everyone and used wind magic to blow the sand on the trap away. I was doing it all the time when I explored during my experiment but I never found a trap with this method. I wonder what will happen when I know there's a trap for sure, is what I thought while feeling like trying it.

Baon!

A large amount of air suddenly was generated and I used void magic to make it expand only in front of me, or rather, I use wind magic to make a wall that's sending it back only ahead of me. The diameter of the cave is around 10 m so the amount of air created with level 5 wind magic should be plenty. Unless there's a large room ahead of here then if I think about it really simply then I should create enough volume of air released in one direction to cover up to 270 m ahead of me in an instant.

Since it seems like everyone didn't know what I was going to do, I said I was going to use wind magic to create a large amount of air and use it like an {Air Pump} then Ralpa and Bel understood. However, let alone {Pump} the other three have no idea what an {Air Pump} is. They were making a strange but I just ignored it. Zenom can probably guess the situation right away so that's fine but I'm sure Zulu and Angela wouldn't know. Though that can't be helped.

If they're thinking something so naive that we'll explain every word they don't know to them then I'll blow that thinking away at the same time. It's not like I know the words and names of everything on Orth either. If I hear someone talking about a type of product that I don't know then I think I would want an explanation about it but I at least think of the time and the place. If you're really interested then take your time and ask after we leave the dungeon.

I try going and taking a look at the place where the trap is. It can't be called completely gone but the dirt on the surface was somewhat brushed away. Yeah, it was the right answer to blow it away with wind magic it seems. It almost covers the entirety of the hall and it has a depth of about 4–5 m into the other side of the hall. It's absurdly mysterious. As proof of that everyone including me has their mouths opened dumbfounded at the trap.

The pitfall opened up. It's probably not all that deep. I can even see the bottom. I guess it's around 3 m?

Right. I can see the bottom. There's a board or something with dirt on top of it to camouflage it and it's not like I can see the board itself. Was the board blown away together with it? Since it was covering up a pitfall that's about 4–5 m across, the size of the board would need to be at least 7-8m. It depends on the material but if that wasn't the case then it would curve I'm sure. Well, if even if several layers of boards like that were blown away even with the low amount of light it's strange that we wouldn't notice it, and I'm sure it would make a noise. I didn't create enough air for it to blow away a board of that length and a decent amount of thickness far enough to be beyond our sight.

I timidly grab a bit on the floor while scraping it off and (since all of the dirt that I could easily grab was blown away) threw it at the hole. I already knew the outcome before I threw it but I couldn't keep myself from trying it.

Just as I predicted the dirt that I threw was floating on the ground. If you're asking why I was able to predict it and it's because not all of the dirt that was on the surface of the pitfall was cleanly blown away. No, you could say it was blown away but it was just a portion of what was on it. I did say "the dirt on the surface was somewhat brushed away" right?

I'll try identifying it. After all it seems to be an object that can be targeted. In other words it's not a vapor, or at least not just a vapor.

【Besshuz.Floating Disk.Automending】

【Wind.Void】

【Condition: Good】

【Manufacture Date: -/-/-】

【Value: -】

..It was magic. Not to mention a type that I don't know. Well, the number of spells I know isn't all that large of a number. It seems to be a combination of wind and void magic and it's currently activating normally I guess. The value of manufacture date aren't normally displayed in the case of magic so that's no problem.

The problem is the fact that I can Identify the magic, or rather spell name. Normally, even if you identify the phenomenon that occurs when you use a spell nothing happens. Even if you use identify on the warhead or flame you create while it's in the middle of flying it just shows the type of magic and the condition of it.

There's nowhere I can open on the sub-window.

Zenom is hitting it with the pole. I can hear a light sound from it.

Zulu is stabbing it with the end of his two-handed sword.

Bel is trying to poke it with the of her sword as well.

Angela is timidly stretching out the end of her broad sword as well.

Only Ralpa was different. She's tapping it with the end of her foot. As expected.

"It feels kind of like I'm floating on water. It feels like it vaguely sinks down."

It's called floating disk after all. I guess I should call out to them pretty soon.

"Hey, Ralpa. That's dangerous so stop already."

Ralpa obediently pulled her foot back.

Now then, what should we do. The pitfall (?) on the other side is probably like this as well. Though it might be different but it's more natural to think that it's the same. We've been exploring the 1st floor for close to three months but we haven't tread on a trap even once, and we've never tried investigating the structure of a normal trap as well. Since we had seen pitfalls that had no cover like someone had already fallen into them a number of times I had already confirmed that even if you fall in there was nothing like spears or needles planted at the bottom. I figured that the only difference would be the shape of the hole so I never bothered trying to wipe away the dirt on the surface to investigate them.

There was never a case like this where the pitfall covered the entire hall of the cave as well. I was afraid that it might not just be the pitfall but some kind of switch and we might accidentally activate that.

However you know...as far as I can tell the depth of the hole is about 3 m. Even if you accidentally stepped on it without realizing it, I'm sure you would get hurt, if you were careless you might even get bone fracture, but I doubt you would die. Since the walls and floor seem like dirt. It doesn't like it was cleanly dug out as well. Obviously there's nothing like a corpse in it either.

"Alright, everyone, back away for a bit."

"What are you going to do?"

Bel tried asking.

"Fill it."

At the same time as I said that I held my hand over the pitfall and used earth magic to create dirt. Using my hand as the starting point the dirt appears in mid-air and falls down. It stopped in mid-air for a bit but in less than a second the floating disk spell was unable to endure the weight of the dirt and started sinking. Even if it wasn't all the way I was able to fill the hole. Since it's not like it's been stomped down I guess I'll add a bit more to it.

"I'm advancing."

After I said that I stuck my leg out and stepped down on the dirt. About 10 cm of my foot sunk into the dirt under my weight but there was no problem other than that. After I quickly crossed the pitfall everyone else came along with me.

That pitfall probably has a spell cast on it to create something like a magic board and that board can hold up a certain amount of weight, thinking that seems the most natural. I don't know if it's the weight of one person or so but when it exceeds a certain weight then the spell loses its effect. Going off the auto-mending it probably automatically restores itself or repairs itself afterwards I guess. I don't know what Besshuzu is though.

However, it seems like there's a considerable number of pitfall traps and since they're famous you can even hear about them pretty often from the mouths of adventurers in a bar. But, I've never heard of a pitfall like this before. This, is the 2nd floor right? It might be best to quickly level up Ralpa's Spatial Understanding and have her use it. Since it's still level 1 after all. Even if you say 10 m radius or so, it barely reaches the ceiling of the cave.

I was thinking about things like that while walking for a few minutes. It seems we still haven't proceeded very far since we crossed over the pitfall. We figured there wouldn't be another pitfall for at least 100 m or so after the last one so we continued hitting with the pole while moving about 30 m at a higher pace than usual when it happened. I discovered something ahead of us. It seems to be close to the floor.

It's a snake. It comes up as 【Cave.Rattlesnake】 with Identify. Level is 2. It's nothing special but it seems to have poison. The poison is...Neurotoxins huh? I guess you'll become unable to breathe. Close combat isn't a good idea.

Since there's just one of them, it seems like it would be good to kill it with a spell.

"There's a snake ahead. It would be bad if it has poison. I'll get rid of it."

I said that and used {Lightning Bolt} to kill the snake.

I got close to the snake's corpse and observed it for a bit. I was interested in it. The thickness is about 5 cm? It has a bit over 1 m in length. Just as the name sounds there's a rattle-like skin stuck to the end of its tail. Since I hit with electricity from the front its head is burnt. Che...I thought I might be able to gather the poison but I picked the wrong spell to use. However, I'm sure it would have been the same if I burned it to death with fire, and missile type would have smashed its body as well. Even if I smash it, I felt like the portion that has the head would still be alive after all. Well, you could say it's true I was afraid of the poison.

Zulu took the magic stone.

Furthermore, this time we carefully advanced forward. The path split up along the way. It's shaped like the letter Y and the right side feels the same as where we came from. I wonder what we should do?

Well, we had just came to the 2nd floor to take a look this time. We still haven't seen any actual combat on the 2nd floor yet but it might be about a good time. I asked Zenom the time and it was around 11 am. I guess we should return.

We returned to the 1st floor from the teleport crystal on the 2nd floor and then returned directly to the small room at entrance of the dungeon from there. We made 4,000,000 Z (4 gold coins) including the money from the items we found today. I gave Zenom and the others their monthly compensation for the start of the month of 200,000 Z (20 silver coins) and another 80,000 Z (8 silver coins) bonus to each of them. It's our first big profit in a while.

When we were having lunch I said to everyone.

"Let's gather information about the pitfall from today. I've never heard about something like that until now. Though there should be a considerable number of people who have gone to the 2nd floor. Though it's weird that I've never heard about it in the case. Zulu and Angela I'll give you money separately for you dinner for today. Let's all eat at different places and meet up at the usual restaurant for breakfast tomorrow morning. Is that fine?"

Everyone nodded. I handed Zulu and Angela some money and said "I'll try seeing if the knight group has any information on it." and left the restaurant.

I couldn't obtain any information on the strange pitfall from the knight group.

That evening I tried going to a random restaurant and asked some people that appeared to be adventurers about it but I was told they didn't know about that strange pitfall. Rather, they reacted to it like I was trying to sell them some sort of fake information or confuse them.

After I finished eating I did my running while thinking.

Hmm. Was it making it to the 3rd floor two months after we buy the map for the 2nd floor? I've started to get a bit worried if I can protect the promise I one-sided declared to Angela. Just a bit.

Chapter 90: Training

Year 7442, Month 9, Day 2

The next morning, after gathering at the restaurant we started to summarize all of the information we had gathered individually last night. However, it seems that no one was able to gather any information on that strange pitfall. Come to think of it, everyone is making slightly undecided expressions. I am as well though.

In any case, putting aside that pitfall the information we were able to gather on the 2nd floor is as follows.

1. According to legend it seems that there's a pond where fairies live on the 2nd floor but the only one who has confirmed this is the founder Rombert the First so it's believed to be a story for drunks.

There's no point thinking about that for now.

2. There's something like a fountain which spits out snakes.

Come to think of it, there was a snake. Well, I thought, if I stand near the fountain and burn the snakes to death with {Flamethrower} wouldn't I be able to earn all the experience points and magic stones I want!? but it seems that after a fixed number they stop coming out. What the, how boring.

3. The teleport location map for the 2nd is sold. The price is 9,000,000 Z.

As expected it did exist. Though I predicted that sort of price. Then, in that case, I guess the place we went to yesterday was still an unexplored region? I wonder if it's related to the pond of fairies which comes out in the legends of Rombert the Firsts adventures?

4. The monsters that normally appear on the 2nd floor at Orks, Hobgoblins, Gnolls, Kobolds, and snakes. However the rooms are different.

I see. Then, putting aside the poison of the snake, you could say that's a relief.

5. The types of traps are the same as the 1st floor the pitfalls and device which makes noise, it seems that other than that, while only a small number have been confirmed, but there's a crossbow like device as well.

I guess if you step on a switch or something on the floor then a bolt from a crossbow comes flying from somewhere?

How frightening.

The information was around there. After that it's fundamentally not all that different from the 1st floor it seems.

Also, it's not information about the 2nd floor but it seems that there's point of view or rather common sense that applies to all floors, it seems that the monsters that act like bosses of the rooms have a pre-decided range they can move within. Fundamentally if you move more than 100 m away from the room then they give up on chasing you and return. For the time being we're killing them mercilessly on the spot so it's not a problem but thinking about from here on out this is an important piece of information I'm sure. Also, it seems that on the 1st floor Propeller Tail and Black Gargantua Leech (I still haven't seen it) are considered the representatives for easy bosses. Both of them are not only alone quite often for some reason, but their movement speed isn't fast, so if you throw a rock in and grab their attention, then after they've moved a bit away it's easy to just run past them all at once.

Even though I gained close to 8,000 experience points for killing that Propeller Tail yesterday. Well, if we assume that it's a party of 8 and they all do about the same amount of damage then they would only get about 350 experience a piece, so it's limited to just me. It's completely different whether or not you have the Gift of Natural Talent.

Then, shall we head out?

Just like yesterday, after we confirmed our current location I used magic to pass pass through all at once. We weren't able to get our hands on the belongings of any deceased adventurers today. However, as expected the experience points from the boss room monsters is amazing. Tomorrow is Wednesday but if I give it my best on my own then won't I level up by Saturday? I guess I'll try doing some close combat against goblins tomorrow.

We teleport to the 2nd floor. After that we tried confirming the pedestal of the teleport crystal for an arrow symbol and investigated the wall. We found a number. It's 124. It can't be helped, since we made some decent earnings yesterday, I guess I'll go and buy a map later...Starting today thinking about the experience points of my subordinates we're moving slowly without me as the lead. Since we found a room, I was wondering what would be in it and tried using Identify. It was an {Owlbear}, which I can't tell whether it's an owl or a bear or whatever. It doesn't seem to have any special skills, so I guess I'll let them try it out.

Zenom and Zulu stand at the front center, on the outside of Zenom there's Angela, and outside of Zulu there's Ralpa, and from behind Bel and I assist is the formation we're going with. After I gave instructions to everyone and Zenom charged in with his axe while Zulu charged in with his two-handed sword. Angela and Ralpa who were following behind them ran in as well and immediately spread out. Bel is preparing an arrow at the entrance of the room. I'm standing by in a position where I'm not in Bel's way while looking over the entirety and concentrating on the other caves.

There was only one Owlbear. Zulu charged in without lowering his pace and with that momentum he dodged the attack by the Owlbear's armor while stepping in and stabbing it's body with his two-handed sword. Almost at the same time Zenom who had been running on Zulu's left rolled under the arm attack as well and slammed his axe into the back right leg of the Owlbear then just like that went around to behind the Owlbear.

Angela who was running even further behind Zenom on the left aimed to cut the left front leg of the Owlbear with her broad sword as Zenom rolled through then quickly pulled back. Ralpa who was standing outside of Zulu was moving in a way to hide herself from the Owlbear using Zulu's large build but after Zulu stabbed with his two-handed sword she jumped out from Zulu's shadow and smashed her hand-axe into the left body of the Owlbear then quickly moved around behind Zenom.

Shortly after I heard the sound of a bowstring from my side. It seems that Bel fired an arrow. While the Owlbear was screaming in pain from the swords and axes the arrow flew in through the beak-like mouth of the Owlbear and stabbed into it's mouth. Uwa, that looks like it hurt. However, for her to shoot an arrow into that curved beak, what kind of God-like skill is that? Isn't it just a coincidence?

I guess Bel's arrow was the fatal blow, the movements of the Owlbear clearly got weaker. The arrow's already been bitten in half but I'm sure the arrowhead is still stuck in it's mouth. Bel lowers her bow to the ground and after drawing her sword it seems she's going to join in owl-beating* it as well. Just because it's an owl. After that I'm sure as long as they don't completely let their guard down it's already over.

We weren't able to find any items in this room either. After collecting the magic stone from the Owlbear I tried identifying it. It's value was about 8,000. About 56,000 Z sale price huh? Not half bad.

It would probably be best to keep moving forward before any monsters that might have been nearby come hearing the screams of the Owlbear. Honestly speaking, I want to avoid combat in the rooms as much as possible. If it's one where there's exits in only one or two places then it's not a big problem but since it's often for them to be connected to a number of caves, you never know from where or how many monsters might appear. If we were to get surrounded it would be a bit dangerous.

After re-inspecting everyone's equipment we stepped foot down the cave in front of us.

We advanced carefully until 4 in the afternoon today but after that while we entered combat with monsters wandering the caves we didn't find anymore rooms. Around the time we used teleport and returned to the entrance there was a long falling shadow across the town of Baldukk from the setting sun.

.....

Year 7442, Month 9, Day 6

Since today is Saturday we have the day off. After eating breakfast and running for about two hours to help the digestion, I wiped the sweat off, and entered the dungeon alone again. Today I'll practice some close combat against the small fried and try something out that I've planning for a while after my level goes up. If I ignore gathering the magic stones and just repeat combat then I should be able to level up around noon.

I buy a sandwich for 150 Z to use as a bento and after putting my flask inside I hung them from the D ring on my waist.

After putting the sling-belt of my bayonet on my shoulder and confirming that my knife is hanging from the opposite side of my flask my preparations are {OK}.

I start using {Audible Clamor} to create a large consecutive rupture sound and then wait for monsters to approach. After repeating it a number of times my level increased.

Alright, just like like week, my Speed increased not my HP. Hn? Last week? Oh~ so I leveled up in a mere week huh? In addition to the Gift of Natural Talent we're not avoiding combat with the bosses in the rooms and beating them to death all over the place after all. The bosses of the rooms which we had avoided for several months until now in just this week I've killed close to 10 of myself. I've been working~ I've been working quite a bit~

No wait, this sort of self-satisfaction is completely pointless. Now then...I guess I'll test it out.

{Fire Ball} {Kill Cloud} {Sleep Cloud} {Acid Cloud} {Stun Cloud}
{Disintegrate}
{Web} {Grow Spike} {Quagmire} {Collapse}

I'm practicing all of the combat-use spells that were my weak point until now. I want to be able to make use of the attack spells that mother taught me in the 13 years of magic training until I left the house. For the time being it's pretty pointless to use them just the amount of mana they normally use so I'll practice them while increasing the power and range of them. There's several others beyond these but along with {Gravel}, {Arrow}, and {Javelin} the various projectile types and the various electric-type spells starting from {Shocking Grasp} I'm already using, well, it shouldn't be problem. For the time being I'll start intensely practicing these types of magics that are my weak point while I'm in the dungeon my days off.

I want to practice the {Remove Paralysis} and {Detoxify} magics as well. But you know~ Putting aside the recovery of a wound, I don't want to drink poison. Maybe I'll practice using the fish that Mary mentioned. For Paralysis...I guess it would be fine to buy some paralysis drugs. Everything is an experience. As long as I don't die then it's not a bad idea to experience it at least one..probably. In particular I should be able to do that in the room of my inn as well.

After that is..especially leveling up Ralpa and my subordinates. I've already told them about the body level, and putting aside the slaves, even if it's just Zenom, Ralpa, and Bel..No, even Zulu and Angela as well...Mwu..In the end isn't it the same as now? For the time being I'll start practicing from {Web} which is for restraining purposes. Since it's fine if I used an extra amount of mana, it should be more efficient to use it on a large monster or to bind a group of 2–3 Hobgoblins or Orks. However, if it was just about restraining them then I could freeze around 50 cm — 1 m above the floor as well. I guess for the time being freezing them as a method of restraint is best. Let's start with {Fire Ball} after all. I've always wanted to try using it with as much power as I can.

Just like this we continued repeating combat on the 2nd floor for about a month and I used the days off for training my magic. It was my first time using my mana to it's limits and after returning to the inn in the morning I used the remainder before sleeping in until noon the next day, and after my mana recovers I woke up and went back to the dungeon to practice some more. My MP didn't increase.

When I returned from the dungeon to my inn some luggage had arrived for me. There was a letter together with the luggage. They were delighted that I made some subordinates. The fact that I properly employed them and that's continuing is proof that I'm not using them crudely, is what it said. Though I had only just started employing them when I wrote that letter so they're praising me a bit too much. They also sent me a large amount of extra latex, sulfur, charcoal, and wood acid because they thought it would be difficult to repair my armor when exploring the dungeon in Baldukk. There's not even a single scratch on my armor though I'm grateful for father and the others sentiments.

The luggage is the boots I requested for Zenom, Ralpa, Bel, and Zulu before. Sorry, Angela. I don't have any for you. There were some sandals included as an extra but if the size doesn't fit you then I'll at least modify them with the repair kit for you. Ah, by the way, I wonder what I should do about the money for these boots. Well, I guess it's fine. Since I can earn a ton of money from the armor for the first knight group, I'll at least treat them this much. If I include the sandals then the sale price would reach 800,000 Z (80 silver coins) though.

I'll take the boots along with me when I go to have dinner with them. Thinking that it was when I was about to pack the boots into my bag. I noticed that several of the boots were heavy. They had some straw packed into them so they don't lose their shape but the heavy ones had some rubber bags on the soles. There's 20 bags. If I were to include it with the boots then it's 1,000,000 Z (1 gold coin). However, they're inside of Ralph and Bel's boots. If I had handed them over without realizing it would have been a disaster. There was a letter from brother along with the boots.

"Al, it seems that you promoted us to a brothel in Keel. The store I told you about was good right? Thanks to you we received a lot of orders. Thanks. Since I think it's about time you run out so I included some Saya. Since you're a member of a Viscount family as well don't impregnate a strange girl. Since it's you I'm sure you're taking proper care on that end so I can relax though. Don't worry about the village. Due to the unexpected orders of the Saya we were able to buy more cows again. It's been a big help. Take care of your health and give it your best. Farnestan."

I couldn't help but feel the tears go down my cheeks from the letter filled with brother's love.

Around today the orders and lots of advance payment from the armor of the first knight group should be arriving, as well as my letter requesting for more Saya. Since the first knight group should have been delivering it up to Viscount Penlaid's territory which is right before Marquis Webdos territory, and after that they should tell the caravan they give it to take good care of it, it should have shortened the time it takes by quite a bit. I'm sure they already know about the fact that I made a company as well.

When it was dinner time and she saw me enter the restaurant carrying boots and sandals Bel raised a cheer with how happy she was. I gave the apologetic Zulu and Angela their boots and sandals and had them put them on right away. There was no problem with Angela's size.

I'm glad they were happy. When each of them was about to pay I interrupted, "It's a gift from my family so the money is fine." and understood with that. I told the boots group to buy some socks at least but socks are considerably expensive after all. Since boots themselves are a luxury product. Well, I guess that much can't be helped. Even if I say expensive it's about 1,000 Z per foot for socks. I'm sure even Zulu could buy some.

Incidentally, it seems that Bel and Ralpa re changing inns starting tonight. It seems that staying in an inn with no shower is difficult after all. I'm amazed they made it through this summer with no shower. I was even going to the point of buying several large barrels and making ice in those in my room. I used wind magic and the void magic Continuation in combination to make a cool wind circle the room. Even if I didn't have the air circling around it felt 5–6 degrees lower.

Even if it's an expensive shower at 100 Z but it's still much better having it than not having it. And it's got quite a few services other than just laundry, cleaning the room, and taking care of horses. It's big that you can relax leaving your wallet in the room as well. I'm sure it's learning about life for them to regret their past foolishness after understanding the pleasures of an expensive inn. Oh Young'ens, give it your best.

Furthermore, since it's only obvious that Zenom is in the same room as Ralpa, Zenom is moving as well. Well, when they're getting a base pay of 200,000 Z each and it costs 150,000 Z per month for the high-quality inn at 5,000 Z per night, it's understandable that it's difficult to justify so that's why I ignored it. However, I'm sure they're confident now that they'll gain quite a bit in bonuses beyond just their base pay now.

Last night, when I was calculating the income and expenses I had kept record of until now and the average amount of bonus I was giving per person was 17,870 Z every day we enter the dungeon. For the period from the start of June until near the end of September, roughly though, I've been giving them close to 350,000 Z — 360,000 Z in bonuses every month for those four months. I don't know if they were waiting to see for a bit and realized that with this things will work out, but I'm glad as well that the level of lifestyle for my subordinates is going up as well.

If I think about the expenses then it might be better to think of buying a house but in that case we would get dragged around by the miscellaneous matters of living. Like cleaning, laundry, meals, it's fine if I just buy another slave but I don't feel like I can buy the peace of mind of leaving my assets and the care of my horse at home when I'm gone. In the first place, if the amount of money I had set as my goal was a small amount like 100,000,000 Z then it wouldn't be a bad idea to think like that in terms of reducing expenses but unfortunately the amount of money I'm hoping to earn is more than 100 times higher than that. And I'm sure that I won't be able to fulfill my dream if I can't at least make that amount by my 20s or at latest by the time I reach my 30s.

There's no point in being stingy on small expenses. In any case we need to quickly aim for the lower floors, and set the objective on obtaining a rare magic item then selling that for a lot of money. I need to make preparations for that sake.

After eating, when they had finished moving over the little bit of belongings they had I told Zenom and the others about our goal for this month.

"During the last week of this month we'll clear through the 2nd floor and aim for the 3rd floor. In the four weeks until then, I've said it a bit before but we'll focus on raising the body levels of everyone. Since I'm sure we've already gained quite a bit of combat experience from fighting on the 1st and 2nd floors, in order to raise everyone's combat potential we need to focus on earning experience points and raising the body level individually."

After I said that and Zenom opened his mouth.

"Yeah, that's a good idea. In our case, since your combat potential is heads above us, honestly speaking, it's difficult because we're just holding you down. However, I've heard that the largest number of adventurers die on the 2nd and 3rd floors. I'm sure it's no good to let our guards down."

After hearing that I,

"That's certainly true. It's just as Zenom said. Unless it's a considerably dangerous boss of a room, I think fundamentally everyone can fight plenty on the 2nd floor without me. The level of Ralpa's voice magic finally went up and Bel hasn't learned just void magic but two types of elemental magic as well so even if one of us gets injured it should be a bit easier. However, I'm sure what I just said is the type of thing that leads to letting your guard down like Zenom mentioned. I'm sure other adventurers let their guards down after finally passing through the 1st floor the moment they enter the depths of the 2nd floor. We need to make sure we're just as careful as always."

Ralpha and Bel were listening quietly but it seems that based on their expressions they've gotten motivated.

Starting tomorrow we'll aim to level up everyone. It's necessary to create a plan on how to earn experience points in the most efficient way possible. I had been investigating the rules on how experience points are earned for the sake of today.

In order to convince Angela, either way we would have needed to clear the 2nd floor and aim for an even lower floor some day. It's not really all that related to Angela though. Isn't it fine, it adds to increasing my motivation after all.

Chapter 91: Qualifications

Starting from today until the end of the month we need to earn some experience points in order to level up my subordinates. In order to efficiently earn experience points we should go around as many rooms as possible so we repeatedly entered and left the dungeon. If possible I'd like a place that passes by over 10 rooms until the 2nd floor but it can't be helped taking time here. We just have to endure where appropriate.

Just what has been confirmed there's over 400 locations you can teleport into on the 1st floor from the entrance of the dungeon. And there's only one place in the center of the dungeon where a teleport crystal capable of teleporting to the 2nd floor is located. Of the over 400 teleport locations not even half of them make it to the location you can teleport to the 2nd floor from. At the very least if we can't make it to the 2nd floor then our efficiency rate at earning experience points will drop a bit so as long as it's connected to teleport point for the 2nd floor it doesn't matter where we end up.

We luckily (?) were able to teleport to a location which has to pass 8 rooms before reaching the teleport crystal to the 2nd floor. Other than slimes my subordinates can directly do damage so let's start from here. The same as usual Zenom is holding the pole and hitting the ground as we start advancing. Along the way we ran into a group of 6 hobgoblins. Since we realized them first, I told everyone sorry for the wait and went ahead. Thinking that I was alone, they let their guards down in thinking they should attack me, I froze the lower bodies of the hobgobs (adding lin is a pain~), and after that I called my subordinates and let them kill one hobgob each as they screamed in fear. I let Ralpha kill the remainder.

Zulu and Angela had a bit of resistance against killing an opponent who can't move their lower body and can't counterattack at all so they looked at me with slightly critical expressions but I put power into my eyes and said “kill them”, and they honestly obeyed. Zenom, Ralpa, and Bel indifferently killed their targets but I’m sure this is because I explained it ahead of time. Ah, thank goodness the boots and sandals arrived. I’m sure it would have been painful to walk on the ice without shoes after all.

Putting that aside, hobgobs are monsters that are shaped like people and have their own thinking process and will. Just like before if they feel fear then they’ll scream out. I figured Zenom would be different but I thought it would be a bit heavy for the two women. Among the two of them when I tried asking the thick-skinned one about it and “It’s something that’s necessary for us to go on living. We talked about it a lot last night. Bel said that in order to meet up with her boyfriend she needs power as well. We’re alright...It would be a lie to say we’re okay with it but in the past I finished off a lot of goblins after Zenom had knocked them down so it’s not a problem. Just think about following up with Bel.” Sorry I referred to you as thick-skinned.

Bel was just like Ralpa said, “It can’t be helped after all. I want to become stronger and while monsters resemble people they’re not people, is what I’ve decided to think. If I were to die before meeting him then my life would be meaningless, so it’s fine.” She’s quite firm on it. The two slaves don’t matter at all. It’s fine as long as they move as I tell them. If they hate it then it’s fine if they quickly pay up and buy themselves back again. However, I wonder if they can escape from me?

However, without the Gift of Natural Talent and they aren’t gaining much experience points. Hobgobs are lined up with Orks as some of the most efficient monsters for experience points while exploring the dungeon but even then they’re only getting around 300 for each one they kill. Even when it comes to the room bosses they’re getting an average of around 2,000. While continuing with the combat almost as if it more than half just an operation, while gathering the magic stones we were able to arrive at the teleport crystal to the 2nd floor quite a while past noon.

Usually it’s about the time that we would turn back. However, it seems that we were able to earn quite a bit of experience points for the half-day from morning until past noon. They’ve earned an average of about 4,000 experience points per person. If it's like this then putting aside Zenom, the other four should level up once between this week and next week I'm sure. I've told Ralpa to main strongly focused on the fact that she's using mana. In any case, the objective is to quickly get Ralpa's MP higher than 7.

The reason I'm letting Ralpa earn a bit more experience points is because of that. If Ralpa just had 7 MP then she would be able to use a special skill once every five minutes and if it's the most basic of void magic that only uses 1 MP then she would be able to level it up quicker. In reality it's to the point I'd like to enter the dungeon with just Ralpa on the days off and have her earn a large amount of experience points. But, I still don't feel in that much of a rush to order that far. I'm sure that in order to rest the body and mind the days off are necessary so I'm letting her do as she pleases for now.

I think it would be fine as long as she understands a bit at a time. It's simple to push things on to her aggressively and if you look at the short-term then you can expect some effect to that end but she's not like a slave after all. The best method to earn experience points towards magic is to use magic to damage living creatures but since that involves danger it was too frightening to do. Let alone because when they first start learning magic it takes quite a bit of time of concentrating in order to complete the magic.

Normally you can earn the most with magic when you're trying to do some kind of operation. Even if you just use attack spells or elemental magic you can earn some experience but that amount is less than a decimal point so rather than earning experience it has more meaning in practicing using specific spells. On that end, working with rubber is close to the ideal method of earning experience with magic. Even then it's a matter of whether or not you'll earn 1 point though.

It's almost entirely something like a measurement error but the efficiency is several times higher. Depending on things go it could even change up to 10 times. I think that this difference in the amount of experience points acquired is whether or not you remain conscious of a suitable objective when you use the magic. Normally in the case of the people of Orth, after they turn adults they start training and if they have aptitude with void magic or elemental magic then they'll be able to learn at least once magic special skill. Furthermore, until they go from a state of having no magic special skill to having it, in other words until it becomes level 0 there's probably not concept of experience points for it.

The aptitude for whether or not you can use it is probably decided when you're born. I've already guessed that there's some difference in individual whether or not you can get a handle of the trick on learning it. There's some like Mary who even if they give it their best training and after three weeks or so they still can't use it, on the contrary, there's people like Kuro and us siblings who were able to use it within 1 day or a few days as well. It's just how I think of it but I feel like doing it while you're young is better. Also, the more MP you have the easier it is to learn it seems. Ralpa is different but I think that Bel proves that.

After that, they finally enter training of their magic special skill that's turned level 0 but if they just keep creating a spoonful of water without particularly being conscious of it and the people who are happy with just being able to use a slightly powerful Cantrip will probably take quite a while to reach level 1. If they're creating water then they should make sure to remain conscious of carefully giving that to the fields or if it's the Cantrip then use it to move a flame, it's necessary for them to remain conscious of their objective while they use the magic to do something. If they do that then magic should level up faster than just using it. And, after the elemental or void magic you've started training reaches level 2 you start training with a different elemental magic or void magic for the first time.

It seems that it's quite a bit easier to learn other magic if you have some kind of magic special skill from the start. I guess it's because you already understand the feeling of using magic. And then next you give it your best to get it to level 2 the same as the skill you learned first. By this point, your MP has already increased by 4 compared to when you weren't able to use magic. If they're already around adulthood then it's often the case that they'll have about 3–4 MP so it would mean they have a total of 7 or 8 MP. The training from there should become much easier.

After all as long as MP is over 6 then it recovers at a rate of 1 per 5 minutes. The trick to leveling up from there is to make sure you don't try to get arrogant use void magic or elemental magics in combination with each other at level 2 or level 0. It's best to use the same magic at level 0 or 1 where it only consumes 1 MP per usage. From here you can explosively earn experience points. After one of the two magic special skills you learn reaches level 3 you can finally start training with the third special skill.

It's around here that the individual differences in people who can use magic start to appear. There's people who can learn their third special skill and people who can't learn it as well. If they can learn it then they should start aiming for level 2 with that skill as well. If they can't learn it then it can't be helped so they have no choice other than to keep trying to level up the skills they already have. The training with combining them is after that.

I noticed this method when I was still in Bakuddo training the younger squires in magic for the sake of producing rubber. It's probably the most efficient method for a normal person to train with magic. Though in reality it's best to start training around 5 years old like sister did. Since that can't be done after I realized this method I use persuasive words to guide them when I was supervising the rubber production. In the first place, I was able to realize that there was a difference in the growth because those were in charge of the rubber had a clear objective in mind when they were using magic compared with the other squires and serfs who were just randomly using magic.

Just as I was thinking that the way to train with magic was to use it up close to the point of running out on a daily basis was normal, I brought this sort of method in as an excuse in to focus on the magic. From a glance it might just seem like a small difference but when it accumulates it's huge. I'm sure that people who can't use Identify wouldn't notice it. It might be possible for them to notice but I'm sure they wouldn't be able to prove it and since I'm sure there's few samples they probably wouldn't notice it. Even I was only able to confirm it after I passed 10 years old. In the first place, as long as you can increase your MP when you're a child then it's actually a method which doesn't have much meaning.

Up until you turn 10 years older rather than something like leveling up your special skill you should just focus on exhausting MP to increase it and after that the efficiency of making use of that excessive amount of MP for training will make it seem idiotic to even compare them. Bel and Ralpa are proof of this.

After that is..I guess so. If you're consciously tired at night then if possibly it's best to use up all of your MP before going to sleep. If you're lucky then your MP might increase after all. This is a method that can't be made fun of when your MP is still low. Every night, if you continue it when you start to feel tired then it's possible you could earn about 3 MP per year. An increase of 1 MP is a lot when your total MP isn't even 10. Although, as expected I wasn't suggesting this method. About the only weirdo that would do it is older sister.

Well, in the worst case, if they become able to use some kind of attack magic then I think it's also possible for them to gain experience using it on me. I'm sure it would be painful but damaging a living thing is the most efficient method of earning experience. In any case as long as they don't hit a vital point I can recover from it right away. Though if it came to that then I wouldn't let them complain about using up one of their days off.

I haven't told anyone, even father or mother about this method to efficiently earn experience points towards magic.

On this day it was already past noon when we arrived at the entrance of the 2nd floor so after eating lunch we tried going to the 2nd floor. After earning the experience from two rooms on the 2nd floor we decided to withdraw for today. We were able to gain some items and none of the room bosses were opponents we hadn't seen before so we were able to earn quite a bit of experience after I froze them all in ice. In the case of only slimes I burn them all to death so as a matter of fact I earned quite a bit of experience as well.

After that, we left the dungeon and disposed of the items we found and when we were about to head out for dinner I returned to leave my equipment in the inn and there was message for me. It was from her highness Queen Molail. I thought it would be about time but it came surprisingly fast. But, something like come tomorrow, so they're completely ignoring my circumstances. It's fine though you know. If I remember correctly it's been about a month since last time. So his majesty the King has kept it up at a pace of almost twice a day?

Since tomorrow is Wednesday and a day off, my magic training will get a bit behind but it's not too bad to occasionally travel to Rombertia. After running and breaking a sweat, I went to sleep early.

.....

Year 7442, Month 10, Day 3

After eating breakfast, I became a person on a horse, and started heading towards the castle in Rombertia. It's only a distance of 10 Km or so and the road is well maintained so if you're alone it doesn't take much time at all. I guess I'll let gallop a bit occasionally..it feels good. Since I was in a good mood I bought some sugar at the harness shop and let my war horse lick it while burning time until 10 am.

After that, when I arrived at the castle before 10 and obviously I was stopped by the guards. After showing them the letter from the queen and it seems that they had already heard so they assigned a soldier to be my guide.

Since I was told to wait around the start of the second inner citadel, I just held onto the reins of my horse while restlessly looking around like a tourist. There's something like takes to tie up your house but I can't decide if it's okay to tie it up there all on my own.

"Oh~ Greed. It's great of you to come. Now then, just tie up your horse to any of the stakes. Come over here."

Molin came out and said that to me.

"If it isn't your highness Queen Molail. Thank you very much for invit" "That's enough for greetings. Now, come along."

It can't be helped so I quickly tied my horse up and followed after Molin.

It seems that they wanted to thank me for bringing in the rubber hygiene product and that's why I was called, or at least using that excuse but their true intentions are obvious. I'm sure they want to say hand over some more.

After being invited into a room in the second inner citadel and it wasn't just Molin but the other queens as well. I thought they were just going to ask me to sell some more since they ran out but I wonder what in the world this is about, and just as I was thinking that they each started thanking me. It seems that thanks to the condoms the queens were able to be satisfied with their night lifestyle as well. Up until now there were fears that the concubines and legal wives that are the queens would get pregnant so he would embrace other women but as a result of that he ended up giving birth to illegitimate children. Since his majesty the King hated the feeling of using the pig's bowels he didn't bother with contraception and kept laying his hands on women but since then it's calmed down almost as if it was a lie and his wives the queens are satisfied as well.

"In any case, we're grateful to you. His majesty has stopped laying his hands all over the place and every night he's become satisfied with having one of the queens as a partner."

Molin said as a representative of everyone.

"I'm grateful to you. His majesty has finally paid attention to me again."

Yulu has her usual drooping eyes but even though she's in her late 30s her skin still has a gloss to it.

"I was relieved that his majesty has stopped laying his hands on other women."

Becky is in her mid-30s but just as her obedient looks suggest she has a gentle tone of speech. I wonder what was up with that appearance of getting bright red and screaming last time?

"I thought that I would never again be his majesty's partner..it's thanks to you."

Marin is a strong-willed person around her 30s but she's modestly offering me her thanks this time.

Although, I wonder if it's okay for some women past their 30s to lower their heads to a 14 year old brat in regards to their night life? Well, I'm sure there's no relation to age and offering your thanks to someone, and while I'm at the bottom I'm still a noble as well, so it might not be all that strange of a sight, but it makes me feel a bit embarrassed. Hmn, the fact that I'm getting embarrassed over something like this makes me question once again if my mental age is really 59?

Since I have the experience in and knowledge in life in my memories, I was aware I had some amount of preparations ready for it. However, it might best to think that my sensitivity and logical thought process is being pulled back to close to the age of my body. I feel like I've heard that the thought processes of people growth the most in their late teens to around 30 years old though it depends on the individual. Of course I'm sure there's exceptions that exist for everything but I'm sure there's no point in taking exceptions into consideration.

I ended up thinking about it a bit but I'm sure it wasn't all that unnatural and just seemed like I was confused suddenly being thanked by the queens. I bow to my knee and take up the pose of a retainer and,

"What are you saying, your highness queens. Remember once again what you said yourselves. Didn't his majesty seek after your highness-es from the start? It's true that there's some fault with his majesty as well. However, the source of that is because his majesty was to your highness-es...it is my humble opinion that it occurred because his majesty was worried about not causing a burden on the bodies of your highness-es. I can feel the deep love and feelings his majesty feels for your highness-es. I wish to follow in the footsteps of his majesty and marry a woman that is beautiful and I can spend my entire life loving like your highness-es as well."

And respectfully stated.

"Oh~ Greed, you don't have any greed I see. Normally one would boast about their achievements here."

"That's true, Greed's younger brother has quite a bit of promise."

"Yeah, and to say something like that..I'll feel embarrassed."

"Really, saying just the words that we want to hear. You do. If you're interested in serving us then it's fine if Marinen becomes your patron."

Hmm, I'm glad they were delighted. That's the crystallization of older brother's improvements. It's true that I made the prototype but the improvement of the materials and the one who took the time to test out the fit and completed it was older brother. Somehow I feel happy that older brother's troubles were recognized by the royalty. In the first place I didn't do anything more than remember my knowledge from Earth. Salute to the first person who developed the condom!

“No of course not, I’m just a countryside brat who doesn’t know his manners. Something like serving you is impossible... It’s true that product was developed and produced by my family in Bakuddo village of Marquis Webdos territory but I did nothing more than introduce it through my company. All of the achievements are with the Greed family in Bakuddo, something like me..”

Saying that I lower my head. I guess Molin took notice of those feelings of mine.

“Oh~ I forgot that you were a company. We must pay the compensation. And we would like to continue making orders from here on out as well.”

She said that. Jumping at her words here is what I’m all about.

“No, my Greed Company is nothing but a Type-2 Three Variety company that can only sell equipment to the first knight group. Since it’s not a First Variety I can’t accept the payment for the goods just now. I can’t do business..”

I said it with a tragic expression.

“Come to think of it, you came to repair the water bed the other day as well. Did you receive payment for the repairs?”

Yulu said. Certainly she first called me a rubber artisan. It’s not mistaken though.

“No. Your highness, like I just said since I only have the Type-2 Three Variety license, I can’t do business beyond military goods.”

More, even more pity!

“Of all things..then isn’t that working for free..I’m very sorry about that. Since I’m sure the material used for the repairs is rubber it should be considerably expensive right?”

Becky said that. It seems that she’s an assistant of the King helping with office work so, accounting, or rather I’m sure she’s stuck her head in the financial affairs of the country.

“Please don’t mind it, your highness. It’s fine if I make up that portion by putting my life on the line in the dungeon of Baldukk.”

One more push!

“Such a thing..I’ve heard that the loss ratio is close to 10% for adventurers who enter the dungeon in Baldukk..Isn’t it dangerous?”

Marin said that. Come to think of it, it seems this person used to be in a knight group. If I remember correctly she was called Fire Ball {Cannon Ball} and originated from Count Farelgaz family...

“I’m the second son with no inheritance so it’s fine if I act as an adventurer..it was even difficult to wear two pairs of sandals*..”

That’s right, pity me even more.

“Your highness Molail, this persons older sister is in the first knight group and has quite a few expectations placed on her. I think with just that he can be trusted..”

After Yulu said that she looked at Molin.

“That’s right. I know his older sister as well but she diligently puts effort into her training and is standing heads above the rest. If it’s her younger brother then wouldn’t it be fine to give him a reward here?”

Marin said that. So this person knew older sister as well? However, for sister to be diligent...

“..I see, then, I’m sure that the license will be necessary from now on so I’ll act as the mediator for it. We’ll properly pay the compensation including last time as well.”

Molin said that. Alright. I saved 5,000,000 Z. Honestly speaking the payment doesn’t matter at all. But...

“However, if it’s just that then it only covers the repair costs and the payment for the rubber. Ah, I’m sure there’s the license as well but shouldn’t we offer something like a reward for it be more convenient for us as well from here on out..”

Becky said that. Yo~ As expected of a bureaucrat of the financial affairs! It’s different though. Someone who can properly deal with bills is different! I’m sure that anyone would be able to calculate that much though. But since you can tell she’s calmly doing calculations my assessment is high! If it comes to the royalty then even on Orth which is behind the Earth in culture they're still reliable.

"That's certainly true. How about it Greed. Do you have anything you want?"

Molin said while looking at me. I'll say it before they change their minds.

"Oh~ how kind of you. I'm very grateful. If I become a Type-2 First Variety then it's true that I'll be able to do business with you from here on out. I guess so..then, I'll say it without reservation. It's about that product but I would like to use the emblem of the royal family on the wrapping and list it as "product used by the royal family"..Since it will make it look even better when I sell it to other nobles..We boast the fact that this product is a ground-breaking replacement of pig's bowels. However, if it's just as it is right now then I'm worried that it would be difficult for people to trust it."

I went all out and said it. Normally someone would probably request for money, a letter commendation, or some new territory (I guess this is unreasonable) but I don't know what the nobles or rich merchants of the capital do. Then the four of them laughed all at once while saying.

"After all. I thought that would be the case. As a matter of fact the four of us discussed what to do about the reward since the other day. If you were to request money or a reward in goods here then your talent would be just that. Placing importance on it, you wouldn't be worthy of dealing directly with our royal family. We intended to call off the license as well. However, if it connects to something from now on then..it's proof of the words that you said last time. I was pleased that you didn't say a single word about your older sister in the knight group as well. If I'm correct, you'll obtain even more near the end of the year was it? We shall make orders of Greed Company as the royal family. In regards to using the emblem and being product used directly by the royal family I'll permit, use it as you please."

Wow, so I was being tested? I guess as expected while it was a useful product, if it comes to dealing directly with the royal family they have to assess the other party. If I hadn't caught their interest then it probably would have ended with them indirectly doing business through Webdos Company. Although, I didn't intend to be greed in regards to this case though I'm saved.

“It seems that Greed’s younger brother is considerably sharp unsuitable for his age. Or do you really think like that and just have no desires..it’s fine either way but if you can read ahead then you’re worthy of directly doing business with.”

“That’s right. If it’s someone who gives in to a temporary greed then we can’t do direct business with them.”

“Indeed. However, between that older sister, and this younger brother, what is going on with the Greed family..”

Ho~ thank god. The only thing I can do to show my gratitude is keep my head lowered, but it connected. However, while it was only for a short period that they had me dancing on their palms.

“Ha, I am very grateful for such good fortune. Now then do you still have any “Saya” remaining? Judging off his majesty’s situation then pretty soon..”

I need to show that I’m watching out for them a bit as well. Though even if I say that I’m just lucky that brother sent me some more and my achievement is close to zero. Maybe about bringing them along without forgetting them?

“I thought we wouldn’t be able to acquire them until the end of the year but do you have any!?”

“How many!?”

“Se..sell them all to us!”

“After all it was the correct decision to call him right? I thought he a man who paid attention!”

As expected.

“Until the end of the year roughly 90 days, I have 20 bags, 200 of them. I thought for sure you were bothered about them so I sent a fast horse.”

It’s a complete lie though. However, as expected from women past their 30s, they..have considerably strong desires it seems. Whether it be fruit, meat, or women it’s best when it’s matured and just before it goes rotten.

I sold the condoms for 13,000 per bag. I decided on that much taking into consideration the transportation costs and my margin. I haven't a particular intention on profiting from this from the start. It's more expensive than Keel but it's no good if I don't make it a price that can be bought with a decent income. After I return I need to write another letter. I need to get them to bring some when they deliver the armor at the end of the year.

Ah, I forgot to say it but the emblem of the royal family is a crow with three legs inside of a circle. It's a popular design that even high ranking nobles use but the only ones that can use it simply with no decorations is just the Duke Rombert family. It's almost like a family of mercenaries from somewhere. The Greed family emblem is three horizontal lines like the kana for three inside of a circle. If I were to say it Japanese-style then it's like the Marunouchi Mitsuhikiryō. Eh? That doesn't matter at all? Don't say such harsh things.

Just a note on some more Japanese. It's 100% unnecessary to read the below block of eye-bleeding text.

In regards to dungeon, I think when it comes to this series maze or labyrinth would have been a better fit but when I think of a place where monsters spawn with teleports I can't help but imagine dungeon, so I ended up going with that on my personal preference. It's easier to type as well. The reason is basically the same but in regards to AI's Identify AKA Kantei, many people are probably familiar with Kumoko's Appraisal-sama, they are one and the same!?! Since I was a Diablo player when I think of examine based skills, I can't help but think back to Cain and scrolls of identify so I prefer that. There's also some others like using teleport over phase shift or other stuff that makes no sense to me. And there's also tenpin no sai, AKA Gift of Natural Talent, it sounds repetitive like that but it really is, sai AKA the word everyone already knows for gift/talent, and tenpin is basically the same characters with natural/inherent/inborn added into the mix. Anyways, just a pointless note on the wording I use out of my own preference, feel free to convert it in your how however you see fit. Oh, and the normal characters for that dark elves unique ability is written really weird as well, it sounds like Partition but it's written more like Party-ization, I ended up just using the translated version for that one Unit Organization instead of the kana/ruby.

Chapter 92: Black Topaz 1

Year 7442, Month 10, Day 4

Today, Ralpa and Angela's level increased and they each became levels 8 and 7.

Thanks to the level up this time and the level up of void magic Ralpa's MP has increased to 5. Just a bit more to 7.

Since Angela has increases due to age along with the increases from level up her HP and MP increased a bit as well. Though there's not much meaning to it since she can't use magic. Well, the valid range of "Super Sense of Smell" increases with level up so I'm honestly happy about that. Since it's got a range of about 20 m per level it would be fine to say she's the longest range radar in the party. But, inside of the dungeon even if you can smell something in the end since there's only one direction you only really know that there's something giving off a smell ahead of you. There's no way to differentiate between the rotting corpse of a monster and a Scavenger Crawler.

Other than Dexterity it was the same as Ralpa so it's easy to make comparisons with the Dexterity ability points. It's just my thinking on it but maybe dexterity is quite literally referring to how skillfully you can use a weapon. Though I don't know how to verify being skillful with your hands so it doesn't matter. Picking up beans with chopsticks and putting them on a plate or something, feels meaningless.

Ralpa's weapon is a hand-axe. In comparison Angela uses a broad sword. It might just be my imagination but I feel like Ralpa's chance of hitting opponents that are moving is higher. If you were to just use it as a daily necessity then using the hand-axe is simpler but when it comes to using it in combat then it suddenly changes. More than something like a broad sword if you can't skillfully use a hand-axe then you wouldn't be able to land any hits and no matter how I think of it defending use a hand-axe seems more difficult.

I'm sure she's had it pounded into her head by Zenom since she was young so it's in part being familiar with it but it's true I feel like Ralpa is more dexterous in making use of her weapon.

Furthermore, right before they were about to level I said to them "make sure you always keep your senses sharpened". However, I guess because they were too common of words, it doesn't seem like they were able to feel the instant their levels increased, they didn't seem to react the moment before or after it happened. After all I guess it's normal not to realize~ Even I don't realize unless I think, I'll level up after killing this enemy, while focusing on it. Well, I guess this can't be helped, it's not like the result changes even if they notice it.

In any case, Ralpa's MP finally increased on level up. It's a great single step forward. I'm sure the effects of her training will increase a bit as well. After this we earned a bit more for today and then left.

.....

Year 7442, Month 10, Day 5

Today Bel's level increase and she became level 7.

The effects of training her magic are appearing favorably. Still it's amazing when their MP is high from the start~ But, it seems that she didn't have aptitude for using wind magic. The same type as sister huh? Since the range on her "Super Sense of Hearing" increases with level up as well she's a radar of the party along with Angela. This one is 10 m per 1 level. Though you know the details better than Angela's "Super Sense of Smell". Whether they're walking on two legs, dragging themselves along, or have multiple likes like an insect, as long as she focuses for a period of time she can figure out the identity of most monsters from their footsteps. It's obviously useless if they aren't moving though. But, in my case I have to have things enter my sight so I'm useless when it comes to monsters that are around a corner or somewhere I can't see, so it's big that we can notice monsters that are outside of normal field of sight.

.....

Year 7442, Month 10, Day 7

Today Zulu turned level 8.

I have him lined up with Zenom as the front-line attacker and charging in like a certain assault commander. Through leveling up he's become even more able-bodied and powerful. It seems that he can see much better than my Identify with "Night Vision" as long as it's in his valid range. Everything in his field of sight feels brighter and even when there's just a bit of light it seems that amplified and reflected in his eyes. It's short at 5 m per 1 level but effective. It differs from Zenom's Infrared Vision in that he can't see at all if there's no visible light. Infrared vision can only see 3 m per 1 level after all.

He hasn't used "Instant Speed" up until now so I don't really know how it works. I'm sure it's something you use in a pinch. Since after he uses once he can't use it again for several hours it's unnatural to have him use it just for inspection in a dungeon where you never know what will happen. I guess I'll have him try using it when we're doing formation training next time. If it's now then his strength and speed should increase for 8 seconds.

.....

Since we started vigorously earning experience points from the start of this month excluding Zenom everyone's levels have increased by 1 more each. On the other hand, I haven't earned much experience at all. Since I decided to train my attack spells on my days off, it's something that I was prepared for so it's fine though. Our levels are, I'm at 13, Zenom is 16, Ralpa a 9 that's close to 10, Bel is 8, Zulu is 9, Angela is 8. It seems that there was a bit of an obvious tendency to put priority on Ralpa but it can't be helped.

Since it would be bad if my skills got dull we ignored the efficiency of earning experience points and wandered around fighting things on the 1st floor without using magic while ignoring the boss rooms. Since I leveled up several times in a short period, I think I'm at least self-conscious of it but even if no one says anything about it I was just disappointed. However, it seems that even without saying it everyone had some thoughts on it. Angela and Zulu occasionally look at me staring at the hand I'm holding my weapon with with a strange face after killing a monster as well.

Now then, we're going to start aiming for the 3rd floor today. We all confirm our equipment the same usual in the entrance plaza. Weapons, good. Equipment, good. Map, good. Preserved food, good. Everything is good. I simply announce our plans for today. In order to avoid wasting as much time as possible I'll use spells on the 1st and 2nd floors. If it's possible I'll consider freezing them in order to earn some experience. And then, somehow we'll aim for the 3rd floor. Even the most precise map of the 2nd floor probably only has about 70% of the whole illustrated. We've come along trying to fill in as much of the empty spaces as we can but even then we've only been able to fill in a small portion.

If we're going to have to make round trips to the 4th floor, 5th floor, 6th floor, and on after this when it's best to fill in as much of the blank space as possible. The people from the top teams are probably doing that as well. After we all grabbed on to the teleport crystal rod and before I chanted the incantation for teleporting this time we all checked our equipment once more. There's no problem, then, let's go "Daguto!"

We cut through the 1st floor using my magic. There were four rooms but I don't know if it was because someone else passed through before us but there was no boss in it. Next time, maybe I'll try holding out until the boss of the room revives. I'm interested in what kind of interval there is between when they revive or how they revive. Is there a difference in the intervals between monsters or such, I'm sure there's a lot to investigate on that end.

We arrived in the area of the teleport room to the 2nd floor. It seems that there's another party ahead of us. Bel says she can hear voices talking. Going off of Bel's level the valid distance she can hear with her special skill "Super Sense of Hearing" is 80 m. This is just my guess but if there's even a small sound of 1 phon in this range then her ears can pick up on it when she's using the skill. In comparison, even my ears would be able to pick up a sound of 1 phon if it's near my ears. But, since sounds are conveyed through vibrations in the air, if there's distance between the source of the sound then it gradually gets dampened. If I'm even a bit far away then if it's a sound of 1 phon it probably won't reach my ears. Though I don't know for sure if it really isn't reaching. Well, the number is just an example so just ignore it.

Supposing that a sound of 100 phon is dampened by 1 phon each per meter it passes. Though there's no way it would reduce like a straight line graph through air resistance but for now let's think like that. In that case I would be able to hear a 100 phon sound from 100 meters ahead. In comparison in Bel's case, she can hear a 1 phon sound 80 meters ahead so for those 80 meters her audible range is wider than me. I'm sure it's more complicated but it's easier to think of it like that.

In the case this time, Bel said she can hear voices talking. It's hard to imagine that they're talking with the same volume inside of the dungeon as they would outside. She can probably hear the voices of talking inside the party during their break because they're about 5 m away. If they were more than 10 m away then she probably wouldn't be able to hear them. They should be talking at a volume around there. In other words, what I want to say is just that the source of most sounds picked up by Bel's special skill often come from outside of the valid range of "Super Sense of Sound".

Well I'll put aside observations on Bel's passive sonar which are normally drooping down and stand on edge when using her skill for now. It seems that she can't pick up on the details of the conversation without getting closer so we need to start approaching them. It's most likely some other adventurers so I don't think it will turn into a conflict so easily but there's no harm in being cautious. I want to at least get a grasp on the number...8 people huh? Bel said that she can hear them laughing.

Well, I'm sure it's fine. After we approached to the side of the small room as expected even my ears could hear them. It seems that several people are talking. They should already be able to hear the sounds we're making. I wonder if they're not on guard? Or are they fools letting their guard down? I don't remember when it was but when the {Verdure Brotherhood} was in the opposite position as we are now and approached us we were considerably high strung while on guard.

After entering the room and it was where 8 men and women were surrounding a lightning magic tool making camp. Camp? Inside of the dungeon? It's true there are people who explore for several days to a week or so. It seems it's normal for the top teams to spend more than a week getting to the 5th floor and a back. That part I saw once upon a time with slaves with the elf named Rozwela or whatever had been exploring three days as well so I guess camping out is normal. Even I thought we would have to do so eventually. But, it's still the morning on the 1st floor?

“Hey~ My name is Alan Greed. I'm the leader of this party. I'm sorry to ask even though we entered after you but is it alright if we teleport to the 2nd floor first?”

I tried imitating Roberto Vilhaima the leader of the {Verdure Brotherhood} while saying it.

One of the members of their party stood up while replying.

“Yeah, feel free. My name is Leddo Anderson. I'm the leader of the party Black Topaz. Rather than that, you said you were Alan Greed right? That I would meet the {Slaughterers} here...Hey, if you have time can we talk for a bit? We'll at least offer some tea.”

Yes? {Slaughterers}? We are? Are we called that violent sounding name? Why? And if you mention {Black Topaz} then aren't they one of the top teams?

Since I was called something outrageous I was confused for a moment but since it's a chance to talk with one of the top teams and I was a bit interested in why we were being called that so,

“Ha...It's fine. Let's take a small break.”

I said that and approached her.

Just as I was offered I took a seat surrounding the lightning magic tool and took the tea I was handed. Leddo Anderson. 29 years old. Viscount Anderson Family Third Daughter. Level 17. It seems she can use void magic to level 4 and other than that water and fire magic to levels 3 and 4. She has glossily polished brown leather armor and a breastplate stuck on, with a short cloth cape around her, and her deep pink color hair is gathered up into a ponytail.

“Thank you for the meal.”

I said that and put the tea to my mouth. It seems that it isn't water made with magic but properly boiled, a rich smell spreads out in my mouth. They must have boiled it using a portable stove magic tool. I wonder if they're carrying water as well. They sure have some spare room.

"He's young."

"Yeah."

"Barely an adult?"

"With this, that many.."

I can hear the whispers of Anderson's other party members talking about me.

"Those are leaves produced in Reida. It's a good taste right?"

After Anderson said that she sipped the same tea as me. I wonder if it's expensive? It doesn't matter to me as I'm in the bean tea faction though.

"Ha~ it's delicious."

I wonder what I should start asking about.

"By the way, Greed-kun. Is this all of the {Slaughterers}? There was only six of you?"

Anderson peaks into my eyes while asking about it.

"Eh? Yes. This is my entire party, but that, what in the world is that {Slaughterers} name..."

"You guys have gotten famous recently. Supposedly you're always bringing back a lot of magic stones from the dungeon. It seems that you might even be rivaling the top teams in terms of the number? At first people would say it was just luck or that you were earning magic stones by following after someone else but since you're always bringing back a large number of magic stones every time, that line seems unlikely after all. Isn't it a number that doesn't seem possible unless you're killing every monster you encounter?"

Mu. So we were given the name for that reason? I didn't particularly intend on hiding it so it's fine though. If we become famous then it will become that much easier to gather subordinates after all.

"Ah, no..that's actually the case though..was something bad about that?"

After I said that and the members of Black Topaz got noisy.

“That was serious?”

“Are you saying they’re really killing that number?”

“That’s crazy..”

“No~ no matter how you look at it that’s a joke right?”

“That’s right, don’t they say they’re always returning by 2:00 or 3:00?”

“I heard that as well. No matter how you put it in that short amount of time..”

..I can’t do anything other than make a questionable face. Well I understand their feeling. It seems that Ralpa and the others are sitting in a circle a bit away from the members of Black Topaz listening. I need to do something before some idiot picks a fight~

“No, there’s nothing bad about it. Just, I’ll teach you something good. First, do you know about us?”

“Yes. If you mention Black Topaz then you’re famous as a one of the top five strongest teams.”

I said it like that flattering them but it seems that it’s only obvious to them so it was ignored.

“Well, I guess so..We entered the dungeon yesterday afternoon. Rather it was almost evening. We spent until past midnight getting to here. And, since the time was late we just setup camp like that and we arrive at the current time. How many magic stones do you think we obtained during that time?”

“No clue, around 30 I guess?”

I know it’s wrong but I tried saying it. By the way, the number of magic stones we obtained on the way here was 3 from room bosses, 6 from hobgoblins, 5 from orks, and 22 from gnolls along the way. Since the value of goblins magic stones are cheap and it’s a waste of time gathering them we just skipped over them but there were around 30 of those.

“It’s four. Two from room bosses. After that was two from opponents we had no choice other than to fight.”

I had somewhat imagined it but what in the world is that? Isn’t that way too few? Even the cheap magic stones from the room bosses sell for more than 50,000 Z (5 silver coins), so if you have two of those then you’re not in the red but...I guess she noticed that I was making a vague expression after hearing that she asked me even further.

“How many did you guys earn coming up to here?”

Hey now, you’re going to ask that? Isn’t that something a robber would say? After I was remaining silent and,

“It’s not like we’re going to steal them. Well, if you don’t want to sa“It’s 36 of them.””

It can’t be helped so I obediently said it and after taking the leather bag filled with magic stones off my waist I piled them up in front of me. I wanted to try hearing the impression, or rather the sense of values of a top team after all.

“3...”

It seems that the members of Black Topaz were surprised as the number I stated. After Anderson heard that and,

“With just 6 of you and...just as the rumors say that’s amazing. But you know, I’ll teach you about it. The monsters on the 1st floor aren’t all that strong. If it’s the 1st floor monsters then even we could earn that many I’m sure. However, if you’re aiming for the 2nd floor, 3rd floor, and beyond you should avoid combat as much as possible. 36 of them is probably about the number we’ll have by the time we pass through the 4th floor. Only by saving our stamina to the very end like that can we finally reach the 5th floor. If it’s like that then I’m sure you guys will find it difficult on the 2nd and 3rd floors. Just from a glance it seems about half of your members are quite young as well so your mana probably doesn’t hold out that long right?”

It seems that she intends to offer some advice since I’m calling myself the leader of a recently famous party after finding out that I’m just brat smelling of piss.

“It’s true that only three people in my party can use magic. Though only one of them can properly use magic in combat. Just as you say it’s important to save your mana.”

After I said that with a meek expression and Anderson said,

“That’s right. And you were just about to go to the 2nd floor now right? It’s normally to take a break in the small room with the teleport crystal and recover your stamina. In order to avoid exhausting your combat potential as much as possible you need to maintain your highest potential as you go to the lower floors. That’s why it’s ideal to avoid all the combat you can. About the only thing that you can’t avoid is the rooms. Fighting that is. I just asked but if you already know about us then the conversation is fast. Listen well? Even for us it took over 8 hours to clear through the 1st floor. And in order to make sure we’re in top condition we’re resting before we go to the 2nd floor.”

And said that while I was returning the magic stones to my bag one at a time.

Just as I thought. I had guessed it based on what Angela said before and it was the actual case from the information I’ve gathered these past few months. In other words, they try to go around groups of monsters as much as possible or hold their breath waiting for the monsters to go somewhere while avoiding combat. If it’s a room that they have no choice other than to pass through then they wait until the boss is at a distance where it can’t catch up and then run through all at once. And they aim for the treasures that you almost can’t find at all on the 1st and 2nd floors. In most cases, it seems that it’s gems or ores. The articles of decreased adventurers are nothing more than a byproduct and a bonus. It’s unknown how they get their hands on them but if they can just find a monster with a magic item equipped on it then it’s the same as getting their hands on several hundred million to billions of Z, so until they fight ignoring the danger until then. There’s roughly one party per year that gets that lucky and furthermore is able to return alive.

I return the magic stones to my bag while thinking a bit.

Putting it simply, adventurers who challenge the dungeon are the same as pillagers. Even if you ignore it monsters won’t come out of the dungeon. I’ve heard that there was never even a single case of it happening. Well, you can’t declare that it would definitely never happen from here on out but I’m sure there’s no need for me to think of it as a possibility. In that case I’m sure the knight group would be their opponent after all. In any case, the reason why we go to the effort of entering such a dangerous place to enter the harmless dungeon is no other reason than to get our hands on some treasure. Wouldn't they normally call that a pillager? I doubt there's any kind of religious monsters that are holding on to gems or ores but just for the sake of gaining treasures we're killing monsters that aren't particularly doing any harm.

I'm sure there's no differences between Goblins, Orks, and Humans. If you were to say it then they're no different from non-humans. You can the conveying of wills to some extent among Goblins, they're just non-humans that have considerably lower thought process and levels of intelligence than the average human or non-human. It's no different than if we're forcefully pushing our way into the homes of the mentally weak who aren't normally of any harm to the outside and when they attack to repel the intruders we're killing them and stealing anything of value. And, in that case I guess since they're avoiding combat as much as possible they're still better compared to me? No, the only difference is the number we're killing and the things we're doing or the reason we're doing it should be the same.

"I see, that's true."

Anything more than this is pointless. The mana efficiency between them and me is different. I'll gratefully take their advice, but other than the advice it would be better to collect as much information as I can then aim for the next floor. I continue my words and,

"However, putting aside stamina when camping in the dungeon, aren't you unable to relax your nerves while remaining on guard?"

said that.

"Oh? Monsters won't approach within 100 m of the room the teleport crystal is located. Did you not know? That's why it's no problem as long as you have one person keeping watch."

What. So that was the case? I've started to feel embarrassed over how excessively we were on guard when the {Verdure Brotherhood} came. But, this is good information. If I can relax in peace inside of the dungeon then as long as I have plenty of food I can keep going as long as it lasts.

“Yes, I didn’t know. Thank you very much for the valuable information.”

I lowered my head to Anderson while saying that.

“It’s fine. I’m sure unless it was a person that’s made it to the 3rd or 4th floor they wouldn’t know about it after all. Since there’s always someone in the room with the teleport crystal to the 3rd and 4th floors, either way you’ll quickly find out about it if you proceed from here on out. Don’t worry about it.”

Anderson waves her hand while saying not to mind it. Since it seems that Angela never made it to the 3rd floor she must not have known. Ah, that’s right,

“By the way, previously when we went to the 2nd floor, but we’ve seen a strange pitfall is it alright if I ask you about it?”

I’ll try asking about this. I had completely forgotten about it recently.

“A strange pitfall?”

It seems that Anderson was interested in my words as well.

“Yeah. It was stretched from one end of the cave to the other, with a length of about 5 m a large pitfall that couldn’t be crossed over. The hole was covered by something like a transparent board and it was camouflages by dirt the same way as other pitfalls.”

“I’ve never heard about a pitfall like that..The only ones we know about the 5 m in diameter ones that are just about anywhere in the dungeon and ones that start to appear with sharp stakes buried in them around the 4th floor, after that there’s ones where the wall becomes a pitfall. If you lean on it then you fall inside.”

Hmn, I had thought there was a possibility that the types she’s mentioning existed but it seems that even the leader of one of the top teams doesn’t know about that pitfall.

“I see, we’ve only seen it that one time though as well.”

It’s unfortunate but it can’t be helped. I want to try asking about more small tips like before but if we keep moving forward I’m sure we’re find out naturally. I guess it would be best to leave it at this and proceed ahead.

“But, a pitfall that you can’t cross over huh..since not even this 1st floor has been completely explored..Even more so if it’s the 2nd floor then it might be an unconfirmed trap in an area that hasn’t been cleared yet.”

Well, I’m sure it’s something like that.

“I guess so, then, it’s about time for us to head to the 2nd floor. Thank you very much for teaching me about various things.”

After saying that I was about to stand up but Anderson grabbed on to my arm and made me sit down.

“Wait, what were you listening to until now? Take a proper rest before you go. You guys entered this morning right? It’s just past 9 right now. If you cleared through the 1st floor in around three hours then you must be exhausted right? Since you’ve gathered that many magic stones, you must have entered combat a number of times right?”

How troublesome. There’s almost no exhaustion at all but..Since I used level 5 or 6 ice to freeze the monsters as we advanced, I’ve only used about 100 MP getting up to here. Obviously no one is injured and there’s no problems with stamina as well.

“I’m really grateful for the advice. However, we have a bit of our own circumstances so we must hurry ahead. Also, we’ve used up almost stamina up to here so it’s no problem at all. The tea was delicious. Thank you very much. I’m praying for the luck of everyone in Black Topaz.”

After saying that I stood up and, headed towards the teleport crystal rod. Zenom and the others stood up as well.

“I see, then I won’t say anything more. But one final thing. Be careful of an ice monster. Recently, it’s extremely rare but there’s ice discovered on the 1st and 2nd floors. There’s something like the half-eaten remains of monsters corpses there as well. I haven’t heard a story of adventurers encountering it yet but it’s believed to be an ice monster that normally only appears on the 5th floor. If you come across a 3 m white lizard then immediately run away. It will use an ice breath. In order to oppose it you need at least level 4 high-ranking fire magic. Don't overdo things."

He~ something like that exists? I turn around and politely thank her then grab the crystal rod.

"Rogutare!"

And teleported to the 2nd floor. No matter what we must reach the 3rd floor and fulfill my promise to Angela this week.

Author's Note: (I didn't feel like translating these so just writing the names and you can gaze at the current stats of Al's party members for the current chapter, the numbers don't need translation after all.)

Chapter 93: Reaching 3rd Floor

Year 7442, Month 10, Day 25

Now, it's the 2nd floor. Since we were able to take a 30 minute or so break in the teleport room in the end it was just right.

"Al. That ice monster is referring to you right?"

"Al-san, isn't that ice monster you?"

"Master, isn't master that ice monster?"

"Al(abbreviated)"

Ah, after all? As a matter of fact I was thinking that might be the case as well.

"But, there's one on the 5th floor right? An ice lizard. It's big that we were able to get some information we don't know."

"Don't try to cover it up."

"He tried to cover it up."

"Yes, he did try to cover it up."

"He tried to(abbreviated)"

"What is it, it's not like I've particularly caused any trouble to anyone so isn't it fine. Also Ralpa, stop abbreviating it as you please."

Really, this girl...

"Now, rather than that it's the 2nd floor. Let's remain cautious as we go."

And, before that maybe I'll try asking Angela.

I wonder if she knew that the surroundings of the teleport crystal room were a safe area?

No, if I remember correctly she shouldn't have only made it to the 2nd floor.

There's probably a low possibility that she knew~

..I guess it's fine, I wouldn't like it if it seemed like I was criticizing her after all.

And Anderson said it as well but Black Topaz was just camping in the teleport room of the 1st floor because they got there in the middle of the night. Even though we've gone to the 2nd floor countless times to far we've never met anyone camping in the teleport room of the 1st floor before. Most likely it's probably common sense for adventurers who've achieved above a certain level. We just haven't reached that level yet I'm sure.

"For the time being, let's confirm our current location."

We investigate what's beyond the symbol on the teleport crystal pedestal..62 huh? It's here.

We all put heads together and searched for number 62 on the map and found our current location.

It's necessary to pass through four rooms to get to the 3rd floor in the shortest distance.

Well, that should be fine.

After I nodded and Zenom started advancing while hitting the floor with the pole. Immediately Zulu lined up by his side, Angela is behind Zenom, and Ralpa is behind Zulu. Bel and I are remaining cautious of the rear at the end.

1 Green Gargantuan Leech, 24 Red Slimes, 2 Owlbears, we crushed the room bosses one after another while collecting the magic stones. There's still one roughly one person talking about the ice monster but it's not like it's particularly troubling anyone so it doesn't matter at all...We should be pretty close to the final room soon. While relying on Bel's hearing we slowly move forward. According to Bel it seems that there's several creatures-like things that have multiple legs. Angela says she smells the scent of a beast different from Orks and Goblins as well.

If we turn right at that corner and the large room should be right away. First we need to confirm the appearance of the enemy.

After I told everyone not to move, I quietly put my head out from the wall peaking into the room.

It's there.

It's something with long hair and two curved horns sticking from the sides of it's head almost like a MuskoX.

When I tried Identifying it and it seems it's called Roze.

There's..6 in all huh?

Their level isn't particularly amazing and they don't seem to have any sort of special skill either.

After opening the sub-window and it seems that they're a monster that doesn't like light and prefers to live in caves.

They'll probably charge in and attack with those horns.

Now then, I wonder what we should do.

If there was even less of them then it would have been fine to let my subordinates fight.

But there's 6 of them after all~

And if they're just as they look like MuskoX then you should be able to gather perfume from the males but the fur itself should be worth even more than that.

If just as the name says they're cows then the meat should be edible as well.

Or rather if you could make them into livestock wouldn't you make some insane profits?

One cow is even worth 6,000,000 — 8,000,000 Z (6–8 gold coins).

I somehow want to try and capture them.

..Impossible huh?

There's no way a cow could hold on to the teleport crystal rod.

However, even just the leather you can obtain from a MuskoX should be worth a fortune.

Or to be more exact the fur.

Different from Bakuddo, since it seems that the winters in Baldukk get considerably cold so I think it can sell for a good price.

In my past life I once gave Miki a stupidly luxurious muffler made of 56% qiviut material made from the fur of a MuskoX for her birthday present but it cost close to 300,000 yen.

Even in the worst case it can't be sold for a high price on Orth then it's soft and warm so I'm sure we could make some town-use gloves and mufflers for Bel and Ralpa as well.

If it comes to that then you guys pay for the cost of spinning and sewing it.

Ah, since these two are young they might not know about qiviut.

What a waste~

Well, it's not guaranteed that Roze are Muskoxen though.

Since that's been decided I need to kill them without damaging their bodies as much as possible.

I guess I'll go with freezing their lower bodies, or rather legs?

I made it so the Roze couldn't move after freezing 50 cm of the ground in the room and said to kill them by just hitting them in the head while showing an example.

After this I'll remove the ice with magic again and then we'll peel off the leather. I'm sure it'll take a tremendous amount of time but it can't be helped. It took us about 1 hour per with three people doing the job to peel off the leathers. We're covered in blood and stink but it can't be helped.

After we finished removing the leather and took the magic stones I tried cutting a fillet like portion of the inner pelvis meat and identified it, it came up as "Tenderloin of Roze".

Since it seems to be harmless I tried cooking it with fire magic.

Since I don't have any salt or pepper I did feel it was a bit strange but after cooking it and it let off a good smell.

This is bad, I shouldn't have cooked it so casually.

It would suck if other monsters were drawn by this smell.

Ralpa is looking over here like she wants it.

I guess it's better than the monsters learned by the smell?

After asking if she wants a bite, and she delightfully started biting into it.

Hey, I said a bite!?

Stop eating all of it!

However, even without any salt or seasonings, and even more so not letting it mature and it still is pretty good.

Then I guess we should bring it all with us. We can get a 2kg or so fillet from each one of them. The stomach meat that's like ribs is...well I guess it's fine.

Zulu was just staring at the bowel like innards. Does he want to eat the internal organs as expected from the cat family? But there should be shit inside of that. You should stop.

When I thought that I far I realized..huh?

Come to think of it, what do the monsters inside of the dungeon eat?

The corpses of other monsters?

However, the Roze should be herbivorous, or rather it seems that they're eating moss so it should be fine, but what in the world are Orks and Hobgoblins eating?

Cannibalism?

Do they last with just that?

What about reproduction?

I've never seen something like a baby ork or goblin in the dungeon...

There's countless areas in the 1st and 2nd floors which aren't connected to anywhere as well..

What in the world?

I might need to seriously spend some time in a room on the 1st floor to investigate this. It's fine for now though.

After tying up the leathers we peeled off and having Zulu and Angela hold them and,

"There shouldn't be any rooms up until the teleport room to the 3rd floor beyond here. Let's go that far and then take a rest. There shouldn't even be another 1km."

After saying that I took the pole from Zenom and after standing at the lead I proceeded while hitting the floor.

Along the way a group of 12 gnolls only appeared once but without even using magic we swepted them away and after gathering the magic stones continued ahead.

We should arrive at the teleport room to the 3rd floor soon.

Bel is saying she hears the talking voices of a number of people.

Before long we heard them as well.

In the small room (just compared to the rooms which boss monsters are using as a nest) of about 30 m in every direction where the teleport crystal is there were a total of about 40 adventurers resting.

The time should be about 7 in the afternoon.

Since we came afterwards we put on a sociable smile while taking a seat along an open wall to rest for a moment. Angela and Zulu stood out because of the leathers they were carrying but it can't be helped.

I wonder if there's a different top team other than Black Topaz in here? Since I was interested I tried using Identify on a few people of each group that appeared to be the leaders but most of their levels were at best the same as mine. There probably aren't any.

I put hot water into my flask and after putting some dried meat with a lot of pepper on it in, it turned into instant soup.

We all drank the soup while taking a break for about an hour.

After that we confirmed our equipment to make sure there was nothing unusual. We weren't able to find any problems.

Then, for the time being, let's take a look at the 3rd floor for today and then head back?

After I said that everyone stood up and approached the teleport crystal rod. While being watched by the resting adventurers we teleported to the 3rd floor.

Just as I had heard the 3rd floor was completely different from the 1st and 2nd floors we've explored until now.

I can't see any large difference in the teleport crystal rod or the pedestal it's on but the floor, walls, and ceiling have all changed to what's clearly artificially made stone.

Just, I don't know if it's just here but it all seems to be lightly giving off light.

If you pay attention as you look then you'll notice it but the light is strongest extending out around where each person is standing. From there the brightness of light gradually fades until it gets to 30–40 m ahead where it has dropped to the point of being unable to see. I'm sure if you enter the room then the floor and ceiling where you're standing start to give off the brightest light. If you start to approach the wall then the light gives off more light as well.

It seems we teleported into the center of a wall passage with a width of around 10 m.

I had already heard about it and knew of it as information, but everyone is strangely touching the white walls.

The surface of the stone has been smoothed out almost like the surface of stone walls on a Japanese castle.

Since the floor is the same if you were to fall over or be sent flying by a monster you might seriously hurt yourself.

All of the members other than me who aren't using lower body armor might have to prepare themselves for a lot of scrapes and bruises. Since they're wearing pants it's not guaranteed but even then I'm sure it'll hurt quite a bit. We need to be careful about it.

After looking around the passage and since it didn't seem like we would suddenly be attacked I opened my mouth.

"Now then, Angela, we've come to the 3rd floor within two months of buying the 2nd floor map. Without losing a single member. I said it before but let me hear your thoughts."

I make sure to be careful not to use a tone of voice like I'm criticizing her as I, huh? Putting aside my tone of voice aren't I still criticizing her? Well, I guess it's fine even if I am criticizing her though.

Although it's a bit pitiful to criticize her.

I guess it already doesn't matter.

"Even though I say that, I'm not particularly criticize you or trying to force you to say something. Since you're my slave, match your way of thinking and values with mine. That's your duty right? It's fine as long as you understand that."

I said it as kindly as possible.

After Angela heard the first thing I said her expression stiffened up a bit ut she relaxed after hearing my next line.

"Strangers are strangers, we are us. Just like you said time is more valuable than money. But, probably but, I think among the adventurers in Baldukk we arrived at the 3rd floor considerably fast. In other words, we're already shortening our time compared to other parties. It seems they normally say that you finally make it the 3rd floor around 2–3 years after you've started exploring right?

It's true I'm not in possession of that much money right now but you understand that it's the same as if we bought the several years other parties end up spending right?

..Alright. I'll try asking your way of thinking from here on out as well. On those instances just honestly respond to me what you were thinking or feeling. Whenever my way of thinking and values are different I'll tell you. It's fine if you just match up with me on those occasions. I'm not saying you need to change all of your values and way of thinking from the start to match up with mine. It's fine with just the portion that I point out. You're my slave and not a puppet. Is that clear?"

After quietly listening to my long speech Angela remained quiet as she lowered her head to me.

It's not like I particularly paid money because I was in a hurry though.

It's pretty unrelated to why I have not much money.

Ah, I guess if you think of it as being because I bought the maps with teleport locations and just that cost a fortune on its own, though the efficiency in clearing the 2nd floor is completely different thanks to that so I guess it's not incorrect to say I bought time with money huh?

"Then, since it's about a good time, let's head back and get something to eat? Today let's eat some of the beef from just now."

I said that cheerfully to try and shake off the weird atmosphere it had become while grabbing the crystal rod.

"The meat just now, was it good?"

Zenom asked Ralpa while grabbing the crystal rod. After all an old-man's wisdom is better than a tortoise shell*.

Thanks for that.

"Yeah, it was pretty good."

Ralpa grabbed the crystal rod while responding to that. I'm still reducing your portion for how much you ate.

"I haven't eaten beef before. I'm looking forward to it."

Zulu joined the conversation while grabbing the crystal rod. Eat a lot.

"Since you can't normally eat beef. I haven't eaten any either."

Bel says that as well while grabbing the crystal rod. I've never eaten it on Orth either. The cattle we bought at my house still haven't died after all. One of the horses my father owned was about to die right when it was time for me to leave the house, so as a matter of fact it was a regret of mine that I couldn't eat that.

"..Umm, I'm sorry about that..Because of m.."It's fine, you already understand right. Don't worry about it, now, let's go "Henruichi.""

We returned to the teleport room of the 2nd floor where we were just in. Even though we just went to the 3rd floor and came back right away but we weren't particularly given any strange looks. If you end up teleporting to an unexplored region that's not on the map, if there's far too many boss rooms to the teleport room, or in the first place if it's not even connected to the teleport room, then it's pretty common to go back to the last floor like this. Well, we're returning though.

After everyone grabbed the teleport crystal rod on the 2nd floor again and I used the exclusive chant in the center of it.

"Return us."

We were teleported again to the teleport crystal on the 1st floor. What was just a lively spectacle with several dozen people changed to something empty. When you return across floors your posture is the same as when you were holding the crystal rod and you're teleported to somewhere in the central room of the next floor up. Obviously, it's to a reasonably open area where there's no one else around. Since the direction of our bodies changed we confirm our surroundings and need to grab on the toe crystal rod in the center of the room once again.

It's said to be that way out of consideration so people don't get teleported overlapping with another group that is preparing to teleport to the next floor. I don't know if that's true or not though.

..I guess Black Topaz is already gone.

And once more.

"Return us."

Even though we were just on the 3rd floor a moment ago, we're in one of the small rooms on the side of the teleport room at the entrance in no time at all. After leaving the building it was a night which let's you feel the end of October and as expected it's gotten a bit chilly out.

I wonder if it would be better not to sell the qivuit~

Since the leather from the Roze is a hindrance and it stinks we need to do something about the leather, rather fur before dinner.

However, the time is already late. Even we go to a shop that does spinning they're probably already closed.

Since it can't be helped I had just Zulu and Angela return ahead to their inn to leave the luggage.

They're still staying at Shuni.

It's reasonably cheap and a low level inn so they probably won't even complain if they bring in some unprocessed fur.

It's not like there's no worries about it being stolen but I feel like with fleas and all that no one would want to steal some dirty fur.

Well even if it gets stolen it would be disappointing if you call it that but it's not particularly fatal so it can't be helped worrying too much about it.

I brought the remaining members and went to the restaurant we always eat dinner. We cut up the meat and split it between us so there's no problem.

After entering the restaurant and it cost 1,000 Z to bring in your own meat (1 large copper coin) but since they'll cook the Roze fillet with salt and seasonings, I waited while drooling for my first fillet steak in a while.

Since it's my long awaited fillet it would be best rare but since I don't know for sure if that'll be good for the time being I ordered it around medium.

It seems that my detailed instructions on the cooking methods weren't conveyed and in the end it felt one step before well-done.

It would have cost a bit but maybe it would have been better to go to Doruleon?

Well, we still have a decent amount remaining so it's not like we're going to eat it all today.

I guess it's fine if we go to Doruleon after tomorrow.

I still had some complains about the way it was cooked but the Roze fillet was delicious.

Hmn, even for monsters the delicious ones are delicious.

I remember the Horned Bear.

If I think carefully about it then I feel like the Horned Bear should have been stronger but it's not like I'm completely dissatisfied with the Roze fillet.

"This is good."

"After all it's more delicious with salt and seasonings."

"It's soft and delicious."

"This is..It's good isn't it.."

"It's my first time eating meat this delicious."

Ohh~ eat more, even more. Since we have a lot of it.

It's even understandable how Ralpa was just eating meat without saying to eat some cabbage.

If it was going to be like this then maybe we should have brought as much of the meat as we could hold.

Between the six of us we finished off three fillets, we consumed close to 3 kg of it.

The one who ate the most was Zulu though.

Since our stomachs are all full we split up.

Normally I would return to the inn together with Zenom and the others but today I carried the fillet meat heading towards Doruleon.

It's because I thought it would be best to let it mature at a high-end restaurant.

After paying at Doruleon (it cost 20,000 Z even), and leaving the meat with them I returned to the inn, as expected I was tired so after taking a quick shower I quickly laid down.

After all, I've got to get up early tomorrow.

Ah..since we were in the dungeon from morning until night, I didn't do my running...

It can't be helped, it's annoying but I guess I'll go for a run.

After changing and when I was about to leave the inn I was called out to from above.

It's from the window of Bel's room, she and Ralpa were looking outside at me.

What is it, since we're going to be up early tomorrow, go to sleep already.

The two of them beckoned me.

It~can't~be helped, really.

After I went to Bel's room and Ralpa was sitting on one of the two chairs while Bel was sitting on the bed. After I pulled out the remaining chair and sat down Bel opened her mouth.

"Al-san. I want to talk for a bit but.."

Hn? Japanese?

Judging off her expression it doesn't seem to be something serious, but what is it?

Even though I look like this I'm pretty busy.

No, I'm not particularly busy though.

"What is it?"

"Umm you know, recently I've talked about it with Bel but there's something that I don't know so I want you to teach me about it."

Ralpa said that. It sounds a bit serious. Is it about magic?

"What?"

"It's about Al-san's objective. Today, when were in the teleport room of the 1st floor you told that person in Black topaz right? Since we have some circumstances we're in a bit of a hurry. I thought, what are those circumstances, but since you talked to Maruso when descended to the 3rd floor, I remembered, ah, the circumstances were your promise to her...but was it just that?”

Bel said that.

It's true that the circumstances I mentioned to Anderson were about Angela. However..I guess that means they realized I have reasons other than that to be in hurry?

While I'm remaining silent and this time Ralpa started talking.

“Honestly speaking, even without us I think that Al can make it pretty far into the dungeon...That's true right? That's why, I've been thinking about it for a long time now. Then, why are you paying us money to come along with you? And why did you pay so much money to buy Zulu and Maruso as well?”

“..”

“And, you told us quite a bit of information as well right? Recently you've even been training us. You've taught us magic as well. I'm truly grateful because I decided to wait for him in this town. If I'm together with Al-san then there's almost no danger of dying and I can earn a lot of money. But, what does Al-san gain from this?”

I guess so~ It's been about five months since I started teaming up with them, I guess it's already close to half a year huh?

It's a bit longer for Ralpa though, well it's not a big difference. If you think about it normally, then I guess you would wonder what kind of charity this is.

“Hmn, it's true I have a goal. In the short term I want to hit it big in the dungeon of Baldukk. Well, I still expect it to take a number of years even then though. That's why I think there's a high probability that I'll remain here for several years.”

I'm sure they won't be smoothed over with just saying this.

“What I said just now was true. And I've said it before but Ralpa and Bel are reincarnated people. Since it's easier for reincarnated people to get physically strong“Can we not be trusted that much?”

“..I don’t have any particular intention of hiding it. Probably if I say it and after you two hear that even if you were to tell someone about it they shouldn’t be of any harm to me..Probably at least...I did intend to talk about it eventually.”

Chapter 94: Party

Hmn, there's no particular problem with telling them about it. There's no problem but there is a problem. I wonder if I'll be told it's unrealistic and laughed at? Will I be told I'm like a child and looked down on? If as a result of that they were to leave at the same time the contract ends then...Ah, I guess they can't cut the contract from their end huh? Though you know~ Even though I finally made acquaintances of them, and they're reincarnated people I've made into my subordinates. But, there's no way to completely see through the other sides personality and what they're actually thinking in this short period of time. I'm sure that's the same for them as well. I wonder what they could know about me in just a matter of a few months?

I'm not such a fool to believe in illusions like if you hold deep interaction with someone then the amount of time it takes is unrelated. Even my parents who cared so much for me, they listened to and accepted my dream but didn't sympathize with it. I already understand that my dream is that close to being something absurd. However, if I were to talk to them here while they don't worry about me as much as my parents did then let alone sympathize I can only imagine that they might not even try to accept it so it's difficult to tell them about it.

However, someday I'll definitely have to tell them and it's my true feelings that if possible I want them to sympathize and cooperate with me on it. From here on out I need to gather even more people but the majority of them should be following me because I've offering them something to their advantage. Though it would be more unusual to hope for loyalty greater than the compensation given from the start.

Although, I'm not God or anything like that, so I'm not so arrogant that I think I could manage over everything all on my own. If I can't do it myself then trusted retainers are necessary. The problem is whether or not they could pledge loyalty to me in some meanings greater than compensation to me. I don't think I have anything that could captivate their hearts. Of course, my encounter with both of them took the form of coming to their rescue so I'm sure they at least feel a favor towards me. There is right? If there isn't then I would cry from the start.

I'm paying them plenty of compensation and not putting them through a lifestyle where they're especially troubled by anything. I'm sure the way I treat them isn't all that bad as well. I don't think I've dealt with them unreasonably like a slave even once. Therefore, I want to think that they at least feel a debt of gratitude towards me. But, something like loyalty is completely different from that. Since I've gained some amount of information from them you could say we've both benefited each other but even in that case I should have paid even more.

I thought about it for a bit.

"I guess so..Honestly speaking, I don't mind telling you. But, if I tell you then you might scorn me, or at least it's my true feelings that I'm afraid of that happening."

After I said that and Bel opened her mouth.

"Al-san. I just said it but can you really not trust us as that much?"

"It's a bit different from whether or not I can trust you. It was only a few months but we've eaten meals out of the same pot. I trust you two. However, it's different from that. That's right, it might digress a bit but listen to this. Bel, how do you feel about your parents and siblings?"

She was a bit confused when I suddenly brought her parents and family into it so Bel was a bit lost at words but responded.

"Eh? My parents? I think the Koloil family was probably an average sub-Baron family on Orth. It wasn't all that wealthy but there was nothing I troubled about in my life. And I knew that I was loved as I was raised. But..I wonder ..I feel like they aren't my real parents somehow as well. I obviously feel the gratitude towards them for raising me and I can boast that I love my parents and siblings as well but..In the end, in order to search for him I left the house.

Obviously, when I first brought it up they were against it. I think my parents probably wanted me to remain in the village and marry one of the squires or else marry me to the child of a different villages lord. I understand that. Since I understand that they were trying to send their daughter off into a stable lifestyle. However..no matter what I want to find him. I must find him.”

Well going off what I’ve seen of her so far it’s pretty much exactly the answer I had guessed.

“I see, Ralpa, what about you? What do you think about Zenom? Ah, if you don’t want to say it then you don’t need to force yourself.”

“I’ve always wondered about it but, why do you only refer to me as “omae”? It doesn’t really matter though. Zenom is...after all my father. I was a high school student before I reincarnated but my parents weren’t in the house very often, and honestly speaking I have a weak impression of them. Was it imprinting? That thing with chicks do where they mistake the first moving thing they see as their parents. I wonder if it’s like that? Ever since I realized I was reborn I was always by Zenom’s side and he protected me. There were countless dangerous times. Even then Zenom raised me without abandoning me. It’s true we might not be true parent and child but we’ve already been together for countless years, and we’re completely family.”

Well, I figured it was like that.

“I see. However, in regards to your treatment, put your hand on your chest and think carefully~ You’re too cheeky. And Bel is much cuter as well. It’s only obvious to treat you two differently~ Also, if it doesn’t particularly matter then don’t say it in the first place. Be quiet, that part of you is why you’re such a child.”

Since this girl says everything she thinks bluntly. In particular to just me. In some meanings you could say she’s similar to Mill.

“Ha...What the, Al, you think Bel is cute? You like her? How unfortunate~ Bel has a boyfriend~ Bel’s chest belongs to her boyfriend~”

Th..This brat...I can’t help but feeling like I want to punch that smile which pisses me off. Calm down, my right arm.

“Yeah, Bel is cute right? Unlike you she doesn’t say smart-ass things after all. Also, even if someone of your level doesn’t say it over and over I already know she has a boyfriend. Ah, Bel don't be bothered over it. Since this girl is an idiot "Fufu...I understand. Doesn't Al-san probably not think of me as anything more than like an ally or subordinate? I can tell that much. I'm sure Ral isn't saying it seriously as well."

Right. It's true that Bel's chest is worth paying attention to but she's about average for the Rabbit-people race and not all that unusual for her race. Though it's plenty strange for the sensations of a Japanese. But, I haven't been caught up in being conscious of Bel's chest. It's not that I'm not interested. Rather I am. However, I also know that no Japanese women would feel good about attention paid to their chest.

"Well, ignoring something like Ralpa. And, in regards to the matter I just heard about but I like my parents and siblings. I lived together with them until the spring of this year but it's true I have indebted to them but the feelings of love are stronger than something like that. One of the few things that I felt was good about reincarnating was that my family had increased.

However, my current parents on Orth and my parents on Earth I don't feel like there's any difference between them at all inside of myself, might be putting it too extreme. It might not feel the same for you two but when I reincarnated I was 45. In comparison to that my parents at that time were both in their 20s. At first I saw them both as brats. They were both considerably younger than me after all. But, after living together with them and having them care for me I naturally started to be able to respect them. It might have been because I saw the hardships up close to a degree which would have been impossible on Earth."

I use my tough will that's like steel to hold back my right arm that feels like it would go on a rampage at any moment while looking at the two of them and continuing my words.

"Bel, it's strange to say this but listen without getting angry. You left your house because your boyfriend was more important than your parents. Is that wrong? It's not wrong right. No, it's fine. It's only obvious in some ways. Even my parents on Earth were important to me but my wife was more important than that. It's an extreme example but if I were told to choose between them I'm sure I would at least worry over it but in the end I would pick my wife. It's the same as that.

However, I want you to calmly think about this without feelings. Which of them truly understands things about you more? If you were to commit a terrible mistake, who will cover for you? It's just for example but even if I were to soak my hands in a far too trivial crime there's a possibility my wife would lose patience with me and it's even possible I would be given a letter of divorce, but even if I was mistaken I'm sure my parents would scold and slap me but in the end I think they'd cover for me."

The two of them are thinking at my words. I don't want to hear their response so I continue.

"Returning the conversation. When I left my house I told my family about my goal. They listened without making fun of me. Probably, I don't think they sympathized with me but they accepted me, and gave me permission saying to steadily keep with it. I think that was because they had the deep love that they were trying to understand, recognize, and let me be free. It's a weird way of putting it but even saying, something like that is impossible, I won't say anything bad so just do this instead, is love as well. It's not a matter of which is better. Either way is fine. Just, if they aren't making fun of it from the bottom of their hearts, then that's love. I think that way."

The two of them are looking at my eyes.

"..Ralpha, Bel. The two of you are my important subordinates. But...But you know, I don't think you can listen to my objective, my dream in the same way as my parents without laughing at me. Rather, I think you might end up being fed up with me, or abandon me, I'm afraid of that. I'm sorry to say but as expected I don't feel the same kind of love from you two as my parents. The two of you don't feel that way right?

Even the two of you, for example, Bel, even you should have some things you can't say to your boyfriend, but you could say to your family. Ralpha you're the same right? I don't know if you had a boyfriend though it's fine even if it's a friend or best friend. There should be something that you can't tell to him or her but you could tell to your parents or Zenom."

After saying that I looked at Ralpha and then looked at Bel. I don't know if they understood what I was saying or not but it seems that they've digested a bit of it and are nodding.

“And the complete opposite of that is also true. I had things I could tell to my wife but couldn’t tell my parents. But, in that case the weight is difference. In this case, if you were to ask, the stronger reason would be in order to not make my parents worried or feel uneasy. In the end my parents would understand, that’s why I don’t want to let them worry over something like this, or I might end up making them be too careful of certain things is what might be more correct.

Just the same, for example there’s things you can only say between guys and between girls. Even among friends there’s things I could tell this guy but that guy. However, when you’re talking seriously the content you can say and that permissible range is probably the largest to your family who understands you the most.”

It seems I gained their agreement. Well, this is different from everyone so I can’t say it’s the same though. The two of them were young before they reincarnated, since it seems they were students, I’m sure they were much more dependent on their parents than me. It seems that Ralpa was estranged from her parents but since she’s not an idiot, I’m sure she has some fixed feelings for her parents.

“The details I just stated is the reason why I still haven’t talked about the dream that I think is ultimate to anyone other than my family...I’m still hesitating at this point...I have the feelings of just going all out and saying it and while on the surface you’ll just agree with or understand it but when I’m not around you’ll make fun of it, those sorts of cowardly feelings are mixing up. Do you understand that this is definitely not a matter of whether or not I trust the two of you? I just said it but even if I tell you there’s no direct harm in it. I understand that you to wouldn’t go recklessly spreading it around as well. I trust in, no believe in you at least that much, but you know..”

When I’m stuck on my words and Ralpa says.

“Hn~ I get what Al wants to say, I think. But, are you thinking about such a weird thing?”

Bel continues saying after Ralpa.

“It’s true, I’m sure there must be things that are difficult to say. But, we’ve discussed it with each for several days already. We’ve occasionally talked about it with Zenom-sam, Zulu, and Maruso as well. Everyone, thought it was strange at first. But, at one point Zenom-said to us. It’s a bit long but please listen. “Since Zulu and Maruso are Al’s slaves we’ll put them aside on this occasion. But, the three of us are nothing more than being hired by Al with money. The same as servants. Servants shouldn’t recklessly step into the heart of their master. However, the two of you aren’t just normal servants. If Al would open up his heart then it might be to a reincarnated person the same as you two. There’s the meeting with Bel as well. I’m sure he’s not the type to definitely become an ally just because they’re a reincarnated person. But, even then doesn’t Al want some allies? I think he wants something close to a family that he can honestly speak to his hearts content. I’m sure Al probably has his own way of thinking and his own disposition and pride as well. If you don’t take that into considerations then not just Al but I’m sure that no one would open their heart up to you.” and said that. It’s exactly the same word for word but the meaning is the same.”

I see, so Zenom said that.

“We’ve already talked every night for more than three months. It’s usually just Bel and I the two of us, but Zenom, Zulu, and Maruso occasionally join us as well. We’ve thought about various things. We think it’s true that Al wants to earn money. We think this is already clear. But, for what reason? If it was just for living expenses then you’re still a noble for the most part, if you work seriously then you wouldn’t easily be troubled by anything right? Even the earnings we’re making in the dungeon, aren’t they quite amazing. If it was just the 1st and 2nd floors wouldn’t Al alone be able to earn a tremendous amount of money? I think you could live a life of even more luxury.

Honestly speaking, if we just wanted to go on living I think any of us could go into business or start a restaurant and be able to do a decent job of it. That wasn’t the case in the past but thanks to you we’ve made plenty of source founds after all. If it was just Zenom and I, the two of us then I think we would be plenty to do a small business or store. But you know, I’m sure that what Al is seeking isn’t that sort of, several tens of millions or several hundreds of millions amount right?”

That’s right. It’s in the several tens of billions.

“We tried thinking about various things ourselves. What is it that requires that much money? What is it which is necessary to buy slaves? like that.”

“Well, we were able to arrive at several conclusions after thinking like that. 1. Buy a lot of slaves and cultivate some land somewhere then receive official peerage and become a lord. 2. Start an extremely large business. A business that deals between countries. Funds for that business. 3. Save up money and use it for bribes. Use it as money that’s needed to find employment as a government official? in the Kingdom of Rombert. Maybe aiming for the royal court sorcerer? 4. It’s close to 3 but use the power of bribes to enter the knight group and aim to be a knight. If you’re lucky then get picked up by some lord as the leader of a knight group. 5. I’ll become the Pirate King! We think it’s one of those.”

1 and 2 are extremely proper but what about 3 and 4? Even if I didn’t do something like that, if it’s me then... Well, it’s fine. And what in the world is 5? It sounds like a phrase I’ve heard somewhere before but. Rather~ wouldn’t the pirate king be a completely flawed famous criminal? No matter where I go in the world I wouldn’t be taken seriously. Though it’s the closest among those right now. Well, it’s closest to 1 and 5 with a bit more added.

“From the story we just from Al-san then putting aside 3 and 4, it doesn’t seem like 1 or 2. Could it be you’ve eaten the rubber fruit? In Bakuddo.”

So even Bel can say jokes...

“It can’t be that you’re really aiming to be the pirate king but even if that’s the case I won’t laugh. I already know how strong Al is after all. It’s amazing you can use that much magic. Even after I was able to use magic it’s nothing at all~”

Ralpa, you might be surprisingly..a good person.

“That’s right. Even if we hear Al-san’s objective we definitely won’t laugh or make fun of it. I guarantee that.”

Bel as well, thanks. But you know..

“Thanks you two. It’s just like this.”

Saying that I lower my head. And,

“But you know, I’m still afraid. A middle-age man at a good age, no I’m already and old man. And you never know what I’m going to say and..”

I’m really grateful for the feelings of the two of them, and happy. They’re the same as me and look like brats but the mental age of both of them should be over 30 already. Yeah? Over 30?

I grab the temple of my head with my right hand and face my left hand towards the two of them while organizing my thoughts.

I’m sure it’s true that my mentality is being pulled somewhat by my physical age. There’s times when I act in ways that are unthinkable for how I originally was as well. During those times I’m acting without feeling it’s unusual but afterwards when I try to organize my actions and the results of that time I notice here and there.

In some ways I even think that my dream of “creating my own country” is something like that. The same age as a middle-school student and an immense amount of mana that I could wield violence with, most likely I’ve already exceeded the special skill levels of that something or other Marquis that is the royal court sorcerer of Rombert Kingdom. Thanks to my unique ability I’ve realized the rules of leveling up and furthermore I’ve made use of that to efficiently earn experience points probably three times that of any other person. Even my growth during level up is greater than the average person, this is three times as well.

Thanks to my magic skills and the immense amount of mana that supports those as long as I can detect the enemy first then it’s not even a struggle inside of the dungeon. If I were to think about doing it seriously then on Orth where there’s no guns or cannons, weapons which can accurately aim from a distance (most likely even if they do exist they can only aim accurately within several dozen meters) then I alone could quite literally wipe out several hundred or depending on the situation an army of around a thousand people. If I just have the time and money then I could hire the skilled blacksmiths and even create something that could be considered large scale weapons of destruction as well.

In this situation I often or always, I don't know which but (probably, I think, always, is more correct. If that wasn't the case then it would be hard to explain.) if I have the mentality of a middle school student then it's understandable that "I want to make my own country". Honestly speaking, when I was in elementary school I looked up to the representative of rising up in the ranks during the Warring States era in Japan, Saito Dosan. Whether it be Oda Nobunaga, Toyotomi Hideyoshi, Tokugawa Ieyasu, Takeda Shingen, or Uesugi Kenshin, in Japan there's a lot of people who look up to them. Rather, there are good members of society, the managers of organizations, and executives of companies who seriously read the business books of "Techniques to Seize the Human Heart Learned From Toyotomi Hideyoshi" or "Strategic Sight That Can Look Ahead: Oda Nobunaga".

Everyone likes stories of success in life. Even I've read several volumes of books like that. I read quite a few history novels as well. I think a number of people around me at my age we're reading them. At the very least if you're a manager then if you don't continue with your studying it's difficult to seek anymore promotion than that. Even the stiff business books are using the name of popular commanders during the warring states period to make it easier for their readers to pick up.

Putting that aside, if I'm in a situation where my mentality is being pulled by my body then I wonder if that doesn't apply to them as well? If you were to mention 14 years old then it could be considered the age where you're at the entrance of adulthood but in the end it's {low-teen}. There's a limit to it. Even I'm in agony remembering some of my actions afterwards after all. I'm sure they might laugh at me a bit but if I think about their appearance right now, I doubt it will end at just laughing at me. I'm sure they'll at least comfort me.

"Well, I guess it's fine.. My objective is to make my own country. One day I'll found my own country and I want to become the King of that country. I think of it as the period to earn funds for that right now. Since I need as much money as possible after all...Hha ha..It's fine for you to laugh. That's right, it's find to get angry as well."

After hearing my words the two of them exchanged glances and then broke out into laughter...as expected. That's right isn't it. I had a feeling this would happen. That's why I didn't want to say it...With this things will become annoying starting tomorrow. Putting aside Bel, I'm sure Ralpa will make fun of me. In the first place, even Bel said she definitely wouldn't laugh or make fun of me after hearing my objective, and right after saying that it's this...It can't be helped if you say it can't be helped though.

"Did you hear that just now Bel? I'm going to make my own county, (grin)...he said. It's the same right."

..What should I do to this girl?

"Ppu, I certainly heard. But, it's my win right."

Eh?

My win? Win..we're they betting on it or something? Bel and Ralpa were? A quiz on my objective? Huh? What? I was looked down on to this extent? I felt my feelings of anger boil to the surface. These brats, were they playing with me? If they were to laugh at me for it being absurd or childish then it can't be helped. I was prepared to be made fun of for those sort of reasons.

However, they were using the feelings I had hidden away as the target of a bet? There's a limit to how much you can make fun of someone. I don't want to say something annoying but I'm older than the two of them and their employer. If they were to have endured it here and laughed about it hidden from me later then I could have dealt with it. But, saying to my face "we were betting on it" you say? And laughing at me. It seems I have no eye for people. No, even if I say they're reincarnated people it was my own will to keep them by my side. I guess I was just unlucky that these two appeared. They died before they had any experience in society and without learning the method to properly work they started over again from childhood.

Ah, I miss my subordinates from my past life. They were honest people. In a place where we were having a serious conversation they wouldn't blatantly make fun of their superiors. They were splendid members of society that are aware of the {TPO}. There's no way I can know what they were really thinking but they always casually paid their respects to me. I did the same for my superiors as well. I was the vice-director of the sales department in addition to the first section manager so I always treated and dealt with my superiors that were the company director, sales chief, and managers above that with respect. It's not the art of conducting oneself. That's only obvious.

I'm sure right now I have an expression where I'm making a sour face with a vein in my forehead sticking out. I'm so pissed off that if it were when I was 14 years old in my previous life it wouldn't have been strange for me to pick a fight with them. Even though my feelings are being pulled by my physical age, I have experience as well, since my personality is somewhat founded in that experience, I'm sure I'm not just a 14 year old but things that piss me off still piss me off.

"You two..even though just said those things..Shit.."

Line up over there! I'll hit you with a head duster! There's no way I could do it though. But, if I let this go it's no good for their sake either. A preaching is necessary. It's just the right excuse to yell at them. I guess it would be best to let them understand the risks of making fun of your superiors right in front of their face. It's not like I'll say something like respect me from the bottom of your hearts, I don't think something like that at all. It's fine if you want to make fun of me in your heart. There's tons of superiors not worth respect after all. However don't let that out to the surface. Just in the fact that superiors are your superior, just because of that they're an existence worth honoring and respecting. It's a fact that superiors like that far exceed the number of superiors not worth respect. It's precisely because they're people like that they were able to get promoted that far. Otherwise you could say that an organization that promotes and makes use of people like that is one that it's easy to get larger and tougher.

"Al-san, I'll apologize for laughing. I'm sorry. But, it's absolutely not that we were laughing to make fun of it after hearing Al-san's dream. I couldn't but laugh because it was just as I predicted. Please listen. Like we just said we had talked a lot about what Al-san's objective might be.

One of those was, founding a country. The one who said that was me. I think it's a good dream. Rather than settling on something small, isn't it a very large and manly dream? I don't think there's anything to be embarrassed about it. It's true that if someone were to say something like that in Japan I might have laughed and made fun of them. But, this isn't Japan. It's Orth. I think there's plenty of chances to found your own country."

"That's right. It was bad of me to laugh. I'll apologize. I'm sorry. Since it was the same thing Bel had said. I thought that Al would use the money he earns for bribes and after using it to enter the royal court, you would take over the country from the shadows or something like that. Though I think that in itself would be interesting. But, isn't that quite wholesome? I thought that Al was more..the scheming type~ Like killing people who are a hindrance from a distance where it won't be discovered, if it's Al then can't you do it without anyone finding out?

And then you make evidence to put the blame on some completely different person. With magic. Create some sort of evidence that they can't explain away and after putting the blame on them kill them or something like that. Then you would gradually get promoted and make it to a cabinet minister? Was it? Ah, or regent. Thanks. Just with that sort of feel where you become the highest authority and the King or other royalty are completely afraid of you and live while being careful of your expression. And since we know that sort of Al we'd receive money and live a happy life."

..I thought about yelling at them but they weren't betting on it?
No, rather than that after all Ralpa, you...What in the world kind of image do you have of me inside you?

"First off, it's fine that you were able to predict the details of my dream. That's not particularly a problem. But, if you were betting on that then I'll get angry. Bel as well..I'll believe that you weren't laughing to make fun of me. But, Ralpa, you're really an idiot.

Did you think I would be happy if you said that?

What was that about receiving money and becoming happy? Don't screw with me. Even if it ended up becoming like that a fool like you would be the first on the list to send flying to erase future grief. In the first place, you, did you think of me in that way? What's with that treacherous bastard feel? Who? Eh? Me? Is it me? I haven't acted treacherous towards you until now right? You, do you really want to make me into a treacherous bastard that much? Do you have some kind of a grudge against me?"

After saying it all at once I felt exhausted.

“You’re an idiot~ It’s not particularly like I want Al to become treacherous. Though you have enough connections and intelligence to get along like that right? If you at least have money then Al could manage something like that right? Since you’re pretty smart and you have power as well. If you think about the success rate then isn’t my idea safer and more realistic? The one who wants you to be grateful is me. It’s fine if you give me a bonus for the idea?”

That’s already enough, out of her. But, if I think carefully it’s not like she was laughing at the content of my dream as well. I understand that most likely when she and Bel were talking about they probably said something just like what I did. I somehow feel like my anger has calmed..Now then.

“Shut up~ idiot. What’s that about a idea bonus? Your idea is rejected. It’s not even worth adopting...Rather than that, speaking seriously, how is it? Don’t you think it’s strange?”

I said that and looked at the two of them.

“Al-san, I don’t know if Al-san has realized it but I had some thoughts on it. It was rejected by Ral but..Will you listen?”

Hn?

“Recently, my head is strange. Ah, no, I don’t mean I’m messed up in the head, or going crazy, a disease, or something like that.”

After Bel started talking Ralpa opened her mouth.

“Bel thinks too much. I don’t feel anything and don’t think there’s anything strange.”

“That’s why I said Ral was originally young..I was young as well but not as much as Ral after all. Al-san, first, in regards to Al-san’s question but I don’t think it’s strange. Let alone that, I even feel that it’s enviable or exciting. As a matter of fact..it’s related to something I thought several years ago. Will you listen to what I say?”

Bel asked me a question again. However, she feels envious or excited over my dream?

“The conversation is about my mentality. I was 21 years old before reincarnating. I think I was someone with reasonably good grades in school as well. However, I sometimes think. This, might not be my way of thinking, I shouldn’t have gotten so happy or sad over something like this... But if I remember back then I can also understand it since I’m in the middle of my teens as well. The time I found it the strangest was a short while after I was born. When I was soothed by my older siblings, even though it wasn’t anything particularly special I felt it was extremely strange or sad. Those sort of feelings gradually decreased as I got older. But, no matter how I think about it, it was strange for an adult at a good age past 20 to go from joy to sorrow after being soothed by quite literally a childish trick. I didn’t think it was particularly a problem at that time but when I thought about it later it was clearly strange. That sort of stuff wasn’t just when I was a baby. It’s the same right now, this moment. Please listen without getting angry. I had somewhat guessed Al-san’s dream. Of course, it wouldn’t have been strange at all for it to be anything other than making a country as well though. I thought it might be founding a country as well.”

“We’re Japanese people who lived in the 21st century. It’s a rude way of putting it but I feel something is out of place with a Japanese like that saying they want to make a country. It feels more natural if it was trying to get a promotion in the countries that already exist or show your power and become famous. Even then that’s plenty unusual. Normally the only ones who say they want to become the prime minister or politician are those in elementary school right.

It’s because out of the population which has more than 100,000,000 people climbing up to prime minister is believed to be quite difficult. It’s probably not something that can be done with just the power of an individual and I think most people would understand in their early teens that it would be difficult even making use of money and connections inherited from parents that are politicians. I think it would still be more realistic to aim for a professional sports athlete. Even then if you don’t set your sights on it from a young age, do the appropriate amount of training along with being born with talent I’m sure it’s difficult. It's the same for talents and performers as well."

Bel...

"Right now Orth is just the same as Al-san said before, the level of the civilization and culture are at best around the warring states era. I think there's a portion which are developed to around the Edo era but there are many places where I think it even might be at the level of the Heian era. Politics are a feudalistic autocracy, social standings are split up by lineage, slaves are only obvious, furthermore there's magic and monsters. There's also the places like a game with Status Open and skills, a strange world. Al-san and we were reborn in this world. Putting it frankly, I'm sure with the knowledge of a Japanese we could do various things in this world.

I think that making a country is just one of those. If you have the ability and a firm will that supports that then it should be fine whatever you want to do. Even making a military organization and invading some territory, is only obvious right. Like Genghis who founded the Mongol Empire, or Minamoto Yoritomo who opened up the Kamakura shogunate should have killed and had others kill a lot of people. I'm sure even those with no sin at all or babies were included in there. Of course, murder isn't a good thing.

However, something like that is only obvious. I'm sure even Genghis and Minamoto Yoritomo didn't kill people for no reason at all. They should have at least had the reason of them ultimately being a hindrance to their rule. Even though that's the case the Japanese of the 21st century won't criticize them for being cruel. Because, they only did what was normal during that time. During that sort of time, I'm sure there were more people aiming to become the King or royalty than elementary schooler who aimed to become a politician or prime minister. Of course, I'm sure they can tell it's an extremely difficult path, which is why countless will give up or fail. There's no doubt there were people who laughed saying it was unrealistic.

I'm sure that's the same as someone at that time aiming for something like the prime minister or the top of the athletic sports world. But, but you know, we're different from normal people. We were definitely blessed with talent. The level of our physical bodies increases at three times the normal rate right? On top of that we have Unique Abilities as well. Isn't that fine, foundation of a new nation. In the first place, please try thinking about it. Even in the dungeon of Baldukk, didn't we arrive at a floor which normally takes several years to reach in just a matter of months? Of course, I'm sure that would have been impossible without Al-san. But, how about it? Even though he has that big of a body and he's even gone to war before, Ral is stronger than Zulu?"

Bel..you. Bel patted down her drooping ears along with her hair adjusting the position while continuing.

"Since stuff like that has already been established as fact, isn't it fine to aim to be a King? Isn't it cool to make a country? I won't laugh. I even think that if it's Al-san then you will be able to do it. Even if it's difficult then you'll somehow overcome that and achieve it...I know that I'm strange for accepting these sorts of things. I understand that they aren't the feelings someone who went past adulthood and spent another ten some years after that. But, I can't help but think that way. I feel like this is because my feelings aren't appropriate for my original age but they've become closer to my current age. We are in possession of our memories and experiences but we're growing again from babies. I'm sure our sensitivity has gotten younger.

However, I think that since we have our memories these sorts of things are embarrassing. Since we have the memories were worry about the risks and worry about the failures as well. Of course, if I calmly think about it then I think that founding a country would be difficult and complicated and even if you're blessed with abilities and level ups I think it might be possible to fail and die. But, don't we have our memories and experiences in order for that not to happen? We learned before coming. The examples of success in founding a country in this sort of era. The examples of failure. I think just the fact that we know of that is more amazing than the special level ups or abilities.

Among the various things that I thought about and when I thought of founding a country I comprehended and felt admiration for it. I thought that after all the person who saved me was amazing. After I found out that my boyfriend reincarnated, in order to meet him once again I lost myself in that and stopped thinking calmly about anything else. I bent everything in my life towards meeting him and it's my honest feelings that I didn't have anything like leeway but that's just an excuse.

Obviously, I like him. I love him. I want to meet him once again. But, if it's just that then it's no different than an objective that's continued since my life in Japan right. That's just how it is but if it was just that then I think it's embarrassing. I'm going to live with him once more in Orth. Not Japan. There's no other choice than to set roots on Orth, give birth to his children, and raise them. I don't him to think when I meet him that I just childishly lived solely for the sake of meeting him without thinking about anything.

I want to make a future together with him. I think I want to live a life I can proud of to my children with him. It's to the point where if I meet him I want to help out."

Bel..you..that was long. But, I see, so Bel noticed that her mentality was being pulled by her body as well? I wonder if Ralpa didn't realize it because she was originally so young? Putting Kuro aside, I wonder how Mary felt about that.

"Bel you know, you think too difficult about things. I don't feel like anything is strange at all. But, putting that aside, I was happy that Al told us his dream. I feel like he's finally recognized me. I won't particularly laugh about Al's dream. If Al is fine with that then isn't it okay? But, if it comes to then raise my wages. Won't it be even more difficult than right now?"

Ralpa, what is going on, with you...Aren't you an idiot? It's making a country. It won't go that simply. Shit. I'll work you harder the wages I give you. Prepare yourself.

"..I see. Thanks the both of you. And Bel, what do you intend to do if your boyfriend, Yousuke-san is against it?"

Bel made a surprised face while saying.

"Eh? I don't think that You-chan will be against it. Rather he might be glad to help out. I think if I talk to him he'll definitely understand."

Hnn, I wonder if that's the case. There's no way for me to comment on it since I don't know You-chan at all though, I wonder if he would help out so easily because he was told by his woman? More so if it might put that woman in dangerous. Well, nothing will start if we start worrying about it now. We'll get to it when we get there.

"I understand. Things in regards to Yousuke-san are fine for now. Let's think about it again when it comes to that time. Ralpa, what about Zenom? Did he say anything?”

Ralpa was sitting with her right knee standing on the chair but after leaning her body to the left and she farted. Are you really a woman?

“Ah, sorry sorry. The fart came out. But don’t they say tumors are hated depending on the place. Eee~”

Bel lifted her eyebrows into a frown. It might just be my imagination but it seems there’s some strength to the droop in her ears. Though it’s not like they’re particularly strong in the first place.

“Ral, I’ve said that’s bad manners right. And we’re in the middle of a serious conversation right now.”

“That’s why I said sorry~ And, what was it again? Zenom? Zenom said if that lets me become friends with Al then I can do whatever I want.”

Friends? Who is? Me? With this Ralpa thing? Why? No, it’s true that I heard from Zenom before that because he brought Ralpa around she wasn’t able to make any friends but...

“That’s right. Friends indeed. Isn’t it fine for friends to cooperate with each others dreams?”

Bel nods while saying. Eh? You as well? Even if I don’t have any friends in particular...I had a number of friends in Japan but I don’t have any on Orth. I thought that was fine and I even thought that I didn’t need any because I could end up getting strangely emotional. However, friends huh..

“You being my friend is ridiculous. Say it after you’ve at least stood on the same stage as me. Idiot.”

“Hmhm, while saying that Al, you’re grinning.”

“I’m not grinning. It’s just itchy~ Fool.”

“Well, that’s fine. But, I’m your friend and not your girlfriend or anything like that. Don’t misunderstand. Ah, and this isn’t tsundere. Ah, I guess Al doesn’t know about tsundere. In the first place Al's face isn't my type after all."

Ha~ I don't care anymore. No matter what you say to this girl it's no good. You're not my type either.

But, today, I think that the three of us became a party.

I was able to make allies.

"Ah, that's right, can you tell me one more thing? On our days off or the days where we end things early what is Al doing in the restaurant of the prosperous area of town?"

"Huh?"

"I mean, Bel said it. It seemed like you were writing something on memo seriously while staring at the road from a restaurant in the prosperous area."

"Yes?"

I reflexively looked at Bel's face. It can't be, I was seen checking for STDs!?

"Eh? I just happened to catch sight of you occasionally..when I saw you I was going to call out but it seemed like you entered the restaurant with a serious face and was writing some sort of memo so I told Ral that I thought you wanted to calmly think about our plans from here on out but.."

"Eh? Ah, so I was seen. Various...plans and stuff..That is, like the formation in the dungeon..I was thinking of them."

"Hmn, so you're properly thinking about various things. Give it your best. If you just say something then Bel and I will will help out as well. Right.."

It seems that I was able to cover it up, but somehow, I feel like it ruined the mood quite a bit. Though it's something I brought upon myself.

Chapter 95: Scent

Year 7442, Month 10, Day 26

Since that sort of thing happened the other day for a moment I worried about what kind of face I should make in front of Ralpa and Bel but I thought once again that I don't particularly need to change the way I act so I can just act the same as usual.

Since they didn't seem any different than usual as well I was relieved.

After confirming our equipment the same as usual we entered the dungeon.

We proceeded through the 1st and 2nd floors in ultra express mode and when we arrived at the teleport room on the 2nd floor it was just about noon.

We ate the soup made with hot water from magic along with some sandwiches we brought along and took a break for about an hour.

During our break I was telling some jokes to Ralpa and Bel, and Zenom, Zulu, Angela joined in on that.

It's the same as usual.

No, it might just be my imagination but it seems like Ralpa's expression is stiff.

"What is it? Are you tired?"

We probably walked close to 15 km to clear through the 1st and 2nd floors. We've already walked through both of them countless times and we have a map where the traps are listed including several we added ourselves so the tension should have been considerably reduced.

Though I say that, since it's descending through the dungeon at a speed of close to 2.5 km/hour so there's no way it wouldn't be painful or exhausting.

"Hn, I'm alright. But, I guess I was a bit on guard? Didn't we talk about those sorts of things yesterday? That's why I thought I need to give it my best and not fail. Fu~ but, after all I think I might be a bit tired...Sorry, let me rest for a bit longer."

Come to think of it, among us only Bel's Endurance is 12 and considerably low. The next lowest ones after Bel are Ralpa and Angela but even then they have 16, so it's 33% higher than Bel.

I'm sure her Endurance will increase from here on out with level up and age but why did Ralpa get tired before Bel this time?

I wonder if it's related to the fact that Bel is a Rabbit-people race?

Or maybe Ralpa is just weak to tension and easier to exhaust herself?

I tried gently taking a look at Bel's state but she doesn't seem to have changed at all and is happily talking about something with Angela.

It's not like we're in such a hurry that we have to fight over one or two months.

Thinking about things from here on out so I think it would be best to clarify as many things as possible that I've put off around here.

"I see, don't push yourself. If it's painful then you can say so anytime."

Alright, it's a shame even though we've made it this far for today but let's just take a look in the 3rd floor and then return.

After tomorrow we'll take it a bit easy in the dungeon for a short while and I'll try doing something about the things I've been putting off for a while.

"Eh...Yeah..I'm sorry. Somehow, Al, have you become kinder? But, I don't want you to misunderstand."

Ralpa grabs both of her shoulders like she's protecting her body and moves away from me.

"You know, are you seriously trying to anger me? What about it?"

I've decided, Ralpa, I'm going to use you as an excuse.

I'll provide you with the perfect role for a terrible farting bug.

Rather~ after all let's go as far as we can on the 3rd floor.

.....

The 3rd floor of the dungeon of Baldukk.

It's made of stone and dim, the width of the passages are narrower than the 1st and 2nd floors, there's not even 10 m.

It's probably gotten about 50 cm more narrow than those floors.

Of course, there's various places where it gets more than 10 m or becomes about 2 m as well. The air is stale, and you can't feel that it's flowing but it doesn't seem that it's not blowing at all since you occasionally feel it brush your cheek.

Angela is whispering something to Ralpa.
You two, focus on your jobs when we're working.
I'll let it off because it's not a loud voice but whispering though.

We steadily walk down that passage but hitting the floor with a 3 m pole doesn't help much at all anymore.
This isn't because there's no pitfalls but rather because the structure of the pitfalls has changed.

On the 1st and 2nd floors the pitfalls have a board covering them and that surface is camouflaged, so if you hit that surface the sound changes and you can easily see through them.

But, on this 3rd floor the pitfalls have undergone a complete change.

From a glance they appear to be camouflaged with the same sort of stone as the passage.

It seems like there's several poles inside of the pitfall and above that there's something like a thin stone wall or stone board placed on that to look like the normal passage.

Even though it's been made thin, that thickness is about 15 cm and even if you hit it a bit with a pole you can't hear the difference in the sounds.

Since Bel's skill is something that makes it easier for her to pick up on sounds, it's not like she can tell the vague differences in the sound itself. The best she can do is tell the number of legs something has from footsteps or how many sources are making sounds, and tell if they're moving.

The only way to see through the pitfalls is to move forward slowly and try stepping on them or try hitting the floor with the end of Zenom or Ralpa's hand-axe.

Even though it's a axe-hand, the pointed end of the blade is a mass of heavy cast iron so as expected if you hit it with that the sound changes and you can tell that the lid of the pitfall moves slightly.

Since it's troublesome I thought about using earth magic to make a large roller like thing and roll that along as we go but even if my mana is absurdly high it's only obvious that it would run out after a few Km keeping it running like that. It's to the point of not even needing to experiment with it. In the first place moving that much distance, putting aside mana, I wouldn't be able to maintain my concentration.

Though I've become able to use magic while moving or fighting, it pushes my nerves to the limit, and if that sort of condition continues for even 10 minutes I'm sure I would be mentally worn-out. If a monster were to come out at a time like that it wouldn't be a joke.

If it came to that then it would even be difficult for me to be considered useful in combat.

Taking into consideration the speed we're moving forward it feels too inefficient to move while hitting with the axe every time so it's about time we have no choice other than to proceed carefully. The person at the front will have to take one step forward and without putting their weight on that step as much as possible they poke the stone floor with their foot. If there's a pitfall there you can tell because it moves slightly. Then if you move to the side and do the same thing and it seems fine you can move forward from there.

It's different from the 1st and 2nd floors, the floors aren't made of dirt so it's difficult to stab something that would act as a landmark into it. It can't be helped so I'm just making dirt with earth magic and pouring it around that area.

It seems that various methods were used in the past and we've discovered something like paint or painting material scattered around in some places as well. Just in case we tried poking it with the end of our feet and after all it was a pitfall, since you can vaguely feel it move.

If you pay close attention it's not to the point where you can't see the gaps between the stone lid and the real thing but since it's dimly lit, so if we're being careful of them we end up with a speed of advance that is slower than a tired so I gave up on it right away.

However, there's no mistaking that a considerable number of people have moved along these passages since the past, we realized there's something like marks all over the place pointing to the pitfalls so it's a bit of a salvation that we can maintain our speed somewhat.

In other words, if it's a place where there's a mark then it's a place where someone has explored in the past.

Of course, we can't deny the possibility of them overlooking something but it's a big help to have various marks.

However, we've ended up finding a large number of passages along split pathways that clearly no one has passed through as well.

In those cases, we just proceed forward a bit carefully and if we can't find any landmarks along that path we turn back and go down a different path.

If we can discover a mark then there's no problem with just continuing down that way.

I don't know if this is the correct way of doing it but if I don't believe it is then the efficiency drops to a point where it's absurd to even compare them so it can't be helped.

I found out the reason why the entrance to the 3rd floor that is the teleport room of the 2nd floor always has someone camping in it.

If you don't rest once before going into the 3rd floor it's very difficult to deal with it I'm sure.

When you go to step foot into the 3rd floor if there's no clear proof that someone has passed through there (First off is the number carved out near the teleport crystal. If that's there then someone has definitely passed through. Next is the marks near pitfalls and such. Since there's no other choice to remain careful until you find something like that it wears away at the nerves quite a bit at the start though) then you once again return to the 2nd floor, and teleport to the 3rd floor again.

The speed of advancing forward dulls even more than up until now and the mental exhaustion accumulates.

However, even then there's a lot of gain at on the 3rd floor. It's a passage made of stone but it seems that there's two types of rooms ones made of stone and ones with exposed dirt. The stone rooms have the same powerful monsters making nests in them as up until now but very rarely they say there's something like a torture chamber with strange apparatus placed around that no one knows how to use.

Although, it seems that it's already after anything of notice has been taken out so the number is limited and it seems there's more adventurers who have never seen them before.

The problem is the ones where the dirt floor is exposed.

It seems that these are the same as the other rooms where a powerful monster is making them into a nest but if you dig up the walls then rarely you can discover raw ores or gems.

In short it's just that you're inside of a mine of gems but putting aside the reason, just that there's a possibility that you can gather the raw ores of gems is the reason adventurers come to this floor, no, it's one of the appeals to entering the dungeon of Baldukk itself.

Hearing this, I first thought, I see now, and at the same time several doubts came up in my mind.

It's fine if various gems and minerals can be gathered. This is Orth and not Earth, I won't be surprised by something like that at this point.

However, if the raw ores of gems that are discovered aren't normally cut then there's not much meaning. The cutting of gems is an artisans technique and there's various methods of cutting to make the gem look beautiful, I'm sure it's the same as Earth that there's various methods to change the value based on that.

However, in the first place do the tools for cutting and polishing them even exist?

It's not like you can't do the polishing with magic. IF you just keep repeating the {Cantrip} {Polish} it will take time but you can somehow polish it I'm sure.

If you can use void magic then I'm sure the efficiency will increase a bit so using that is fine as well.

But, what about the cut?

Do they do it with some tools like a set of chisels?

However, if they even make a single mistake then the long-awaited precious and expensive gem would come to nothing.

I'm sure it wouldn't become completely worthless but the value would drop significantly.

It's not like there's something like a machine so I wonder if that's where the technique of the artisan comes in?

In that case I'm sure they can't do anything other than simple cuts.

Most likely the limit is facet, step, or mix cut and something like a brilliant would be impossible, it's possible to think they're might try to smooth it over with cabochon as well.

In that case, I wonder if a diamond with a brilliant cut would have an insanely high price?

I don't know the value of diamonds in Orth terms though. Well I doubt they're cheap, probably?

Even the raw ores of gems, if it's my identify then I'm sure I can tell what type of gem they are.

Umu.

I can smell the scent of money from the 3rd floor.

Thinking that way I can put a bit of enthusiasm into the annoying exploring that wears away at your nerves.

Luckily it seems that we have yet to run into any monsters on the 3rd floor this time as well but it's about a good time.

Ralpa expression looks quite exhausted. I wonder if no one has realized because it's dark?

..Ah, I see!

I screwed up here. Seriously sorry I called you a farting bug.

"Ralpa, are you alright? It seems that you're considerably tired but aren't you pushing yourself?"

"Eh? Yeah, I'm alright. There's no problem."

How steady of her.

I'm happy that she has some guts but as expected I didn't intend to pull her to her limits from the start.

I guess it's about time to head back.

"Let's take a small break. We'll stop here for today. Zenom, keep an out ahead together with Zulu and after 10 minutes Angela and I will shift with you."

Zulu stands with a daunting pose being cautious of ahead of the party and Zenom stands in a place about 3 m to the side of that. The rest of us sit in a circle and drink some tea. Just like usual I make some hot water with magic and put in some tea then give it out to everyone before opening my mouth.

“We’ve done quite a bit in going back and forth between the 2nd and 3rd floors since noon today..five times huh? We discovered 6 pitfalls. Among those only one of them was probably in an area that wasn’t on the map or an unexplored region. If we can confirm the number on the teleport crystal rod then while we can’t let our guards down it might be okay to see it as no problem. Since we still haven’t seen a pitfall with the lid off on our way back lets drop some dirt on the one we saw before and try collapsing the lid. I want to see what they’re like.”

After saying that and drinking some tea from my flask I looked at the three of them. It seems there’s no objections. Ralpa is listening with an unusually serious expression.

“Now then, Ralpa. I already know you’re pushing yourself. From now on say things properly without being embarrassed about them.”

“Eh?”

Ralpa responded with a surprised voice.

“Don’t make say everything, it’s embarrassing. If you’re not feeling good just tell me. Bel, Angela the same goes for you two as well. From here on out when you feel tired properly tell me. It was my bad for not being careful of things like that until now. Sorry.”

“Al-san..”

It seems that Bel finally noticed the abnormality in Ralpa and figured it out. I think that Angela probably realized when we first came down to the 3rd floor for today.

As expected of the Dog-people race, I’m sure she noticed from the scent of blood but..If possible I wish she would have mentioned it then.

After that, I exchanged places with Zenom and the others and quickly retreated.

I decided to approve of a salaried day off once a month, or rather, taking a day off from exploring the dungeon when you're feeling unwell.

Of course it's different if that day is a Wednesday or Saturday.

But if we're not careful it could end up being something that puts all of our lives at risk so I ordered them to tell me without reservations when they're not feeling well.

I'm sure it'll be fine if we just earn some experience points in an adequate place around the 1st floor with the rest of us.

Ah~, that's why it's better to have less women.

Putting aside reincarnated people, I wonder if it would have been better not to buy Angela, is what I thought a bit.

It's a bit late to sell her at this point and it's pitiful so it can't be helped though. I've decided.

We'll restrict the number of them in our party when we enter the dungeon and I definitely won't buy anymore female combat slaves.

If they increase anymore than this, then depending on the situation I feel like we might seriously end up with weeks where we can't progress with exploring the dungeon.

Tody we just luckily didn't encounter any monsters but it wouldn't be a joke if monsters started to appear on the second or third days being lured by the scent of blood.

.....

Year 7442, Month 11, Day 29

After a month or so passed by and we've finally started to get a knack for exploring the 3rd floor.

Even if I say knack it's nothing too special.

The stone steps that make up the floor, or rather tiles but it's a knack for you're poking them with your feet. We've gradually gotten a grasp on how to maintain your posture comfortably or how much weight to put on it is good.

Ralpa's level increased and she's finally reached 7 MP.

I'm sure she'll be able to make quite a bit of experience in her magic and unique ability from here on out. This is something to be honestly happy about. I think it would be best to increase her MP as much as possible from here on out so after aiming to somewhat level up her magic special skills, when her MP gets to about double digits it would be best to have her start leveling up her unique ability “Spatial Understanding”.

I’ve become acquainted with several other parties that we often come across inside of the dungeon.

I haven’t seen the top teams like {Verdure Brotherhood} or {Black Topaz} since then but I’ve gotten reasonably familiar with the people who can make it to the teleport room of the 2nd floor.

However, I still don’t have the guts to do something like camp in the teleport room of the 2nd floor.

After all more than half our party is made up of 14 year old brats. Even though Zenom and Zulu are here as well, if we were to be attacked while we’re sleeping I’m sure it would become a terrible situation. It seems that it’s reasonably known to everyone that we’re always holding a considerable number of magic stones when we go to the teleport room of the 2nd floor and the people who start talking intimately ask how we’re killing all of the monsters and I can’t help but get the impression they’re trying to sound out our secrets.

And I’ve figured out that it’s not that simple to gather gems on the 3rd floor. It’s a dungeon that’s been accepting adventurers for several hundred years already.

Even though it’s the 3rd floor it’s been reasonably explored. About once a month it seems that supposedly a raw ore of a gem with a decent value (20,000,000 — 30,000,000 Z) is discovered. Even though I went to the trouble of buying a pickax and was carrying the heavy thing along it’s to the point where it seems stupid.

Since I think we’ve already started to get somewhat used to the 3rd floor, it might be about time to aim for the 4th floor and just make it into a floor we pass through.

In the first place, it seems that the value of the gems you can gather are even more valuable and easier to find on the lower floors.

In the end we weren't able to find the raw ores of gems or the stone room with strange tools in them on the 3rd floor but I guess it's fine.

After organizing things a bit and since normally the possibility of gathering the raw ores of gems can only be done after the 3rd floor it's appropriate to try and earn after that floor. It seems that rare metals start to appear on the 4th floor as well.

I don't know much about the 5th floor since only the top teams can get that far but even then the information that I did obtain was that you can gain even more rare metals and valuable gems.

I'm sure it's just being able to find one about once in a month or so but it's only obvious that the possibility of finding them would be higher in a place where there's almost no people. After all, we should quickly pass through the 3rd floor and seek out the possibilities of the lower floors. If we don't get too particular about gathering the magic stones then we can get through the 1st floor in roughly three hours and the 2nd floor in about the same amount of time.

The problem is the 3rd floor. There's also the matter of traps so it will take a considerable amount of time. Even if it was about the same amount of time (though that's definitely not the case) the amount of time it would be possible for us to explore the 4th floor would be about two or three hours. No matter how I think about it, entering in the morning the best we could do in one day is make it to the teleport room of the 3rd floor or not.

Near the end of this day, after we started on our way back from exploring, I declared that we were suspending spending anymore time than this on the 3rd floor and since tomorrow is a day off, starting next month we would aim for the 4th floor.

Simultaneously I started saying that it'll definitely be necessary to take some rest in the teleport room on the 3rd floor before the 4th floor and in order to do that we'll need to prepare the tools needed for camping and since the map for floors beyond the 4th isn't sold so we have to start producing our own map, therefore, it'll be even more difficult than the quick clearing we've done until now while looking at everyone.

Since no one commented I said that while tomorrow afternoon is a day off we need to split up and buy the necessary things as we left the dungeon.

After returning to my inn and a letter from Bakuddo had arrived. It seems that they're going to leave the house at a time where they'll arrive in Baldukk around December the 28th.

Different from normally it seems that they'll be leaving Bakuddo for quite a while so they're just coming with older brother and some squires.

I thought it might be good to take a week-long break or so like the Japanese for the New Years holiday.

.....

Year 7442, Month 11, Day 30

During the morning, we performed our using coordination training and after taking some lunch we went shopping.

Since Ralpa volunteered for the preserved food and portable stove magic tool I left it to her and Zenom.

Putting aside food we can make water with my magic.

It's bad tasting water but there's no problem with drinking it.

As far as I can tell from looking at other parties they're splitting up heavy looking buckets or water bags between them.

After listening to their conversations and it seems that's it common sense for a sorcerer who can create water not to use their mana in combat.

With just water magic level 2 you can make a bowl full of it and if it's level 3 then you can make about a bucket full so it seems that they try to save as much mana as possible and make their baggage lighter.

Even then they at least want to drink some delicious tea to rest themselves when they're exhausted so they each take a few liters as well.

Hmm, I understand those feelings.

It's true that the tea I was treated to that time was delicious.

I guess we should take along some proper water and use that for tea when camping rather than using the water made with water magic. I'm sure it'll be a bit heavy but it might be good to just say to put water in the flasks that we normally keep empty.

The remaining members went to obtain some bedding and blankets. Baldukk is a town where adventurers are gathering for the dungeon so I thought there would be some convenient goods like sleeping bags but I couldn't find something like that no matter where I searched. Since Bel and I knew that the sleeping bag was an extremely useful tool when camping in our previous lives so we were pretty fixed on that.

It's true that none of the people who were camping in the teleport room of the 2nd floor and that time when I saw the members of Black Topaz on the 1st floor they weren't using something like a sleeping bag.

There was no tent as well.

They were just laying a blanket on the floor and rolling up in that to sleep.

However, Bel and I both can't help but feel doubtful about that style. Since I fundamentally stayed at inns on my way to Baldukk, I've only camped out a handful of times but in my case I slept in a hammock. As expected there's no convenient trees to hang a hammock from inside of the dungeon.

It can't be helped there's no other choice than endure with a blanket here.

I ordered blankets for everyone made of the threads from the Roze we gathered previously.

I'm glad I didn't try to make gloves for Ralpa and Bel.

It seems it'll take about a month for them to finish being made.

Something like a qiviut blanket what kind of rich person is that, I couldn't help but think that but I'm sure a warm blanket is necessary.

I haven't caught sight of them at all since then but if we encounter Roze on the 2nd floor again we need to secure them no matter what.

Since we can't afford to rest until the qiviut blankets are completed, it couldn't be helped so I purchased some appropriately thin blankets. I purchased a bag to put those blankets in separately as well.

It should be fine to tie this up to the top part of our bags.

Since we're throwing our bags down every time there's combat I thought they would be damaged quicker but it seems that leather-made bags are more durable than I thought and they weren't all that damaged so it shouldn't be necessary to replace them.

In regards to a tent putting aside Zenom and I, I thought that the women would want one but after all they did.

I'm sure they wanted something to block sight while changing and other stuff. I can understand those feelings but it's large and since it'll add to the baggage I wanted them to restrain themselves on that.

After all, it's not easy for one person to carry a tent large enough to stand or change inside.

Whether it be adventurer's tents, two-person tents, or even the simple shelter three-person tents it's impossible to stand up inside.

I couldn't say anything other than that I would block them off with a blanket so to make do with that.

Side Story 18: In the case of Nishioka Wakana (Age 17 at time of accident)

“Really~ Thank goodness I was able to buy it~ Thanks for tagging along with me~”

After I said that I got on the bus. Other than me, two others forgot to buy obligation chocolate for Valentine’s Day, so those two who forgot to buy it and one who just came along with us, we sneaked out of school and came to buy some. Though it’s obligation, there’s also the matter of appearances, and we can hope for return chocolate on White Day so we just make due with cheap chocolate from the convenience store. If we aren’t careful to at least buy 1,000 yen per person then the recovery becomes doubtful.

The bus was empty. The four of us moved to the left center side of the bus and sat down on the priority seats near the entrance. If we all line up then this is all of the seats there are so it’s fine if we just give up the priority seat to someone who needs it when they get on. It shouldn’t be a problem with enjoying our conversation until then.

Misa and Yukino are sitting closer to the front and Yoko and I are sitting near the back end near the entrance. In front of us going in order there’s a woman wearing OL-like suit pants on one of the elevated chairs looking at an electronic pad, a young worn-out looking salary-man guy, and yet another salary-man looking guy who looks past his 30s sitting down. Behind them there’s what seems to be a high school boy sitting down looking at his smartphone or pad or something. On the single elevated seat in front of us there’s an old lady that seems to be on her way home from shopping. Near the rear exit there’s what seems to be two high school boys lined up on the two-person seat on the left side.

Another customer entered the bus at the next bus station. It’s a high school boy. He grabbed on to the leather handle in front of us and looked out the window. His uniform is that of a high-level school. It seems he’s occasionally glancing at us but his glances are disgusting which doesn’t match up with his decent looking face.

About shopping, about the boys in the class, we never run out of topics to talk about.

In the next moment I noticed that the high school boy and salary-men sitting in front of us we're looking surprised behind us.

Looking at their foolish faces with their mouths wide open was the last scene I saw.

Time just passed by as I hazily spaced out. For about a year I just lived without doing anything in particular. Because, my body became to where I can't do anything after all. I had become a baby.

Recently, I've finally become able to stand up while grabbing on to things. Right now, I wonder if I'm watching a long dream? I even feel like that might be the case.

And I arrived at the naming ceremony. It seems that my real name is Gulinel.Akdam. Gwine, Gwine since I was always called like that I could have sworn that my name was Gwine. It seems that it was a nickname. Simultaneously I found out about Status Open but I didn't really understand it. Things like my name or my birth date or other things like the Unique Ability which is the only words in a different color. In the first place, something like geographical memory {Mapping}, I don't get the meaning of it. What is the point in remembering the geography? And, is what I was thinking but I felt like something transparent came up in my head. What is, this sensation, is what I was thinking when I suddenly started to feel tired after a short while.

After learning the language I started to play with the kids in the neighborhood. I already understand how to use my Unique Ability. A short while after using it I feel like my head becomes clear. It might be a faulty expression to say clear but I feel that {clear} is a weird way of putting it as well so it can't be helped. I can almost perfectly remember the buildings I entered, observed, and the roads I took during that time. It's simple to remember them. I can even simply look at them almost like looking at a bird's eye picture from the sky when I remember them. I learned the method to use this ability from God when I talked to it previously. If I remember correctly, it was a short while after I learned Status Open.

I talked about various things with God. It seems that I died in an accident when I was riding on the bus. I was even shown something like a recording of the news report after the accident. There were 39 victims. The reason why there's so many is because there quite a few people on the train that crashed into the bus as well. I was shown a screen with a list of the victims names as well. Just from a glance it seems that everyone is Japanese. Since my name had a red square around it, I missed looking at other people's names but I somehow remember seeing Yukino's name on it as well. It can't be helped in less than a second.

When I tried asking during the time I was permitted to ask questions and not just Yukino but even Misa and Yoko died together with me at that time and were reborn in this world at the same time it seems. I tried asking where they were reborn to but it wouldn't tell me. I thought it was such a mean God but it can't be helped. After that I asked about my boyfriend(It seems he's doing well with his new girlfriend now. It can't be helped since more than a year has passed but I thought, cheater), parents, and family, about my Unique Ability and the concept of time, about the money. Since I still had some time left over I tried asking how I can return to my old lifestyle but I was told that it's impossible just like turning back time that has already passed. Then I thought, don't say you're a God in that case, but I was told that it's not that omnipotent. I guess it's that sort of thing.

In any case, just like that my time passed by and when I came to my senses there was a window like the one status is written on with words that were written almost like they're making fun of someone in front of me. I despaired and cried out while shaking off the window and then cried myself to sleep.

Several years passed and it started to become common for me to travel together with my parents. Even if I say travel it's not something like a vacation. It's peddling. The occupation of my family is that of merchants. We have a house in a town but we don't have a store. It's limited to just opening something like a stall with the goods that are leftover from peddling and fundamentally we're merchants who wander around nearby towns and villages. Assorted grains and seeds like crow wheat and millet, the leathers of beasts and some luxury goods, soap, cloth, clothing, a variety of daily necessities, we load up our carriage with a mountain of stuff like that and deliver it to the people who need it. Before I turned 10 years old I was still allowed to sit on the laps of my father and mother when they drove the carriage but eventually I started to walk on the side of the carriage or ride one of the horses pulling it.

It was common for us to hire adventurers as escorts. We made sure not to go to any place that seemed dangerous but as I grew up and stopped being less of a burden the range of our peddling increased. Accompanied by that we can't let our guards down to criminals like thieves, but monsters as well. If it's a distant village then even if it's something like a daily necessity if it's something that village can produce then they'll buy it for a good price and we can stock up on the specialty produces of that village as well.

Even if I say specialty products it's usually something like tea leaves or tobacco, and agricultural produce is the majority but very rarely when it's something like cotton or wool we return to our base town of Rombertia and take it to a company larger than our house and sell them to merchants who deal in cloth though we don't really deal in unexpected goods (in other words a product that is an unexpected gamble in profits), so we just do wholesome business.

I'm sure that my parents are having me accompany them so I can introduce myself to future customers as I'm the successor to the business and they quickly wanted me to be able to get used to doing trades as well. It might be different but I think that way so the truth doesn't matter at all. Since I'm sure that my parents wish for me to one day find a husband and make Akdam Company bigger. This is only obvious and I can naturally accept it. Rather, if what God said was true then I have no other choice than to go on living on this Orth, I should be grateful that I have an occupation I can settle into. If I think about it that way then my Unique Ability {Mapping} is convenient. Since I can remember all of the places I've seen with a bird's eye view, I doubt there's a Unique Ability that matches up to such an occupation so well.

Since I first started accompanying the peddling in order to expand the map register inside of my head I would frequently use my Unique Ability. After all I can just sleep on my father or mothers lap if I get tired. Well, I'm sure I'll get used to my Unique Ability eventually, the number of times I get tired has decreased. Although, this is because we're taking the same roads a number of times so there's no need to go out of my way to use the Unique Ability as well.

My mother and father were steadily creating savings and it was just before I was about to turn 15 years old that they were going to sell our house and had saved up enough money to hold a proper store. The incident happened at that sort of time.

It was when we had hired two adventurers as escorts and were continuing down the usual twisted paths of a forest on a mountain side. A javelin stabbed into the adventurer on the right side of the carriage. It's an attack by monsters! These sorts of things happen once or twice in a year. I've seen adventurers die in front of my eyes from surprise attacks several times. I got off the horse and moved to the left side of the carriage in order to use it as a shield. Father and mother took their spears out of the back of the carriage as well. The adventurer who was standing guard on the left side of the carriage stood on guard with his shield as he ran around to the right side of the carriage.

There's nothing to worry about. I'm sure a monster on the level of Orks or Hobgoblins have attacked. If we hang on and manage to defeat one or two of them then they should retreat while covering their injured allies.

I calm myself down while checking the state of the injured adventurer. It seems that the javelin stabbed in around the shoulder of his right arm there's blood coming out of the large wound. It seems he can use magic and he's desperately trying to use magic with his left hand to heal it but I'm sure he can't concentrate enough because of the pain. There's just more and more blood coming out between the fingers of his hand and it's not closing up at all. I thought about calling for my mother but she should be doing her best to protect the carriage from the monsters with the adventurer and in the first place mother can't use magic all that well either.

It can't be helped. It doesn't seem like he'll die right away so there's no choice other than to slowly recover from it later. Rather than that it's more important to chase off the monsters as fast as possible. I went to grab my spear from the carriage and help out as well.

It seems that the combat is taking place on the other side of the carriage with my parents supporting centering around the adventurer. However, I doubted my eyes after just a glance of that combat. As far as I can tell the opponent are Orks. There's not many many in number as well. The five orks are each holding spears and attacking my parents and the adventurer. If it was normally then while my parents were holding out the adventurer would seriously injure one or two of them orks and then they'd start to retreat.

However, this time they might be the same orks but they're completely different from the usual orks. One of the smaller orks among them is riding on the back of something like a large dog-like monster. No, it's not a dog. It's a frightening wolf of about 2.5m with grey fur. It seems that the adventurer can barely take on that wolf as the opponent and my parents are each being attacked by two orks. I need to save them!

I quickly grabbed my spear from the carriage and let out a scream as I swung the spear trying to help them. I've learned how to use the spear a bit from my father but at best I'm still an amateur. There's no way my attacks would hit. But, this is fine. If I can even get the attention of one of them and keep them away then that's fine. It's not like I need to defeat it. That's why we're paying such an expensive price to hire an adventurer after all.

I swing the spear around and succeeded in catching the attention of one of the orks trying to attack my mother. If I look closely then if they do 1 on 1 combat putting aside injuring them they should be able to rival them. And I heard a scream from like "uo" from my father. I wonder if he was injured? I'm worried but there's nothing I can do right now. As far as I can tell from a glance it doesn't seem he was particularly injured so in any case I can't do anything but pray for the adventurer to do something about the ork riding on the wolf.

However, it was something I found out quickly but it seems that father wasn't raising a loud voice because he took an attack but because he was putting spirit into the attack he made on his opponent. One of the two opponents that father was fighting was injured. Alright! I'm sure the orks will withdraw with this.

But, of all things. At the same time as I saw one of the orks get injured and fall over our only hope the adventurer had the arm he was holding his spear with bitten by the wolf and when he lost his balance the ork stabbed him in the chest with a spear. Useless salary thief! is what I was thinking but there's no helping it. Father, do something! I'll give it my best but father! Please!

Come to think of it I wonder what the adventurer who took the javelin at the start is doing? I wonder if they've already recovered from the wound? Since it seemed like they weren't going to be able to use magic from the pain I completely forgot, I was completely angry over how the other adventurer didn't come to help. Right now father is struggling against the ork on a wolf and the remaining ork while mother and I earn time against one ork each.

It's not like the ork that father defeated is dead either. It's crawling away from the battle and healing its wounds. Well, it took a spear to its leg so I doubt it'll join in the battle again so easily. But, on our side the adventurer took a spear to the chest. Even if they're not dead it's already a serious injury so it's hopeless that they'll recover more than the injured ork.

However, I guess after all they realized they needed to do enough work to justify their wages the adventurer who was in the shadow of the carriage jumped out with a spear in their left hand and raised a battle cry while charging at the ork my mother was fighting.

The spear of the adventurer didn't miss its mark and stabbed into the ork's chest killing it instantly. Alright! With this it should already be fine. It was only a brief moment that I thought that, the adventurer who stabbed the ork with his spear had his injured right arm almost torn off by the wolf. After the adventurer fell the wolf then body slammed into my mother who went to help and the ork riding it stabbed my mother with its spear.

"Jury!"

"Mother!"

My father and my screams echo out.

However, my mother had already turned into a lifeless corpse.

One of the orks made use of the time my father let his guard down to scream and stabbed him in the abdomen with a spear.

It's already no good.

In a half-frenzy I couldn't do anything but swing the spear around like crazy. I felt a warm liquid go down my legs.

It was in that moment.

A man who ran in almost like the wind cut down the ork that stabbed my father with it's spear and then after turning his body halfway around he stabbed into the side of the wolf his sword. After immediately pulling the sword out he grabbed on to the spear of the ork riding the wolf and pulled it forward causing it's posture collapse before stabbing it into the stomach as well. It all happened in no time at all.

And along with the recoil of kicking off the wolf he pulled his sword from the ork riding it and stood on guard with his sword. After the ork in front of me saw that it ran away as fast it could. And the ork that was riding the wolf held down on it's wound while retreating on the wolf as well.

I was narrowly able to avoid the dilemma.

I couldn't do anything but dreamily stare the man finishing off the remaining orks but after I heard my father's groans I threw away my spear and ran to hsi side.

"Father! Are you alright!?"

"Ah, Gwine. Are you hurt anywhere? What about July?"

I guess you would call it deathly pale. All of the blood in his face has drained as he's turned pale as paper and sweat is coming out of his face.

What should I do? What can I do?

"Wait just a minute."

After saying that I turned around to mother. If she's still alive then I need to heal her! Thinking that I turned around but the man who just appeared crouched down by mother's side and after putting his hand to her neck he looked at me and shook his head. Ah...

"Fa...Father! Mother is! Mother is ..!!"

Unable to withstand the overflowing tears, father seems to have understood look at my crying.

He caressed my head with his trembling hand and wiped away the blood at the edge of his mouth while saying.

“Gwine. I’m probably a goner. Listen well. The money is in the usual place. If possible try to get rid of all the belongings at Hengel Village. The company license is a white license in my name so I can’t turn it over to you. In any case.. once you change all of our luggage into money, after that..you somehow manage something. Yo..you can remember the roads well so you should be able to become a good..merchant...Goho..”

“It’s already fine! It’s fine so don’t talk! Hey, you, can you use healing magic? Medicine would be fine as well, or anything, please save father!”

I screamed that at the man but he just made a sad face and shook his head. He crouched down on the other side of my father and,

“The two men and your wife? have already passed away. I’m sorry I wasn’t able to make it in time.”

After saying that he lowered his head to my father.

“Y...You,‘re an elf huh? You have a lot of skill...I have a ...favor. Ah..ahead of here..Hengel village.. my daughter...and luggage..escort..? I’ll pay...300,000 Z.”

“I’ll accept it. I’ll definitely see your belongings and your daughter to Hengel village.”

“Th...Than...nk..you...Please...take..care..of my.. daughter..Gwine..”

After saying that and my father’s head dropped as if he had completely run out of power.

Today, I lost, my family.

The man who saved me is a young elf named Tolkelis.Kalosutaran. However, what I was really surprised at was his face. His facial features were deep for an elf and his eyes and hair were the same color as mine black. His eyebrows were thick and dense, giving off an air of manliness. His jaw wasn’t as sharp as a normal elf and it has a powerful border to it. Just, he has an overall uncouth atmosphere to him as well, I'm sure his facial features are well within the range of beautiful but it's not at the level of beauty of an elf. His nose is low and has a slightly smashed feeling. If it weren't for his ears and his almond-shaped eyes then it wouldn't be strange to see him not as an elf but a beautiful human.

It seems that after he saw my face he noticed and was surprised as well. My height is only 130 cm or so. Other than that I haven't inherited the usual characteristics of a dwarf and I'm thin for a dwarf. I haven't properly grown a beard yet but while it's a shock I'm sure I'll grow a beard in another few years as well. Normally it's nothing to be particularly embarrassed about but after seeing the face of the elf in front of me I couldn't help but common sense from my previous life and I couldn't hold back from my face turning red. How embarrassing, I thought that.

After that, we each introduced ourselves and when we were properly able to observe each other's faces we realized it. After that we talked in Japanese along the way.

It seems that the elf's real name is Sema Yousuke, and after all he was one of the victims who passed away in that accident. Supposedly during that time he was riding the train with his lover and in order to meet that lover again he's traveling around as an adventurer. The lover's name is Soma Asuka. It seems that both of them were college students and the same age.

I felt jealous of that lover. There was already a different woman living in the heart of the prince who saved me from a crisis. However, in the end we're just elf and dwarf. Even if we were to marry we couldn't have children. And it's not guaranteed that his lover is an elf. If that's not the case then even I might still have a chance. If I dedicate myself to serving him then it wouldn't be strange for him to notice my feelings one day.

I'll go along with him.

And I didn't worry almost at all before deciding that. It's true that you could say it's regrettable about the connections and stock routes my father left behind with his business but we have a carriage with two horses and a small house in the capital. Since I'm a Free Person as long as I don't leave the King's direct territory then I'm free to go anywhere. I'm sure I don't match up to a noble like him but I feel like I can depend on his kindness that as a Japanese he wouldn't worry about the difference in social standing.

After getting rid of all my luggage in Hengel Village, I gave him the payment for escorting me and the money from selling all of the luggage this time, a total of 3,800,000 Z to him. Since we still have savings hidden in the mouse hole in our house even if I lose all my money here it's not a big problem. It's not like I'm giving him the money I already had in the first place so I still have about 1,500,000 Z on me.

"Please take me along with you as well. Since I already no longer have any parents there's no problem. I have a carriage as well and a house in the capital. I don't think it's a bad idea to have a base in a large town if you're going to search for your girlfriend right?"

He returned 3,500,000 Z while saying,

"Thanks. I'm extremely happy. I'll take the payment for escorting but I can't take anymore money than that. And I can't depend on a stranger like you that much. But, the capital huh..it's true that if it's a large town she might be there. I've avoided the large towns until now. Only for the times when I was doing jobs as an adventurer. I've traveled around quite a few small villages but it's true that I don't know if I'll be able to find her anymore than this...I need to properly earn some money pretty soon as well.."

"Please don't hold back. I'll give you the money. I want to meet my friend as well. Will you search together with me? Ah, that's right next to the capital there's a town called Baldukk and there's a dungeon there. There's a lot of adventurers who gather there and sell magic stones and gems. If you're girlfriend wants to meet up with you as well then wouldn't she be leaving her house around now? She might be an adventurer? And if it's Baldukk then you can earn some money so I think it might be good to start searching from there."

I said it while trying to grasp for straws.

"..Certainly, that's true. It's difficult to move around blindly huh...If it's the dungeon in Baldukk then I've heard the name of it before as well so I can imagine it. Even with this I've been an adventurer for close to two years. It's just as Gwine said, if Asuka is looking for me then it wouldn't be strange for her to try and earn money there, but..”

“But?”

“I can’t imagine her fighting with her personality..I can’t even imagine her as an adventurer.”

He said that while making a bitter smile.

His white teeth sparkled.

Side Story 19: In the Case of Numaoka Shogo (Age 40 at time of accident)

“Nemoto you, why didn’t you say anything just now?”

“Eh? I mean, Numaoka-san didn’t you say you were going to do the explanation?”

I can’t bring myself to like this guy. I can’t feel any enthusiasm in his work. He doesn’t do anything except what he’s told and even then he forgets it right away. He immediately retorts back. He doesn’t apologize. His capacity towards his work is bad. He hates working overtime. He always uses all of his paid time off. And also..he doesn’t join us for drinks and doesn’t smoke. It seems he’s uninterested in women as well. His hobbies are games and animation.

“No, what I’m referring to is that the one who originally told the incorrect delivery date to the other side was you right? Why didn’t you apologize to them?”

“I mean, in the first place the one who made the mistake was manager of manufacturing Nishida-san and I just conveyed to them the mistaken date I was told? Isn’t the one who should apologize Nishida-san? I just told them the date Nishida-san told me? Why should I have to lower my head? My head isn’t that cheap~”

Are you a small child? In the first place is that such an important matter to taper your lips over!?

“Eh? That’s unrelated to the other party right, since our company made the mistake, isn’t it only reasonable that you as a representative should be the first to apologize?”

“What sort of reason is that? If you’re going to say that, then in the first place Numaoka-san aren’t you by superior, shouldn’t you Numaoka-san be the first one apologizing?”

It’s already fine. It’s the same as usual. There’s no point in saying anything to this guy.

Come to think of it, the lecturer in a seminar aimed at managers of corporations mentioned it. The type of talents that are needed in an organization or corporation.

1. A leader who can promote cooperation.

The managers must be able to gain the trust of their employees. It's only obvious they have to have leadership. There's no particular need for them be fascinating as a person. What's required is {Fairness} and the ability to guide towards a goal. And the attitude of advancing straight towards that.

2. A staff officer with the ability to think out of the box.

In a top down company if the managers aren't capable the company won't function. They need to be able to submit ideas to the leader in order to achieve the objective and look to them for the decision. There's no need for this role to be a fascinating human either. The ability that's important is to be able to create a plan making use of the limited pawns they're given to achieve the long-term or mid-term goals indicated by the leader.

3. A manager with the ability to train and educate.

In order to maintain a company you need to properly train the next generation of talents. What's necessary is someone who can create short-term goals and effectively teach their subordinates in order to achieve those goals as they themselves take the first step in guiding them. Starting here it's necessary for them to be a person fascinating (the ability to make other's want to follow them, feel relieved, or think they want to help them) to others.

4. Employees with motivation.

It seems that among those the one with the most responsibility and hardships is 3. the mid-end managers. The largest challenge is how well they can make use of their employees on the spot. If they can't educate and can't manage, if someone like that is a manager then the company will gradually decline. The eager incompetent teach the jobs and the uneager capable bestow the chances and goals. The uneager and incompetent either go to the top right away and get cut down or are abandoned at the entrance. This is the job of mid-level management. If you don't have the resolve to do this then remain a single employee for the rest of your life, because otherwise you're honestly just a bother. Is what they said.

Huh..is what I thought. it seemed a bit different from what the something or other general of Germany said after all. If I remember correctly it was something like, there's no other choice than to shoot diligent stupidity to death. Doesn't an eager incompetent person correspond to diligent and stupid? Thinking that I tried asking. And then, this response came back.

"That's a story from an army in the past. I guess it meant, those who are superior but lazy should be sent as commanders to the front, diligent and superior people should be made into officers, lazy and foolish people made into soldiers, and there's no choice but to execute those who are diligent and stupid? However, it doesn't really apply in reality. The level of education was incomparably low at that time compared to now so that was fine back then. Furthermore the actual amount of time spent in education through the army was extremely short and peoples lives were cheap. Currently there's few people who are at the same level of stupidity as back then. Everyone can use the Japanese language and can do calculations. In other words, unless they have some kind of special circumstances, it's fine to think they have some level of intelligence.

It might be best to rephrase stupidity to idiocy. Since they're idiots they don't know or understand their own abilities. The incompetent that I'm referring to are different from idiots. Rather what I'm talking about are people who are lacking in ability. It means that even among those who are intelligent there are incompetent people. Since they're intelligent they understand that they're lacking in ability. When it comes to fools and idiots in the first place there's no difference between diligence and laziness. They should be cut down right away. Also, please don't mix together diligence and eagerness.

Diligence is one of the virtues. Indigence is an important factor. In the first place there's no such thing as a diligent idiot. Since if they're diligent then normally they would escape stupidity. Just because they have eagerness towards something doesn't mean they're diligent. There's eager yet lazy people as well. Eagerness is basically, the ability to become diligent only when it's necessary."

Hearing this, I thought to myself, I see now. It's certainly true that normal employees make up the largest number and often are the youngest and lacking in experience. It would probably be correct to generally refer to them as incompetent. Of course there's superior people among them as well but that's an exception to the standard. It's fine as long as you divide the jobs meeting up with their capability. That's why the ability to educate is one of the most important things required of a mid-level manager. I guess that makes me incompetent as a mid-level manager for not cutting this uneager incompetent fellow sitting next to me as well. Putting aside whether I have charm as a human being, among the things I can definitely do right away is cutting down those who are uneager and incompetent.

I'm already sick of being an incompetent manager. When I get back I'll consult with the head of department.

I crossed my arms while thinking that.

The idiot is playing with his smartphone next to me.

I have no HR rights but it's fine to say that the one who has most direct rights to dealing with HR is those managers on the scene. Though the one who will make the final decision in regards to firing him is the head of department but since this guy is far too uneager, the first one to propose cutting him down is me. He diverges far too much from the attitude, consultation, and standards that are requested from a company, if he's still fine even then, then that means he's already resolved for what comes next.

Enjoy your short remaining life at our company as best as you can.

In the next moment, the train seemed to have used to emergency brakes. Since it was sudden an urgent braking you could hear the loud squeal sound from them echoes through the train. Simultaneously the idiot and I were sent flying towards the front.

Along with the sound of a thud I lost consciousness.

What in the world happened? An accident? I wonder if I got into an accident because I was riding together with an idiot like Nemoto?

I guess that's saying too much? It's difficult to move my body. I feel like my emotions are getting uncontrollable. I can't hold back.

Even though I'm an adult male in his 40s I ended up crying. I wonder if I was injured somewhere, I feel like my voice is strangely high but it doesn't feel all that unnatural either.

.....

Was it six months, more than that, or maybe even one year that passed? Along with the passing of time I've vaguely started to get a grasp on the circumstances. I can't even guess what actually occurred but it seems I was reborn in some foreign country. No matter how I look at it my body has shrunk to the size of a baby and along with that my strength and stamina, and even emotions have fallen to that level. Adding to that as well, I thought I only had one parent but I only found out I have two parents recently. Who could have imagined that my mother had a beard growing as well?

I still have all of the memories and knowledge I've accumulated up until now. However, at one point there was something I was shocked over. Since I had far too much spare time it was when I was thinking back to my final moment's in my past life. Right, it was on the train returning after apologizing to the client for that idiot Nemoto's mistake.

Was the content of what Nemoto was saying that strange? It's strange. No, I can't declare it as strange. If I think about it calmly, while concentrating on it my knowledge and common sense is strange, but even further inside, I realized I was somehow agreeing with Nemoto on an emotional level. Even if I remember back other than that time, to the countless statements he said that I found unpleasant...

"They call those sorts of things corporate slaves?"

"What are you doing throwing away your pride like that?"

"Laborer's have rights too!"

"Since it's not particularly like I'm working for the sake of the company, it's my life."

They're all statements that show off his idiocy but my feelings are in agreement with him. Even though I can clearly decide it's mistaken based on all of my knowledge and experienced in my life up until now but if I don't think seriously about it and I can't help but think "That's right, that's right". as well. What in the world is this? Did I become an idiot on the same level as Nemoto? Well I guess there's no other choice than to get into the habit of thinking carefully.

Since I got sick of thinking about that idiot Nemoto, I thought about my wife, son, and family. I haven't met them in a long time now. I wonder if they're doing well? Are they staying healthy? What's going on with their lifestyle? Ah, since it was an accident in the middle of work, so I'm sure the company will pay a decent amount of sympathy money, there's insurance as well. My two sons will become adults in another few years so there should be enough for them to have no problems until then I guess. N? Sympathy money from the company? For Nemoto as well even! I feel it's waste for the company to give even 1 yen for that guys sake.

Since I had too much spare time I couldn't but think about things like this. If I start thinking about my family I quickly get emotional and start crying so I've gotten used to it. It was such a time as that, whenever a new face I haven't seen sees me I noticed they were doing something. They usually say "Status Open" while touching me. I thought it was some kind of spell of this region or country.

However, when I was doing the naming ceremony, the priest, or minister, or monk or whatever I don't know, the guy with the sacred profession touched me while doing some sort of spell as well. And then, it was only when they're using that sort of spell that their words got a bit long. In the end I finally heard {Named}. I noticed there was bits of English and words I was familiar with here and there. That's why I didn't think I was in the sphere of influence of English, some different country.

I've already learned the language of a simple level. After I heard {Named} from the priest, my father said {Status Open} while touching me and said something like "His name has certainly changed." to the priest afterwards. Incidentally my new name is Zuhentis.Heriosaid. I'm the eldest son and heir of Viscount Heriosaid.

And then I noticed it, the real meaning of {Status Open}. I was so shocked at it that I ended up crying out. Unique Ability: Predictable Evasion? I don't get the meaning. In the first place what's an ability? Other than that there was also something like Special Skill: Infrared Vision. I was able to figure out the special skill right away. If I think about Infrared Vision in my head then I noticed my vision changed. How do I put it, something multicolored like my vision has turned {psychedelic}. However, I don't really get my Unique Ability. I tried using a number of times but I wasn't able to understand what changed at all. Since I get tired after using it and couldn't understand it at all I forgot about it.

I was only truly able to understand about my Unique Ability when I turned around three years old. When I got into a fight with my two-year older sister I remembered and tried using it. It might have just been my imagination but I felt like I knew what direction my older sister's open hand was flying. I just felt like that but I wasn't able to evade it though. I tried using it countless times while fighting but since I suddenly fell asleep my older sister went into a panic thinking she had killed me.

It was then that I was somehow able to understand it. The fact that "Predictable Evasion" is when something is moving aimed at me, I can "Predict" the target point and somehow understand the direction I would need to move my body in order to "Evade" it. Once I understood the method to use it my Unique Ability leveled up right away and I met God.

I used up about half of the time I was permitted to confirm what happened to my remaining family and the remaining half I used to ask about things I had questions on. About my race and the form of government, the concepts of time and currency, the stuff around there had been taboo. I regretted not asking about magic since I didn't know about it back then. Well, it's no problem now though. Also, I forgot to ask why I get tired when I use my Unique Ability. Well, now it's not much of a problem since I don't get tired from using it just 10 or 20 times.

It was only vague but I was able to understand various things about the world. Since three years have already passed I don't have much regrets towards my past life at this point. I had them but since it seems like my family is doing reasonably well it should be fine. I should worry about myself from here on out. For starters it's necessary to search for that idiot Nemoto. Even if it's a guy like that he was still a subordinate of mine and I still hadn't gotten him fired. I'm sure there's not much meaning in carrying our relationships from our past lives over into this world but even then a relation is a relation, no matter how much of an idiot he is, since he was educated in Japan I'd like to think he's still more intelligent than the average person on Orth.

Since we both died in the accident at almost the same time and we were sitting next to each other, I feel like he might be surprisingly nearby. Maybe he's in the same village. Since it seems that people who died in the accident were "reborn simultaneously" he should be the same age as me. It seems like it would be simple to find him...Though it wasn't simple at all. There were no children with a birth date close to mine in the village. Even the closest one was six months apart. Just in case, I tried to let me meet them even then but no matter how I looked at them it was just an infant. I can't imagine it was just an act.

Just like that I turned 7 years old and started training with the sword. Though if you were to ask rather than the sword the training put more emphasis on the spear and axe. Since even adult dwarves have a short height training with the sword isn't a bad thing but they prefer weapons with long reach or even if it's a short reach one you can easily put power into like the hand-axe. Until 10 years old it was almost completely just swinging and forms but it seems at 10 years old I can start practice matches. I'm sure that will be the time for my Unique Ability to show it's true worth. Up until then there's not much meaning to it. And, it seems that my growth rate on level up is high as well. It can't be helped using my Unique Ability to hurry with level ups starting now. The thing that should say the most in the end is steadily continuing training over time. Without thinking about level ups for a while I just vigorously kept training, I'm sure it's best to start with making my body.

Since it seems there's monsters on Orth as well, it's lucky that I'm able to learn how to fight from the time I'm a child. I did a bit of karate when I was a student but I really can't imagine half-assed karate would work against monsters so I'm sure a weapon is necessary. If there was a gun then that would work the best but unfortunately it doesn't seem like civilization has advanced that far. Putting aside the fact that there's no gunpowder, it seems like the metal is only bronze or cast iron and they aren't even doing any proper forging. Even when I'm lacking in that sort of knowledge I feel like we should make good use of it. Among the close to 40 Japanese people who were reborn I'm sure there should be some superior guys among them as well so won't someone make them?

And then I turned 10 years and finally started to mix in practice matches with my training. I made good use of this chance to start using my Unique Ability and it didn't take much time at all to be known for never losing in the village. Around the time I turned 12 years old it was vague whether I could land a hit but I would wait until the opponent goes in for a powerful blow and land a powerful counterattack at those times, so my father, grandfather, and the squires all praised me quite a bit for that style. Since they have high expectations for my talent start next year I'm getting a recommendation to enter Count Dovin's knight group.

A knight group huh, how cool~ Riding on a horse wearing silver plate-mail, and swinging around a halberd to fight monsters, it's like a knight from a story book. In terms of games it would be the hero. I wonder if there's some sort of magic like Gigadein? I would definitely love to learn it. I was able to put even more effort into my training. There's not even enough time to waste playing with the children of the village. In the past I felt like I would lose to the temptation and was quite troubled trying to endure it. As expected now I don't have any feelings of wanting to play. If I don't hurry Nemoto might die because he's an idiot. Once I become a knight I'll become that adventurer or whatever and try searching around here and there. Ah, I was the eldest son. Well if I can get promoted in the knight group then it should be fine if sister takes on an adequate husband for the Viscount family.

Just like this when I turned 13 years old, I was able to pass the exam for Count Dovin's knight group without a complaint. Around that time no one in the knight group could land an attack on me when I was in good condition. One year later, my efforts were recognized, and since it seems I had talent as well I was given a recommendation for the strongest white phoenix knight group in the country.

There was series of surprises waiting for me when I entered the white phoenix knight group. The prince of the Belgrid family, the son of Duke Stahlz, even more so while he's a commoner, but there's the son and heir to the Sagal family of spies for Devas Kingdom were all in the knight group since a year before I arrived and my seniors. Obviously, they quickly called out to me as well.

They had other influential allies as well. One of them was a woman named Geguran who was a skilled magician the daughter of a Baron family of court sorcerers. All of them were being instructed by her in magic and it seems some of them can already use magic. It's quite enviable. Also, there was one more, male ally as well. A man named Barnes, since he was a Free Person he wasn't able to enter the knight group. It seems that normally he's wandering here and there with his allies as an adventurer and confirming the terrain. As expected even for the prince and Duke's son, they aren't able to grasp the power at 14 years old, so the limit of what they could do was pushing a commoner of the Sagal family into the knight group.

Among them it seems that Geguran was an old lady in Japan. However, she has a pretty good abundance of youthful sensitivity that doesn't let you feel that. It seems she looked up to magicians and after finding out there was magic on Orth, she started getting trained in magic by her parents from a young age so she's quite skilled. It seems that one every couple of months she goes traveling with Barnes as an adventurer using her magic.

And, it seems she's going to teach me magic as well. She, said that and smiled. Even a dwarf like me can use it?

"It's a world that God went through the effort of letting us be reborn on. Everyone should definitely be able to use magic. After all, if that wasn't the case there'd be no meaning to the existence of magic. Of course I'm sure there's differences in talent but I believe that. Isn't it lovely that we can use something so mysterious as magic?"

She taught me several important things that I didn't know. First, it was about Nemoto that I was on the verge of forgetting but it seems quite hopeless to search for him. It seems that the people who were reborn in this world have over a fixed amount of distance between each of them. Most likely he should have the same black hair and black eyes like the prince and others but his name will be different and including racial characteristics his appearance will match his new age. Furthermore, it seems that my case was the first time they found out reincarnated people could be non-humans, so they were extremely surprised.

According to Barnes who I call Ben, he guessed that the genes we've inherited from our parents on Earth were mixed together with the genes from our parents on this world. Since there's no way to confirm if it's true or not everyone has accepted that as an explanation. It's not like anything in particular would change even if we knew the truth after all.

By the way, the one who was most pleased by me entering the white phoenix knight group was Sagal. It seems that until I entered he was going to have to remain the knight group and take on the role of grasping control of the army. And before I entered the group they all were equally weak in combat, and the only one who was even at a decent standard to somehow make it into the white phoenix knight group was Sagal. Next up was the Duke's son Stahlz, and finally Prince Begridd.

Though Prince Belgridd was the weakest in terms of skill among the men, he at least had as much skill as a knight in Count Dovin's knight group so it wasn't something to get down about. However, if they were all like that then it would have been difficult to grasp the army. Barnes had about the same level of skill as Stahlz. It's quite something even though he's never received proper training in a knight group but it seems that in his previous life he was a physical education teacher for a higher school and also the advisor for a kendo club. Furthermore, since Geguran is a noble as well she had some training with the sword but it doesn't exceed self-defense.

It's true that if you mention those on a commander class, individual strength, or rather skill with the sword or spear don't really matter but on Orth where the levels of civilization and culture are low having a decent amount of combat ability is an important factor. It's true that if you don't have the ability to negotiate, regulate, or control things politically on top of that then it's easy to be looked down upon. At the very least if you're looking to gain power in the army then individual strength is in some meanings essential.

For reasons like that they requested that I aim to be the commander of the white phoenix knight group. I'm sure it won't be that simple but if from here on out the prince becomes an adult and formally inherits the throne then it's predicted that I'll be able to do it without problem. However, if possible they want to speed up his enthronement even just a bit.

As expected 20 years old is unreasonable but they want to have a complete grasp over Devas Kingdom before turning 30 years old and with Belgridd as the King, Sagal as the minister of domestic affairs(just as he was about to also hold the position of commander as well I appeared), Geguran will hold both the roles of top imperial court sorcerer and principal of the royal magic school(it seems that became the case from her strong wishes), Barnes is the minister of foreign affairs and will also hold the post of minister of education, and Stahlz will take the remaining positions of prime minister and other important cabinets.

I thought that was quite the optimistic outlook, that was quite difficult to comment on. However, it's certainly better than not having any plans. It should be fine if I just fill in the holes that they're lacking. According to the stories I've heard they've gone through a reasonable amount of troubles as well. In order to increase the national power even just a bit, to help develop Devas Kingdom in the future, they've been trying to change the disposition of it. They told me about the various things they've tried to do within their abilities so far.

If they can gather a number of Japanese in the backbone of Devas then I'm sure it would become quite the rumor and once they grasp power then they could probably do anything. It might be a bit rash but even searching the entire country with black hair and eyes as the standard should be possible. If we announce it on a large-scale then after hearing the rumors Japanese people might gather. Among them Nemoto might be included. He's a stupid idiot as a Japanese person but I still feel it would be bad to just cut him down.

Chapter 96: Punishment

Year 7442, Month 12, Day 24

Today is Christmas Eve but..when it comes to an event of a religion that they didn't particularly believe in from their past life as expected Ralpa and Bel can casually ignore it. After doing our coordination training in the morning the two of them we're talking about what menu to eat for lunch. I was relieved that I didn't strangely be too careful on that end as well. If I had been carelessly excited while preparing a cake (or something like that) as a present then there's no doubt Ralpa would have looked at me like an unfortunate child.

There's plans for my older brother to arrive in Baldukk on Thursday of next week so I'll at least reserve a room for him in the inn. Although, I'm sure it'll be off by one or two days or maybe even more. Since there's quite a distance between Keel and here. Recently someone from the third company of the first knight group has come to my inn everyday, waiting anxiously for my older brother's arrival.

Even if older brother comes I'll be taking the measurements in the capital so they don't need to be in such a hurry and I already decided to take orders from the third company this time so it's like I'll run away. Relax for a bit. Every time I return to my inn from the dungeon and see people from the knight group waiting outside I think that but I can't treat them carelessly. It's started to get annoying offering them tea before saying "not yet" and then having them leave.

We haven't advanced much at all in regards to the dungeon, it's taking quite a bit to clear the 3rd floor. Ah, no, we've gone to take a glance at the 4th floor, and for the most part we can get to the teleport room to the 4th floor. However, it takes too much time. Teleporting from the 2nd floor to the 3rd floor then trying to figure out where we are on the 3rd floor, it takes a reasonable amount of time just confirming our current position. If we don't know then we can just keep teleporting until we get to a place we do but that's far too troublesome and we'll never fill in the map for the 3rd floor.

I paid a large sum (listen and be surprised, of all things it was 12,000,000 Z) and purchased what's said to be most accurate map of the 3rd floor you can get your hands on right now but even then you can only trust about half of it. We've repeated teleporting and investigating countless times, if each individual party doesn't increase the accuracy of their own map then it's difficult to go to the 4th floor. If you end up teleporting to a place which isn't on your map if you push yourself a bit then you can get to the teleport room on the 3rd floor but if you do it carelessly then you could end up spending an entire day just to clear through the 3rd floor. We've tried challenging it countless times but without a proper map of the 3rd floor it takes us a lot of time like 24 hours or 30 hours after entering the dungeon to get to the 4th floor.

Even if we take plenty of rest before going to the 4th floor the ground in the teleport room of the 3rd floor is basically some rugged stone leveled out so it's difficult to even normally get some rest. Putting it simply it's difficult to sleep on. We did lookouts in shifts and tried getting some rest but I didn't feel like I could get rid of the fatigue. We spend 6 hours getting through the 1st and 2nd floors then take a 1 hour or so break in the teleport room of the 2nd floor after that if possible we try to arrive at the teleport room of the 3rd floor within 6 hours. After getting one nights rest there we spend about half a day clearing the 4th floor and then I want to take a nice rest in the teleport room of the 4th floor. This is the ideal.

Although, in our case we have leeway with the amount of mana we have so we actually have a bit of advantage when it comes to getting rest in the teleport room on the 3rd floor. It's simple. I use earth magic to create an appropriate amount of dirt and just put the blanket on top of that. I'm always intentionally making sure to use {Anti-Magic Field} at the end to erase the dirt so no one else can use it again. If I want to try and put a reason on it then I could say I don't want to make the dungeon dirty. Well, whenever everyone is going to the bathroom I'm always creating dirt and handing it to them so no matter how you think about it I just don't want to supply or assist other parties though.

6 hours in order to clear the 3rd floor. It's hard to say we've cleared the 3rd floor if we can't definitely manage it with that sort of schedule. If we can keep filling in the map of the 3rd floor at our current pace then most likely we should be able to reach that point in another three months or so. Although, this is supposing everything proceeds smoothly so I think it's highly possible that it could take an extra one to two months on top of that for delays. Well, even then there's no mistake it should be considered a considerably high pace.

Since we still have plenty of leeway in our ability to fight monsters on the 3rd floor, it's large that we have more mental leeway than other parties. I'm sure it'll eventually get harsher someday but by all means I don't want to lose this leeway. Recently since Bel has started to use magic for both attacking and support her experience has gone up quite a bit and in addition to how much MP she originally had it's added quite a bit to our combat potential. Ralpa's void magic turned level 2 as well and she's gotten earth and fire magic both to level 1. Her MP has reached double digits and it's probably about a good time to try and increase her Unique Ability.

Zulu and Angela have increased their skill quite a bit and are functioning as splendid front-line attackers. There's no need to get impatient. It's fine if we just keep slowly moving forward. Since what we end up having to pay if we fail is our lives after all.

On Saturday afternoon, after we finished eating lunch and I was in a corner of the 1st floor practicing my attack spells I was thinking that. I can already use all of the attack spells I know in at longest 2 seconds, for the shorter ones I've even become able to use them in less than 1 second. Since I'm fighting against monsters on the 1st floor at the same time my experience points are going through the roof as well. My level has increased even further and now I'm level 15. All of my magic special skills increased to level 8 and after another 100,000 experience points or so my void magic should reach level 9.

In regards to my Gift of Natural Talent it's finally reached within another 100 monster kills from hitting MAX. Things are going well. Anything and everything is going well. I'll finish up here for today and after doing some running I guess I'll go and eat with everyone. Since it's Christmas Eve if I were to say I'll treat everyone I wonder if Ralpa and Bel will be surprised? I'm sure they will be surprised. But attentiveness is important after all.

I was thinking that while gathering the magic stone from the gnoll I just killed and then grabbed on to the teleport crystal rod.

Evening, we all gather at the usual restaurant. Putting aside Zenom, since I'm always in charge of Zulu and Angela's dinner, I wonder what I should do. Thinking about a present for my own slave, it seems stupid after all. Well I guess it can't be helped worrying about it. I'm sure that Zulu and Angela don't know about Christmas so there's no meaning to it.

However, let's at least go to "Doruleon" for today. I've stopped by a number of times to the Roze fillets since last month. We ate the slightly extravagant food and had some beer while enjoying ourselves. After all it seems that Ralpa and Bel weren't particularly thinking of anything. When I said that the bill is on me because it's Christmas Eve they just exchanged glances then laughed and ate without holding back. After the four of us returned to Boil Manor we split up to our rooms.

If Ralpa is just going to hang out in Bel's room anyway then I thought those two should just stay together and let Zenom have his own room but if I involve myself that far and they don't like it, it would just be unpleasant so I'm ignoring it. I paid 100 Z and used my home-made shower in the shower room and after returning to my room Ralpa and Bel were standing in front of my door. What is it?

"Hn, What is it? Do you have some business with me?"

"Umm you see. Isn't today Christmas Eve? That's why Bel and I, the two of us prepared something."

Eh?

"Since we're always in your care, it's a present from us Al-san."

Oh?

“Eh? Ah? Sorry. Thanks.”

Oh~ I was moved by their feelings.

“Then, good night.”

“Have a good nice.”

The present I received from the two of them was an inverness coat. Since it's cold out right now and I didn't have a coat. I'm sure it's just right to wear around the town. I'll gratefully accept it. If I look carefully it has my name sewn on the inside of it. The characters are done badly but it reads “Kawasaki Takeo”. The part that's badly done about it is there's too few of a number of strokes in the two characters Kawa and Take. This was probably done by Ralpha.

Come to think of it, I've received a coat as a present from my wife as well. In Miki's case I feel like it was always something like clothes or shoes though. My birthday was...when was it again? Ah, July 25th. Recently February 14th has remained too strongly in my consciousness so it took me some time to remember. My birthday was summer goods and Christmas was winter goods I think it was...speaking of presents, the ones Shiina gave me were always pretty nice as well. A short while after she entered the company, when she was still my errand-runner, or rather something like an assistant as I worked her hard. She said with a meek face “since I'm always under your care..” and gave me a pretty nice ball-pen for Christmas. I remember thinking, this fellow sure pays attention well, and starting from the next year I would give her something as well though.

I think she should be about the same age as I was when I died right around now, was it? I wonder if she's doing well? Miki should already be past 60 as well. It would be good if she was able to remarry. Since she was two years older than me as expected there might not be anyone who would marry her already... I'm sure if she didn't remarry she's eating some pretty good stuff and doing well. I think at that time she had just become the head of the accounting department of small foreign trade company. If she didn't quit then her income should be pretty decent so I'm sure there's no need to worry about her lifestyle. I'm sure my life insurance money was quite a bit as well.

I guess it's because I received a Christmas present I suddenly remembered my past life. A smile naturally appears on my face. That's right, my wife is already an old woman. I wonder what she would say if she were to see me right now? Wearing rubber protectors, wielding a bayonet, and wearing my handmade boots as I slowly and nervously walk around in the dungeon, she'd probably laugh. And if she found out that the reason for doing that was to earn money so I could found my own country there's no doubt she'd roll around hitting the floor while laughing.

I put my rubber protectors on the armor stand and then carefully put the invernness on top of that and climbed into bed naked as usual. I'm starting to want some pajamas. But it's normal to sleep naked on Orth. I guess only those of true nobility and royalty would wear something like pajamas. I've completely gotten used to it already but when it comes to a cold season I miss my pajamas. When I was small I was in a bed for infants and after I graduated from that I was in between my parents. After I got a bit bigger the three of us siblings slept in a large bed together in the kid's room. After a short while I received a single bed but until then I had always slept with someone close by. I don't even remember the number of times I identified the boards on the roof.

There's various things in life.

.....

Year 7442, Month 12, Day 27

Today is Wednesday and a day off. Or rather, I went all out and made until the Wednesday on January 4th a holiday.

It seems that Bel and Ralpa are going together with their guardian Zenom to sight-see in the capital starting tomorrow. Since it seemed like Zulu and Angela didn't have anything in particular to do so I think it would be fine if we go together with Bel and the others though my brother should arrive around tomorrow. I'm sure we'll return to Baldukk later that night though.

After eating breakfast and finishing my running, now then, when I started thinking about whether I should enter the dungeon and continue with my magic training or maybe hang around in a boss room on the 1st floor beat down the boss while investigating how it revives as I returned to the Boil Manor, there were some people I recognized and some kind of an uproar going on.

It seems that my older brother and the others arrived one day sooner than planned. The knights from the third company of the first knight group that were on duty (smile) for today must have guessed who older brother and the others were based on their luggage and started talking to them, it seems that the cause is after realizing they were correct they were going to escort them all on their own convenience. Hey now, I'm sure older brother and the others are tired, since they arrived a day early at least let them rest for a day. How much do you want some armor?

"Ya~ brother. Thanks for going out of your way to come all the way here."

"Oh~ Al!?!..Did you dye your hair? Even you wake up to sex appeal when going to city I see~"

..It's not like I've suddenly become aware of sex appeal though. Rather than, this person.

"Rossh-san. It's too soon for the scheduled time. And the delivery to Lord knight leader and the second company are after tomorrow, so taking measurements will be after that."

"Oh~ Greed-kun! Even though you say that I want to order even just a day faster. And this was your older brother huh? I'm sorry about that, it was rude of me when I didn't know your face. I'm the commander of the third company of the first knight group of the Kingdom of Rombert, knight Beinrolf.Rossh. It's an honor to meet the highly rumored "Black Eagle of Webdos". We the first knight group welcome everyone of Greed Company. I'll escort you to the knight group headquarters in the castle."

Rossh-san said that while greeting older brother. Rather what's that Black Eagle of Webdos?

"Yeah, I just heard your greetings from a moment ago...However, can you please pardon me on the Black Eagle of Webdos stuff? I'm not longer active duty after all.."

Older brother said that with a fed up expression. This is...older brother must have been hiding the fact hat he was called that from us.

"No, not at all we've heard stories of your activities from Lord Greed your little sister, and the sub-commander. Supposedly your skill with the sword and horsemanship even surprised the sub-commander Lord Bittwaz.”

Hohou, after all older brother sure is amazing~ As expected for him to be scouted by the first knight group. Let me hear some more.

“And, I’m very sorry but we’re a bit exhausted from the long journey. We need to let our horses rest as well so we’ll definitely visit the castle tomorrow but would you please today..”

Che...I wanted to hear a few more stories. But, I’m sure it was a long journey and they’re tired after all. It should be fine if they take a comfortable rest for today and then go to the castle in Rombertia tomorrow as planned. Even I want to slowly talk to older brother and I want to talk to the squires as well.

“That’s certainly true. Please excuse my actions. However, once again tomorrow someone from our third company will come to accompany you. Please appear at the castle together with that person. I’m sure that case would cause less problems when arriving at the castle.”

After Rossh-san said that and politely bowed his head to older brother, he turned around and left.

“Al, did you already make room reservations? I want to rest already. As a matter of fact, we shifted our plans one night and we’ve all been walking through the night since yesterday morning. We’re tired.”

“Yeah, of course I’ve made reservations. It’s fine. The carriage can go over there and there’s some stables for the horses on the other side.”

After saying that I was about to go into the inn and call the apprentice of Boil Manor when older brother grabbed my arm and opened his mouth.

“Al, I arrived a day early but do you have any plans for today?”

“No, it’s fine. Well, even if I had some then something like that doesn’t matter at all.”

“I see, then that’s good.”

.....

After finishing the procedures with the inn, we all split up to get some rest in our rooms. I went up the stairs together with older brother and when I was about to show him to his room it was just as Bel and Ralpa came out of Bel's room.

"Huh? Al..Who's that?"

"Ah, this is my older brother. He's Farnestan.Greed. Older brother, these two are Ralpa and Bernadette. The human is Ralpa Firefreed and the Rabbit-people one is Bernadette.Koloil. They're my...my allies."

"It's nice to meet you Greed-san. My name is Bernadette.Koloil. I'm always in the care of Al-san."

Bel smiled sweetly and properly introduced herself.

"Yeah, my name is Farnestan.Greed. It's fine to call me Farne. It seems that Al is always in your care. Thank you."

Older brother smiles while replying.

"U...Umm..My name is Ralpa Firefreed. It..It's nice to meet you. U..Umm, I'm always taking care of Al."

What is she saying? This girl.

"Fufu..It's nice to meet you Ralpa-san. Thanks. It seems that Al is saved by it as well. Please take care of him from now on as well."

As expected even older brother couldn't hold back his laughing.

"Fu~ Yes! Leave him to me!"

Really you, what are you saying? Pretending to be my guardian?

"It should be fine already, my room is over here. Older brother's room is there."

"Ah, then, first let's go to your room."

After saying that older brother briskly walked off. I followed after that. After I used the key to open the door and said that while entering inside.

"What the, aren't you keeping it quite tidy?"

“Of course I am.”

“Now then, Al. Stand over there and clench your teeth.”

“Eh? Wh..bugou”

Ol.older brother..that was my stomach..isn't..that unrelated to my teeth...

“Don't use magic, stand up.”

“Why..suddenly..buge~”

Again..that's..my stomach...

“Do you know why you're being hit?”

I was hit by two body blows of older brother and I'm writhing on the floor without know what in the world is going on. I was throwing up the contents of my stomach while unable to stand up this time. Why?

“Ku..Wh..why..gu”

While I was writhing around the floor this time he grabbed me by my hair and dragged me up then punched me in the cheek this time.

Sh..Shit..you can aim for world. Or not, it seems like my teeth aren't broken but the inside of my mouth is cut up. I spontaneously raised my hand to my left cheek which was punched. Older brother grabs that hand, “Don't use magic. So you still don't understand. It can't be helped...Well, I'll leave it at this I guess. You, taught some strangers the method to train magic right? Mother's method...Do you know the reason why you were hit?”

Ah...I did teach someone. I taught the method of shaking a flame to acquire void magic. Kuro and Mary, Ralpa and Bel. I've taught four people. Even putting aside the method of increasing mana which I noticed when I was an infant, not the method using {Cantrips} but the efficient method to acquire void magic. I should have been told by my parents that it was a family secret. However, why does older brother know about that?

“This summer, when I went to Keel for deliveries, I was greeted and thanked by two squires in the knight group. Squires named Baladik and Binsil. You remember them right? According to what I heard from them they were saved by you. That's fine. It's only obvious for nobles to save troubled citizens. I'm sure you just pitied their circumstances and taught them magic but why did you do it on all your own without getting permission from father! Since just by chance they hadn't told anyone about it yet I made sure to forbid them from speaking about it to anyone. Since it seems they felt quite the debit of gratitude to you they swore that they would never tell anyone about it."

Gu, Ma, Mary became able to use magic as well huh...But, I screwed up. Rather, why did I forget about something as important as that?

'Older brother...Sorry. To be honest, I taught those two from just now as well. I'll immediately go and forbid them from speaking about it."

After I said that I heard the sound of someone knocking on the door. Older brother turned around and opened the door. The ones who were standing on the other side of the door was Bel and Ralpa. Good timing. I need to tell them not to reveal it to anyone.

"Ah..Bel, Ralpa"Al! What's wrong!"Al-san!"

The two of them ran over to me as I'm crouched over a puddle of puke. Older brother was a bit surprised it seems.

"Older brother! What in the world is the meaning of this?"

I'm sure she noticed that I wasn't heavily injured or anything right away, Ralpa drew closer to older brother. Rather, what's up with older brother?

"That's right! Did Al-san do something? Al-san, healing.."

Bel was going to lift me up.

"The healing is fine. This is punishment. I did something that it's only obvious to be hit for after all...Ralpa, Bel...It's suddenly but the first method of acquiring magic I taught you, that's right, the one where you move the flame. That, is a secret of my family. Please promise not to tell anyone about it. I'm begging you, just like this."

I lowered my head to the two of them while being held up by Bel. The both of them have already finished the training of moving the flame so I don't know if they still remember it but if they were going to teach someone magic from here on out then I'm sure they would definitely remember what they forgot.

The two of them accepted it and swore that they definitely reveal it to anyone. In addition, they said they understood the reason why I was hit. Older brother opened his mouth after quietly listening.

“Now then, young ladies. If you know a good restaurant somewhere, it’s a bit early but would you accompany us for lunch? Please excuse me but we want to get something to eat and go to sleep a bit early. Also, if it’s fine with you I’d like to have dinner together as well. Since this fellow is going without meals until tomorrow morning. Right, Al. Don’t take even a step out of this inn until tomorrow morning. Spend the night reflecting here.”

“I understand...I’ll reflect on things until tomorrow morning here..Sorry..”

“I’ll be quiet about this to mother and father so relax.”

“Yeah..Thanks.”

“Then, the two of you, shall we go? Ah, that’s right, you, have slaves right? What are they doing about meals?”

“I’m feeding them breakfast and dinner.”

“I see, then for today I’ll feed them in your place. Nn, Ralpa-san, do you know where Al’s slaves are?”

“Yes, I know. Al you reflect over there.”

Shit.

.....

It’s become noon. My stomach is growling. The cut insides of my mouth hurt. It seems like my cheek is swelling up as well.

.....

It’s become night. I’m hungry. There was nothing so convenient as someone secretly bringing me food. Putting aside the squires from Bakuddo, Zenom, or Ralpa, I at least had some hopes for Bel though. I don’t care anymore I’m going to sleep.

.....

Year 7442, Month 12, Day 28

It's about time for daybreak. I spent a full day hungry, reflecting, and thinking about it. Why did I forget about something that important and teach them? It's definitely not like I was getting full of myself and teaching people right and left. Since they're reincarnated people, and it's true I felt it was just right to sell them a favor and make them into my subordinate. However, no matter how I think about it, it's unnatural. Even if it's me, I don't understand the reason why I would selfishly break the things father told me and teach them. In the first place, it's fine to just teach them the method to learn it using the {Cantrips} mana detection on the fire-starter magic tool. The efficiency drops but even then while it might take a bit of time they'll learn magic without problem.

I know something like this~ I'm amazing right~ I didn't have any sort of feelings of bragging like that at all. I just completely forgot about what father had told me. Was I, this forgetful?
The fact that I forgot it means that there's doubting that's the case but, nevertheless you know...

Even though portions of memories from my past life are obviously fading but I think I still remember quite a few of them.

I wonder if this has some sort of relation to the rejuvenation(?) of my mentality?

I doubt that's the case.

There better not be anything else that I'm forgetting about?

I've started to get a bit afraid now.

I'm like a youth with amnesia that's realized they've lost their memories.

If it's something I don't know then I need to gather as much material on it as I can and reorganize things or for the time being shelve it until I get more material to make a decision on, is what you could say is a valid method of going about it but when it comes to this time. It might even be possible that I'll forget I'm thinking something like this..That's worrying too much, for me. Then I'll write it down. It's still before the sun rises but I went to sleep right away last night and I'm not tired anymore. It's cold but if I put my clothes on I'm sure I can write some memos.

Chapter 97: Reflection

Year 7442, Month 12, Day 28

Since today after this I'm going to make deliveries to the knight group headquarters at the castle, it would probably be a good idea to start making preparations. I'm sure that we'll depart after eating so during this season it's around 7 am I guess.

Honestly, since I haven't eaten anything in almost a full day I'm starving.

I put on my underpants, socks, and under-armor.
Stick my feet into my boots, equip my rubber protectors, and hang the things I need from the D rings.
Just in case I put my full set of rubber repair tools into my bag and just like that threw it into my saddle bag.

After that I just need to confirm my bayonet and prepare the proof of sales (receipt).

And wait for older brother to come and call for me. When I confirmed the clock magic tool the time was just past 5 am.

Since I finished all of my preparations I sit down on the bed and take another look at the memo I was writing.

Hmn..I wonder what in the world is going on.

My memories are being forgotten, or rather the fact that I remember something itself is vague, or rather I don't know how to express it right but for the time being there's some impairment in my memory. I don't think I'm having the impairment in my memory all that often but...

If this is something related to reincarnation then would that mean it's happening to all of the reincarnated people?

I heard about the mental rejuvenation from Bel's story so it's not unthinkable that it would be happening for everyone.

However, just from what I've heard from Bel and Ralpa I can't imagine that they have any impairments in their memory.

That goes the same for Kuro and Mary. If I think about it now then I feel like Mary was mentally younger as well. But, I don't think they had any impairment with their memory. If they did have something then it would be a disaster. They might end up forgetting that they were told not to reveal the acquisition method for magic and it could become troublesome. Well, if I think about it calmly I can't deny that both the method of learning magic and the method of increasing mana will eventually spread around. Both of them have some major problems that make it difficult for the information to spread.

It's a weird way of putting it but there was even the possibility of the secret leaking from sister-in-law Shani to the Marquis Webdos family. Well, since sister-in-law formally married into the family and even gave birth to children I haven't been too worried about that. On Orth when you marry into a family your connections with your previous family are cut and the awareness is stronger that you've become a person of the new family.

This isn't particularly just the way of thinking Bakuddo but I've already understood that it's a normal set of values for people on the Jindal peninsula region where Marquis Webdos territory is located. So I think it's fine to ignore things on sister-in-law Shani's end. If we were to worry about things leaking from sister-in-law Shani then we would need to start worry about things leaking from mother to her family Duke Sandak as well after all.

Two children were born at older brother's place. There's no guarantee that they won't have any new children after this as well. I'm sure they'll start pounding magic in those kids starting from five years old like older sister. And those kids will eventually get bigger and have kids of their own. I'm sure that sister won't stay single forever as well and I don't know when I'll have kids either. It's true that for the people of Orth if they have more mana then they have that much more of an advantage in their life.

Although, if it's something like 10 MP or a lot somewhere around there then it's..after all amazingly advantageous. If it comes down to quite literally a different set of digits then it would be serious. Putting aside sister and I, one day people with as much mana as older brother..No, I guess I can't say people with as much as sister won't appear as well. In any case, I'm sure that people with an immense amount of mana will gradually start to appear from the Greed lineage.

On Orth it's normal to have your first child around 20 years old and in most cases they have multiple children. Around three generations from now, in 50–60 years though it depends on the number of children we have but it wouldn't be strange for there to be 10–20 people with as much mana as older sister. If it comes to that then you never know what kind of people might be mixed in there.

It's very possible that a careless person like me might just casually say it as well. It's just a difference of whether it's sooner or later. The only way to prevent that is to make it a secret passed from parent to child and kill off anyone else than the one who receives it or something like that is necessary. I'm sure father probably hasn't thought that far. If that was the case then now that older brother has had two children it wouldn't be strange for both older sister and I to have been killed long ago. It's hard to imagine that father and mother haven't realized that it'll multiply like rats as well.

Most likely, father isn't thinking about protecting the secret forever from the start, and doesn't think it can be protected either.

However, if a number of people with immense mana are born from a remote Viscount family like Bakuddo then several decades later it's possible he could be thinking that it would grow quite big. If until then someone in the family can gain the patronage of someone in an important office in the country then there's plenty to hope for I'm sure.

It makes sense that he forcefully pushed older sister into the first knight group as well. Well just taking the exam for the first knight group is amazing unrelated to mana so this is probably a coincidence but he might have thought about it after discussing it with mother during the time until older brother returned from the battlefield.

Even when I said I would aim to be the King of a new country and left the house I wasn't stopped after all. If I think about it now then it's true that it took the shape of him letting me do whatever I please.

However, my mana amount is abnormal and if they weren't a reincarnated person, and, able to observe the shape of MP or mana in some form then they'd never be able to reach this point.

Not to mention just guessing it is for the most part an unreasonable request.

My older brother and sister have an abnormal amount of mana but my parent's already know that my mana amount is several times more than that. Depending on how things go for this fellow (me), founding a country might be impossible but he might be able to gain a high position in a foreign country, or at least there's a high probability they might have thought something like that.

Even if it's impossible it would be simple to return to the Rombert Kingdom and stand out as a royal court sorcerer. It wouldn't be strange or anything at all for them to have calculated that far. If by any chance things go well and I'm able to make even a small country then the family could rely on me to create close ties with Bakuddo. Thinking like that and after us siblings starting with older brother grow up...I guess until we're around 30–35 years old it would be undesirable for the methods of training with magic or increasing mana to be known until then.

I'll try thinking of several examples. For example older sister. She was skillfully able to enter the first knight group. Going off her appearance she should be able to get some decent promotions in the knight group as well. I don't know if she would be able to make it to the knight leader but even if she were to just make it to around commander of a company, at the very least she would be able to gain enough fortune, peerage, and the backing of the army to live well in the Kingdom of Rombert.

It would make sense that there are children with abnormal amounts of mana being born in "that" Greed family.

I'm sure it would become like that. Then it would become only obvious for people of "that" Greed family to have more power than the average sorcerer so it seems there's some kind of secret but they've eroded into the center of the army, so it would be trouble to get eyed by them, or at least it's very possible to lead things in that direction. I'm sure it's possible to have a foreign country pay attention to us as well but at that time depending on the conditions it's also a possibility for the entire family to switch sides to that country.

Even if I were to succeed then I'll become royalty. It's only obvious that royalty holds secrets. No, I don't know that for sure though. If I the King says something like, "that's a secret of our royal family" while putting on airs then that's plenty. If I can just earn several decades in time like that there's no problem. After that we just need to make sure that our family and descendants have built up enough authority and assets to live an advantageous life if the secret were to be exposed.

Father was probably thinking something like that. Obviously the details would be different I'm sure. I think that he might have been thinking something similar.

Putting that aside and Ralpa from yesterday. That girl, at first she rushed to cover me but she quickly switched sides to older brother. Well, it's true that I broke the rules of my family so it can't be helped that I was hit and punished. Rather I think it's great that I got away with just that. However, you were getting off easy thanks to the blessing from that. Shit, what's with her? Come to think of it her appearance was strange...Ah. Maybe she, fell for older brother. Don't joke with me, I don't want to call someone like you sister-in-law. Maybe I'll thoroughly obstruct it.

While I was thinking these sorts of selfish delusions the door was knocked. After opening it and older brother was standing there. Older brother put his hand on my swollen cheek and used healing magic to fix it.

"Did you properly think about what father and mother thought and said? I'll keep an eye on the two in the Webdos knight group when I have the occasion. It seems that in 3-4 years you intend to go and pick them up right. I'm sure if they train that long they'll be competent enough. Until then, you need to make sure you properly grow up to not be an embarrassment to them as well...Got it? Now, let's go and get some breakfast. This morning is your treat. Let me eat something delicious."

I lead older brother and the squires to the restaurant we always eat breakfast at and gathered together with Zenom and the other party members. It seems that it's become that older brother gave me something to do yesterday is why I wasn't around since lunch. Therefore the squires and my slaves didn't say anything. We had a breakfast of bread, soup, and a pork saute, then everyone is going to the capital.

Excluding older brother and I the only ones here that have gone to the capital is the squire Sean who went when Mill took her exams, Zenom who went once when he was young, and Zulu who was sold in the slave market there. So everyone was looking forward to it. It seems that Zulu who couldn't decently look around the capital and Angela who has never gone there think they're lucky to be able to take a look around the largest city on the western edge of the Oladd continent Rombertia.

"Let's confirm our plans for today a bit. Al and us are going to the knight group headquarters at the castle and after making deliveries we're immediately taking measurements. It should probably end in about 2 hours. That's why after eating lunch in Rombertia there's free time until evening. I'm sure there's various things so to observe various things everyone should look around. We'll decide where to meet up later. Zenom-san and the others are going to stay in the capital for a week starting today right?"

Older brother said.

"Yeah, we've already reserved an inn as well. It's an inn called "Grinf Manor". Will Lord Greed's party not be staying the night in the capital?"

Zenom replied but,

"Eh..Older brother and the others are leaving today? Even though I wanted you to accompany us to various places.."

Ralpa jumped into the conversation. You, my older brother isn't a guide. Don't joke with me. And then even Zenom is speaking politely to my older brother who is the heir to nobility! What's with that intimate way of talking to him, could it be you're looking down on the Greed family of Bakuddo?

"N? Didn't you hear from Al? We're staying in the capital tonight but we're returning to Bakuddo tomorrow morning. Sorry about that. The inn we're staying at is called "Ronheluk Manor". It's in a slightly different to find area so we should probably gather in a different place first then head to the inn."

Come to think of it older brother, yesterday he quickly got familiar with Ralpa and the others. The way he was talking just now was closer to naturally talking to juniors at work rather than the friends of his little brother. Rather~ I don't know anything about older brother outside of the house but after all he's well-mannered and cool.

"Lord Greed, I have a request of you. When you visit the castle for deliveries would it be alright for my daughter Ralpa and Bernadette to accompany you? I definitely want to show them the castle at least once."

Zenom lowered his head and asked older brother.

"Hn? Ah, I wonder about that."

Older brother is looking at me. What is it?

"Since the head of Greed Company is Al, I don't have any right to make the decisions. Al, how about it?"

Eh? Ah? Ah, so that sort of thing.

"I don't particularly mind. I'm bringing along Zulu and Angela after all.."

After I said that and Zenom gave a broad smile, Zulu and Angela raised their voices in surprise.

Thanks, Zenom.

After returning to the inn and the person from the third company came to meet us.

I'm sure this person will escort(it's unnecessary though) to the royal castle and do the procedures for us to enter.

The person from the third company started politely greeting older brother and the squires and I don't know if there was some kind of misunderstanding but they greeted Zenom, Zulu, and Angela.

And when I was thinking they they must surely offer the head of Greed Company me a polite greeting as I was waiting when,

"You, did you properly wash your face before coming? Do you have a handkerchief? Make sure you take proper care of your appearance."

and said. Shitty sister.

After the three of us siblings got on our war horses, the four squires got on the two carriages both pulled by two horses each, Zenom and the other 5 were walking, 14 of us in total started heading towards Rombertia.

It's just about 7 am in the morning right now. Since it's not even 10 Km away and the road is in good condition I'm sure we'll arrive at the castle by around 10 am. The three of lined up at the head of the group with me in the center and enjoyed a sibling conversation for the first time in a while.

Along the way, after taking a break for just about 10 minutes once we arrived at the royal castle with no problem.

After going through the process to enter the castle and arriving at the plaza in the third outer citadel and the people from the first knight group were gathered together.

I guess they caught sight of us they suddenly started cheering.

I can see Baron Logan the knight leader as well.

After having my back pushed by older brother I stood in front of the baron and politely lowered my head.

"Lord knight leader, I have arrived to deliver the goods that you ordered...it's over there. We've completed it just as the measurements we took but if possible, please try it on right away and confirm the size. In the worst case if there's a problem with the size I'll immediately correct it."

"Yeah. We can try it on immediately, everyone who ordered the armor is already in just their under-armor. They've been anxiously waiting for it. Now, everyone, it's time to confirm. Try putting it on right away!"

Around the same time as he said that the Baron ran over to the carriage after he finished saying it.

After that the people of the second company followed behind.

The squires of Bakuddo are confirming each persons name before handing them a wooden box.

The emblem of the first knight group and the name of the person ordered it was carved into the lid of the wooden box and the Greed family crest and the sentence Produced in Bakuddo Village are carved into the sides in the same way. Didn't just the box take quite a bit of money..Well if they were to ask an artisan around Doritt I'm sure it would be about 20,000 Z (2 silver coins) per box. I'm sure it's not too expensive around that area.

There's quite a few people in the plaza who didn't make orders this time who came to watch. There's also a number of people who aren't in the first knight group.

I exchanged glances with older brother before saying.

"Now then, people of the third company, we'll start taking measurements for the next lot to be produced, so please come over here."

There's six squires and among them four are involved in the process of producing rubber.

It should be fine to leave taking the measurements up to them.

If each person takes about 15 minutes then I'm sure it won't even take an hour.

On the side of taking measurements the baron and members of the second company are using us siblings and squires from Bakuddo as examples as they equip their armor.

I wonder if the squires of the first knight group don't help true knights equip their armor?

I tried asking sister about it and "Since Amzel, Gurhoretz, and I are always equipping ours on our own and the time it takes to equip is short. It seems they were jealous of that. Don't they want to be able to equip it on their own in a short period of time? I taught everyone how to put it on yesterday after all." is how she responded.

It's true that I made the rubber protectors so they can be put on and taken off alone.

I only had father's old splint-mail armor as an example when I was making it so that's all I know.

That's why without much of a reference I made it from the start keeping in mind the aspect of equipping it all on your own and didn't pay much attention to it.

About the only thing I used as a reference was the form and location of the plates or so.

The generations have already advanced quite a bit so there's almost no traces remaining of it though.

Come to think of it before I said anything to mother and father they would equip their armor on their own as well. About the only time I helped out father was when we were testing the first prototype was it?

I see, so the fact that you can equip it alone is another sales point.

Just like that taking the measurements progresses and several people finished trying on the armor.

It seems that they're jumping or doing a light run to test out the size and sensation.

I can hear voices of joy saying "light, light".

I rub my hands together while approaching the baron and say.

"Lord knight leader, how is it? The armor of our Bakuddo?"

"Yeah. This is light and good. The size fits perfectly as well and there's no sense of discomfort...if it's this."

".If it's this?"

"Ah, no, it's something on my end. By the way we must finish paying the remaining money. Hey, Nors! Hand Greed-kun the remainder of the money. Greed-kun. We've left all of the remaining money in his care. Receive it from him. However, this sure is light. Oh..umu..my shoulders move quite a bit.."

It seems that he's busy.

The person called Nors trotted up to me holding a bag.

After receiving the heavy bag I counted it together with older brother.

162 gold coins, 162,000,000 Z, I've certainly received it.

I have him sign the proof of sales with the amount written on it (Something like a receipt. Including the advance payment you use it to pay for the luxury tax.) and shut it away in my pocket.

And then this time older brother took one in a division of the bag out and handed it to me.

"Then Head of Greed Company, sign this."

After saying that and he wanted me to sign the Webdos form proof of sales this time.

The amount is..216,000,000 Z.

“Yeah..Yes. Is the luxury tax in Webdos 10% as well? I’ll pay the 21,600,000 Z.”

“That’s no good. There’s no problem with us paying the taxes. I can’t say it in a loud voice but father was extremely pleased by the matter this time. And..you need money right? Father even said it would be fine about 50/50. I think so as well but it seems that you’re giving it your best in the dungeon as well from what was written on the letter. We decided to depend on your words.”

Older brother said that and lowered his head to me. Stop that.

“Ah..Yeah. Got it. Thanks.”

I was handed a bag filled to the brim with heavy gold coins.
108 gold coins, 108,000,000 Z. If I pay the luxury tax of 32,400,000 Z from here the remainder is mine.

Ah, I need to receive the advance payment from the third company people as well.

Soon after taking the measurements ended I went to Viscount Kendus and called out to him.

“Company commander Kendusu. I’m sorry for the very long wait. I believe that the delivery for the armor we took measurements for this time should be around April.”

“Oh~ Greed-kun. Thank you for taking the orders from us the third company this time. And you know. It’s a matter of discussion, but I’d like for you to take orders from us the third company again next”Kendus! You bastard! You deceived us!?”

Everyone was surprised at thick and deep voice that echoed through the plaza and looked at it’s owner.

There was a middle-age man close to 2m with a build like a bear bringing along several dozen men in armor running over here with a frightening expression. Is there around 30–40 or so of them?

Bel and Ralpha are clearly afraid.

Everyone else including me has no idea what is going on and are just dumbfounded.

“Ah, this is bad..”

Viscount Kendus huddled his body over and tried to move behind the carriage as if to hide from him.

“Hey! You’re loud! Jeff! We’re in front of guests. Don’t make such a racket!”

Baron Logan roared at the huge middle-age man.

“U..Yes, knight leader..That armor..Shit. So you were accomplices with that Kendus bastard as well! Don’t joke with me! Aren’t the one who made the recommendation for Greed! Hey now, Greed! You owe me a favor right? Right? That’s why put in a good word for me with Greed Company. Take orders for my armor as well. Hey, I’m begging you.”

After seeing that middle-age man older brother quickly ran up and said.

“It’s been a long time Lord Bittwaz, I am very indebted to your for that time.”

Lord Bittwaz?

Then this middle-age man that’s like a bear and is saying selfish things is Sub-Baron Jeffrey.Bittwaz?

The sub-commander of the first knight group?

I run over to him in a hurry as well.

“It’s nice to meet you lord Bittwaz. My brother and sister have been in your care for quite a bit. I’m Alan.Greed of the Greed Company.”

“Oh~ if it isn’t the Black Eagle of Webdos~ Have you been well? And, hn? Greed Company? Oh~ so it was you! Hey, I’m begging you, just one more suit of armor, take my order. In the first place, taking the orders of the commander and those fellows from the second company at the start, then just taking them from the third company next, that’s no“Wai, sub-commander! Just yourself? We’re here as well. That’s cruel.”

I don’t know what’s going on anymore but there’s no controlling it.

“Would you all be quiet! Idiots!”

The commander roared out again. It immediately got silent. It would be good if Ralpa didn’t piss herself though.

“You all, even with that do you still call yourselves the prosperous first knight group!“You’re the loudest of them all! Logan!”

Eh? It’s the King!

Also, the queens are following behind him.

Ah, this is bad!

I hurried over to the squires from Bakuddo and Zenom and the others and said “It’s his majesty the King. Imitate me.” then took the pose of a retainer. The color of everyone’s face changed and they imitated me.

“I was taking a walk before lunch and~ it’s really loud~ What in the world is going on?”

After coming nearby the King called out to Baron Logan.

“Huh, that is..about the equipment of the knight group..there was a bit of an argument over a difference of opinion, that is..we just got a bit too heated over it.”

Baron Logan said that in desperation.

“Hn? Commander Logan, that armor..Your majesty, Greed has come.”

It seems that Yulu noticed me.

“Hn? Oh~ Greed. So you were here? Raise your head!”

It..It’s me right!?

..There’s no way it would be older brother or sister after all.

“Ha..Right here.”

It can’t be helped. I raised my face while steel kneeling.

“Oh~, oh~, you’re far, “Oh, Greed, come over here.”

After Molin found my face she interrupted the King and called out to me. It can’t be helped, I guess I’ll go.

Let alone the squires from Bakuddo and Zenom the others, even older brother and sister are surprised.

That’s only obvious.

I went to the side of the King and the others, kneeled again, and took the pose of a retainer.

“Greed, weren’t you supposed to visit after the start of the new year?”

Molin said to me.

“Ha..your highness, Queen Molail. I came today to make deliveries of equipment for the first knight group.”

“I see. It’s a bit soon but that is~ Do you have that thing today?”

It turned into a whisper.

“Yes, I have it. It’s on the carriage. Would it be best to delivery it right away?”

I respond in a whisper as well.

“No, it’s fine for now. It’s fine as long as you have it. Right~ everyone else thinks so as well?”

Molin said that and looked at the other Queens.

“Yeah, that’s right. However, just one more bag, there’s only six remaining. Even if we say the start of the new year, when will you come next time?”

Becky said that.

“Yeah, I was thinking of appearing in the castle on January 3rd or 4th.”

After I said that and this time Marin opened her mouth.

“Eh? Since today is the 28th..Isn’t that the last moment? Molin-sama, what should we do?”

“There’s a few too many people looking on here. Greed, you, after you finish your job call out to someone. It’s fine if it’s anyone of us, but ask to call one of us that is available. We’re in the second citadel for the time being.”

Molin said that to me. It’s still in a whisper the same as usual.

“Ha..I understand and accept. When my job has completed please allow me to call out for someone.”

“Greed, about that, I like it quite a bit. Your place, made quite a good thing.”

After saying that I continued kneeling until the King had left.

After that Baron Logan organized things.

Since it can't be helped this time we'll take the orders of the third company this time but starting next time it seems that the commander will regulate the orders.

Older brother, the squires of the village, and Zenom and the others were all surprised by how popular the rubber protectors were.

We received the advance payment from the people we took measurements for in the third company this time and I handed that to the squire Sean while saying,

"Isn't the rubber armor popular?"

and laughed and then,

"Yeah, it's quite amazing. I doubt the master had predicted it would go this far as well. He must be proud that he has a good son."

and praised me.

"By the way, Greed-kun, also, Lord Greed, do you have any plans after this today? If you don't have any then even if it's after lunch would you lend us a hand in training for the third company? I want to see the true ability of the rumored Black Eagle of Webdos and that well-made younger brother as well. How about it?"

The commander of the third company Viscount Kendus asked that. Certainly, I previously turned him down. I don't see a problem with it after I finish things up regarding the condoms.

However, I'm sure that older brother and the squires want to take a look around their long-awaited capital.

"Oh~ that's right. Let's show them that for the first time in a while."

The sub-commander Sub-Baron Bittwaz called out as well. What's that?

"Yeah, according to what Greed says she's the weakest one among their siblings. I want to see what level the older brother and younger brother are at."

Even the commander Baron Logan joined in.

Eh~ if it's without magic then I feel like I'm probably the weakest one.

And even if it's older brother with how much training sister has received from the first knight group won't he end up giving a match or so?

"Umm? your excellency commander, everyone, I'm very sorry but my older brother is returning tomorrow. I'll visit this afternoon so can you please let him off with just that.."

I said that and lowered my head but,

"No, it's the request of our customer. If you're fine with novices such as then please let us join you in training. Al, it's fine if you don't worry about we can extend our stay by a day."

Older brother said that while putting his hand on my shoulder and smiled.

It became that we would go to the riverbed where the third company was training previously after lunch.

It seems that sister is going to have lunch together with older brother.

Of course Zenom and the others as well.

I...had no other choice than to tell one of the guards to give a message to the queens that Greed has completed his business.

Depending on how things go I might be the only one who goes without lunch.

Since it's a rare chance it seems that Zenom and the others are going to watch the training of the first knight group as well.

I'm sure they have the time after all so it might be a good reference.

However, Ralpa. For the time being you've been quiet, but you, if you make a pass at older brother in front of sister you'll die. I wonder if it would be best to warn her ahead of time?

No wait, I was supposed to interfere with her romance. I should just ignore it here.

Chapter 98: High Evaluation

Year 7442, Month 12, Day 28

After splitting up with older brother and the others there, I asked a soldier on guard duty to give a message to Molin. Obviously older brother, Zenom, and the others asked, “Why did his majesty the King and her highness-es the Queens call out for you? but I just washed it away by saying, “I’ll talk about it tonight.” Well I told my family about it in a letter so there’s no problem. However, as expected you wouldn’t think that it was about the delivery of condoms in that place.

After a short while I was called into a room in the second citadel. After going to the room that was designated to me there was a guard soldier there but it seems that it had already been passed on to them so they just let me through without saying anything. Marin and Yulu were inside of the room but the King, Molin, and Becky weren’t around.

If you were to ask me these two who rose up as soldiers are easier for me to talk to.

After entering the room I said that while kneeling and taking the pose of a retainer.

“Oh~ Greed, and what those goods?”

Without any greetings Yulu said that. Ah, this bad. The stuff to be delivered to the royal family is still loaded on the carriage.

Ah there’s one bag in my wallet. I guess this is fine for now.

“Ha, right here. The goods for the formal delivery are still in the carriage so I’ll deliver them when I appear in the castle at a later date but in that place, that is..there were a lot of people from the knight group therefore, I couldn’t lower them from the carriage. That’s why there’s only one bag for now. I’ll bring the larger quantity according to your request to delivery at a later date so please pardon me with jsut this for today..”

After saying that I presented my last bag.

“I don’t mind if you raise your head. I’m grateful. The number we have remaining is already starting to feel unreliable. This is helpful to us.”

After Marin said that she took the last bag from me and held it in her chest. Hmm, I’m happy that she’s treating the product we make in our village so importantly.

“By the way, Greed. You, said you came to make deliveries of equipment to the knight group right. Was it the delivery of some armor?”

Yulu asked me that question. She seems to find it strange.

“Yes. The first knight group ordered almost the same thing that I’m wearing right now and we had the pleasure of delivering 10 suits of it today.”

After I replied like that and,

“Eh? It was really 10 suits of armor?”

I was told. Why would I lie about something like that?

“Huh? Yes. It’s true we delivered 10 suits of armor but..his excellency commander Logan, and fellows in the second company totaling 10 suits of armor.”

“Marin, what’s going on with the register of the first knight group?”

“Yes, I thought you would say something like that, so I’ve already prepared it over here. Yulusufol-sama.”

Eh? What is it? Is this an on the spot inspection? But aren’t they buying armor on an individual basis? Isn’t fine for them to buy anything? I heard from older brother that they provide the weapons for the Webdos knight group but you have to prepare your own armor. Sister didn’t say anything either...

“Ah, Greed, you don’t need to worry about anything...This is strange. There was an application at the end of August for assistance on 6 suits of plate-mail armor..Eh? Just a mere 97,000,000 Z (97 gold coins)? This should only be enough to buy about 3 suits of armor..”

After Yulu said that I was relieved for the moment but I heard some unnerving statements after that.

“97,000,000 Z is it? Greed, did you really deliver 10 suits of armor? Would you tell us the circumstances in detail?”

Marin had some doubts about it as well and questioned me. What is it?

“Yes. We certainly delivered 10 suits of armor. We took the measurements from the gentlemen who ordered in August and finished delivering all of those orders today.”

There’s no other way of saying it. It’s somehow started to feel like trouble. Like corruption or that sort of thing.

“Listen well. Greed, Yulusufol-sama said it would be fine for you to relax but this isn’t such a simple problem. For starters, respond to my questions. First, how did you deliver 10 suits of plate-mail armor in just a mere four months? Please excuse me on it but your hometown of Bakuddo isn’t famous as a producer of armor. I’m sure there aren’t that many artisans as well. Second, you said that you delivered 10 suits of armor but there were only applications for assistance on 6 suits of plate-mail armor, and the price is abnormally cheap. Show me the proof of sales. Third, it’s related to just now but tell me the sale price of the armor you supplied this time.”

In contrast to Yulu’s listless face Marin started to demand an explanation with a strict expression.
What in the world is it?

“Ha, first off, in the case that we produce armor in Bakuddo Village, and completely manufacture the armor including detailed adjustments..we can produce roughly 3–4 suits of armor in around 4–5 days. However, this is only in the case that we have plenty in our stores of raw materials. After that, this is the proof of sales for the armor delivered this time. The sale price is 30,000,000 Z (30 gold coins) per suit of armor. Other than that there’s also kite shields at 6,000,000 Z and buckler shields at 3,000,000 Z. Please excuse me. Since Bakuddo is in the back of the Jindal peninsula far into Marquis Webdos territory... that is, the transportation cost is quite high so..it’s become quite expensive.”

I replied honestly. There's no other roads than that and it seems like I'm getting involved in something troublesome but I'm just a simple supply merchant. I want to remain the third-party with good intentions. Well, if we were to seriously put all of our effort into producing armor then we should be able to do it even faster with a bit more numbers.

""Eh?""

Yulu and Marin both seemed to have raised their voices in doubt of that but what are they doubting about it? No matter how you think about it, it's not my responsibility that rubber armor is listed as metal plate-mail armor for accounting purposes. While I'm obeying respectfully with a composed face because I have no reason to be criticized and,

"Marin, call commander Logan and sub-commander Bittwaz here."

"Yes, immediately."

After saying that Marin went to say something to the soldiers guarding outside and then returned.

"Greed, you haven't said any lies right. There's several major problems in your statement just now. Depending on the statements of Logan and Bittwaz they might become even more important."

Yulu said with a slightly strict voice.

"Ha..I swear that I have not said any lies. It's all the truth."

After saying that I lowered my head.

After a short while the commander and sub-commander entered the room. Marin quickly noticed them and put the rubber bag she was playing with into her pocket.

"Did you call for us, your highness Queen Yulusufol, your highness Queen Marinen."

After saying that they took the same pose of a retainer as me. Yulu opened her mouth.

"There's something I want to ask you two. First, the six suits of plate-mail armor that applications for the expense of that were made in August, is this the armor that you ordered from Greed's company?"

Baron Logan replies.

"Ha..Since it's new armor, I made such applications because the classification is close."

"I see. I'm sure the classification is fine. However, according to what I just heard from Greed, you were supplied with 10 suits of armor this time isn't that right. Why is the number different?"

Yulu questioned him again.

"Ha..Since the application for assistance funds on individual armor and equipment is only accepted once in every seven years...I applied for it when I order brand new plate-mail armor five years ago and three others also had already made such applications, so we subtracted those numbers from it and only made applications for six suits of armor worth this time."

Baron Logan replied. He~ so they offer assistance with the cost of ordering new armor? As expected from the first knight group. Including their high salary they're quite rich.

"I see, then, that's fine as well. Next is the price. I just heard the sale price from Greed. It's clearly, abnormally cheap compared to the metal plate-mail that I know. And I feel that the delivery date and quantity are unusual as well but, you, it can't be that you used threats when negotiating the price and made and forced them to make an unreasonable delivery date right?"

Yulu's tone of voice gradually gets stricter as she said that. I guess she's saying not to bully the supply merchant?

"Wa? Ha..Of course we haven't done anything of that sort.."

I guess Baron Logan understood the reason why he was called so he responds with a feel that vaguely seems to be criticizing me.

I haven't said anything like that.

"Just now, you said you purchased new metal plate-mail five years ago. What was the sale price at that time? And, the period between making the order and the delivery?"

This time Marin asked.

“Ha....If I remember correctly it was 74,000,000 Z...Also, the delivery was made about one year and two months after the order.”

Baron Logan replied. So high-end metal plate-mail is expensive. It's true that the plate-mail armor of the Baron I saw before seemed expensive looking. And it takes quite a bit of time as well.

“Logan, aren't your words from just now and the order made of Greed inconsistent? 30,000,000 Z per one suit of armor and ten of those suits in roughly four months. Do you really think that metal plate-mail can be prepared so easily! Furthermore the armor you're wearing right now has even been dyed black just the same as Greeds! If the price and delivery time we're really that different then all of the armor merchants up until now will go bankrupt! I'm sure it was quite a burden on Greed's place as well! What in the world are your intentions!”

Along the way Yulu started to get enraged. This is bad. I just said what the production rate of my place is though. The one who brought up the sale price was me as well. I guess I need to interrupt even if I buy a bit of her displeasure.

“With all due respect, your highness, Queen Yulusufol. May I please receive your permission to speak?”

I can't say anything but that.

“I allow it. What is it?”

Yulu said that while looking at my face. Her expression said that she was saying it for my sake, that sort of feeling.

“I must humbly say, your highness Queen Yulusufol. It seems that there was a misunderstanding. First, me armor might seem like metal plate-mail at first glance but this isn't metal plate-mail. It's armor made of rubber. And the production rate in Bakuddo village that I just said isn't a lie but we don't have an infinite supply of the material that is rubber. Right now producing 10 suits of armor in four months is our limit in terms of raw materials.”

I said that bowed respectfully. Baron Logan was blatantly relieved as he took a breath.

““Eh?””

Yulu and Marin's voices matched up as if they had both heard something unbelievable.

“It's not metal plate-mail armor? Rubber made? Isn't rubber soft. Can that become armor? And from what I can see..Greed, your armor, is it alright to touch it?”

Marin said that and crouched down to me as I was respectfully obeying.

“Ha, please feel free...And, if you're fine with the gauntlet, I'll take it off though”

While saying that I undid the rubber belt fixing the gauntlet of my left hand to my arm.

“Eh? Just like that..It comes off unexpectedly easily.”

Incidentally, starting from the second generation of the rubber protectors I designed the parts to be simple to put on and take off. If I were to simply explain how they're equipped and it's as follows.

First off there's the parts of the substructure that cover the abdomen and back and go down the waist and legs which are fixed with rubber belts on the flanks. It's fine not to tie this part too tight. Next you put on the upper arm parts. The parts for the upper arm plates and the part that's close to a hemisphere for the elbow guards are one piece that are fixed to the belt.

After that the upper parts of the chest and back parts are connected to the shoulder (just think of it like wearing something like a sleeveless shirt that goes up to your chest with just the armpits cut), then it's fixed to a belt that surrounds your body fixed around the right armpit. The reason why it's only open on the right is because the sword is most often worn on the left side and no other reason than that. The armor parts of both shoulders is connected to the entire body through some rubber belts and is worn above the chest part. The part from the shoulder to the arm is once again fixed through a thin rubber belt to the upper arm.

Simultaneously the long rubber belt that comes down the back and abdomen parts connects to a hook on the inside of the chest portion. It's easier to have someone help with the back portion here but if you get used to it then you can deal with it by hooking it in advance. Originally I had made it so the abdomen parts were connected to the shoulders with a rubber belt but that's already been improved in the current generation.

Next is the waist. I mentioned it before but there's a part that's not connected under the armpits which is like wearing an hourglass of belts and you can connect to the hooks on the abdomen and back. Since just that makes you feel uneasy about your waist and flanks so along the sides of the abdomen parts I have several waist parts that are hooked on like tassets but since all of the waist parts are gathered together into one belt you tighten this up as well. There's quite a few parts overlapping on the body so there's no gaps.

The leg portions are boots and greaves that are fixed to the upper legs with a rubber belt. In regards to the top of the feet but this is a problem of taste but in my case since I have my homemade boots which are ebonite down to the tips of the toes so I haven't attached anything there. In regards to the trunk of the body there's also other parts fixed in place by the rubber belts but these weight quite a bit. Simultaneously it's hooked onto the abdomen with rubber belts as well. There's a gap of about 5 cm where the belt stops behind both the upper and low leg parts. I'm calling it shin guards but it's not a large curved plate like the shin guards in Japan. It fits a bit closer to match the legs. I just don't know any other way to call it so don't mind it.

There's leather gloves that cover up to the elbows. Then you put your hands into the gauntlet parts and put your fist around the brass knuckles inside of that while fixing it to the arm with a belt and tying it on the inside. The gauntlet portion is made to cover close to the elbow and all of the fist. There's a separated portion in the center of it so there's some gaps in it but by tightening the belt you can pretty much completely adjust the gaps to disappear.

Furthermore, it's ideal to connect the under-armor to the various holes made in the armor but even without the holes for belts on the under-armor there's no major problem as long as you aren't equipping it for long periods.

And then just like a rugby athlete you wear an inner helmet and after fixing it by the jaw parts, just like the German or self-defense force used in the past you cover it with an outer helmet and fix it to the jaw just the same way as the inner helmet (though I don't have the inner or outer helmet on right now). The outer helmet has something similar to the old Japanese headpieces where there's ebonite boards going out of the top of the head on both sides. The plume is also a matter of taste so I don't have it attached.

Since it's like this you start from removing things like the greaves and gauntlets and if you get used to you removing them is easy. I quickly handed the left gauntlet I took off to Marin. Since Yulu was looking at that of great interest as well I quickly took the right gauntlet off and handed it to her as well.

They tried knocking on it and twisting it to various angles. My gauntlet is exclusive to me, normally there's some iron rods put it to work as a simple shield but instead of that in mine there's a compartment for throwing needles 10 of them in each one that Myun taught me in the past. They're iron needles with a width of about 3 mm and length of about 20 cm. They can be used as a shield as well but in order to make it easy to take them out I have a notch where the needles are stored and you don't pull them out but if you lift up the edge you can take it off easily. Marin noticed that.

"What's this?"

"They're iron wires that are normally fixed on the outer part of the arm to be used as a simple shield. If you want to put more emphasis on defense then you can use four thicker metal rods on the outer part of the lower arm. If you're seriously going to use that as a shield then it becomes heavy so I haven't put them inside."

I don't know if she understood from my explanation but she's nodding so she probably understood it. However, I was letting off a cold sweat. I completely brought in a weapon. I was relieved since it was exposed that they were throwing needles. I'll be careful starting next time. There's also the brass knuckles so if I tell the guard at the entrance that the gauntlet is a weapon as well it shouldn't be a problem.

"Is this all made of rubber?"

Yulu asked me.

"A portion of it is made with leather strings and there's metal portions as well but fundamentally it's made of rubber."

After I replied and,

“Eh? Is that so. I did think it was considerably light iron but in the first place it wasn’t iron I see..”

Said that and started knocking on it again.

“Let me humbly say, both of your highness-es. It’s true that armor is made of rubber, and the defensive capability itself doesn’t match up to metal plate-mail. However, just as you can tell, the weight is extremely light, and it’s easy to move your body as well. Just as you already know Lord Greed of the third company and the squires Amzel and Gurhoretz are using it as well so it’s ability has already been proven. And above all else it’s cheap. The repair cost is unexpectedly cheap as well. The problem is that in the first knight group right now there was the commander and 9 others who got a head-start ordering in August and this time 10 from the third company who “That’s unrelated right.”

Sub-Baron Bittwaz explained about the armor but before he could accuse the Baron the Baron stopped him. The sub-baron is glaring resentfully at the baron but the baron is just acting like it’s nothing at all.

After hearing that Yulu and Marin laughed as if they found it funny and said.

“It seems that it was our misunderstanding. You’re allowed to forgive us. And, highly efficient and cheap equipment is always welcome after all...However, for it to have been made of rubber..”

Yulu said that while playing with my gauntlet still.

“I thought it looked like metal plate-mail that had been dyed black but..Certainly if you look closely it’s different.”

Marin said that as well while putting her hand inside of my gauntlet.

“However, Bittwaz, it seems you have a problem with the commander getting a head start on ordering the armor but is there really a need to be so specific about something like armor? If you’re the sub-commander then have a bigger heart.”

After Yulu said that and,

“Ha..However..However..even if this armor doesn’t have the defensive capability of metal plate-mail it gets close to that and furthermore it weighs several times less than that. Since we can't always be fighting while on horseback, if it comes to the lives of knights and squires.. the commander starter ordering something like that with himself and members of the second company and after pointing that out the third company was the only ones to make orders the next time. I only found out about this right before the delivery this time. It was last week, when I found out. And I only found out because those guys from the second company accidentally leaked it. Not to mention after that Lord Kendus of the third company tried to hide the delivery location from me this time. I can't simply excuse this."

Sub-Baron Bittwaz said that while looking resentfully at Baron Logan. The first knight group, sure is stingy, is what I think but it's true that if it's something that your life is dependent on it, it's not like I don't understand the feelings of wanting to blame them or get as stingy as possible.

"Fufu..So you're saying that, Bittwaz. Isn't it fine for you all to make orders next time?"

Marin said that find it amusing.

"Ha..However, it seems that the commander is overseeing the orders starting next time and...And..if you'll forgive my words both of your highness-es have already left the actual scene. For the sake of the knights working on the front line"Bittwaz! That's rude. I was the commander of the first company of the first knight group until 10 years ago. I understand your feelings...However, is it really something that good?"

Yulu interrupted Sub-Baron Bittwaz's words and said that.

"Ha..Please excuse my rudeness..Mu, there's just the right matter related to this. This afternoon, we have some entertainment taking place along the knight group's riverside training area. That Greed, his brother and sister, and then the commander, myself, and Lord Kendus will perform some practice matches. The only ones among us that won't be wearing the armor this time are Lord Kendus and myself. Will you try watching it?"

Sub-Baron Bittwaz said that Yulu with a challenging expression.

"Hey, we haven't done enough preparations on the training area to welcome her highness-es.”

Baron Logan tried to warn him in a hurry but,

“Ho~ that sounds quite amusing. The same armor as Greed huh..Hmm, let’s go and watch it. And the cold is fine, since we were originally from the knight group after all. It’s just the right occasion since we’ve only seen practice matches between units and not one-on-one matches lately. And, Lord Greed’s older brother is..if I remember correctly originally Lord Greed was the substitute for the recommendation he had received to enter the first knight group. That should be fine.”

Yulu said that and decided it. I need to give it my best to make sister look good. Ah, that’s right, I should tell older brother, the squires, Zenom and the others about her highness-es royal visit as well.

“Greed, you’re taking part in it as well? Be careful not to injure yourself. Your primary occupation is an adventurer and you’re normally taking on monsters in the dungeon of Baldukk right? The body is an adventurer’s capital. And, you also have the company as well.”

Marin said that while worrying about me. However, I can’t hear anything more than her worrying about the goods to be delivered next week.

Chapter 99: Practice Match

Year 7442, Month 12, Day 28

It's somehow become a strange situation, but, this is a good chance for to appeal herself. She can't afford to show too embarrassing of a scene. Well, in worst case I'm sure it would be fine if she just froze them right away. It seems that in the past sister did it to Baron Logan before after all. No matter how I think about it, if it's just a normal one-on-one practice match then there's no chance of me losing. I need to show off my good side to Zulu and Angela as well.

After getting on my horse I started off alone towards the government office to pay taxes for the luxury tax while grinning to myself.

I need to quickly pay the taxes at the government office then I need to get something adequate in my stomach before heading to the riverside.

Since I found a decent restaurant on my way to pay the taxes I decided to eat there. I left my horse with the stable in the back and then took up a seat along the road. Bacon, bean soup, pork piccata, and white bread. Just as you could expect from the capital with it's huge population, I felt like it was a bit expensive but it's a very satisfying meal. The payment is at the end of the meal as well. In any case, it's my first time eating piccata on Orth. I wonder if they're making pork cutlets somewhere? I'm sure there's no Japanese sauces but I at least have some mayonnaise and if I search a bit I know there's mustard. Ah, if I just had rice with this I'd have nothing more to say but I can't do anything about asking for something that I can't find.

After asking for my usual bean tea, I staring at the road while satisfied with my stomach full and sipping it. There's a peddler's carriage advancing along the block a bit ahead. There's what appears to be a dwarf man and woman in the carriage box, two human men as escorts, and one more that seems to be quite short is it still a child? There's one more woman. It's a scene you can see anywhere. Hn? That child or woman that seems to be either an escort or peddler..It seems she's got her hair tied up into one large braid but her hair is black.

Oh~ since she had black hair I unintentionally used identify without meaning to..What? I just said red characters didn't I?
She disappeared from my field of vision before I could see clearly so I don't know but I think there was some red characters.
It's a Unique Ability! I can't afford to be sitting here! I need to at least call out to her!

I went to stand up and pulled my bayonet from the chair next to me.
I guess I was in too much of a hurry and my expression had changed, the waiter woman who was just about to bring my bean tea screamed, "hii" and dropped the bean tea. I grabbed my bayonet and "Bring my horse around."

and yelled that while jumping out of the restaurant. However, from the restaurant they said

"It's an eat and run, eat and run?!!"

I heard that sort of scream. Damn it.

"I'll pay properly afterwards."

Putting aside the bean tea I haven't paid for the meal yet. However, I'll pay ten times more later. And just as I was about to run off to the stable my arm was grabbed. Shit.

"Isn't it Greed-kun? Hey now, you can't eat and run."

Knikniknikni it's the knight commander! Seriously...

"Ah, I'll properly pay later" I don't know how much of a hurry you're in but properly pay right now. If not then I won't be able to overlook this."

..Aaaaa, damn it.

"Yes...Here, the payment. I don't need change. Rather than bring my horse around, I'm in a hurry."

I said that while taking one silver coin from my wallet and handing it to the waiter. Not just the shitty expensive 800 z for the lunch set but I paid over ten times the cost including the bean tea.

"Greed-kun. What's wrong? It's not like you. If you're a noble you should maintain your composure better. Even if you're in that much of a hurry the training place won't run away. There's still some time left as well."

After coming to my senses and looking around and other than Baron Logan, there was Sub-Baron Bittwaz, and several members of the knight group who's names I don't know looking at me with surprised expressions...I guess it's no good...Even if I have them bring my horse around it will take some time. On the roads where there's a lot of pedestrian traffic in the capital if the carriage even takes one turn somewhere I'll lose sight of them in no time at all. Ah, if it was going to come to this I should have just left my horse here until I could come back and pay or paid right away and then run off while leaving my horse behind.

That I would get too excited and lose myself after finding someone who seemed to be a reincarnated person..I honestly don't think it's unreasonable though.

I scratch my head and in order to hide my embarrassment,

"I'm sorry for the disturbance. If I think carefully about it there's no need to hurry so much. I suddenly remembered that I had forgotten to go and pay the taxes so I couldn't help but panic a bit. I'm sorry for showing you something so unsightly. I'm really very sorry for causing you any trouble."

I said that while lowering my head.

"It's fine. It's fine as long as you pay the luxury tax within a month of the date on the proof of sale. There's nothing to worry about. However, even you get flustered over carrying such a large sum of money I see."

He said that while laughing. It's true I'm currently holding a large amount of money over 100,000,000 Z. It's embarrassing but it seems it would be best to let it slide as that. I lowered my head again and after getting on my horse that was finally brought out, just in case I went to where I saw the carriage just now. However, I guess it's only obvious but I wasn't able to find the carriage.

I don't know if they're a peddler or an adventurer but in any case it seems to be clear that there's a reincarnated person in Rombertia or patrolling around the area. In the worst case, if we setup a net around this area for a month we might be able to catch them. I'm sure Bel and Ralpa will cooperate with the search at that time.

I tottered along to the government office, paid the taxes, and then went towards the practice place near the riverside.

Starting with brother and sister, Zenom and the others were all already at the practice place. After I arrived late and they all started questioning me right away. I said I'd explain it at night but well I guess it can't be helped. Even older brother was surprised even though I already told him I was making deliveries of "Saya" to the royal family. Even if I say I'm making deliveries to the royal family you wouldn't normally that I was direct acquaintances with the royalty of high social standing.

It's not unreasonable. I managed to cover it up by saying that there was an opportunity I had to directly deliver rubber products to them. Since sister knew I had directly met them face to face when I repaired the water bed she didn't find it all that strange but it seems even then it was unexpected that all of the Queens knew about me. In addition I said that Yulu and Marin would be coming to observe as well.

Brother, sister, and I separate from everyone and start talking.

“Mill, the commander, sub-commander, and company commander was it.. What level of skill do they have? Also is it fine to use magic?”

Brother asked sister.

“They’re all extremely strong. In regards to magic..I wonder. If we were to use magic we’ll easily win and I’ve been forbidden from using magic in practice matches recently..”

Sister replies. Well I guess that’s true. If it was a simple magic battle then I doubt there’s very many people who could beat us. If she was to always use magic every time then it wouldn’t be practice as well.

“Al, for the time being I’ll confirm what we can do in regards to magic before we start but according to Mill’s story it would probably be best to think we can’t use magic. I don’t know who each of us will face off against. However, don’t get done in easily. Definitely stick to it. It depends on the details of the practice match but if we can take the match to a good point then in the end we lose by a thin margin before Mill in the practice match. Alright?”

Yeah. That’s fine. If possible I want to do something that backs up sister.

“Yeah, I understand. Honestly, I don’t know how far I can go against the faces of the first knight group but I’ll hold on as long as I can. Sister, it’s fine to use the spear right?”

After agreeing with brother’s idea I grabbed the bayonet on my shoulder once again.

“It’s fine but yours doesn’t have a dull blade so it’s no good. There’s no way that spear would fit with a wooden sword right? Since it’s not a match between us siblings there’s no way we’d do it with real weapons you know? And since there’s people who just got new armor today I don’t think we’ll use fake metal swords either.”

There’s wooden spears right, I’ll do it with that.”

I’m sure I can’t use all of my techniques but there’s no other choice than to make do with it.

“There’s no wooden spear as short as the one you’re using.”

Oe~ I feel like I have no chance of winning... Even I feel like I can decently use the sword. I can even decently take on father and older brother. However, with the faces of the first knight group..as expected that’s impossible... I can’t use magic, my bayonet is no good, ah, trying to hold out like this, it’s hell. Well at least my physical abilities have gone up thanks to leveling up so there’s no other choice than to make do with that I guess...Ah, that’s right.

“Wh..What if I leave the scabbard on my spear? Since it’s an ebonite scabbard, if it’s this“The inside is iron right...In the first place, her highness Queen Yulusufol and her highness Queen Marinen are going to be watching right? It’s only obvious that something where there’s a possibility of causing severe injury is impossible.”

I was completely cut down. It can’t be helped.

“Al, well give it your best. I wonder if you can survive as an adventurer in the dungeon while saying things are difficult without your spear? Don’t say anything extravagant and just make do with what you have on hand. Even I don’t think I’ll be able to win so easily against opponents from the first knight group. But, there’s other choice than to do it. Just think of it as a good opportunity and leave the advantage to them. On top of that just try to give it your best for Mill to appeal.”

Brother closed things off by saying that. I returned to where Zenom and the others were with an exhausted and pale face and Ralpha called out to me.

“Al, give it your best. I’ll be rooting for you.”

Ah, just watch me get beaten half to death. But, I want to at least get one hit in.

“Al-san, give it your best. I’m cheering for you as well.”

Bel, I’m grateful for your support but I’m about to have you get some practice with healing magic. Either way I doubt you’ll end up using it but save your mana.

“Master, if it’s master then I’m sure you can win even if the opponent is a true knight.”

Zulu, you, are you treating a knight from the first knight group the same as the average knight because you're from Devas? If it was just that then I would have been able to relax.

"Master, it's alright, just use magic to weaken them like you always do."

Angela, it seems like I'm not allowed to use magic. I might not be able to show you my cool appearance.

"Al, if it's you then I think you can do pretty well even against the first knight group. Just swing your specialty spear around like you always do."

Zenom, I was told I'm not allowed to use my bayonet either. There's no other choice than to do it with the sword. Well I'm sure it's fine to use kicks and it's probably fine to kick up dirt to blind them as well. I'm not exactly a knight, and not even a normal soldier after all. I guess I can't do anything but show them the uncouth fighting style of an adventurer from an average family. My throwing needles are sealed though.

Ah, come to think of it I had something good. It's that which hasn't made an appearance in a while. If I don't use this and somehow manage to land a good hit, I won't look good. Around that time probably in part because of the afternoon training but people from the knight group gradually started to gather. From something like a shed built on the edge of the riverside wooden swords and spears were carried out and prepared.

I glance at that while inspecting my equipment. I adjust my protectors on various parts of my body, checking the elasticity and jumping to make sure nothing feels off. I took off everything in the D rings hanging off my waist that could get in the way like my flask and bags and become as light as possible.

I take my helmet out of my saddle bag and put it on then tighten the side of the chin guard. After seeing each of us siblings wearing the same design of helmet we grinned and laughed. Brother cracked his neck while jolting his arms and then grabbed the wooden sword for practice use. Sister swung both of her arms around in a circle once as well before taking out a wooden sword.

I keep opening and closing my hand to test my grip and then just the same grab a decent looking wooden sword and swing it once checking the balance. A short distance away from us sub-commander Bittwaz is being assisted by two squires in putting his full-plate armor on. Company commander Kendus is getting help with his splint-mail as well. Only commander Logan is wearing the same rubber protectors as us.

The commander walked over to us and said.

“Sorry but there’s no using magic for today. Relax easy that there’s lots of people who can heal you if you get injured. Ah, it’s fine if Greed heals you as well. The first one to land two good hits wins. Also, since it seems that Greed-kun has no experience as a knight we won’t do this on horseback. Is this fine?”

It’s just as we predicted. Though I feel it’s a bit late.

““I understand.””

“Ha..Roger.”

Only sister responded like a soldier. It’s only obvious though since she’s active duty.

Now then, who is my opponent?

It’s already like both my arms and legs are sealed off, I doubt I can win regardless of who the opponent is. If I can at the very least take on the strongest person then it will be of assistance to brother and sister. But, I’m sure all three of them are insanely strong, so there’s much point to it.

I’ll Identify them for now.

It's safe to say that all three of them are men of valor. If they didn't have magic then the true ability of all of them might not have been able that different..No, if you take into consideration training in the knight group and how well they can lead in live combat on the battlefield then the commander and sub-commander should be extraordinarily strong. Viscount Kendus level is lower than mine right now but his true ability is definitely above mine I'm sure.

Really it can't be helped. There's no other choice than to give it my best as far as I can go. I'm not losing in terms of the ability points of each ability. I need to try and make use of that as best as I can while holding out. Alright, everyone just watch. Since it's going to be like this I'll use every dirty trick and struggle like crazy. I'm sure the other side doesn't believe sisters words that I'm stronger than her as well. And it's true that I can compete with her in terms of technique but even I've killed countless monsters with the sword and spear. With even getting a scratch on me. I'm sure it's not as hopeless as that time I fought the Horned Bear one on one when I was small.

Like I'll let Bakuddo get looked down on, I'll show you good.

"Then, we'll fight. Let's do this with everyone fighting one at a time."

The commander said that. {Oh}....That was unexpected. I guess we should have expected it since we can get proper healing.

"We'll start as soon as her highness the Queens arrive, start warming your bodies up."

The sub-commander said that. Though it's a practice match let alone let alone metal plate-mail, it's my first time taking on an opponent wearing full plate-mail. Where in the world am I supposed to hit on that for the attack to be considered valid?

"Don't get too stiff. I'm looking forward to the true ability of the Black Eagle of Webdos."

The company commander said that and laughed. I'm sure something like me is just a bonus. But, I'll show you. You're probably the easiest one to take on.

Just like that as they tried talking to us to soften our feelings and then her highness the Queens arrived at the training field. Everyone kneeled down and took the post of a retainer.

“It’s fine, raise your heads. Since the ones who said something unreasonable and came out was us, don’t worry about it.”

Yulu said that and smiled. Wait, both of them are wearing armor. It’s only made up of plate-mail around the waist and then the rest looks like splint-mail. What’s it called again. Well whatever. In any case that’s some splendid armor. There’s ornaments in each place and it looks expensive.

“Alright, everyone stand up. Let’s get started, come with me.”

The commander said that and started towards a round area on the training field. I guess we’re doing it over there?

.....

It seems that the first opponent from their side is company commander Kendus. Then I guess I’m the first one. I said to brother “I’m going first” and walked towards the training field. If I go first then I can pull out as many skills of the opponent as possible and then it’ll be easier for brother...I’ll do this!

See? If you just look at the values of each ability I don't fall too far behind right? Recently I've been testing how different my Speed is after consciously dragging it out. I slowly walk in front of company commander Kendus and after facing him on guard with my wooden sword I bowed and said "I'm in your care!" and lowered my head. Then I was hit with a good one on the back of my head and when I was rolling around I was kicked and hit on the back with the wooden sword and lost. What in the world is that. Even though it's a wooden, if I hadn't had the helmet I would have died.

"Greed-kun, the moment you enter the training field the combat has started. There's no need to lower your head to the enemy. It's your loss."

The second company commander Balkisas who was acting as referee said that. As expected I was about to complain but brother and sister were making some bitter faces so I gave up. Shit. Are you serious? I'm too afraid to look at Zenom and the others. I'm sure Ralpa is making fun of me. It seems that it's the rules of this practice match for the one who lost the one on one to remain. I didn't take any sort of injury that needed healing so we just continued like this. Even when it comes healing with magic unless we take on an injury where the pain won't disappear that easily, beat the enemy, or win it seems we can't leave the training field.

It seems that next up is the sub-commander. This time I'll take him on no matter what I have to do. I prepare myself once again and went on guard. Wearing some heavy full plate-mail armor and holding a kite shield that's one size larger than normal, while standing on guard with a wooden sword in the form of a long sword the sub-commander has no openings. This time I need to make use of my Speed and make sport of him wearing the heavy plate-mail, I'll aim to land attacks from his blind-spots.

The sub-commander is gradually shuffling closer.

The cold wind of December blows across the surface of the dirt on the training ground.

I hold my wooden sword with both hands at the eye and shuffle the same way towards the left side. I don't want to let him use the shield and if he's going to swing the sword with just his right arm then it should be more difficult to swing if I'm position to the right from the opponents side. The distance between us gradually get closer.

5m...

4m...

3m.

Just a bit more.

And in the next moment the sub-commander stepped in at a speed that exceed my expectations. It's the average speed of a squire wearing rubber armor in Bakuddo. He's fast!

Along with a yell he swings his sword diagonally across where my right shoulder is as he steps in and I wonder if he really feels any weight from his full plate-mail?

It was only a brief moment that I thought that, I threw my body to the right side diving under the swing of his sword and somehow managed to succeed in evading the first attack, I went to stab into the sub-commander's chest from the right but I was blocked by the shield and the tip of my sword was futilely parried to the left.

However, just like in the direction looking from my left I continued making use of the momentum moving to the left and as if revolving my left arm around to back as I dropped my waist I did a round kick into the sub-commanders left knee. It's a combination of "bare handed fighting", "bayonet fighting" and "dagger fighting", the "joint kick".

The heel of my boots hardened with ebonite fall into the bottom edge of his open left knee as I rotate around.

I was able to scratch the edge of the armor covering the sub-commanders left knee with my left heel.

If I can just keep swinging my leg like this it's my aim to cause his posture to collapse.

However, of all things, even though it's true I was able to hit the edge of his armor on his left knee with my heel while making use of the centrifugal force but he isn't budging at all. I guess that means unless I can definitely land the hit in the gap between his left thighs and the muscle between the back of his knees since everything else is covered in full plate-mail I can't bend his knees in a strange direction.

I immediately curling my arm and rolled to the right ahead of me. Just before that his shield was swung down where my left leg had been stretched out and stabbed into the ground. Th..That was dangerous...

After making use of the force I rolled off with to stand up I hold the wooden sword in my right hand while swinging it to right to revolve around and face the sub-commander. During that time the sub-commander pulled his shield out of the ground and finished changing directions.

We've basically returned to our original condition with just positions changed. As expected of the sub-commander of the first knight group, he carries his body splendidly. If we were to do things properly there's no way I have any chance of winning.

This time I want to take the initiative. No matter how good he carries his body or how fast he is, he's still wearing heavy armor. He can't move as fast as me. I need to calmly mix in some feints while evading him and make use of my speed to find a chance of winning.

I grasp the wooden sword in my right hand and in order to maintain my balance I stretched out my left arm to the left while putting my weight on to my right leg and pushed off.

This time I charge into the right direction where the shield is on guard. The sub-commander puts out his shield in order to react to me. Now! I lowered my waist in order to hide behind the shield and charged in just like that but my left arm shouldn't be visible from behind the shield. I put my left hand around the right surface side of the shield and pulled it to the left with all of my strength. If it goes well then it should shift the sub-commanders shield from the left side to the front of his body. Simultaneously I'm sure he wouldn't be able to swing the wooden sword he's holding in his right hand well.

I thought that but. The moment I grabbed his shield with my left hand he must have noticed that. Without resisting the movements of my left hand the sub-commander turned around in the right direction making use of the centrifugal force to swing the sword in his right hand and send me flying.

If it goes like this with less resistance than I thought along with the momentum of the light sensation the left shoulder of my body will open up. But, this is fine. It's a bit different than planned but it's a movement I've done a lot in the past. I stand the sword I'm holding in my right hand up and after pulling it towards my body I stuck out my elbow and hit the sub-commander in the back with it.

Though he's even covered in full plate-mail armor on his back, there's no way he could endure being elbowed in the back without his posture collapsing.

My elbow cleanly hit his back and having his turning stopped the sub-commander tripped. This time I made use of that gap to land the ideal joint kick into the back right knee of the sub-commander and this time he easily collapsed. From behind I grabbed the ornaments on his helmet with my left hand and dragged him downwards while slamming my right knee into the back of his head.

In reality that should cause a concussion. However, as expected the helmet of full plate-mail armor is sturdy. Or maybe he has cushions inside of the gaps of the back of his head? Of course there's some damage but even after falling to the ground from his back the sub-commander was moving while groaning. However, he can't do anything more. I hold my sword to the sub-commander's head as he's face up at my feet looking over here.

"It's Greed-kun's victory!"

The referee declared that. Since I knocked the opponent down face up and held his head down. Let alone one hit I could hit as many times as I want. That's why it was my victory. Oooo! I won! I won against the sub-commander! I clench both of my fists while leaving the training field. Brother was standing on the side of the training field. I was proud. Brother said in a low voice "You did well. Next is me. Just watch." and grinned with a smile as he changed places with me and stepped foot into the training field.

It looks like an unfavorable comparison but that's not the case at all. Other than the experience points the details of his stats haven't changed at all since I left the house in the spring. However, in a mere 9 months he's earned 9,000 experience.

He must have practiced quite a bit or patrolled around quite vigorously.

Brother is standing on guard with his wooden sword while waiting for the sub-commander stand up. I thought that he might not be able to stand up on his own in the full plate-mail armor but that wasn't the case. After rolling over with his face to the ground he lifted his upper body like doing push-ups and at the same time stood on his knees, then while holding his shield and wooden sword he lifted his upper body to stand on one leg before standing up.

Well if he couldn't get up himself or if my knee caused a concussion then if he were to fall from his horse and fall unconscious from just that he'd easily die. And I noticed it up close and actually felt it when I tried hitting him but that seems quite heavy but it's distributed to the entire body so you can move quite nimbly.

Just like that brother is going to take him on it seems. I'm sure he was confused over my abnormal fighting style that isn't normal swordsmanship but brother uses normal swordsmanship. If he thinks it's the same thing as me then even though he's wearing full plate-mail armor he'll get injured.

I stuck my wooden sword into the ground like sister and with my hand on that I watched over brother and the sub-commanders practice match.

The sub-commander is standing on guard with his shield the same way as he did against me. Brother is holding the wooden sword in right hand and has his left hand just lightly matched up with that.

Brother challenged him first. He swings the sword down from above with a yell and the lightning like speed inherited from father. After the sub-commander parries that with his shield and this time he swings his wooden sword in his right hand down from above as well.

It seems he received it with the simple shield on his lower left arm. There's four iron rods with a diameter of 1 cm inside of it. I'm sure it hurts but the bone won't break and it probably won't even go numb. As proof of that at the same time as he received the sub-commanders wooden sword he swung his arm to the outside and shifted the trajectory of the wooden sword with his body.

At the same time as that brother jumped off to the rear and after quickly holding his wooden sword in both hands horizontally he charged in with a thrust. This time his left hand is on the handle and he's got his left waist put behind the wooden sword. The right hand is just being held over it.

The sub-command immediately dealt with that by trying to parry the trajectory of the sword aiming at his abdomen with the wooden sword in his right hand while swinging the shield in his left hand into brother. I guess brother predicted that.

He stretched out the right hand that was just hovering over the wooden sword and easily matched it with the shield the sub-commander was swinging then lifted it up just like that. And then after diving under the shield he cut into the sub-commanders body with the wooden sword in his left hand and pass by from the right side.

Gon, there was a dull sound but it's clearly enough to be judged as valid. The referee company commander Balukisas raises his left hand. However, he's still only earned just one hit. The practice match continues. After that he continued like a master of both his hands while quickly switching between the left and right sides of the sub-commander almost one-sidedly repeating attacks but none of them were enough to be considered valid.

They've already continued that state for close to a minute. I'm sure even brother is starting to get started. If he doesn't decide it soon it'll be bad. When he he has practice matches with me as well, if I go on the defensive and manage to get brother caught up in that I've won by waiting for him to run out of stamina.

Brother charged into the sub-commander while preparing to swing his sword diagonally from the top of the right. Aa!! That's bad! And I saw him swing the wooden sword down into the shield as he charged in but it seems that brother was aiming for that. He didn't hit the wooden sword against the shield but rather shifted the angle and after lowering it with his left hand he just went around the shield from the bottom like that and with a movement like it was crawling across the ground slowly lifted it upwards thrusting it into the sub-commanders right thigh.

Ever since the first thrust where he aimed for the abdomen every attack since then as been a swing diagonally from above or across the center. I'm sure the sub-commander was bewildered by the first attack he showed from below. In any case older brother's swing from below landed cleanly.

"Lord Greed's victory!"

Brother returned with a grin on his face. "No, as expected of him. It's almost a coincidence that was I was able to win. If we had the same armor I'm sure I would have lost." is what he said while breathing with his shoulders but a win is a win. I lost my first match (not that I think that way though), but each of us siblings have scored one win each off the sub-commander of the first knight group!

Now, this time it's sister's turn.

【Special Ability: Void Magic (Lv. 7)】

【Experience: 66241(80000)】

Now then, it's my first time seeing sister's sword since her holiday at the start of this year when she returned to the house, it's almost been a full year. I wonder what being trained with the sword by the first knight group has done for her?

After entering the training field with her sword at the ready sister stood on guard with her waist lowered and the buckler shield attached to her left arm held out.

She didn't match up to brother but she's clearly gotten better since the start of the year while showing quick movements and swinging the wooden sword with her right hand, she was fighting on even terms with the sub-commander. He moves quite fast for the heavy armor he's wearing but he's completely on the defense against sisters movements which are faster than that. However, it doesn't seem like she's evading him as well brother did. Neither of them have been able to land a valid hit yet but...

The sharpness in the sisters movements has started to decrease. It seems that the sub-commander is reasonably exhausted as well and his speed has dropped but it's not to the degree of sister.

Shit..give it your best!

Aaa...The sub-commanders shield smash cleanly landed. After her stance collapsed and she fell to one knee the sword was swung down from above like the rain. She manages to parry those with the buckler shield on her left arm and the wooden sword in her right as she somehow managed to recover her stance, but when she tried to stand up a good one finally landed on her right shoulder.

The referred raised his right hand.

However, the practice match is still going on. Hold out. It's time to reverse it from here!

She took on the sub-commanders wooden sword while rolling to the left. If she makes use of that momentum to earn some distance she should be able to stand. However, it seems she used up quite a bit of stamina on the sub-commanders fierce attack, her sharpness has dropped quite a bit.

It seems that the sub-commander is considerably tired as well but not as much as sister. He has such an endless amount of stamina that you wouldn't think this was his third match after me. However, sister isn't losing either. It's true her stamina has fallen and her movements aren't as sharp but thanks to that she's returned to the basics and her technique has become more thorough.

I almost let out my voice but I need to be patient here. I clenched my fist and cheered just inside of my heart.

However, I guess holding out for several minutes gave her the opening she needed, the movements of the sub-commander have clearly lost their sharpness. No matter how you think about it if he's moving that much in such a heavy suit of armor he'll eventually get tired, isn't he surrounded by sweat and hot air in there? I thought he had an endless amount of stamina but after all there's a limit. Now is the chance to trifle with him making use of speed like the start. I'm sure if it's like this something can be done.

After kicking off the ground with her left foot sister aimed an attack down diagonally from the right while moving in an instant. I'm sure if it's this timing he won't be able to block it with his shield. You can take one hit!

However, the sub-commander forcibly twisted the right arm that he had his wooden sword in and thrust it towards sister.

Sisters wooden sword as swinging down towards the left collarbone of the sub-commander but at the same time the sub-commanders thrust is aimed towards her left thigh!

Sister twisted her body in mid-air with the wooden sword still in her hand and rolled just like that almost as if she predicted that from the sub-commanders stance. After standing up right away she moved around to the sub-commanders right side and landed another hit.

“Lord Greed’s victory!”

Company commander Balukisas declared while raising his left hand.

Alright! We all won against the sub-commander! I reflexively made triumphant pose with just my left hand. Oh~ that’s disgraceful in front of the Queens. However, I’m sure no one is looking at me. A commotion takes over the training field. Eh? It was the first time sister won against the sub-commander? I see, that’s great. I’m sure you’re happy.

The sub-commander lost to sister as well but with this the opponent has been beat so we switch.

..And, I guess it’s me. Alright! I’m going to give it my best and win again!

I held out for close to five minutes but the commander was strong. I tried taking him on with all of my effort but while the commander was using rubber protectors he moved at a speed beyond father as he made light of me. There wasn’t even enough of an opening to land some foot techniques. I was forced completely on the defensive from the wooden sword that seemed to come from every direction and when I thought “ah” I was cut and one hit was taken. After holding out even more there was nothing I could do. If I tried to find an opening and kick up some dirt to blind him but he predicted it and without even a chance to use my last resort I took on consecutive attacks and unable to evade them in the end I lost.

Since I’ve taken on all three of them with this it seems I switch out. I made a pathetic face towards sister but she just nodded to me. When I returned with my shoulders drooped down and brother said “You did well giving it your best. It was splendid that you didn’t give up to the end...Just watch.” to me. Sister just watched brothers back like that with a serious expression.

Ah, I see. For sister this isn’t entertainment but training. I might have something I can gain from the commander and brother’s practice match as well.

I can't overlook it.

Chapter 100: Black Eagle of Webdos

Year 7442, Month 12, Day 28

The practice match between brother and the commander heated up with both sides making intense movements. Wooden sword and wooden sword hit together, we're evaded, and the two of them yelled words like "Eh!!", "Ya!!", "Tseei!", "Muun!", and "Two!!" as the spirit in their attacks surged, before the simple shield on their left arm can be driven into the opponent they step in and repel that, the one who has it repelled immediately jumps back and puts distance, then another intense exchange of techniques starts again. The commander is making use of the rubber protectors that you wouldn't believe it was his first time using them.

Brother showed his last resort the two-consecutive thrust that he almost never shows but after the commander parried it on the first thrust with the wooden sword in his right hand he twisted his face in surprise for just a moment but splendidly brushed off the second thrust with his left hand even though it was his first time seeing it. Even though it took me close to a month to be able to do that while practicing with brother...

Once he holds the wooden sword in both hands you never know which hand he'll switch it to, the commander was splendidly reacting to brother's technique of using both hands. So you can raise the skill with swordsmanship this high..I was so fixed on it I even forgot to breath.

However, brother couldn't win. He held out just like me but in the end the commander forced him into defeat. Not to mention he lost to the same two-consecutive thrust that he uses. There was a small difference in the shoulder when he used it so the commander probably used it as well originally. The speed of the commanders was faster.

After that there was the match between brother and the commander of the third company Viscount Kendus. I'm sure he was tired after the match with the commander but just like he did with the sub-commander he made light of the company commander wearing his splint-mail and when there was an opening he finished it off with his two-consecutive strike winning in no time at all. Amazing~ as expected.

I guess sister is allays having matches against the company commander, it seemed like they both already knew all of each others movements and neither one moved at the start. Eventually, sister got tired of it and tried make use of her speed while the company commander stood his ground firmly as he met with her attacks. Although it seems that the company commander was above in terms of technique but he couldn't avoid losing to sister in terms of speed so by the time each one of them had landed one hit each 10 minutes had passed and it was decided as a draw.

Next up is sister and the commander, is what I was thinking but the commander said we should take a break for a bit. And unexpectedly it seems I'm having a rematch with the company commander before sister and the commanders match. Of course that first time would be invalid. It's too much to consider that a loss. It's true we're about to fight so it was my fault for showing my gratitude.

But, you can't even call that a practice match. It's true that I was about to have a match for the purpose of learning things and I knew that there was no need to greet each other during practice matches. However, I thought I shouldn't be rude to sister's direct superior and did it without thinking too much, so I had the naive thinking that it would be fine and he would overlook it. I learned that no matter what the occasion during practice matches greetings and gratitude aren't necessary but that's it. If it's something on that level you could just say it. There shouldn't have been anything the company commander could learn from that.

No matter what, no matter what even if I have to use my last resort I'll win! Even if they say it's cowardly I don't care. Sister said it was {OK}. If I can win against the company commander that tied with sister then..Well something like that doesn't matter. I just need to think about fighting and winning right now.

Just like I have until now before I entered the training field I crouched down and rubbed dirt on my palms to prevent sliding. And I face off against the company commander who's on guard with his wooden sword after taking a short break. After all I guess I should take him on with speed. I close the distance all at once and thrust with the wooden sword using my left hand.

The company commander parries my trust with his wooden sword and tries to make use of that moment to cut down but compared to the match with the commander just now I was able to evade it with ease.

Unlike against the commander I had enough composure to use foot techniques. However, after all the company commander is used to practice matches against people using rubber protectors. It seems he's a bit confused over how to deal with things like foot techniques after being used to the normal swordsmanship of the first knight group but he's almost completely parried or received my attacks with the wooden sword and even managing to counterattack.

I jumped back a bit and opened up a distance of about 4 m and acted like I was fixing my hold on the sword. The company commander is fixing his stance and lowering his waist as well showing his resolve to receive any attack and counter them. I took up a stance with my left side behind like in knife fighting where my right side is facing him and the wooden sword is held in my left hand while I approach from my left lower back. Since my body twisted to the limit on the left side is in the way the company commander can only see it as if I'm hiding the blade of my sword while building up power from the twisted state of my right shoulder.

My last resort is hanging from my waist on the rubber string attached to the D ring.

I held the handle of my wooden sword along with my last resort and moved my body from the right using my left hip following along that. I held my wooden sword while bending the hinge on the D ring and properly held on to my last resort along with the handle of the sword.

My right hand is reaching it's limit soon so I stretch it out to my left hip.

I gently put the dirt I still had in my right hand into the compartment of my buckshot slingshot.

After pouring it into the condom-shaped end of the slingshot I grabbed on to it and pulled it back all at once with my left hand. After letting go of the stretched out end of the buckshot slingshot a bit more than a tablespoon or so of dirt, just enough for blinding someone was launched at the company commanders face.

I'm sure the company commander had no idea how to comprehend what happened. The sand which was fired off with quite a bit of force dispersed without missing it's mark and in instant passed through the eye portions in the helmet which are almost like a net, and displayed just the effect I was expecting of it. After I fired the slingshot I simultaneously let go of both my slingshot and my wooden sword and went around the company commander closing the distance on his right side.

He's swinging the wooden sword around like crazy but as expected something like that won't hit. I put a kick into the inner part of his right knee and after his posture collapsed I grabbed his right arm in just the right position to do a one arm shoulder throw (there's no problem with grabbing on to the inner part of the splint-mail where it's made of leather) while letting out a yell of "Cheeesst!" as I lifted him on to my shoulder from his right arm as I lowered my waist and rotated him to the left and then while hitting the company commander's thigh with my ass I threw him over my shoulder. And with the brass knuckles on my gauntlets I do a thrust at his helmet, and stop short of hitting him.

Just the same as the time when I was against the sub-commander I can hit him in the head with my brass knuckles as much as I want.

"Greed-kun's victory!"

After it was declared my victory I immediately took off the company commander's helmet and used the spell shower to create water and wash away the sand I blinded him with. Since I was so happy I won the fact that I failed at holding the power of it back and a bit of the water entered my gloves is a charm point.

Alright, I was able to win against the company commander that sister couldn't defeat! I was so happy that I felt like doing a dance but endured it. However, whether it be the company commander or the sub-commander, if I were to take them on with the sword once more I probably wouldn't be able to win for as long as I just use the sword. Thinking like that and sister is amazing that she managed to get a hit off of him while fighting countless times, or at least I thought that once again, but I'll never speak of it.

After that, sister and the commander had their match. Unexpectedly the commander lifted the ban on sister's magic. We moved as far away as we could to observe the practice match. She didn't go to the point of burying him but she easily concluded things using {Water Bolt Missile} (almost zero attack power). Before the second attack hit the commander was using magic as well to try and desperately intercept it but before he could concentrate and materialize the attack he took a direct hit from sister's spell and lost. No matter how light the armor is if you lift the ban on sister's magic it's impossible.

"Hmm, I thought I could dodge magic with this armor though..but, it's certainly good armor. It's light and easy to move. The defense is high for it's weight as well. I like it."

After hearing what the commander said we were all shocked. If just by becoming light you could dodge guided magic no one would be troubled. There's several methods to cancel out a missile that's being guided but they're all pretty difficult.

1. Escape from the valid range of the user.
2. Faster than the projectile being guided can hit it's target interrupt the concentration of the user.
3. Block the sight of the user.
4. Erase the projectile before it can arrive at the target while in mid-flight.
5. Swallow the projectile itself in an {Anti-Magic Field} before the projectile hits.

Out of these the first one is almost impossible because of the difference in speed. Unless they're already at the very edge of the valid range from the start or if they're at a place about 10 m away and they use a powerful wind magic to send themselves flying out of the guided range then it's impossible. And it's not that easy to tell where the opponents valid guidance range starts and ends as well. If you just pour a bit of extra MP into it, it's not impossible to extend the range a bit as well.

The second one is normally difficult. After the spell has been activated it depends on the distance and the type of spell but it's extremely difficult to interrupt the users concentration in at greatest a few seconds to less than a second. Unless they're a considerably skilled sorcerer using another projectile spell that can be used and arrives faster to the user of the spell then it's impossible. Furthermore after the guiding has completed there's the final vector with remains so it's necessary to avoid that. Even when it comes to using a bow or crossbow unless they already have their aim set before-hand because of problems relating to the speed it's for the most part impossible.

The third is the most realistic. Hiding behind large objects, if you can use magic then making a dirt wall and hiding behind that is fine as well. If they can't see the target then the user has no choice other than to try and aim using intuition. If the projectile is the exploding type like {Fire Ball} then even if they aim using intuition it's difficult to avoid damage so it's not absolute but it's a valid method. Even if it's a shield if they use an experience technique depending on the force and type of projectile they might be able to defense against it or avert it. Though that's considerably difficult.

The fourth one is the next most practical. I said erase it but it would be more correct to say hit the projectile with something else and in essence invalidate it. I'm sure it would be most often to use it with the second method but depending on the type of projectile that comes flying it might not have much meaning. What's definite is to intercept it with the same type of missile spell but it's not hard to imagine that it's difficult.

The last method is generally impossible. About the only one who can do it is me. Among spells {Anti-Magic Field} is a low-level one but it requires all elemental magics and at the very least you need to pour more MP into it than the projectile that comes flying or it'll pierce through. It's fine if you only intend to use it once and pour your MP into it to the limit as you setup an {Anti-Magic Field} but as long as it's unknown how much MP the opponent pours into their attack it's nothing more than a gamble with bad odds.

In any case us three siblings...or rather, in the case of sister this time..in this case no matter what kind of defense he would have used her attack would have pierced through or just blown away the defense altogether. I'm sure that the commander can use magic decently as well so I would imagine he at least knows this much.

So this is the end of the practice matches. I did two wins and one loss (it seems I was able to get them to overlook the first match against the company commander). Brother did two wins and one loss as well. Sister did two wins one draw. Uo..we won. For my two wins I barely even used the sword so I really have to question them, and I really doubt the same sort of methods would work another time but even if you take me out we still won. Particularly older brother won against the company commander and sub-commander fair and square with just sword techniques.

Huh? But the only one who won against the commander wearing rubber armor was sister who used magic and..The sub-commander and company commander were wearing heavy armor. Even if you say it, it can't be helped but I guess if we were under the same conditions then I wonder if even brother could have won? I couldn't even win against them a second time while they're wearing heavy armor, if they had been using the same rubber armor as I was wouldn't I have been done in the same way as the commander with no time to use my tricks?

Everyone is offering us words of praise but I guess I was the only one with a discontent expression.

"Greed, you won against the sub-commander and company commanders of the first knight group, though it was a practice match it's still a victory. It's fine for you to be more honestly pleased over it."

Yulu said to me.

"That's right, it's quite the achievement. As expected of your older brother as well, he's an excellent knight."

Marin said that as well praising me. However, I..

"Ha..Thank you for the words of praise, I've grateful for them. Nevertheless, I was able to win thanks to this light armor and my skill with the sword didn't work against them at all. I'm sure I wouldn't be able to win a second time, so in essence it's a loss."

I said that and drooped my head. And then,

"Well, it's not something you need to depreciate yourself own. You're quite strong for your age. Even your skill with the sword isn't all that far behind. If you were to take the entry exam I'm sure you would pass. And I think even among our true knights quite a few of them would lose to you. How about coming to our place even starting right now? How about it?"

The sub-commander said that while laughing.

"That's right, Greed. You, aren't you misunderstanding something? If you can use the sword at that level at 16 or 17 it's splendid. Even more so the three you fought against it wouldn't be overstating it to call them the strongest in our country."

Yulu smiles while saying that.

"Ha, thank you very much. And I'm very pleased over your invitation but I'm an adventurer of Baldukk, and I have my company as well. Also, while I will reach adulthood the month after next but I'm still 14."

I, did my face seem that adult-like? I have the characteristics of an Asian and according to my common sense I thought I would look younger than my age though. Well I'm sure it's flattery as well. Going off of my expression and the things I say I'm sure it's difficult to see me as being 14. And other than Molin they haven't seen my status so it's not unreasonable they wouldn't know my exact age, even if they had seen my status I'm sure they wouldn't bother remembering things like that every time. I don't remember the Identify details of the commander and other members like their ages either.

"Oh? So that was the case. I thought you were much older based on how you talk. Then you should be even more pleased. The fact that you were invited to the first knight group at 14 is exception. You siblings are excellent."

Yulu said that and praise me, praised us siblings.

"Your highness-es, did you understand what I wanted to say? It's not an excuse but even if it's me if I were to fight against Green-kun once more I have no intention of losing. However, this time I lost. There's no second chances on the battlefield. If this was the battlefield I would have been finished off by Greed-kun. Certainly he had a surprising level of skill but I lost to him even though he's still 14 years old and hasn't received formal knight training. That goes the same for Lord Kendus. The only one who won against him this time was the commander wearing the new model of armor. What this means, I'm sure with how wise your highness-es are you already understand but..how about it, weren't my words this morning completely justified? "Ah, it's fine already, I already get what you want to say."

Yulu interrupted Sub-Baron Bittwaz's words saying that.

"That's right. We've confirmed that the armor is effective. It's not unreasonable that you would compete to be the first to get your hands on it. Commander Logan, in light of raising the war potential of the knight group from here on make the orders fairly."

Marin followed up her words by ordering that of Baron Logan.

"Wa ha..I'll carve your highness words into my memory."

And the Queens left the training place. After seeing them off the Baron said to older brother.

"Lord Greed, is one more match alright? This time it will be a match on horseback. The weapon will be the sword."

"I understand. Is it fine for me to use my own horse?"

Brother calmly responded.

"Yeah, of course I don't mind."

It seems that brother and the knight commander will have one more match. A battle on horseback huh?

Brother gets on his war horse and with the wooden sword in his right hand, holding the reins in his left hand, he shows off his gallant mounted appearance while still maintaining an air of refinement. I've practiced combat on horseback as well but I can't do it very well at all. I guess it would be a good idea to take out some time to practice combat on horseback as well. Ah, no I guess I can use magic so even just that is fine?

The commander and brother are separated by about 70–80 m or so. They'll both face each other and when they both take off at the same time, whenever they get near each other again they'll cut at each other with the wooden sword. If they fall from the horse then it's their loss at that point. If they land two solid hits then it's a loss as well. Come to think of it brother sometimes did it with sister-in-law Shani at Bakuddo.

It seems like it's about to start. I can tell that the tension is rising.

Both of them kicked off the stomachs of their horses.

The two war horses gradually increased their speed.

Both of them are lifting the sword in their right hand.

When they closed in on each other the speed of the war horses had become quite something.

The two of them swing their swords in collaboration.

It seems that the two wooden swords hit each other.

After going to the edge of the training ground they faced each other again.

This time they immediately accelerated with their horses.

Again, they're striking sword to sword.

Even just watching from the side the tension of the two of them can be felt from here.

I'm not sure if it's because I'm breaking a sweat or because the water from the shower is still remaining in my glove, it's an unpleasant sensation but I naturally clenched my fist strongly.

Both of them have a high level of technique, or rather, I can't see anything more than the two of them swinging their wooden swords at each other with all of their power while making use of the velocity of their war horses.

The third round.

The fourth round.

The fifth round.

It's not reaching a conclusion.

And the sixth round starts.

The war horses start running, the distance between the two of them gradually narrows.

Older brother came from the left and the commander from the right.

It seems they hit at the same time again.

The seventh round started.

Just the same as until now they're both accelerating and shortening the distance.

Soon after they started running I heard a groan from the sub-commander.

After looking closely older brother's left foot wasn't on his stirrup.

Like that he'll only be able to support his body weight with his right foot.

"Everyone, watch closely!"

The sub-commander roars.

When he crossed over the commander, older brother received the commander's sword with his own sword and his posture collapsed.

Of all things, just before taking the sword his body bent backwards and just the moment I thought he was on the verge of falling from the horse.

He let go of the reins just like that and supported his back using the horse's back.

And after raising his left foot he shortened his body down on top of the horse's form.

I figured it out here but it seems that he didn't have his right foot in the stirrup as well.

So he had only been hanging on to the horse with the power of his thighs until now?

And just as I saw the power gather from the muscles in his arms he went into a handstand and jumped into the air twisting his body as he sat right behind the commander.

It was the moment a Black Eagle flew through the sky of Rombertia.

In no time at all the sword was in his left hand and the opened right arm was entangled with the commander's right arm from behind. On the butt of a horse with no saddle, I'm amazed he can keep from falling off the horse by just entangling his right arm with the commander. Everyone was watching with their breath held. Whether that was because of the frightening level of balance he was showing or the instant he showed an abnormal level of acrobatic capability, or from both.

He was able to attack the commander's left flank as he pleased with the sword in his left hand.

The referee on the other side of the two war horses raised his left hand.

"Lord Greed's victory!"

.....

"It's a street performance. That type of thing can only be used under very limited circumstances."

Older brother said that. It's the first time sister and I saw something like that. It seems like the people of the knight group were shocked as well and they're all praising older brother.

It seems that the only one who knew about it was the sub-commander. Supposedly he had only done it once during a battle in the past. Sister-in-law Shani didn't teach me about it either. It seems that he bribed her into secrecy. The squires of the village were making an uproar. I wanted to join in that as well.

"Listen well, if it's rubber armor then you can even become able to do something like that."

The commander said something like that but I'm pretty sure only older brother could make such acrobatic movements like that. As proof of that no one is assenting to the commander's words.

"Farne-san, you're cool! As expected~"

Ralpa is looking ecstatically at my older brother.

"He's already married and has kids. Don't think about anything weird."

"I already know. Something like that. I'm even fine as the second wif" "You're okay with bigamy? Are you really a former high school girl? And sister-in-law is an amazing beauty. I can't imagine older brother would be interested in someone like you."

"Eh~ but I thought that Farne-san was cool as well. When he jumped between horses like that, that was amazing!"

I won't deny that, but Bel was in the brother faction as well, I'll report it to You-chan.

"Master, as expected. Two wins against true knights. And even though you lost once, the opponent was the commander of the knight group, so it's plenty."

Angela, out of the women the only one who praised me was just you. I bought a good slave.

"Yeah, I was surprised. So there's methods of fighting like that as well. When training, I've never seen you use that sort of fighting method so it was unexpected. I was completely amazed."

Zulu is saying something and it seems he's praising me as well.

"Al, that was splendid. Even when the opponent was the first knight group you didn't take a single step back."

Zenom praised me as well.

"Saying something like {Chesto}, I almost broke out into laughter. Isn't that "Judo"?"

Since everyone was praising me I guess she remembered, Ralph faced me and said that. The one arm shoulder throw is a judo technique but I also had some barehanded fighting mixed in there as well. In some ways it's one of the few and valuable techniques you can throw someone without a dogi.

"Well it's something similar. Since I've mostly been against monsters up until now, I've never used it though. I was amazed my body moved even though I haven't properly trained with it in a while. Even I was surprised."

I really was surprised myself. My body moved naturally. However, it seems that movements that are beaten into you when you're young aren't so easy to forget. I ended up naturally moving like in the past before I could think about it.

Repetition practice of forms is a frightening thing. Of course, any training that I can do alone I did here and there. However, when it comes to throwing techniques I couldn't practice them alone. If it's like this then I might remember the strangle techniques as well. Maybe I'll take Zulu on with them later sometime.

After leaving the training field it seems that brother and the squires are going to their inn once. Matching with that Zenom and the others are going to their inn as well. My two slaves and I are returning to Baldukk after we dinner. For the time being I go to brother and the other's inn and pick up the delivery goods, a rubber bag with the emblem of the royal family on it and with it still packaged I put it into my saddle bag, I'll sightsee around the capital until dinner.

Zulu and Angela said they were going to randomly look around and I want to talk with brother but I still haven't properly talked with the squires either. Since I talked a lot with brother and sister this morning on the way to Rombertia from Baldukk, that should be fine for today. Either way I'm sure he'll stop by Baldukk tomorrow morning. Today I'll lend brother to Ralpa and Bel.

I enjoyed having a conversation with the squires of Bakuddo, Seans, and Dianne for the first time in a while. Sean stayed in Rombertia during sisters exam so he's the only one among them that has been here before. The inn that he stayed at together with father and the others and the restaurant they all went to eat at when it was decided that sister had passed. We also went to an area of small stores where he bought the gifts to bring back to Bakuddo.

Just like when I went to Keel for the first time everyone is restlessly looking around the unusual scenes of the capital like people from the countryside.

"Al-sama, the master mentioned it. Next year or the year after he intends to have one family of rubber artisan's stay in the capital in order to sell armor and repair products. It seems that he will have the families of the artisans shift places every couple of years. It seems that he wants for you to choose a building that will act as the headquarters of Greed Company."

Sean said that evoking my attention. I heard about that story from brother this morning as well. In other words it seems he's come up with the idea of a base of operations for repairs of the armor in addition to being a place to sell them directly from. I originally wrote in my letter previously to think about something like that. I left the selection of personnel up to father so I'm sure he'll send people who are loyal.

"Yeah, I know. I'll finish negotiations by fall of next year and prepare a place by then. I said it to brother as well but I'll make sure I'm in a position to give a progress report during the deliveries in spring and summer. I'll find a good location. Look forward to it."

"Of course, it's Al-sama after all. I'll be looking forward to it. However, for this armor to have been that popular with the members of the first knight group..I was extraordinarily surprised."

Sean said that. The squire Jamie also jumped into Sean and my conversation.

"That's right. I was tremendously happy when I was granted the armor three years ago but for it to have been something that was this popular...Since the members of the first knight group were just quarreling and delighted over being able to purchase it after all. Ah, that's right, Al-sama, starting next year we're going to be expanding the work cabin. Now we've become able to gather rubber from the 6th field and before summer of next year I'm sure the 7th field will be ready as well."

I see, so it's already that sort of season?

"I see, that's great. I think you've understood from today but this armor, it's quite popular right? If we don't limit it to 10 suits of armor every 3-4 months I doubt we'll be able to keep it under control."

When I was responding to Jamie, Dianne came to my side and said.

"Hn~ About that but, Al-sama, why don't we take more orders than that? Right now we can make double that number. Well in that case we'll have to shift a bit out of other products but I think that it can be done though.."

She said that with some reservations but I faced her, smiled, and opened my mouth.

"Yeah, I'm sure that's the case. However, in regards to armor, once you've bought it unless something out of the ordinary happens you won't need anymore for a while. That's why if you sell them all at once you'll be troubled after that. We also need to think about the amount of armor other than ours that are appearing on the market and sell them a bit at a time.

There's two reasons. The first is if a lot of armor suddenly appeared on the market, the armor of other places would stop selling. If it comes to that then it can't be helped so the places who can't sell their armor will end up having to lower the price. If that ends up repeating then no one will be able to make a profit anymore. If it comes to that then the places that were making armor until now will resent us and in the worst case might even start harassing us.

One other reason is while preventing the value of armor from collapsing by limiting the number of our armor that are on the market it will become easier for it to be recognized as a high-grade product. In other words, even we sell the same number our profits will increase. After that we can increase them a bit at a time, slowly increasing the quantity. Simultaneously we'll also sell a lot of other rubber products than armor. We're making an image for Bakuddo of rubber products and high-class armor."

After saying that far and the other squires came over to our side and were listening as well. I stopped my feet and, said that and headed towards a restaurant nearby.

"It's not something to talk about on the side of the street. Let's all go for some drinks of bean tea."

After that I talked about my ideas from the letter I wrote to father and brother for about an hour and the things that I predict will happen from now on and we enjoyed sightseeing around the capital again.

Evening, after arriving at the gathering place we had all discussed beforehand and everyone was already there so we went for dinner just like that. After Zulu, Angela, and I said our farewells we split up from everyone and returned to Baldukk on the night road. Since I'm sure there's no monsters wandering around here either way I played around by using the spell {Light} near the end of my bayonet, and Angela and Zulu's head and tails as we returned.

Chapter 101: New Year's Holiday

Year 7442, Month 12, Day 29

Morning, brother and the others stopped by Boil Manor. Since he had a practice match yesterday I thought he would drag out the day they return by one more day but it seems they're departing today just as planned. It seems that he'll be able to come around the middle or near the end of April next. Also it seems that the delivery of goods and taking orders will be the main thing that time but I was asked once again to find a good place to use as a headquarters in the capital. Of course I intended on that so I said leave it to me like you're riding on a large ship, but obviously he didn't get it like with Myun.

Rather than that, in regards to the condoms made intended for the royal family that I had them bring along but there were 50 bags this time. There's no way the royal family could need that many. I guess they intended for me to offer them as samples to the nobles and high-class brothels in Rombertia. After listening to various stories it seems that brother still sees room for improvement and is trying to make adjustments to them. I still don't have any experience on Orth but brother was saying things like "And, how was it? I think the ones I sent you last time should be a bit better than the last time. If there's anything you've noticed let me know."

It can't be helped so I said "How about making them ribbed along the way?" and he showed great admiration. He said, "What! Making them ribbed huh..After all you can notice things well. Once I return I'll try making a prototype right away. I'll need to remake a new model but I think it's a good idea.

Honestly speaking it's not my idea or anything like that.

I was overflowing with feeling like I wanted to lower my head to the makers of hygiene products in my previous life. I'm stealing their achievements and saying it almost like I thought of it myself. I feel sorry but this as well is all for the sake of preventing the spread of disease on Orth. Ah, though I feel like making them ribbed has no relation to the prevention of diseases though.

After talking until noon about our rough plans from here on out and the reputation of our current products, older brother and the others left.

After that I broke a sweat by running and then after getting some practice in the dungeon, I had dinner with Zulu and Angela and spent the rest of the day resting.

.....

Year 7442, Month 12, Day 30

Today is New Year's Eve. Although, just because it's New Year's Eve doesn't mean there's any changes to the town of Baldukk like in Japan. When I was having breakfast with the slaves just in case I told them that dinner might be late for today. I went and bought another sandwich bento and while using my empty flask as a lunch box I entered the dungeon.

Today I intended to investigate the mechanism on how the room bosses revive which I had been putting off until now. Up until now I've always avoided entering the rooms to avoid the worst case possibility of danger when I'm in the dungeon alone. Today I intend on spending half a day until night to investigate it.

I quickly wiped out a group of goblins I encountered on the way and after taking down the Black Gargantuan Leech that was the boss of the first room, just in case I dragged the corpse to a corner of the room and then sat down on a stone in the opposite corner of the room. Of course I haven't collected the magic stone from the corpse. The current time is 7 in the morning.

30 minutes have passed. Nothing has changed.

Another hour has passed. Nothing has changed.

One hour has passed. Nothing has changed.

One hour has passed. I can hear the footsteps of what appears to be a group of monsters approaching the room.

I prepared my bayonet and was ready to fire off a spell but in the end the footsteps started go far off.

One hour has passed. It's just become noon. I had my lunch while being careful of the corpse that's covered in the darkness of the corner on the opposite side of the room. My caution ended up meaningless.

One hour has passed. Nothing is happening.

One hour has passed. I can feel the call of nature. While remaining cautious I took care of my business in a different corner of the room then covered it with dirt.

One hour has passed. There's no change at all. I'm starting to get tired of it already. I made some tea.

One hour has passed. There's still no change as usual.

One hour has passed. It's already 5 pm. I'm almost out of time huh?

30 minutes have passed. Just when I was about ready to head back already. Something like a haze started to swirl in the center of the room. But, it's just swirling around and there's nothing in particular that occurred after that. I tried to identify the haze but I couldn't do it. I started to get afraid so I left the room to get as far away from the haze as I could. If it's something like poison gas then it would be bad after all.

While observing it from outside of the room I noticed that the haze gradually started to get thicker. I wonder if this is the revival of the room boss? I'd rather not approach it right now but I think it should be fine if I observe it a bit longer, even if I identify myself I'm still healthy and there's no change to my condition it seems.

The thickness of the haze gradually increases, the center of the whirl is almost like a thick fog with how deep white it's gotten. The white portion of it is gradually getting bigger. I think it's already been around five minutes since I noticed the haze.

And, from the center of the whirl there was a flash of white light. It wasn't all that strong. I guess so, something on the level of a 30–40 W fluorescent light. The light immediately disappeared. The fog cleared up at the same time as the light disappeared. And right now where there was a whirl of fog until now there's a monster in the center of it.

It's a Scavenger Crawler. It's just appeared and it's trembling with a purpuruto~

Is this the revival of a monster!?

Suddenly an adult organism and they appear in the room!?

Then in that case I wonder if Goblins and Orks appear somewhere in the halls?

I was just standing there amazed while looking at the trembling Scavenger Crawler but I quickly came to my senses and took it down with two shots of {Ice Javelin}. After collecting the magic stone from it and the first Black Gargantuan Leech I killed, I cut the raw material for the paralysis and paralysis removal medicine from the base of its eight feelers and put them into a rubber bag before quickly leaving the dungeon.

This time it took close to half a day after I killed it until the room boss revived (?).

I wonder if things like the type of boss and the time it takes for it to revive changed based on the location and floor of the room? Or are they uniform? If they do change then what's the conditions for it? I have countless questions.

Although, even if it didn't revive like this, for example if the new boss we're to come wandering in from somewhere I'd have plenty of questions remaining so I guess I should just be satisfied that at least one question has definitely been resolved.

The traps which are repaired all of a sudden.

The monsters which revive all of a sudden.

It might even be possible that the gems and deposits of metal restore all of a sudden as well?

This large dungeon which has continued to swallow up countless adventurers who dream of getting rich for hundreds of years while they've only made it to the 5th floor in recent years. Even if there's a different cycle in how each of them are restored this dungeon of Baldukk was originally fixed "form" and when that "form" collapses I can't help but think that it's either being returned by the hands of somebody or has a function that was included in it to automatically be restored.

Of course, this is my delusion. I have no basis for it. All I have is one thing, the proof of sample that “a monster revived as an adult organism”. I was unexpectedly able to see it this time but whether this definitely occurs or if it was an unusual phenomenon that was limited to this time that I just happened to catch sight of I can’t determine yet.

In any case it can’t be helped making an impatient decision. There’s no choice other than to gradually gather samples that will work as proof like this time from here on out and then make a decision based on that.

That night, when we were taking a late dinner, I went all out and tried asking Zulu and Angela about the incident that happened today. And then the two of them got angry at me. The reason was why I was exploring the dangerous dungeon all on my own, I guess it means if something happens to their precious master it’s a huge affair for a slave.

That precious master is me and it seems they can’t agree with my own actions putting my own life in danger. If I were to die wouldn’t you two become free? Why are you that angry? is what I was thinking so I tried asking about it.

And then, in the case that the owner of a slave passes away the slave is an asset so they are inherited by someone. In this case, my parents in Bakuddo or if my brother inherits the ranking of Viscount, I would automatically and legally be considered the second son of brother. Since I’m “Viscount Greed Family Second Son” after all. Father who was the head until now would return to his previous standing that was “Viscount Greed Family Third Son”. Mother wouldn’t change and would still be “First Wife” and sister-in-law would be “First Wife” as well.

In the case of a poor noble family in the countryside like us, the only ones who go through with naming during the succession of the Viscount peerage are father and brother and the rest of us are just left alone as we were. If this was a noble that was in possession of multiple noble rankings the circumstances would be different. Well it’s unrelated to right now so I’ll talk about that at a different occasion.

In any case, if I were to die then my assets that are my two slaves would be inherited by either father or brother. If you think about it with common sense it's unusual for a countryside noble to possess combat slaves. Normally the retainers of that noble that are the squires act as the combat personnel and soldiers so unless there's some unusual circumstances there's not much meaning in buying combat slaves.

If there's special circumstances like dispatching to a war that's going to occur soon or some monsters in the area have suddenly rapidly increased in numbers and are attacking nearby villages since other than that they're considered close to parasites and aren't welcome. If they're lacking in people they might be used as labor or serfs but that's a waste.

In that case it's normal to sell them to a slave merchant and turn them into money, is how it goes. Since there's no way combat slaves that have been sold again can't choose their next master for themselves, so they have to think about the possibility that their next master will offer unusually good treatment like me. And it seems that my treatment of them is considerably good is a reason for worry to them.

After hearing that I opened my mouth.

"Then what should I do? Are you two going to come with me into the dungeon on your days off as well? Can you endure the mental strain of entering the dungeon consecutively? Are you sure you can be in a good condition the next day when we normally explore the dungeon? I know it's strange saying but let alone in the past, right now I can wipe out monsters on the 1st floor with almost no tension. Even if it comes to fighting the room bosses one-on-one I can win with no problem."

"However, master, there's always the worst case. At the very least take one of us along with you. If you don't we can rest easy as slaves."

Zulu requested that with a strong tone of voice. Mwu, I guess it's the master's responsibility to make the slaves feel peace of mind. Though you know.. I'm, almost completely practicing with attack spells after all. Ah, I've already improved quite a bit on those so I guess it's already fine. For a while after this I intended to focus on investigating the way the dungeon works. Fundamentally it should be just waiting time. I guess if I have someone nearby then I won't be lacking in a partner for conversation huh?

“Nn..Well I guess it’s fine. I understand. I’ll take one of you along starting next time...Then, Wednesday is Zulu and Saturday is Angela. But if you’re spacing out the next day after I won’t forgive it. Alright?”

““Yes, I understand.””

The two of them responded at the same time while looking relieved.

“Well I intend to rest for the next three days starting tomorrow as well. I won’t be going to the dungeon. That’s why the next time is January 6th a Saturday. The first one is Angela. Alright?”

I concluded the conversation after saying that. Also, today is the payday for slaves. I paid Zulu 50,000 Z (5 silver coins), and Angela 40,000 Z for this months portion of wages and then we split ways. Since tomorrow is New Year’s Day, I thought about giving them otoshidama but there’s no custom like that on Orth so I stopped. I’ll be troubled if it becomes a habit after all.

.....

Year 7443, Month 1, Day 1

I thought there wasn’t much meaning in it but after eating breakfast and before running I went to the temple in Baldukk for my first shrine visit of the new year and gave an offering of 10,000 Z (1 silver coin). The priests looked at me strangely when I was standing before the Torii clapping my hands together in prayer but who cares. In the first place visiting the temple at the start of the new year or even visiting the temple for worship in the first place isn’t common. Normally people only go to the temple for the naming ceremony and money exchange.

Incidentally, any currency above silver shu around here is only minted in the temple at Rombertia. How they’re minting it is completely covered in a veil of secrecy, and anyone who steps foot into the temple grounds trying to expose that will have divine punishment physically befall them.

It’s the same as those who attack the exclusive pack horse for the purpose of exchanging magic stones and currency between the temples. The divine punishment falls upon them regardless of whether they’re people or monster. If you try to stick close to the temples pack horse like a parasite thinking it's safe nearby divine punishment hits you in the same way. There's no problem if you're just passing by them periodically.

The divine punishment is lightning falling from the sky. You could say it's the only proof that God exists in this world. If you take silver, gold, platinum, or magic stones into the temple they're the materials needed for currency so they'll buy them but the rate is low. It seems that only a royal family that the temple has recognized is allowed to buy and sell them at a better rate.

If I say this then it might be thought that if the temple doesn't recognize you, then you can't found a country but that's different. For example, using the countries with a temple that mints currency along the western part of the Oladd continent and there's only Rombert Kingdom, Guranan Empire, Suisag Empire, and Korakut Kingdom. Among those it seems that Suisag Empire even has two locations with temples that can mint currency. There's no temple that can mint currency in Bakuluni, Kanbitt, or Devas.

It's true that it seems like countries which currency are minted in and those that aren't have different levels of wealth when compared but in the end that's the only difference. It's only the difference of what rates you can convert rare metals and magic stones to a decent amount of money. Particularly magic stones even if the formal royal family brings them in the rate is considerably bad it seems. It's far more profitable to sell them to a magic tool shop. It seems that the rare metals you sell don't accurately match up to the amount of currency you get in terms of value as well. Well, if you ignore the rate then no matter what temple it is they'll exchange currency for you so it's not as if you definitely need a temple that can mint currency.

It seems they process the magic stones in some when minting them so any currency above silver Shu have a name that appears when you use Status Open on them. Normally minted copper and large copper coins only have the name of the metal. Therefore it's almost impossible to counterfeit high value currency. Since there's almost no profit in counterfeiting copper coins and lower currencies no one does it.

It seems in the past there were people who tried dispatching an army to obtain the minting techniques of the temple but they were all wiped out one after another through divine punishment so in the past 1,000 years or so idiots who don't believe in the legends try to sneak in to steal and end up being hit by lightning and you sometimes hear of incidents where a charcoal corpse is found. If the priests, ministers, or shrine maidens that work at the temple try to do something wicked then divine punishment merciless falls on them too, that's why there's close to absolute faith placed in the temple.

Though it's not like it's worshiped like an original religion or anything. It's just normally related to daily life. The priests and ministers marry and have children as well. The people who receive wages from their service to the temple and make their living are the same as the people in the towns. However the occupation can't be inherited so it's not guaranteed that your child will succeed you.

It seems that as an occupation it usually pays slightly higher wages than the average for the area. The people who work at the temple can be of any social standing. However it takes into consideration a criminal record and if it's someone who's committed a crime even once regardless of whether that's come out in the open I've heard that they aren't given the job but it seems that this is just a rumor.

In most cases, during childhood they get something like an oracle and then they go to the temple. And then they're given the job. Very rarely it seems there are adults like that as well. Even if you lie and you say there was an oracle it seems that divine punishment befalls you. The employment as a worker for the temple is a narrow gate. It's not as if there aren't temples where there were no members accepted and ended up unmanned either. In those cases, most of the time a higher ranked temple will dispatch people but if it's situation where even the higher ranking temple is lacking people they're just left alone for a while.

Even if someone tries to sneak in to steal from a temple like that divine punishment will hit you and in a few years someone will come along so it's not really a big problem. It seems that the God that passes divine punishment is tolerant to everything other than that and unless they do something like outrageous like trying to directly lay hand on the temple even the judgement of major criminals is left up to the hands of people.

Well just like that the circulation of the amount of currency is controlled by the temple (=God) so there's not much need to worry about inflation or deflation. Even if something similar happens it's temporary and resolves quickly. Almost exactly like when a magic item comes out of the dungeon and that goes for several tens of billions of Z, something on that level only comes out once in every ten years or so. The economy of a single country can't be suddenly shifted by just something on that level. I mean, even the poor Bakuddo village originally had revenue of 180,000,000 Z. Though the income from sale of the amount that could be sold was 1/20 of that.

I was thinking about things like that while doing my early running on New Year's day. Even if they say to be optimistic with the calculations economics is important after all. I don't want to suddenly have to investigate it in a hurry when I eventually make my own country. It's necessary to normally investigate it in daily life or rather gather information.

Every place has the day off for New Year's day. Whether it be the government office or shops, no matter where you go only the bare minimum are open. I guess the reason why so many places use Monday as a day off is because of new years day. Those who come to work today in exchange will have the day off tomorrow. That's why today and tomorrow there aren't many shops that are open for business. The restaurants are still open normally so that's a salvation but compared with the number of customers there's less clerks so it's a chaotic state there as well.

I want to eat some mochi. Zoni is fine as well. But let alone mochi rice I don't even have rice so it can't be helped. In the end I'm eating the same menu as usual for lunch as I think about what to do today. Since it's a good occasion I thought about finally getting some live combat for the "Saya" that I haven't used until now but they're closed for New Year's day. It can't be helped. I don't want to enter the dungeon so quickly into the new year, I guess I'll check up on STDs which I've been slacking off on recently. The number of pedestrians walking around has decreased a bit but it's plenty for investigating.

After getting my writing utensils from Boil Manor I started Identifying the people walking down the road one after another, checking their conditions. I've already checked around 10,000 people in total. Obviously it's very possible that I'm Identifying the same people but since it's an investigation of people walking down the prosperous areas of town it should be fine. Maybe I'll use all of tomorrow and make some statistics.

.....

Year 7443, Month 1, Day 2

After finishing my daily running, I did a bit of training with sword forms until lunch. After eating lunch I'm going to total all of the details I've investigated until now before dinner.

There's around 12,000 samples. Around half of those have a good condition but the remaining half have some sort of injury or disease. In terms of disease I'll exclude those with things like the cold or bronchitis or things that aren't much. There was a whole 1,661 people infected with some kind of STD.

I don't know the details but at the very least there's no mistake that it was a disease that spreads through sex. 14% of the people wandering around the prosperous district are infected with some kind of STD? This is frightening. Since I'm sure something like crabs doesn't show up with Identify if you include that there's probably even more.

There's nothing like pyrethroid shampoo or powder either so I'd hate the shave the long-awaited hair I've grown. The condoms will have an immense power against the infection of sexual diseases but they're powerless against crabs. And crabs should infect at close to a 90% rate. If my crotch starts itching in the middle of battle or while I'm hiding in the shadows it could put my life at risk. Hmm, it would be pretty weird to check their pubic hair every time before starting to make sure there's no eggs.

If I remember correctly the raw material for mosquito coils is pyrethroid and that should have been from pyrethrum, but I've never seen a chrysanthemum. I'm sure it would be difficult to make. I guess I'm going to have to shelve it again~ If I go to the capital then wonder if there are high class places that are aimed at nobles? I might be able to relax at a place like that. Ah, shit. I hate my health body during this age.

Come to think of it when I was in middle and high school in the past I was overflowing with sexual desire as well. When the porn books that I had hidden had vaguely changed positions I couldn't properly look at my mother's face for a while. When I reached high school there were videos as well so I waited until my family wasn't around to watch the ones I borrowed from friends. After I became a student at Self-Defense College..I don't want to speak of it.

I wonder if I'm going to be like this for a while from now on? I'm starting to feel uneasy. It's desire that has its root in instinct, even if I hold it back I'm sure there's a limit. If I'm not careful I really don't want to end up prostrating myself before Ralpa begging her. If I end up reaching that point just betting on the 1/8 chance and giving into the despair and going to a high class place in the capital or just taking care of it myself as usual would be better.

Putting aside crabs, if I'm properly using a condom it should be about 90% safe. In terms of simple calculations the chance of infection is 1.4% huh? Whether that's high or low. Ah, no, if they're already infected then it's fine if I just refuse them so would the probability be even lower, I guess? Can you be infected during the incubation period? Well in either case the possibility is at most several percent I guess.

Even though it doesn't have anything to with my life why in the world am I getting so enthusiastic over this? I'm checking the STDs of people who walk by early on New Year's day and totaling the statistics today. And judging off that it seems that the chance of infection of an STD is at most 2–3%.

There's a high possibility it would be fine. Maybe I'll go tomorrow. Either way I'm going to deliver condoms tomorrow after all, it should be fine if I play a bit as a side to that. No, it's no just playing around. If I don't test the performance of the samples of the rubber made hygiene product with the emblem of the royal family on them then there's no way I can suggest them to nobles and people of high social standing. This is my duty as the head of a company.

.....

Year 7443, Month 1, Day 3

After eating breakfast and taking care of my appearance I immediately departed to the capital. I don't have my armor on today. Just in case I have my sword on my waist but it's like saying I'm a noble, and doesn't have much meaning. There's no way monsters would come out around this area either.

After appearing at the castle and telling the reception that I was here for a royal visit then I waited at the designated place for one of her highness-es to come receive it. Even though it's still only around 10 in the morning my face starts to grin. This is no good, I need to remain tense but after a short while my heart started swimming the ocean of freedom once again while spreading the wings of imagination.

After my face had changed to about 100 different expressions her highness finally came. I somehow managed to smooth over my expression and offer my greetings for the new year and move on to the delivery. The Queen that appeared this time was Becky.

"Greed, thank you for your trouble in coming all this way. Thanks to this "Saya" his majesty's bad habit has calmed down, I'm really grateful to you. I'm looking forward to doing business with you from here on out as well."

She showed a beautiful smile like a lake while thanking me for my trouble.

"Ha, thank you your highness Rebecca for those grateful words, this Greed, is very delighted. Please continue doing business with our Greed Company from here on out as well."

I said that while lowering my head and left the room.

After entering the capital I started moving towards the prosperous district of Rombertia with a bright face.

When I arrived at the prosperous district I took a break at a random restaurant while sipping some bean tea and while negotiating on them letting me leave my horse there, I also asked about brothels with a good reputation. Of course I gave the employee of the store a silver Shu as a tip. Nothing good will come of being stingy at times like this.

"It's fine even if the cost is expensive. I want to find a place with high ranking women that I can relax and have fun. If it's a place where nobles would go while hiding their identity then I'd have nothing more to say."

"Customer, those sorts of high class brothels will cost you 50,000 — 60,000 Z (5–6 silver coins). Is even that fine?"

A human brat who seems about the same age as me says. I guess I'm a brat as well. Well it's fine. However, as expected it's expensive. Of course it's not an amount that I'd be reluctant on at this point but that's almost like the average cost of a brothel in Japan. It might even be more than the yearly income of a farming family in Bakuddo.

After listening to a variety of stories from the brat and the cheapest places at 1,000 Z (10 copper coins or 1 large copper coin), the average is 5,000 Z (50 copper coins) it seems. "Ritton" in Keel was about 30,000 Z (3 silver coins) so I once again realized that was a high class place. However, you can't exchange money for peace of mind. There's no meaning in being stingy over a small amount of money here. If I'm going to go I should go to the highest grade of brothel. I'm earning enough for that so it should only be obvious.

I said, "It's fine so tell me the name and location of that place." to the brat and asked the location.

It seems it's located about 10 minutes of walking from here. Well, if it's only that much distance away then there's no need to go there on my horse. After confirming the route once more and I checked the contents of my wallet then quickly walked off.

Umu, it seems I'll be able to manage it before I turn 15. However, rather than that I've been making do with taking care of it myself since we entered the holidays. With great hopes swelling in my chest I walk the roads of the capital.

After walking for a few minutes I saw a group that I've seen before. Uwa, it's the knight group making patrols. So the first knight group is included in the rotation of patrols? I'm glad I wasn't walking while spacing out. Since I entered the alley after seeing them from a distance I'm sure they didn't recognize me but in worst if sister was in that group I feel like it would be bad.

I'll kill some time for a bit.

I'm bored but I continue to lean on the wall while watching people walk by.

Ah, if I just had some tobacco. I've had a habit of smoking since around my 30s of my previous life. I wasn't particularly a heavy smoker but when playing mahjong all night or going out to drink I naturally start to smoke some. I was a child after reincarnating and since I know that smoking itself is bad for your health I haven't thought that I wanted to smoke. My family didn't smoke either.

Although in the case of my family tobacco is a high-class luxury item which can sell for a lot so I think they would just say it's a waste.

Well, I've got to the extend of being reborn with a new and healthy body. I'm sure it's not worth it to start smoking for just a reason like this. In the first place, the tobacco on Orth isn't rolled in paper, other than cigars the pipe and kiseru are the most common methods and since they're not easy to carry around with you it's not easy to just have a smoke anywhere, it's annoying, so it's fine.

It'll be fine to smoke as much as I want when I become an old man in the royal palace of castle surrounded by lots of grandchildren.

I killed a bit of time before returning to the road from just a moment ago. And this time some faces I know came out of the alley. It's Zenom and the others. In a panic I ran into a clothing storing along the road. After secretly taking a look and it seems that they're enjoying their final day sightseeing in the capital. They're happily talking about something while advancing in the direction I'm in.

And then Zenom split up with Ralpa and Bel. Why? is what I was thinking while watching just like that.

Ralpa and Bel entered a different alley. Zenom continues straight ahead. There's a lot of questions appearing my head as I quietly left the store and maintained my distance from Zenom without him noticing.

Hey, why are you entering that place. When you were just having a harmonious conversation with your daughter and her friend, why are you entering a brothel?

Shit.

This place is no good. It would suck if in the worst case we ran into each other in the waiting room or the hallway. I don't know what kind of system it has and since it's a high class store I'm sure they're careful so you don't run into other customers but somehow I don't like it. In the first place Zenom is an adult as well so I'm sure he goes to these sorts of places.

Got it. I'll recognize this store as Zenom's turf.

Since I came afterwards there's no room for me to appear here.

Damn it, if it was something to be like this then I should have asked the location of the runner-up brother...I guess I'll return once.

After returning to the restaurant just now knowing I would be embarrassing myself the brat was grinning as he said "what a quick return" I asked the location of the runner-up store. And it seems that the highest class store from just now was specially famous but other than that there's something like a brothel district where various places are all in one area. I drink some bean tea while listening.

..Hmmhmm, I see now.

I give the brat another silver shu as a tip for courteously teaching me and finished drinking my remaining bean tea. After I finish this I'll immediately head to the brother district. I blow on my hot bean tea while drinking it. When I just casually looked up I met eyes with a passerby. It's Ralpa. Bel's next to her as well. Ralpa is smiling as she lowers the bag that's probably filled with clothes and enters the restaurant.

"What is it? Why are you in the capital?"

"Al-san, Happy New Year. I'm looking forward to working with you this year as well."

Ralpa and Bel smiled while starting to talk to me.

"Ah, Happy New Year. Looking forward to this year with you guys as well...I came to the castle to deliver some rubber products."

After I said that and,

"Ha..Happy New Year. By all means looking forward to this year of working with you again."

And Ralpa has greeted me for the new year as well. Really you are...

"By the way what about Zenom? Where's he?"

I shamelessly tried asking.

"Ah, it seems he's meeting with a former acquaintance. A person that Zenom got to know in the capital in the past is a high class, that is..”

Ralpa’s face turned red.

“.High class?”

Hey now, Zenom, you couldn’t have...

“It’s a bit difficult to say right. That is..It seems they’re managing a store where women offer a variety of services and he said he was going to greet them.”

Uhyo~ Zenom, I don’t know if it’s true or a lie but you said it straight to them. However, while Bel’s tone of voice was embarrassed her face was composed. Well she was already an adult in her previous life so I’m sure it’s not something to get embarrassed about at this point, she’s probably being defiant.

“Hn...I see. Then I guess Zenom won’t be around for a short while? It’s a bit early but what are you doing for lunch?”

If Zenom is enjoying himself then it should take a reasonable amount of time I’m sure. According the system I just heard from the brat it seems you can play for 3–4 hours.

“Eh? We’re eating together with Zenom. We’ve already decided on the restaurant. We’re meeting up at a restaurant called “Konsuri” for lunch.”

It should be just 11 right now. Was it really just greetings? Zenom. It seems I was just misunderstanding it all on my own.

“Oh, I see, then let’s go together. I’m sure you’re just going to take your belongings to the inn after that right? I have my horse so I’ll let you put it on it.”

It can’t be helped, it would be strange to split ways with them at this point.

“That’s great. Ral and I bought quite a bit of clothes after all. It’s a big help.”

Bel smiled and said that.

So it was no good again..tohoho.

Chapter 102: Net

Year 7443, Month 2, Day 5

I've started to understand quite a bit about the revival of monsters.

An average of about 10 hours after you kill the boss monster of the room something like a haze outbreaks in the center of the room and the new boss is born. The age of the newly born boss is obviously 0 years old but it's level is somewhat high from the start. And there was something among their details that I had overlooked until now. They have no listing for experience points under the items with Identify.

Whether it be Ralpa, myself, other humans, or non-humans if I use Identify on them the very last items on the Identify list are experience points and the amount of experience points to the next level. However, whether it be the goblins or the something or other spider, the monsters inside of the dungeon have no listing for experience points.

I wonder if the monsters in the forest near Bakuddo or the Horned Bear had them? I usually don't bother remembering something like that.

At the very least the monsters in the vicinity of Bakuddo had children and babies, and raised them.

I've seen a small baby goblin and I killed both mother and child of a Horned Bear as well.

I've seen an individual that appeared to be the child of a Hobgoblin as well. However, at the very least inside of the dungeon they appear to be adults but I've never even once seen an individual in the process of growing or a child.

What I can guess based on the details of the revival I've been investigating is that the monsters inside of the dungeon might look similar to those outside but be something completely different. Or maybe the monsters outside of the dungeon are the same as the ones inside and being born from a haze somewhere? Well, I'm not a scholar so things regarding the reproduction and ecology of monsters don't matter at all. Rather than that it's fine as long as I can understand the behavior patterns, thought processes, attack methods, and special skills of them. It's something that might eventually be clarified academically but I'm sure that's not my duty.

I've still only seen a handful of revivals so I haven't gained full confidence in it yet but at the current point these are the common factors of it:

1. After killing the room boss a new room boss will be born in an average of about 10 hours.
2. It's no guaranteed that the new room boss will be the same type of monster as the previous room boss.
3. The new room boss appears roughly 5–6 minutes after the haze springs forth.
4. The new room boss that has just appeared can't move well.
5. During the period of time after you kill the previous room boss before the new one revives the monsters that wander around in the halls sometimes enter the room (In other words, even if you've killed the room boss the room doesn't become a safe area).

Is what I found out. Between those points as long as I know this much it's plenty. Just knowing that after you kill the room boss for several hours it will be in a state where there's no boss is a big step forward in terms of information.

Year 7443, Month 2, Day 14

Ralpa, Bel, and I all had our birthday and turned 15 years old. Accompanied by the increase in age all of our HP has increased by 1 each but there was no change to Ralpa and my ability points. Only Bel's Speed increased by 1 point along with a total increase of 2 HP points. I wonder if it's differences in growth between races?

The night of that after we returned from dinner, I called the two of them to my room in the Boil Manor. As presents for their birthday I gave Ralpa some durable leather gloves and Bel a hat for Rabbit-people race which allows just the ears to come out of it. I was the only one who received an inverness during Christmas last year, so I splurged on something that was reasonably high-quality. I sewed both of their names into them. Ono Misa and Soma Asuka. Don't underestimate the sewing skills of someone who went through Self-Defense college. It was the first time since I was born that I sewed someone's name but let alone attaching buttons, I was even able to patch things up. And my sewing needle is the same as my sword it's a specially made one forged with steel and sharpened.

"Al-san, thank you very much. I'll take good care of it."

Bel smiled as she was delighted to receive it and immediately put it on. Yeah, it looks good on you.

"Eh? It has my name on it..Wait, this, did Al put it on? You're extremely good at sewing. Was sewing your hobby? But isn't that a bit of a depressing hobby for a man?"

Yo..You really. At least say a word of thanks. And what do you mean depressing? That's prejudice right. In the past there were plenty of skilled male tailors.

"But, I'm happy. Thanks. I'll take good care of it as I use it as well."

I don't know if she noticed the vein popping out of my head but Ralpa thanked me as well while putting the gloves on her hands. Since they're gloves yours even have your name on them twice! It was a pain in the ass, really. Act like that from the start, fool.

"Al, I'll give you this. It's a birthday present from me. This is for Bel."

Ralpa gave me a weeks worth of six pairs of thick socks and handed Bel a muffler. I'm honestly happy about socks. It seems Bel is happy as well.

"Al-san, this is a gift from me. This is for Ral."

Bel gave me a durable leather compartment that can be fit on the belt I'm usually using and handed Ralpa a muffler. You two, didn't you just exchange mufflers? It doesn't really matter though.

"Also, since today is Valentine's day in reality I thought to give you some obligation chocolate but there's nothing like chocolate after all. So I went with some normal sweets."

"I didn't have any chocolate either so it's some normal sweets but..Excuse me."

I received the average cake of Orth which is something like a failed sponge cake from Ralph and once again something which is average on Orth, a failed version of cookies from Bel.

“Thanks the two of you. As a matter of fact there’s actually one more thing I have to give you, or rather something to talk about. During the end of last year, do you remember when we went to make deliveries of the armor with older brother and the others in the capital?”

I started talking with a slightly serious face.

“Yeah, I remember.”

“Ah, I remember.”

I guess they noticed my atmosphere changed the two of them responded while changing their state.

“After that, I had practice matches on the riverbed right? I was the only one late because of other affairs though.”

“Ah~ That’s right.”

“Yeah, but is there something in regards to that?”

I looked at the eyes of the two of them while continuing.

“That time, I was late because I was eating something. And at that time, it was just a glance but I saw someone that seemed to be Japanese. It was a woman, probably a Dwarf.”

““Eh?””

“I quickly lost sight of her but she was dressed like an adventurer or peddler. Since it seemed like she was escorting a carriage filled with goods. Since it seemed like there was a considerable amount of goods so I think it was right as they were departing or right after they had replenished their stock. I saw a yellow hemp bag so they’re probably dealing in seeds like crow wheat or something. Since merchants that deal in assorted grains and seeds are busy selling seeds for the spring sowing around this period. That’s why if it was right after they had stocked up then they should have gone out to peddle right after that. I’m sure they’ll wander around various villages for roughly two or three months.”

“Is that how it was.”

“That was the end of the year..about a month and a half ago, so if they’re fast then they might be returning about now. I feel like as expected it’s a bit soon. However, someone that appears to be a reincarnated person other than us is using the areas around the capital as base, or at the very least they’re definitely including the capital in their patrol route. Since it seemed that there was only one carriage, it’s not a trader that covers several territories I’m sure. And, then”

I’m sure the two of them are get what I’m saying.

“For a short while after this, we’ll setup a net in the capital. I guess so, next week, starting from February the 19th we’ll take a break from exploring the dungeon for a the time being and keep lookout on the primary roads going to the capital. Our profits will decrease but let me off with this. Since it’s not guaranteed that person will pass through Baldukk, it’s a bit troublesome but it would be better to setup the net near the capital. However, I think you already know but starting from today reincarnated people are 15 years old, adults. Since there’s also the matter of Yousuke-san, I won’t force it on Bel though. How about it?”

Ralpa and Bel looked over here before opening their mouths.

“I’ll go. If it’s a reincarnated person then it would be better to make them into our allies. But you know..”

But what?

“Why are they always just women? You, are you maybe avoiding the men?”

“Huh?”

“It’s a joke, a joke. Leave it to me, I’ll go and keep lookout as well.”

What is up with this girl. Isn’t Kuro a man..Come to think of it these two only know about Kuro from what I told them.

“..I’ll go as well. If You-chan were to go to Baldukk then that would be to earn some money. In that case I’m sure he would stay for at least a few years. It’s fine.”

I knew that on days off and the days where we leave the dungeon in the early afternoon Bel was wandering around the town and looking at the big roads. Of course, she's shopping with Ralph as well but I'm sure that's her searching for Yousuke-san. Thanks to that it's become difficult for me to walk into strange places but I can't exactly tell her to stop it.

The types of cheap bars and restaurants that male adventurers go to or the vulgar bars where there's prostitutes, the block which is made up of brothels. While I've been inside of restaurants like that watching the roads I've seen Bel walk by. I've seen her sit on the corner of restaurants drinking tea while looking at the roads just like I do as well.

As expected over the past few months the {Slaughterers} members have become known so it doesn't seem like anyone tries to harass her and she can use magic and the short sword properly so I'm sure they're ignoring her. I'm grateful that she's willing to help setup the net to look for a reincarnated person who seems unlikely to be directly related to Yousuke-san.

"Thanks, the two of you. That helps out."

To me while I was lowering my heading that,

"Please stop, Al-san. It's only obvious."

Bel replied with a feel like there was no problem at all. Bel, thanks. I feel like it's a bit strange for me to say thanks but I honestly felt grateful to her.

"Yeah that's right, it's fine, it's fine. As long as you take care of the lodging costs in the capital that's fine."

I did intend to at least take care of the cost of the inn but it pisses me off to have you say it like that.

We stayed up late talking about how to setup the net next week.

It's been close to a week since we setup the net around the capital. It seems that with Zenom as the leader Zulu and Angela are earning a bit on the 1st floor. Since I'm not there the earnings all belong to Zenom. I told Zulu and Angela to properly listen to what Zenom says and intended it as combat training.

According to what I've heard from him when Zenom comes to check on us during the days off there's no particular problem and it seems they're earning without approaching the rooms with dangerous enemies.

Well there's no helping being worried about them right now. The three of us continue watching the roads or having tea at restaurants while observing several of the roads.

Every night after eating dinner we're training near the riverside and since we came to the capital the three of us are all running every morning to prevent our bodies from getting dull but it's a source of worries for the three of us that the so-called combat sense may dull or be lost.

In any case, it's still only been a week. I'm sure it's necessary to hold out for at least one month. At the very least I intend to hold out until April.

.....

Year 7443, Month 2, Day 30

I returned to Baldukk alone once and paid the wages for my slaves. I haven't given them a detailed explanation of the circumstances but when I told them that I would be staying the capital for a short while to take care of some business, they seemed to have misunderstood that it was related to business with the royal family or knight group so without particularly correcting that I just left it as a misunderstanding.

I gave Zenom his compensation one day early and then returned to the capital.

Year 7443, Month 3, Day 3

In regards to the Doll festival but neither Ralpa nor Bel said anything and since it's already got a feel of at this point, I just pretended not to notice as well. I'm sure that their age in their mental memory has exceeded 30 years old so they probably don't think anything about something like the Doll festival. Even if their mental memories are over 30, their mentality should be 15 so I was worried about it but according to what I've observed and Ralpa is just right for her age, Bel is one year older, and it feels like I'm 2-3 years older.

After talking about it with Bel that was the conclusion the two of us arrived at. Rather than saying this is in relation to our original age, it's more in relation to the number of memories we inherited and feels like the amount of life experience we had is influencing our growth. That's why if there was someone much older than me their mentality might be around 20 years right now (Saying that might be misunderstood. It would be more correctly to their they've grown quickly and whether it be 15 or 20 their mentality had grown to that point).

I wonder what kind of person the reincarnated person I saw is?

I wonder what kind of life they've lived since they were reborn?

There's also the case of Derenola who tried to attack Bel.

It would be good if it's not some strange person.

If possible I wanted to at least get a grasp on their Unique Ability.

Since they disappeared from my sight right away that I couldn't even remember their name is regretful.

.....

Year 7443, Month 3, Day 7

It's almost been about three weeks. They aren't getting caught in the net. It can't be helped if we don't even know their name. Ralpa is saying, "Didn't you make a mistake with what you saw?" Gradually I've started to feel like that was the case as well.

However, I'm certain I saw red characters.

.....

Year 7443, Month 3, Day 10

I'm sipping away at some bean tea while watching the road like usual. Without anything in particular I had an adequate lunch, and when it's just about to become the evening. In a restaurant which is slightly warmer than outside, I was sitting on a chair with my inverness on the back of it while observing the flow of people move by.

Oh~ that Cat-people sister has a pretty nice ass, and I was following her with my eyes. A bit along the road among the carriages that pass by there was one with an empty load. There's two people a male and a female sitting on the coachman's seat. It seems that the short female is driving the carriage. The male has a thin stature. He's an elf huh? I could only tell that much from a distance.

Both of them have black hair. And their faces somehow feel similar to that of a Japanese. I hold back my feelings of impatience while I use Identify. If I remember correctly when I saw them, there was a couple sitting on the coachman's seat and three people were around that as escorts. What I was interested in was one of the escorts.

Could they be a different group of reincarnated people?

There's red characters. I've discovered some reincarnated people. Not to mention two of them at the same time. I wonder if I should figure out their destination and then call for Bel and Ralph as reinforcements? Or maybe I should try getting into contact with them myself first?

There's not enough time to waste checking their abilities or thinking.

Chapter 103: Tears

In regards to {Scale}, I actually had some difficulty picking the name on that one. I forget why I went with that but an alternative and potentially more accurate translation for it is {Measurement} or {Measuring}. Since it has to do with taking various measurements and dividing based on those, you could consider most devices to that purpose {Scales} though as well...

Year 7443, Month 3, Day 10

Even if I've determined their destination if they end up moving in the time I'm requesting reinforcements then it's the end.

I guess I should make contact with them even if it's alone here. I quickly left the restaurant and started following the carriage.

It seems that the carriage is empty and it's going at a decent speed but there's no way it could go at full-speed in the middle of Rombertia. Since it's at best going the speed a child runs as long as I don't lose sight of it I should be able to quickly catch up. I wave the left hand that was holding my invernass while following after them.

"Can you wait for just a moment?"

There's no response. I'm sure they don't think they're the ones being called out to. The two of them sitting in the coachman's seat are talking about something and not turning around here.

"Hey, wait just a minute."

After talking in Japanese and they reacted for the first time. They turned around startled. I breathe a bit heavily while running to the side of the coachman's seat and continue to talking.

"That's great. You're Japanese right? If it's alright with you I want to talk for a bit though."

I smiled while saying that.

“So you’re Japanese as well! Wakana-chan, it was just as you said coming to Rombertia was the correct answer.”

The elf man said to the dwarf woman sitting next to him with a voice that had a mix of surprise and joy. I guess Wakana is the original name of the woman?

“Ye, Yeah. I’m surprised as well..”

The dwarf woman called Wakana looked at me with her eyes wide open while saying that. Well it’s just the reaction I expected from my end and not particularly anything to be surprised about at this point. I assumed it would end up like this when I started forming the net and killing time. It might be possible we could end up meeting one more reincarnated person as well.

“Since it’s a bit unusual standing around talking in a place like this. For a long-awaited occasion like this I want to talk in some place we can relax but...Do you have item after this? Do you have any business to take care of?”

I returned to the {Common Language} while saying it. It could be possible that they’re from outside of the country or the shitty countryside even further out than Bakuddo so they might not have understood my first words as well.

“Yeah, but I want to return to my house once first. I need to take care of my carriage and horses as after all..”

The dwarf woman responded. It was clearly pronounced in the {Common Language}. I guess they just couldn’t hear me calling out to them from behind because the surroundings were noisy.

“Ah, I guess that’s true. You, is it fine to talk tonight? We’ll come back tonight, let’s talk in some kind of restaurant.”

The elf man has a bit of an accent to it but he started talking in the {Common Language} as well. By the way, it seems that we’re an obstruction to traffic. It seems it would be best to quickly setup an appointment and finish things there.

“I understand. I’ll reserve a restaurant. I’ll make the reservation under the name Greed. The place is..I guess so, is “Rokidd” fine? Do you know of it?”

Rokidd is the high-class restaurant my sister used once when they celebrated her passing. It seems it’s quite famous.

“Eh? “Rokidd”? At an expensive place like that..”

“It seems you know about it. Please relax, the one invited you was me. I’ll take care of the bill.”

I smile while saying in order to try and relax the two of them. If it’s money than I have it, if it’s money. If it’s the first time then I’ll at least treat you.

“Is that so? Then we’ll rely on your words. Is around 7 fine?”

“7 it is. I understand. I’ll be waiting for you. Greed is my name. I’m Alan Greed. In Japan I was called Kawasaki Takeo.”

“I’m Gulinel Akdam. In Japan my name was Nishioka Wakana.”

“I’m Tolkelis Kalstalan. Just the same I was Sema Yousuke.”

My right eyebrow raised up. So this good looking guy is Sema Yousuke? For an elf he looks pretty human but he’s extraordinarily {handsome}. Rather you could even say he’s more charming than a normal thin and beautiful elf. Since he’s with a woman right now it might be a good idea to keep quiet about Bel. If these two are mutually in love then..I’ll be troubled. Since Bel is a splendid adult who can make judgements on her own so in the worst case she might pull back herself. However, I’m sure something like romantic feelings can’t be explained away so easily like that. Even more so since I’ve seen Bel’s course of continuing to feel for Sema Yousuke from nearby her.

It’s been 15 years since then. Even though it was forcibly done through an accident it’s plenty of time for a couple that was split up to find a new partner and have a change of feelings and then some. Rather you could even say Bel is abnormal for being able to continue to feel that way for 15 years already. But, she’s my..important..import ally. In my heart I want cheer for Bel. However...

In a haste I was able to confirm their names. I should leave things at this for now. After stepping back to the side of the road I saw them off. And I identify them from behind.

Wh, {Mapping}!?

【Unique Ability: Geographical Memory {Mapping}; The details of all terrain seen while using this ability can be stored in memory. Also, during use of this ability you can understand when you've entered a terrain that you've previously stored in memory. The duration of this ability is extended in relation to it's level. The duration of the effect is the level of the ability to the power of 2 multiplied by 1 minute. It's impossible to use the ability again during the duration of the effect. In the case the terrain stored in memory is referenced, you can select from one of following three methods. 1. Referencing a first-person point-of-view as if the user was in that location. 2. A bird's eye view from above. 3. Just the same as two a view from above but all unnecessary factors can be removed leaving a simple map. It's possible to select one of those three methods for browsing. No mana is used while browsing. However, in any of those cases any place that hasn't been seen directly (for example the rooftop of a building or in the shadow of something) will be a blank space. Bear in mind that only visual information is capable of being stored in memory. If through some cause visual information is falsified, the falsified information will be stored in memory.】

The other one is "Scale" huh? I've heard the name of this one from Bel.

【Unique Ability: Scale; After using this ability, for the level of the ability multiplied by one minute(ability level 0 will be treated as level 1) the user can consciously make a comparison of two selected objects. The comparison allows the user to understand how high (many) the weight, volume, hardness, viscosity, and temperature is as a fraction. In relation to the level the number of items that can be selected for comparison increase. Also, by limiting the selected object to a single item the division point of that object can be precisely comprehended, and if it is desires that division point can be split. However, a tool or container with a hardness capable of damaging the object is needed separately. The ability of the separation increases in relation to the ability level. Furthermore, in any of the cases under the consciousness of the user the object can be thought of as "one" but in relation to the level the condition of the object (the state of solid, liquid, gas) is increased as an option. When making a comparison the duration of the effect is an instant and the division can be maintained perpetually so long as concentration is maintained and no other intrusions enter the operation.】

Fuffu. I've found it. I've finally found it. It's a bit different than I expected but both of them are extremely, extremely~ useful Unique Abilities. And both of their Unique Abilities are at a high level.

Max and level 8. It's nice that both of them have MP that's exceed double digits as well. If they learn magic then we can raise it a bit further as well. Since their body levels aren't that high as well if they remain conscious of their MP then we might be able to stretch it out like that as well.

Even in the worst case I don't want to let them get away. At the very minimum it's necessary to grasp the location of their house I'm sure. Making reservations at "Rokiddo"? Since it's still 4 pm, I can do anything about that. For Bel's sake as well it would be best to get a good grip on their whereabouts.

I put the invernness I was holding in my left hand on and I started tailing them with a distance of about 50 m between us. There's a lot of pedestrian traffic and it seems they couldn't even imagine they were being followed. They're pleasantly talking about something. While looking at Kalstalan's face smiling at Akdam I bite my lip and paint out my feelings with something while focusing on tailing them. There's no way I have any sort of special tailing technique but something like that, it doesn't matter as long as they're not being care of being followed. After about 20 minutes I confirmed their house. It's a normal house with nothing out of the ordinary. It seems it has a warehouse and stable as well so it appears to be a small merchant house with no shop. The roof isn't tile but shingles, and there's some small damage that can be seen here and there.

I watched as they opened the gate and Kalstalan follows Akdam's instructions as she guides it inside from a distance while worrying about how to tell Bel about this.

As expected I'm not such an idiot to suddenly head straight to Bel's position. Or rather, I wanted to discuss it with Ralpa first. On my way to Ralpa's position I made reservations at "Rokidd". Five people at 7 pm. A course meal in a private room. It was an advance payment of 150,000 Z (15 silver coins). Expensive~ It's 30,000 per person. However, there's no choice other than to separate it as a necessary expense.

Something like money is fine. If I can make connections with some reincarnated people who would definitely be of use then it's a cheap price to pay. The problem is Bel. Always talking politely, without making fun of me like Ralpa, she's always supported me like a shadow in the sun*. I don't want to see her crying face.

Just judging off the appearance of Kalstalan and Akdam they didn't seem like they were in love with each other but there's no way I could figure it out in just that amount of time. If Kalstalan were to return to Bel, I wonder if Akdam would cry? There's no way for me to know how deep of a relationship they have. However, they said they were returning to their "house". I'm sure they're living there together.

In which case, it's very possible that their relationship is reasonably deep. Their races are different but they're the same Japanese. I'm sure their conversations match up and just talking in Japanese is mentally relaxing. For example, if even I were to be living in the same house as Bel or Ralpa with just the two of us I'm sure sooner or later feelings would grow.

I still have some doubts and it's difficult just to organization my feelings but there's no choice than to do something about it.

I found Ralpa. She's standing at the corner of an intersection with the muffler she got from Bel around her neck and wearing the gloves I gave her. She's watching the people pass by while spacing out.

"Ralpa. I found them."

"Al! Don't suddenly surprise me like that, really~"

Since I suddenly started talking to her from the side, she was surprised and started complaining to me but quickly jumped at what I said.

"Eeh!!? you found them? Alright! And how did it go?"

"It's a group of a guy and a girl. I made a promise to talk at a restaurant. Just in case I tailed them and found out their address as well."

"He~ so there was even two of them. Isn't that great!"

Without knowing anything Ralpa joyfully says that. I'm sure I would as well if I was in Ralpa's position.

“What is it..that face, you don’t seem very energetic. You finally found them right? A..Are you depressed because there was a man? You’re such an idiot.”

Even though I went to the trouble of spending time finding the reincarnated person since my face didn’t look very cheerful I guess. I responded with a flat voice to the words Ralpa said next.

“No. It might be an even bigger problem. I couldn’t tell Bel about it right away. I want Ralpa to listen first.”

“Eh? What is it?”

“It’s fine so listen. First, the man. He’s an elf. His name is Kalstalan and his previous name is..Sema Yousuke.”

“Eeh..Seriously!?”

It feels like it’s been a while since I last heard seriously said in Japanese.

“Just a minute, there’s a continuation. It seems he’s living together with another reincarnated woman. They entered the same house. Since I started talking to them in the middle of the road I couldn’t keep talking to them forever, since there was a woman with him I didn’t tell Yousuke-san about Bel.”

“Eh...Well. It’s been 15 years after all..I guess things like that..might happen..But”

“Ah, I’m sure things like that happen. That’s why I tried talking with you first. And, the other woman, she’s a dwarf named Akdam. It seems her previous name was Nishioka Wakana.”

“Eeh..Seriously!?”

Why again. What would I do lying about it? Seriously.

“Wakana, so you were still alive..”

Tears appeared in Ralpa’s eyes.

“Eh? Is she an acquaintance?”

“Yeah, my friend. We were riding on the bus together..”

“I see..”

This is bad, I wasn't expecting this.

"I don't know how close the two of them are. I was only talking to them face to face for about a minute after all. It could be that one of them is just being hired and they're not dating but it's true they entered the same house together. Probably one of them is a merchant. It was a merchant house with a warehouse. When I found them the two of them were getting along well together on the carriage. If Akdam is your friend then..then one of your friends might end up with painful feelings."

"Yeah.."

"And, since I wasn't sure what to tell to Bel I came to you first but if it comes to this then it's that. It might be best to just say everything I saw.."

"Yeah..that's, right."

Ralpha whispered with a discouraged expression.

"Ralpha, I understand your feelings but it can't be helped for you to worry over it. There's no choice than for these sorts of things to end up the way they do.."

"Yeah..I know. But.."

"Yeah, that's right. However, you really shouldn't worry about it. Since you can finally meet your friend again. Even Bel can meet with her boyfriend. If you're going to make that sort of face I'll leave you behind. I make reservations for a course as a shitty expensive restaurant today. Become more cheerful."

"Yeah, I guess that's true. I'll do that. I can't do anything but watch over. Sorry, I, don't think I'm going to be of any use.."

"Ke..I didn't expect anything like that from the start. Eat something delicious and enjoy it the best you can. That's about your only good point, after all."

I could only say that to comfort her.

.....

The two of us went to the position Bel was in charge of at 5:30 pm and we invited her into a random restaurant for some tea while she seemed suspicious. And I start saying the difficult things.

“Bel, I have some good news, and some news I’m not too sure on. First, let’s start from the good news. I found the Japanese. It’s a group of two. One of them is a male elf named Kalstalan.”

I started talking while trying to remain business-like.
Bel’s face sparkles with cheer.

“Isn’t that great! Can we meet them today?”

“Yeah, of course. I’ve made reservations for a high class restaurant. It’s at 7 tonight. After that, calm down and list but it might be a bit complicated.”

“Ha~”

“That man, Kalstalan’s previous name, he said was Sema Yousuke.”

“Where is he!? Let’s go right away. Where is You-chan!?”

Just as expected, she’s drawing near me with quite a bit of force. Well I was prepared for it.

“I said it might be complicated right. It’s fine so listen. Since you’re definitely going to meet him.”

“But, but, what if he goes somewhere again..”

There’s tears appearing in Bel’s eyes. Either tears from hearing Sema Yousuke is safe or tears of resentment towards me for not letting her meet him right away.

“It’s fine, I’ve already determined their house. In the first place don’t you find it strange? In a normal situation don’t you think I’d tell Yousuke-san about Bel?”

Bel came to her senses while looking at me.

“And, I said it was a group of two Japanese....There was one another a dwarf woman. Her name is Akdam and her previous name is Nishoka Wakana, she’s supposedly Ralpa’s friend..”

“Eeh!!? Ral, isn’t that great!”

The tears that had been building up in Bel’s eyes overflowed and this time she smiled at Ralpa as if it was from the bottom of her heart.

“Yeah..but..”

Ralpa made a painful express while looking away from Bel's face.

"Bel, the story hasn't ended yet. Listen, and try to remain calm. The two of them..entered the same house. While intimately talking with each other.."

I couldn't even describe the pain I felt while saying that. But Bel just made the same expression as if saying, "what about that?"

"Ah..So that's what this is about...It seems I've caused you to worry. But, it's fine. I told you about it previously but all of the reincarnated people are born with a reasonable amount of distance between them. I'm sure that there's no mistake You-chan probably just came across that person while searching for me. If you were to say that then I'm eating together with Al-san everyday and even staying at the same inn? But, if You-chan were to know about that he won't say anything and I don't think he would be bothered by it. Of course I'll properly explain the details to him but it's the same for me."

Gu..Mu..if she says it like that then I can't retort right away.

"Mu..That's certainly..true but...Bel sure is strong.."

"Yeah, she's strong.."

Ralpa and I are left speechless by Bel's words and couldn't say anything but common words.

"Strong? I am?"

Bel erases her expression like Noh mask while saying.

"I'm not strong at all. It's strange saying this but it's fine for the sensations of a Japanese to remain while a child but it's about time we must become adults. After being reborn we're in this world after all. Since it seems Al-san and Ral already have experience I'll say it but after leaving my house on my way to Baldukk I've killed several people who tried to get close to me. This isn't because I'm strong. It's because I'm weak. A really strong person wouldn't pick the method of killing someone who's committed or about to commit a since but rather select the route of reforming them. I'm no longer a Japanese person. I'm an Orth person. It doesn't matter if I'm strong or weak. I've decided to continue living using the methods of Orth. That's why even if You-chan became a criminal or sullied his hands it doesn't matter.

It doesn't matter even if he loves someone else. As long as I can be by his side in the end I'm satisfied.

Above all else I believe in him. It's no problem even if he's been dyed the color of society on Orth. That's a side of him as well. It's only obvious for adventurers of Orth to do some jobs, receive money, and use that money to drink alcohol or buy women.

Even if You-chan were to do something like that I wouldn't be upset with him. I mean, on Orth that's normal after all. It seems that there aren't many of them but there are noble families where a female is the family head and they have multiple husbands as well.

Aha..I wonder what I'm saying.

The thing's I'm saying are a mess right.

.....

But, but, I'm grateful that I can meet the living You-chan once again.

I'm grateful to Al-san for giving me that chance.

I respect Al-san, who turned over the person that attacked me to the knight group without killing him, as strong.

Anything is fine! As long as I can meet him, can meet You-chan, anything is fine!!

Let me meet..with him...

Please..once more...

Please...

I'm begging you..”

Even though she started talking quietly, by the end she was excited as she grabbed on to the two of us while crying and it was difficult calming her down.

The time has almost reached 6 pm. I quickly explained the plan to Ralpa. We'll head to the restaurant first and wait for Akdam and Kalstalan to arrive. When the two of them get to the restaurant, I'll invite Kalstalan to take a piss or something and after becoming alone with him, ask about Bel, or about his relationship with Akdam. After that I'll pretend to be making orders and explain the situation to Bel and Ralpa standing by in a different place from the private room.

In any case, I thought I should prevent the situation from turning into chaos with Bel suddenly jumping at Kalstalan without thinking about anything. Since Ralpa agreed as well I decided to leave Bel to Ralpa while waiting.

As Bel was saying if there's no problem then the two of us will disappear right away somewhere tonight so it took quite a bit of time to convince her. Just in case even if Bel and Kalstalan leave their seats along the way, I said we would continue eating at "Rokidd" until 9 pm and putting aside what happens with Akdam in the end, that Bel should return to the inn sometime tonight together with him.

It's almost 7 pm. In the high class restaurant "Rokidd" I'm waiting for Kalstalan and Akdam to arrive with my arms crossed in the private room. I already told the restaurant not to prepare the tableware until all five of us have entered the private room. I got them to allow Ralpa and Bel to wait in a different room as well. Also, to prevent an occurrence like what happened before, I made sure to tell them to ignore the appearance of the elf and dwarf that were coming later (though still on time), and handed the waiter of the restaurant some bribes. My preparations are perfect.

I wonder in the world the relationship of the two of them is?

A romantic relationship, business relationship, or just friends?

Honestly speaking as long as it's not a romantic relationship there's no problem at all.

In that case then we can just conclude it with laughing at me for being too concerned and jumping to conclusions(though I think you can't say I went this far). It'll be fine as long as I scratch my head and smile bitterly.

Even if it comes to a romantic relationship, if it's a one-sided thing then that's still better.

For example even if Kalstalan was in love with Akdam, as far as I could tell in terms of the sensitivity of a Japanese person Bel is an overwhelming beauty and cute. Even in terms of body Bel is..No, I'll stop there. But, I'm sure it's a problem of tastes as well and he might have fallen for Akdam's personality.

In the case that Akdam has fallen for Kalstalan, then Kalstalan and Bel will be in mutual love, then Akdam would become an existence trying to enter a one-sided illicit love. In that case, I'll leave Akdam to Ralpa since she's her friend.

The most troublesome would be if Akdam and Kalstalan are mutually in love. I don't know about Ralpa but honestly I would put priority on Bel, and it's weird saying this but my influence is big I'm sure. Though I haven't had any interaction with Kalstalan or Akdam until now they're both Japanese as well. I'm sure there's at least some feelings of familiarity. Even more so since Bel and Ralpa had a relationship with each of them in their past lives, so I'm sure it would be difficult to ignore them. In some ways since I hold the power of life-and-death over Ralpa and Bel, they obviously can't ignore me as well.

There's a saying of, people who interfere with stranger's romance should be kicked by a horse, so just as that I have no intention of interfering in their romance but I can't help but feel like it will enter my words a bit. I guess I should restrain myself. No matter how I think about it, it's better for me to remain neutral.

While I was thinking about things like that there was a knock on the door.

Now then, time to switch over my feelings.

Chapter 104: Reunion

Year 7443, Month 3, Day 10

The one knocked on the door was a waiter of the restaurant. Since my two guests have arrived he wanted to confirm if it was alright to let them pass. Since it was a group of two a male elf and a female dwarf I said to let them in.

Akdam and Kalastan entered the room from behind the waiter. While looking around curiously at the extravagant interior they said admirable things like “sorry about this” or “thanks for the meal”. Akdam seems to have changed, her clothes are pretty neat but Kalastan is still working slightly dirty clothes. I’m glad I paid the waiter a bribe.

“Ah, excuse me but is it fine if I go to the toilet really quick? Kalastan how about you join me? It’s quite amazing.”

I went to the toilet ahead of time to check it out. There’s a urinal that was carved out from a stone like marble, and they’ve put a bag of perfume or something into the drainage pipe so it’s an insanely luxurious toilet for Orth.

It was a bit coercive but I invited Kalastan and brought him to the toilet. After we entered the toilet I started talking to him.

“You said your name was Sema Yousuke right? What is your relationship with Akdam-san?”

“What’s with the sudden change in tone? Well it’s fine though.”

What’s he saying. The first time we met and even just now the one who’s been using a crude way of speaking is you right.

“I think I got to know her around one month or so ago? I saved her when she and her parents caravan was being attacked by Orks. It’s just that but what about it?”

Ho~ Thank goodness...I’m relieved.

“I see..That’s great...I can finally relax. At the very least you don’t have any sort of romantic feelings towards that girl right? I just wanted to confirm that.”

After I said that and while Kalstalan didn’t see to get the meaning it seems he thought of something.

“Ah, that sort of thing. It’s true that for a dwarf that girl is shapely and cute after all. I do feel sorry for her but I don’t have any sort of romantic interest in her so you can rest easy. I won’t interfere between you either.”

It seems he’s misunderstanding something. And it seems that going off the way he’s talking Akdam might be interested in Kalstalan? Or is this guy just too self-conscious?

“Ah, it’s not that sort of thing. What I wanted to confirm was just your feelings. Yousuke-san. In addition please let me confirm one more thing. You, do you have a woman?”

After I said that and this time he started to slowly back away from me while saying.

“I’m not a homo so don’t hold any hopes in that direction. I have a woman I’m in love with. I need to search for her.”

Who’s the homo, this bastard. Well it’s fine. I grin and smile and “I see. Also I’m not a homo either.”

and I just said that shut away my parts into my pants. I took a glance to the side. Ah, this guy is smaller than me~ Not to mention it’s still covered the same as me. This is a weird place for it but after all I thought he was the same Japanese and got a bit happy about it.

“I’m happy now that I was able to hear that from you. It’s fine if you look forward to it.”

I scooped some water out of the water jug and washed my hands while saying that and,

“Look forward to what? It’s true I’m happy to have met another Japanese and I thought I wanted to ask various things but..Ah, is the food here that amazing?”

He washes his hands the same as me and wipes them with the towel hanging on the wall before I pushed his back while saying, that and we returned to the private room. Akdam was alone and looking kind of uneasy at the table but after Kalstalan and I returned to the room she made a relieved expression.

“Well it’s fine, in any case look forward to it.”

“Ah, that’s right. Akdam-san, you should look forward to it as well.”

“Eh? What?”

After I said that and she made a strange face while looking at me and then looked at Kalstalan.

Kalstalan said,

“I don’t really know either. It seems the food here is amazing.”

and said that.

“I’ll go order the course really quick. Wait just a moment.”

After saying that without taking my seat I went out the door and closed it.

I quickly went to the room where Bel and Ralpa were waiting and opened the door without knocking. The two of them were just standing opposite of the door each looking at me with different expectations in their eyes. It’s not my taste to put on airs here.

“Bel, sorry for the wait. Isn’t that great. You should go to him right away.”

After hearing partway Bel pushed me aside and ran off. Her expression I saw when she passed by was overflowing with delight.

“Now, Ralpa, let’s go as well.”

“Yeah.”

Ralpa made a smile of relief as well. I’m sure I’m smiling as well. After I turned around and Ralpa was about to leave the room, and we heard Bel’s scream. After Ralpa and I exchanged glances we walked towards the room we heard the voice.

“You-chan!!”

.....

We entered the room and Bel and Kalstalan were embracing each other. I had predicted it but since they're not kissing I'll forgive it. Ralpa pushed me away as I was entering the room with a grin and yelled.

"Wakana!"

Come to think of it there was this side as well.

"Eh? Who are you?"

Huh?

"It's me, Misa. It's Ono Misa!"

Ralpa is hugging Akdam. I guess it's only obvious since she suddenly jumped into the room and hugged her there's no way she could see her face. Akdam was making an expression of confusion but her eyes were looking towards Kalstalan. Ah, after all is this a troublesome pattern? But, after Ralpa named herself it seems she was surprised.

"Eeeh!!? Misa? Really!?"

"Yeah! Yeah! It's Misa!"

Wait just a moment. Bel and Kalstalan, Ralpa and Akdam. And me. Why am I the only one alone? It can't be helped though you know. Using the six-person table sitting in the center of the room as border I look at the groups of two trembling and stifled up from the joy of their reunion on my right and left.

Bel and Kalstalan are embracing and half-laughing, half-crying while their faces are so close you might think they're about to kiss any moment. Ralpa and Akdam aren't kissing but they're holding hands a happy with their reunion. Seeing the cheerful faces of my allies Bel and Alpha and I felt a warm feeling surge up while thinking, "That's great."

Well I guess it can't be helped. But, close to five minutes or so has already passed. While they're enjoying their reunions I'm shifting the position of the chairs where there's three on each side of the table. If you look at the room from the entrance I'm trying to get Ralpa and Akdam to sit on the left side and Bel and Kalstalana to sit on the right.

I move one chair to the right most side and sit at the end of the table on the birthday seat. Obviously this seat of honor is mine. While I'm at it I'll call out to them.

"You all, it's fine that you're delighted and all but it's about time that the waiter of the restaurant will enter the room. How about sitting at your seats already?"

I'm sitting at the birthday seat with my legs crossed as I say that but almost as if my voice has a filter on it or something it doesn't seem like it reached their ears. Akdam is occasionally glancing at Kalstalan but even then it seems she's happy she met with Ralpa. It seems to be certain that she's happy. However you know..It's really started to get a bit painful.

"Hey, how long are you all intending to keep at that? It's about time to come to your senses already."

No matter how you think about it, its about time right. I need to try and hire these two who seem useful. Since Bel previously confidently told me that Kalstalan should be fine, so putting him aside, it's hard to ignore Akdam as well. If she signs the contract right away then I don't care if she stays here squealing with Ralpa forever though.

Well I guess I'll do what I can while I have the chance. Since I originally only thought there would be one reincarnated person I only prepared one set of three contracts. Just in case I did prepare several extra pieces of paper. While these guys are still squealing I should borrow a pen and some ink from the restaurant and prepare another set during that time I guess. Since it's a high class restaurant in the capital, I'm sure they at least have that much prepared.

After getting of from my seat and leaving the room, I called for the waiter and while telling him to wait about 20 minutes to bring the food I also asked him to prepare a pen, ink, and since I'm using a contract-use magic stone to bring a plate as well.

In two or three minutes the items I requested were ready. Even though I didn't say it he even prepared a pin for pricking your finger. Well I'm sure he wouldn't know that I'm holding a knife. While Bel, Ralpa and the others are still continuing their endless conversation I start preparing a new contract. The wording itself is the same as Ralphas. Since there's not much wording I should be able to finish writing it up right away.

Without mistaking a single word, in a short period I was able to finish produce another set of three contracts. By the way, around the time I was finishing up with the third contract as expected these guys started to calm down.

I take the contract use magic stones of equal value out of my pocket and start rubbing them together on the plate I received, making an appropriate amount of magic stone powder. They went out of their way to prepare a pin but without using it I take out my knife and cut my pointer finger on my right hand to let blood come out. It's easier to get blood out with a knife after all. With the blood still coming out of the pointer finger on my right hand I hold it over the magic stone powder on the plate and mix in about 1/3 and then use the pointer finger on my left hand to rub that on a total of six contracts with my name and thumb print.

Everyone was watching the work I was doing. In the end I used healing magic to fix the cut on my right hand and wiped away the blood on my finger with a handkerchief that store prepared as well(the only reason I didn't use water magic was to prevent the floor from getting wet), and for the most part it's done. I use drying magic on the contract and with the six of them overlapping I put them on the right side of the table in front of me and above that the plate with the magic stone powder, ink, and pen before opening my mouth.

"Is it fine already?"

After I said that and Bel nodded shyly, Ralpa said "Eee~ I couldn't help it. Sorry" while scratching her head and stuck her tongue out. Kalstalan and Akdam seem to be surprised how I used magic so casually.

"Then, I think it's about time for the food to come and we've finally met some other Japanese people. Let's talk for a bit."

Thanks to Ralpa the mood has gotten a bit softer and it's easier to talk.

"I guess let's start from introductions. I think you already know but my name is Alan Greed. I was born Bakuddo Village of Marquis Webdos territory in the Kingdom of Rombert. In Japan my name was Kawasaki Takeo, and I was a 45 year old salary-man when I died. My Unique Ability is "Magic Acquisition". It's fine if you call me Al."

I said that while holding both of my hands out to Kalstalan and Akdam. Kalstalan just looked at my left hand amazed but Akdam nervously touched my right hand and used {Status Open} to check my status. After seeing that Kalstalan touched my left hand in a hurry and checked my status as well.

I guess she thought it was her turn next, Bel opened her mouth.

“My name is Bernadette Koloil. I was born in Ralail Village of Duke Stahlz territory in the Kingdom of Devas. In Japan my name was Soma Asuka. I was a 21 year old college student when I died. My Unique Ability is “Shooting Intuition”. Please call me Bel.”

She said it primarily to Akdam. She sticks her right hand out to Akdam.

“I’m Ralph Firefreed. I was born in Ralph Village of County Hentil’s territory in the Kingdom of Rombert but I was an abandoned child so I don’t know my parents. The one who picked me up and raised was a dwarf named Zenom. I was a 17 year old high school student when I died. My Unique Ability is “Spatial Understanding”. It’s fine to call m Ral.”

Ralph sticks her left hand out across the table to Kalstalan while saying that.

“Hn, then, I guess next is me. Name’s Tolkelis Kalstalan. Born in Yogutte Village of Count Rozenhaim’s territory in the Kingdom of Rombert ow”

It seems that Bel pinched Kalstalan’s hand.

“I’m sure it’s the first time in a while but talk politely. Starting from the beginning.”

Really now. After being scolded by Bel Kalstalan coughed with an “n..n” and,

“My name is Tolkelis Kalstalan. I was born in Yogutte Village of Count Rozenhaim’s territory in the Kingdom of Rombert. My name in Japan was Sema Yousuke. I was 21 years old and a college student the same as Asuka when I died. My Unique Ability is “Scale”. It’s a Unique Ability that isn’t very useful though...It’s fine if you call me Toris.”

After saying that Toris stretched his left hand out to Ralph and his right hand out to me.

“Umm, my name is Gulinel Akdam. I was born in the King’s direct territory Rombertia of the Kingdom of Rombert....I was born in this town. Misa..I was together with Ral on the same bus when the accident happened. I was 17 years old. My Unique Ability is {Mapping}. Please call me Gwine.”

Gwine stretches her right hand out to Bel and her left hand out to me while introducing herself. When our introductions had ended, three of the restaurants waiters knocked and entered the room. Two of them held something like a lunch mat or napkin and spread it out on the table and then started lining up the tableware. The other one is distributing glasses to everyone. In the end they asked if it was alright to start distributing food so I nodded and they left. I, and asked her and with a clear face,

“Bel, is it fine? You’re going to at least eat before going right?”

“Yeah, of course.”

replied like that. Then, it seems like it would be good to start talking right away. In the next moment the waiter’s brought out the appetizers. It looks like ratatouille or some kind of cold vegetable salad with ham, and some kind of sweet berries or nuts on it, lamb meat carpaccio, and a plate with seven varieties of appetizers served on it. At the same time white wine was poured for us. After it was distributed to everyone the waiter was still here so,

“Then, since it’s this occasion, let’s do a toast. Congratulations to the miracle that you all were able to safely meet. Cheers.”

and said that before drinking the wine. Yeah, this is pretty delicious wine. I don’t really get it though. But, it’s really easy to drink. Each person is saying “cheers” and putting the wine to their mouths but just Akdam was bewildered.

“Umm..It’s true that we’re adults but..Is it okay? It’s my first time drinking alcohol.”

Ah, so she was raised in a house with that sort of curriculum? Come to think of it I want wonder what she said to her parents to come here? I guess I’ll try talking about things around that area. Since the waiter has already left, and t’s troublesome, it should be fine in Japanese.

“Hn? I won’t say to force yourself on it, if you’d prefer juice or water then should I order some of that?”

“Eh...it’s fine.”

After Gwine glanced at Bel and Ralpa drinking the wine like it was delicious and she put it to her mouth.

“Huh? It’s delicious..Nn...What, is this...Nn...”

..I wonder if it’s the dwarf blood? After just one sip she noticed how delicious it is and after looking at the glass once she started to drink it down, and emptied the glass.

“Wait just a moment..Wakana, don’t drink too much and get drunk.”

Ralpa got worried and warned her.

.....

After drinking some soup like a consomme, and by the time the main dish beef (!) poivre and tanvirumu (a type of fish that lives in shallow ocean like flounder) meuniere came out everyone had gotten to know each other and there was a harmonious atmosphere around the table. It seems it’s been about a month since Gwine and Toris met.

When she was peddling with her parents and two escorts, a total of five of them they were ambushed by a group of orks on a mountain road, and leaving only Gwine were nearly wiped out, at that moment Toris gallantly appeared and saved her from her peril. I guess it’s only obvious she’d fall for him. The way she looks at him reminds me of a subordinate of mine, in my previous life who died young, he was a Johnnys-type good looking guy named Inoue, and even though he had two children he would seek an illicit love with a female employee from a different department.

Gwine was brought to tears when she started talking about the attack by the orks. It was an incident that occurred only a mere month ago. She lost both of her parents at once (they were killed right in front of her, which is a pretty shocking method to lose them, so it’s not unreasonable) and she wasn’t even able to succeed the white Type-3 Second Variety license for Akdam Company so it can’t be helped that she was driven into a corner. Even if it came to continuing business she would have to pay 1,000,000 Z to buy the license again.

If she were to have applied for a license with no connections or anything it would have taken several months for it to be issued I'm sure.

Well stuff in that regards is convenient for me but it's true that being pleased over other's misfortune somehow feels uncomfortable. At the very least she was able to dispose of all of the goods she had in her carriage at that time and earn some money and it seems she still has some stock of grain and vegetable seeds remaining at the company. Well since the season is good if she were to try and dispose of them right away she could do it. If a white license holder dies in an unforeseen accident to something like monsters then they'll offer some lenience in paying the taxes on the remaining stock.

In Toris case he left his house at 13 years old, it was two years ago from now. In the short one minute period he had to ask questions of God he came to know of Bel's reincarnation and was able to confirm there's some distance between reincarnated people as well it seems. Thanks to that he wasn't able to confirm much of anything else.

Just when I was thinking he was quite intelligent, it seems that when he was shown the news report video during the first explanation he noticed Bel's name right under his. He immediately confirmed Bel's reincarnation but God didn't respond to where Bel was located. I was only able to confirm my own name surrounded by a flashing red square and a couple of other names that had two or three character family names.

But, just like me after hearing the method the place where reincarnated people are born at is decided and after finding out that we're separated by some amount of distance, he asked what amount of distance that was and he was told it was at least 100 Km.

Since that was the case he decided to avoid searching large towns where it would be difficult to search for someone and traveled around focusing on small villages it seems. Just when his traveling expenses were starting to get low he happened across Gwine's carriage being attacked.

We all talked about our encounters as well. It's entirely focused on Ralpa and Bel's stories and I sometimes add on to that. After hearing that it took the shape of me saving both Bel and Ralpa from peril the way Gwine looked at me changed. Up until now it was a "what's this piece of goldfish poop" kind of feel compared with now I clearly feel like I'm being looked at the same as Toris. I don't think this is probably just me being too self-conscious though...What is with this girl?

After Toris heard how Bel and us met, when the story ended he stood up from his seat and deeply bowed to me offering his gratitude. What the, isn't quite honest?

We continued talking after finishing the main dish and changing the taste by eating the salad with steamed chicken in it. About the usefulness and danger of reincarnated people. It seems that neither Toris nor Gwine took those sorts of things into consideration at all and listened to it seriously. I only intend to talk about the advantages of being a reincarnated person, body level, and such after they sign the contract.

By the time the dessert that was some kind of fruit jelly was brought out we were close to reaching an end to the things to talk about.

"Now then, is everything up until there fine...Yeah. Right now, it's in the form of me employing Bel and Ralpa. Other than them there's also the dwarf that's Ralpa's adoptive father and my combat slaves a Laios man and a Dog-warrior woman, we're challenging the dungeon in Baldukk with a total of six of us. Toris, Gwine, how about it? Will you come along with us? Of course, I'll pay you proper wages just like Bel and Ralpa."

I looked between Gwine and Toris while talking. Ralpa entered the conversation there.

"The wages are 200,000 Z per month. When there's a lot of earnings we also receive bonus pay on those days. Al and I arrived in Baldukk around June of last year but I've earned an average of over 500,000 Z per month since then."

Why are you holding your chest high there? And then Bel continued to add to the conversation as well.

"And, we have days off on Wednesday and Saturday afternoon. Well I think this will change when we start exploring deeper floors though. Also, Gwine, that is..We get one day off extra per month. Though I get two a month, since mine are light.."

Ah, menstruation days off...If Gwine joins us as well then those sorts of days off will increase as well...Well, it can't be helped. It's fine though.

"Of course, please let me accompany you. Asuka..I was told by Bel that she wants me to come along as well and I don't have an occupation so I'm quite grateful for it. Al-san, please allow me."

Toris immediately said that. As expected of Bel saying with confidence that it would come to this. However, you could say he's simply jumped at it because he doesn't have any money as well though.

"Ah, your welcome to join us. Then, please sign the contract. The details are the same as Bel and the others. Here"

After saying that I handed him one set of three contract documents. I wonder what Gwine will choose. If she'll sign together with him then it will be less annoying and a big help though.

"Waka, Gwine, what do you intend to do? You can't start your company up immediately right? Al has a company as well. Also, since Al is extremely strong I don't think there's very much danger even in the dungeon."

It seems that Ralpa is encouraging this side.

"U...But, an adventurer huh..Even if you say strong, about how strong? Also what license does his company have?"

Gwine asked Ralpa those questions.

"Hmn, near the end of last year he won against some person that was the sub-commander of the first knight group in a practice mat"Eeh!!? Isn't that a lie?"

Do I not look that strong? I think I have built up quite a good figure for my age though...

"Yeah, I saw it in front of my eyes. Also, Al's older sister is in the first knight group as well. His older brother is super strong and cool!! Right, Bel, Al's older brother Farne-san is super cool right!!"

Ralpa suddenly threw the conversation at Bel while she was reading the contract together with Toris just in case.

“Eh? Farne-san? Yeah! He was cool.”

After raising her face from the contract Bel replied. Toris is still looking at the contract without even glancing at Bel’s face. I wonder if it didn’t enter his ears, he was originally not all that much of a jealous type, or he might just trust Bel. I can’t really tell. Gwine continues.

“And what about the license of his company? Since it seems he’s from Marquis Webdos territory, if it’s a Type-3 it’s not even worth mentioning.”

I went to open my mouth and reply but Ralpa replied again.

“I don’t know his license but he’s directly doing business with the King. He was directly called out to by his majesty Rombert and her highness the Queens after all.”

This time Gwine started looking at me with a doubtful expression.

“I don’t have it with me right now but my Greed Company has a Type-2 First Variety red license. If it’s inside of Rombert I can do whatever business I please as much I want. Have you heard about the rubber products from Bakuddo?”

After I said that I’m sure that Gwine recalled it.

“Ah..Rubber products..I’ve heard about them..Though I haven’t seen them..But, that’s amazing. Putting aside Type-2, something like a Type-2 Variety One is completely impossible for us..”

She might not know that nobles have a special right in regards to the price of the license. Well, it’s fine though. If it’s a normal person that’s not a noble and they have no connections, in order to make a Type-2 First Variety company it would cost them 150,000,000 Z after all. In the end it only cost me the handling charge of a mere 500,000 Z though. It’s all thanks to the mightiness of rubber protectors and condoms.

“Since you have experience doing business on Orth, I would definitely like for you to join us. This year or next year I intend to create a headquarters for the company in Rombertia. It’s no good if I don’t search for a building that would be a good candidate as soon as possible.”

I smiled while talking to Gwine.

“But..I can’t even use the spear very well..That is..Fi..fighting is..a bit, scary..or rather..”

Well, that’s right. On the other side of the table Toris has started signing the contract.

Finishitfinishit.

“What are you saying~ Even I can do it so it’s fine. Even my father said that the axe or spear are best for dwarves. I’m sure you’ll be able to use it right away. And I’m here, and Al will protect you as well.”

Ralpa smacks Gwine’s back while saying that. Alright, you, even though you’re an idiot you’ve been doing some decent work lately~ I’m sure it’s the results of Bel and my discipline. Like that’s the case.

“Well try reading it. The details are exactly the same as the one I gave Toris, and it’s the same as Ralpa’s as well. Ah, though Ralpa’s contract was combined two into one with Zenom?”

I say that while handing her the contract. She nervously received that and started looking at it but I wonder if she’s the type that’s weak being pressured? since she saw Toris has already started signing in front of her, she raised her face without even properly bothering to read it. It seems she’s waiting for Toris to finish signing.

After she received the pen and ink plate from Toris who finished signing and she started signing the contract. I hand Toris the knife and shifted the plate with magic stone powder on it over in front of him and,

“Mix in some blood for about half of the amount of magic stone powder remaining and then do a thumb print. The wound will heal right away.”

I said that and watched where Toris pushed his thumb print. It seems that Gwine has finished signing as well.

Alright, I’ve gained another two valid pieces, it’s fine to think of it as if they’ve become my subordinates I’m sure. Out of the three contracts they signed I gave one to each of them and healed their cuts with magic.

Out of the remaining two contract documents one of them I’ll keep and the remaining one will..be kept by the government office. It’s one of the reasons why formal contracts are expensive. If you do a thumb print using magic stone powder and your blood then you can use status open on it.

With this they can't escape from me so easily.

Side Story 20: In the Case of Nemoto Masaaki (Age 25 at time of accident)

Ah~ I'm fucking exhausted~

Even though this is the home of a train station the section manager is angry like an idiot over my behavior.

Somehow, I even start to pity him.

It seems he doesn't like my attitude and the fact that I didn't apologize to a client for a mistake that was normally unrelated to me.

The mistake was a mistake in the dates for delivery of a product we were selling them.

If you were to ask why the mistake happened, the for starters, the client confirmed the delivery date with me.

And, when I confirmed the delivery date with a person of the manufacturing department, I told the details I heard directly from them to the client.

That's why, I think the mistake was with the person managing manufacturing and not me.

This section manager with his stomach sticking out is in angry fit over, "In the first place why didn't you think it was strange when a delivery date like that came out and neglect to double check on it?"

It's not my job to confirm things and I haven't been paid enough for it.

Aaa~ the train left.

The next train is a slow one so now we have to wait until the next train after that~

I'm exhausted of sitting at the home waiting for a train while listening to complaints of this old man.

Well if I remain quiet then eventually he'll be satisfied I'm sure.

Just as I thought, the old man,

"It seems it's pointless to say anything more than this to you." said that and stopped talking.

It's the usual pattern.

Ha..if you think you can get me fired then try it.
There's no way something like a single section manager would have any rights to HR.
In the first place, I entered this company through a connection with my father's cousin Aimura-san(a board member of this company)...
It seems that Aimura-san was in the care of my father's older brother, in other words my uncle quite a bit so Aimura-san can't hold his head up to my father either.

Though the university I entered wasn't quite first-rate I entered it on my first try.
I went there because I didn't want to end up in a place like Tusu University? was it? where ronin like you end up.
I'm on a different scale from a guy who went to a university in the middle of nowhere like you.
I'm sure it's just on the level some DQN high school student from a bizarre place in Kanto would enter.

The university I went to doesn't even compare to such a nameless school.
If it's the private South Asia university than it's name anyone around here has heard of.
It's famous enough around the regions of Akita that you can see "SA uni" written around the bus line all over the place.
It even has exchanges with famous universities in China and South Korea.
It's fine to say that a person like me who entered there without examination on a recommendation is superior.
You should be grateful just in the fact that you're able to work together with me who majored in business there.
If you're mortified then graduate from at least a major university before trying to preach to me.

I'll remember this, you corporate slave.
I've got the expectations of Aimura-san since I entered the company.
"Masaaki-kun, I'll leave you under the care of Numaoka one of our companies best. I'm pretty sure he had a teaching license so he should be just the right one to teach you. Since starting from the bottom is important in anything. If you properly train under him for a few years. You'll easily be promoted soon after that."

When I tried asking when I can make as a manager he said that. That's why in another 2–3 years I'll become the head or vice-head of department and it'll be my turn to preach to you.

I really can't bring myself to like this corporate slave old man. The only thing he ever talks about during work hours is the jobs and customers and it's creepy how it's all about work. Even the other day when I put off entering in an order for a custom item because I hadn't heard the method for it for 2–3 days he came to preach to me over it, I had only heard once several months prior on how to enter orders like that into the system so even if you point out a mistake with that much details. Are you stalking me? In the first place an executive candidate like me has no interest in the job of the sales scene.

If I try to explain the reason then you say not to talk back, even though I'm not directly at fault you try to force me to apologize to the clients. Why do I need to apologize to the clients over every little thing even though it's not my fault? The things he's saying are like some cheap yakuza.

I'm a candidate for management that's got the expectations of a member of the executives.

Even last week just because I went 15 minutes past work hours he tried to push even more overtime on me. It's true that if I had finished processing it by that day then it would have sped things up the next morning but isn't it just that much difference.

The business world of Japan filled with old men like this sure has gotten weak. I learned about it in college.

Why is it necessary to accompany you to drink just because a client came from Osaka and it's past 6 pm while they're staying today? Isn't it fine if the people who want to drink just go drink all they want together. Why does someone who doesn't even have any friends need to go drink on their own dollar?

Arrogantly saying it's his treat, do you just want to act like a big-shot?

In the first place, if we were to go to a place filled with cigarette smoke like a bar and I end up getting lung cancer how are you going to take responsibility? I'm sure after that it's just the usual brothel as well.

How many new issues of novels, manga, blue ray discs, and games for the play station do you think I can buy with the money used on that alcohol and brothel?

Finally the train arrived. It's far more wholesome to be looking at other world reincarnation novels on my smartphone. At least let me do as I please while in transit. However, this "If you're a man then you've got to aim for brothel king" is quite idiotic. Making rubber in another world is fine but why go to the trouble of making something with such a high difficulty like condoms? I don't get it. In the first place, the protagonist still hasn't even used a condom himself. Should I be saying Take that~ to a protagonist that pisses me off? How is he supposed to aim to be brothel king while he's still a virgin, it's so retarded I can't even say a thing. Well, even though I say that I'm a virgin as well. I have no interest in the third dimension. If you want to date me then say it after you've entered the monitor.

Ah? I'm floating in the air together with the old man?

What in the world happened? An accident? is what I was thinking before I started crying. What is with this voice. Is it my voice? The last time I cried was after I entered college and was robbed by a classmate of my little brother who's in middle school at the game center.

.....

I've gradually started to get a grasp on my situation. It seems that I'm in a situation similar to the protagonist of a genre of web novel I often read on "bungo ni narou". It's reincarnation. I still can't tell if this is another world or somewhere on Earth but judging from the furniture and make of the house this is probably another world. However, there's some words like English mixed in as well so it might be somewhere on Earth.

Six months passed by and I've gradually started to learn the words just from listening. It seems this is far into the remote regions of something or other high ranking nobles territory. The name of the village is Wenbiru. It's not that wealthy of a place but it doesn't feel tremendously poor either. No, going off my sensation it's poor though, at the very least I can eat a satisfying amount. Even on Earth there were countless places poorer than here..there's a non-human. This isn't Earth.

Reincarnated in a different world huh. Really?

I wonder if there's magic and stuff as well?

Otherwise I should do domestic development with knowledge from modern day Earth?

Recently I've often heard the adults mentioning something or other about Valiola.

At first I thought it was a person's name but it seems it's different.

In the past, it seems they had to burn down a village including the people who lived there when it appeared.

What is it?

Just like that I eventually found out the identity of Valiola.

It's the name of a disease.

It seems that patients with it have started to appear in this village as well.

However, the lord resolutely burnt down the house along with the inhabitants of it right away while they were still alive.

Honestly speaking I was relieved.

On the surface my family said things like it was terrible as well but I could tell everyone in the house was relieved.

Yeah, it can't be helped right.

It seems like Valiola is a contagious disease after all.

Even if you criticize the lord it was the correct way to deal with it.

.....

Everyone in my family is in bad condition.

I wonder if we've all caught a cold or something? There's a fever and even a bad headache.

Two days after I started to feel bad.

My condition has already returned to normal.

My mother let out a scream after seeing me.

What is it?

During the night of that, I understood the reason.

It's because she saw my three-year older brother.

There's something like a large rash all across his face.

What is it? I wonder if I have them as well?

After touching my face it seems that there's several of them on mine as well.

My parents went pale after seeing my older brother's face.

Valiola.

It seems it's a symptom of that contagious disease.

Father said, "It's already no good, let's bet on the one in eight chance, gather our belongings and escape into the mountains at night."

Mother said, "That's right. I'm sure we've already got Valiola as well..If we somehow can escape then there's no choice but to return once we recover." and they started gathering their belongings.

Even if I say belongings, it was just a bit of food. My mother carried me while holding my older brother in a basket on her back. Father held up a basket filled with our belongings and some bags as well.

In the dead of the night we left the village.

Along the way, they walked through the night across the mountain while taking a number of breaks. I slept and woke up.

They somehow found just the right hole in a tree so mother and us children slept there.

Father gathered some dead leaves and laid down beside the tree.

The rash has spread along the face and bodies of my entire family.

It seems there's no doubt it's the disease called Valiola.

There's a fever one more time and if you can make it past that you survive and never catch it again it seems.

Father and mother gathered dead leaves while in a lull state and were enthusiastic about create an environment that was easy to remain in.

The pimple like things on my body started to pop first. I felt the pus and blood stain in and I groaned from the fever.

Next was my older brother, and finally the symptoms developed for my parents.

While suffering from the fever I couldn't tell if it was currently day or night, or whether I was still alive or already dead.

If you were to ask why I guess it's since the pimple things started to pop I haven't been able to see well out of my eyes.

There's pain all through my body and it's difficult to breathe as well.

Since I'm suffering from the fever I don't have a very clear consciousness as well.

Well, even father said it.

There's times with a family of four will all survive it as well.

Even when it comes to those who die it's at most 3/10.

Not to mention it seems that it's easiest for children to survive.

I'm sure I'll be alright.

After all my lucky was high enough that I was able to be reincarnated into a different world.

I'm definitely sure I'll live.

I'll sure live.

I'll live.

For sure.

Ki.....u.....

Side Story 21: In the Case of Nomura Koukichi (Age 90 at time of accident)

As expected when you get to this age you start to feel the weakening in various parts of your body. However, my head is still clear and I don't have any major issues with walking. I volunteered for the army at 17 years old and after spending two years in it soon after that there was another convention, I can still clearly remember the tiger Seninbari my mother stitched for me when I entered the mixed 15th regiment as a first-class soldier.

Unfortunately I ended up being captured as a war prisoner just before I became an adult in the battle of Okinawa, since I was a young soldier and my ranking was low I was released soon after the war ended. Even though I returned with nothing left, I somehow managed to create my own company, and it's already been over 10 years since I left it to my son.

I lost my wife 8 years ago but we had a great-grandchild that year. Time passes by quickly and even more than my cute grandchildren my great-grandchild is already in elementary school. It seems they're going come over and play at the end of this week so I'm greatly looking forward to it. Today I whipped my body into shape since I've been sitting at home lately to go and buy a toy for that great-grandchild at a department store in Shinjuku.

Tokiko-san the maid was worried about me but while my body is reaching old age, I can still move plenty and my head is clear as well. There's no way I wouldn't go and buy a toy for my great-grandchild.

I lowered my hips down on one of the four priority seats in the rear of the front train car.

The ones sitting front of me is a father with a child younger than my great-grandchild and a middle-aged salary-man looking up at one of the hanging advertisements in the train, sitting next to me across an empty seat is a couple that appears to be quite intimate. The boy sitting in front took off his shoes and climbed on to the seat to look at the scenery passing by out the window.

In the past, when my grandchild was still young they did the same thing in the train on our way to an amusement park. Back then my wife and myself were still in our 50s but we were surprised at how exhausting it was bringing along our energetic young boy and girl grandchildren to play. Feeling nostalgic, I can tell my cheeks are loosening watching the back of the boy.

What a cute child. I'm sure just watching his behaviors would be enough to keep me occupied until Shinjuku. While he's ignoring his father who looks to be falling asleep and is focusing out the window, I somehow remember back to the time my son who is already an old man himself was little.

I had a time when I was young like that father as well. There was a time when I was young like the couple next to me as well. I'm sure they'll eventually age, have children, raise them, and become old like me as well. I don't feel unfortunate in my circumstances right now at all but I wonder how they'll feel when they reach the same age as I am now looking back on their lives?

The ones who will make Japan from here on out is youths like them. I at least hope they can live their lives with no regrets. I'm thinking about such endless things like looking at the back of the head of the boy.

The train suddenly used the emergency brakes.

The loud squealing sound continues, all of the passengers lost their balance and were sent flying forward. The middle aged salary-man who was nodding off suddenly came to his senses and grabbed the pole when the young boy and father flew into him. Even then the salary-man tried to hold on to the pole without letting go but soon after in order to grab on to the boy he couldn't help but let go of the hand holding the pole.

The young lady of the couple sitting next to me ran into me. It was a short period that I ended up flying through the air together with her before I hit my chest on a pole somewhere, I've started to lose consciousness.

Once upon a time Tadokoro squad commander who was my superior officer said, "If it ends up situation where young soldiers like you have to come to the front line it's already over." Sergeant Tadokoro charged into the American forces when they were about to use a flamethrower on barricaded shelter where the citizens of Okinawa were holed up and after splendidly shooting them down with his bayonet, took bullets from a different American soldier dying in front of us youth soldiers. His crudely overproduced bayonet was bent.

Yoshino second lieutenant who was promoted to platoon commander when things advanced for the war after being in the Kyushu Mikado University died taking an imposing stance in front of a shelter where the female students of the medical unit were barricaded in. I heard later that he used his own body to seal the entrance sticking the heirloom saber he had into the ground with both of his arms and legs spread out and his eyes wide open, a standing death like Benkei.

The commander often said, “In any case keep living. Protect the women who are going to give birth to the Japanese of the future, endure your shame, tolerate the intolerable, and even if you have to sip mud stay alive. Even if you have to become a prisoner stay alive and become a man who protects the future of Japan.” No one in our platoon predicted that commander would die in action.

The common thing that all of my superiors officers used to say was “The young are the ones who will make Japanese from here on out. That’s why no matter what you should all stay alive.” The reason why we youth soldiers all endured the shame and surrendered to the American forces was to protect those words. I wonder if I lived a life where I can hold my chest high and say, “I gave it my best.”

What in the world happened? Why am I still alive? Was it an accident? I was considerably confused and it took some time but I somehow managed to get a grasp on my situation. It seems I was reborn as a baby. Some of the English I desperately learned when I was young to negotiate with the accountant and commissioned officers has come a bit in handy.

Since I was reborn as a baby my head is considerably soft and I haven’t had much trouble at all learning new things. I’m quite literally learning new knowledge like pouring water in a desert. I guess being young is just that wonderful of a thing. It didn’t even take two years after undergoing the naming ceremony to be able to speak the language of this world.

I finally started to get it around the time I had grown to three years old and was able to leave my parent's sight. It was almost like the West in the distant past but there's various strange parts to it. First, there's a variety of races living in Goban village where I was born. It doesn't seem there's any mistake that humans like those on Earth make up the largest majority but they're still only close to 40% of humanity. Other than that there's Elves, Dwarves, Gnomes, Halflings, Bunny-man, Dog-people, Wolf-people. After that, the Cat-people, and a sub-type of the Cat-people called Laios, even the same race as my own Tiger-man, there's a lot of different types of non-humans.

A lot of the buildings have thatched straw roofing or shingle roofing with dirt walls like the houses in Japan in the past. Though it was unmanned there was something like a small temple with a splendid Torii as well. The clothing is mostly shirts and pants in the Western style but there's something opened in the front like Kinagashi as well.

The food was all Western style with nothing Japanese. It's plainly harsh that there's no rice.

Just, it was a bit of good luck that I noticed I have an important secret early on. When I received the naming ceremony about a year and a half after being born, thanks to understanding the true meaning of {Status Open} there I noticed my own uniqueness. 【Unique Ability: Valiance】. I don't really get how to use it but since it goes to the trouble of having the name 【Unique Ability】 added to it, it should be an ability that only belongs to me and furthermore should have some method of using it. Since it's called {Valiance} it should have to do with guts or fighting spirit I'm sure.

As far as I know Unique Abilities aren't something anyone has unlike 【Special Skill: Night Vision】 and 【Special Skill: Super Strength】 which aren't all that unusual. We Tiger-man are a race with short round fuzzy ears on our heads and our hair is generally the same color of black while we stripe patterns down our tails(in my case, since my hair is black as well my tail is entirely black) and while our physique isn't all that different from a human, generally we have a lot of power and are a quick race.

When I got into a fight with Tommy the Laios two years older who lives next door I yelled "uwa~" and the moment I thought "If I pulled back here I'll be looked down on, put some guts into it” I felt like my body got lighter and just as I had hit a number of punches with all of my power into Tommy, I suddenly felt insanely hungry to the point where I couldn’t concentrate and I got beaten. I ended up running back into my house eating the remaining breakfast and bread and then falling asleep like that.

The reason I didn’t use the skill 【Super Strength】 is because while it does make it easier to put in strength, it requires bracing your legs so it becomes difficult to move quickly. Unlike the Laios 【Instant Speed】 it’s a skill that’s difficult to use in fights or combat. When I woke up past noon, I found it strange why I got so angry over an infant like Tommy and picked a fight but in the end Tommy and I started a relationship of picking fights over all sorts of pointless things.

It was only after things like that happened a number of times that I realized. When I put in some fighting spirit into a yell(or you could call it a battle cry) while thinking “put some guts into it” or “I’ll go with my full strength”, and I can use my 【Unique Ability: Valiance】. However, in a matter of a few seconds my guts end. Nevertheless during that time, my physical abilities increase to a surprising extent. Quite literally to the point where even the special skill of the Laios 【Instant Speed】 is like child’s play my physical abilities improve. It’s not like my sensations or intuition gets sharper but I feel like my strength, speed, and stamina are infinitely flowing through my body.

It might be easier to describe it as the super strength shown during a fire.

I found out that I could use 【Unique Ability: Valiance】 outside of fights as well. If I try to put some fighting spirit into some sort of action, if I just think in my head “Here I go!” or “I’m going to do this!” while preparing myself then it’s fine. However, I don’t know if it uses a tremendous amount of stamina or I’m paying my stamina in advance but if I use it several times then I often start to feel so tired it’s difficult to endure. Otherwise I feel intensely hungry to the point I’d even pick up some grass off the ground and eat it. It’s vital to be careful of when to use it.

Just like that I ended up meeting an existence calling itself God that speaks Japanese. After all, it said I died in that train accident. It seems it was a great disaster with 39 victims including myself. It would be good if the boy who was embraced by the middle-age salary man was safe in the end but...I think it's only correct for people to die starting from the elderly.

In the unnatural dream-like place I met with the God, I found out that I had already died and understood that I couldn't return to Japan anymore. It could be said that my final remaining regret is that I couldn't meet my great-grandchild but it seems that they're now 11 years old and have a large build for their age and are energetically growing up.

It seems that I'm to live my life once again from the start in this different world. Then in that case I want to live a life I can laugh over this time. Not a life like in the past where I always felt like I was being chased, or chasing something that I couldn't reach, a tense life like that, but I want to live a life I can laugh from the bottom of my heart. For that sake the fact that I was able to be reborn with my memories intact is a considerable advantage.

It seems that this world is like those in fairy tales where monsters live and of all things even magic exists.

I started to feel excited beyond my age. If I listen closely to what it's saying the other 38 people were all reborn just like me with their memories. It might be good to take into consideration meeting up with them first.

I tried asking various things I had doubts about for quite a while. The time and seasons, currency and food, social standing and races, I had a lot of things to ask but I was limited to a short time of just over 10 and a few minutes so unfortunately I ran out of time before asking all of that.

When I opened my eyes, I erased the window like that of {Status Open} that appeared in front of me while making a dry smile and finding it difficult to hold back the exhilaration as I went to eat breakfast. Today for sure I'll settle things with Tommy.

Several years passed after that. I, Fiorentso.Hirosukol grew up into a splendid young boy. My Hirosukol family is that of squires who serve Viscount Igarudo the lord of Goban village in the territory of Count Faruergaz. Since I was born as the third son of the Hirosukol family it seems that I have quite a few options I can pick to live a reasonably enjoyable life. I could marry the daughter of a different squire family and inherit that family as the husband, make some sort of achievement and start my own independent squire family, do that in a different village, or put even more effort into things and enter the knight group, if I can get recognized there then I could spend it as a soldier or if I can make an achievement in the knight group I could end up as the squire leader of a regional lord somewhere or make connections. Saving up money and starting a business is fine as well.

I'm free to do what I want at my own wit. I'm not a noble with a variety of obligations and I'm not of the Free People or slave rankings which have all sorts of restrictions either. If you have something you like that you want to do then this commoner ranking is considerably convenient. My father already declared that if my older brother grows into a splendid man to succeed the family then the rest of us can do whatever we please.

No matter what I'm going to do the first thing I need is money, you could also say my body is my capital. I can put quite a bit of enthusiasm in the combat training that's an obligation of squire families. In the first place I couldn't really use the sword or spear but I remembered my days as a soldier in the past and I was able to put quite a bit of zeal into the training. Around this time even without relying on my Unique Ability my skill had become pretty decent. After I turned 10 years old and started doing practice matches I only started using it occasionally while taking on adults as my opponents.

The lord Viscount Igarudo praised me saying that I have talent.

At the young age of 13 years old I was given permission to join the patrols in the territory. I killed my first goblin around this time. On the occasion of patrols which occurred 1–2 a month I made a number of achievements and about the time I turned 14 years old I received a recommendation to enter the Count's knight group. Of course I just received the recommendation and it's not such a sweet item that it guarantees I'll be able to enter but receiving investiture as a knight in this world is a large advantage in life. There's no way I would turn down such an offer.

The reason I was able to push through the best of those older than myself who gathered from various places in the territory to take the entrance exam and clear through was of course in part thanks to my unique ability but you could also say it was the result of the effort I had accumulated in increasing my abilities as well. According to the story I heard the quickest a commoner can receive investiture as a true knight is in three years and on average is about four years. In that case then even if I manage it at the average I should be able to become a full-fledged elite at the young age of 18. After all if you were to compare the knight group to my past life it would be almost the only institution of education that covers everything from middle school to college, a military officer school.

Yeah. If I'm still that young then even after I quit the knight group I can do anything I want. Since your wages suddenly jump up quite a bit after you become a true knight I hear that a lot of people remain even after receiving investiture as a knight. However, I have no intention of wasting my time as a squire, I intend to properly make some savings. Since Count Faruergaz is considerably wealthy his knight group loans out both the sword and the equipment so in the end I'll probably only have to buy my own sword but other than that if I save up all of the money I receive as pay for being squire other than what I use on daily necessities then I should be able to save up a decent amount in four years.

After that I can become one of those wandering adventurers and look around at various places in the world until I find a job that I can accept. I thought like that.

When I entered the knight group, an surprising thing occurred. The fact that I was able to be reborn itself was surprising, unique abilities, non-humans, and magic were surprising as well. However, it was the first time I met a Japanese person other than myself. What else other than a surprise would you call this?

Rodrick.Faruergaz. The eldest son of Count Faruergaz. One of the boys who was to become one of the next high ranking nobles of the era was the same Japanese reborn after that accident as me. The eldest sister Marinen is 16 years older than him and about 10 years prior married the current King Thomas Rombert the Third. At first we both seemed to think that our faces look awfully Japanese-like but when I tried putting some courage into it and speaking Japanese that decided it.

It seems that Rodrick hates this world Orth to the point he can't stand it. He entered the knight group 1 year faster than me at 13 years old through the privilege of the Count family but his grades are some of the lowest competing for the bottom. Rodrick was among the top of his class in regards to the academics though. However, in Faruergaz knight group the academics aren't seen as very important it seems, so most of the opinions of him are that his grades aren't good and his combat abilities are some of the lowest. It seems that his original nature was one that doesn't like conflict. However, before I entered the knight group I had killed a number of goblins and when I told him that if it was just the level of goblins or gnolls then I could easily train him enough defeat quite a few it seems he was interested.

Since we were both Japanese, we quickly got along well and went everywhere together. It seems he decided to put enthusiasm into his training the same as me and enjoy his life the best he can the same as me. We talked about our lives in Japan and origins as well. I was able to confirm that he was sitting across from me on the train. Although, this is nothing more than guess because it seems the boy I was worried about was his son.

Different from an old man like me, he was still at the young age of 30. Since we were both Japanese talked politely to each other but after he heard my age he was surprised and started to use honorifics towards me. Since I told him it was unnatural with how different our social standings are and he finally fixed it. However, whenever we talk in Japanese he still continues to use them. When using Japanese it's because we were Japanese people so he wouldn't give that up. Since I didn't feel bad about it either I decided to just leave it alone.

Just like this when we found out that we could meet other Japanese people, from some point it didn't take much time to start thinking "I want to search for more Japanese people". However, he has his social standing and position. He has the role of taking over the Count's family and watching over the next era. I guess a short while after he receives investiture as a true knight he'll have to retire, and then learn territory management which is on an level incomparably high to that of the knight group.

Around the spring that we both turned 15 his grades started to suddenly rise. Though I say that, those which were at the bottom finally managed to get a passing grade. And then, his little brother who was two years younger than him entered the knight group. His younger brother Belsaias was a superior child. Without doing anything like looking down on his incompetent older brother (of course, I don't think Rodrick is incompetent at all) he always took one step backwards and made statements to help his older brother stand above, while maintaining good grades in not only academics, but sword, spear, horsemanship as well during his first year.

Me? Thanks to my Unique Ability, let alone people in the first year I've above even the second and third years. In regards to the academics, honestly speaking if you have the foundations learned in Japan they can be done in spare time. It was content that was basically one step above memorization. The math was at the level of the early years in elementary school stopping at the four basic mathematical operations and it's the same for physics and biology. The social studies (completely history) and agriculture science (there's almost no science and it's fundamentally enough agriculture knowledge to manage a territory) was about the only things we struggled a bit on because it was so unfamiliar.

However, only when it came to learning magic did Rodrick and I enthusiastically learn and attack the sorcerer who was our instructor with questions. Starting from small magic and only after becoming adults were we able to seriously start the curriculum of magic training, everyday we had to spend time glaring at a lighting magic tool. Though even if I say glaring, you close your eyes. You get into pairs of two and after getting naked on the upper body you try to hit each others bodies with a lightning magic tool that's like a search light. With a feeling of not letting the light hit the face but only shine on the body. Eventually you'll be able to feel the magic of the light on your skin.

Somehow the part where the light is feeling causes a sensation like getting goose bumps, I guess would be the best way to put it, in any case it seems that the method to acquire the magic special skill is to keep your eyes closed and feel where the magical light is hitting you. It's recommended to do in pairs because it requires a special magic tool that shines through a long pipe so the light doesn't spread and it's necessary to aim that at the partners body.

If you do this then it seems you can learn to use the small magic {Cantrip} of mana detection. Next you make use of this {Cantrip} mana detection to feel out the light once again and repeat that. Once you get this far then it doesn't matter even if it's the small flame of a lighter magic tool but if you take into consideration the consumption rate of magic stones it seems the lighting magic tool has better cost performance so while it's a bit inconvenient it's still recommended for training in pairs.

We enthusiastically trained our magic and at a frightening speed of five months we were both able to awaken to the void magic special skill. Since small magic {Cantrips} aren't something that can be used a number of times in a single day, you can do it between other things like training and jobs for the knight group or while studying academics, so while the two of us had prepared for it take a year we found it a bit anticlimactic but there's no mistake it was still a good surprise.

And my second year of life in the knight group passed by. I entered the third year and one day when both of us turned 16 years old, the order for us to depart to the battle field was given. It's one of the skirmishes that often happens far in the south on the Dirt Plains against Devas Kingdom. It seems that the Faruergaz knight group is the core of the forces this time. I thought that the commander would be the knight commander of the Faruergaz knight group and Rodrick's uncle Lord Konrel but it seems that it's Lord Balkisas and a few of his subordinates who were dispatched from the center of the Kingdom, and Lord Konrel including the Faruergaz knight group he leads are entering under the command of that Lord Balkisas.

It was far more of a leisurely war than the two of us had imagined. It's true that the engagements that happened a couple of times were just as intense as we imagined but you can't really say that the morale of the low class soldiers and squires either army was very high and there was almost no casualties as well. It had a mood like somehow or other the battle starts and then before you realize it the front of either side ends up withdrawing as the battle ends. Of course there's several scout units sent in small numbers to try and outsmart the opponent, searching out the appearance of the enemies as well but without making any sort of valuable results, the low morale during times other than combat was pretty clear. Particularly since the conflict this time was the defense of a pioneering village they didn't progressively try to attack so that might be one of the reasons.

In some of the few engagements like that we slowly raise our achievements, I managed to cut down a total of three enemies. Rodrick only managed to do one but it was an enemy soldier. I felt quite moved over the fact that Rodrick who hated combat that much when I first met him had grown so much. Once about two months after we setup a defense line surrounding the village, we were able to confirm the retreat of the enemy forces. After this for about a month, we'll remain stationed just in case and if there's no particular problem then we'll fall back as well.

Among the very few military gains I only cut down three enemy soldiers but the only guaranteed kills confirmed of enemy soldiers was around 70 people, so my individual gains was around 5% of that. It seems it was one of the top gains out of any individual unit. Thanks to that it seems that I'll be able to speed up my investiture so I'm considerably happy over that. Since Rodrick managed to make some gains as well it seems he'll finally be able to see investiture as a knight as well.

"With this Belus can look a bit better as well."

and Rodrick said that. I guess he's relieved he was able to show some face as an older brother. Following that he said to me,

"Nomu-san, once you receive investiture what do you plan to do? Will you remain in the knight group? Or just like you've said before will you become an adventurer?"

and asked me that. Incidentally, Nomu-san is an abbreviated form of my real name Nomura.

"Yeah, Etou-kun. I'm thinking of doing that. Since it's a good chance. I want to look around various places on Orth. I want to enjoy this life."

"I see...I'm envious. If I were to speak my true feelings then I'd like to go together with you. But, my investiture seems like it will take a bit longer...Don't you think I've changed quite a bit since I met you Nomu-san? I guess I was influenced. In the past I really hated even the idea of fighting myself..though during the war this time I was able to calm down considerably and fight. Thanks to that I was able to look around and I understood. I'm not suited to being a noble."

"It doesn't seem like I'd be able to take command in a battle either. It was painful to kill monsters and cut people. And I already wonder about the lifestyle of just hiding in a mansion in my territory and never going outside. It's true, I died at that time. Since it seems that Yuta is properly growing up..Honestly speaking, I still have regrets about it."

"I see."

"I want to meet my son. I want to embrace him. I want to see my daughter who was just born and I still hadn't even held twice. I'm already..16 huh..Since she's the same age as me now, I guess a high schooler? It would be good if she resembles my wife...In comparison to them something like inheriting the territory of Faruergaz has no value to me at all."

Rodrick said lonesomely and regrettably.

"..However, that can't be helped right? It doesn't seem like you can go and meet them at this point after all."

"That's right. It's already impossible. I, was always watching a dream. A dream of my son and daughter who had grown up. A dream of my children who thought I was pitiful for holing up in the mansion in my territory afraid. But, since I came to this war it's completely stopped. As a matter of fact I thought I would see dreams of the person I killed but..Though I do see them. But, along with the dreams about the person I killed, I see dreams overlapping that of my children proud of the fact that I fought and protected my country. I can see them but.."

Hn?

"Yuta, says to me. Even though his face and body have completely become an adult, with the same voice at that time, "Live your life so you have no regrets". Hinata does as well, ah we used the kanji for sun in Hi and the character for facing in nata to write Hinata, but it wasn't a name we had formally decided on yet. My daughter. With the appearance of my wife when she was still young and her voice, but I can tell it's Hinata and..she says things like the window of words from the day I met God."

That is..thinking about it too much I think? Were the words from that window that memorable? I guess that's why his kids in dreams are speaking them. While I'm remaining quiet and,

"That's why you know, I think I'm going to live my life without regrets as well. I think it's also a decent option to try and enjoy living my life like Nomu-san as well. That's why I have a request. Would please wait until I receive investiture to leave the knight group?"

"Hey now, Etou-kun. I really have to wonder about that. You're the eldest son and next Count right?"

"It's not particularly like there's a law that the eldest son has to succeed the family. It's not even necessary for it be a male. I'm sure that Berus will splendidly be able to succeed that peerage of Count. Unlike me he's considerably talented after all and he has a good attitude as well so people would be pleased. Fortunately it seems that everyone has always thought that I'm incompetent. There's even people thinking that I was able to make some gains this time as being nothing more than a coincidence."

"But you know.."

"No, it's fine. I'm not depreciating myself. Certainly it can't be said that I'm a very good choice as the heir to a Count. It's hard to tell if a Unique Ability like 【Resistance (Virus Infection)】 would even come in handy after all. Ah, close to 10 years ago, I had a fever once and when I tried focusing on it, it disappeared as if it was a lie so I guess you could say it's come in handy though. In any case, when we return I'll try discussing it with the current lord, my father. Please wait until then."

"Of course, I don't mind..I'm welcome to an increase in fellow travelers..But.."

"It's fine. Please let me enjoy my life on Orth together with Nomu-san as well. If it's just like this then I feel like I'll die in my territory without knowing barely anything about Orth."

I'm sure I'm blessed. There's a young man who looks up to me and wants to glorify his life together with me. Well, right now I'm also a young man though.

Rodrick received investiture as a true knight near the end of the year close to six months after that.

Rodrick was permitted to leave his house. It seems that there was no large opposition that I was worrying about and he even received a high-quality sword, spear, a war horse, and considerable amount as farewell gifts.

The two of us alternate turns riding and for starters we're heading towards the capital of the kingdom, Rombertia. Since for once, we wanted to take a look at a major city and we thought it wouldn't be strange for there to be Japanese people in a place where people are gathered. Since the two of us are from the countryside and never left the Count's territory other than for the war, we felt like more than half of the time we spent in the capital of the Count's territory of Robamorus during our investiture as knights, was spent sightseeing.

A cold wind blows over along the road as the two young men travel forward with expectations growing.

Chapter 105: Effective Use of Healing Magic

Year 7443, Month 3, Day 10

“Then, make sure not to lose your contract. If possible it’s best to leave it in a place you can trust. I’m holding on to one myself and the last one I’m leaving with the government office. That’s why if I weren’t to pay your wages then you could claim to the government office that I’m defaulting on the contract and force me to pay it. Though during those times you need to either prove you’re a noble with status open or or proof of paying taxes.”

I looked at their faces while saying that and smiled.

“Well, you don’t need to worry about it. Al properly takes care of things like that.”

“He doesn’t say anything unreasonable as well, and he properly thinks about our combat capability..Al-san will you not talk to them about that stuff?”

I wonder what those sorts of things are? I can roughly imagine though.

“Yeah, I intended to tell them about it after this. Since you two have already met God, I think you should already know about leveling up right...Yeah, just I expected. However, if it’s just that then I can’t give you any more than 30 points.”

Toris and Gwine are looking at me strangely.

“This is something I’ve talked about with a reincarnated person I talked to previously, I’ve actually tried verifying myself, and imagined from various settings, so I can’t say it’s completely accurate but I think it’s an answer that’s as close to 100 points as possible.”

I said that as a preface and took a sip of my tea. It’s not my favorite bean tea but just as one would expect from a high class restaurant, it has a satisfying fragrant smell and taste.

“There’s one more form of level other than the level of abilities. For convenience purposes, I call it the body level. Since you can't see it like the levels of abilities with status open, there's no way of proving it but I'm sure without a doubt that body level "exists". Have you two tried playing a game in your past life? Yeah, since you two were young I thought that was the case. Then things should be fast."

I gave the simple explanation of likening it to RPGs on a computer. Obviously they weren't able to suddenly accept it but what's important right now is to put this sort of knowledge into their heads as "this information exists". Honestly speaking, since the level of both of them isn't anything special it'll increase right away I'm sure. Particularly Gwine since her level is low she should increase a number of levels all at once. In that case I'm sure they would be able to actually feel the benefits of increases in their status. Even in the case of Zulu and Angela, non-humans who's status is originally pretty high seem to feel the effects of leveling up consecutively.

If Gwine who's originally ability values are low we're to level up in the same way then I'm sure she'll definitely notice it. This should be the same for Toris. That's why for now this is fine.

"Things like that I'm sure that you two will become conscious of yourselves after actually hunting monsters in the dungeon."

I said that and looked at their faces again. They're looking at me with suspicious expressions.

"Yeah, it's not unreasonable to believe it so suddenly. That's right, how about we do a simple experiment? Toris, you said you've been an adventurer for about two years right? Bel has been for about one year and furthermore she's a woman. If the two of you arm-wrestle I think you'll understand well."

"Eh? That sounds interesting. I want to do it as well! I think I've built up quite a bit of power recently!"

Ralpha, I didn't say it to you. Well, it's fine though.

"Well, it's weird to do it here, so, look, what was it. Toris, try doing it with Bel later. I think you probably won't be able to win. If you're always training in a way that we can't even imagine it would be different but even then you should be surprised by how much power Bel has. If you do that then you should be able to accept the conversation from just now a bit more. For Gwine..that's right, how about this?"

I went to the entrance of the room where there's nothing around and suddenly did a handstand. Just like that I bent my elbow and lowered my body down until it was level with the ground and switched to a horizontal handstand. And then I went back to a normal handstand. Of course I don't have anything other than the palms of my hands on the ground. After repeating it several times and I started doing pushups while doing a horizontal handstand. My breath gets a bit disordered but nothing special.

Yeah. It's my first time trying it but I'm sure it's something I can do supported by high ability values. Toris and Gwine were dumbfounded. It seems Bel and Ralpa were surprised as well but these two made expressions like it somehow made sense.

"I think you already know that something like just now could only be done by a gymnastics athlete who has gone through quite a bit of training in our previous life right? Well gymnastics athlete might be saying a bit too far but it's impossible with just physical strength. You understand that it also requires a sense of balance right? It also needs the stamina to repeat high-burden movement as well. I don't know if Bel and Ralpa can do as far this but it's true the two of them should have an unnatural level of stamina and strength for 15 year old girls. You should really try arm-wrestling them later and confirming it."

I said it Toris and Gwine who still had their mouths opened shocked. Continuing on,

"Also, you two, if you were born in Rombert Kingdom then I think you know of it but..particularly Gwine since she was born in Rombertia she should obviously know it..though this is just bragging, just as Ralpa said, at the next of last year through some connections I ended up having practice matches with the commander, sub-commander, and third company commanders of the first knight group. Unfortunately I lost to the commander but I won against the other two. And this is being a poor loser, since it was a practice match before the Queens I wasn't allowed to use the weapon I'm the best at using. Since it's related to my Unique Ability I wasn't even able to use magic which is even more a specialty of mine. Even then I was able to put up a decent fight with the commander. Since it's the story of a person involved and you haven't seen it yourselves I'm sure it's hard to believe, but it's true. I think that a big portion of it is thanks to increases in my body level."

As expected I doubt it's just a matter of an increase in my abilities thanks to level ups but even then it's necessary to steadily (in my case I have Gift of Natural Talent so it's not as much of something to brag about though) accumulate hardships by experiencing danger and killing monsters. The sword techniques I've had beaten into me since I was an infant are the same, and if I didn't have the knowledge and fighting techniques I had trained with from my past life I doubt I would have been able to fight that well.

"I can declare it but Toris and Gwin if you dedicate time to training and..I don't know if this is the appropriate way of expressing it, but killing monsters in order to gain experience then one day I think you'll be able to do something like this as well."

That night we all went to the inn together once and after getting our wallets and such, we once again grouped up into the three groups, Toris and Bel, Ralpa and Gwine(it seems the two of them will stay at Gwine's house tonight), and I(I'm technically not a group though) before separating ways. Tomorrow after we each take breakfast we planned to meet up at this inn(the place where Ralpa, Bel, and I, the three of us had been lodging until now). The time is already past 9 pm.

I didn't forget to secretly hand Toris a rubber bag. Even though the possibility is minuscule, in the worst case if Bel manages to land a hit it would be bad after all. In the end in the toilet of the inn when I handed Toris the rubber bag and said, "Since it's the first time. It's my treat." it seems he couldn't immediately understand it but as expected of a Japanese he got it pretty soon. And said "Th..Thank you very much" with his face red. It's good that he's honest. It would be good if the M size fits though. Well, I'm sure it'll be fine.

After the three of us grinned while watching Toris put his arm around Bel's shoulder and disappear into the inn, when I was about to walk off alone Gwine called out to me.

“Al-san..that is..if it’s fine with you, there’s some rooms so tonight would you stay at my house?”

“That’s right, Al you should come along too. I’m sure you’re lonely by yourself right?”

If you were to ask if I would be happy that I wouldn’t have to pointlessly pay for the inn then that’s true but in the end it’s just small change.

“Thanks. But you two have met for the first time in a while, don’t you have some things you want to talk about with just the two of you? Even though you went out of your way to invite me I’ll restrain myself for today. Then, I’ll see you guys here tomorrow. Also, I’ll kill you later.”

I said that and laughed while walking off. Hold your chest high, you’re not something like lonely.

The destination I’m head has already been decided. Right, the highest class of brothel in the capital that I couldn’t go to on New Year’s day because of all of the intrusions, that name is “Emerald Duke Crab Reception Hall”. What a tasteless name but for some reason the name touched my heartstrings. I walk down the road without hesitation.

The level of women in Keel’s “Ritton” was high is what I personally think but the layout of the store itself was it’s exterior and a waiting room so it wasn’t much at all but the level of this place is different. On both sides of the left open entrance-way there’s lighting and heating magic tools, at the counter in the immediate front of the entrance-way there’s a gentleman standing upright and with a more refined smile than that of “Ritton”’s Sebastian.

I immediately enter the brothel, and just as I was amending my dignity to call out to the gentleman my shoulder was hit.

What is it really, I’m about to..Eh?

“Al? You, what are you doing?”

Sister Mill was there looking at me with a suspicious face. Sister is in her armor and even armed in her fully equipped appearance. Behind her is those wearing the same type of rubber protector’s from Bakuddo..that’s right, the squire Amzel and some other people who appear to be squires. It seems like they're somehow pulling a two-wheeled wagon with a lot of wood sticks or something loaded on it. Of course there seems to be people pushing it as well.

"O? N, A..Ah, that is..That's right, Sale..sale's promotion, just a bit of that."

I was so surprised by sister who appeared all of a sudden that while incoherent I tried to cover it up.

"Sales promotion..Of what?"

Sister is staring at me with a glare.

"N..No, that is..salespromotion~ or rather, handing out samples.."

"Even though you're still a child in a place like this, at this time..to father and brother I"Wai...This, it's this!"

In a panic I took out my wallet from my thigh pocket, took the "Saya" out from inside of it, and showed it to her.

"I..I just turned 15 last month. I'm already an adult. That's why, it's difficult to enlarge my business all on my own. I said it to sister last year as well right? I had just made a company. Not just armor I need to sell various things.."

".."

"Rather than that why is sister in that appearance at this time, and doing what?"

"It's training for marching at night and constructing an encampment, since we're not allowed to use horse we're walking! We're going right now!"

Since I've suddenly started dialogue with some knights in front of the brothel the gentleman came out.

"Are you a customer?"

"Ah..No."

Sister got red and was trying to hide behind me.

"Ah, that is..this new type of rubber product..U~mm, I'm the president of Greed Company, Alan Greed. And, I would definitely like if you would try this out..it's something that is a substitute for the bowels of a pig and today while greeting I've also brought along this sample so..It's this. The name of the product is "Saya".

"Ha~"

The gentleman is looking at the "Saya" on my hand with a suspicious expression.

"Th..This product is a rare beauty that is even being supplies to the royal family. If you were to try it once then I'm sure you would be able to understand it's greatness. Please take it."

"Ha~"

I took the gentleman's hand and forcibly put the entire bag of "Saya" into it before closing it.

"Greed Company is directly stocking up from Bakuddo on the Jindal peninsula the producing area of rubber, I believe you will be satisfied by both the quality and price. If you would like to make any orders please ask for Greed at the Boil Manor of Baldukk!"

"Ha~"

"Now then, I'll take my leave here for today. Please excuse me!!..I've finished my business, so come on let's go!!"

.....

Year 7443, Month 3, Day 11

I leave the cheap inn I rolled into last night. On this day in March, even though it's slightly cloudy I somehow feel like everything is gloomier than usual. Since we've had the network setup recently and every night I've been talking to Bel and Ralpha at the inn I might be tired.

While thinking that I started towards the inn with my head slightly lacking in sleep.

When I arrived at the inn at almost the same time Ralpha and Gwine got there as well. Bel and Toris aren't coming out.

"Hey Ralpha, you, go and call them."

Somehow I don't want to go and call them so I told Ralph to do it.

"Eh~ That is a bit.."

Right.

We left the inn in order to be careful for Bel.

Even though I tried to make it so there was no need to feel constrained by acquaintances.

Though Bel seems like she would realize something like that, after all she must have been happy.

Since it's good timing I start talking to Gwine.

"Gwine, I have a bit of something to consult with you but is it fine?"

"Yes, what is it?"

She looks up at me with her small body.

"It's something I mentioned a bit of yesterday but I'm thinking of making a headquarters for my company in Rombertia. If you have any acquaintances who are in real estate I'd like you to introduce me to them but how about it?"

When I said that and she replied with a slightly troubled face.

"I'm sorry, I don't know. Things like that were all done by father so.."

"Ah, I see, don't worry about it, it was just a matter of if you knew one. I'll see if I can get the first knight group to introduce me to one."

Since she seemed apologetic I told her not worry about it but even I think it's not a good idea to depend on the first knight group too much. But, it can't be helped. Sister...doesn't seem like she would know anyone after all..Ah, there's also the possibility of having them introduce me to one at the government office.

"Putting that aside, Gwine, I'm glad you're willing to come along together with us, thanks."

Gwine's 【Unique Ability: {Mapping}】 will probably be of the greatest help when advancing through the dungeon. If you combine it with determining the direction through Ralph's Spatial Understand and probably with just us we could produce the most accurate dungeon map possible.

“No, honestly speaking, I was worried about what I was going to do from here on out so...Even when it comes to getting another license for the company I think it will take time... And in reality I thought it would be fine to become adventurer’s with Toris for a short while helping out searching for Bel-san..”

She caresses the small bag hanging from her neck while saying that. Going off the conversation from last night and the magic stones from Gwine’s parents should be inside of that bag. Since they passed away at their destination she brought along just the magic stones with her to the capital.

“I see, there’s mountains and valleys in life. I’m sure there’s various things. However, if you give it your best in order to not have any regrets then I’m sure eventually there will be good things as well. Relax easy. I don’t intend to let you regret entering my party.”

“That’s right, Al is super strong, and he knows various things as well. No matter what you do you need some power for it right? If you die that’s the end but if you’re together with Al you won’t die that easily.”

Ralpa was listening to us and stuck her head into the conversation. Unusually she’s flattering me.

“Ah, in that regard it’s fine for you to relax. I have no intention of forcing you to do anything unreasonable as well.”

While we were talking about things like that Bel and Toris came out. The way Bel is walking is slightly strange.

Ah, I'm the worst. However, a laceration huh? Her HP has decreased by 2 as well. I wonder what would happen if I used healing magic on her right now? Even though it doesn't have much effect I've already taught Bel healing magic as well. I wonder why she didn't use it? I'm sure it's because if she were to use it the portion which is injured will be fixed.

"Bel, what's with that way of walking, it's weird~"

I knew it but Ralpa is really an idiot. Look, hanve't Toris and Bel's faces turned bright red. Gwine is hitting Ralpa's ass with a complicated expression as well. I'm sure it's probably because her hand doesn't reach Ralpa's head.

"Shut up, idiot. We've already eaten breakfast but what about you Bel and Toris? If you still haven't then I don't mind if you slowly eat before coming. During that time I'll prepare some horses."

When I said that and Gwine came to her senses and said.

"Ah..I have two horses and a carriage but what should we do?"

Ah, come to think of it that was the case. And she said she still had some inventory remaining as well. Toris and Bel nodded to us and walked off. After all they still hadn't eaten. It seems they enjoyed themselves quite a bit last night...

"I guess that's true. Since we're normally entering the dungeon in Baldukk, if you don't need it right away it would probably be best to dispose of it but..No, if it's alright with you would mind if I buy them from you? It's fine if I add a bit to the market price."

"Hmn..But..No, I guess that would be better. Al-san, please do."

"Got it. I'll investigate the market price later so is it fine after that?"

"Also, in addition I wonder what I should do about my house.."

As expected I don't want to buy her house. No, it's not a problem of money. If it's something on that level then you can buy one for 10 gold coins. It's worn-down, and the location isn't good as well so it'll completely become a dying asset. Even if you put it up for sale I'm sure you wouldn't be able to find a buyer so easily.

"If you're thinking about selling it then I'm about to head to the government after this and see if they have any ideas on a real estate agent, so how about trying to ask about it there?"

When I say that and,

"Ah, I guess that's true."

and Gwine said that in agreement.

"Eh? That house, you're going to sell it? You've always lived in it right?"

Ralpa was a bit worried while she said that.

"Yeah, but, I thought about it yesterday. It would be fine to lend it to someone as well though. Searching for someone to rent it is..Ah, I guess it would be fine to ask at the real estate place huh?"

Gwine said that and came to terms with it on her own.

"Hm, it seems it would be best to stay in the capital for today as well. Ralpa, let's leave this inn."

"I guess so. Let's do that. Wakana, let me stay over tonight as well."

Ralpa said that while begging Gwine.

"That's fine but rather than Wakana call me Gwine. How many times have I said it? Since Wakana died, I have a name that father and mother gave me."

That's true.

"Eee~ Sorry sorry, I couldn't help it."

"Al-san how about you? Thanks to you yesterday I was able to talk to Ral about a lot of things, so you don't need to hold back."

While ignoring Ralpa as she apologized with her tongue stuck out, Gwine faced and said to me.

“That helps. Thanks. But, is it fine?”

“Eh? It’s fine..Well if it’s Al then you won’t do anything strange right. But you’re in a different room.”

Gwine and I know it’s a joke but Ralph is thoroughly an idiot who can’t read the mood, or at least that’s the face I think I was making.

After that, I received an introduction from the government office and tried going to the real estate agency. A person called Baron Robun is managing the real estate agency himself. It seems to be a real estate agency that deals mostly with nobles. In regards to finding a buyer for Gwine’s house it seems they’ll be able to find one in a month or so. This is because there’s a lot of nobles in the capital who don’t have a territory and just make their living working for the government, obviously there’s people who aren’t very wealthy as well. It seems that there’s a demand for renting for nobles like that. Obviously it needs some maintenance though.

However, it seems that there was nothing for sale that met the conditions I was looking for in a headquarters for my company.

It can’t be helped, there’s no other choice than to try searching through a real estate agency aimed towards business. Otherwise, using the maintenance of the armor as an excuse in the worst case you could say it’s possibility to cry to the first knight group.

I spent a full day trying everything that was possible.

Tomorrow we’re all heading towards Baldukk. Since it’s conveniently a Saturday and a day off from exploring the dungeon, we’ll start again with challenging the dungeon starting from the day after tomorrow on Monday. This time, we are in possession of a secret weapon, so I’m sure we’ll quickly be able to advance through.

Just wait, I’ll show you we can quickly get a magic item that will earn us a ton of money!!

Chapter 106: Order

Year 7443, Month 3, Day 12

Today, once again I tried going to the real estate agency aimed towards businesses. If possible a building which has a storefront attached on the main street close to the castle would (Obviously enough space for one family to live is also necessary) be good. Since it will also act a work place it needs good water circulation, in other worlds a location where it's easy to use the drainage is desirable. I conveyed these conditions and said to contact me at the Boil Manor of Baldukk where I'm staying if something is found. I told them that if it was a purchase then 30,000,000 Z (30 gold coins), or lease then I'll pay up to 2,000,000 Z. This amount is slightly higher than the market price.

Since I said everything I wanted I quickly left the real estate agency but since I did a preliminary inspection of places that seemed to be good prospects it ended up eating quite a bit of time. During that time Gwine and the others went to Gwine's house and loaded all of her belongings for the time being into her carriage. I'm sure it's not a lot of stuff but it seems she's also going to discuss with an acquaintances company about taking over the grains and vegetable seeds remaining in inventory as well.

I was sure they would take a reasonable amount of time so I thought my business would finish sooner but they had already arrived at the meeting place. Since we didn't know at all how much time we would take we just vaguely set the meeting time to afternoon so it can't be helped but I felt a bit sorry I made the four of them wait. However, it seems they only arrived about 10 minutes before I did so it was perfect timing.

Looking at the carriage and their belongings are one backpack that seems to belong to Toris and this should be Gwine's stuff, there's two large baskets that seem to be came from rattan, three or four small baskets that I can see. They all seem to be made of knitted rattan and have a lid on them. As expected she has more belongings than Bel and Ralpa.

Furthermore, in regards to Gwine's horse and carriage, we ended up setting negotiations with me buying the two horses for 5,000,000 Z and 6,000,000 Z each, and the carriage for 2,000,000 Z for total of 13,000,000 Z. The reason the prices of the horses is different is because it varies based on their age. The average lifespan of a horse is around 30 years. It seems rarely there's individuals that live over 40 though.

One of the horses was 12 years old, the ideal age for working and breeding so it cost the highest level of money and the other horse is 20 years old so that reduced the price a bit but honestly it's still around 1,000,000 Z more expensive than the market price. The carriage was right on the market price. Gwine was grateful for it, but it's fine. If it's gratitude that can be bought with money then it's a good idea to buy it when the timing is right. Seeing that the three others each made different expressions. Obviously, it's an amount where I asked the market price at a horse merchant and added a bit of a bonus to that so I didn't seem like an idiot who doesn't know the market price, or at least I'll just say that.

After we finished up all of our business in the afternoon, it's finally time to depart to Baldukk.

Since the luggage has been reduced by quite a bit there's no problem with two on the coachman's seat and two in the back of the carriage. Yeah, well if I think about travel from here on out and while the price of the horses was a bit high it wasn't a bad purchase. Once I've made a headquarters for the company the convenience of having a carriage is completely different after all. Until then it'll be fine if I use it like this as a small bus.

We met up with Zenom and the others as they were pulling out of the dungeon before dinner and once again started doing introductions while we all had dinner. It's deviating from our usual plans but tomorrow morning we're to do cooperation training. It's because it's necessary to properly confirm Toris and Gwine's movements before we enter the dungeon.

It's probably dangerous to include Gwine in the combat potential for the time being but it's still necessary to see how she carries her body, her stamina, and speed. We're adventurers who have finally just peeked into the 4th floor but since I'm here we rarely ever run into situations where we're troubled with combat or need to retreat. However, you never know what will happen in the dungeon.

It's not like every place has been explored after all, like that strange trap we've only run into once on the 2d floor, there's a countless number of unknown points in the dungeon. There's not even a perfect map of every corner of the 1st floor. I'm sure this would be different to produce even with Gwine's Unique Ability. Since she can only store information she's seen with her eyes in memory, it's the same that there's no information on traps after all.

.....

Year 7443, Month 3, Day 13

One day has passed and it's Monday, after breakfast we're all doing cooperation training. Toris was born in a Viscount family and it seems that sword techniques were pounded into him, but that night, it seems he lost to Bel in arm-wrestling so I remember him talking about it with a complicated face.

"Toris, Gwine, listen well to what I'm going to say. The sword and spear have several roughly decided forms. As a matter of fact there's only a handful number of forms you absolutely have to remember. Putting it simply just remember boxing. Jab and straight. The basic punches are these two. If you go into application then there's the hook, uppercut, but ultimately it's fine with just the jab and straight. It's crucial to first be able to use the jab accurately and look for the best timing to use a straight. If you can do this properly while you might not make it to champion you should be able to do decently. Is up to here fine?"

I show the way to punch with a shadow while saying that. While looking at the two of them nod I,

"In terms of the attacks of a punch those two are fine at the start. But, what you must never forget is the method of defense. Step, guarding with your arms, swaying, ducking, weaving, there's far more methods of defense than there are attack. Of course, there's also countless methods to move from defense to counterattack as well. That's why if you can just properly practice one or two fundamental attack methods, after that I think it's just a matter of polishing your technique to protect yourselves."

The two of them are making slightly discontent expressions.

“Hn, it seems that you don’t agree. Either one of you is fine, tell me the reason.”

I said that and shrugged my shoulders.

“If you were to attack the opponent and defeat them first can’t that be considered a valid method of defense?”

Toris said unsure.

“I’ve seen Toris-san fight against and defeat orks. Putting aside myself, is the style that Toris-san has used until now no good? I feel sorry that he’s practicing together with someone like me..”

Gwine said that right after Toris. In her case, she wants to say the reason why I’m putting emphasis on defense is because of her I’m sure.

“Hn, I see. First Toris, what you’re saying isn’t mistaken. They do say that offense is the greatest defense after all. However, if it’s an opponent strong enough to continue enduring your attacks, or rather, if an opponent good at defending comes out, what do you do? Leave your allies and run away? That’s not a mistake either. Since it’s all over if you die there. However, people who abandon their allies and run away lose their reliability with just that.”

I said that and Toris said in a panic.

“No way, there’s no way I would run away. I’ll give it my best.”

“Eh? Give it your best and do what? If you can’t land any attacks here and you haven’t properly trained in defense then you’ll quickly take an attack and get hurt. If it comes to that then running away immediately would be better. It’s much better than the body of someone who’s been injured being in the way or causing a burden for someone else trying to cover for them. What I’m trying to say isn’t not to give it your best. Use all of your power to give it your best and stretch out the time before you receive any injuries. Start off by putting in the effort for that sake.”

Toris was unable to think of what to say for a moment. During that time I face Gwine and said to her.

“Gwine, that’s not something for you to worry about. Listen well, I will definitely not make fun of the two of you. It’s just as you said Gwine, I’m sure you’re bad with fighting. But, I wouldn’t use that as a reason to make fun of you or look down on you. However, don’t overestimate things too much either. There’s often only one direction you can run in the dungeon. Depending on the case it’s even possible that you’ll have nowhere to run. Protect the direction of retreat and when there’s nowhere to run you endure until you can find a chance for counterattack. This is important. In the first place I don’t know Toris and Gwine’s ability yet either..”

Even then I’m sure Gwine respects Toris combat potential since he saved her right in front of her eyes, and I’m sure Toris has some confidence in the swordsmanship he learned at his house as well. It’s true that swordsmanship has protected him for these two years after all.

Though you know..this is just my prediction but if they were to fight one on one, I don’t think Toris would be an opponent for Zenom and Ralpa, but he would probably win against Bel, Zulu, and Angela. Honestly speaking, I’m doubtful even about that. Well, putting aside winning, I honestly don’t feel there’s much point in that.

There’s almost no cases where you would be fighting one on one in the dungeon and it’s the same for war.

At the very least from the stories I’ve heard from my parents, brother, and sister-in-law there’s almost no situations where it turns into one on one combat. Hmn, it might be difficult to put it into words. But I feel it’s a bit childish if I take him on as the opponent.

“Well, it’s fine. It’s true if you’re abilities, particularly Toris’s true skill is excellent then it’s all the better for us. Do you want to try a practice match?”

I cross my arms while saying. Honestly I can’t help but think of it as playing around but as long as he can understand it’s fine so it doesn’t matter what the chance is. Since we’ve only just started training everyone is still swinging their swords towards their opponent warming up their bodies.

Toris says confident and Gwine says nervously as the two of them nod and I called out to everyone to gather.

“Sorry about this, there was a bit of request from Toris and Gwine. They want to have a practice match. Is there anyone who wants to volunteer?”

Everyone is confused.

“Yeah, I thought to first confirm their abilities and then we can start training and confirm the details of our formations. Toris, is your weapon fine as the sword? Yeah. That’s right, then, Zulu, I’ll leave you to be Toris’s opponent. Angela you be Gwine’s opponent. Gwine it’s fine for you to use the spear...Toris, Zulu is around the middle in terms of ability among us five. Gwine, among us five Angela is the one with the lowest ability. Let’s try doing a one on one with each of us then...Are you ready? Start!”

It seems that Toris is a bit more skilled than Zulu but because of the difference in reach on their swords he’s unable to go on the attack. I’m sure Gwine isn’t used to fighting itself, Angela easily was able to close the distance and she lost. Zulu is still holding on. Avoiding a direct hit, occasionally using his two-handed sword as a shield, and focusing on defense. The only time he took an action like an attack was the first few hits and now he’s only using a couple feints here and there.

Zenom crosses his arms expressionless and after a short while Ralpa lost interest and is yawning, Bel is watching Toris and Zulu’s practice match with a stern expression. Since Gwine and Angela’s match ended right away because of our positions I can’t see what kind of faces they’re making.

Yeah, Toris will probably lose soon. It’s true he’s using a variety of attacks. And from a glance he seems to be trifling with Zulu with his speed. But, after Zulu noticed that Toris was above him in terms of pure skill with the sword he gave up on quick movements right away and focused on defense. Putting it frankly, in terms of quick movements in our party Zulu is one of the highest. Zulu can move beyond what I can tell simply just from the Speed value when identifying him.

He’s dodging Toris’s attacks with the minimum amount of movements and not moving around in a flashy way. It looks like Toris is pushing but it’s almost been over 5 minutes since he started moving. I’m sure his stamina will run out. Zulu is composed and just paying attention to any attacks that might be a fatal blow. It should be pretty soon. The objective isn't for them to settle the practice match.

"Yes, the end."

While saying that I stabbed my wooden sword in between the two of them.

"Tori"Toris, do you understand?"

When I was going to talk my words overlapped with Bels. Nn~ Bel. I think that will just hurt Toris's pride. Stop there. I put my hand in front of Bel's face and interrupted her from saying anything more while I talked to Toris.

"You were above Zulu in terms of skill. However, the stamina of Laios are above that of an Elf or Human. It was difficult once Zulu switched to defense right?"

Toris bites his lip with a mortifying expression while saying.

"I couldn't cut in..Damn it."

"Yeah, that was unfortunate. Well, I'm sure you're tired, take a short rest."

I said that and turned around and said.

"Then, I guess so. Since Gwine and Angela don't seem all that tired..Gwine, was Angela strong?"

"Yeah, before I knew what was going on she was by my side and I was beaten.."

After hearing Angela was the weakest Gwine must have thought she had a bit of a chance but it seems it was a shock that it ended before she could do anything.

"That's right, Ralpa, team up with Angela and Bel. Bel don't use the bow. Just the sword. Zenom team up with Gwine and do a 3v2 practice match. I'll give Zenom and Gwine just one minute to come up with a plan. Ralpa you guys are goblins."

Goblin is a specialty term we use during training meaning "no cooperating, free combat". Even if your ally standing next to you falls into danger, you just keep trying to attack the enemy in front of you ignoring it as the tactic. After hearing that it seems everyone understood the meaning. Zenom approached Gwine and seems to be teaching her what to do. Behind me Toris is talking to Zulu.

“Hey~ About how strong is that Zenom-san?”

“Among us he’s the next strongest after master.”

“..I guess that’s true..After that it’s all women..And, eh? ZULu, he said you were in the center of the five. You aren’t the next strongest after Zenom-san?”

“Yes, after Zenom-san is Ral. After that is barely me. Koloil-sama is a bit more than me..that is, I think it would be best to say I’m one step above Koloil-sama in close combat. Angela is a bit behind us.”

“Hn..Is that how it is..”

Well just watch. The true ability of Zenom who spent countless years protecting and raising Ralpa on his own.

It’s been about one minute.

“Then, let’s go. Start!”

When it comes to axes we couldn’t just make a wooden dummy of them. Since there’s a lot of techniques that make use of their weight, or more accurately there’s too many attack methods which depend on precise use of the blade. Of course there’s also the method of making use of the weight and hitting with the peak as well.

Well, putting aside the pain I can heal their wounds right away, and it’s not like they’re going to hit strong enough to cut off any limbs so even during training only Zenom and Ralpa are using their hand-axes the same usual. Since Zenom can use the sword as well I thought he would use the wooden sword but since he’s essentially doing 1v3 against reasonably strong opponents today he gave up on the reach and went with the weapon he’s used to I’m sure.

It was easy to identify what Zenom told to Gwine right away. Gwine stands in a position where she’s using Zenom as a shield and while Zenom takes on the weapon of the opponent with his axe, only when their posture has collapsed he instructed her to attack with the spear. It seems that Zenom himself has already decided not to attack the opponents himself and is focusing only on defense and interfering with the opponent.

Well if that wasn't the case, then no matter how crude the coordination is in their movements there's not many people who could take on three adventurers alone. Even if they have a weapon defeating several people who have weapons is generally unreasonable unless there's a large difference in skill. It would be different if they're normally training in preparation of taking on multiple opponents but even that's just an extension to the amount of time they can hold out.

For starters, Angela took Gwine's spear twice and retreated the battle. But, after all it seems that the fatigue is building up for Zenom who's evading, receiving, and parrying the attacks of three people. Even though I say that, it was great that they managed to defeat Angela who has the longest and most troublesome reach with her broadsword first. It should have gotten much easier with that.

With this the chances of Bel and Ralpa winning are close to none for as long as Zenom can hold out. Zenom's ability is above them. Since it's two on one they still have the advantage but trying to land a valid hit on Zenom when he's focusing on defense and they're not allowed to cooperate is a bit difficult. Zenom is using the hand-axe in his right hand to parry the thrusts from Bel's short sword and his left hand to keep the axe Ralpa is swinging around in check, and occasionally putting in some blows to the handle of Ralpa's axe or her hand in order to shift its trajectory.

I'm sure Gwine is doing just as she planned with Zenom, whenever the opponent's guard is down after being parried by Zenom she thrusts in with her spear. Ralpa and Bel have already taken Gwine's spear once each. I'm sure it'll end soon.

I looked at Toris who was still sitting on the ground. He's looking at the practice match with a serious face. Judging from that look he probably has started to understand. After returning my gaze to the practice match and it was just as Gwine was hitting Bel with the spear. And then Zenom immediately went on the offensive and since his ability is higher on top of being 2v1. Ralpa was defeated in no time at all.

“Yes~ It’s Zenom and Gwine’s victory.”

I declared that before identifying everyone once again. It doesn’t seem like anyone has suffered any major injuries. As expected of Zenom. I guess it’s because Zulu and Angela have been coached by Zenom for this past month or so, I somehow feel like their skill with the sword is going up.

“Toris, do you understand now? Unless there’s a huge difference in skill between the swordsman in front of you, there’s no need to attack the opponent. In our case, the ones who attack are Bel and I. Of course if the opponent is something weak like goblins or gnolls then as long as they don’t let their guard the front-line can attack if they find the chance, and as a matter of fact they’re finishing them off pretty often like that.

However, when it comes to Orks or Hobgoblins the opponent comes with a reasonable amount of cooperation as well, if you defeat one or two of them then they immediately start to retreat. If it comes to that the earnings from magic stones decreased. It’s reasonably difficult to completely wipe them out without using our heads like matching up the timing to finish them all off at once without even giving them a chance to retreat, or Bel and I use magic together.”

Toris honestly nodded.

“Yeah. And so. While Toris is holding out and remaining his ground Bel is safe during that time. She can safely shoot an arrow. There’s nothing more foolish than you trying to get an attack in on the opponent only to take an attack from someone else. There’s no need to attack the person in front of you unless the timing ensures you’ll be fine. If you were to use an extreme argument you don’t even need a weapon. It’s effective to just be standing there properly holding a shield.

“It’s a weird expression but it’s not a computer game” so even a light injury will cause your movements to dull and make it easier to get tired. Even the pain shaves away at your concentration. That’s why the most important thing is to remain standing without receiving any injuries.”

Toris is nodding seriously. It seems he was properly able to understand it.

“That’s why when it comes to sword techniques other than the basic ones the ones that are useful for defending are effective. Like Zenom just did..In his case it's an axe though, learning how to block and parry are first. Techniques for attacking are fine to learn after that. However, just don't misunderstand this. I have no intention of making light of a one on one fight, and I know the importance of attacking as well. What I want to say is nothing more than the order of importance."

Well, I guess this is about right. If he properly understands then there should be no problem.

"Sorry about interrupting. Then let's do it like him as well."

I said that and opened my mouth to Toris and Gwine again.

"Let alone the basics of attacking, Toris has even been able to use it in application so his training will focus on defense. That basic thrust of Gwine's is plenty as an attack for now. I'm sure what necessary is the decision-making and how to use your body to prevent the opponent from getting near you."

I said that and took the wooden sword in my hand.

"Then I'm the villain. While Toris is enduring my attacks, Gwine you try to find an opening to stab me with your spear. For Toris is essential for you to try and create openings in my stand while you're focusing on defense. It's fine if Gwine can thrust into that opening after all. Oh~ come to think of it I didn't mention it. The greatest advantage is to take on your opponent with a greater number than them. It's the ideal method of fighting to surround an individual with a group and beat them from every side. It sounds cheap but this is reality."

I said that and started their training in cooperation.

After finishing training and eating some lunch, including Gwine and Toris, the eight of us descended into the dungeon. For the time being there's the matter of the map so I don't intend to aim for a very deep floor. The most important thing is to finish producing the map of the 3rd floor which is only half complete. There's still blank spaces remaining on the 1st and 2nd floors but compared to the 3rd floor it's only a small portion and there's not really any fatal traps so it's fine to just put off.

On our way to the 3rd floor it should be fine if we only add to the map when we luckily(?) teleport into an unexplored area.

For the first time in a while we spent a night in the teleport room of the 2nd floor while teleporting into the 3rd floor over and over.

Right now if Gwine uses {Mapping} just once for roughly one hour she can remember everything she sees. I was once again shown the influence of that. Even Zenom was shocked by how she was casually drawing every twist and turn she saw while we just kept walking around during the short breaks.

I stealthily tried asking and it seems that she's understood her Unique Ability quite a bit and is doing nothing more than transcribing the contents of something like a map in her head. I wonder if she originally had some skill as an artist? It feels strangely good.

With no particular problems in combat we wiped out every enemy we came across. It truly feels like we're meeting up to our name as the {Slaughterers}. Putting aside Toris, I thought Gwine would be disgusted by taking magic stones from the corpses of monsters, but it seems she didn't think much about it at all. Since she's been brought around peddling with her parents since she was an infant, she said she's occasionally seen the escorting adventurers fighting monsters or the take magic stones from them.

If it's like this then in 2–3 months we might really be able to produce a really accurate map of the 3rd floor.

Chapter 107: A New Mystery

Year 7443, Month 4, Day 20

There's no problem with combat and no problem with producing the map as well. The only the thing we need to be cautious of is the positioning of traps. Since Toris and Gwine joined us traps, or rather it's limited to pitfalls but I thought of a strange method around them. I create water with water magic and stretch it out extremely long and thin with a depth of a few centimeters following along the passage. Since combat hasn't been very difficult either I use the magic {Light} without restraint as well. If there's a pitfall then the water will drip down into it so if you go close-by it's easy to tell. After I thought of this method the efficiency in our exploration dramatically went up.

We've filled in to the point where only 20–30% of blank space is remaining on our map of the 3rd floor. That means in barely a month we were able to fill in close to half of it, it's a miraculous pace. We were able to fill in a small portion of the blank spaces on the 1st and 2nd floors as well. Though we're only moving through the 1st and 2nd floors to pass by but thanks to Gwine's Unique Ability the scattered scaling issues of the map that made it difficult to use have been improved a bit.

The newcomers levels have increased as well. Particularly Gwine who's level was low, I've been giving her priority in earning experience points so her level has suddenly risen. At first when I started to let just her kill monsters I used, "since she's lacking in combat experience so in order for her to get used to killing faster" as a retarded sounding reason but it seems that everyone had some ideas on what I was doing so they agreed with it.

Particularly Ralpha said,

"Ah, I get that. I disliked killing goblins when I was little as well. It took quite a bit of time to swing a weapon at a living opponent without hesitation... On my first time I just got lost in it so I was able to do it but a short while after that I became afraid of swinging my Nata.”

You, so you used a Nata when you were a child. I’m sure it’s lighter than an axe so it’s fine though. Bel as well said, “That’s right. Though the first thing I killed was a wild rabbit with the bow though. I hated it a bit. Though since it was for the sake of eating I was able to come to terms with it right away.”

It was only the reincarnated people but everyone made a face that said “well that’s cannibalism after all”, Zenom, Zulu, and Angela just nodded. After that Bel said, “Maruso, how was it for you? I want to hear your opinion as a woman as well.”

and brought Angela into the conversation but,

“Since the first killing I did was in the dungeon..I just obeyed by the orders of my master at that time, so I didn’t feel anything in particular..”

and responded with a composed face. Well unless it’s someone who was raised in the town the people of Orth get used to killing a lot of animals while they’re children. Strangling the chickens you keep at your house and helping out with slaughtering the pigs kept in the neighborhood are common occurrences. In Bakuddo the Dokush family had a monopoly on hunting but if it’s a village with no hunting specialist then it’s not hard to imagine that something like the lord or squires hunting game while patrolling around being a daily occurrence. Even Toris said that. Zulu and Angela were a bit surprised hearing Bel and Toris conversation. It was as though they think that hunting game or killing livestock for the sake of eating doesn’t even enter the realm of killing.

“Yeah, I hunted a White-Hair Deer as well. That was delicious. However, when the arrows o the squires hit the White-Hair deer to finish them off the first couple of times I threw up.”

“Gwine, I think you already know but if you aren’t used to killing things then the stress accumulates. It’s true you’ve seen adventurers kill monsters from nearby and said you’ve seen them disassemble them as well but there’s a big difference between seeing and actually doing it with your own hands. However, there's no other way than to take care of this as it comes by and in the end it will connect to your ability to make decisions when your own life is in danger. In regards to this regardless of what you wish for, I can't afford to listen, so in the first place I won't ask your way of thinking on it. I'll use my authority from the contract. Just think of this as an order from your employer. That's why, if you feel any kind of strong stress just think it can't be helped because it's my order."

"Yes, but I think it will be fine."

Gwine properly looked at my eyes while responding. But, when it comes to this there's no other way than to actually try putting it into practice...

"I see, then that's good. Now, since it's Toris and Gwine's first time in the dungeon, you never know what will come out at first.."

I said that and used the spell {Audible Clamor} to call out a group of monsters and they normally stabbed the goblins from the edges, killed them, and gathered the magic stones without a single complaint. As expected it's waste of time to gather magic stones from goblins so I stopped them but it seems my fear was just needless anxiety.

Since brother and the others should be coming to the capital again near the end of this month to deliver armor, after that's over I intend to start seriously challenging the 4th floor. Incidentally, there's still no contact from the real estate agency in the capital. Since it's not common for a good location to empty out, it seems that they're investigating the owner of building in a good location and searching for those who are leasing the building from it's owner. The management situation of their store doesn't look very good so they're looking even deeper into information on their situation of paying rent. It would be the greatest if they go into default.

If we use that as a reason to negotiate with the landlord and either buy the building or pay several years of rent in advance then it seems something can be done about it. However, I wonder if a store in a good location of that huge city would really fall into enough of a management slump to be unable to pay the rent? I'm a bit doubtful about things around that area.

Well in regards to the real estates acquisition the location meets the conditions, and above else it's a story that already has a candidate. There's nothing that can be done by getting impatient so I'll just hold out on that one. I'm sure there's no need for me to do anything careless. If it seems like they really aren't able to do anything about it this year, then it's just a matter of prostrating myself before the knight group or royalty or something.

Rather than that, what I'm interested in is that one other reincarnated person that I think exists. I thought it was Gwine that I saw at the end of the year but she said, "That might be the case but I don't remember." Of course if it was her then there's no problem. However, it might have been a different adventurer than her.

However, it's my true feelings that I want to secure as many reincarnated people as I can. In the first place what I caught a glimpse of might have been Gwine, and since I have no proof that it was a different person, it's a problem though I feel wasting anymore time on it would be difficult. If I knew for sure it was a different person even if it wastes some time I could have moved to secure them but...

There's the possibility of setting up a net again and trying to search for the adventurer or merchant reincarnated person I saw at the end of the year as well. However, in comparison to previously our numbers have increased by two all at once, and I don't feel we're lacking in any combat potential in the dungeon right now so I can't bring myself to decide on setting up a net again. Although, I think the possibility is low that the same methods as now will keep working enemies on the 4th and 5th floors so sooner or later I feel like I might setup another net again.

The leader of Black Topaz Anderson said once upon a time,

"Be careful of the ice monster. It's an ice monster that's normally on the 5th floor and it breathes an ice breath. In order to oppose it you need at least level 4 high ranking fire magic."

said something along those lines, I still haven't forgotten. If the ice breath is simply something physical, or something magical is unknown but (the fact that it's a breath of ice makes me feel like it's magic though) if it's freezing with magic or something close to that it would be trouble if you were caught by surprise. If it has a large scale or there's a lot of distance between my allies then I don't know if I'd have enough MP for {Anti-Magic Field}.

If it was 10 or 20 times then honestly it's no problem, but if several of them came at us at the same time then it would be quite troublesome. If while I'm erasing the ice with {Anti-Magic Field} (It's fine to use {Fire Wall} or {Flame Thrower} to melt it as well but I'm sure that would take some time) more and more ice keeps being made then my resistance would end up powerless and it's possible everyone would suffocate frozen in ice.

Anyhow since I don't know how much mana the opponent would put into the ice they're making I would have to use a larger amount of MP with my {Anti-Magic Field}, in the worst case, it's in the worst case but if it's ice which isn't magic then the only method for me to melt it would be to take the time to melt it using {Flame Thrower}. Well, in a time like that I should just quickly throw a {Fire Ball} or {Stone Javelin Missile} in to kill it and then slowly melt it...in the case that they're frozen in real ice, and I can't erase it all at once the possibility of suffocating to death still remains huh...

However even if they're the top team in Baldukk, there's no way they'd have anyone who has more MP than me and furthermore has a higher level magic special skill so I think it's fine not to worry about. Just in case I would make sure we're extra careful..No wait, Black Topaz never said they've defeated the ice monster either. Just the same as other normal adventurers they should particularly be avoiding combat with the monsters on a deep floor like the 5th floor. It's difficult to come up with an idea though.

.....

Year 7443, Month 4, Day 25

Brother and the others came to deliver armor. I thought they didn't need to come on Monday but I guess that can't be helped. There's no doubt that being able to meet brother and the squires of Bakuddo again is something welcome so I'm honestly happy.

For the time being, I told them I was searching for a place to make into the headquarters for Greed Company and finding a good location in the capital is difficult. Even if it comes to paying a higher price for it, if the other side has no intention of selling then I still wouldn't be able to buy, and it's not something that I absolutely need to hurry with so I intend to look at it over the long-term.

I guess she heard from Ralpa and Bel but Gwine was concerned about older brother. You, sure fall for people easily. Since Gwine dyed her hair yellow-green I can't help but make the comparison between her and sister-in-law Shani. I haven't seen sister-in-law's face recently but I think that no matter who sees them they would think that sister-in-law is more beautiful. It's unfortunate but even if you and Ralpa compete for the position of second wife, for completely different reasons I think that neither of you have any chance.

Bel might be able to put up a resistance but her race is different and in the first place brother doesn't seem like he's willing to take interest in any other women than sister-in-law for now. Near the end of last year Bel was squealing over brother as well but since Toris is here now she seems composed. By the way Toris dyed his hair deep green.

We go to the first knight group's headquarters in the capital and finish up deliveries to the people of the third company.

We took orders for the next time as well but this time it seems like they had already organized it ahead of time so there was no chaos. Other than the sub-commander Sub-Baron Bittwaz, first company commander Viscount Gendail (this person seems to be the son of high ranking noble Marquis Gendail), and second company commander Viscount Balkisas, our primary customers this time were members of the first company. Duke Ronbard (the King's eldest son a 26 year old new knight) was included in that as well.

Afterwards I asked sister about it together with brother and I was able to understand quite a bit about the military system of Rombert Kingdom. Since brother and I were from the countryside we didn't understand it well but the system of the kingdom's army is almost like the modern day army and social standing(noble ranking) is almost unrelated. It seems that the class (ranking) inside of the army is what matters. Even though I say that it seems that in the case of the first prince, Duke Ronbard his highness Richard is too special of a case so they're still paying him a reasonable amount of respect.

Since I wanted to make use of it as a reference from here on out I loudly pestered brother and sister and was able to hear various things. They're roughly using combat units as a standard but in the case it's not a combat unit the class drops a bit, it seems that it's normal for promotion to be more difficult.

- The rankings start with the King at the 1st ranking 1st level and goes down to the 9th ranking 4th level at the lowest. It seems that as all of the numbers get lower they're more important.

- The 9th ranking is fundamentally what I know of as the Private in the SDF, and the combatants are infantry, those other than combatants are close to what you'd call underlings. Furthermore, it's a ranking which only exists in the fourth knight group of the permanent army and there's no knight group like the Webdos knight group. It's different from father a commander of a dispatch unit of yeoman as well. There's also something which Bakuddo didn't have where they draft Free People, basically combat slaves included in this ranking. The 9th ranking goes from the 1st level to the 4th level and the level changes the number of times you participate in a war(conflict) but even if your level is high that doesn't mean you have the authority to order soldiers who are lower than you. It almost never happens but when there's a large war between countries the number of these surges.

- The 8th ranking basically be the dispatch units of yeoman like Bakuddo that are essentially infantryman. In terms of the SDF I guess it would be something like a 3rd Sergeant or a low-class non-commission officer. In the permanent army they would be between the second knight group and fourth knight group during times of peace. It might be easier to think they get promoted from the 9th ranking or are infantryman who are above the commoner standing. The 8th ranking has levels between 1 and 4 as well and they can increase based on the number of times participating in war (conflict). It seems that you can be promoted to it from the 9th ranking with no problem. Normally it's the ranking with the largest number of people.

- The 7th ranking is the non-commissioned officers who are slightly above. In terms of SDF I guess it would be around 1st or 2nd Sergeant. As a matter of fact the authority to give commands based on ranking starts from here. In terms of the Bakuddo dispatch troops it would be about the Head Squire. In the permanent army they're in all knight groups including the first knight group. Only in the first knight group they're not as combatants but the lowest ranking of supply units or rear members. It seems for other knight groups from the second to the fourth they're the lowest ranking of squires here. The infantry of squires in the Webdos knight group would be included in this ranking as well. It's the same for Free People and commoners so there's no discrimination. If Kuro and Mary were to go to war then in the permanent army they would be treated as the 7th ranking I'm sure. It seems that there's levels 1 to 3 for the 7th ranking. In order to get promoted there's obviously participating in conflicts but it seems that an academic exam comes out as well.

- The 7th ranking would be a ranking that is the equivalent of the sergeant major in the SDF. It might be better to call them the squad commanders. If we were to try and forcibly apply it to the Bakuddo dispatch troops then it would apply to mother. In terms of the second to fourth knight groups and the Webdos knight group this is where the true knights would belong. An academic test is necessary to get promoted. Only the squires of the first knight group get to start here. There's levels from the 5th to the 1st on the 6th ranking. Also, it's important but they're only allowed to ride on horseback from this ranking. That means that brother retired at this lowest ranking. Regardless of whether they're combat slaves there are those in the fourth knight group that have achieved this ranking it seems. Obviously their owner is the King though.

- The 5th ranking in terms of the SDF would be around the 2nd or 3rd warrant officer. In terms of the Bakuddo dispatch troops the commander father would end up here. It seems in terms of the Webdos knight group they would be the company commanders and platoon commanders. It seems that the new knights in the first knight group start in this ranking. This ranking is the most complicated and it even has levels from 1 to 9 but it's not like the number of them is particularly high. In the case of most knight groups it seems that people with noble rankings start around here. It seems that sister has been promoted to the 5th ranking 6 level right now.

- The 4th ranking I guess would be somewhere around the 1st warrant officer in the SDF. In terms of Webdos knight group it would be either the company commander or sub-commander. In the first knight group those at the level of platoon commander are qualified for this. Putting it frankly, in order to be promoted higher than this ranking you normally need to make some pretty big achievements in war. It has levels from 1 to 5. It seems that from the 3rd or fourth knight groups there's Free People who achieved this that were commanders of infantry as well. (Of course, they received investiture as knights so there's no problem for them to ride horses).

- The 3rd ranking in terms of JSD I guess you could say it's something between the colonel and major. Something like a regiment commander or battalion commander. In terms of Webdos knight group it would be the commander. Though it's only at the level of a company commander for the first knight group. They have levels from the 1st to the 4th. It seems that starting from here there's only a dozen of them in the country.

- The 2nd ranking would probably be the lieutenant general. It might be better to consider them the normal division commander or general. They're the commander classes from the second to fourth knight groups. In terms of first knight group there's only the sub-commander and the veteran company commander that is Viscount Gendail. There's enough that you can count them on one hand. It seems there's only levels from 1 to 3.

- The 1st ranking would be the general or above. In the kingdom the commander of the first knight group is the 1st ranking level 2 and the King is the 1st ranking level 1, so in total there's only two of them. Since there's only a land-army this should be fine.

Since the rankings inside of the army are fundamentally regulated like that noble ranking is unrelated. Of course, respect is paid in terms of noble ranking as well but the authority to give orders based on ranking is different. It seems that the founding King Thomas Rombert the First strictly set it in national law those no matter the reason it must not be changed. Somehow I'm really starting to be suspicious if the founding king was really a person of Orth but it seems that the motive for it was being troubled by some stupid nobles so I think if it's a person that can make it as King they at least need to be wise enough to come up with something like this.

This is completely different from the surrounding countries and it seems it also differs in how much power the nobility has in the army based on their ranking. It seems it's true just as God said, among the countries in this world Rombert Kingdom is one that's quite a head in terms of culture.

She explained to me the promotion system was the core of the system of knight groups in the kingdom but according to brother it seems that noble ranking had a reasonable amount of importance in the Webdos knight group as well. For example, even if brother had continued to remain in the Webdos knight group like that it would have been almost impossible to become the commander. Even if he gives it his best and makes numerous achievements it would be a matter of whether he can make it to sub-commander, basically.

After that I also heard about the organization of each force of knight groups but only the first knight groups singularity stood out. I don't know if the word knight group is a bad choice or I misunderstood a lot of it. A knight group in terms of the SDF would be a type of denomination referring to a regiment under each branch of the army. The ones belonging to it aren't just knights. It might be closer to think of it as a different name for the infantryman. Of course, it's not as if there aren't any exclusive squires like pages obeying knights. In fact, in the surrounding countries it seems it's just as the name sounds.

However, in the Kingdom of Rombert a knight is "someone above an officer in the army that is allowed to ride a horse". Obviously there's an infantry troop made up of squires and combat slaves as well and regardless of whether they're riding horses they're called knights as well. Well in most cases they seem to be on horseback. In this case it might be because they need to be at a high point to give orders out in a loud voice. There's a supply unit as well and while there number is few there's a unit with just archers as well.

It seems that in the normal knight groups the knights make up the smallest number. It seems that there's a lot of people like squires and those who aren't even combatants but only the first knight group has more knights than squires. If you generally look at the first knight group then more than half of their members are knights and squire combatants, the rear units don't even make up half their numbers. If we were to suppose that the first knight group were to be fully dispatched, the large portion of the squires would be distributed to guarding the rear units, and the only combatants would be the true knights and a handful of squires. The combat force of a knight group is made up only of cavalry, which is an unit organization distorted frighteningly towards only attack.

I guess this is because they work under the assumption that combat won't take place with only the first knight group. It might be closer to think of them as the special attack forces or a dispatch organization for experienced commanders and staff officers during war. In some meanings you could say that the first knight group of Rombert Kingdom is a military school with synthesized courses for commanders, staff officers, and individual combat, in addition to being the most elite live combat unit. In terms of Earth it's an extremely advanced way of thinking around the 20th century.

It seems it's difficult for the countryside on the Jindal peninsula like Marquis Webdos territory to accept that way of thinking so noble ranking still has a lot of influence in things. That's must be why they put importance on individual combat ability in order to not be looked down on by members of the first knight group but you can tell they've thought to an abnormal level for Orth about making practical use of the organization.

I see now, this sort of armed forces, warm climate, and fertile land must have made it into the largest country on the western edge of the Oladd continent.

It's said that Rombert the First found his treasure in the dungeon of Baldukk and started to move towards founding Rombert Kingdom when he was close to 30 years old. It seems it took him 10 years to found it. That Saito Dosan managed to take control over Mino when he was in his mid-40s. Even Hojo Soun took quite a bit of time. It's true I'm in possession of the Gift of Natural Talent but I think comparing myself to Saito Dosan and Hojo Soun is rude to them. Even after receiving two Unique Abilities I'm finally equal or a bit below them.

More so, if I'm going to create a small country on the side of a large country like Rombert Kingdom then I'd like to maintain on good terms with Rombert.

Since my parents, older brother couple, and sister are being used in the Rombert army there's no better choice than avoiding making it into an enemy.

I didn't have that sort of intention from the start either way but I thought that once again while seeing off brother and the others on their way home.

By the way, the level of my 【Gift of Natural Talent】 has reached MAX.

I realized something important here. Since 【Gift of Natural Talent】 reached MAX I feel like the experience points I earn towards magic are included in the increase from 【Gift of Natural Talent】. I tried opening the Identify sub-window of 【Gift of Natural Talent】 again and checked it.

【Unique Ability: Gift of Natural Talent; Increases the amount of experience points obtained in relation to the level of the ability. The increase is 20% per level. It's cut off at the decimal point. The expanded ability at MAX level is the increase of experience points applies to Special Skills as well.】

What? "expanded ability at MAX level" it says? Since I'm not normally looking at the sub-windows so I didn't notice it...Bel and Toris's Unique Abilities were already at MAX level when I first met them and I properly checked the Identify sub-window at that time. I tried Identifying them again but I couldn't find anything different. What in the world does this mean. It's true that a sentence that wasn't in the details of identifying my 【Gift of Natural Talent】 until now has increased. I wonder why? Since Bel and Toris were already at level MAX when I met them, it seems there's a high possibility that the identify details of their Unique Abilities had increased from the start.

But still, mine had the sentence "expanded ability at MAX level" added. There was nothing like that at all written on Bel's 【Shooting Intuition】 or Toris's 【Scale】. Is it a special ability that only 【Gift of Natural Talent】 has? Well, I think it might be normal to think of it that way.

I wonder what in the world I should make of this. I feel like it's necessary to verify it. If I have the chance I'll try asking Bel. I need to be careful of the way I ask her. However, there's one other valid verification method as well. After all I have two Unique Abilities. My 【Identify】 is level MAX as well. Before I try confirming with anyone else it's a strong point of mine that I can verify it myself. There was nothing that had particularly changed in the Unique Ability sub-window for 【Identify】. I wonder if this “expanded ability at MAX level” only exists for 【Gift of Natural Talent】?

.....

Year 7443, Month 8, Day 20

And the season is soon to reach summer once again. I’m sure it’s thanks to the expansion of 【Gift of Natural Talent】 but my Void Magic has finally reached MAX. We guess that we’ve already filled in close to 70% of the map of the 4th floor as well. It’s thanks to the normal method of using a fire-starter magic tool but Toris and Gwine have started to be able to use Void Magic as well. In terms of level I’m 17 close to 18, Zenom is 17, Ralpha is 12, Bel is 12, Toris 11, Gwine is 10, Zulu is 12, and Angela is 11 close to 12.

I feel like it’s about a good time to start aiming for the 5th floor.

However, the matter of my Unique Ability hitting MAX level still remains a mystery.

Chapter 108: Zenom

Year 7443, Month 8, Day 21

Today is Wednesday so it's the day we have off. Normally I'd take Zulu along as escort while practicing magic on the 1st floor or earning some experience points but it seems my plans for today are going to change a bit. After eating breakfast and just as I was about to head out to my usual stuff fully equipped at Boil Manor. There was a knock on the door and after looking outside the apprentice of Boil Manor informs me of a visitor.

I don't have any ideas as to who it is but it might be another person who wants to join my party that's increased in number recently. Nevertheless, it might be a member of the first knight group who needs some urgent maintenance to their armor as well. I wonder if the latex in sister's repair kit has run out?

Last month brother and the others brought me quite a bit of it when they came for deliveries so I have quite a bit of surplus, it might be good to quickly do some repairs and earn some small change, thinking that I went to the front and there was a middle-aged dwarf I don't remember seeing before accompanied by a young Laios man who is probably a servant waiting for me. Judging from his appearance and physique I doubt he's related to the knight group or an adventurer that wants to join my part. I wonder if he's a person related to the finances of the knight group? Even then he doesn't seem like he's related to the army.

"I'm Greed but.."

I called out to him like to catch his attention.
The man turned around to face me and politely lowered his head to greet me.

"It's nice to meet you, my name is Yohen Logflat. I run a certain store in the capital. I would like to talk with you for a bit but is it convenient for you right now?"

and said that confirming my situation.

Is this man, that I guess? Did he come to directly negotiate with me in regards to the matter of a headquarters for Greed Company? I tried Identifying him and he's the head of Sub-Baron Logflat family. His level is 10 which is decently high but he's already 45 years old. I guess he misunderstood I was looking at the Laios man next to him when I glanced to his side to check the identify window but Sub-Baron Logflat opened his mouth again.

"Ah, this person is my guard and slave. Please don't mind them."

I see, so he's bringing around a combat slave as a guard? I thought the capital and it's surroundings were safe but since I've never seen the head of a noble family walking around in the middle of town so I wonder if this is normal? or at least I decided to think that and not worry about it. But, as expected it's hard to think that the head of a noble family would come all the way here from the capital without an escort, so I guess it's only obvious.

"Yes. There's no problem with time but what is the reason for your business?"

If he has a building in a good location that he'll offer to me I definitely want to jump at that but I don't want him to hike up the price either. Well if it's some plus-alpha that remains within common sense then it's fine so I don't mind if he hikes it up a but this Sub-Baron Logflat has a refined smile on his face and I can't read his intentions. Among the many one-track minded people of Orth you could say he has quite the good business sense.

"Dealing with the Greed Company"

In the next moment, a voice called out from above the stairs.

"Isn't that Sub-Baron Logflat!? Why are you in a place like this?"

It was Zenom. It seems he's an acquaintance of this Sub-Baron Logflat. He quickly descended the stairs and opened his mouth again.

"What the, Al? Were you acquaintances with the Sub-Baron?"

"No, just now, he came asking for me. We've only just greeted each other."

"Firefreed! So you were acquaintances with Greed-san?"

If he's an acquaintance of Zenom then I doubt he'll say anything too unreasonable. I was almost about to chuckle. Huh? Zenom's acquaintance? Zenom's acquaintance in the vicinity of the capital indeed.

"Let alone acquaintances, right now I'm being hired by Greed. I think I mentioned it at the start of the year but this Greed is hiring me as an adventurer."

Zenom explains his relationship with me to the Sub-Baron and he was surprised as he says to Zenom.

"So that's how it was! Then you, were a member of the {Slaughterers}!"

Ooh~ it seems that our name has spread around quite a bit. Recently young new adventurers come about once a week to ask to let them into my part. Though I won't let them in.

It's digressing a bit but when we came to Baldukk last year it's obvious but there 5 top teams but recently I've heard it's become common for us {Slaughterers} to be included as a top team as well. Though the real top teams usually find at least one low value (even then it's over several hundred million Z) magic item per year so I think they're a special case but while the amount us Slaughterers are making might not reach that we're earning a stable and high amount from the magic stones we sell.

In terms of earnings from magic stones even if you added all of the top teams together it wouldn't reach anywhere close to the slaughterers. Particularly this past half a year, there's even more parties that look up to us, end up overdoing it, and getting wiped out so we're profiting even more on recovering their equipment. Honestly speaking, since we're providing this many magic stones I was worried that the market price would drop but it seems that originally the demand for magic stones was high so there was no change at all in the market price. Well even if we're gathering a lot of magic stones, in the end we're just eight people, I think there's a limit to how much we're really adding to the whole.

For a period, I was interested so I tried talking to the shopkeeper of the magic tool store about it. The change in quantity of magic stones that we've been carrying in compared to those produced (?) in Baldukk until now. It seems that if you were to say the number until we came was 10 then right now it's 13. In other words we've increased the amount of supply by 30%. If the consumption rate doesn't change then it wouldn't be unusual for the sale price to decline by about 20%. However, it seems the demand for magic stones was originally high, so the sale price remains high and stable.

The magic tool shop that I'm intimate with is right on the side of the dungeon and it's a considerably large company in Baldukk. It seems he has a route for wholesale with magic tool shops in the capital as well so he makes use of the fact that there's no tax in the noble ranking and takes a bit of a margin while lowering it there but since there's no dungeon in the capital and even more so there's no monsters nearby that would provide a source of magic stones. That's why adventurers almost never bring them in.

Almost all of the magic stones that are consumed in the capital are supplied by Baldukk. Since it's a large city with a population of over 200,000 I'm sure the demand was originally high. Until now it's not that even if they wanted to use magic stones they were too expensive and they couldn't buy them, simply that the supply was too low and the places they were being sold to were already decided. In that case it seems they could be sold at an even higher price but let alone if it were a store that is doing business in them, individuals almost never use magic stones.

In other words, in most houses there's no lighting and starting fires is done by bringing a source fire from somewhere. Of course there's nothing like heating and cooling. You only use it when you absolutely need lightning and if it's a clock magic tool if you use three times in a day then a low value goblin's magic stone will last you for about a year.

Things in that regard Gwine was knowledgeable about. It's not because she was born in a family of merchants, just simply because she was raised in a normal family in the capital so she understood the normal sense of values in regards to magic stones and it's also the reasoning she was led to by her knowledge as a former Japanese but putting in terms of the sensitivity of a Japanese person they're bought and used almost like special cooking tools, the specialty delicacies of a region, imported food, and large devices like televisions, washers, air-conditioning, and such it seems.

If you have them it's something to be happy about and it's not that you can't buy them. However you can make do with the substitutes and cheaper versions. It's not unusual or unnatural for them to be in each household but you can't afford to waste them and you do not. She said it felt kind of like that.

Magic stones are almost like delicacies foodstuff and electricity something is consumed but the devices that use those as fuel (?) are reasonably expensive in the first place. Unless they're a considerably wealthy person, shop, or corporation it seems it's hard to resolve to buying them. There's also something you could consider the simplified or cheaper versions with lower specs but since the fuel (?) isn't that much in circulation as well in the end you restrain from using them unless really needed. Kind of like that. I don't know if that's accurate but going off of Gwine's explanation, I'm a bit discontent but it's acceptable.

Returning the conversation.

Zenom says to the Sub-Baron who was a bit surprised after being called out to by Zenom.

"Yeah, that's right. Although we aren't calling ourselves that so Slaughterers is something like a nickname."

After hearing Zenom's words the Sub-Baron,

"I see. Firefreed. Would you make a request from Greed-san for me? As a matter of fact I came to request some dealings with Greed Company."

said that. After hearing the Sub-Baron's words Zenom said while slightly surprised.

"I don't mind that but AI isn't dealing in slaves."

Yeah, in regards to slaves buying is my specialty. Though I said that I've still only bought two. However, I can already imagine the situation. I'm sure this Sub-Baron Logflat is the owner of "Emerald Duke Crab Reception Hall" and he's finally come to try and negotiate stocking "Saya". No, there's doubt that's the case!

Since he seems to be an acquaintance of Zenom, I'm sure the slaves that Zenom is talking about is sex slaves. Since then I've brought samples of "Saya" to the "Emerald Duke Crab Reception Hall" countless times. Since I've always been blocked by that gentleman I wasn't able to meet the owner. Since the quantity is minuscule I'm sure it didn't have much of a reputation right away. I guess I'd say it took a few months to finally enter the ears of the owner.

"Sub-Baron Logflat. It's about discussing stocking up on rubber products our company deals in right?"

I said that and,

"Yeah, that's right. I think it was called "Saya"? It's the one that has the emblem of Duke Rombert on it."

I guess he intends to settle the business in the lobby of the Boil Manor. Well it's fine though.

"They're 13,000 Z for one pack of 10. I have about 80 packs in stock right now though. I'm still not selling them to any place in Rombertia or Baldukk other than the royal family."

After I said that and the Sub-Baron made a face like he was relieved and grabbed my hand.

"It's quite a bit cheaper than I had imagined. If possible I would like to buy all of your current stock at the price you wish. Also, I would like to discuss doing business from here on out as well but.."

Since he's shorter than me it takes the shape of me looking down at him (My height is about 170 cm right now).

"How about we change the location..How about having tea somewhere? Zenom, if it's alright with you then how about joining us?"

I said that and looked at Zenom. Of course it seems like he'll come.

At a restaurant in the vicinity, I'm sipping my usual bean tea while discussing business. For the time being just as I just stated I'm selling all 80 packs with a unit price of 13,000 Z to the Sub-Baron's Faianots Company. Ah, I still have 10 packs for my own and sample use as well, also because Toris buys about 2 packs per month as well. I've already prepared the portion separately.

"I can stock up roughly every three months. It takes about six months to increase the amount kept in stock. The next time should be about 30 packs at the end of next month. If I tell them the amount to increase the stock by at that time then after that they should start increasing the amount of goods delivered by the end of the year or start of the new year.”

I said that and the Sub-Baron smiles while thanking me. It seems that he'll put together the amount he wants to order by the middle of September. Our business discussion reaches it's conclusion just like that with a calm atmosphere. Zenom was saying “Saya?” with a curious face but I said “For our luxury product that we're directly selling to the royal family of Rombert to catch your attention, as expected of an acquaintance of Zenom, you have quite the eye Sub-Baron Logflat. You're quite skilled at business.” and he seemed to understand as he crossed his arms and nodded.

I guess he got worried since I didn't show up on time and came to get me, Zulu walked by so I called out to him. I gave him the key to my inn and told him to bring the wooden box in a certain place, two pieces of paper in the third drawer of my desk, and the pen on my desk as well and then turned around to face the Sub-Baron again.

Selling condoms is important as well but since this is a rare connection I've made. I want to make good use of it.

“By the way Sub-Baron Logflat. Is it alright if I ask you something unrelated?”

I changed my expression and started talking to him.

“Yeah, what is it?”

“I think I want to place the headquarters of my company along either the Bell road or Gurud roads of Rombertia's central district. I've already asked Rombertia's Takishis Company to act as the agent but it seems they can't seem to find a good subject, and I'm a bit troubled over it. If Logflat-san has any ideas on that end I would definitely like to receive your introduction but..”

“Hm~mm.. I'm sure that anyone would want to have a store along that area after all...What kind of building are you looking for?”

“I guess so. First off the most important part is that it needs to be a residence for a family of artisans. In addition to that, a place to process rubber and a place where the water circulates well to a drainage ditch are absolute conditions. If it's possible then a place where we can line up small products like a shop I would have nothing more to say. After that..That's right, if I were to get greedy then if it was next to a leather merchant or tanner then it would be a big help. Since the manufacturing of rubber gives off quite a bad smell, if there were similar workshops nearby it wouldn't stand out."

After hearing my extravagant request the Sub-Baron made a dry smile while saying.

"Ha ha, that's quite the difficult order. However, I think it would be easier to find if you split them up into a workshop and a storefront plus residence when searching. When it comes to a workshop I'm sure you need a reasonable amount of space so so if you go downstream near the edge of the town then you'll find any number of places. The workshops for leather tanners are usually downstream as well. If you just remove the workshop condition then I think the hurdle of finding a storefront and residence will be lowered quite a bit."

I see. Splitting the headquarters up is possible as well. It seems like it would cost some money though. I'm sure it's too late once the complaints start coming out about the smell of sulfur. There's also the problem of gas during the sulfuration. I guess there's no choice other than to split them up huh?

"I see, it's just as you say. Then it seems like there won't be any problems with searching for a workshop so it's fine. Do you have any ideas on a building that would work as the headquarters for the company?"

"Hmn, I'm very sorry but I can't think of any off the top of my head. Since there's a gathering for the major companies at the end of the month I'll try calling out to them at that time."

I say to the Sub-Baron who seems apologetic,

"No that's not the case at all, please don't mind it. It's an unexpected delight that you would be willing to go that far."

and lowered my head.

Zulu came back with good timing carrying a box. I produced a proof of sales and gave it to Sub-Baron Logflat as statement of delivery and a receipt. Different from armor, the "Saya" is the same as a pig's bowel and is treated as a contraception tool so it's tax rate is cheap. It's only 2% of the sale price. Just the same I had the Sub-Baron confirm the amount and then sign the receipt. It seems they came this far on a carriage so I had Zulu carry the luggage to their carriage.

After seeing off the Sub-Baron I asked Zenom what his relationship was and it seems originally they were born in the same village and he worked for him. During the time when Zenom was 12 years old and the Sub-Baron was 16 years old, in the village they lived at the time (the father of the Sub-Baron was the lord) in the Dirt Plains called Faianots Village was ambushed by the army of Devas and a lot of the residents were killed. Of course the number of people who were taken prison exceed the number killed but Zenom and Sub-Baron Logflat (at the time he hadn't inherited family head yet so he was the second son of the sub-baron though) managed to barely escape being caught.

After that it seems the two of them were adventurers together. Everyone of the Sub-Baron's family in Faianots Village were killed other than him, and it was only discovered that he was the only one remaining able to inherit the family head two years later when Rombert Kingdom once again took back Faianots village.

Zenom said his family was wiped out as well. After that, it was quickly re-occupied by Devas Kingdom again and we arrive at the present. When Rombert Kingdom took it back it seems their hidden assets were still fine in the place they were hidden so he used that as source funds to start business and since he had some connections there he ended up managing a brothel before splitting up with Zenom after a short while. Then it seems that Zenom returned to being a wandering adventurer.

Since Sub-Baron Logflat didn't have a territory, he was still young at the time, and didn't have the flexibility to keep the third son of a squire like Zenom by his side, they didn't remain together.

“Zenom, why didn't you remain together with Sub-Baron Logflat?”

I tried asking Zenom that and,

“The Sub-Baron started his business dealing in lumber. During that time business was quite good and I helped out. But, he decided to move on to a different business with more profit. That's why he started the brothel but at first he struggled quite a bit...And trying to get it on track wasn't going very well. It's not unreasonable but as expected with my wages dropped down to the bare minimum~ I had to feed my wife as well."

"Eh? You were married?"

"Yeah, around the time we started business I married a woman I got to know while being an adventurer. When the brothel started I had no money. She easily passed away from a disease that was passing around. Maia was a good dwarf-like woman. Even from an early age she had a long and tough splendid beard... Ah, Maia is my wife. Sub-Baron Logflat cried while apologizing to me. I think that the reason the Sub-baron still hasn't married is he feels indebted to me. Even if I say I'm not bothered by it, he's still single. Since the Sub-baron worried about me too much, I started to feel uncomfortable about it..so I returned to being an adventurer. I guess that was around when I was 17.."

Zenom was unusually looking off into the distance while remembering his past as he talked.

"I see..That is.."

"Ah, don't worry about it. It's already a story from over 20 years ago after all. Recently I rarely remember it as well."

Zenom laughed while saying that.

Today I'm not going to the dungeon.

Let's go drinking with Zenom.

Since coincidentally Zulu is here as well, we're all guys, it's not bad to occasionally go drinking just the three of us.

Zenom likes alcohol but he's weak to it and in the first place Zulu doesn't drink though.

Drink-unication is a rule of being a salary-man.

Chapter 109: Peace of Mind

Year 7443, Month 8, Day 22

Just now we teleported from the 2nd floor of the dungeon in Baldukk to the 3rd floor.

We just finished eating lunch and taking a break for about an hour in the teleport crystal room of the 2nd floor. Since it's summer right now, we've been exploring since a bit before 6 am. The time has just passed noon or so. I'd say 12:15. I guess I'll get to checking the number on the crystal rod right away. 84 huh? Since it's an early number I'm sure we've come before.

I tried confirming with Gwine and "It's true we've come before. I can remember this place." is what she said. Just from a glance it feels like being in the center of a passage made of stone and you can't tell it apart from other places on the 3rd floor. However, I guess her Unique Ability can tell the vague differences in the width of the passage, the unevenness of the walls, floor, and the ceiling. If while using her Unique Ability she says "We've come here before" then that's a place we've visited before. She hasn't been mistaken about it even once up to now.

It's a frightening level of memorization in regards to terrain. And her ability to call up those memories and create an accurate map, has in some ways become a staggering force in battle. She doesn't things like the direction or where each area of the dungeon connects together but at the very least Ralpa can accurately determine the direction. By combining their two abilities together up until now our party has reached the point where when exploring a new area we only have to be careful of the traps.

Today we had already referenced our map and after determining that there was roughly five hours to the teleport crystal room on the 3rd floor, we started walking. It's necessary to pass through five rooms to get to the small room with the teleport crystal. I want to quickly pass through and secure our rest spot on the 3rd floor before evening.

It's already mostly become an operation, I freeze the lower bodies of monsters we meet on the way and then we kill them. If it's on the level of gnolls then for the sake of practicing our coordination we try fighting normally as well. In regards to the powerful monsters in the rooms we use magic to kill them all at once without pushing ourselves. We gather the magic stones almost like a machine and after double-checking the map we continue further into the dungeon. When killing monsters if we have some leeway then Bel and Ralpa will use attack magic to damage them as well.

We're winning easily and aren't struggling either. It's still the 3rd floor and the monsters have only increased in type by a few from the monsters on the 1st and 2nd floors. It's fine as long as I use magic to create ice, observe the battle(massacre), and remember to be cautious of our surroundings. Honestly speaking, as long as I don't let my guard down we can manage just about anything. Of course, there's not a single fool who would openly let their guard down in the dungeon.

Just as planned we arrived at the small room with the teleport crystal rod by evening. It's open today. Other than us there's two parties, a total of 17 people here before us. I'm already acquaintances with them. I create some dirt in the Northeast corner of the room that's gradually become our fixed place and after evening out the surface we start preparing to camp. In order to quickly get some rest and prepare for the 4th floor tomorrow, everyone moves quickly.

I put some hot water into the portable stove magic tool and while I was at it put some hot water in the 40 cm diameter bucket that Zulu was carrying as well. I took my shoes and socks off before putting my feet in that bucket and start massaging them. Zulu is a master of the foot massage. Angela isn't bad at it but there's no one who exceeds Zulu in putting in just the right amount of power. After washing my feet and having him massage them for about 10 minutes, I exchange the water in the bucket. We all feel like we're going to melt from Zulu's massage but it's heavy labor for Zulu.

During that time Angela puts vegetables or dried meat into a pot with hot water and stirs them up. At the same time she thinly cuts some bread and puts ham and mayonnaise on them to prepare simple sandwiches. We eat in the order after we've had our feet massages and finally Zulu and Angela eat until they're full. I put some dirt into the empty bucket. If you have to go to the bathroom you take this bucket to an appropriate place outside of the room and after taking care of your business you cover it with dirt. Since monsters won't come within 100 m of the room as long as you don't go too far away you can relax and take care of your business.

Excretions are absorbed by the dungeon in a period of about one month as far as I can tell. Corpses as well other than the bones and magic stone feel like they're decomposed and absorbed in about a month. Even leather armor at most lasts around two to three months. Dirt and water that's been create with magic and lasts permanently (water evaporates), equipment, and things which have a lot of metal will remain there until someone cleans them up. Also, cotton, hemp, and articles of clothing remain over quite a long period of time as well.

It seems that lumber remains for a number of years but it's hard to determine if this is just because the amount of time it takes for it to rot is too long and it's being absorbed or just rotting away. Since there's not much moisture on the 1st and 3rd floors it seems a lot of it maintains it's original form for quite a while.

I've talked with Bel and Ralpha about this a number of times in the past. Since it seems Toris and Gwine are interested as well they asked various questions but Zenom, Zulu, and Angela don't have much interest at all and if I try to point the conversation in their direction it's, "I don't know" if I keep asking then it finally reaches "is there some kind of meaning in knowing that?". I think this is probably the normal way of thinking for the average person on Orth.

If it's not something that has direct relation to yourself then it's quickly removed as a target of interest. Well it's true that in the dungeon there's a lot more things than that you should be paying attention to and those things directly have relation to your safety and life so it's not unreasonable. In our past lives we may have thought about the mysteries of the universe at some point but rather than something like that the weight of interest ends up leaning towards worries about our job tomorrow and reviewing for the next test at school.

Things like whether or not Pluto is a planet of the solar system or about a new type of deep-sea fish that's been discovered were unrelated to our lives. Even when it comes to how many people are dying in a war on the other side of the planet, or how many tens of thousands of children are starving it just ends up as fund-raiser, and just being satisfied or basking in that for a short while is plenty to erase it from your memory a short while afterwards. Even if a new insulation material has been developed and it comes to putting it in the walls of your house, if your wallet doesn't seem like it can manage it then you'll just remain satisfied with your current living environment and almost no one will try to gather more information than that. Things like the new carbon shaft of a new model of driver that sends the ball flying, without having your heart pulled towards that, unless it's a person with a certain amount of interest in golf they would overlook that news. In essence it's the same thing as that.

If it has no direct relation to your body recently then it won't arouse your interest. The moment you think "it has no relation me right now" your interest in it will largely be reduced. I'm sure that since reincarnated people have a high standard of education the degree at which interest is reduced is just smaller. I guess even more than that since they have a large combat potential like myself here it's lowered their sense of crisis enough that they have the composure to hold interest in trivial things? It's hard to decide if this composure is a good thing or a bad thing.

I was thinking about unstoppable things like that with my eyes closed wrapped up in my qiviut blanket as I fell asleep. However, all of the small teleport crystal rooms in the dungeon have a temperature which feels like it's in the early 10 degrees C all year around. It's nice in the summer because it's not hot but it's painful that you can't let go of your blanket.

"I'm very sorry, since the value of yen has suddenly dropped.."

I apologize to the person on the other side of the phone while pushing my seal down on a sales slip that's come from the desk next to mine. It's busy a whirl of busyness since the start of this week until this weekend. The value of yen suddenly dropped in price after the president of something or other FRB in America made a statement at the end of last week. About half of the goods that our company deals in we rely on imports from overseas. In order to maintain our profits whenever we get the chance to negotiate for a higher price we have to raise the price like this. Particularly foodstuff the majority of it were forwarding through FOB so the fare we pay to second party (transportation company) is influenced by the change in currency values.

Of course the other party is a child of man as well. If we start bringing up a price hike, there's no way they'll casually abide by what we say and say "Yes, I see.". They'll think of this or that method to haggle the supply price down. Occasionally it's necessary to handle those negotiations with pity and occasionally with a strong attitude. Among the imported foodstuff that our company deals in if you were to ask a lot of it is high quality and there's few fresh food items. Though there is a small amount of vegetables other fresh food items we stock up on from inside the country.

We sell the fresh food items we stock up on within the country and in exchange we request to hike the price of the imported foodstuffs, we sometimes even discount the price of the imported foodstuffs from the items we stock up on within the country while adjusting for the price hike. There's countless methods of negotiation depending on the other party.

"Excuse me. It's already at the very limit with this price. In exchange for the next three months on your side, we'll make sure the supply of kyo-yasai produced in Toyama doesn't run out, so this time just once.."

Huh? Isn't it old man Isobe? Why's he here? Even though he should have quite several years back...

"..Yeah, this is the * foodstuffs new product. With no additives, it's canned so it preserves well. Of course its place of origin is all within the country.."

And over here is Onishi. He should have quit quite a while back as well...

Ah, I'm seeing a dream. These two weren't around during the same period. Just when I was thinking I had seen a dream of my past life for the first time in a while it's of work...If you're going to then...

(....to.....tsu....ta..)

.....

I was shaken awake. I guess it's time to switch lookouts. Thanks to my habit of many years it's still not painful to wake up in the middle of the night. Unexpectedly, just that I was surprised by my own bad awakening. I rub my sleepy eyes and stretch out. After confirming that I was awake Toris crawls into his own blanket. Next to me it was just as Gwine was waking up Ralpa. We take sleep shifts in groups of two for two hours each. The ones who are on the first shift is fixed to the two slaves. After that we often change places. The reason the two slaves are fixed is because they build up quite a bit of fatigue from the massages and preparing the meals, it would be best to let them time their sleeping time all at once and the rest of us do it in rotations to avoid trouble.

When we first started with eight members we tried to keep lookout for one hour each with one person but putting aside if we had a fewer number of people, having someone to talk with makes keeping lookout easier so before realizing it had ended up like this.

I put my back to the wall of the dungeon while crossing my legs and just dazed out as I stared around the inside of the room. Before I notice it the population of the teleportation room of the 3rd floor had increased by quite a bit. At first I had difficult sleeping because of the fear and caution of being attacked by other adventurers in my sleep but since I'm already used to it recently even if there's a bit of noise I can just sleep right through it.

While we're doing this other parties that started resting before us are already putting together their belongings and heading to challenge the 4th floor. I'm sure they'll end up repeating to teleport countless times until they can get to a good location on their map as well.

After Ralpa woke up she put some tea leaves into a flask handed it to me. I'm sure she's saying to put in some hot water. I poured hot water into the flask.

"Hn, thanks."

Ralpa said that and sat down next to me, leaning her back on the wall just like I am. Since my throat isn't particularly dry I don't need any tea. The two of just sat there staring at the adventurers teleporting over and over again for a short while.

“I wonder why both Japanese and English are written there..”

Ralpa whispered.

“No clue~ Maybe it was made in the past by a Japanese person like us or someone who can speak English.”

I whisper a reply.

“For what reason?”

“No idea...If we were to go off our common knowledge then, I can't help but think of it as a facility constructed to protect something from illegal digging like the pyramids though..”

“Right~ Bel said it as well but there's one in Devas Kingdom as well right, a dungeon..”

“Ah, what was it again? Ah, Benkelish. I wonder if that one has the same feel as this place?”

“Who knows..At the very least since it seems like people gather from all over to make it rich, so there's no mistake there's treasures there though..”

“I wonder if they exist in other countries as well? Dungeons like this place.”

“I wonder? Since they say Krakuto Kingdom is a country made by adventurers like us about 100 years ago? That's why aren't they all over the place?”

“Right~ When it comes to underground dungeons you know, in old games something like an evil wizard steals a Magic Seal and makes it in order to hide, or like the island of Crete's legendary Minotaur was made to lock something inside, it's usually stupid but they're made for some type of objective like that right. I wonder what the objective of this dungeon of Baldukk is?”

“That's true right. If they didn't have some kind of objective they wouldn't make it right..but you know, if it was a large building? then you can usually tell the objective of the person who made it right? There's nothing like that in the dungeon. Since it seems to have been around in the past before Rombert Kingdom, I'm sure nothing accurate has been handed down but even then I think it's strange nothing has been told about them at all.”

“That’s certainly true..It would be fine even if it was mistaken information but, in the past..Urashima Taro constructed it, or things like that, it’s strange that there’s not even anything like that.”

“It seems like it was investigate a number of times but they weren’t able to figure anything out right..”

“Right, it might be different if they were to send in an elite unit of the first knight group but if they were to die it would be a huge loss after all..Even then since it might have some value it seems they send a number of investigation units in, in the past. But doesn’t everyone get split up when moving between floors. The deeper the floors they went the number of people gradually decreased, accord to record after the founding King there were several investigation units that made it to the 7th floor as well. During that time they sent in 100 elite members of the knight group and only half of those returned. Since the damage was too much they had to end up giving up it seems. Ah, this, was a secret I heard from sister don’t talk to anyone about it.”

“Yeah, I won’t say it. But, even half of them died..But since half of them were still remaining why didn’t they go a bit further?”

“No idea. What remained in the records is that there was an investigation unit that made it to the 7th floor and what’s been made to the public is up to the 5th floor after all. It seems that the state of the 6th floor is only open to the public in the form of the legends of Rombert the First, so I’m sure the investigation unit just peeked into the 7th floor before coming back. In the first place you know, for them to continue going even after having their numbers reduced to half, unless they had some serious confidence, or were a total idiot there’s no way they’d do that. In military terms if you take damage of over 40% it’s judged as annihilation. Well in this era I doubt it’s annihilation but even then there’s no doubt it’s a huge loss. If the elites were reduced to half all then it means that same at the ones who mange the army in the king were reduced to half as well. After that, didn’t they go through quite a bit of trouble to reorganize their war potential?”

“If something like that happened, unless something huge happened you wouldn’t think of investigating one more time right..”

“That’s only obvious. If I was the King I wouldn’t want to do something as pointless as that and even if my subordinates wanted to do it I’d force them stop.”

“I think I would as well..”

“Yeah, even if you leave it alone idiots like us will explore it all on their own. It’s fine as long as you know the result and if it’s delicious you can activate the power of the state and take all the good parts of it.”

“That’s true~”

“Oh?”

It was when we were whispering about pointless things as usual in Japanese. A new party entered the teleport room we were resting in...That is, the party of that one elf named Rozwela. I’ve seen his face a number of times in the dungeon. It seems he’s still surrounded by combat slaves as usual. As far as I know other than Rozwela himself he has 7 fixed members who are combat slaves with a reasonable level of ability. The remaining ones are pretty fluid and at longest it seems they die in about half a year.

The two of us watched Rozwela’s party quickly make preparations to rest. Since they don’t have an excessive amount of mana like me they’re sleeping directly on the rough and hard stone. Only Rozwela is sleeping on several blankets that are overlapped. There’s water inside of the large bucket that one of his slaves was carrying. After opening the lid of the bucket they scooped out some water and started making soup in a portable stove magic tool.

Even though it’s a huge bucket they have that many people. I wonder if it was close to becoming empty, one of the slaves seems to be using magic to put more water into the bucket. After finishing their meal they all laid down in groups of two or three before starting to get some rest. Rozwela isn’t all that harsh to nor does he say unreasonable things or treat his slaves particularly bad. It’s true that he’s caring for his slaves reasonably in his own way. Most of the rumors I heard at the start were just envy and even when I’ve talked directly with him I didn’t feel anything strange.

Rather, all of the parties which are called the top teams are mostly oddballs. The {Verdure Brotherhood} certainly makes a lot of money but a lot of them get too arrogant over that and show it in their behavior. Well if you think of it as a behavior backed by true ability then it's not as annoying so this is fine. Rather there are no oddballs among them. They're the ones who find the largest number of expensive magic items and since they've already earned plenty of money it's said they might retire pretty soon.

A human man in his prime of life is the leader of {Bright Blade} but there's a variety of dark rumors about them as well. A rumor that when they encounter other parties in the dungeon they attack them and steal all of their equipment before killing them all to erase the evidence. Honestly speaking, I wondered why such horrible things were said about them. But, every single one of them has an atrocious appearance and their normal behavior is rough as well. Since there's no evidence it's no more than at the level of rumors but just from looking at them I'm sure they're at a loss. It seems that there are people who have a serious grudge against them though. They're the ones who have the next highest rate of obtaining magic items after {Verdure Brotherhood}.

The leader of {Gehenna Flare} is a middle-aged Dwarf. They have 9 party members and they're all dwarves. At that point it already gives off an exclusive impression. I've only met them a handful of times in the dungeon but if Zenom wasn't in my party they probably wouldn't even have talked to us, or at least I'm tired of them declaring that. It seems they're having a drinking party every time they take a rest. Even that last time we met them the conversation started from "Do you have any alcohol? If you do we'll buy it." My impression of them is strongest that they're bringing back gems and things of that type.

We've made {Black Topaz} a number of times. A softhearted human woman is the leader. She's so softhearted you might wonder if she's an idiot. It's a complete rumor that one she might be cursed or take on some huge damage because of that. No clue what the karma relation between being softhearted and taking some huge damage is though. Most parties, "She acts like a senior to people who she has no relation to and gives out advice or rather preaches." say stuff like that out of annoyance but only the person herself doesn't know. By the time, it seems that her party members know about this matter but they've given up on it. Since the leader is a daughter of a high ranking noble the majority of the members are squires that serve that noble so they can't say anything. They obtain various types of treasures. It sounds good to say they're active on multiple levels but it feels like they're lacking in a deciding factor.

{Sun Ray} is an usual group of people and I don't really get who is the leader of them. It's a common rumor that they're donating almost all of their earnings from the dungeon to the temple. It's also said that they're all people who wanted to work at the temple but were rejected. It seems that there's a total of 15 of them but I guess they're switching out in rotation or something, I get the impression the members they have in the dungeon are changing places all the time. They're often bringing back a steady number of gold and silver nuggets.

There's no way we can rival them in terms of magic items but in terms of magic stones and old equipment we've collected from the dungeon we rival the lower top teams in terms of earnings so we the Slaughterers have gained a decent amount of attention as well. One of the factors of why we gather attention is because excluding Zenom all of the other members including the slaves are reasonably young. It's known that a human brad with plate-mail dyed black and a strange short spear is the leader. If it's outside of the dungeon then in most cases I have my sword in its scabbard at my waist so they really ever realize that I'm the leader of the slaughterers as well.

Rozwela's party fell asleep right away. Right now the lookout is just the human man alone.

"Hey, Al"

Ralpa started whispering to me again.

"Yeah?"

"About magic but I wonder what it is?"

"Eh?"

"I don't really get it. Doesn't it create something from nothing? If you say it's being created from mana then that's true but you know"

I guess she thought about it while watching the magician of Rozwela's party making water? I'm often doing it and Bel does it pretty often as well so I didn't think she would question it at this point.

“Ah, about that..I thought about it in the past as well but even now I still don’t really get it myself...I gave up since it can’t really be helped thinking about it.”

“Al have you ever, since you have a lot of mana thanks to your Unique Ability Magic Acquisition, though I think you’ve thought about it but don’t both magic and Unique Abilities use mana?”

“Yeah.”

“Can you not reproduce a Unique Ability with magic?”

“Hmn, I wonder? For example, you mean me becoming able to use Spatial Understanding?”

“That’s right. Well even if it’s not exactly the same, can’t you do something similar?”

“I wonder about that~ for the time being all of the Unique Abilities we know are, Magic Acquisition, Spatial Understanding, Shooting Intuition, Scale, Mapping, after that is just the names we’ve heard from Bel, Identify and Predictable Evasion. Well I don’t think you would know but as a matter of there’s two more, Resistance (Poison) and Charm as well. Resistance (Poison) is just as the name sounds, it’s an ability which gives resistance to poison. It seems that Charm lets the user make the opposite sex of their same race into their slave. Since I haven’t seen it used I don’t know for sure though.”

“He~ I wonder what else there is?”

I don’t know that far. However, I can somewhat guess. There’s several common points about all of the names that have come out so far. The people of this world, well not the former Earthlings, it’s like an expansion of the abilities of the people of Orth.”

Ralpa looks at me with a confused face. I continue my words.

“For example Magic Acquisition. It’s an ability where mana grows a lot and makes magic easier to learn. However, while this ability is weak there are a lot of people who have it. It’s the same for you as well right? If you use Spatial Understand it makes your senses sharper and you understand the direction. This seems abnormal but while it’s to a lower extent everyone has a sense of direction built into them. Haven’t you heard it in the past, feel the presence?

It's the same for Shooting Intuition as well.

Since I was in the SDF I get it well but there's actually people who have a superior intuition for shooting. No matter what the person they can shoot based off of intuition. Even when it comes to Scale it could be considered an expansion of sharpened senses. Even Identify, it's just my prediction but it's probably an ability like an expansion to Status Open. Even when it comes to Charm, you know about pheromones right? If you think of that as something that's been strengthened to an abnormal level, then it works as an explanation."

Even the Gift of Natural Talent, I'm sure that normally it's an ability to increase the efficiency with which you can learn things by up to three times. It's not hearing one thing and learning ten but it truly could be considered the source of genius.

"I see..if you put it like that then it does sound true. Even when it comes to Mapping we can do it on a simple level. Of course there's a difference that it's stupid to even try comparing them though. Even Predictable Evasion you can somehow imagine it, and Resistance (Poison) we already have some resistance to poison from the start right."

"That's right. If you predict from things up to there, then it could be thought that Unique Abilities are things that creates already possess in order to live on Orth just made tremendously sharp. However, there's no way to know for sure. It's a weird comparison but I wouldn't even be surprised if there was an ability which shoots destructive lasers from the eyes. If it comes to that then it's just a matter of my prediction being wrong."

"Well, that's fine. Since there's no way we can figure it out right? But, is there a relation between that and reproducing it with magic?"

"Not directly. But, there's special skills right? Like Bel's Super Sense of Hearing, or the Infrared Vision, Super Sense of Smell, Night Vision, and Instant Speed most non-humans have. Putting aside Unique Abilities, I think it has some relation to why these sorts of special skills that have been known since the past haven't been reproduced with magic. Well paralysis and skills that certain monsters have can be reproduced somewhat so the foundation is weak though."

“I see..”

“And, since you’ve already become able to use magic as well so I think you somewhat know as well but I think making a spell yourself is considerably difficult. Even I’ve never made a spell that is completely my original.”

“Eh? But doesn’t Al’s {Flamer Thrower} have a bunch of different varieties?”

“That’s just pouring an extra amount of mana into a normal {Flame Thrower} and raising the intensity, or forming it like a snake. It’s not my original. Just the same all of the magic we used when making rubber products have origins elsewhere as well. I’ve just modified those. As proof of that, isn’t the special skill that I would try to reproduce first have been ignored right?

There’s not a single spell which strengthens the abilities of the body. All there is a bit of healing magic. This might look like it’s strengthening the bodies ability to regenerate itself but it’s probably different. It’s not using magic to improve the abilities of the body but rather giving birth to ingredients for the body and forcibly connecting those together.

That’s why pain remains relative to the degree of injury. I actually think there might not actually be a spell to cure diseases. Either there’s no magic which can strengthen the abilities of the body or even if they do exist they’re in an area where they can’t be explained to others.”

Ralpa is listening with a difficult face.

“I think the reason that there’s no magic to increase defense for a short period, move faster for a short period, increase jump height, get stronger, be able to see farther, or hear better is because of that.

Ralpa can use fire and earth magic but do you think you could make a new magic that uses a combination of those? I think it’s impossible. Well even if it’s the exact same combination depending on your image the effect will differ so I won’t say it’s absolutely impossible though. With the same combination you use for {Fire Arrow} you can do simple healing as well right? Of course you can also do simple healing with the same combination as {Stone Arrow} as well. But, I think this is something you can do because you have the image after hearing before hand that it’s possible to do. As a matter of fact in the past I tried it quite a bit. In the end I wasn’t able to reproduce Infrared Vision. The same for others.”

“I see.”

Ralpha said that and smiled. Is this the place to smile? Here?

Chapter 110: 4th Floor

Year 7443, Month 8, Day 23

I finished keeping lookout and after waking Bel and Zenom up in the end I was able to fall asleep again by 3 am. And I was woken up at 5 am. After cleaning up our camping luggage, erasing the dirt on the floor, and confirming our equipment, I guess it's around 5:30 right now that we're holding the teleport crystal rod to the 4th floor. I chant the usual teleport incantation that makes no sense at all and we step foot on the 4th floor.

The 4th floor has the moisture of the 2nd floor and the white walls are similar to the 2nd floor as well made of dirt and stone. Also, it smells. It smells a lot. Since the walls are still giving off a faint light there's no for lighting. Gwine immediately uses her Unique Ability {Mapping} and determines if we've come here in the past or if it's an unknown place.

"It seems that this is our first time here."

I see, then it's a good chance to fill in the blanks in our map. After hearing Gwine's words and everyone started searching the pedestal of the crystal rod for the direction of the symbol. When you get to the 4th floor there's about a 50/50 probability of finding a number.

"O..h~ North is that direction."

Ralpa uses her {Spatial Understanding} Unique Ability to confirm the direction.

I searched as well but couldn't find a number. Then number 137.

"Bel, 137."

After I said that Bel she lowered her bag and took a brush and bottle of ink out. Then after searching for the direction the symbol on the pedestal points she wrote {壺参漆}. In order to prevent other parties from reading it, it's important to use numbers in kanji. I was amazed when Toris and Bel first proposed this. Up until then without thinking too much about it we were just using Orth numbers. We thought about a mix of normal Arabic Numerals and kanji numbers but since the structure of the characters is too simple someone might be able to figure out the rules to them right away so I thought it couldn't be helped.

By the way, just now we wrote the kanji numbers in alternative kanji but writing {百三十七} is fine as well and so is {壹百三十七}. Since it's fine as long as no other parties can read it. As proof of that occasionally we find some symbols we don't understand either. I think they're probably writing a code instead of numbers.

Bel quickly finished writing and after confirming she put away her tools, I made a wind in the passage and focus on discovering hidden pitfalls like the 1st and 2nd floors. Furthermore, the monsters on the 4th floor have nothing in common with those on the 3rd floor. Orks and Hobgoblins don't come out either. What comes out is just Zombies of those. Goblin-Zombie, Gnoll-Zombie, Ork-Zombie, Hobgoblin-Zombie is what they've become and in exchange for the Speed dropping quite a bit their Endurance has jumped multiple times higher so it takes quite a bit of time to finish them off.

In the end, since they're rotting corpses that are moving around the bad smell when fighting or taking the magic stones is seriously something hard to put into words. Since their HP is high you'd think the experience points they give would increase but their levels have dropped by 1 or 2 so they don't have as much experience points as I thought. Even then since their HP is high they're a bit better than their non-zombie counterparts.

The boss rooms are almost what you could call Ghouls and (as a matter of fact I've never seen anything other than that) in most cases they attack in groups of more than 10 of them. Their attacks are like the Scavenger Crawler where they have the ability to paralyze the targets they bite so it's quite a difficult fight. However, thanks to practicing my Remove Paralysis spell in our case it's not that much of a problem.

Well~ putting it simply since I can use the spell {Flame Thrower} I can just burn them to death in no time at all. Since there's the problem of experience points I'm still fundamentally freezing their lower bodies and after hitting down their weapons which are just being swung around, we cut off their arms and everyone finishes them off so it's honestly not much different from until now.

Since they look disgusting everyone's already tired of the 4th floor. Among us reincarnated people, including the women we assumed there were Zombies and Ghouls that would come out eventually in this world, and we had already known ahead of time that the 4th floor was a nest of Undead Monsters so we had prepared ourselves for it and didn't panic. However, Angela's feelings of disgust towards the "moving corpses" was severe and she's often throwing up. It's pitiful but it can't be helped.

Whether it be Zombies or Ghouls the smell is terrible but the bad smell floating around in the air of the floor itself is bad and Angela Super Sense of Smell isn't very useful. Since Infrared Vision is an ability which feels differences in temperature it's completely useless as well. Since the body temperature of the Undead Monsters isn't any different from the surrounding temperature after all.

There's a small number which get caught up in Zulu's Night Vision and Bel's Super Sense of Hearing but since Undead Monsters don't normally move around much, so honestly speaking other than my Identify Vision they're almost completely useless. Well when it comes to Zulu's Night Vision he can see a bit further down the passage and since they've lost their ability to charge from before they turned into Zombies so it's a big help we almost never get ambushed.

After sending some air down and blowing away any dirt that's camouflaging the pitfalls it's about time for us to proceed ahead. Starting from this floor in most pitfalls there's something like a wooden reverse stake buried inside of them. Also, the traps where arrows shoot at you have increased from the 3rd floor as well. In a position where you can or can't see a turn, on the wall in front of you of about 30–40 m they're fired from somewhere on the floor around there and there's almost always a switch to launch it hidden on the floor somewhere. Since just like the pitfalls it makes these easier to find they're not that much of a threat to us either.

Rather than that what we're all sick of is the hidden doors. The zombies that are in the halls are fine. Since their movements are dull and they have a lot of stamina, other than the fact that they're difficult to defeat right away it's just an extension of everything up to now. However the doors which are skillfully hidden in various places of the dungeon are troublesome. Around 30–60 seconds after we've passed the hidden door it opens and Zombies start coming out in swarms. I can find them with Identify but when that's not the case it's extremely difficult to notice them unless you get close so they're troublesome.

When I first saw one I couldn't even imagine there was a door in the dirt and stone wall so I tried Identifying it. Well it came out as {Door} so I understood right away but when I discovered the hidden door I was in the middle of the formation. It couldn't be helped so I had to wait until we were somewhat close before and say something like that. After thinking about it more calmly later even if it was pointless it would have been more natural use wind magic and say “I feel like something just moved over there.” Obviously if you don't have Identify there's no way to tell the difference between it and the surrounding walls. However, we've finally been able to discover a difference. About 150 cm from the ground there's a long thin slit open. Though in my case I only noticed it because the overall brightness of the door is different thanks to my Unique Ability Identify.

That time I ignored Bel who was at the front and went to the side of the door first. No matter what happens I was sure I could deal with it and I have a lot of HP. In addition I'm the one wearing the rubber protectors with the highest defense. The highest possibility is that there's monsters hiding behind the door but it's not like there was a knob so after putting some distance from the slit I gently peeked in.

Just as I expected I met eyes with the eyeball of an Ork that had turned into a zombie.

“There's something in there.”

I said that while going on guard with my bayonet and telling everyone to be careful. Even though we were on guard since we remained near the door the Ork Zombie never came out. If you get close and look carefully at it everyone was able to distinguish them but if you aren't told it's there it's cleverly hidden so well with the surrounding walls that you would overlook it.

Since it seemed to be turning into a battle of patience I had everyone slowly advance forward while we remained careful of the rear and passed by, and when we were about 10 m away the door slowly opened. Then Ork Zombies started swarming out of the hidden door so I froze their lower bodies all at once. After we finished cleaning up all of the zombies we tried investigating inside of the hidden door.

There was something like a small room that's 4 m in every direction and other than the chunks of meat or rotting juices, there was nothing else unusual. It seems that the lookout keeps an eye out the slit and when the prey has passed by they try to ambush from behind. It's a frightening trap. If I didn't have Identify we would have definitely took an ambush from behind at least once. If the timing of that had unluckily been in the middle of combat even being wiped out was a possibility.

In any case, discovering this traps is difficult. Even though it was fine just paying attention to the floor until now, we need to start looking for slits in the walls as well. Because of that on the 4th floor other than locations Gwine has made the map for already we can't let our guards down at all and particularly when we enter an area for the first time our nerves are worn down much more than the floors until now. Of course, if I see it with Identify Vision then that's all it takes but it's important to get into the habit of remaining cautious while advancing so even if I notice them I usually just ignore it. However, since everyone has their eyes wide open while moving forward I guess we haven't overlooked discovering a single one of them.

We once tried experimenting with it where I ordered Zulu to nail a stake into the door and make it so it doesn't open. After that we remained cautious while advancing but it seems that door opened towards the inside so there was no meaning to it. I wonder if eventually sliding doors will come out?

Just like this day after day we've been making the map for the 4th floor. Today is an extension of that but since we guess we've already filled in about 70% of the 4th floor we wanted to try aiming for the 5th floor. However, since we ended up teleporting to an unexplored area it's a good chance to fill in the blanks and we're trying to produce the map as much as we can. If we were to try and get to the 5th floor we can get there anytime. There's no need to hurry.

It's already been over three hours since we stepped foot in the 4th floor of the dungeon. We've walked around quite a bit while remaining cautious of traps and hidden doors. Anymore investigation than this requires returning to the split path a bit back and then going to what we believe to be a room ahead of that.

I gave the instruction to everyone and we all prepared our resolve. We've only seen Ghouls but just as you would expect from the room boss of the 4th floor they're a considerably strong monster. Even when their lower body is frozen they keep swinging their arms around trying to paralyze us. It's important to swing your weapon with good timing and cut off their arms. It's not too late to heavily damage them after that.

The first room we entered had 9 Ghouls in it. It's a bit low but thanks to that it's true it was easier, so always welcome. The same as usual we crush the swarm of Ghouls and pick one of the passages we can see before advancing ahead. After proceeding for about another hour we found a different room. I quietly peeked inside and just as expected there were Ghouls in it.

Just like before we finished them off again and proceed even further. We ended up hitting a {T} shaped end where the path splits in two ways. It seems there's a room a bit over 10 m to the North. I can see a group of Ghouls. In the South there's another room a bit over 10 m as well. This one seems from a glance like there's no monsters in it.

Well, since we're in the middle of producing our map, it can't be helped wasting time. If there's no boss then it's just a matter of passing through. I'm sure it's before it's revived. After saying that we moved towards the empty room to the South. There's nothing particularly different from the rooms until now. It's a large room around 50m in every direction.

There's a hall stretching out in front of the Northern wall that we entered from. There's no hall on the Eastern or Western sides. There's the skeletons of the previous victims of this room all over the room. Since there's no boss it must have just been exterminated by some different adventurers before us. Even if we try digging through them there's no way there would be a convenient thing like magic stones or items remaining..There is some!

"Hey, that, is a spear right? And there's a sword and shield remaining over there."

I said that and everyone was surprised and started looking around the room.

"Th..That is a sword as well right."

"Oh~ there's still quite a bit remaining."

"I wonder if that's a spear."

"Isn't it fine, let's go and pick them up."

"That's right, let's split up and pick them up."

"Al, I'm counting on the bonus."

"No problem."

After saying that we each split up to gather the items scattered throughout the room.

I moved to pick up the sword and shield that seemed to have fallen in the Northeastern corner as well.

This is a huge harvest.

I can't hold back my smile.

..However, if there's still this much equipment remaining then either the adventurer's who passed through this room must have been quite the hurry or in order to avoid combat they just passed through dragging the boss along with them. In the cast, it's dangerous. They say the boss won't go further than 100 m from the room. If the adventurers run further than that then it's the same as the boss coming back.

"Everyone be careful, the boss might return"Uo!!!"

My voice was erased by Toris's yell. I reflexively looked in the direction of the voice and was horrified. The boss didn't chase after any adventurers. It was still just remaining in the room. Ah, it's nothing something like the skeletons in the room stood up and turned into a skeleton warrior. I had been cautious that there would be enemies like that since the moment I heard the 4th floor was a nest of Undead Monsters but recently I've guessed that there are none.

After all skeletons don't have the body to store a magic stone inside. It's a weak basis but it's only obvious that monsters have magic stones. And the magic stone of almost every monster is near their heart. It might be different if their heart was in their skull but if that's not the case it's hard to imagine there's something like a skeleton monster which can't maintain a magic stone. At the very least up until now we haven't run into a monster like that so I think it's correct as a theory.

The boss of the room that just came out was completely different from something like that. It seems it fell into the center of the room from the ceiling. It looks like a naked man.

What the! This guy!? He's dangerous!

No, he's not dangerous because he's naked, of course.

"Run away!"

Before I could even yell that I created ice in his surroundings including my allies. It seems that Toris was able to move about 2 m away as well. He's the closest one but even then there's a distance of over 5 m. I don't have enough leisure to think about how many and who of my allies got dragged into the ice.

Without a moment's delay I hit with {Stone Javelin}.

I'll definitely crush his head faster!

The stone spear goes flying a super high speed.

He's pointing his right hand over here.

Was he already doing that the moment I froze him?

But, it's already too late!

There's no way his spell will make it in time!

I take off running at the same time.

Of course I'm still glaring at my target his head.

And, he used a spell from his right hand!

It's fast.

It seems he used the spell {Stone Javelin}.

His and my Javelins pass by and his javelin is hit by mine.

However, it seems like the aim of my javelin missed as well and it only gouged out his left shoulder before stabbing into the wall behind.

Shit!! I should have made it a missile.

I run while using magic again.

This time for sure!

"{Fire Javelin Missile}"

I send five of them flying all at once.

My right foot stands on top of the ice.

I put all of my power into my right foot and lift my entire body up.

The five fire spears remain the pentagon shape as they fly towards his head and chest.

It seems he still can't use his next magic.

Just like this we can win!
I'll burn his head, and open holes in his chest with the remaining four fire spears!

"Muo...!"

I let out a war cry and make sure his attention is focused only on me.

Alright!

Huh?

Just a moment before the spears of fire were about to hit right in the middle of his face and chest that occurred.

He shifted his head to the right and while the spears stuck into his chest, I wasn't able to hit his face.

The spear that was flying at a high speed just kept going and hit the wall before dispersing into flame and disappearing.

Even if it's a missile since my spears move so fast in order to properly control them I need some distance from the target.

The cause of just now was that he shifted his head right before it was about to hit.

There's a hand-axe {Tomahawk} stuck into the left side of his head. Also, there's an arrow stabbed into his left temple.

Zenom huh?

No, it's Ralph and Bel...

Idiots.

What are you going to do if his attention focused on you?

Since things are frozen {Lightning Bolt} is too dangerous.

Tori is too close to damage this guy with {Fire Ball}.

Alright.

I throw down my bayonet and point both of my hands towards him while concentrating in an instant.

“{Disintegrate}”

I guess he detected an immense amount of mana, the moment he shifted his eyes over here, he turned to dust.

If possible I didn't want to use that.

I've trained using it quite a bit but it even disintegrates the magic stone down to the atoms.

It's my specially reserved spell.

I pick up my bayonet and use {Anti-Magic Field} to release my allies who's lower bodies are frozen in ice.

The amount of combat time was only about 5 seconds, so there's no way there would be any frostbite.

Other than Zulu, Angela, and Gwine they were all frozen.

Ralpa is looking at me with an apologetic face but I'm amazed this fellow was able to move so well on the spot. Not to mention when she can't brace her lower body and only her upper body was free to move, I'm amazed she was able to throw the axe that accurately. Bel has her Shooting Intuition so I'm sure she could accurately hit it though.

Since half of Zenom's axe as frozen as well I'm sure he couldn't throw it.

“Is anyone injured?”

Just in case I used Identify on everyone. For some reason Bel's MP has decreased. Ralpa's MP has decreased by 1 as well.

Since it seems there's no abnormalities with anyone I was relieved.

After that I spent the time to erase all of the ice and we gathered the items. There were two, two-handed swords, two bastard swords, nine long swords, seven broad swords, four infantry use short swords, eight various types of shields, and thirteen long weapons like spears and pole-weapons. It's a massive amount of items that we've never found before.

Furthermore, I gained more than 30,000 experience points. It seems that Ralpa and Bel each gained about 1,000 as well.

The spell {Disintegrate} requires being able to use all elemental magic at level

3 or above. However, in order to use the bare minimum {Disintegrate} which only disintegrates a volume of about 1 liter or a volume of a 10 cm cube it uses up 15 MP. It's a spell which you normally use on the weapon the opponent is holding.

In the case that you use it on a living creature if you use it on an opponent that has a greater volume than the effect of the {Disintegrate} then it has no effect. Since just now was scary I used it 200 times, in other words I made it so it can erase up to 200 liters of volume. I don't know what his body weight or volume is after all, in any case it was scary. I even used up 3,000 MP. It's an attack that is difficult for even me to use consecutively. Thank god he wasn't fat.

Even if Ralpha says something like "Even though that {Tomahawk} was something I had Zenom bought for me.." I'm not listening to it.

Chapter 111: Towards the 5th Floor

Year 7443, Month 8, Day 23

Since we somehow defeated a powerful opponent that we don't know much about and we obtained a number of items we took a small break after that while discussing what to do.

..As expected this time was no good. I didn't expect that I would have to cut my trump card. No, to be more precise I didn't think I would have to use it at the level of the 4th floor. I thought at most I might end up needing to use it on a deeper floor like the 5th or 6th floors but honestly speaking I can't say anything other than that I was underestimating it. I had Identified him about one second after he jumped down next to Toris. He was probably disintegrated around 5–6 seconds after that but I feel like I fought him for over a minute.

Since I only glanced at them I don't remember for sure but I saw Vampire and including magic he had a mountain of special skills. He even should have had over 200 HP. If something like that comes out again then this time it'll be bad. I only have 3,700 MP remaining. I used 200 times in that instant but I went overboard.

As expected the only way it would reach 200 times is if he was a bodybuilder or had a splendid physique like that but it should have been plenty around 130–150 times. As proof of that the surrounding ice where his lower body was disappeared from the aftermath of the {Disintegrate}. There's no need to aim for something that's barely enough but too much is also a problem. I'm sure I could have saved 750 MP. If I have over 4,000 remaining then I would have made the decision to continue without hesitation.

“..Wouldn't it be best to return?”

I can hear Toris's voice.

“But, this is an unexplored area. We might be able to find some ores or something..”

Ralpa huh?

“It’s true, it’s suspicious if there’s anyone who made it this far and returned to the surface. I’m sure all of the bones scattered around were done in by him.”

Zenom says gravely.

“He just looked like a normal person with a slightly bad facial color though..was he a monster?”

This is, Gwine?

“I don’t know. But, I saw him avert masters stone spear spell with his own stone spear spell. It’s true it’s not something that a normal person would have been able to do.”

Zulu’s voice was calm.

“I didn’t feel like that man was alive. His skin was extremely pale as well..and his eyes were shining red..”

Angela says with some restraint.

“..A nest of undead huh..It might have been a vampire..”

Bel whispered as she said. Correct answer.

“Gwine, draw the map up to here. Bel and Ralpa put the weapons together so they’re split up into groups for each of us to carry about the same amount of weight. Zenom..Nn, use this sword. Ralpa use Zenom’s {Tomahawk}. Zulu, remain cautious of the hall on the other side. Angela you watch this side. Don’t go too far away from here, it would be a pain if the Ghouls in the Northern room were called over. Zenom, Toris, come with me for a bit.”

I hand Zenom one of the more decent short swords of the weapons we found this time and after gathering him and Toris on my side we opened the map of the 4th floor. It was unexpected that we would lose a weapon. Since I’m here I thought we wouldn’t easily lose our weapons and in order to reduce our luggage until now we haven’t prepared spares. I couldn’t imagine that I would end up disintegrating it to dust...

“We came to the 4th floor at around 5 am this morning so it’s been over four hours. Calculating the distance we walked then the area we teleported to this time should either be here or here. If we match up the map Gwine is drawing later I’m sure we’ll know for sure. Then in that case there’s a high probability it’s not connected to the room with the teleport crystal to the 5th floor. It’s the usual cave area. And then”

I looked at their two faces while continuing my words. Zenom is making an amused face. Toris is listening seriously but has a slightly strange expression on. Hmph.

“Since I was surprised just now I used quite a bit of mana. However, I can somehow use that spell I used in the end just now once more. I can’t say anything until Gwine finishes drawing the map but if it’s this area then since it’s small I think we’ll keep going. But, if it’s this area over here then it has a shape like it fits in so it’s possible it could be quite wide. In that case I think we’ll return from here. Let me hear your opinion.”

“This time, we’ve managed to get our hands on this much equipment. I’m sure it’s a big profit. I think we should return while we’re still safe and have energy to spare.”

Toris said that. He seems to be quite the cautious type.

“That’s fine as well but if that guy was using this as a nest then from here on out is probably a completely unexplored area. In that case we might be able to obtain something. We never know when we’ll be able to come next time after all..”

Zenom, you’re intentionally saying it. I guess you’ve already seen through my thinking.

“I understand that much but..However, was that guy just now really that strong? I was surprised because he suddenly jumped down but.. in the first place I wonder if it was a monster?”

Toris looks at Zenom while saying that.

“Just from his appearance he looked human. He didn’t have a tail after all. But, that skin color was far too unnatural. Maruso said it as well but his eyes were bright red. And..this is just my intuition but that guy was dangerous. I felt like he was a considerably dangerous opponent.

In the first place, isn't it strange that he would be this far in the dungeon with no equipment completely naked? He didn't seem to have anything that looked like a weapon either. If Al hadn't called out to everyone and gotten us to make a bit more distance before freezing it then I felt like something terrifying would have happened."

Zenom said responding to that. I think this is probably Zenom's true feelings on it. It's a serious tone of voice that I can't imagine is just acting.

"In that case there's even more reason. There was only one of those this time. If more than two of them were to come at once..Al-san, as expected isn't that bad?"

Toris looked at me along the way and said. Yeah, it's bad. Next time if it's one person then I can erase them right away with {Disintegrate} or if it's safe I can use an extra-large {Fire Ball} to blow it into pieces but there's a good possibility that one more will use magic during that time. In worst case one of us might end up being killed.

If it just hits an unimportant place like the arms or legs then they won't die after averting it with my {Stone Javelin} but if it hits their face or chest even instant death is possible. Before I could reply Zenom said.

"That's true but it's not like that's for sure right. I can't imagine that there's very many things like that around. If there's no one who has stepped foot beyond this then we might be able to obtain some gold, silver, or gems after all."

You're quite the actor~ Zenom.

"But.."

"What Zenom says is quite right. However, we can buy our safe return. I. If we were to know for sure there was a huge treasure waiting beyond here then it would be different though. Let's return."

Toris passes.

The speed we explored the 4th floor the first time we stepped foot there was roughly an average speed of about 1.3 to 1.5 Km/hour. Our speed has gone up quite a bit since we first took a step in the dungeon last year but even then our speed itself has it's limits. It's not like we're competing so how fast other parties move through doesn't matter at all, and I already have almost no interest so it's unrelated. Either way I'm sure we're overwhelmingly faster. Other than the two blank areas remaining on the 4th floor that I just pointed out there's a number of small areas that remain as blanks.

After we matched it up to Gwine's map and just as expected it was connected to a total of five blank areas. Among those two of them have the possibility of being connected to what's said to be the center of the dungeon where the teleport crystal room is. It's rough but until we fought the vampire today we've explored a distance of about 5 Km. On our way back even though everyone was carrying a decent amount of luggage it was only about two hours. It wasn't a straight line but it's a reasonably large size.

In regards to Toris I only pointed out to the two larger blank areas on the map of the 4th floor. I'm sure that after seeing that Toris thought it was unnatural from his expression but he wasn't so foolish as to point that out there. And even if I pointed out the fact that we could earning something even more valuable he didn't show any interest in it. Rather than treasure he took safety. As long as you're still alive the chance will come around again. Depending on the person they might say it's cowardice but that's fine. I don't think I'm a coward. I just think I'm cautious.

All of the items we found like never before ended up exceeding 11,000,000 Z (11 gold coins). I gave out bonuses of 220,000 Z (22 silver coins) to the other 5 than the slaves and we all went to eat, drink, and rest early. Since tomorrow is Saturday we're doing cooperation training in the morning and the afternoon is off.

.....

Year 7443, Month 9, Day 4

My head hurts. I wonder if this is a migraine? If it was too much for me to handle I thought about taking the day off but as long as we don't overdo things it shouldn't be a problem. In order to eat breakfast when I left the inn the migraine disappeared almost as if it were a lie.

I can handle it, there's no problem.

.....

Year 7443, Month 9, Day 5

We cleared the 4th floor and peeked into the 5th floor.

Just from a glance it doesn't seem all that different from the 4th floor.

However, according to previous information there's something like moving statues and an altar with a burning black flame from it that have been confirmed. Those are probably things that appear in the rooms. Let's avoid going to the rooms for now. We should just confirm what type of monsters come out in the halls of the 5th floor and then return. After all, that one ice monster starts coming out around this floor. I'm sure that ice monster is probably a room boss as well though.

By the way there was not a single person in the teleport crystal room of the 4th floor. However, there was several traces of camps remaining so I was able to confirm once again that the top teams are often coming here.

The monsters that appear in the halls of the 5th floor weren't all that different from the 4th floor and made up of primarily undead. Just, Ghouls started appearing in the halls as well. Honestly seeing it lined up together with the decomposed corpses of Zombies gives me the chills. We tried avoiding the rooms and walking around for a bit but we didn't run into any other monsters.

Shall we return?

.....

Year 7443, Month 9, Day 8

We tried going all out and looking into the room on the 5th floor once. Just like the time I first looked into the room with the Scavenger Crawler I remained tense while slowly looking into the room. This is the 5th floor that even the top teams haven't cleared yet. I won't let me guard down even a bit.

....

What is, that?

A dog?

I can see various silhouettes like a doberman.

I tried Identifying it and it was a Zombie-Dog. I don't know if it's lost it's sense of smell but the only special skills it has are Infrared Vision and Paralyze. I don't know if it had Infrared Vision since the time it was alive but I feel like Paralyze is something it gained once it turned into an undead. No idea though.

I freeze the entire room with a thickness of above 30 cm from the floor.

I turn around and nod to everyone before preparing my bayonet and going into the room.

Everyone follows after me. One, two...There's 12 Zombie-Dogs letting out something like rotting juices that could be mistaken for drool as they growl and howl at us but unlike a living dog it has a deep sound mixed in so it's an unpleasant howling sounds.

"It seems they can't move because their legs are frozen.."

Zulu said.

"Yeah, that's right. Let's start hitting the closest one from all sides and finish it off?"

Just when I replied to that.

"Gwoarrurururu?!"

Just when I thought one of the Zombie-Dogs let out a howl it came flying over here.....!

! If I look closely it's limbs have been torn off. Different from the zombies of Orks and Hobgoblins, since it's legs are thin it even tore them off all on it's own!?

I split the one that jumped at me starting from the front of it's head with my bayonet that I suddenly went on guard with. If you approach within a certain distance of them the Zombie-Dogs are tearing off their own limbs and jumping at us one after another but if you pull back a bit they just fall on top of the ice and weren't any sort of threat at all. If we calmly deal with them there's no problem at all.

However, it would be dangerous in the worst case if we can't evade it so I had Gwine's spear and Ralpa and Bel use magic to finish them off once more before we gathered the magic stones.

.....

Year 7443, Month 10, Day 8

"..Nn, this should be fine. The point is around there."

I pointed to the Oshima floating device with my chin. There's close to 100 people on the breakwater and they're all enjoying fishing, eating a light meal, or talking about things. This is above the bank of Okada Harbor in Izu Oshima. Everyone on top of the breakwater is one of our employees or their family. Since our company has no system for employee trips, on a appropriate weekend of the summer we matched our activities with a fishing club of some place and went on a bit of a small vacation.

On Friday night the previous day, we finished up work early and took an eight hour trip a large-scale passenger ship from the town of Hamamatsu to Oshima. We arrived at Oshima at about 6 in the morning but until lunch we played around just like that in the harbor fishing. After having lunch an a random store we entered the inn, it's fine to bath in the sea, or to return to fishing again as well. After enjoying ourselves until evening we can have light party with the fish we caught and then enter the hot springs before resting. Until noon of the next day we can do as we please and then just after noon we'll take the Jettfoil* to return to the Takeshiba Bridge in the town of Hamamatsu in less than two hours.

If we put some sort of large scale name on it like employee vacation then everyone might take it like they're obligated to participate so we just limited it to calling it lodging along with the activities of a fishing club. It's fine as long as people who want to come and people who it's convenient for come. In order for even young children and people who don't normally fish to enjoy themselves, we're not fishing on a boat but picked the bank as a place to do some simple fishing.

Unlike the fish along the shores of Honshu, the fish of a detached island aren't used to being fished so if it's at the level of a mackerel then even a child who's held the fishing pole for a first time can catch them. If they're lucky they might even catch an island mackerel. If it's someone like me who has a decent level of control and confidence in their skill with the rod then if I use the Oshima device then even from the bank I might be able to catch some sea bream, or medina.

I put some krill on the rod of my wife who is weak to boats while (they only sell krill as bait on Oshima), "Eh..Where?" I point to make it easier to tell for my wife.

"Kawasaki-sa~~~~n, is this fine~?"

A bit of distance away a young new employee is calling out to me. I tried looking over there and the way they hooked the bait completely sucked.

"You won't be able to catch anything with that, you put the hook in through the tail and pass it up through the stomach."

I said that while going to their side and fixing it for them once. On the other side some elementary school or so siblings are frolicking after catching some mackerel. On the other side I guess it seems to be a newcomer girl to the warehouse management together with her boyfriend, a young couple is frolicking in the same way as some elementary schoolers, "No~ It's alive! I can't touch~ it~" ooo, how cute.

I look at the state of everyone while walking and check if anyone is troubled. When I was about to return to my wife's side and turned around on the edge of the bank, someone started talking to me.

"Wai, Kawasaki-sa, wai"

It's Shiina. This fellow was supposed to have been participating alone. Since she's young I'm sure it's lonely with no one to bring along. Her rod was bending largely. She didn't seem to be sticking to one spot but wandering all over the bank but I guess she had come to this place.

“Oh~ That has a good feel to it! Calm down! Give it your best!”

I light up my cigarette while cheering her on. Shiina regains her composure while panicking, and carefully starts the exchange. On her side Inoue who's brought his girlfriend along that he's marrying next month, I walk past them and help Shiina with the rod from her side while smoking my cigarette and made sure it remained in the water.

Oh~ It's a huge Fat Greenling like a beer bottle. It's a big catch!

(....no..i.....wa....)

.....

I was shaken awake by Bel. It seems it's about 5 in the morning. This is the teleport room of the 3rd floor.

(Somehow I feel like I was seeing a fun dream...How unfortunate.)

“Alright! Let's get right to passing through the 4th floor and go to the 5th floor!”

I said that energetically and used water magic to wash my face.

I make water in a bucket and in addition floated some ice in it.

Everyone washes their face with the cold water and we finished preparations feeling refreshed.

.....

Year 7443, Month 11, Day 29

We've filled in close to 40% of the map of the 5th floor, we've finally risen up to the ranks of the top teams. Though it hurts that we still haven't discovered even a single magic item but this is completely a matter of luck. However, we've found one raw emerald gem, one gold ore, and two silver ores. The gold ore was on the 4th floor and the remaining ones we found all of them on the 5th floor. The raw gem and gold ores each ended up with a price tag of over 10,000,000 Z (10 gold coins). The silver ores were around 1,000,000 Z.

In addition to these items, every time we go to the dungeon we bring back a huge amount of magic stones totaling about 2,000,000 — 3,000,000 Z, so it's said that it's just a matter of time before the Slaughterers get their hands on a magic item as well. Of course I think so too. Everyone thinks so.

However, we definitely won't let our guards down or too arrogant. If anyone shows signs of that we all warn them. Things feel good. Honestly speaking, being able to make it to one of the top adventurers in Baldukk in around a year and a half is good performance. And I'm sure we're the ones with the most accurate map as well.

If we don't let our guards down and properly continue our adventures then I'm sure we'll be able to reach the 6th floor before anyone else. If it comes to that then we'll almost entirely be able to monopolize the treasures. Sooner or later the other guys from the top teams will come to the 6th floor I'm sure, I'm sure we'll do some slightly dangerous things when we're the first ones to arrive on the 6th floor to obtain whatever treasures there are as well.

Until then we just need to keep moving forward one step at a time without getting impatient.

Chapter 112: Greed Company Headquarters

Year 7443, Month 12, Day 1

After paying the wages for the five others that aren't slaves we were about to head the dungeon the same as usual. Along the way, I started talking about things from here on out.

"Since it's about come to the point where we can clear through the 5th floor, from here on..I guess so, in another two months or so I don't think we'll be able to continue with only staying one night in the dungeon like right now but what should we do?"

I start talking to Zenom about that and,

"That's certainly true..It takes from morning to evening to get to the end of the 3rd floor after all..Things get pretty harsh if we don't take a nights rest there. And no matter how much we used to them it seems like getting through the 4th and 5th floor will take a full day as well. It might be about time for us to think about staying in the dungeon for a full week like other parties."

After looking at my face he looked up and replied.
Everyone else didn't say anything in particular but I can tell they don't really like the idea of it. After all, right among the 6 days in the week we're exploring the dungeon for 4 days, and have one half day off, and only one full day of rest. In other words, we only have 5 full days of breaks during the month. If it comes to this then it might be better to not use the standard as one week of work but rather one month.

For example, it might be good to split it into 10 days. From the first day until the sixth day we're in the dungeon, and then we have two days off on the seventh and eighth days and get some proper rest. On the ninth day we go to the dungeon but not to explore just to practice our cooperation. Nevertheless, if I think about the density of our training it still feels more efficient to do it in the vacant lot at the edge of town as we have up until now. And we rest on the tenth day. If we do this then the number of work days until now was 22.5 days will decrease to 21 days. However, the amount of time we'll be in the deeper floors of the dungeon will be incomparable to what we have until now so if we look at it comprehensively if it has any effect on our earnings it would rather increase them.

The problem is whether we can suddenly spend a whole week inside of the dungeon so putting it frankly, the amount of time we're restricted will increase more than now. You could also change the way of saying as the amount of time we can comfortably sleep on a bed will decrease. We still have to properly pay for the cost of the inn even when we're not staying there. Well, if it's an entire week, then it's like using the inn as an expensive locker but since everyone has amassed a decent amount of wealth. It's also possible to take one persons room and put everyone's stuff there for the time we're out but if someone were to take another persons room during that time it would probably feel unpleasant.

If they're interested in it, I could make use of my privilege as a Type-2 company and create a paid locker in the government office of Rombertia and Baldukk as well. It costs an amount the same level as the cost of an inn but if you gather your assets into a currency above silver coins it isn't all that bulky so if you definitely want to store your assets it's a potential option. Although, this is an asset preservation system for Type-2 companies when they're in the vicinity of the capital to do business for a few days so there's not many people who use it for long periods. That's why it requires quite an expensive maintenance cost of 5,000 Z (50 copper coins) per day.

It's a 60 cm or so cube locker but even if it's just silver coins you put quite a few inside and if you made it into gold coins then let alone a town you could fit enough of them in to buy an entire territory and still have some change leftover. I'm sure you could easily fit several billion Z inside. When you leave it to them the officials produce a list of the amounts and goods inside and confirm status as well. Obviously the license of a Type-2 company is necessary as well so even if they're a noble if they don't have a company over Type-2 then they can't use it.

After that another method of safely maintaining your assets is leaving them at the temple. As a matter of fact at the temple in Baldukk I'm borrowing a locker similar to the one at the government office. I'm saving up all of the assets I've earned from business selling armor and inside of the dungeon. It costs the large amount of 300,000 Z (30 silver coins) per month but for starters it's safe and since you can just keep leaving stuff there it's reliable for me. The only amount I have on hand is at most? 10,000,000 Z (10 gold coins).

By the way, right now I've left 370 gold coins there, a bit over 370,000,000 Z. Gold coins have a diameter of a bit over 6 cm and width of over 3 mm, so if it's just 500 or so of them then they'll fit inside of a small bag. It seems that platinum coins are one size larger but since I've never seen the real thing I don't know. Even gold coins you can only use at reasonably large stores and right now just one locker is plenty large enough so I have no problem at all.

I digressed a bit there but I guess it's going overboard worrying about the cost of their inn huh? Since I'm paying plenty in wages and how they use that is their freedom.

"..Hn..I guess so. I guess it's fine as we are now until we get to 80% completed on the map of the 5th floor. Either way when we go to the 6th floor there's no choice but to change the method we do it, let's think about it after seeing the 6th floor a number of times."

Even then suddenly spending a week in the dungeon is something to consider over. It might be better to slowly increase the days instead. I'm sure it's necessary to get used to the mentality of remaining tense for several days straight after all.

Year 7443, Month 12, Day 2

We've been exploring the dungeon from yesterday morning until close to the evening of today and when I returned to my inn to change before dinner there was a message for me. It's from Sub-Baron Logflat. It seems that an opening will come out for a good location. I'll try going to Rombertia to take a look at it tomorrow. Conveniently it's Wednesday after all. Since we have the entire day off I'm sure I should have plenty of time to make the round-trip to Rombertia and back after seeing the company headquarters or making negotiations on it.

.....

Year 7443, Month 12, Day 3

After eating break I quickly got on my war horse and headed towards Rombertia. Just in case I've prepared 50,000,000 Z in funds as well. It's a bit too much but in the worst case even if I have to throw down some money I want to make sure to I have a means to get the headquarters for my company.

I went to the "Emerald Duke Grab Reception Hall" and after stating my name had them call out the Sub-baron. The Sub-baron came out right away.

"Sub-Baron, thank you for leaving me a message. It's without delay but I'd like to see the actual place but.."

"Yeah, it's fine, shall we go?"

I left my war horse at the "Emerald Duke Crab Reception Hall" and rode on the carriage together with the Sub-Baron making small talk, while first going to the real estate agency he was going to introduce me. It seems to be a real estate agency on the same level as Takishis Company that I made a request of before and the name is Girean Company it seems. After that we had a person from the company accompany us as we moved towards our destination. It seems to be a general goods store about midway down Bell Road.

I was pleased with it just from a glance. The size is moderate as well. The first floor is a shop and it seems the second floor is a living space. There's some display shelves and room to leave stock as well, this should be plenty.

"This place is nice. I like it. If I were to purchase what kind of price does it have? Also, when can I move into it?"

I tried asking the person from Girean Company. The Dog-people race merchant member,

"If it comes to purchase then, I guess so...According to the story I heard, you also need a workshop as well but if you'll search for that using our company as well then how about 38,000,000 Z? And you can move in right away. It's fine if we just throw out the people living here right now after all."

and said that. Expensive~ I'm sure that 30,000,000 is unreasonable for the market price but it still shouldn't go beyond 35,000,000 Z.

"Hmhm..38,000,000 huh... By the way how much would it be if it comes to renting?"

"If it's renting then we'd like 250,000 Z per month. After all, the location is good so you'll never run out of pedestrian traffic. There's a branch office of the fourth knight group one block away as well, so it's quite safe."

Hmm, it's pretty vague. It pays off in about 15–16 years. However, if I decide right now then it's definite that someone would be sent over from Bakuddo by the spring of next year. In the first place, I've prepared a bit of extra money so it would be fine even if it was a bit expensive. Since it's in quite a good place after all, I guess it's fine.

"Hmn, I understand, I'll purchase it. However, please show me the inside and the structure. Also, it's fine later on but I want to see several candidates for the workshop as well."

When I said that and the merchant member made a face so happy he might start drooling. Since he's a dog. His tail which I can't see might be swinging.

"Of course we will. I'll let you in right away. Please, come over here."

He said that and invited me into the building. I followed after him into the store. There's pots, kettles, brooms, some small accessories, lined up all over the place but the cleaning has been done to a level where there's no dust anywhere. I wonder if it really wasn't flourishing even with this? Of course I'm sure it's only obvious they wouldn't let go of it if it were flourishing.

Further in the store there was a Cat-people woman who seemed to be in her 30s along with several children under 10 years old. When I nodded to her she returned a weak smile but,

"Hey, Yotlen, it seems a buyer has settled on it. It's this Greed-sama. He says he wants to see the building as well so let him in."

and the merchant member says quite threateningly. Well it's unrelated to me, if they ended up defaulting on the rent then the victim is the company after all. Also, it might simply be that because management got difficult they ended up going into debt to Girean Company as well. I somehow think I might feel a bit sorry for them but their circumstances don't matter to me at all. I rudely wander around the store hitting the pillars and walls.

I smiled at the Cat-people woman called Yotlen who was cowering away and, asked that and she nodded so I'm sure there's no need for restraint. I climb the narrow stairs and stepped foot on the second floor. Just from what I can see, the second floor is a normal living space. I look around at each room and confirm there's no particular problem. I hit the central pillar that goes through to the first floor and frown at the dust that comes from the roof while returning to the first floor again.
“I want to see upstairs as well but is it fine?”

The Dog-people merchant member is rubbing his hands together while welcoming me,

“How was it?”

and said that.

“Hn, I guess it's fine.”

I replied like that and the merchant member raises his voice to Yotlen without a moments delay.

“Hey, clear out of here by tomorrow morning, since we've just concluded negotiations!”

and said that so,

“Ah, about that though. It's no problem if you all use it until March of next year. However, in exchange for rent until then you all make sure to keep it clean.”

I just said that and to the merchant member,

“I'll pay in cash right away. Also, show me the workshop as well.”

said that and immediately left the store. For some reason the merchant member seemed displeased and the Sub-Baron grinning as we got on the carriage together again. When it comes to houses, if no one is living in them they damage faster. My father said it before I reincarnated. I just believe in that. We circled around the six places there were workshops candidates in order. I looked properly at them all but there was only one among them that was reasonably wide, had good water circulation, and I judged to be decent. However, it hadn't been maintained, the shelves that had been abandoned had turned into something like a layer of dirt it was to the point where even the dust had become solid.

Well, if we redo maintenance and repairs on it then I'm sure it can be used. I decided to purchase it as well. I tried going all on haggling this one down to 4,800,000 Z.

I paid a total of 42,800,000 Z, signed the proof of trade, when I had them producing the property certification, I was relaxing in a corner of Girean Company drinking tea with the Sub-Baron.

"Sub-Baron, thank you very much for accompanying today even though I'm sure you're busy."

I said that and lowered my head to him.

"No not at all, you're an important business partner who sells "Saya" to our company after all so it's good to see where we will be going to do business from here on out. It's only obvious. And since we're still in front of this Girean Company as well.."

The Sub-baron says like it's nothing at all while waving his hand.

"Come to think of it, how was the reputation of the "Saya"? That's a high-class product that we can confidently suggest and we have confidence in the quality as well but"

I said that and the Sub-Baron hit his lap before leaning forward.

"That's right, that "Saya" but it's extremely popular. Thanks to that, since we've started using them the sales of our company have been going straight up. We've even reached the point where there was a 50% increase in sales for this month compared to last year and things are bustling with activity. As expected we were too busy so I discussed with the clerk but we're even thinking of bending our own rules and introducing slaves."

He said that with a broad smile. Ah, come to think of it one of his sales points was that they don't use any slaves.

"That's great. I'm glad beyond all else that we're able to be of use to you."

I smile while replying.

"No, no matter how we think about it, it's thanks to the "Saya". The other day when I discussed it with the clerk he said it as well and even if I ask the opinion from the employees and they all said it too. There's no particular change in the service since before and after we started introducing "Saya". Then in that case the cause of the change in sales can only be thought to be the "Saya". Everyone in our company really can't sleep with our feet facing Bakuddo."

Well, it's more or less just as I imagined. Honestly speaking, in order to see what kind of thing those pig's bowels are I tried going to a brothel in the capital. As expected I thought it's difficult to keep selling them without knowing.

And I was horrified. Did you know? I'm sure a Japanese like you wouldn't know. The thickness of the pig's bowels themselves are pretty vague but before even that they're pretty hard as well. Something like that, even comparing it to the low quality condom I tried using on a business trip to Southeast Asia once makes them look like less than shit. And, it's true that the condoms brother makes are less than the condoms of Southeast Asia as well but even then there's the difference between the moon and a snapping turtle when compared to the pig's bowels. I question the nerves of someone who can properly use something like that.

Ah, come to think of it didn't brother use it? Well it doesn't matter.

"No not at all, I'm delighted that you're pleased with them as well."

"Such modesty..and, that wrapping. Doesn't that have the emblem of the royal family on it? That's a point that the customers were quite surprised about as well, it's become a point of faith in them."

"I'm sure. I directly requested the royal family to allow me to make use of it after all. Well it's a product that's sold directly to the royal family. Just think that the quality is guaranteed."

After hearing my words the Sub-baron nodded as if it were only obvious. Just then the merchant member from before came back with the documents ready.

If I put my thumb print on this with blood and take it to the government office then it's all over. I took the documents that were finished being made and then the Sub-Baron and I left Girean Company before heading to a branch office of the government.

After submitting the documents to the government office we once again returned to the "Emerald Duke Crab Reception Hall".

"How about it, will you try playing for a bit before leaving?"

The Sub-Baron said that but I a bit of unrefined business after this so I climbed on to my war horse.

Honestly I'm grateful for his proposal, I felt like something was pulling me back but it can't be helped.

I once again returned to my future, no, it would be better to say finally got my hands on current. Since I still haven't finished the procedures to register it was the headquarters of my Type-2 company, it's not mistaken but in any case I headed towards the base of Greed Company. I tie my war horse to the stake in front of the shop, and moved over the threshold. If I interview them and they satisfy me, it might not be a bad idea to hire some cleaners.

And, I still need to make a signboard as well. I wonder where there's a place that sells signboards? Well, if I gain some new employees then it should be fine if I leave ordering a signboard as their first job.

Chapter 113: Employees

Year 7443, Month 12, Day 15

Every month on the 15th is the day I do maintenance on the armor of the knight group. The largest crack I've seen up until now was a cut mark in a shield. The kite shield and buckler shields aren't the usual shape of a flat board but rather when manufacturing them they end up with the center of them about 10 cm higher than the outer edges almost like a light pyramid shape but the outer edges end up being weak to cuts. Well it should still be better than a wooden board so I don't think they should have anything to complain about but Enbert who's in charge of producing the armor asks Arnold who's in charge of forging to produce a metal outer frame to strengthen the outer edges of the shield.

However, if it's training then they use a wooden sword so there's rarely large cuts to it but as expected it differs when it comes to live combat. There was a large cut on the kite shield of a knight who came back from the conflict. It seems it was cut from the upper area of the shield and there's a cut in it about 10 cm long. There's no way to return something like this to normal. I can make it look the way it originally did but the part I repaired will end up getting weaker, in the first place I can't repair the outer metal frame.

I couldn't do anything other than honestly say, "I can't do anything other than fix the appearance of damage this large, there's no other choice than to have the knight groups exclusive blacksmith create a new outer metal frame." I felt bad for him when he was making a disappointed face but this is something I had already expected so I'm glad I said it from the start. Without it turning into any major problem, I repaired the small cuts and gashes on the surface of the armor and shields brought in and left the knight group.

Furthermore, when I left the knight group, I apologized as it was related to my convenience but around next month I said it's possible I'd have to shift the repair date. Just, at the same time I also said around the spring of next year we'll be opening the headquarters of Greed Company about midway on Bell

Road and after that we'll be doing repairs there at anytime and they were pleased. Since we're going to have the proper number of people, tools, and materials we can do a more mainstream level of repairs and it's big help to me to have it out of my hands.

After that, I walked towards the headquarters of Greed Company when I just purchased the other day, and went to check how things looked. It seems they're still continuing business as a general goods store but since it's necessary for them to sell out by March of next year, I suggested that they do a total inventory sale and I'm having them do that. Of course, I've already secured a full set of pots and other necessities for the squire family that is expected to be moving in here. After seeing me enter the store Yotlen deeply lowered her head and said.

"Greed-sama, we were really saved. Thank you very much."

"Ah, don't worry about it anymore. I just purchased it normally after all, from here on out, there was definitely a need to hire people as well. Rather than that, how are the sales?"

"Thanks to you it's selling quite a bit. If it's like this then we should be able to get rid of all of it by March."

"That's great. Also, what's going on with the signboard?"

"Yes, I tried asking the carpenter about it. It seems that they probably can make it with no problem."

Weeks back I asked to search for a place where we can order a signboard.

"I see, then how much is it?"

"300,000 Z (30 silver coins) is how much they estimated it at it seems."

Well, I guess about there sounds right.

"Hmn. I understand. I'll come again at the end of the month so tell that carpenter's place to prepare a proof of sales. I'll pay the money at that time."

"Yes, I understand."

“After that is..Ah, a dwelling right. I said it before but there’s no need to hurry but once you have the means to borrow a place let me know. I’ll rent it as a dorm for the company.”

The Yoltan family lost her husband that was the head of the family in an epidemic during the spring of this year, since the license of his company was white no one could inherit it and they were only allowed to finish getting rid of the remaining stock. Since she has 9 year old and 7 year old daughters and a 4 year old son she was troubled with money. She needed 3,000,000 Z (3 gold coins) to pay the taxes for a Free Person at the end of the year, which is this month but she didn’t have that much savings. She intended to sell her house and make some money but since it’s in a considerably good location there was no way to find a quicker buyer on it. There’s not many people who would jump at getting involved with a place like this right away like me. If you just switch to above one road over the market price drops quite a bit after all, and since that’s cheaper to both buy or rent as long as you don’t have any attachment to being on the main street then it’s cheaper.

Since it couldn’t be helped I asked Girean Company to be the agent but the agent’s commission was deferred payment as well. Since advance payment is one of the fundamental of business on Orth, that aspect of Girean Company is considerably conscientious. Since they were in debt to Girean Company on both the agent’s commission and the taxes for a Free Person, the Dog-People race of Girean Company was that threatening towards Yotlen.

Since I had heard most of the details from Sub-Baron Logflat as long as there was no problem with the location and outer appearance I intended to buy it right away from the start. The average agency commission for a real estate agent is 20% the price of the contract. If I were to haggle on it then Yotlen’s portion would be reduced by that much. Every year she needs to pay 3 gold coins in taxes including her daughters and in a short while longer her youngest son will be included in the taxes as well. If it comes to that then it’s 4 gold coins per year. If she could continue doing business then she might have been able to do something about it but in the case of a white license things don’t go that way. It would have been possible to sell the house and use that to apply for a new license but it would have taken time to get approved and since the store itself would have disappeared the scale of the business would have dropped quite a bit.

It was clear that sooner or later she wouldn't be able to support their living.

“Thank you very much. If it was just like that then I wouldn't have had any choice other than to sell myself. I'm grateful for Greed-sama for not hiring just me but my two daughters as well.”

I'm paying the mother Yatlen 200,000 Z a month and her two daughters 90,000 Z and 70,000 Z a month to hire them. In total that comes out to 4,320,000 Z per year. She can somehow be able to pay the yearly taxes of 3,000,000 Z and get by I'm sure. In order for her to go on living in Rombertia with just those wages and her three kids she would have to live quite thrifty but for the most part she has assets of over 30,000,000 Z as well so I doubt they'll be troubled in their lifestyle for the time being.

I wave my hand towards her while,

“Really it's fine if you don't worry about it. I was just searching for a headquarters for my company as well and it was necessary to hire someone to clean the storefront and workshop after all.”

I said that and left the company headquarters that already belongs to me. I'm sure it would be difficult for the squire family that comes from Bakuddo to act sociable and take care of the storefront after all, even if they were finally able to get used to it, it would be about time for them to shift with a different squire family. And the squire families of Bakuddo are still restricted to the soldiers of Bakuddo. It's necessary for them to properly maintain that they have time to keep training as well. The fact that I would need to hire exclusive employees for the company was in my calculations from the start.

.....

Year 7443, Month 12, Day 24

Today is Saturday. After our cooperation training in the morning, I gave everyone a towel as a present at lunch. It's normal for the average person on Orth to use something like a thin hand-towel as a towel. Since something like a towel with fur standing out from it is considered a super luxury item everyone was delighted over it. Particularly Zulu and Angela seemed quite happy. It's not all that big like the ones used in a hot spring ryokan in the rustic countryside but it's ability to absorb water can't even be compared with a hand-towel.

It's a good that you can always have a clean towel to use if you just dip it in boiling hot water and then try it off. Since I have the drying spell I didn't feel much need for a towel but for people who can't use wind magic or fire magic they can't use the drying spell so it seems they end up wiping with a thick cloth.

By the way I've already prepared Christmas presents for all of the reincarnated people. Ralph gave everyone socks the same as usual and Bel gave out shirts that would work as underwear. Including me we three always give out just practical items. Gwine gave the girls a hair accessory and the guys something like a good-luck bracelet that we can stick on our arms. Toris said "presents are best as things that disappear" and gave out slightly high-class sweets to everyone.

.....

Year 7443, Month 12, Day 26

After returning from the dungeon and brother and the others were at Boil Manor. I reported to him that I managed to secure a headquarters for the company while we ate together and he said that tomorrow when they make deliveries to the knight group he wants to see it right away. Well just like last year starting tomorrow I intended to make the next 10 days a holiday for the New Years so I have plenty of time. Since this time we have Gwine who is familiar with the capital I thought everyone would head off to the capital but it seems that's not the case. They're supposedly going to take it easy in Baldukk. However, since the story of the headquarters I purchased for my company came out it seems they'll come take a look with the feel of curious onlookers.

Year 7443, Month 12, Day 27

Including the carriage I bought from Gwine and the two carriages of Bakuddo, our three carriages were heading towards capital in the morning. Just like usual we safely completed making deliveries and after taking orders for next time we all started moving towards the headquarters for Greed Company. I've already explained things about Yotlen to brother and the others. Since we suddenly rode up with two war horses and three carriages Yotlen's daughters were surprised with their eyes wide while they were cleaning. I hop off my horse and asked if their mother was around.

"Since she said she was going to clean the workshop she's changing in the back."

and the eldest daughter Anna responded. Hmn, then that's good timing.

"I see, then after this we'll go to the workshop as well so have her wait for a bit. Let's go together."

I said that and,

"Will you let us on the carriage?"

and the cat ears of the second daughter Hanna started twitching as she was happy.

"Yeah, it's fine."

I said that and smiled at Hanna. The older sister Anna seemed disappointed. It must be her turn to look after the store. Well, in a short while I'm sure they'll have to deal with trips riding on the carriage between here and the workshop to the point where they'll get sick of it so forgive me on it for now.

I turn around to brother and the others who were waiting and,

"This is the headquarters I just bought this month."

I hold my chest held high proudly while saying.

"It seems you found a good place."

Brother smiled while saying that.

Gwine is surprised as she talked to Ralpa.

"This place. It's called Bell Road and it's a good location for a shop. It's probably extremely expensive."

After hearing that Ralpa raised her face to look at the outer appearance of the store once more. Your mouth is open.

Bel,

“He~ It seems like it will become a lovely store.”

and said that exchanged glances with Angela.

Just like that we were all being noisy in front of the store when Yotlen seems to have finished changing and came out. I introduce her to everyone and then started showing brother and the others from Bakuddo around inside of the store. After nodding satisfied brother, “Next time..when we make deliveries in the spring I’ll bring along a family of squires. For the most part I’ve thought of a candidate for it. Since it’s the first time and I’m sure it’s no good if they aren’t reasonably skilled. It’s probably Ryogu.”

Dianne huh? If it’s her then she can use all elemental magic and has been producing rubber products for several years. It’s a good choice.

“Yeah, isn’t that a good choice? I have nothing to complain about in regards to her skill and if she gains the experience of spending some time in the capital while she’s young it might be useful from here on out as well..Rozural and Wendy, Enba, Lumis, Dianne and huh? What about Sonia?”

Rozural and Wendy are Dianne’s parents and the head of the Ryogu family is Rozural. Enba and Lumis are Rozural’s parents. Dianne’s little sister Sonia succeeded after Myun as the maid at our house.

“As expected Sonia is impossible. That’s why it’s just Rozural, Wendy, and Dianne. I’ll switch them out every years.”

Well that sounds about right.

“If it’s just three people then I think they can live with no problem.”

Then let’s start heading towards the workshop.

We all start moving again towards the workshop. We let Yotlen and the cheerful Hanna on the carriage and brother and I brought horses close together as we continued talking on the way.

During the time they’re living in the capital, the squires will all have to register as employees of Greed Company. It’s a counter-measure to the taxes though. There’s quite a few things we need to decide on.

.....

The workshop has gotten so clean that I almost couldn't recognize it. Of course, since the cleaning is still continuing it hasn't completely finished yet. But, the dirty interior covered in dust that I saw at the start of this month had completely changed. I'm really surprised and,

"Wow~ It's changed quite a bit~"

I said that and looked at Hanna.

"Yeah! We're giving it our best to clean it!"

Hanna says it boasting proudly of the job she's done but I can't imagine that a 7 year old girl would be much of a force for cleaning it from that condition. I'm sure it's mostly the achievement of your mother. It's fine though. Since it's true that Hanna is helping out as well, her childish boasting is quite cute.

"I see. You're doing a good job. How admirable."

Toris says that while lifting up Hanna from the carriage and lowering her on the ground.

Brother and the squires were taking a look around the workshop lead by Yotlen as they check the water circulation and judged that there's no problem.

"Yeah, if it's this then there shouldn't be any problem with the repairs."

"That's right. As long as we have the materials we could even make things here."

"It's plenty wide as well, it's also nice that a river is right next to it."

"Since it's old it's quite dirty but the building itself seems to be pretty steady."

"I want to try living in the capital as well."

"Try asking Farne-sama about it. But you, since you're clumsy aren't you bad are working with rubber?"

Including my brother they're all noisily talking. It seems that Yotlen and Hanna are starting to clean.

After looking around for a while we all left the workshop. Since it's a bit early for dinner, brother and the orders returned to their inn first. During that time just as I had instructed Yotlen to, with the proof of sale from the carpenter in hand I went to pay the charge on the signboard. Today after we all finish eating dinner we're returning to Baldukk.

Chapter 114: Spring

Year 7443, Month 12, Day 30

New Year's Eve. Even if it's Orth, it's only obvious that the first day of the new year is a holiday and most businesses close up for the day. That's why today pretty much every store thrives considerably well. Even though I don't particularly have any business I'm looking into food stores as well. Talking about New Years dishes during the New Years holiday is extremely boring but it's probably a good idea to at least completely rest until I'm satisfied once in a year.

Regardless of whether it's a holiday or anything else I'm still continuing with my training so my body won't weaken that easily. If I get too bored then it might not be half bad to go to the dungeon and rage around as well. It's become where I have to bring either Zulu or Angela along but I'm sure that the New Years holiday is different after all.

It seems that recently Zulu is on good terms with a sister that works at a restaurant and the dark expression that Angela had when I first purchased her has completely disappeared. Ah, that's right, starting next year how about I raise their wages a bit as well. I take out a smoked octopus leg I bought at the delicacies shop from the inner pocket of my invernness and start chewing on it while thinking these things and wandering the town.

Oh~ Toris and Bel are window shopping at a store over there. They have their arms crossed and are completely on good terms. How enviable. Come to think of it on the day we saved Bel I was chewing on a smoked octopus leg as well. Even though all four of us has octopus legs in our mouths we were discussing it. I remembered something pointless.

"Master, are you out on a walk?"

Hn? What the, so it was Angela? She's holding bread and some kind of vegetables or ham. I'm sure this fellow is shopping for tomorrow as well. I just paid their wages for this month this morning after all and there's quite a few restaurants that are closed for business tomorrow as well. Since I said to get your own lunch, she's probably buying up enough food right now for tomorrow's lunch as well. It seems like quite a bit of food for one person though if you think of it as lunch for throughout the holiday then it's an amount that is just right.

"Ah, Angela huh? Buying lunch for tomorrow?"

"Yes, since most places are closed tomorrow.."

After all.

"That's true. Maybe I'll buy something as well~"

"I think that's a good idea. The places that are still open will be extremely busy."

Right.

"That's true..I'll make sure I buy something as well. See you later."

I said that and walked towards the food store nearby. I wonder what I'll buy... In the end, I decided on some dried Meineiji. Meineiji is a seasonal fish but I've seen fat ones being transported after being caught in the reef area west of Baldukk. It might be nice to go fishing next time but I don't have any reel after all. If you grill them with the portable stove magic tool and they're delicious.

It's no comparison to the taste of the dried mackerel I had in my past life though the dried fish of Orth aren't anything to make fun of either. It's common knowledge that fish become more delicious by drying them out. You grill the dried fish and then unravel it and put it in between bread with some mayonnaise and it goes together quite well. I don't know who thought of it but I was trembling in excitement after meeting this taste.

I got two dried meineiji dried and cut like in Japan in my past life and had them tied on a string by the neck. I hung that down while wandering around again. It seems there's some kind of uproar going on at the restaurant a bit ahead but it's nothing unusual.

Well if a member of my parts is involved in the fight then there's no choice than to arbitrate it so I'll peek in a bit but the only one who I can think of doing something like that is Ralpa when she gets drunk, so I'm not all that worried. Recently she's often drinking with Gwine, and Gwine is the type that gets quiet when she's drunk (I haven't seen her really drunk) so there's probably no problem.

See look, it's someone different. Ah, that guy.. isn't it a guy from {Bright Blade}? Really, those guys are all quite rough. Well anyone who is willing to pick a fight with the members there is pretty unusual as well. I bet it's just some countryside hick who just came to Baldukk. If you've even spent six months in this town you'd know they're the top of people you definitely shouldn't mess with it. As proof of that look, no one is even coming out to act as bookmaker for gambles.

A~a, that bro is going to be beaten half to death I'm sure. It's a Wolf-people man that seems to be in his late teens but his face is bright red as he says something. The Dog-people race man with a large wound on his face is scratching his chin while listening to that. Of course the Dog-people is the member of {Bright Blade}. If I remember correctly his name was...That's right Rongel. He's one of the center members of {Bright Blade}.

I met eyes with Rongel. I shrug my shoulder and pass by. Well make sure you let him off by not killing him. If you kill him it's troublesome right? By the time I finished passing by it seems they had reached a conclusion. One punch huh? I turned around once but there was nothing like an upset.

Even though I say that, around the time we recruited Bel, adventurers often picked fights with us at restaurants as well. Since even on Orth Bel's beauty stands out, she's the perfect bait for drunk adventurers. Bel herself as well but I don't even remember the number of times I've gotten into a fight either. Eventually when we started to be called {Slaughterers} there was almost no one would mess with us though. There's restaurants where Ralpa and Zulu were banned from as well.

What entered my sight is the scenery of Baldukk which is a bit more lively than usual. It seems I was able to safely make it through this year as well. Things are proceeding smoothly in exploring the dungeon as well, I guess the results of our training are finally showing, but it feels like everyone's skill with the sword has changed quite a bit. Starting next year I want to become the true top of Baldukk in both name and reality.

Hmph. Since tomorrow is New Year's day in order to not forgot my original resolve it might not be half bad to run through the 1st floor alone.

.....

Year 7444, Month 1, Day 1

The second New Year's day I've met in Baldukk. Just like last year I go to the temple for my first shrine visit and donated 10,000 Z. Since you can't see the first sunrise of the year unless you go to the summit of the crater like hills, when it was still start I started my running and went to see it before going to my first shrine visit of the year. After visiting the shrine I went straight to the restaurant and had breakfast with everyone. I gave the five others than my slaves their wages and then returned to my inn.

I excitedly put my rubber protectors on and confirmed my equipment. My leather gloves got some oil on them last night from Ralph's roast pork so I've left them to the inn to clean. I put the map into my bag, my portable stove and dried meineiji, and without forgetting some bread and a jar of mayonnaise I threw them in as well. I put some water from the well into my flask, now then, it's time to depart.

Of course, I'm not calling out to Zulu and Angela. I feel bad for them but this is a ceremony. In order to not forget my original resolve, I need to recognize my original nervous feelings when I first challenged the dungeon. Of course, it's true that the 1st floor is easier than a fart but it's been close to a year since I've gone in with no backup.

"Ya~ Greed-san, happy new year. Are you alone today?"

It's Church-san from the knight group in Baldukk. I guess he's guarding the tax collector at the entrance to the dungeon this early in the new year?

"Happy new year. Church-san. I thought to return to my original resolve for the first time in a while. So it's something like light exercise."

I exchange greetings and after paying the taxes I entered the dungeon and teleported to the 1st floor.

Now then, I wonder where this is? The number on the pedestal of the teleport crystal is..None! So an unexplored area huh? It's been quite a while. It's the 1st floor after all, I'm sure it's not particularly dangerous. In the first place, since we've filled in almost everything on the map of the 1st floor we already knew the general shape of all of the remaining unexplored areas. And as a matter of fact, if we wanted to investigate them we could at anytime. Because, the remaining unexplored areas on the 1st floor are thought to all be connected to the central teleport room in some sort of shape.

Putting it simply, if you just teleport to a place which connects to the teleport crystal, then once you get to the center room you start moving backwards from there and it's thought that you'll definitely be able to make it to them. It's just not an action that has much meaning. It's a waste of time after all.

However, this time I luckily (?) was able to teleport into an unexplored area. As a matter of fact there's only three blank places left on our map of the 1st floor. If I just walk for a bit I'll quickly be able to figure out which of those three places it is.

Baon!

I use wind magic to strip the traps naked. Everything seems fine. I briskly started walking ahead and in less than 10 minutes I was able to guess where this is. Ah, if it's here then I'll be able to make it to the center in two hours of walking. Alright, let's try doing a time attack for once.

I send the goblins scattering with my bayonet, cut the gnolls to pieces with {Ice Cone}. I pour more mana in to strengthen {Chain Lightning} as I roast Orks, and send {Fire Javelin Missiles} into a Gargantuan Spider to kill it all at once. I charged into a group of Hobgoblins with only four of them and beat them all down before stabbing them in the throat while hurrying ahead.

I've only gathered the magic stone from the Gargantuan Spider. I use {Flame Thrower} to burn some Green Slimes, I'm sure in about another 30 minutes I'll arrive at the teleport room.

Even if it's a time attack, it would be foolish to get injured from hurrying. I can't let my guard down. After all this is originally a ceremony to come back to my origins. I haven't brought along the clock magic tool but it's probably been about two hours? I took a rest in the teleport room while feeling satisfied. Going off the amount I feel like my stomach has emptied there should still be a while until lunch.

Now then, since I've gone all the way of coming this far. I guess I'll try peeking into the 2nd floor for a bit. After finishing my break I stand up and confirm my equipment. No problem.

"Mehebuka"

I chant the teleport incantation and moved to the 2nd floor.

.....

Now then, I wonder where this is? The number on the teleport crystal pedestal is..None! Another unexplored area huh? It's been quite a while. Since it's the 2nd floor, I doubt it's all that dangerous. In the first place we've filled in quite a bit of the 2nd floor map as well so we already know the general shape of the unexplored areas. And, I feel like I just this as well. I closely investigate the teleport crystal pedestal in the center of the hall but as a matter of fact I was quite pleased. There's nothing above being able to fill in the blanks on our map even just a bit more.

I use wind magic the same as usual to send the dirt flying. I steadily walk down the passage and I discovered an abnormality. It's a pitfall. However..this is...

【Besshuz.Floating Disk.Automending】

【Wind.Void】

【Condition: Good】

【Manufacture Date: -/-/-】

【Value: -】

Is this that area we visited once upon a time? In that case if I return to the teleport crystal this should be on the other side of it as well. I ran back to the teleport crystal and use wind magic once more before proceeding to take a look.

..It's here. But, I can't remember which though I should have buried one of the pitfalls with earth magic. Of course I didn't completely bury it, I just buried it in enough dirt so we could pass through the center of the pitfall but I remember burying it with earth magic.

It's over a year ago but it was the time we first stepped foot on the 2nd floor. I wouldn't forget it that easily. I knew that the dirt created with elemental magic doesn't remain the dungeon forever but even then it was that large of a quantity. If you were to create it in a normal passage then it wasn't an amount that would disappear in a year or so.

I feel the center of my head cool down. I desperately try to remember back to things at that time. If I remember correctly, we advanced ahead at the split back and got rid of a snake..after that we went to a split path and then turned back. I take out my map of the 2nd floor and check it once more. The blank areas on the 2nd floor make up roughly 10% of the whole, since the diameter of the dungeon is about 10 Km, the area of each floor in the dungeon is roughly 80 square Km. Even though it's about 10% that's still 8 square Km or so of unexplored areas.

What should I do? Somehow I feel that this area is different from normal areas on the 2nd floor. If it's the normal 2nd floor then right now I don't think it would be a problem for me at all. It's already been a while since I've reached the highest level of adventurers in Baldukk.

Honestly speaking, if it's now I even have the confidence to take on the commander of the first knight group from the front. I'm sure I'm not his opponent in terms of precise sword techniques but being supported by my high status and the training which I never miss out I think I can show quite the results of that. I won't fall behind any opponent carelessly.

However, you never know what will happen in the dungeon. In order not to forget my original resolve I came here today... Honestly speaking, my curiosity is taking over my head with quite a bit of force. This is probably a special area on the 2nd floor. I might never be able to teleport here again. Is this a chance? I'm sure it's a chance.

I still properly remember.

“It seems there’s a pool of water where fairies live on the 2nd floor.”

It’s a story that only comes out in the adventure legends of the founder George Rombert the First. It’s treated as a story for drunks that no one believes there’s something like faeries but we think it’s a possible story. Well other than that fairies only come out in the legends of Orth so I’m sure it’s not very credible, but even then I think it wouldn’t be strange for there to be fairies.

I wonder if I should keep moving ahead?

I inspect my equipment once more. In addition I’ll Identify myself as well.

I properly put my helmet back on and carefully tighten the end of it. I open my fingers and clench them one at a time. I should be able to do this. Right now, I should be the most powerful existence on the 2nd floor Baldukk. There’s nothing to fear. Remain confident.

I take one step forward and with my bayonet in my right hand I point my left hand forward. I use earth magic to bury the pitfall once again, and crossed over that.

.....

After going down to the Y shaped split path on the left side I entered another passage. If I remember correctly last time we from the right side. Just in case I'll try going down the right side as well. Along the way, there were two snakes but I use {Lightning Bolt} to kill both of them.

After all it seems that above the Y split they're connected together. Let's return and continue advancing ahead.

After proceeding forward and there was another similar pitfall one more time. I used earth magic again to create dirt and walked over it. I've passed several corners but there's no split path since then. And it seems there's a room ahead. I quietly close in on the room while checking out the state inside of it. I still can't tell what's going on inside. Common sense would say there's a boss in it. Or maybe fairies?

I make sure not to make any sound as I slowly move forward. There's the cases of the Scavenger Crawler on the 1st floor and the Vampire on the 4th floor as well. There might be a powerful boss in there. Otherwise there might be something like occasionally appears on the 2nd floor, a fountain which spits out snakes? Those things are quite annoying.

After all it seems to be a fountain of snakes. Not to mention making it even more troublesome is there's four of them in the room. Just when I was about to enter the room snakes started erupting from the fountain. Roughly 40–50 snakes are spit out of one fountain. Since there's four of those that's a total of 200 of them..I feel a bit exhausted but nothing will start if I don't clear through here.

I looked around in the room but let alone the corpse of an adventurer there's not even some bones. Shit, after some more snakes starting erupting out again I used the spell {Acid Cloud} in the room. {Kill Cloud} would work as well but even with {Kill Cloud} they don't die instantly. They suffer for a short while before dying. That's why it's hard to use in the dungeon. Since it doesn't absolutely finish them off and there's quite a few monsters that don't die. A yellow gas fills the room, the portion that couldn't fit starts coming out into the passage.

I deploy an {Anti-Magic Field} on my back and ran away from the room at full speed. I'm sure this is a method of attack about only I could manage. Well, even if I leave it alone the {Cloud} type gas should become harmless within about 10 minutes so even if I don't move from here it's fine to just hang out with {Anti-Magic Field} as well.

I moved quite a bit of distance away from the room and just in case I waited about 20 minutes while keeping an eye on it. It should be fine already. I advance towards the room again. Inside of the room had turned into a horrible state. There's a massive amount of snakes moving around with festering and melted skin from the strong acid gas. Alright now, I'll put you out of your misery. I use {Flame Thrower} in AoE mode and burn the snakes to death while moving forward. Since it's troublesome I'll just ignore the magic stones.

It seems that further in the snake room the passage still continues. However, after moving about 100 m ahead I tilted my head. If you were to ask why it's because there's clearly something different in my sight. It's a door. And not like the hidden doors after the 4th floor. It's about a 2 m, double-door that looks quite heavy blocking my way. There's no knob but there's a metal plate at just the height that you can grab to open it.

This door is probably something you push to open.

Well even if I'm tilting my head I can't figure out things I don't know. Since there's a door here that means there's something on the other side and since there's a door it means there's someone who added the door here. However, it would be terrible if there was poison smeared on the door. Even when I use Identify it just comes up as 【Door】 so I think it's probably fine but since it probably wouldn't come up as 【Door Covered In Poison】 either way it doesn't hurt to be careful.

I thought about just kicking it open but if there's monsters on the other side they'll notice from the sound. I put the gun-stock of my bayonet to the door and push towards it. However, the door won't even budge. Even if I try to push against it with the bottom of my boots it's no good. I wonder if it's locked, or in the first place maybe this just looks like a door and is actually a wall, no, it's possible it's just a pulling door and made to only open in this direction.

It can't be helped thinking like this. If it won't open then there's no helping it. However, I wonder if I can at least look through the gaps of the door to the other side? I can't find anything like a keyhole on the door. I gathered my resolve (it's probably fine though) and went close to look through the gaps in the door but since it's closed far too tight, this, isn't it really designed not to open? is what I thinking at that moment.

When I put my hands on the door to look through the gaps the door gave off a soft light and disappeared. And my mouth went wide open dumbfounded like an idiot seeing the scene on the other side of the door.

The other side of the door was a room so large I couldn't see the end of it (or more accurately I can see far into the distance). And something that shouldn't be possible in a dungeon there's a considerable distance to the ceiling as well. I don't see any source of light but there's light brightly raining down almost like sunlight, there's even vegetation growing. Almost all of the trees are small bushes and as far as I can see a grass-covered plain was stretching out.

What in the world is this? An illusion?

It's such an out of place scenery that I couldn't help but think that.

And, before I realized it the door appeared in front of me and I returned to the inside of the dim dungeon, the scenery of the 2nd floor cave again. In a panic I put my hands on the door again and it gives off a soft light and the door disappears and in front of me the plains is stretching out. If I take one step forward before the door disappears I'm sure I could probably confirm feeling the sensation of stepping on soft grass. It might just be my imagination but I think I smell the scent of grass as well. When I look up the ceiling is so high I can't even tell. It feels like there's sunlight falling from the entirety of the ceiling.

I get the feeling it's almost like being at the bottom of a large well and the lid of that from the upper parts of the wall to the ceiling are giving off light. Although, this well feels like it's several hundred meters or even kilometers.

While I was thinking that the door appeared again, if I peek past the door in front of me then I'll be pulled back to the reality of the 2nd floor cave that I'm used to seeing. I thought about it a bit and tried touching the door with my fist covered in my brass knuckle. Nothing in particular happened. Next I try touching it with the tips of my fingers from my gloves. It immediately gave off a soft light and the door disappeared, then the illustrious scenery was spreading out in front of me again.

Hm~mm, I guess the key to it is touching it directly.

The problem is that right. In other words, if I take a step past here will I be able to return.

If I can return then it would be fine to keep exploring from here on out but if I can't then I'm sure I'll just die.

And, in the next moment I saw something fly by ahead of me?

Without even enough time to identify it, it disappeared from my sight so it's identity is unknown but it seems that I've confirmed there's some kind of living creature here. The door appeared again.

I took out the 2nd floor map and tried to guess where this is. There's only one unexplored area with enough area for that much space to fit inside.

However, think more carefully about it.

The founder George Rombert the First met with the fairies and continued to adventure even after that.

At the very least he returned.

No, just like me he might have just opened this door and taken a look in without walking inside as well though.

I guess I'll try calling out to something.

If they notice they might try approaching me from their side.

Though I might just cause them to be on their guard.

Well I'm sure they'll be cautious of me.

I touch the door once more and look at the village of fairies.

If fairies are living here I wonder if that means there's food?

Since there's water and vegetation growing after all.

I wonder if it rains?

I have an endless number of questions but there's no way of knowing.

If you don't jump into the tiger's den you can't get his cubs.

It can't be helped getting cold feet. I guess I'll try taking a look.

In the worst case if I try digging at the wall in the area of the door I'm sure I can somehow manage to return.

I take a deep breath in front of the door that appeared again and gather my resolve.

Ah, before that let's try an experiment?

I touch the door and toss a rock that was inside of the dungeon into the village of fairies.

And I heard a light sound as the rock disappears into the grass.

In addition I place a rock around where the door appears.

When the door appears again I wonder what will happen to this rock?

I observe the rock with great interest.

When the door appeared I don't know what sort of reason it had but the rock was repelled and moved over to this side.

I touch the door once more and look at the village of fairies.

Ei~ to hell with it.

The founder George Rombert the First returned from here as well.

There's no way that it's no good for just me.

.....

I took a step into the village of fairies and timidly turned around. Almost as if there's a large hole opened in the wall of the village of fairies you can see the cave of the 2nd floor. I wonder if the door will appear soon...Huh? There's just the hole opened and the door-like thing isn't appearing no matter how long I wait. Maybe I'll try returning. When I tried returning to the cave area on the 2nd floor and the door appeared in front of me again blocking the way to the village of fairies. I touch the door once more and the village of fairies is spreading out in front of me.

Yeah. It seems to be fine. I was finally able to relax as I took a step into the village of fairies. The village of fairies just from my estimates appears to be a diameter of about 1 km in a circle. In what's probably the center of that, there's a single tree with a reasonable height (5 m or so) that I can see. For the time being I'll try heading towards that tree.

After walking for a few minutes I've roughly come to understand the terrain. The center area is probably a pond. And in the center of that there's something like a small island and that large tree is growing from there. When I was able to see the pond from a distance I was simultaneously able to see a fairy.

Their height is about 30 cm, there's something like the light wings of an insect such as the mayfly growing from their back, and you literally can't call them anything other than a fairy, there's dozens of something (people?) like that fluttering around above the pond.

Chapter 115: Fairy

Year 7444, Month 1, Day 1

As I approached close to the side of the pond the fairies were still laughing, frolicking, and flying around as if I wasn't here. I was certainly surprised after seeing the fairies for the first time but after calming down and Identifying a couple of them there's several things I've understood.

1. All of the fairies can use all elemental magics.
2. Other than magic the fairies have the special skills 【Naming】 and 【Fairy Sight】.
3. They have individual names. I guess they did the ceremony using their special skill 【Naming】.
4. They're freely flying around using the wings like a mayfly or dragonfly from their back.
5. Their height (size?) is only about 30 cm and they don't wear any clothes.
6. There's individuals that have a long lifespan as well (Over 100 years old is common and there's even a couple of them over 300 years old).
7. They have a lot of MP because of the level of their magic special skills and age.
8. I don't know if it's because of their late age but their HP isn't balanced with the other ability values (it's low).

And above all else what's important is that different from monsters, on the bottom the Identify window there's properly an item for 【Experience】, related to their body level. In other words, you could say that the Fairy race is different from what is normally considered monsters. Also, going off of the above points, you could say that the 7th and 8th are racial characteristics so I can't say it's all that unusual.

I walk to the side of the pond and after taking a good look, the pond has a diameter of about 200 m and what I thought was a small island in the center was actually a peninsula. If I walk a bit I should be able to cross over. I can see a lot of fairies gathered around the end of that peninsula. Let's try going over to there.

I somehow don't find it amusing that they're not showing any interest in me at all. It's not like I particularly want them to make a fuss but if I try matching it up to myself while thinking about it and if something like a 7–8 m high giant were to suddenly appear I think everyone would be equally surprised as they meet them.

I'm being ignored but it's not like I want to create some strife from my side either. What is it? This feeling. Being ignored itself, is better than it becoming an uproar but if I just keep getting ignored like this and somehow you know~ If possible I want to have some friendly communication, is my true feelings but it's inconvenient to keep being ignored as well.

I think it would be possible for me to catch several of them and make them into an exhibition or sell them at a high price to the royal family but even if it's me if I were to be attacked by this many with magic all at once it would be bad. They only have at most a bit over 100 MP but since they've lived for over 100 years, there was even one with their magic special skill at MAX. I have no intention at all of taking hostile action towards them.

If they can talk, I just want to try asking about the dungeon and about the mechanism for that door. If possible I'd like to try asking about what happened with the founder George Rombert the First in the past as well. After that is... that's right. It would be the best if they would teach me some spells that I don't know.

During the time I'm heading towards the end of the peninsula, I make sure to pay attention to my feet so in the worst case I don't end up stepping on a fairy laying on the ground. I don't know if the fairies are just thinking of me as something like a large moving rock but they're sitting down on my shoulder or resting for a bit on my head, they're all just having their own way. In order to not surprise them I tried calling out "Hello" in a small voice but it seems they don't understand.

It seems the fairies are talking in their own language made of extremely high sounds something like "pirurururu" and no matter what I say to them they aren't responding.

I arrived at the end of the peninsula. The trunk of the large tree has countless cave-like holes in it and it's almost like a mansion for the fairies. There's a lot of fairies going in and out of it. I slowly walked to below the tree and sat down on an appropriate rock before starting to talk to the fairies.

I wonder if there's no one who understands my words?

"Hey~ hello."

"Do you live here?"

"What do you eat?"

"Do you have some sort of representative?"

"DO monsters not come here?"

"Do you know Baldukk?"

No matter how much I talk to them the fairies won't directly give me an answer. This is no good. I sigh as a small fairy is pulling on and opening the right nostril of my nose. I'll try identifying the special skill 【Fairy Sight】 that I've seen for the first time.

【Special Skill: Fairy Sight; A special skill that the Fairy race possess. It includes Infrared Vision, Night Vision, Far Sight, Clairvoyance, X-Ray Vision, and including strengthened vision, can see mana. This ability increases based on level.】

Don't joke with me. What's with that convenient skill?

It might still be a bit too soon for lunch but it seems like this place is safe so I'll have some lunch with the feel of a picnic and head back.

Thinking that I started digging through my bag and pulled out the portable stove magic tool and made preparations. It was when I had pulled out the dried meineiji, breath, and bottle of mayonnaise. I noticed that all of the fairies that had been flying around me or the tree suddenly landed on the ground and were staring at me. Oh~ I wonder if things like fish or bread are unusual to them? I wonder if I can win them over by feeding them?

I lit up the stove and placed the dried fish on the grill before starting to grill it. During that time I started cutting the bread but the fairies are just staring at my every movement. Right away the appetizing smell of the dried fish started drifting around the area.

It was just that moment.

A single fairy that appeared late landed on the ground in front of me and started talking to me from the other side of the stove.

“That’s a good smell.”

It’s a slightly high voice but I can hear the proper {Common Language}. I was surprised but replied to it.

“You can talk?”

The fairy ignored my question and just continued talking.

“Fish from the ocean huh..How many hundreds of years has it been. I couldn’t help but be fished out...Though I didn’t want to get involved. Hey, that, can you share a bit of it with me?”

It’s true there’s no need to respond to my question since in the first place he’s already responding to me.

“Ah..Yeah, it’s fine. You can eat it all.”

After hearing my response the fairy smiled cheerfully and thanked me. I still have one more after all.

“Oh~ is it fine? Thanks.”

“Eh? Ah, you’re welcome.”

When I replied and the fairy said to the fairies around it “pirururu” in the fairy language. After hearing that the fairies raised a cheer and started jumping around and doing somersaults in great delight. I’m still not all that hungry so I guess I could give them one more as well. No, it might be useful to negotiate for something. Ah, since they can see my bag with 【Fairy Sight】 then I guess it’s already been revealed that I have one more?

Around the time the cheers of the fairies had quietened down, the fairy that was in front of me looking at the dried fish being grilled started talking to me again.

“It’s tiring to talk in a loud voice. Can I sit on your shoulder?”

“Sure.”

I replied like that and after shake the mayfly-like wings the fairy got on my right shoulder.

It seems the other fairy that was originally on my right shoulder moved on top of my helmet.

“It’s been quite a while since a person came here..Did you hear from George? No..I guess there’s no way he’s still alive. In that case, did you just have good luck? Hey~ you, what’s your name? Is it fine if I look at your status?”

The fairy grabs my earlobe and says in a quick pace. It tickles.

“Yeah, I don’t mind.”

“Hmn, is it fine to call you AI?”

What!? It should be necessary to say Status Open. I was surprised and turned my face towards the fairy that’s grabbing my earlobe on my shoulder.

“Hey, isn’t that dangerous! Don’t move so suddenly.”

“Uh..Ah..Sorry about that. But, why...”

I guess since I was making such a surprised expression, the fairy replied to me.

“Ah, fairies can understand. It’s the so-called 【Fairy Sight】. We can see mana after all. We can even see Status. The mana line connected to you as well”

“Huh?”

“Eh? After all there’s a {Report} on you? It’s unusual and since I thought there was something to it I didn’t really want to get involved though. But, since I smelled the scent of a fish from the ocean..There’s no way I could resist it.”

What? What is it saying? Did it just say {Report}?

“Hey~ is it okay if I look at your status as well?”

“Hn? Yeah, I don’t particularly mind. Feel free.”

After the fairy said that he sat in a comfortable spot on my right shoulder and peeked into the fish being grilled on the stove. I touched his hand without restraint and said “Status Open” while Identifying him.

Karl huh? And..he was tremendously older than me and all of his magic skills are MAX!

【Fairy race: {Fairy} Species】

Well I thought it would be something like that.

【Baldukk: The sixth seed.】

I don't understand the meaning. Normally, the family name they're a member of is supposed to go here though...

"Hey~ Al. Isn't about to start burning? Either move it or flip it over."

"Eh..Ah.."

I moved the fish a bit on the stove and continued grilling it.

"Umm...Is it fine to call you Karl?"

"Yeah, it's fine if you call me Karl. It's a good name right?"

After saying that Karl turned around on my lap and smiled at me.

"Karl, you are, no, are you a fairy?"

“Hn? That’s right? You saw my status right? And you don’t need to talk so politely like that.”

Karl said that while making a strange face and continued talking to me intimately as I,

“Ah, no. Yeah...And, why are you fairies inside of Baldukk? Do monsters or adventurers like myself not come in here? Won’t you get captured?”

I tried asking that.

“If you saw my status then you should already know right...We’re all priests. There’s no one out there that would lay a finger on us.”

Ah, come to think of it they had the 【Naming】 special skill. It’s true there’s no one out there who would lay their hands on a priest.

“Ah, I guess that’s true...And, huh? Just now, I..”

I was thinking about something really evil like capturing a couple of them and selling them or turning them into an exhibition right...

“I’m sure it’s just that right? You want to say you thought about capturing several of us right? That can’t be helped, if it’s just thinking about it and you don’t actually try to act on it then it’s fine. I’m sure there’s priests in the country of humans as well right...Are they not allowed to fight between married couples? Even their children might feel hatred towards their parents to the point of killing them when they’re small. There’s no way divine punishment would fall over every instance like that.”

That’s true.

“Well I guess it’s fine. It’s true that the fairy race is rare to humans. It can’t be helped...Well it should be a decent way to spend time until it’s finished grilling. First off, if you’re asking why we’re here then it’s because we were born here. And, in regards to whether or not adventurers or monsters can come here, it’s not like they can’t come. In reality, Al came here after all. Although, it’s a matter of whether or not we see a human once in every couple hundred years or so though.”

“I see...By the way, you just mentioned something or other about a {Report} but, what's that about?"

"Huh? Could it be you haven't noticed it...Why? Ah, this place is fine but..Hmn, {Report} is the name of a spell. Aren't you sending the information you see and hear to someone right? Since it's eats up a tremendous amount of mana, it's an ultra high-grade spell that even I can't use. Judging off the color of it they're probably quite far away. Hey~ rather than that isn't it about time to flip it over.."

"Wait just a minute! I have some kind of spell cast on me!"

"Uwa...that was a loud voice, really. That's what I've been saying. Rather than that flip it over."

Ah! Really! I flipped over the meineiji to the other side.

"What is that {Report}? What kind of spell is it!?"

"Lower your voice a bit more. {Report} is a mix of {Divination} and {Charm}. It's a spell that could be considered legendary. You've never heard of it?"

I'm asking because I don't know. If I knew then I wouldn't be asking. When I shook my head the fairy that was sitting on my helmet yelled "Kya~!!" and fell on my shoulder.

"Ahahahaha, Bell, that was funny. Hey Bell fell off in a strange way! That was funny right!"

It's not funny at all.

"Hey~ Karl. What kind of spell is that {Report}?"

"Ahahaha, something like that doesn't matter at all. Eh? Why are you making such a scary face?"

It's only obvious I'd make a scary face.

"Karl. Sorry but could please tell me in detail about the spell called {Report}? I'm begging you. If it's something I can do then I'll help out in thanks."

"Hn~n. Then give me the other fish as well."

"If that's fine then I'll give it to you."

After hearing my response Karl did a somersault and, said that with great delight.

“Really! Feel free to ask anything.”

“Ah, it’s true. That’s why please tell me about {Report}.”

“Even if you say to teach you about {Report}~ I don’t know much about it at all and it’s all hearsay though. First off, I just said it before but {Report} is a spell categorized under the {Divination} and {Charm} systems. That’s why maybe it’s not normally known?”

“What is that {Divination} and {Charm} stuff? Is it the name of a spell?”

I’ve never heard of something like that.

“Hmn, starting from there huh~ Well I guess it’s fine. Magic is largely split into 13 systems. {Abjuration}, {Alteration}, {Charm}, {Conjuration}, {Divination}, {Enchantment}, {Evocation}, {Invocation}, {Illusion}, {Necromantic}, {Phantasm}, {Possession}, and {Summoning}. Is up to here fine?”

Like I know. It’s my first time hearing! Not to mention there’s a lot of them. Like I could remember something like that.

“Judging off that face it seems like it’s the first time you’ve heard about them~ I only know of it from hearsay from my mother and father as well though. Well these 13 systems but when you think about it there’s not much harm in reducing them even further. {Charm} and {Enchantment}. {Conjuration} and {Summoning}, {Illusion} and {Phantasm} in most cases those are all two systems in one so there’s not much problem to remember them as the same thing. Also, {Possession} is too unique so if we were to use some extreme logic you don’t even need to remember it. Well in that case you can say it’s something like 9 categories as well. It’s fine to think that all spells are categorized into one of these 9 systems.”

“I see.”

“And, among those the {Charm} and {Divination} system are almost all made up of legendary spells. {Report} is one of those types. I think what is commonly known would probably be {Mana Detection}, {Mana Perception}, and {Sleep Cloud} or so. Incidentally {Mana Detection} and {Mana Perception} are {Divination} and the spell {Sleep Cloud} is a combination of the three systems {Evocation}, {Enchantment}, and {Charm}. Ah, I guess in that case the spell Fortune-Telling {Divination} isn't known either? It's a spell to know incantations. It might not be commonly known though."

"Ah, ah."

I let out a weird voice. I feel like I've somehow touched some enormous knowledge.

"Ah, isn't it already about done?"

"Eh?"

"The fish, fish!"

Ah, the dried fish. It's true it's about a good time.

"Don't forget about it."

Karl said that in a huff but his expression seemed like he was already about to start drooling. I lower the dried fish from the stove hung it upside down by the tail.

"A plate or something..there's no way you'd have one right."

"Just hold it for a bit like that, we'll all eat it."

Karl said that and then "Piru..ruruppi" called out to all of the surrounding fairies with that voice. After hearing that all of the fairies let out a cheer while swarming to the dried fish I was holding. And when their small pencil like hands they dug out from the body of the dried fish one after another. The dried fish had become a clean bone in about a minute.

Chapter 116: Price

Year 7444, Month 1, Day 1

I throw away the meineiji that had turned into just a bone and take the second dried fish out of my bag before putting it on the grill of the stove and started grilling it again. Karl and the other fairies are all intently eating the dried fish in their hands a bit at a time.

The ones that managed to get the delicious fatty portions of the stomach are curling up their bodies to protect it from the other fairies while eating it, it's the same for the ones who got the meat from the cheeks, eyes, and areas like that. Hmn. These guys, since their height is roughly 30 cm or so, well it means they're less than roughly $\frac{1}{6}$ th my size. Since my height has just reached about 170 cm, and you could say I'm pretty tall for a 15 year old.

In any case, since their height is $\frac{1}{6}$ of me then I guess that would make their body weight 6^3 or so? To be more accurate it would be a bit less than 6, so that means they're about $\frac{1}{200}$ of my weight. If you're asking what I want to say then it's about the volume of their stomach. The dried meineiji I brought was about 30 cm long. The portions of it that were possible to eat putting aside the head from the neck to the tail was about 20 cm worth. When it comes to me in my growth spurt as expected just one is not enough. If I don't have two and some bread I feel it's a bit lacking for a single meal.

I think there's over 100 fairies in all? It wouldn't be strange for there to be about 200 of them. In that case, they probably feel it's not satisfying with just one fish as well. Ah, it would have been good if I bought two more...

"What's this?"

Karl points at the bottle of mayonnaise while moving his mouth as he chews. He still has some meat of the meineiji in his left hand. You, took a bit extra right.

"Ah, it's mayonnaise. If you put a bit of it on the body and" Ah, mayonnaise huh? I don't need it. It's sour after all."

I see. It can't be helped so I smear some mayonnaise on the bread I just cut and ate it just like that. I talk while eating.

"And, continuing from where we just left off, would you mind telling me?"

"Talk? What was it again?"

Stop talking with your mouth full. I'll flick you in the head, this winged insect.

"The magic, the conversation about the spell {Report}."

"Ah, I'm amazed you could remember that. How far did we talk about it again..Ah, I guess it doesn't matter. In any case, {Report} is a spell that shouldn't be known all that well. There's quite a few restrictions on using it after all. Did I talk about the restrictions?"

"No.."

"I see. {Report} is a spell you use on a specific target. It often requires using a lot of mana. In most cases, there's quite a bit of distance between the user of the spell and the target, or at first even if they're close by, they use it under the assumption that they'll separate afterwards. That's why the first condition is that the user needs to have a large amount of mana. After that, it's also necessary to know the target they're using the spell on well. On the level of family you're normally living together with. It seems it's not impossible to use it on a completely stranger as well, but in the case it requires even more mana it seems. Well in the first place {Report} itself uses up a tremendous amount of mana so regardless of whether it's family or a stranger it doesn't matter at all. By the way, this fish, it's my first time eating it. It's really delicious right. It's even more delicious than the Meizassh that George brought in the past! What kind of fish is this?"

"It's a meineiji. And Meizassh isn't the name of a fish. It's a method of drying out fish. It was probably a fish called Eiwas. Were there a bunch of them with something like a skewer passed through their eyes? And they shouldn't have had their bodies cut open like this one. Rather than that."

"Wh, what did you say?! I didn't know that. Al knows everything. I guess this is what you'd call extensive knowledge."

"There's no way I know everything right. As proof of that things like {Report} or..the 13 systems of magic, it's my first time hearing those. That's why, please hurry with the continuation."

"Really~ Al sure is impatient. If it's like that you won't be popular? It would be best if you properly listened to what people are saying."

This..I want to dry it out and turn it into sardines~ I imagined biting into Karl's head while biting my bread and started to feel disgusted so I stopped.

"..What is it? Suddenly going quiet. Ah, are you reflecting on it? Do you want to become popular that much? How unfortunate but we fairies and the human" "That doesn't matter at all, I'm begging you so please continue with teaching me about it."

"If you had come out like that awkwardly from the start then I would have taught you though..Al sure is a shy one."

Really can't this guy just die already?

"Hey~ Karl. I'm begging, I really want to know. Please teach..Please teach me I'm begging you."

"If I'm being asked that far then I guess it can't be helped. Then, the continuation. In any case the spell {Report} requires an absurdly large amount of mana to use. That's why isn't it only about the Gods? That can use it."

"Huh? Gods?"

"Right. I'm sure it's only about the Gods. Like I~du-sama or Vagwina-sama, don't you know them?"

Putting aside I~du, I've never heard of a name that's one step from becoming a word prohibited from broadcasting like Vagwina.

"I don't know them. It's my first time hearing that as well. Are those the names of some Gods?"

"Hmn, I see. Both of those Gods are pretty old after all. Well to be more accurate they're not Gods but {Demi-Gods}. It seems that recently Lilus-sama was able to ascend to being a {Demi-God} as well. Well even if I say recently it was before I was born so I don't really know for sure on it. Rather than that, Meineiji, was it? Flip it over."

“Ah, yes-yes~”

Just as Karl requested I flip over the dried fish so a different part of the flame is hitting it.

“In any case unless it’s someone like those {Demi-Gods} that have an absurd amount of mana then there’s no way they could use a spell like {Report}. That’s why, I could have sworn at first that Al was the envoy some {Demi-God} had sent over.”

“He~! As expected the things someone with a Unique Ability says are different!”

Eh? I haven’t said a single thing about having a Unique Ability..

“What are you so surprised over? Fairy Sight can see all skills...Come to think of it George was surprised as well. He had a lot of more Unique Abilities than Al. That’s right did you know? George you know, he said his name isn’t George..What was it again? In any case he said he had a completely different name. That’s strange right. Even though he had the name George Rombert. Well rather than something like that but in regards to the spell {Report}“Rather than something like that, you..!”

In a panic I interposed some words but Karl just kept continuing like that.

“In order to use {Report} you know, it seems you select the target for it, but that doesn’t particularly mean they have to be within your vision supposedly. However you know, if they aren’t normally in your sight you’d have no way of selecting them right? Ahahahaa.”

I wonder if it’s just my imagination that talking to this guy makes me feel pointlessly tired.

“Wait just a moment, Unique Ability..Never mind, I’ll ask in order..”

“That’s right, Al. It’s important to properly listen to what people are saying. And, did I already mention that {Report} is a spell the user casts on a specific target? Yeah, right. And then..”

Karl’s conversation kept jumping back and forth here and there, but I was able to learn several important points.

First, about the spell {Report}. In order to use it you need a tremendous amount of mana. I don't know how much that is but it seems it's no good if it isn't in the realm of the Gods like these {Demi-God}. I don't know at all if I could use it with my mana.

And, the important parts start from here but the spell {Report} isn't a spell that just sends everything the target sees or hears to the user as it's running. It's limited to just the effect of allowing the user to peek into the head of the target it seems. That's why, he said unless it's something that the target is somewhat strongly aware of that remains in their memory then they can't see it. And, it seems that in order for the user to see inside of the targets head the target needs to be in a state where their level of consciousness has fallen so it seems that most of the time it's while sleeping and the user can only see things when they want to look (in other words, unless the user doesn't actively try to look at them they can't see).

And, the memories of the target that the user looks at are stolen. Stolen is a considerably faulty expression. More accurately they're "sealed away as if they're stolen". It might be a bad comparison but if we were to say there's an event called A which the target has strongly remaining in their memory. If the user of the spell looks into the memories of the target during sleep and event A is included in those memories they see then the target will have memories concerning event A sealed away "almost as if it was stolen". Since it's limited to just being sealed away, if there's some sort of occasion then you can remember them again easily.

Here I remembered back to several instances. One year ago and even before that I was forgetting about important things right and left. Of course, everyone has times when they forget about things that aren't important so I'm sure there's plenty of stuff I've forgotten about and just not noticed as well. If I have the spell {Report} cast on me then it's not that I can't agree on that point.

It seems the target is fine as anyone. The easiest target is something like parent and child, siblings, or a blood relative. After that is blood relatives who are a bit further on the degree of kinship. And people like roommates or marriage couples that are on intimate terms like family but not blood related.

Friends, acquaintances, as the relationship gets further away it seems it requires more and more mana to use the spell. It seems that in the end even if it's a No-Name Gonbee-san who you don't know at all and is several hundred Km away it's possible to use it on them still.

Also, it seems that even we say strangers, rather than a blood-relative who lives far away, an intimate person who lives nearby and has similar values is easier to use it on. For example, if I were to use it on my parents or child (I have no children though) then it would be the easiest but by narrowing the search objective it can be easier to use it on a stranger as well.

Rather than trying to look at everything inside of my head things like, "a former SDF officer who was discharged as a result of fighting and likes fish" or even lighter, "people who want new shoes" if it's people who have the same values as me, or rather, I can't express it right but anyone who might share similar qualities, it seems that those sorts of things make it easier to target the spell. I remember back to searching by keyword on the internet. It's probably unrelated though.

According to Karl there's even more of some kind of restriction in the mana of the {Report} that's connected to me and obviously the more restrictions (something like search conditions?) included the easier it is to use, so while it makes sense to me, it's certain I don't feel good about it. When it comes to distance according to Karl it's tremendously far away. Though it depends on the frequency and depth that the spell {Report} is being used but it seems that if someone mentions the memories that were sealed it's common to remember them.

This is probably the cause of my memory impairment. I don't know for sure when they started using it on me but according to Karl, it seems it's less than 10 years in the past. At first I was suspicious of the God who reincarnated me but I guess that means that's not the case?

The next thing that had my interest was what Karl said about the human named "George Rombert" who visited here in the past. In all likelihood it's about the founder George Rombert the First.

I guess that means the legends were true.

And it seems that George Rombert had a lot of Unique Abilities. In other words he was a reincarnated person the same as me. The only thing that Karl was somehow able to remember was that he had around 20 Unique Abilities. He said he doesn't remember what kind of abilities they were. If who he met was the founder George Rombert the First then it would have been about 500 years in the past, so it's probably harsh to criticize him for that. It's good he was even able to remember just the name.

After that is magic. According to Karl, splitting it up into elemental magic like Water, Fire, Wind, Earth, and Void Magic for the five types of magic is the way of organizing them for beginners. It's true that their names appear as special skills so it's easy to split them up like that. However, when it comes to using magic there's always some sort of objective to it. It's something that's only obvious but an action without objective doesn't exist. No matter how insignificant or trivial it is an objective is an objective. And, in order to meet that objective in most cases Void Magic makes up the largest factor towards that.

You're using element magic and void magic in combination to create a spell but spells each have a certain process to them. How you make the elements using elemental magic, the order they're made, what happens after they're made, and how void magic interacts with that. The organization of thinking about things like that is the magic organization called the 13 type system.

For example, it doesn't matter what but if you have an elemental magic of level 2 (above) and level 2 (above) void magic that you use in combination you can use the most simple form of healing spell called {Cure}. This "doesn't matter what" part is where it gets difficult. It's fine if it's earth magic or water magic. Of course it's even fine as fire and wind magic as well. Such magics as those combined with void magic and the healing phenomena that are made through magic is the spell called {Cure}.

Then what system of magic does {Cure} fall into?

Is what it comes down to. It's true if you try to think of it in terms of special skills as the base then it comes out as extremes, so it might be easier to call it "all systems" in that case but that's essentially the product of abandoning the idea of trying to study magic.

The ones that are primarily used for healing {Cure} or light healing {Cure Light} are the {Cure} system or the type for connecting limbs back together {Reconnection} (after all it existed), and those sorts of spells that have some kind of effect on the body are classified under the {Necromantic} system of spells it seems.

The one that removes paralysis {Remove Paralyze} and neutralizes poisons {Neutralize Poison} that are commonly called the Remove type have a classification as well. {Remove Paralyze} is the {Abjuration} system and {Neutralize Poison} is the {Alteration} system.

I felt like scales fell from my eyes hearing this. It's true that since I normally use mana and I can use a variety of spells, and have trained with them quite a bit so it's a concept that's easy for me to understand.

The type of spells used for attack as well, on Orth they're considered Gravel type, Arrow type, Bolt type, Javelin type, and simply have a warhead to that goes flying, or ones that are called the Azahedd type (Fire Ball is of course included but Lighting Bolt, Ice Cone, Disintegrate are considered this type. Simply put they're just classified as different from the above) so it's only obvious they were split up by the wide variety of elemental magic and the scale they use.

If I were to split these up into the systems I just heard, for example {Stone Gravel} is {Stone Arrow}, {Stone Bolt}, {Stone Javelin}, all of those would be under the same {Alteration} system and also include the {Summoning} system but if it's {Stone Missile} that has guiding added to it then not just {Alteration} and {Summoning} but the {Invocation} system is included as well. If this weren't Stone but rather Ice then it becomes {Alteration}, {Conjuration}, and {Summoning} systems, and then if you were to make it into Ice Missile then just like with Stone it would be those three plus {Invocation} system added.

Other than that there's also {Flame Thrower} is the {Alternation} system but {Fire Ball} is the {Evocation} system. Just the same {Shocking Grasp} is the {Alteration} system and by making the range of that even wider in other words {Lightning Bolt} is just the same as {Fire Ball} the {Evocation} system.

Things like the magic sound {Audible Clamor}, {Ventriloquism}, clone {Mirror

Image}, {Invisibility}, and {Paralyze} are parts of the {Illusion} and {Phantasm} systems.

And then spells entered into a territory that I didn't have even the slightest clue about. Spells that have to do with the mentality. The spell that can interrupt the opponent from thinking normally the spell {Confuse} (this seems to be {Enchantment} and {Charm} systems). A spell that makes it so the opponent is more likely to go along with your proposals {Suggestion} is the {Enchantment and {Charm} system, it seems that there's a lot of really useful spells along that end, just the same under the {Divination} system which is considered a legend there's {Find Trap}, {Detect Charm}, {Detect Lie}, {Predict Weather}, a mountain of insanely useful sounding spells.

Incidentally the {Possession} system which is said to be special is only made up of a spell called {Magic Jar}. It's a frightening magic used to seal away the targets soul in a container prepared before hand (it seems a gourd is the best choice).

Putting it simply you could say they're splitting them up based on their use of void magic. Honestly speaking, if it wasn't someone like me who can use a variety of spells I don't think there's much meaning in learning or organizing spells by system. However, it's a way of thinking that matches perfectly to me.

After thinking that far and knowing anew on the existence of a variety of spells I lowered my head to Karl who is biting into the dried Meineiji.

"Karl. Please, would you teach me magic? If there's something I can do in return then I'll do anything. I'm begging, just like this."

After hearing my wish Karl,

"Eh~ that's too annoying. It's not like I can use them all well myself either..Wouldn't it be fine if you just asked the one using that {Report} spell on you? And my stomach is almost full soon, I'm busy. After all I have to take an afternoon nap after this~"

Said that and was about to go off somewhere (probably draw back into his sleeping place). I somewhat was able to grab him and lowered my head again.

"You know~ I'm tired right now. Haven't I already taught you plenty? If you don't stop already I'll really get angry~ And, there's already no more Meinieji right? You should leave."

Ah, I see.

"Understood. I'll leave for today. However it's fine if I come again right?"

"I don't mind that. However can you get here? In order to teleport to here from the 1st floor, it won't work just through coincidence. Once in every four months, in other words January, May, and September, it's only a matter of if you get lucky when you teleport on the first day of those months. And, I don't know how you did it but you have to get past the {Snake Generator} as well, and if you don't press the switches that are in the bottoms of the pitfalls in the correct order the door won't appear as well. Ah, I have no intention of teaching you though."

Hohou.

"I see..Karl, that's unfortunate.."

"I'm disappointed as well, Al. Since you brought something delicious along."

"Yeah, by the way, do you know of a fish called Meiseiva? I thought about bringing that along next time. I'm sure there's a matter of taste as well but I think it's more delicious than Meineiji. I really wanted to let Karl try eating it. But, it can't be helped."

"Ha Ha, people with Unique Abilities all seem to say things like that. It's true I have interest in that fish but there's no way I'd trade the secret for food. But, it would be nice if we can meet again in four months. If you bring along some fish again at that time I'll talk to you some more. See you later. On your way back it will drop you a place that looks the same but they're different~ Then, Good night~"

Karl said that and flew up to the upper part of the tree.

Not just Karl but the other fairies are all gone as well. I'm standing all alone in the middle of the pond. It can't be helped, I guess I'll head back. I quickly gathered my belongings and started walking back the way I came. I walk through the hole where the door is and after turning around there was no sign or shape of the door anymore.

Next time I'll bring along a lot more fish.

Furthermore, the place I ended up in the dungeon was a completely different place from where I had originally teleported. I was able to realize it was still the 2nd floor along the way but I had to walk carefully for three hours and by the time I finally arrived at the room with the teleport crystal I was exhausted.

Chapter 117: Fierce Attack

I somehow managed to return to the town of Baldukk in time for dinner. I had a slightly extravagant New Year's dinner(it's just that the ingredients were slightly higher quality) with everyone and then returned to the inn. I was invited by Toris and the others to go drinking but there's something I have to do alone in my room for a bit.

It doesn't even need to be said, trying to release the {Report} spell cast on me. It's a spell that's supposedly God-level extra high difficulty to use in addition to taking an ultra amount of mana, but you know~ even my mana is God class. Probably though. I sit down on the chair in my room and grab my head with both of my hands. Right, in order to deploy an {Anti-Magic Field} on my head. The amount of mana I'm putting into it is all of it remaining except 5 MP. Since I have 7,063 MP remaining right now I'll use 7,058 (I only recover 12 MP per hour from natural recover after all, I used a reasonable amount of MP in the combat on my way back. The amount of MP required to use the spell {Anti-Magic Field} multiplies in 5s with an addition of 3 so if I were to use it all my MP would hit 0).

Since I just ate and it's just a matter of getting tired enough to go to sleep so I thought of using all of my MP as well but I want to avoid being unable to endure it and attacking a woman walking down the street. And right now as long as my MP doesn't hit 0 I'm safe inside of the inn so it's fine if I just sleep after.

I calm heart and start kneading mana. I normally use {Anti-Magic Field} quite a bit but the amount of MP I put into it is at most a few hundred. The last time I used this much all at once was when I was still small and devoted to increasing my MP. Even then I've only used {Anti-Magic Field} while trying to precisely control the MP used in it about five times so it would probably be best to resolve for it to take about 10 minutes to properly activate.

....

Alright!

I take the {Anti-Magic Field} I deployed and while remaining focused on the spell {Report} cast on me I aim it towards me head.

..This should be fine. I'm probably already fine. The only thing remaining in between my hands right now should be the MP remaining from the remnants of the {Anti-Magic Field}. If I Identify my glowing hands then I can tell exactly how much MP was used on that spell {Report} by subtracting it from the MP remaining. I should have 5 MP remaining. If I use Identify it will turn to 4 but it should be fine. Since I'm interested I'll try Identifying it.

Eh!?

My hand isn't shining!

I can only think of one possibility.

It perforated through my {Anti-Magic Field} that was using 7,058 MP, in other words over 7,055 MP was used on the spell {Report}, is what it means. Since I've used {Anti-Magic Field} a lot since the past against my brother and sister I've completely gotten a grasp on it's characteristics. The bare minimum uses 1 MP in earth, water, fire, wind, and 4 in void for a total of 8 MP. With this you can erase any spell that uses up to 5 MP. I just said it but after that if you add 1 MP for all magics after that (in other words, 5 MP each) you can increase the aggregate amount of MP erased with just that. If it's the {Anti-Magic Field} I just used then it should be able to erase a spell that uses up to 7,055 MP.

I just stared at the palms of my hands in a daze but I've gradually started to feel like laughing.

"kukkukku"

I don't know if it's a {God} or a {Demi-God} but the world is a vast place.

"Ufufuffufu"

With just 7,055 MP.

“Heeeee e e e”

I guess it's the frog in the well doesn't know the ocean.

“Ahhaahahahah”

There's someone that would use this type of spell which you never know when it would come in handy after countless years of checking. It's truly a God, this is. If I try to calmly think about it, it's not something man could manage. I already knew more than well enough that the beings called Gods existed but once again I can't help but think they're amazing. Simultaneously I feel some sort of pitch black emotion rising up that is difficult to control but I decided forcibly push it back down.

Well if it thought of me as something harmful and intended to remove me then if it can use this much mana then shouldn't it already have been able to do it, rather, I'm sure with just a single fingertip something like me would be turned to ash. Since that hasn't been done to me until now, I guess it means that it's accepted my actions. No, it's also possible that it's just observing me. Either way I'm sure it doesn't see me as a threat and most likely doesn't have any intention of killing me as well. I don't know if it was able to tell that I just tried to remove the {Report} (Since it seems that it can only look in on my memories when my conscious is decreased {Report}) but in the case it does know, I wonder what will happen to me?

I tried thinking about it a bit but I thought that it wouldn't particularly do anything. In my past life around when I was an elementary schooler in the 1970s. I kept a beetle inside of a fish tank, I took care of and observed it everyday. I kept some crayfish as well. I've gotten hurt from being pinched by both of them. However, both the crayfish and the beetle were existences that were far for me to consider them a threat. Even if the crayfish and beetle I was keeping were to have the ability to think, and think that the fact that they're made into pets isn't amusing, and I knew that they were thinking of trying to escape from there, I'm sure I wouldn't have tried to do anything special.

Of course, even then I would properly give them food and as long as they're alive I would remove the dirt, clean the fish tank, and take care of them. Even if I know they're planning to escape since I also know they can't open the lid of the fish tank with their power, even if they were to try it right in front of my eyes I wouldn't get angry at them. Let alone that I'd probably think, "oh~ they sure are energetic" and show even more affection towards them.

In other words it's the same as that. It might not be any different from researchers who put trackers and such on dolphins, sea turtles, and other animals and watch their behavior patterns and such like that. Rather than a child taking care of his crayfish the researchers would probably be the ones less likely to involve themselves with the target though.

Of course I don't have any proof. It might all just be my own delusion. For the most part there's also a God that reincarnated me so it's possible it might just want to know if I were to die or the cause of death or something. After all, the first time I met God it replied that several had already died and told me what the causes of death were for them. If I were to mention the harm of it, then it's about some random memories being sealed up and even then if someone mentions them it's a seal so weak I'll remember them. It's certainly a bad memory that I forgot about things in regards to the efficient way of acquiring the magic special skill but I completely remembered that after being punched by brother.

Since then I've made sure to be careful as well and written a memo called "to keep the laws of Bakuddo" and have it hanging on my wall. Right now the only memories that I would be troubled by forgetting are just these. It's an extreme argument but even if I were to forget anything other than this I wouldn't be troubled right away by it. Of course, if I were to forget something like language, the way to use magic, or how to use Identify there's a lot of things I would be troubled by but according to the story I heard from Karl what is lost is limited to memories of declarations in episode memories so it's not just limited to language, knowledge, or some type of skill (It's not just limited to Unique Abilities and magic. The way to use the sword or fishing techniques are included) those sorts of meaningful memories are probably no problem.

In other words, the "method to acquire magic skills" that my mother developed and the "exhaust mana during infancy to increase it at a certain probability" are within the range of meaningful memories so I won't end up losing them (being sealed away). However, because "keep both of these pieces of knowledge a secret” is an episode memory there’s the possibility they could be sealed. Giving one or two more examples and since the knowledge “exhaust mana during infancy to increase it at a certain probability” is a meaningful memory I can remember it but the reason why I managed to learn that is an episode memory so it’s possible it could be sealed. Although, since this is something I can find by using Identify to check the sub-window on MP so if I see it again I’ll probably remember.

Just the same way my name Alan Greed isn’t a meaningful memory but an episode memory. However, the names of third parties and items are classified as meaningful memories. Because the first method someone has of recognizing their self-awareness is to know their name and a lot of the first memories are of their name. Particularly in the case of me with experience reincarnating, I already had the ability to retain episode memories since I was a baby.

In my case, it was the same as being born with an adults level of ability in regards to episode memories so the instance I learned my name was like a once in a lifetime event on the end of episode memories. However, learning about Status Open was a meaningful memory so I can’t forget it. Even if I were to forget my own if I check my own status or use Identify I would remember it right away just like when brother pointed it out.

If I think about it like this I can calm down a bit. However, it’s bad having memories sealed. It’s bad but since I don’t have any method to resist it, if I don’t at least force myself to think this way then it’s not good for my sanity. It’s true that even if I were to stomp around cursing here it wouldn’t solve anything after all, I need to do whatever I can to maintain my thoughts and emotions in a stable direction.

In any case, the spell that allows you to counter spells {Anti-Magic Field}, at the very least even if I use something on the level of 7,000 MP it seems to have been no good. I intend to try it once more using all of my MP this time after going to sleep and waking up with full MP tomorrow morning. Since my maximum MP is 7,436 the highest amount I can use for {Anti-Magic Field} is 7,433 and it will only be able to erase a spell that uses up to 7,430. It can erase something that uses 400 more MP than this time.

In my common sense I can only think of sister other than myself that can use over 400 MP for a single spell so normally with this much increment it would be able to erase any spell but...

.....

Year 7444, Month 1, Day 2

Obviously after I woke up I immediately tried using {Anti-Magic Field}. I put less than half of my hopes on it but after all I guess you could say, there was no blue light remaining in my hands as proof that the {Anti-Magic Field} was remaining. It's definite that the spell {Report} cast on me used more than 7,430 MP. Somewhere in my heart I had the thin hope that "maybe.." is only obvious. Though it just ended up being that reality is harsh and..Damn it.

Since I only have 3 MP remaining, after eating some food I thought of relieving myself before using up the last of my MP and going to sleep.

On my way to the restaurant and I started to consider whether {Report} was only used on me or if it was used on all of the reincarnated people. It seems like all of the ones I've so far Kuro, Mary, Ralpa, Bel, Toris, and Gwine didn't have any sort of issues with their memories. Well even if they did unless it was over something major it's unlikely they would point it out themselves so it's impossible for me to know about it...The closest thing is when Bel mentioned whether or not our mental ages have only grown up to around the as our physical ages again and she didn't say anything in particular about missing memories.

Even I only noticed something like missing memories about a year or so ago. It seems like it actually had started at least half a year prior to that but in any case around the end of the year before last I started to notice it was strange and had felt something was off but I wasn't completely aware of it. The only way I can think to resolve that is to have Karl look at them.

If all of the reincarnated people are targets of the spell {Report} then while it doesn't feel good but it's something I can accept and think that it can't be helped. However in the worst case if I'm the only target for it, the number of things that I'll need to think about will increase quite a bit.

Even just thinking about it a bit, why is it only me? is the problem. If the user of the spell {Report} was the {God} or {Demi-God} that reincarnated me then why among the 39 reincarnated people was I the only one selected? would be the problem that comes up. In this case, I could think of things like because I had 2 Unique Abilities, or in the first place there were several of us chosen as samples, but it really can't be helped just thinking about it.

Next up is whether or not it was really the {God} or {Demi-God} that reincarnated us that used it on me? is the problem that remains since before. I'm sure the myriad of Gods aren't all involved with reincarnation. It's even possible that it's completely unrelated. I can't even deny the possibility that it's not a God but I can almost assert that's unlikely. Because even if there was someone who had more mana than me, they still shouldn't have more than double the MP. Particularly a spell like {Report} Karl said that it would only be enough to last for at best a few minutes. In other words, it would be necessary to re-use it several times in a day.

Of course, if they just use it once then after that if they leave a period between it for a short while it's also possibly to use it again but in that case it would be meaningless if they don't use it knowing it would have no effect when they use it on me again in the middle of the day when I'm conscious. At the very least, during the hour or so I met Karl, last night, and this morning, it would mean they've already been using it several times. Even if I suppose in the case that they have double my MP it wouldn't make sense. It's not unthinkable that it was just a coincidence but I should have been the target (or at least one of them) since at least a year and a half ago, and there's also the possibility that they're using the spell {Report} on my party members in order as well.

However, that's probably minuscule. Most likely it's an existence that has MP on a level far beyond how many times mine and can use it like an abundance of water, and it's unnatural to think of that as a person that's mixed in together with the average person of Orth or another reincarnated person. Even if that was the case then that person would be spending day and night just to use the spell on me so I doubt they'd be able to maintain any sort of lifestyle. It's not unthinkable that they can do other actions while using spells like me but even then it's difficult to think they can keep that up forever.

That's why in this case it's easy to come to terms with supposing it's some sort of super-natural existence, since super-natural existences have already been confirmed after all..Yeah, it should already be that the chances of it being a God are incomparably high.

Since there's no way I'll be able to guess all of the possibilities, there's no other choice than narrowing it down to a few candidates and cutting down the rest. Even if the correct answer was among those then that is that. No choice but to give up.

The remaining problem is..I've arrived at the restaurant. For the time being I wonder if I should talk about the things that happened yesterday? No, even if I talk about it there's no way to resolve it. Most likely it would just end up giving them feelings of terror in regards to something that is impossible to resolve right now. If I were going to talk about something it would be about the portions unrelated to the spell {Report}. Even that I'm sure it would best if I just bring them the next time I go to Karl's place. It's still four months ahead. If something comes up during that time I'll talk about it then.

Year 7444, Month 1, Day 17

It's about something that happened in area we visited for the first time on the 5th floor. We discovered a room a bit ahead in the passage of the dungeon as usual. We carefully closed it on it. The only thing we could see from the edge of the passage was the dim wall of the room but in roughly the center of the room there was a 3 m or so stone statue of a giant demon. It has wings like those of a bat growing from it's back and horns growing, there were four stone statues of a demon or something like that all with their backs to each other facing each wall of the room. This seems to be that. Gargoyle. Near the end of last year I once caught sight of one. In that case I guess that should be the same as well...

I had everyone stop just before the room and as we carefully look into the room and after all it was there. There's something like an altar with black flames raising from it on the left side of the room. On the wall of the opposite of that altar there's two passages that go even further in and there's one more on the wall to the right as well. I can't tell if there's anymore passages on the other side of that from where we are.

If we step foot into the room the gargoyles in the center of the room will move and try to attack us intruders. Simultaneously the black flames coming from the altar will burn even brighter and I don't know what sort of principle it works on but another monster will be summoned in front of the altar. The first time we stepped into a room with an altar a group of ghouls was suddenly summoned and I got the chills.

However, the last time we found a raw ore of an emerald was near the end of last year, midway through November, we discovered it enshrined in a small shrine on top of the altar. After we finished wiping out the gargoyles and the ghouls and we're investigating the room, the altar that had just been spitting out flames until then, the flames gradually got smaller and the double doors on the shrine suddenly opened. We borrowed it from out of there.

Since we had heard that you can obtain treasures from the altars with the black flames on the 5th floor we got quite excited. And without a doubt after obtaining a raw gem, we returned to the surface quite pleased. Remembering back the raw emerald from that time ended up selling at an absurdly high price of 14,950,000 Z.

I looked around at everyone and pointed in the direction of the altar. After noticing the altar all of us zombies for money had smiles on our faces. I'm sure I'm grinning as well. If in just a single go we were able to find a magic wand that lets anyone use the spell {Fire Ball} then it's the same as making enough money I'd never have to come back into this depressing dungeon again other than visiting Karl. Even if that's not the case there should be a reasonably valuable treasure in there.

"Zulu, Angela, you two charge at the statues in the center of the room. I'll back you up. Zulu take the one on the left, Angela the right. I'll take down the two on the front with the spell {Stone Javelin}. After that I'll aim for the right side. Backing up Zulu will be the last. Be careful.

Zenom, Toris, Ralpha be cautious as you proceed towards the altar. Bel and Gwine you two back them up on that end. It's fine if you don't pay any attention to our side. After Zulu and Angela finish up the statues, if there's any monsters left on the altar side then split up and go after different monsters or if it's one then attack from a different direction. In the off chance that no monsters come out from the altar then Zenom you back up Zulu and everyone else remain cautious. Alright?”

After confirming everyone nodded, we checked our equipment once again.

Zulu and Angela stand at the front and I'm behind them. On our left side with Zenom at the center, Toris and Ralpa have their weapons in hand, and behind that Bel has heard bow at the ready, and Gwine is behind that ready to stab things with a spear that's about 3 m high. Since Gwine's weapon is a spear it's necessary to let her start a bit later. Our preparations are perfect.

I looked at everyone once again and sent out the order.

“Let's go!”

Along with my signal Zulu and Angela ran off towards the Gargoyle statues in the center of the room, the unit with Zenom at the center started towards the altar on the left as well. The moment they stepped foot into the room the gargoyle statues yes shined with red light and they spread out their bat wings.

The reason I did use magic on them while they were still statues is to take into consideration the MP efficiency. When I saw them last time I tried using {Fire Ball}, {Lightning Bolt}, and {Stone Javelin} from outside of the room but I was only able to put a slight scratch on them and in order to destroy just one of the gargoyles while it was still a statue it took over 500 MP. However, once they start moving they degrade to the same level as normal monsters. Honestly speaking, if I hadn't heard about the altar with black flames and moving statues I would have probably just walked into the room on guard thinking they were just creepy statues and been ambushed.

After the gargoyles start moving they're reasonably fast. They can fly as well.

I used {Stone Javelin Missile} from behind them after they ran off and took out one of the gargoyles, then used {Stone Javelin Missile} once more to hit one of them that had flown into the air as well. Zulu and Angela have arrived in close range to the remaining two.

I heard a bowstring from my left side. It's probably Bel's shooting. It seems that monsters have already been summoned.

“!!”

I heard the sound of Gwine take a breath and run off. It must be a powerful enemy. But, there's no other choice than for them to endure it for now. I'll back you up soon.

I use {Stone Javelin Missile} aimed at the head of the demon swinging its arms in front of Angela. I was magnificently able to land the hit but even with only half of its face remaining it's still attacking Angela. It doesn't die. I need to get rid of it quickly.

{Lightning Bolt} which reaches the enemy in an instant is an easy to use spell but it's a problem that the power of it is spread over a wide area, if you try to use it from behind allies then swords can act as lightning rods so even if it's a good attack for quickly attacking it's difficult to use in these situations.

I finish off the gargoyle in front of Angela with {Flame Bolt Missile} and used {Stone Javelin Missile} to attack the gargoyle in front of Zulu once more. The stone spear I made is guided through my mana towards the chest of the gargoyle. By the time the gargoyle notices it's already too late. I don't know if it was faster that my stone spear hit its chest or Zulu's bastard sword stabbed into its stomach but in any case the gargoyle died.

Angela has already changed her stance with the broad sword, jumped over the corpse of the gargoyle in front of her, and started charging to the left side. Zulu kicked off the gargoyle to pull his bastard sword as well.

I look to the left and changed my sight to the direction of the altar.

“!”

A large 4 m long pure white lizard had appeared. Isn't that the so-called ice monster that I've heard about!? There's no where on its body that an arrow has stabbed into. Though it's at a distance of over 20 m away, it's hard to think that Bel would miss a target that large, I wonder if the scales on its body deflected it.

“Aim for the right eye!”

I used the spell {Fire Arrow Missile} at the same time as I gave out instruction to Bel. It doesn't do that much damage but since my first objective is to crush its eyes doing damage is put off for later. It's plenty as long as it works well for tight turns and is easy to keep in sight because of the light it gives off, while still having some power.

I send the {Fire Arrow Missiles} flying towards the ice monsters left eye through the gaps in Zenom and the others charging at the ice monster.

For a short while I move the large fire arrows a bit higher up and let his attention focus on Zenom and the others again. Simultaneously thinking I should insure that I have a good line of sight for the next attack I start running towards the center of the room. Of course, when it comes to missile type spells (ah, come to think of it Karl said it's invocation system to control it like a missile), since you're guiding it there's no need for a line of sight but it's easier control if you can see clearly.

If I stand on the corpses of the gargoyles in the middle of the room then I should be able to see from about 30 cm higher.

I run while guiding the {Fire Arrow Missile} and aim for the ice monsters left eye.

I heard the bowstring ring out once again from behind me.

It must be Bel's shot. I don't know if she used Shooting Intuition but I'm sure she did.

The ice monster's head shook to the left. Even if Bel's arrow didn't stab into it's right eye, it's definite that it hit nearby.

"Alright!!"

I heard Gwine's voice. I guess that means she was able to crush it well.

Right now!

I suddenly made the {Fire Arrow Missiles} I had circling above it swoop down towards the right eye of the ice monster.

Zobuju!!

I heard such a sound as the {Fire Arrow Missile} stabbed into the ice monsters right eye and burned the skin around it at the same time.

Gyaoon!

The ice monster let out a roar. Unlike the Horned Bear it should be just a normal roar.

Something like a white smoke is leaking from it's mouth.

Is that..cold air!?

Sis Anderson of the {Black Topaz} mentioned it.

““It will breathe a breath of ice. In other to oppose it you need at least level 4 fire magic.””

However, I'll finish things off before it spits out that breath!

I use the spell {Fire Javelin Missile} and guide that towards the ice monster.

Zenom avoids the head that the ice monster is shaking around in pain and hits it in the jaw with an upper cut using his {tomahawk}. Since Zenom doesn't use a helmet I can't tell where his head is facing in between his pink beard and hair.

On his right side Ralpa was just swinging her {Tomahawk} with both hands into the right side of it's body. The light from the flames of my {Fire Javelin Missile} reflect from her dyed golden hair.

Since the body of it is in the way it's hard to tell but I heard a voice filled with spirit like “Teya!!” from Toris.

A bit behind Ralpa behind the left back leg of it I saw the same red hair as me from Angela charging in.

A few steps behind Angela is Zulu charging towards the tail letting out a battle cry like “Gugo~”

We're completely beating it from all sides.

The {Fire Javelin Missiles} that I had flying above 5 m from the ground I guide and had suddenly descend aimed at the ice monster's back.

“Ga!!?”

I felt a sharp pain run through the back side of my right thigh. Since I wasn't ready for it at all and I was suddenly attacked I ended up abandoning control of the {Fire Javelin Missile}. The javelins ended up flying towards the opening of the cave behind the altar instead of descending.

“Gu!!?”

I felt pain run through the back side of my upper right arm this time.

It's an arrow!

I'm being attacked from behind!

I felt an impact in the center of my back and head as well.

But, on those ends I had the armored plates from my rubber protectors and helmet so it seems it deflected them.

As expected of the 5th floor. I don't know if it's a goblin or hobgoblin, but was there a zombie that uses the bow!

“Shit!!”

I turned around and saw several silhouettes with a slightly higher brightness coming from the other passage connected to the direction we came from.

I used Identify out of habit. They're large for goblins, is it hobgoblins or orks!?

No, even in that case they should be slimmer. Their movements are dull as well.

An attack from a different group of adventurers!

With this timing!

I felt something like a sudden heat from the arrow wounds.

There might be poison on the arrows.

Hmph, I already know this poison.

I pointed my open left hand towards them.

By that point I had already neutralized the poison.

It seems that about half of them are equipped with swords and spears.

Which idiots are these?

If you're going to try and kill me then aim to crush my head and do it in a single attack.

Looking down on me.

{Chain Lightning}

Chapter 118: Father

A bluish-white lightning surges from the left hand I've stuck out.

In an instant the electricity hit the guy standing at the front holding a long sword and round shield, and a moment after he was surrounded in the cage of electricity it quickly divided and split into two directions hitting two more guys behind him. It then split up again but this time it didn't hit four people, it hit two more even further in the back. It was just a matter of it not having enough targets. And when it was about to split up again since it hit the two archers in the back that were about to fire another arrow it ran out of targets and disappeared.

"Al-san!"

Bel's scream echoed around.

I guess she noticed the sound from the {Chain Lightning} I used and noticed we were under attack at the same time.

I don't have the time to pay attention to Bel, there's no time to leisurely be checking the identify window either.

Since the guy at the front with the long sword and round shield took a direct hit of the {Chain Lightning} while it was still converged he's most likely dead. The two behind him are probably dead as well. The problem is the two guys in the back holding a spear and broad sword, and the four archers even further in back.

"{Fire Javelin}"

"{Flame Javelin}"

"{Ice Cone}"

"{Web}"

Right now they've taken electricity and their muscles seem to be contracting but there's no telling when they'll be able to move again. I sent magic javelins flying into the guys holding the spear and sword to make sure they die and then sent ice blades flying in the direction of the archers all at once. If they're lucky they might be able to barely survive it. If they are then it's just a matter of strangling them as we ask the reason for the attack so it'd be fine as long as a few are remaining. After we properly make them tell we'll finish things off by killing them though. Finally I used the spell {Web} to make sure they were restrained to the ground so it should be fine.

The arrows are still stabbed into the back of my right thigh and my right upper arm but I've already neutralized the poison so afterwards if I just have someone pull them out and use the spell {Cure All} twice then a scar shouldn't even remain so for now it's more important to quickly kill this ice monster.

I turn around again and look at the ice monster. Everyone is still moving. It seems that the only target for their arrows was me since I was close to the entrance they came in from. I saw Bel throw her bow away in the edge of my sight, take her short sword out and run to my side.

“{Fire Javelin Missile}”

This time for sure I sent some scorching spears flying into the ice monster's back without missing. If I look closely Ralpa seems to be dragging along one of her legs. Angela's left arm seems to be twisted a strange direction from below the elbow as well. Gwine is sticking out her spear to back up Ralpa. It seems that Zulu doesn't have any problems and is swinging his sword down on the tail. I can see Toris moving pretty nimbly on the other side of the ice monster as well. Zenom is alone right in front of the head of it swinging his {tomahawk} up into it.

Shit, since I couldn't back them up with that timing, Angela was unable to evade an attack from it's tail or something. I wonder if Ralpa got dragged into that?

In any case after hitting the white lizard in the neck with {Fire Javelin Missile} once more, Zenom sent another attack flying into it's head. It seems to have died.

【

【Male/14/6/7438 · Frost Lizard】

【Condition: Acute Wound.Bleeding.Burnt.Bruised.Stab Wound】

【Age: 5 Years Old】

【Level: 11】

【HP: -4(268) MP: 11(11)】

【Strength: 46】

【Speed: 12】

【Dexterity: 20】

【Endurance: 80】

【Special skill: {Ice Breath}】

What a monster. His HP is absurdly high~ It seems it's still not dead but his HP has entered the negatives, so it's no problem to leave him be for now.

“Toris, Zulu! Bring Ralph and Angela over here.”

I said that and turned around once again.

First one, human corpse. Ah, I guess the damage was too intense. Amen.
Second one, Rokkardo.Benkus, level 16, 【Condition: Death】 he's not wearing a helmet.

Third one, Jiardo.Rongel, level 16, 【Condition: Death】 I Identified his tail.

Fourth one, Samantha.Rauguai, level 15, 【Condition: Death】 I Identified the wound.

Fifth one, Kamiaris.Donguravus, Level 16 【Condition: Death】 I identified this guys tail as well.

Hmph, well it's fine.

“I'll pull it out, please endure it.”

Bel said that and pulled the arrow out of my arm.

“Gu..”

Ouch~ Shit.

“Mu”

Following that she also pulled the arrow out of my thigh. It seriously hurts. I immediately stuck my finger in where the arrow pierced through and used healing magic to close the wound. The pain still remains but it can't be helped.

“Ma..Master! These people are..”

“Master! You’re injured!?”

Angela and Zulu who brought her along were shocked. Ah, since we entered the dungeon in Baldukk, yeah, it’s their first time seeing me injured since I bought them. Well, as long as I don’t remain conscious of it much it shouldn’t harm my level up much. Probably though.

“Ah, first off Angela. Show me”

“Higu...”

I twist Angela’s arm back into the normal position while cutting her sleeve and putting my hand to the affected part before using healing magic. Angela’s face twisted from the pain but if it’s just this level of fracture, I’m sure she’s doing well, endure it.

“Al-san! Are you alright!? Ah! These people..”

“Al..”

They must have seen the point where Bel pulled the arrows out, Toris was talking in a panic while lending a shoulder to Ralpa as she dragged her leg but he held his breath after seeing the pile of corpses on the other side of the altar from the gargoyle’s corpses. Ralpa is scowling in pain. So it was her leg. That’s troublesome~

“Ralpa, is it a bruise? or a bone fracture? In any case I’ll fix it so take off your pants.”

“..Nn, I don’t think it’s a fracture. I can still walk. I’ll do it myself so it’s fine.

I guess it’s fine then. It’s not particularly like I want to touch this girls leg and it’s not like Ralpa is being embarrassed over it at this point either. It’s something we’ve done countless times until now after all. However, since Ralpa has gotten pale from the pain her HP has decreased by close to 40%. Since it’s not an injury that she’ll die from I guess it’s fine for now. If she’s still limping after everything is over I’ll force it on her though.

“I see, if it gets painful then say something.”

I said that and looked at Zulu before ordering him.

“Zulu, there’s four people fortified at the entrance. If they’re dead then that’s fine but if there’s still someone alive then don’t kill them..Ah, never mind, after all I’ll go, come with me. It would be troublesome if they can use magic.”

Without waiting for a response from Zulu, I turned around again and raised my voice.

“Zenom, Gwine, just finish off that lizard bastard!”

“Sure!”

“Yes!”

Before they even responded Zenom and Gwine were swinging their weapons to finish it off. Ah, I guess Gwine isn’t swinging. She’s stabbing with all of her power. It looks pretty solid.

“Bel, while you have the chance now pick up your bow. Toris you come along as well.”

I said that and looked at the two who are restrained with {Web} on the ground with their heads facing over here. Both of them have leather helmets that are like caps with a metal plate on them over their heads so I can’t Identify them. The other two don’t have their heads over here so I can’t identify them until I go to their side as well.

Accompanied by Toris and Zulu I started walking towards the four people strained by {Web}.

With my bayonet in my hands I approach them while remaining on guard.

I think only two of them are still alive. They’re vaguely moving. One of them with their head faced down and the other facing their head in the other direction. First off I saw my bayonet into the back of the one moving with his face to the ground.

Then I identify the wound.

Masarukk.Ringon, level 14, 【Condition: Death】

Next I stabbed into the one facing the other direction and Identified the wound.

Jobanni.Rogmitt, level 16, 【Condition: Electric Wound.Bleeding.Stab Wound】

he has magic special skills of water and wind at level 2 and void magic at level 3.

This guy is barely still alive. His HP is about to enter the negatives so if I don't heal the wounds he's bleeding out of from the {Ice Cone} then he'll die in another 10 minutes or so. Let's just leave him to die.

Now then, the main dish.

I stab the guy moving, and Identify his wound the same way.

"Gyaaaaa!"

Rimuru.Heidens, Level 17, 【Condition: Electricity Wound.Bleeding.Stab Wound】 Remaining HP 8.

He has magic special skills of earth magic at level 3, water magic at level 4, and void magic at level 4. 5 MP remaining.

One more goblin left.

"Gumu!!"

Jankot.Demitoridas, level 18, 【Condition: Electricity Wound.Bleeding.Stab Wound】 Remaining HP 11.

His magic special skills are earth and water at level 3, fire at level 4, and void at level 5. 3 MP remaining.

For the timing being it's fine to leave this guys identify window out.

"Hey, you pieces of shit. If you can talk then respond to my questions."

There's no response from either of the two of them.

"Ah, I guess you can't respond? How unfortunate. It can't be helped going on living with such a heavy wound like that so I'll put you out of your misery right away."

After I said that and,

"Save me, please save me."

I heard that sort of weak woman's voice and,

"Shit..why was he still able to use magic..I guess I picked the wrong."

I heard the man say that.

“Hey, {Bright Blade}-san I’m talking to you. You’re the leader Demitoridas right?”

I said that and,

“What about that, brat..”

He’s still talking arrogantly like that.

“After all. So you were attacking parties just as the rumors said. I didn’t think it was true.”

I said that and stepped on the wound on his leg.

“Gu!! Gi!!”

His HP went to 10.

“Well, it’s fine. Yo, old man. Suddenly shooting some arrows into my back what sort of idea did you have? Thanks to that some of my party members ended up being injured. You can’t complain even if we killed you right.”

It seems that Bel, Ralpa, and Angela the women all gathered over here. Ralpa’s face is still pale.
This guy...

“Come on, say something.”

I said that and stepped on the wound on his leg again.

“Guo!!”

“Not to mention, you even so courteously smeared poison on the arrows..”

After hearing my words Zulu and the others jumped.

“Did you say poison?”

“Master..”

“Are you alright?”

“Quite a bit of blood came out.”

The last one was Ralpa’s line after seeing all of the blood on my pants.

“Ah, I’ve already healed the wound and removed the poison so there’s no need to worry. Though you know, it’s true that thanks to these bastards Angela and Ralpa suffered unnecessary injuries. Though what's even more true is that while we were in the middle of battle they were sneaking around in back shooting poison arrows at me."

I ordered Zulu whiling looking at him.

"Hey, Zulu, for the timing remove all of the equipment from these guys. Take off all their possessions. Starting from this old man, everyone, stay on guard. Ah, if they don't have any weapon then break their fingers."

It's fine, if it's just at the level of a bone fracture of the fingers since they've already lost most of their HP they probably won't die from just that much. I stab into them one after another while releasing the {Web} and taking off their equipment. We took all of their belongings until Demitoridas and Heidens were down to their underwear before I restrained them with {Web} again.

We gathered all of the weapons, armor, and things from the remaining corpses and half-dead. Let's take the magic stones from the demon statues and the lizard. After that is.."

I look at the shrine on top of the altar. Following my glance everyone looks at the shrine. That is..Oh! Isn't it a raw gem!? What good prospects. It's a but unfortunate that it doesn't seem to be a magic items but this is all a matter of luck after all.

"Zenom and Zulu take care of the lizard. Toris, Gwine, Angela come with me to the demon statues. Bel and Ralpa investigate the altar."

I exchange glances with Bel while saying that. I think that Ralpa probably doesn't have much resistance towards taking her pants off in front of us at this point but she probably didn't want to be seen by the guys from {Bright Blade}. I'm sure you can't tell if they're dead or alive just from a glance and since she knew I was talking to the old man right away it's definite that there's survivors after all. If she goes behind the altar I'm sure she'll be fine.

We each went to gather the magic stones. Everyone is remaining cautious of the survivors of {Bright Blade}.

"Hey, it's fine if you use magic as well. We'll just kill you at that time though."

I turned around and said that.

Now we just need to quickly gather the magic stones and treasure before heading back. In addition I'll say it but I think we should probably take the magic stones from the corpses of the members of {Bright Blade} as well.

It took about 30 minutes to gather the magic stones. Incidentally I had Zulu and Angela take the magic stones from the corpses. I mean, I still have some resistance to it.

I guess along the way they heard the specific details, I heard Gwine's "Eeeh..that can't be.." and Zenom's thick "What was that!" voice echo out.

It seems that Bel accurately read my glance and pulled Ralpha behind the altar before using healing magic quite a bit. Both of their MP had reduced by a lot. And, there's a red raw gem in her hands. It's a {Ruby}. It shows up with a value of around 3,900,000 using Identify. Converting it to Z and that's 39,000,000 Z. The price it actually sells at will probably only be about half of that at 19,000,000 — 20,000,000 Z. This is amazing!

"Now then...Hey, old man. This, you know what it is right? Right, it's the bottle that has the poison you shot into me. And, right now, you two have wounds all over your body. Ah, they're all over your face too right."

I show it to the two of them while taking the lid off the bottle and started tilting it.

"Stop!!"

"Hii~!!"

They're making insanely frightened expressions.

I stop tilting the bottle. I glanced at everyone's faces. Everyone is either making an angry expression or an expressionless face like a Noh mask, but just Gwine seems to be just as frightened as well.

Hmm...

"Al, lend it to me."

Zenom said that and grabbed the bottle from my side and started throwing it all over their faces. In no time at all.

"You bastards, you better not think you're going to be saved. Don't fuck with me. Ralpa took on an injury she didn't need to!"

Ah, is it that sort of thing huh...Well, I intended it to kill them as well so it's fine though.

"Uwa, uwa~~~!"

"No..No~!"

It was hard to hear Zenom's statements from their screams of fear along the way but I still properly heard it.

"Die!"

Zenom continued to swing his axe down on their heads as they writhed in pain from the poison. Their gray matter scattered all over the place. The only ones who didn't look away were Zenom himself, me, Ralpa, Zulu, and Angela.

Incidentally Toris and Gwine's levels increased while exploring the dungeon today.

The guy at the front who took some ultra high voltage electricity to his body and was burnt black a portion of his equipment was fused to his body so we had to abandon it but just as would be expected from one of the top teams their equipment and weapons we're pretty high quality. I'm sure there's some equipment we could switch out with our own. There's even some expensive armor like Banded-mail as well. It's going to be troublesome carrying it back but it's the good kind of trouble.

Ah, the guy that was on the verge of death (I forgot his name) properly died.

Chapter 119: Bright Blade

Year 7444, Month 1, Day 17

Since we had a lot of baggage and to avoid as much combat as possible we hurried back down the passage we came. We even lessened our caution against monsters a bit to put priority on speed.

“Hurry, even in the case that monsters come out I’ll blow them away. It’s a battle with time.”

“Ah!”

“Yes!”

I quickly explained things to everyone after that and without even taking a short break we all ran back the way we came from. The number of corpses of {Bright Blade} that were remaining there was 9 in total. There should be 1 more. Either they were there during the attack but were far enough distance away for me not to notice and ran away or they were left to look after their luggage in the teleport room of the 4th floor I guess. When we teleported into the 5th floor there was traces of a camp on the 4th floor but no one around. So most likely it wasn’t someone looking after their bags but rather they ran away.

Somehow the atmosphere is heavy, I guess I’ll try to change the mood. I started talking while we walk.

“Hey~ everyone. I have a bit of something to discuss. It’s about the days we explore the dungeon.”

I said that and everyone made faces like “so it’s finally come” with faces filled with resolve as they looked at me.

“Since we’ve explored quite a bit of the 5th floor. It’s about a good time to go to the 6th floor. I’m going to change our schedule starting next month. Starting from February we’ll enter 3 and then 4 consecutive days, we’ll gradually increase the number of days we spend exploring the dungeon. However, we’ll properly have the same amount of days off per month 7.5 as we have until now. We'll do the same 2.5 days of cooperation training as well. But, since I'm sure it's exhausting to explore consecutively, I'll probably increase the number of days off as well. I'm taking into consideration consecutive holidays. Well I'll see how things go until partway through February and then modify the schedule. It depends on our stamina."

Excluding Zenom everyone's making complicated faces.

"That's true. Even if you increase the number of days off a bit the amount of time we spend deeper in the dungeon should increase so I'm sure our earnings will go up, I agree."

I guess it's because I talked to him about it before, Zenom immediately raised his voice in agreement.

"That's true..It's just as Zenom-san said. I think that's fine as well."

Toris agreed as well. Hey now, I thought that you and Bel would be against it though. I mean, if you think about it through the month, the amount of nights we'll spend in the dungeon will increase. With our schedule of exploring the dungeon until now we've only spent one night at a time in the dungeon so it was only 10 days in the month but I think it'll increase from here on. For him to agree with something that would decrease their consumption rate of "Saya"...

"..I'm fine with it as well. Let's earn some more."

There was a strange pause in Bel's reply. I wonder if that means since I've spent more time with her than Toris I can read her feelings better?

"If everyone is fine with that then I am too. Let's give it our best."

Gwine is making a slightly stiff smile but agreed.

"..Che."

I'll ignore this girl. However, well I guess I'll say it for her.

"Hey Ralpa, I'll teach you so you can understand it with that pitiful head of yours. The fact that we're exploring the dungeon longer certainly means that we'll earn more as well. Up until now on the days we return from the dungeon and even then only on the Tuesdays or so when there was no training the next did you have chances to drink through the night but when we have consecutive holidays you'll be able to drink several days straight, so I think the number of chances for you to go drinking will increase.

I intend to do the cooperation training in the afternoon of several days as well."

After I said that and the edges of her mouth raised up a bit. She's so easy~

.....

We returned to the teleport crystal that brought us to the 5th floor. We're about to teleport to the center of the 4th floor teleport room. It's a good thing only the top teams are able to make it to that room so either no one will be there, if there is it will be people from a different top team, or it'll just be the single remaining member of {Bright Blade}. I thought everyone's expressions would lighten up a bit because we were finally able to return to the safe area but that wasn't the case. Alright, my carefully selected elite properly understand the critical moments it seems.

We'll teleport in and restrain the remaining member of {Bright Blade}. Otherwise, counter attack them.

I stretch out my hand to the crystal rod.

"It's just right, I'll talk a bit before we teleport."

I said that and looked around at everyone. They're all tense.

"Once we teleport everyone scatter. It's fine you drop your baggage on the ground. If you find the remaining member of {Bright Blade} hold them down without hesitation. If they aren't there then gather your baggage and prepare to counter attack."

Everyone nods after looking at me.

"We'll team up with Gwine and I, Toris and Bel, Zenom and Zulu, Angela and Ralpa. In the order I just said we'll observe the crystal rods in pairs. If he ends up teleporting in alone then kick him down without hesitating. It's fine to hit him as well. In any case pull him off of the crystal rod. It's fine if you cut him down as well but if it comes to that make sure you absolutely don't kill them. Isn't that fine Zenom?"

“Yeah, I understand.”

We’re all holding baggage on our shoulders and in our arms but in a way we can quickly prepare our weapons.

“Alright, let’s go! Ridakkuzu”

We all teleported into the teleport room of the 4th floor. That instant we all dropped our baggage on the ground and scattered in different directions. Simultaneously we pulled out our weapons and looked around the room. There was one party resting in the corner eating some food.

It seems they were surprised because just as they thought we dropped our luggage after teleporting in we suddenly pulled our weapons out and started giving off killer intent. I guess that’s only obvious. However, as expected of the members of the top team representing Baldukk, they reacted quickly. Everyone pulled their weapons close to them and went on guard while gauging us.

They’re the {Verdure Brotherhood} huh?

“Hey, Greed-kun, that’s dangerous. Shut away your weapons.”

The leader Vilhaima calls out while standing at the ready. He still has the same deep cool voice even though hes an elf.

One, two, three, nine of them huh? Other than the elf that just joined a short while ago it’s the same faces as usual.

“Ah, sorry about that. We were just attacked by those bastards from {Bright Blade} so..We were standing on end. Rather than that, how long have you guys been here? While you were here did anyone from {Bright Blade} teleport in?”

I responded while holding my bayonet just like that but while responding I’m still looking around the room. It seems there’s no one but {Verdure Brotherhood} in this room. I give everyone a sign to lower their weapons and,

“Toris, Bel. Sorry but change places for the first lookout. Everyone else gather your bags and take a break in the corner. Since Ralpha and Angela were injured, just in case if you can sleep then get some rest.”

I said that and put my bayonet on shoulder before walking towards Vilhaima. I showed both of my hands just in case to prove I wasn't hiding anything. I guess he was relieved seeing me like that, they started lowering their weapons as well. Idiot. Since the palms of my hands are still faced towards you I could bury you alive at any point with magic. Well since I was just attacked and my nerves are still on end I'm feeling a bit aggressive.

Including Virhaima the other members of the {Verdure Brotherhood} couldn't hide their surprise after hearing my statement but I could also see faces like it somehow made sense.

"Judging off your appearance it seems that you weren't able to wipe out all of those guys from {Bright Blade}..How many are remaining? Also, we arrived here about two hours ago. Since then the only ones to enter this room including teleport, you guys were the first. And I want you to tell me what happened in detail. Honestly speaking, I think what you guys are saying about being attacked by {Bright Blade} is probably true. But you know.."

Shit..in other words that sort of thing. But, I guess it can't be helped. I can comprehend it.

"I see..while we were fighting against the ice monster in an altar room on the 5th floor, when we were just about to defeat it they suddenly ambushed us from a different entrance. Thanks to that, including myself several us were injured. However, there's only one of them remaining. I got rid of nine of them on the spot there. We gathered their magic stones as well. Will you confirm them?"

After I said that and the members of {Verdure Brother} all faced each other and started whispering things.

"..Are you serious?"

"Does that mean with just them they wiped out {Bright Blade}?"

"It doesn't..seem like a lie. I remember seeing that armor."

"{Slaughterers}..So their skills were true huh?"

"They said there was an ice monster? Does that mean they defeated the ice monster?"

"They're saying that so it's probably true."

"They.. can defeat that.."

“..Che...You~ all are loud~! Shut up?! Sorry about that, they’re all idiots.”

“No..I don’t mind. But, I can’t say much more than I just did. After all it was pretty sudden, we desperately fought back and couldn’t do anything like going easy on them. Just look at this. I was shot in the back with arrows. Suddenly in the middle of fighting with the ice monster. It was really dangerous.”

I said that and showed them my back where I was shot in the thigh and arm (since the wound itself is already healed, it’s just a mark like where an arrow hits armor) and the half-dried blood still remaining on it. After that I also called out to Zulu and had him bring the arrow that Bel pulled out from me.

“I see. However, you should know that we can’t decide things with only hearing your side of the story right? Honestly speaking, it’s a monthly occurrence for parties to all be wiped out or take enough damage that they fall apart but when it comes to a party on the level of {Bright Blade} I’m sure it’ll be some huge news. The knight group might come out as well. It would be fine for you to just return to the surface and pretend like nothing happened as well but if it’s just then as expected you know..I’m sure it would be difficult to get rid of {Bright Blade}’s equipment. Even if their faces were like that they were pretty famous after all.”

Certainly that’s true. That’s why I was trying to secure the remaining one as well.

“That’s true. It’s certainly just as you’ve said. Well, that’s also why we returned in a hurry after the combat without even properly resting. In order to secure the last one remaining that is.”

“I see. It would be fine for us to help with the capture as well but, I guess if it’s just one then it’s fine..Ah, by the way, which one is remaining? Is it Demitoridas?”

“No, we killed the leader Demitoridas. Probably, it was some sort of rear guard that’s always near the end of their party I think? I don’t remember their name.”

Honestly speaking I don’t remember the names of every member of other places parties. I’ve checked the abilities of people who stand out and seem pretty strong though.

“Got it...Either Martha, Logmitt, or Bikkens sounds about right then. Do you need help with capturing them? If you do then it’s fine if we help but..”

“No not at all, it’s plenty with just us. We don’t need to go to the point of troubling you that far. Since I’m sure they took a reasonable amount of time to get to that altar room as well. I don’t know how much time it will take for them to get back to the teleport crystal alone but we intend to stake out here for as long as our food lasts.”

I said that but I doubt it will take that long. Even at longest wouldn’t it only take around half a day? Including Demitoridas, all of the guys who attacked us barely had any mana remaining after all, so I think they got rid of a decent number of monsters along the way. Since some half-dried food and rotting meat still stuck to the magic stones came out of their pockets after all.

“I see. However, we can’t just accept that. It’s a problem with order in the dungeon. Alright, listen well. I’m not particularly doubting you. But, I want to impartially hear the viewpoint of {Bright Blade} as well. Pull back here. If you intend to do anything more yourselves from here then you’ll be suspected of erasing evidence. If possible I want you to standby outside of the room. Of course, I promise we’ll take responsibility and secure the remaining member when he teleports in. If you doubt us then it’s fine if you exchange one of your members with ours, I’m sure they wouldn’t recognize from just a glance so that’s fine. If they change helmets and are wearing armor there’s no way to tell. After we capture them, I’ll listen to their story. You guys can come out after that.”

What’s with this guy, trying to take command like he’s so important. What the hell is the order within the dungeon. Something like that doesn’t matter at all. Or what is it? Do you think you’re the master of this dungeon or something? Well it’s not like I don’t understand what he wants to say and in some meanings it’s more convenient for us that way.

He must have noticed my doubtful face, Virhaima scratched his cheek while continuing.

“Don’t make a face like that. I won’t let things go badly for you. It’s not like we particularly like those guys from {Bright Blade} either. Even you’re interested in what the remaining member of {Bright Blade} says when you're not around right?"

Vrihaima said it with a slightly more timid feel.

"..I understand, I'm sure it would be the better choice for us to do as you say here as well...We'll exchange lookouts. We'll switch in the elf from our party who's looking out right now."

"Rock, Ben. You heard the conversation right? You two keep lookout first. After that Baas, exchange your equipment with this elf from the Slaughterers. You remain on standby in the hall with the slaughterers."

After hearing that I called out to Toris as well.

"Toris, switch out with the lookout of {Verdure Brotherhood}. You exchange equipment with this person from the {Verdure Brotherhood}. I'll give you the detailed explanation."

I explained the details to Toris after he quickly ran over and got him to agree and then after switching equipment with a member of {Verdure Brotherhood} he concealed himself in their group.

We all gathered our bags again and moved a bit away into the cave to standby.

The amount of time we've been on standby has continued for close to five hours. We talked about recent events with the elf Baas who exchanged equipment with Toris while waiting so it wasn't completely boring. Baas is a 36 year old elf and you could say his personality is rough but if you try talking to him just his tone is rough and he's pretty much a normal adventurer. However as expected of a member of one of the top teams, he's quite skilled. Since the only one older than him in our party is Zenom, the way he seems to be looking down on us pisses me off but it's true that can't be helped when we're all brats.

If I try talking to him he properly replies and he sometimes talks to us as well. It's true there's some parts he's underestimating us on but he understands that I'm the leader of the {Slaughterers} and isn't bluntly looking down on me. We continue whispering (even if we're close to the teleport room since we're outside we don't feel like talking loud) and laugh over jokes while getting familiar.

It was just then.

"Alright!"

"Ora~!!"

"Gue!! Ou~ch, what are you doing! SO suddenly!? Let me pass. I'm returning to the surface."

There was a voice echoing from the teleport crystal room. Everyone quiets down.

"Yo~ if it isn't Bikkens. What are you doing alone? Aren't you together with Demitoridas and the others?"

That's Virhaima's voice.

"Ah? Ah, so it's you..No, that is..That's right! Those bastards from the {Slaughterers} are crazy! They suddenly attacked us!"

This must be Bikkens from the {Bright Blade}. He's babbling on about random shit...All of the members of the {Slaughterers} including me were making angry expressions. Only Baas was making an amused face. It's not funny.

"Ha~!? Are you serious!? And, did the all powerful {Bright Blade}-san just brazenly get done in?"

That's a skillful interjection. It's the voice of the Rabbit-people spear user of the {verdure Brotherhood}.

"That is, just listen to this. That brat leader of the slaughterers suddenly hit us with some magic. I've never seen a {Lightning Bolt} as amazing~ as that before... Since I was a bit of distance away in the back being careful of monsters I was safe though you know."

"You don't say, so everyone was done in? What happened to everyone else?"

This time it was the voice of the female dwarf. Her weapon was..what was it again?

"No idea~ I thought it was bad~ so I just ran for it right away...But, it's true they suddenly attacked us while we were taking a break.”

This bastard, let alone taking a break the ones who attacked while we were in the middle of combat were you all. I have no intention of rejecting that sort of behavior itself. Honestly speaking, I don’t even think it’s cowardly. If you win, your side is just after all. But, think about what to do when you screw up.

“Let me hear about that in more detail. If it’s true then we’ll need to hand them over to the knight group right.”

Virhaima’s voice. He’s calm.

“Ah, su, sure. But is it fine to do tomorrow? I’m tired. I want to quickly return to the surface.”

“Isn’t it fine, just a bit. We’ll at least treat you to a meal, eat together with us before you. I won’t say to pay us, it’s my treat.”

The human woman huh? If I remember correctly she uses a sword and shield.

“No~ I’m really tired. After all I returned while avoiding monsters all on my own. I just want to sleep, already~”

“I guess it can’t be helped. But you know, things won’t go that simply right? What are you going to do if the slaughterers came back here chasing you? You should at least tell us the circumstances before you go. And {Bright Blade} was attacked in a passage right..there’s no way that could have been the case right. There’s no way they’d have been that careless after all.”

It’s the voice of the other male elf than Baas. It seems that his skill with the bow is pretty high. Well, even then I think our Bel is several levels higher than him though.

“Che...Even though I’m in a hurry..On the 5th floor you know, isn’t there a room with the altar. We we’re taking a break there. I was the only one being cautious of the passage. We were suddenly attacked there. Since we had just defeated a monster, I’m sure Demitoridas-san was letting his guard down a bit. They suddenly hit us with some magic and in no time at all several people fell down. And, since they were all done in so fast, isn’t it scary~? I desperately ran away before they noticed me.”

“When is that story from?”

Virhaima again.

“Of course today. It was around 7–8 hours ago I guess?”

“I see. You were able to return alone in just 7–8 hours?”

This is Virhaima as well.

“Ah? Yeah, since the direction of the passage I was being careful of was connected to the direction we came from after all..”

“He~ you had quite good luck.”

The human man. He should have been using a sword and shield same as the woman.

“Yeah, really though. Is it fine if I go already?”

“Not yet. But you know, Demitoridas is quite the fool. Why was it only you alone that was keeping lookout? Going off that store then there were three passages connected to that room right?”

“Yeah, that’s right. The hall we came in from, the hall ahead of that I was keeping lookout on. And after that is the hall that the {Slaughterers} attacked us from, just those three. Is there something strange about that?”

“It’s strange right? Even giving you the benefit of the doubt, it’s still fine that you weren’t being cautious of the hall you guys came from in the first place. But, it’s completely strange that out of the remaining two halls you weren’t only being careful of one of them right? I can’t think that Demitoridas is that much of a fool.”

That was the Wolf-people woman who uses a bow.

“What was that! So you’re going to doubt me! It’s not a lie.”

“I didn’t say that far right. I just thought it was too weak too not have a proper lookout setup when you’re taking a break in the dungeon.”

The Wolf-people woman continued saying that.

“Ah, no, ma, Martha might have been keeping lookout as well. I think she was probably done in by the {slaughterers} first.”

“Oh, I see. If that’s the case then say that from the start.”

“Yeah, sorry about that.”

“And, Martha was done in without even being able to raise a voice. Did he kill her instantly with a spell?”

Viruhaima again.

“Isn’t that how it went? Since I didn’t see it I don’t know though..”

“But you know~ Even if they were to suddenly be ambushed with a strong {Lightning Bolt}, that they would suddenly be done in without being able to do anything is just a bit..”

It’s the human female warrior I guess.

“Yeah, it seems like they at least counter attacked. I saw Demitoridas-san shooting a bow. But I thought it was no good even then.”

“Ha~? That’s amazing?! He was able to shoot back with a bow after taking a hit from {Lightning Bolt}..Don’t lie, this bastard!”

That was the voice of the old man dwarf who uses a {Battle Axe} bigger than the one Zenom uses as he retorted it.

“Ah, no, that’s just how I saw it and he might have done in before he could shoot it.”

From there it just started to drag on. He ended up getting caught up in several places from Virhaima’s guided interrogation and was captured.

After being called out by Virhaima we entered the room and Bikkens openly started to panic.

I showed the arrow that hit me and since it was a considerably high quality arrow it would be easy to determine who purchased it, and while that arrowhead was already dry it still had blood and some meat stuck to it. The fact that I took the arrow from behind. The fact that there were marks on the back of my helmet and armor which matched up with the form of different arrowheads, when we pointed that out to him and he showed an expression of resignation but it didn’t go to the point of admitting that they attacked us.

How stubborn of him.

In any case after we all tied up Bikkens, we returned to the surface.

We reported it to the knight group but Bikkens denied it at that time as well.

After that, it's a story from another day but there was backup fire from an unexpected place.

Doruleon, the guy who we previously saved when they were attacked by a slime and nearly wiped out was still in Baldukk. He was the second son of the owner of the high-class restaurant "Dorureon". Right, that restaurant that I went to the first time I took orders from the commander of the first knight group Baron Logan.

"Greed-san and the others didn't just save me from a perilous situation but they didn't demand the equipment from my dead allies either. They returned everything saying it was the belongings of my deceased allies. Of course, I paid them a bit as thanks for saving me but that's the obvious thing to do. I can't think that Greed-san and the others like that would progressively attack other adventurers."

Of course, it's not proof of anything at all but it became an important testimony for reference.

It might have been big that the knight group of Baldukk also visit "Dorureon" a lot of as well but in any case, Bikkens ended up being executed on the next judgement day.

The equipment and assets of {Bright Blade} all ended up becoming mine. However, all of their savings outside of the dungeon (as expected even these guys had a locker with the government office) were confiscated by the government office it seems. Since it's not something that we gained as a result of combat in the dungeon, so it ended up just being processed as if a citizen of Baldukk died. I thought it was a waste but it can't be helped.

The two suits of metal armor {Banded-mail} that were still in reasonably good condition I had Zulu and Toris use. The long sword that was of pretty good quality I had Toris exchange with his, the broad sword to Angela, and the spear to Gwine. All of the other armor and equipment than that we sold for money. Furthermore, there was a high-quality bow as well but Bel said “something I’m used to using is better” so we just sold it as well. I’m sorry the order of dates might be a bit out of place but of course this was all concluded around May.

Chapter 120: 6th Floor

Year 7444, Month 2, Day 1

Finally, we're finally aiming for the 6th floor starting this month. The day that we {Slaughterers} will become the top team of the dungeon in Baldukk in the true meaning has come. It's not like I want to bask in the self-satisfaction of being called the top team. We're going to achieve something others have not and along with making a foothold for the future we'll step foot into the virgin land these past few decades and obtain unseen treasures. If it was just about earning safely then even if we continue as we have now in another few years we'd probably have earned enough to live our entire lives, we have enough power that on the 2nd floor there's just about nothing that could put our lives at risk I'm sure.

However, isn't that boring?

In our plans we'll spend the night tonight in the teleport room of the 3rd floor. Tomorrow we'll arrive at the teleport room of the 5th floor and spend one more night there. And the day after tomorrow we'll finally step foot on the 6th floor. Until two days after tomorrow, we plan to spend almost a full two days exploring the 6th floor. Of course we'll be camping in the teleport room of the 5th floor. For the time being there's almost no one who would be camping here and depending on the case if we can make it to the teleport room on the 6th floor I think it might even be good to camp there.

However in the case, we'll end up using the teleport room of the 6th floor as a starting point to explore backwards and we won't gain any information on teleport points from the 5th floor so I don't really want to do that.

In any case, we'll be taking the first steps on the 6th floor. There's only stories told from the founder George Rombert the First but since it seems that the 6th floor is like a maze where teleport keeps happening even though there's no crystal so we'll probably need to depend on Gwine and Ralpa's Unique Abilities even more than until now and it's possible that their remaining MP will become a life line for us.

After we finish up breakfast, we all head towards the entrance plaza which is quite congested.

Zulu bought a pork skewer at a stall and after sticking it into his mouth he threw away the skewer. I gave the two slaves their wages of 20,000 Z (2 silver coins) yesterday. Zulu's increased by 1.4 times and Angela's increased by 1.5 times. Their morale is high today.

The entrance plaza of the dungeon is packed as usual with adventurers entering the dungeon, the parasites, guides, merchants trying to sell incomplete maps of the lower floors, and merchants who deal in preserved food and equipment.

When we arrived there the people moved out from in front of us almost like the ocean was splitting and as the path opened up cheers were raised.

I walk through there without emotion.

I can hear voices filled with envy and admiration from here and there.

It's been less than two years since we came to Baldukk and even though we don't even have a full party we've quickly risen to the top groups, the other day we were attacked by {Bright Blade} in the dungeon for reasons of jealousy and impatience (or at least that's how it's rumored to be), and instead turned the tables on them wiping them out so the {Slaughterers} have become an existence that stands out quite a bit.

"Greed-sama! Please put me in the {Slaughterers} as well! I'll show you I can be useful!"

"Firefreed-san, he's so cool right. He's masculine and I can look up to him."

"Greed-sama! If you add me to your party then your scouts will become more complete! How about it!?"

"Ehe...Young lady Akdam, I've been in the care of your father. You should help connect me with Greed-sama."

"No wait, Gulinel-chan, I've seen you riding on the carriage when you were little! Once your beard grows out come be my wife~!"

"Ah, Greed-sama! Don't forget about us Boton brothers! We'll show you we can be far more useful than those riffraff around there!”

“Oh~ Bernadette-cha~~n! I’m cheering for you~! Tolkelis drop dead!”

“What are you saying! Kalstalan-sama~! Look over here~! Kya~ that, he just waved his hand towards me! Rabbit’s should quickly die!”

“Greed-san! Introduce me to your older sister! I’m from the Viscount Penlaid families..”

“So that Laios is Zulu huh? After all he has an amazing physique.”

“That Dog-people is Greed-sama’s combat slave as well right? I’m sure she’s eating some good things~ her breasts are big~ after all the women of the same race are good. If they don’t have the second set of breasts then it’s half the charm!”

“Greed-sama! How about it, this? It’s the new model of backpack!”

“Ou~ Ralpa! Let’s go drinking together again~!”

I feel like the ones calling to Ralpa were a bit of a different direction, isn’t that just drinking buddies? Don’t get into fights. I bow to Church-san who is making a bit of a dry smile and after paying the 80,000 Z taxes for all 8 of us we headed towards the teleport crystal rod at the entrance.

.....

Year 7444, Month 2, Day 3

We’ve spent two nights inside of the dungeon for the first time. There’s no recent remains of a camp in the teleport room on the 5th floor. I’m sure there’s not much need to worry about someone coming here for the time being. Since we intend to spend the night camping here as well, I’m sure we’ll be in the care of this room for a short while from here on out.

We started setting up a special set of camping tools in the corner of the room that we hadn’t used until now. We brought along several buckets this time. Several large cloths as well. It’s in order to take a shower in a different corner from where we sleep. On our way here from the 1st floor we’ve gathered the wood spears from monsters for this sake as well, we’ll use those as materials to create a stand, and then we’ll put the bucket we intend to put hot water in above those. If we just put a couple of small holes in the bottom of the bucket then while it’s crude we can bathe in a shower.

After all the other adventurers in the teleport room of the 4th floor stink quite a bit. Since the 4th and 5th floor themselves have quite a bit of rotting smell floating around normally it doesn't stand out much but once you go out to the surface you can easily tell. And from the information we already had, we know there's wild boars on the 6th floor. Pigs should be able to smell on the same level as dogs. Thinking that it would be best to drop as much body odor as possible is another big reason we decided to setup the shower.

When I talked about this "plan to turn the teleport room of the 5th floor into a base" with everyone there was about half for and half against it. Incidentally, Zenom, Toris, Zulu, and Angela were against it and Bel, Ralpa, Gwine, and myself were for it. It seems that Zenom and Toris couldn't understand the meaning in making a shower itself.

I'm sure that the primary reason Zulu and Angela were against it was because they knew they would end up having to be the ones to carry the tools for it. It was a considerably negative and reserved disagreement after all. When I explained my thinking to them and before it was still an intention just a plan they were negative to it and timidly said "it will just end up pointless". They're most likely worrying about the shower equipment being destroyed by some different adventurers. It's true that every time we enter the dungeon bringing along not just the one bucket for washing our feet, but even more materials for a shower which doesn't have any relation to our lives wouldn't be amusing at all.

I wonder if it's because everyone who agreed with it other than me is a woman. Since we've only ever spent one night in the dungeon until now I'm sure they were able to endure without a shower but since we have a long-awaited safe area I think it's only natural to agree with the desire to want to spend time resting there clean. After hearing that Zenom who still hadn't accepted it until I told my reason for agreeing with it said, "I had completely forgotten about the information on the boars from the 6th floor. No, I hadn't forgotten about it, I just didn't think that far." and agreed with it as well.

In regards to the concerns about it being destroyed by other adventurers but I said we'd put a note explaining how to use it and the reason for it because of the boars on the 6th floor and try to make it acknowledged as a shared asset by the other top teams and they agreed with it as well. It's just what I think but there's no idiots among the top teams. Even that {Bright Blade} I don't think were idiots. If you're going to aim for the 6th floor or beyond you'll definitely need a shower facility and I think that without a doubt rather than putting priority on obstructing other adventurers from trying to carry in something they can use themselves, they'd just put priority on the convenience of not having to carry it, and after explaining that Zulu and Angela agreed as well.

In any case there's no need to worry about it being destroyed and a shower itself is an appreciated thing, it's definite that taking a cold shower first thing in the morning feels good after all.

After cleaning ourselves up we finally are proceeding to the 6th floor. I grab the teleport crystal rod and chant the incantation.

“Shihotoko!”

Just the same as usual our surroundings completely changed. The ceiling is considerably high up. I think it's over 50m. I don't know if it's because it's so high that the light doesn't reach but overall it feels like the amount of light inside of the dungeon has decreased. There's no difference in the pedestal the teleport crystal is on. We investigated the symbol on it and Bel wrote “1” with a random stone in the direction it pointed. Incidentally, the walls are the same as the 5th floor made up of a mix of stone and dirt almost like a cave but since the ceiling is strangely high, it feels more like being at the bottom of a dark valley. The floor is the usual rugged ground.

Gwine uses her Unique Ability, and looks around the passages in both directions with a sharp gaze. Ralph points in the direction that's North. According to that the passage is just stretching out South and North it seems.

After inspecting our equipment and making sure there's no problems and,
“Let's start going from this direction I guess?”

I said that and pointed North. Now then, let's start advancing the same as usual.

I'll create some air with wind magic and reveal the hidden pit falls..since the ceiling is too high it's absurdly inefficient. Up until now I've been able to discover pitfalls and hidden switches units of 100m but even if I use the same amount of mana it only blows the dirt away about 10-15m ahead here. If it was the same sort of stone walls as the 3rd floor then I could make do with water magic but it seems like the structure of the pitfalls themselves are different, so I don't think that will work either.

Uhe~ after making it here we end up having to proceed slowly like the first time we entered the dungeon~? Everyone is making dispirited expressions. It seems like the 6th floor is really going to drag out.

However, it can't be helped making complaints, shall we go...

For the time being we'll proceed using Gwine's spear as a pole. Returning to the 5th floor once passed through my head but as expected there's no poles that are over 3m. It was when we spent about an hour to proceed 500-600m or so. Angela started moving her nose.

"Something is a considerable distance ahead of us."

Bel responded with a twitch.

"Quiet.."

Her ears stand on end and she closes her eyes concentrating. Everyone is tense while watching her every movement so as to not miss what happens.

"Four legs..multiple..I think? Since there's some distance I can't really tell for sure but it's definite there's something there."

Four legs huh? I wonder if it's a wild boar? Right when I opened my mouth to have us correct our battle formation,

"It's coming! One of them!"

Bel opened her mouth and warned us.

"Zulu, Angela, fortify the front with me! Zenom and Ralpa be careful of the rear! Bel if you see it then shoot! Gwine back us up with your spear between the gaps! Toris take care of guarding Bel!"

The {Slaughterers} quickly fixed our positions after hearing my instructions.

The energetic movements sound good but it's our first combat on the 6th floor. I can also tell everyone is tense. Even I'm tense. After all it's a monster I'm fighting for the first time, there's no way I'd know its characteristics or attack methods.

Just like that 10 seconds or so passed by. Bel said in a confused voice, saying that. What does that mean?

"Huh? Huh? The sound has, I can't hear the sound anymore..Huh?"

Everyone is looking at her with a confused face.

Bel lowers her bow and started concentrating on her ears again with her eyes closed.

It was in that moment!

"Al!"

"Behind you!"

I heard Ralpa and Zenom's yell. It's behind Zulu, Angela, Gwine, who were all turned around facing Bel(in other words, in front of us) at a location about 20m a wild boar suddenly appeared and started charging at us!

"Guo!!"

It seems it body slammed Zulu in the back and Zulu's large build was sent flying. It's huge! It's length is over 2m and it's height is over 1m as well, a wild boar like that passes by my side and following Zulu, Bel was run over as well. Bel let out a voice of "Ngu!!" as she was sent flying, after gaining momentum the wild boar aimed to body slam Ralpa who was even further in the rear but since Ralpa already saw it in advance she was able to dodge it.

Shit, where did this thing suddenly appear from!?

I only thought that for an instant before shooting {Flame Javelin Missile} into it's ass, and just as it tried to change directions while in pain I let it eat a {Stone Javelin}, when it was recoiling from that Zenom and Ralpa attacked it and smashed their axes into it's head as it died.

I quickly ran over to Bel and identified her but it seems the tusk stabbed in through her flank and she's losing a lot of blood. Close to 70% of her HP was lost. Toris is trying to take off her leather armor in order to use the spell {Cure} he just learned so I pushed him out of the way and used a knife to cut open her leather armor before using the spell {Cure All} directly on her. The wound immediately closed and her HP recovered. After seeing that there was relief in Toris's face.

Zulu was wounded even worse than Bel but it seems he was somehow saved from damage to his spine. Just the same I used the spell {Cure All} to heal him and the crisis was concluded. It seems there's a considerable amount of pain remaining for Bel and Zulu and they can't stand up.

"Ralph, how did this thing appear?"

I remain cautious of the front while asking Ralph who's behind me.

"I don't know. It suddenly appeared."

Shit..What does that mean?

"There shouldn't have been anything there but it abruptly came out in the middle of the passage. It was abrupt."

Zenom said while agitated as well. I couldn't help but turn around.

"Al-san, could it be.."

Toris is holding Bel up while looking up at me and opens his mouth.

"Ouch..Al-san, the footsteps I had heard suddenly disappeared. Nn...a short while after that the wild boar suddenly appeared close to us. Pro..Probably isn't it that rumored teleportation on the 6th floor?"

Bel continued after Toris's words while in pain. I see, so that's how it was. What a troublesome floor. I focus my attention ahead again while,

"Shit..so that's how it was...It can't be helped, Toris, sorry but help me lend a shoulder to Zulu. Ralph to Angela you help Bel. We're retreating for now. Zenom be cautious of the rear, Gwine sorry but watch the front."

"Eh? What about the magic stone..."

Ralph and Gwine said at the same time.

"It's fine this time. First we need to secure out safety. In the first place, if something were to charge in while we were leisurely gathering the magic stone, there's nothing we could do about it."

In a short one hour after we stepped foot on the 6th floor, a distance of only about 500-600m we're curling our tail up and running back, huh? It can't be helped, this is our current ability. However, as expected of a floor that's blocked the top teams until now. I'm sure that the top teams right now have challenged the 6th floor several times. But, they probably gave up on clearing through it. I'm different, just watch!

In any case we already know for sure there's no traps so we should be able to return to the teleport crystal in about 10 minutes. Depending on the recovery of Bel and Zulu, we'll try challenging it once more.

We were able to return to the teleport room on the 5th floor without anything in particular happening. I created some dirt in a random spot put some blankets down to make a simple bed and then we placed Bel and Zulu there then I quickly opened my mouth.

"Shit~ It was like the "computer game" I played in the past. I guess that means monsters suddenly {Warp} near you.."

"That seems to be the case. I guess this is what they meant by "even though there's no crystal, teleportation is repeated".."

and Toris said that. That's exactly the case.

"The painful part is that there's either no way to deal with it or even if there is some sort of rules or pattern to the teleporting then there's no other choice than to try and determine that."

After hearing my words Toris opened his mouth once again.

"That's true. I wonder exactly how much time it will take to see through the patterns of the teleportation assuming it even has one.."

"Toris, don't say anything that sounds too much like a complaint. Let's start out from trying to find out the rules. We'll go to the 6th floor countless times and putting aside the monsters if we try teleporting as well..Ah."

Ralpa warned Toris but it seems she realized it.

“That’s right. I just thought of it as well. The monster that just charged into us was only one. Bel, if I remember correctly you said you heard multiple footsteps at first right?”

I tried asking Bel and she replied while still laying on her side.

“Yeah, it’s true I got the feeling that there were several of them at first. But, it was only one that came running over here. There’s no mistake on that. Those footsteps disappeared along the way and..after a short while I was charged into.”

“Then that’s, during the time the footsteps disappeared it was on the way of teleporting I guess?”

Gwine threw out her doubts but there’s no way no one would know the right answer.

“Nn~ it might be okay to think that way but it might be different. The only answer right now is that we don’t yet.”

Toris replied. Well it’s true there’s no other reply than that.

“..What Bel just said, the boar that suddenly appeared, and the information we had heard about the 6th floor before hand, we were able to confirm all of these things. Let’s talk about just the things that we’ve been able to confirm. It’s fine to guess the things we can’t confirm but since it could end up giving us preconceived notions let’s not guess about things that we’re already guessing.”

I said that and looked around at everyone, and then opened my mouth to continue.

“What’s definite is that, the 6th floor is different from up until now, and that the monsters suddenly appear. For the time being it’s only appeared on our side but it might even be possible for it to appear from behind us or while we’re in the middle of combat. It’s necessary to be pay even more attention to all directions than we have up until now. Also, we have no information on the traps of this floor. Since we have no idea what kind of traps could be laying in wait for us, this is something that needs caution as well. I’m sure only Zenom, Ralpa, and Zulu would know but it’s a situation like the first time we entered Baldukk. Since we already have people with experience with it, let's relax. Is up to here fine?"

After confirming everyone has nodded I continue again. In any case it's important to offer them some material to help them relax and wipe away the anxiety.

"And, one thing that's definitively different from that time is Gwine's ability to produce maps. Matching that together with Ralph's ability to confirm the direction and we're the best in the world at making an accurate map. That's why as long as we can solve the mysteries surrounding the teleportation of the 6th floor then we'll definitely be able to clear it."

It seems to be necessary to change our goal in words for clearing the dungeon from "earning money" to "clearing" in order guide their feelings. If it remains "earning money" then when it comes to comparing to the amount of risk there might be someone who gets cold feet as well. Mostly Gwine though. And I casually raise Gwine up as a central existence to us. If we don't have her, Gwine, then it's harsh, but as long as we have her, Gwine, we'll definitely have the power to do this.

"And that's how it is. That's why Gwine, we're all relying on you. I'm depending on you."

"Yeah, please leave the map to me! Let's combine our power and clear through!"

Gwine clenched both of her fists together and replied. I really like honest kids.

"Now then, the continuation. In regards to the teleportation but there's no other choice than to try that already. If it was just the monsters that are teleporting then I don't think the story would be passed on as, "even though there's no crystal, teleportation is repeated". Most likely the ones doing the teleportation includes us. I can think of several problems that come up there. First off, the starting point of the teleportation. Is it a specific location, is the place it teleports to fixed, or maybe every time you enter the starting point of the teleportation it teleports you to a completely different place. Next is..and this is important but"

“Whether or not the place everyone teleports to is the same, right?”

Bel said that.

“That’s right. Normally in order for us to be cautious of the surroundings and make it easier to move when we’re attacked we maintain a certain amount of distance between us right? That’s why, combat..though this is the same even if the starting point of the teleport is fixed or ahead of us but it would mean we teleport from the front. If the teleport destination is fixed then we can group up immediately and we should be able to somehow do it without thinking too deeply about it. However, if I think about the case where we end up teleported to different locations and it’s going to become difficult. There’s a number of conditions we’ll have to think about like the time when we’re teleporting or if making contact with each other let’s us teleport together.”

“That’s true. And, for example if the teleport destination changes every five minutes, quite literally anything seems possible.”

Toris said that.

“Yeah, that’s right, and one more thing.”

“The starting point for the teleport? was it, things will be completely different if we can see that or can’t see it at all.”

Ralpa said that. Yeah, she’s not an idiot right. For some reason I have the imagine of a brainless fool though. She thinks considerably quick.

“That’s the case. This is my prediction and guess, and in addition my wish, but I don’t think the information “even though there’s no crystal, teleportation is repeated” is from the notes of Rombert the First. It’s said to be something that comes from what the person himself said, but at the very least Rombert the First had multiple allies and they made it to the 8th floor and returned as well. It’s true that it never says whether they all made it back unharmed or without missing anyone. If I think about that then I think most likely that everyone teleports together. If everyone teleported to different places then they might end up having to take on a group of monsters alone after all. It would feel unnatural if everyone one of his allies had that much combat power on their own. I’m sure there were slaves to carrying the bags as well. Putting aside water, if the food ran out things would get hard.”

I look around at everyone again before continuing my words.

“And, I think that you can see the origin point for the teleporting. I feel like it would be more natural to think of this as a type of trap on the 6th floor. Even if it can’t be seen there would be a method to recognize it. For example, throwing a stone as we walk.”

“I see. In other words if the stone we throw disappears in mid-air then that would be the starting point for the teleport. There’s plenty of worth in testing it out. If it comes to that then it won’t be that much different as up until now as long as we remain careful of the monsters that suddenly teleport nearby.”

Zenom said that and gravely nodded.

Obviously it’s not just that. The starting point could be moving around as well and if it’s a fast speed then even if we throw a rock it would be pointless. However, if it’s something magical then in the worst case I could stand at the front and use {Anti-Magic Field}. Even if I can’t offset it with {Anti-Magic Field} if the light from my hand disappears we’ll know something is there. Just the same if we prepare something like an extremely long pole and maintain a {Light} at the end of that then I feel like we’ll be able to notice something as well.

Well no matter~ Rombert the First was able to do it. I’m sure that we can do it too..Come to think of it Karl said that Rombert the First had over 20 Unique Abilities. This might be no good...

Chapter 121: Fairy Village Again 1

Year 7444, Month 2, Day 14

Somehow or other, we ended up going past our original plans, we spent from February 1st until the 5th inside of the dungeon, after that we took 3 consecutive days off, then from the 9th until yesterday the 13th we explored again. The conclusion we arrived at from adventuring during that time was that after all the teleportation on the 6th floor is a type of trap. If you throw a rock while walking it's actually pretty simple to discover them. The width of the passage is about 9m but on the walls of both sides of that there's a fixed stone with a strange symbol carved into it. In between those two stones there's a space of about 6m that's the starting point for the teleportation.

After testing out throwing a number of rocks inside we confirmed it. In other words, you can pass through about 1.5m from the stone. Even if you throw a rock in from the other side it seems to teleport. Other than that, there were still the same arrow and pitfall traps as well. It's actually more troublesome to discover those. That's why we haven't advanced much at all with exploring the 6th floor so far.

Furthermore, the stone with a symbol carved into it seems to be part of a large boulder sticking out so we gave up on digging it up. Also, the symbol isn't uniform. Just guessing but the symbol is probably different for each teleport destination? is the best opinion we could come up with. Even when we tried to carve off the symbol, the stone, or rather boulder was too hard so it was impossible. Well even if we were able to shave it off considering the recovery ability of the dungeon I feel like it would restore to normal after a short while so I don't think it has much meaning. Since we don't know where we'll teleport to on the 6th floor it's not like we're often passing by the same spot after all.

We still haven't tried going inside of one of the teleport traps. There was the far too reckless proposal of Ralpa to go all out and try jumping in but it was immediately rejected by everyone.

Incidentally, we were able to confirm that nothing happens when just sticking the end of a pole inside. If you throw it in it teleports. After carefully observing and it seems that when more half of the object passes the teleport trap it activates. We weren't able to confirm if that's the same for living creatures. If there was a goblin wandering around we could tie one up and kick it in but unfortunately the only thing we've seen is the wild boars {Cave Wild Boar}. As expected capturing a wild boar of this size alive is a bit unreasonable. Even if we were able to I don't think it would budge even we kick it.

In any case, just like this we've predicted that exploring the 6th floor is going to take an extremely long amount of time. There's already no choice but to firmly sit down and make an effort on it over time. The things to be gained are big. After all, even though we've only entered rooms on the 6th floor twice so far but the first time there was about 10 wild boars and no problem at all but the second time, there was an altar like the ones on the 5th floor and what was summoned was a {Cave Great Boar}, after we defeated that an idiotically huge ore of gold came out.

A large ore of gold that was two times the size of an adult's head was immensely heavy and according to Toris it has the weight of above 50 times that of a liter of water so it should have weighed about 50kg. I'm sure the purity of the ore must have been high as well, since it seemed that it would have amounted to 20kg or so of gold after being tempered and if that's true then it seems it will sell for over 60,000,000 Z.

Since it seems that this is the first time this large of a gold ore was brought back in Baldukk in several decades the adventurers were all excited. Since we reported that we found this ore on the 5th floor we succeeded in pulling the top teams to the 5th floor. Particularly {Sun Ray} jumped at this information, today they've even split their party in two and are clearing it at the same time.

Just like we do every year exchanged birthday presents all five of us celebrated that we were safely able to reach our 16th birthday and the fact that it seems one week later the tempering will be done so we'll get our hands on a huge sum of money as well. Everyone got into the spirit and drank a lot. Since as expected things were pretty painful the next day I seriously started to think about using {Neutralize Poison}.

All five of us reincarnated people had an increase in ability values thanks to the increase in age. Everyone's levels increased as well, the lowest Gwine is already level 12, and even though she's in one of the top teams it's no problem at all.

.....

Year 7444, Month 4, Day 25

After returning to the Boil Manor from the dungeon and brother and the others were there. It seems that brother and the others arrived on the night of the day before yesterday and instead of going to make deliveries to the knight group without me, they waited. I mean, I did get a letter saying they would arrive tonight after all..so I relaxed thought it would be just right. The caravan from Bakuddo this time brought along a huge load. Starting from this month for roughly two years, the Ryogu family of squires from Bakuddo will be living in Rombertia after all, I'm sure it's their luggage as well. After all, there's only two carriages, other than the goods for delivery the carriages packed with their belongings are piled up like a mountain.

That's why it seems they left the village about a week early. Well in the end they were slowed down for two days in Baldukk so it was canceled out but if I think about it, it's only obvious they got here faster.

I thought for a bit and then said to everyone.

"Ah..Sorry but the next time we were supposed to enter the dungeon was April 29, but since there's some conveniences for the company as well I think we'll have a slightly early {Golden Week}. Starting from May the 3rd. That's why I'll make the 7 days until May the 2nd into days off. I know it's a bit abrupt but someone tell Zulu and Angela about it as well..Ah, I guess I'll tell them when we eat dinner."

Since the start of February for this roughly three month period, we've been vigorously continuing to explore the 6th floor but because of caution towards the traps, the exploration is barely progressing at all, it's just our guess but we think we've only proceeded through about 10% or so of it so far. We haven't found any magic items but we have found a total of 4 ores and raw rems, a rate of 1–2 per month, so we're finding them at a quick pace and the fact that it's satisfying is our greatest salvation.

I'm glad I was able to remember at the last moment. May 1st is the day I can try going to Karl's place again. I don't know if I can make it there or not but there's plenty of worth in trying it for almost an entire day. This time I intend to bring along a lot of fish.

Well in any case, for right now let's just focus on our meal in celebration of our reunion. I said to brother and the others "please wait just a moment I'll go and change" and immediately went inside, removed my protectors, took a quick shower, and changed into neat clothes. Incidentally when I went to the shower room both of them were already in use (probably Bel and Ralpa), so I returned to my room and pulled out my bucket for cooling in the summer to use as a shower.

I put my sword band on my waist as I head towards the lobby where brother and the others are waiting and after hugging Rozual and Wendy who I hadn't seen in a while, I smiled to their daughter Dianne and said, "I've prepared a good place so look forward to it. Ralpa and Gwine came along as I was greeting the other squires escorting this time. So the first ones showering were these two huh?

Brother started talking to me displeased for some reason.

"Al, I've heard about you from the people of the inn, it seems that you're said to be the number one adventurer in Baldukk already. That's quite something. As expected, you're doing well."

I'm being praised right?

That's right, Al-sama. We heard rumors about you during dinner the other night, it seems you're called the {Slaughterers}, and you even managed to wipe out a group of adventurers that attacked you the other day! It seems that it was a crime committed because they were jealous of Al-sama's progress or something..However, as expected of Al-sama. To defeat them instead is quite something."

In comparison Sean is in an extremely good mood. Rozual and Wendy are smiling as they praised me.

There I was pulled into a corner of the lobby by brother and he started whispering to me.

“Al, I have a bit of something to talk about. What’s the meaning of {Slaughterers}? It better not be a name given because you’re attacking adventurers or something right?”

Brother is looking at me with a stern look. Ah, I see, he was displeased over the name {Slaughterers}. It’s not surprising since brother hates crooked things. Since he doesn’t come to Baldukk all that often it’s only obvious he didn’t know.

“Yeah, please rest easy. The name {Slaughterers} is a nickname given to us because we’re killing almost all of the monsters we encounter in the dungeon and bringing their magic stones back. Other adventurers normally try to avoid combat as much as possible while progressing further into the dungeon. However, we don’t go out of our way to avoid monsters. We’re defeat them all and proceeding even further. I’ve definitely not done anything that would dirty the honor of our name.”

I properly looked at brother’s eyes while saying that.

“..I see, I feel a bit relieved hearing that...I thought my heart would stop for a moment when I heard you were being called the {Slaughterers} the other night. Of course I had faith in you. The other squires believed in you as well. But, since adventurers are exploring the dungeon..It wouldn’t be strange if anything happened. Sorry for doubting you. Forgive me. However, the {Slaughterers} is quite a dangerous nickname. I was surprised. And, if you had changed, I was worried that I wouldn’t be able to agree with your objective anymore.”

Brother put both of his hands on my shoulders while saying that and lowered his head. I,

“Please raise your hand. But for you to doubt me is mean. I won’t do anything that would make father angry. I don’t like the name {Slaughterers} all that much either but it’s a nickname that comes in handy. It’s not all that bad.”

I laughed while saying that and separated. Brother,

“Nn..I’m sure. It’s a nickname that’s hard to look down on. Since there’s young girls in your party as well...It’s true if I think about it like that it’s not that bad huh? But I would have preferred you being called {Justice Blade} or {Royalty Wolves}.”

said that and laughed. {Justice Blade} and {Royalty Wolves} are the names of legendary parties from several hundred years ago. They’re the subjects for a number of fairy-tales. {Justice Blade} challenged a dragon when it was raging around in the Dirt Plains in order to protect the surrounding villages, and while they were wiped out, they managed to injure the dragon forcing it to retreat. The {Royalty Wolves} were a party of Wolf-people race that existed during the era of the second King and acted as volunteer soldiers during the war with Gulanan Empire, their leader was a direct subordinate of the founder and first King. Since the first King saved the the Wolf-people race during his adventuring days they weren’t able to forget that debt and acted as shortstops when he was invading other kingdoms to expand his territory, it seems they played quite a big role in those wars. Since they weren’t associated with the army but rather treated as a shortstop organization of volunteer soldiers so they aren’t treated as soldiers but rather adventurers.

They’re both extremely famous examples of adventurers but not to my taste. If you were to ask me I prefer the ones where they focus not on the group of adventurers but the individuals, like Rombert the First or the adventurer who founded Kanbitt King, King Rogmokk.Za.Pitviper, so that’s what I’m aiming for. Since it’s a foreign kingdom that’s quite far away I don’t know the details but it seems that even though he was just an individual adventurer, he took over Kanbitt Kingdom that was a trashy small country at the time and raised it up into a large power in just one generation. He did such a sudden expansion of the country that it could almost be considered founding it new, so it’s got quite a few stories about it. Unfortunately he wasn’t blessed in children so it seems that he had no heirs but even then it’s amazing he raised up a single country. I can honestly respect him.

“But don’t misunderstand me. I’m not aiming to be a top-class adventurer... It’s not like I want to be praised by someone. If it’s necessary than I’ll ambush people or even trick them. As a result I might even end up attacking some adventurers. It just wasn't necessary until now so I didn't do it "Yeah, I'm sure. I've already come to terms with that. Since the world isn't that easy. I just, was worried that you were killing just to kill. I mean if you hear that you're being called a name like {Slaughterers}, it's not unreasonable to think that right?"

Brother grinned while saying that. And,

"Ambushing is only obvious. During wars I'm always thinking how to outsmart the opponents as well. Intentionally letting the opponent get full of themselves and after getting nearby, things like tricking them I'll do as many chances as I get. I just haven't done it because I didn't have the chance. I already know that there was nothing like what I was worrying about so that's fine."

said that and patted my head.

"You've gotten big, Al. I'll be overtaken pretty soon."

Brother isn't as much as Zulu but quite tall. Around 185 cm or so? I've already passed 170 cm but it's probably a matter of whether I can even hit 180 cm by the time my growth stops and I doubt I'll pass brother. I,

"One day."

Said that and laughed.

"Farne-san, it's been a while."

Bel and Toris came out after changing.

"Yo~ it's been a while. I'm glad to see the two of you are doing well, if Al does anything crazy just tell me anytime and I'll scold him for you."

Brother said that joke and after laughing with Toris and Bel about something walked towards everyone else.

I wonder where we should eat for today? I guess "Dorureon" is good. I told Ralpa, "Let's go to Doruleon. I'll tell Zulu and Angela. So go ahead." and then walked towards the inn my two slaves are using "Shuni".

.....

Year 7444, Month 4, Day 26

After finishing deliveries to the knight group, and explaining that all repairs and deliveries can be checked with at the headquarters of Greed Company from now on, I introduced the Ryogu family that would be staying there, and accompanied by everyone from Bakuddo we started towards the company head quarters.

Yotlen and her family have already finished moving to a cozy house in a location a bit of distance away. Since I've already given her permission to bring her youngest child, the eldest son Kamunal together to work, she has no need to leave a young child alone while she's working. I introduce them to the Ryogu family and introduce the Ryogu family to Yotlen and her family. Yotlen and her family are quite reserved but the Ryog family was about equally reserved in manners as they greeted each other.

The only Free People in Bakuddo other than old woman Shaymi was the Doksh family of hunters. Since both of them were talents we couldn't do without there was not feelings of awareness between the social stands when it came to them in a remote place like that. It's different when it comes to slaves though. And if you look at it from the Ryogu's point of view, they're the only people they have to depend on in the large city where they don't know left from right, so it's only natural for them to watch their manners. I guess I'll put some final emphasis on things.

"Rozural, Wendy, Dianne, they're formal employees of Greed Company. That makes them your seniors. Also, Layla, Anna, Hanna, they're employees of Greed Company right now but normally they're squires of Bakuddo. Make sure you're not rude."

This should be fine. Brother is nodding as well.

It seems that every corner of the company headquarters has been properly cleaned and just as I ordered there's a signboard that says "Greed Company" hanging at the entrance. The Ryogu family carries their luggage up to the second floor and after putting a bit of armor on the displays in the storefront, they intend to go out and buy the necessary things for today. Since the shelves are still remaining they just put various samples like rubber sandals, boots, cushions, and such without adding a price tag yet.

"Dianne, use this carriage for deliveries. Properly look after the horses."

I said that and left the carriage I bought from Gwine in their care.

Seeing brother said,

“Wait just a minute. Obviously we intend to return to Bakuddo once but we’ll be back pretty soon. We need to bring the stock for selling as well. I would like to use that carriage as well.”

and said that. Ah, I see. I guess we can’t leave it until now summer. It’s true that in order to carry things all at once having more carriages would be good.

“Eh? Ah, I see. Then, feel free to use it.”

I said that and called out to Dianne who was about to bring the carriage around to the back.

It seems they’re going to start setting up tools, and the barrels with latex, sulfur, charcoal, and wood acid in the workshop tomorrow.

After we finished shopping and closing up, we all went to dinner together as a party to get to know each other better. I’m sure it’s fine not to go to an ultra high-class restaurant. A place that is just a bit nicer than usual where it’s easier for everyone to talk casually is better. Ah, that’s right, I need to properly tell Rozural about presenting, or rather selling the condoms to the royal family. Thinking that when I was about to teach Rozural about manners, brother said,

“Al, it’s your company so you can do as you please, but as expected shouldn’t you do the deliveries to the royal family yourself?”

and gave me that advice. Hmn, it’s not like the King and Queens come out every time so it should be fine if I just give them instructions, and I thought it wasn’t necessary for me to do it though. Well it’s true that visiting the castle is considered an honor after all. It would be bad if they thought, “you looking down on us” after sending a normal commoner in. It would already be bad after something happens and it’s not too bad to occasionally come to the capital. However, it’s not good for the organization if I’m always the one standing on the surface..I see, I couldn’t help but think about it in terms of companies from my past life but the economy and business aren’t developed as much in this world.

Even if we mention a huge store it’s nothing more than a large individual shop after all. It's not unreasonable. Thinks like branch stores and offices is a concept that only developed more recently on Earth as well. I'm sure it's quite a hard to understand a lot of things if there's no technological advancement to methods of communication as well. Ah, come to think of Keel's Jabb, otherwise known as Haritaid, I wonder if he's doing well~ Well, there's no need to force myself to do it for right now. It should be fine if I teach them about things over time.

In any case I made reservations for a restaurant for tonight and I need to take care of deliveries tomorrow. After that, there's a number of things I need to discuss with the Ryogu family and take care of this month in the capital, including teaching them common sense. After all it's almost the day I might be able to meet Karl.

Year 7444, Month 4, Day 30

For the time being I've finished teaching the Ryogu family the common sense of a large city and left Rombertia just before evening. I return to Baldukk in a hurry and I need to take care of some things. First off I have to buy a large amount of dried fish, a handful of magic stones. I can't forget my portable stove and clock magic stools either. After that is some sandwiches for myself as well.

If I remember correctly Karl said, "In order to teleport to here from the 1st floor, it won't work just through coincidence. Once in every four months, in other words January, May, and September, it's only a matter of if you get lucky when you teleport on the first day of those months." I'll immediately enter the dungeon starting tonight and kill some time in the teleport room on the 1st floor until midnight, then just after the date changes there's no choice but to repeat teleporting inside. Since I'm still technically supposed to be in the capital until the day after tomorrow, if I quickly buy everything I need and enter the dungeon, I'm sure I'll be able to enter the dungeon without the loud Zulu and Angela noticing. Even if I'm not in luck and can't make it to that area..I don't want to think about it.

Since I made until the day after tomorrow into days off I feel like something can be done about it if I spend the entire time teleporting over and over. Ah, come to think of it he also said, "and if you don't press the switches that are in the bottoms of the pitfalls in the correct order the door won't appear as well." I feel like there's no other choice than testing that out a number of times. That time, what order did I bury the pitfalls again? Well, if I go I'm sure I'll remember. Even if I don't bury them I can go to the bottom of the pitfall and investigate searching for the switch as well.

In any case, it's definitely necessary to meet and talk with Karl once more. Of course, it's also important to have him teach me spells but before that there's something I need to ask, confirm with him first.

I increase the speed my war horse is running as my feelings get a bit more impatient.

Just before 9 pm at night I was able to reach the teleport room on the 1st floor. Of course I sent the monsters along the way flying with magic and just ignored the magic stones. It's a bit of a waste but I can't afford to waste time. Since it's suspicious to just sit alone dazing out in the room, I sat down in an appropriate passage while occasionally confirming my clock magic tool.

I don't know if it's from yesterday or this morning, but a party of 7 just entered from a different passage that seem quite exhausted, they might have been inside since quite a while ago but they're resting now. Once the number of people increases a bit more it might be possible to pretend to be tired as I sneak into one of the groups. In order to avoid standing out I've taken off the helmet of my protectors and covered my face in a baggy hood. I didn't bring my bayonet along either. I just removed the sword and put that into its scabbard and have it on my waist so it should be difficult to tell it's me from a glance.

Oh~ from a different passage there's another person wearing a coat with a hood that appeared alone as well. They occasionally appear right, these sorts of people putting on airs of isolation. Since they're exploring in Baldukk alone they probably have some decent level of skill but there's a limit to how far you can go alone. Oh my~ they teleported to the 2nd floor without even taking a break. Well, feel free to go die in a gutter somewhere at your own convenience

I bite into the sandwiches I bought quite a few of for dinner and meals tomorrow while glancing at the foolish adventurer who's teleporting alone, and continue observing other adventurer groups that are coming from different passages. This time is..a full party of 10 huh? Ah, they're the group that of 6 that came to Baldukk several months ago. It seems they're properly increasing their members. They're taking breaks as well so it gives me a good impression of them. However, even though they're weak right now they're certainly my rivals. It would be great if they charge in recklessly and end up as a bonus for us.

I'm making sure to always pay attention to the passage behind me. If someone approaches then I intend to stand up and move quickly into the room. It seems that another group of adventurers is coming from a bit over 10m behind me. I'm sure they can't see me but I can see them from the brightness increase of my Identify. After shifting my vision it seems to be a party of 8.

I lift my heavy waist and enter the teleport room, then lowered my waist against the wall with my head looking down.

Chapter 122: Fairy Village Again 2

Year 7444, Month 4, Day 30

After that several groups of adventurers entered the teleport room on the 1st floor and took short breaks, or started teleporting to the 2nd floor. It's a big help that I was able to doze off for even two hours.

Since I was using the alarm clock {Cantrip} I was able to wake up just before midnight. After confirming with the clock magic tool that the date had changed past midnight, I slowly stood up from the wall I was sitting against and approached the teleport crystal.

I grab on the crystal rod, and chant the teleport incantation.

“Rigoruku”

I teleported to the 2nd floor. I check the symbol on the pedestal of the teleport crystal and search the wall.

Number 84. It's no good...

The one I'm aiming for is number “356” that I wrote the last time I visited Karl. Since nothing other than that is my objective for now there's no meaning. I should quickly return.

“Rinteren”

I returned to the teleport room on the 1st floor again.

There's various things said about the rules in regards to where you appear in the room but no one has been able to come to a satisfying conclusion. It's said you just return to a randomly open area in the room. Since it's about 30m in every day direction, a reasonable large space it's almost never completely packed.

Even if we were to test a situation like that, it's said that you would just be returned to a bit outside of the passages on the side.

I return to the center of the room and after grabbing the crystal rod I chant the incantation.

“Homika”

I teleported to the 2nd floor.

Number 26. It's no good huh?

Well I already knew it wouldn't be so simple so I made preparations for it to take some time before coming.

In the worst case all of today, I intend to test it out for an entire 24 hours.

“Fokubo”

.....

Year 7444, Month 5, Day 1

I wonder how many times I've teleported?

I think I've done it at least 20 times.

It takes a reasonable amount of time to search for the number every time I teleport. I think about two hours have passed.

It's good that the symbol on the pedestal pointing to the wall is nearby so it doesn't take much time to search like if it were down the hall.

“Kumurika”

This, place has a good feel to it. I check the pedestal and investigate the wall.

..It's no good huh?

“Kano beze”

I returned the 1st floor again. I walk towards the center of the room.

“Hey, you. You've been pretty restless for a while now. Even if you don't get as neurotic about it as that the 2nd floor isn't that much different compared to the 1st floor.”

The one remaining party of adventurers called out to me like that. They're a group that I saw enter the room from a glance after I had repeated teleporting a number of times.

Their ages are about the same as me, or a bit above that.

If I remember correctly they're a party of just non-humans that came to Baldukk a short while after we did and the leader is the second or third son of a high ranking noble from Kanbitt.

They should have only just finally been able to make it to the 2nd floor.

I can't say much about other people but they're newcomers of 1.5 years or so. A considerably skilled group.

"Hey, Joni, ignore him. He's exploring alone. It's kindness to let him choose the course he wants to as many times as he pleases."

"Yeah, and things about other people don't matter at all right?"

"Tan belu"

I teleported to the 2nd floor...This place is different as well. I don't think the humidity was this high. Just in case I check the symbol on the pedestal but after all it was pointing further into the hall.

"Matozo"

I returned to the 1st floor again.

"Hey, you! Even though someone is talking, what's up with that!?"

The Tiger-man named Joni who just called out to me stood up. How annoying~

"You talking to me?"

I face Joni and say.

"That's only obvious! There's only us and you in here!"

"I see, it's not like I'm causing any sort of trouble for you. Just ignore me."

I said that and started walking towards the crystal rod again. It's a waste of time.

"Hey now, don't fuck with me! Show me your face! Covering it with something like that!"

He started running at me.

"Joni! Come back! Stop already!"

Someone in Joni's party said that but Joni continued running at me ignoring the voice.

It can't be helped so once he got near me I turned around and said.

"I said to ignore me right?"

Since I turned around with good timing Joni was a bit overawed it seems but,

"Ah~!? If I just keep watching for a while now you've been going back and forth from the 1st and 2nd floors, you're annoying~! There's no way I could relax and get some rest!"

And tried threatening me.

"It seems like your allies are calm and resting though?"

I said that and pointed at Joni's party taking a break against the wall with my sword. They're just watching amazed while saying things like "Idiots really can't be helped. We can't deal with him~"

"..Gu. They're unrelated. I'm getting irritated over it. Make up your mind whether you're going or not going~!"

He said while his tiger ears are twitching from the ends of his crude leather hat.

'Yeah, I'm sorry about that. But, I have my own objective over here. So I'll be continuing for a while longer. Can't you be patient with it?"

I haven't raised my voice much but since the room is close to empty if no one is talking you can still hear decently and a voice was raised from Joni's party.

"Joni! Stop that already! Are you not going to listen to what I'm saying!?"

The one who raised their voice was the Tiger-man who seems to be a bit older than Joni.

"You too, I'm sorry we got in your way. Feel free to go."

That man continued to say that. This guy is probably the leader. I bowed my head lightly towards him and walked towards the crystal rod again before grabbing it.

"Bro~ but you know.."

"Sehotogu"

I teleported to the 2nd floor.

I went on guard at the same time as I teleported in.

There was a group of gnolls gathered together about 5m from the teleport crystal rod.

I swing my sword and use magic and it didn't even take a minute to wipe out the group of 12 gnolls.

I wipe the blood on my sword on the dirty leather of the gnoll and finally created a bit of water to carefully wipe it out before putting it in the scabbard and checking the symbol on the pedestal.

..So this place is wrong too.

“Wakermosshu”

Joni returned to the place where his party was and was sitting down. I glanced once in their direction then walked towards the center of the room.

“Che.”

I heard an obvious click of the tongue echo out but it's not like he's directly picking a fight with me so it doesn't matter at all.

.....

I continued teleporting another bunch of times but I can't get to the place I'm aiming. It's still not the time to get impatient. There's no choice but to take it easy as I go.

While I was continuing to teleport Joni's party finished their break it seems. They all suddenly had their equipment on and were carrying their bags.

Since I noticed that, I looked for a good time and without going to the crystal rod I just stood waiting.

Of course since they've already finished preparations to depart they'll teleport soon as well. With this the annoying one will disappear.

They must have noticed I was waiting, the leader who stopped Joni raised one of his hands to me.

I guess it's thanking me for letting them go first.

I lightly nodded my head and saw them teleport off.

I return to the teleport crystal again and while waiting for the incantation to float up I teleported to the 2nd floor for the several dozenth time.

..It's no good again. I sighed after finding the number "216" on the wall.

I return to the 1st floor and repeated teleporting to the 2nd floor.

It was around the third time I teleported to the 2nd floor after that. I had to go on guard after teleporting again. There was a group happily gathering the magic stones and equipment from the group of gnolls I killed several tens of times earlier next to the teleport spot. It's Joni and the others.

It's true that the magic stones of gnolls are delicious but something like 100,000 Z is like change to me at this point so nothing to bother over. And today time is far more important. I don't have any intention of getting in their way. It's true I think those are gnolls I killed but to them they're a free bonus.

There's no choice than to wait here for the tens of seconds it takes for the incantation to return to the 1st floor to float up again.

Obviously they went on guard after noticing that I had suddenly teleported nearby but since they saw I wasn't doing anything in particular they must have noticed I was about to return right away. They all returned to their own work.

"What is it? Do you have some kind of complaint?"

Joni said towards me while cutting open the chest of a gnoll. Why does this guy keep trying to pick fights with me every time?

"Not particularly.."

I said that and looked at the crystal rod. It should be about time.

"Hey, you, stop acting so important! I'll fucking kill you!"

"Joni! Stop that already! Even Rokis-san already said it right!"

The Laios-sis is scolding him bit,

"Candy, you~ shut up. Hey, say something, you afraid huh?"

And, Joni is picking a fight with me again.
Ah~ it's seriously a waste of time dealing with you.
Halfway out of interest I tried identifying Joni.
It's because I thought I wanted to see the faces of his parents after checking his family name.
There's no way I could do that but, it was just reflexively.

Joni.Ridden, level 6.
He's two years older than me huh?
Ho~ The fourth son of Sub-Baron Ridden huh?
Never heard of them before.
I wonder if this guy is from Kanbitt as well?

The leader is Mittorig.Rokis, level 9. 23 years old.
The second son of Marquis Rokis huh?

Come to think of it Kanbitt Kingdom is the same as Korakut Kingdom and they were founded by adventurers was it?
Though he's the second son, even the son of a Marquis becomes an adventurer?
Otherwise maybe it's a part of their countries culture that anyone below the second son can't get a promotion without becoming adventurers.
If it's like that then it would feel pretty bad. Though it would have been convenient if I had been born there.

"Ah? Stop spacing out looking in a...Ah, yo..you ar..Eh?"

It seems Joni realized my identity after peeking in from below my hood and seeing my face.
His grim expression changed and it seems like the color of face got a bit worse.
I glanced towards the crystal rod and the incantation to return to the 1st floor was floating up.

"Is it fine if I return now?"

Since it seems like my face was seen, it can't be helped.
I looked straight back at Joni who was looking at my face in the hood from below.

“Ah, yes..please do..”

I casually grabbed on to the crystal rod while chanting the incantation to return.

“Defugosu”

I returned to the 1st floor.

Well, I was the one wandering back and forth in front of them countless times while they were resting.

It can’t be helped if they think it was a bit annoying.

And they’re probably still at the level where they don’t know the teleport room is a safe area. Since they haven’t properly slept, it’s not surprising their nerves are on end. There’s no point in getting angry over something on that level every time, and I have more important things right now. However, it’s not good that they realized the leader of the {Slaughterers} was doing something strange.

It’s possible they might start to think that there’s some kind of secret on the 2nd floor. It’s true though.

I continued to teleport another couple dozen times.

I’m starting to feel pretty hungry.

Maybe I’ll take a short break and eat something.

I sat down against the wall and started eating the sandwiches I bought yesterday while drinking some tea.

Since I haven’t properly slept either I’m a bit tired, but hey, this age is durable. Even if I don’t sleep at all for two days or so I’m sure I can keep going. I was able to doze off for two hours or so last night, so I can still keep going.

I wash my face with some cold water to disperse the sleep, grabbed the teleport crystal again, and teleported.

.....

I'm absolutely sure I've teleported over 100 times already.
Just doing some rough math and the amount of time it takes to teleport once, check the symbol on the pedestal, find the number on the wall is about 2–5 minutes. Since I can sometimes figure out that it's not my destination without even having to check the symbol, it takes an average of 3 minutes for one trip. That comes out to teleporting 20 times an hour.
The time right now is about 10 in the morning.
That would mean it's possible for me to have teleported 200 times.
If I were to go off of probability theory then it's likely I should be able to make it to my objective of "356" by 10 pm at night or so.

"Kazuroku"

I teleported to the 2nd floor.
I check the symbol, and the direction it's pointing on the wal.."356"..Umu. It seems I was safely able to make it.

Next up I think it was the switches at the bottom of the pitfalls right?
Which direction did I go from the start last time?

I thought I would be able to remember but both directions are a vaguely curved cave with no real characteristics.
But, it should be a loop from this point.
No matter which direction I proceed it comes out to a Y shaped split path and beyond that is the room with the {Snake Generator}.

In any case I need to check the bottom of the pitfalls.

Just like usual I use wind magic to blow the dirt away and head towards the pitfall.

I tilt my head in front of the pitfall I found and looked at the bottom of it.
It's about 3m in height and has a depth of about 5m, the width covers the entire cave from wall to wall.

Last time I used earth magic to create dirt and buried it but it should have been a matter of coincidence that I was able to press the switch.

I focus my eyes and try to find something like a switch at the bottom of this pitfall.

..There it is.

I discovered something like that in the corner of the pitfall. It's a square rock about 1 cm in every direction.

There's several other rocks rolling around but that neatly square rock is unnatural.

Even if I use Identify it just comes up as a rock but if it's just using the same type of rock as others in the dungeon then it's not understandable.

Since it seems to be smaller than other rocks from a glance it doesn't look like you could push it but it doesn't seem mistaken that the secret lies in the {Floating Disk}. It might be there's more to it and that's just the only part sticking out.

Come to think of it Karl said there was an order you had to press them as well. There might be other switches as well.

I started looking around the bottom of the pitfall again but I couldn't find it.

Then, in that case the switches would be in the other two pitfalls I guess. There's one on each side of the Y shape split from the teleport destination and then there should be one more a bit past the Y shape area on one side. At the very least I think I need to look at the pitfall on the other side first. After all last time I came up the Y shaped split from the left side. This would be the right side I think.

I returned and went down the opposite side and after checking the pitfall there and there was a similar square rock.

Most likely that's the first switch?

..I bury this pitfall and then bury the one on the opposite side, and then finally bury the pitfall past the Y shape split and that's the right answer I guess?

Doesn't that mean that, the chances at first are 50% for the correct answer, and then the next time is in some meanings 50% as well. Does the door appear with such a high probability?

I put my hands on the side of the pitfall and observed it closely once again.

No clue..Other than the square switch, I can't find anything particularly strange at the bottom of the pitfall.

Hmn, what should I do?

The first time we came we should have come up around from the Y shaped area on the right. In other words, that was definitely the wrong answer. Even then I don't think anything strange happened.

So it shouldn't be anything that would kill me.

Then, I guess I should bury it with dirt and sink the {Floating Disk}, the moment I thought that I noticed it.

Huh? Isn't the correct answer to sink the {Floating Disk} and push that switch with it? If I'm certainly Ralph was pushing it were feet as well. But, wasn't this a pitfall in the first place? It's fine that the {Disk} sinks when you place a certain amount of weight on it. However, I've been making dirt on it up until now but the speed it sunk in was slowly. Pitfalls, aren't they supposed to be intended to do damage by putting a lid on them that breaks all at once causing damage from the fall? They increase the damage by putting spears or stakes at the bottom like on the 3rd floor and 4th floor is what I thought. On the 5th and 6th floor it's almost always a sharp mass of needles.

If they were hoping to cause damage from the fall then this {Floating Disk} doesn't have any meaning.

It's not that there's none at all but even if I were to jump on it I can't imagine it suddenly sinking all at once. Even when I put a large amount of dirt in the middle it slowly sunk down. The amount was about three uses of level 5 earth magic, it's about the amount of one use of level 6. Though if it was just to sink the {Disk} one use of level 4 should be plenty.

Yeah, for the time being I'll try putting the amount of one use of level 4 in the middle.

I use earth magic and void magic and put a 1m cube of dirt or so in the middle. The {Disk} slowly started to sink.

After taking about 20 seconds it reached the bottom.

After observing to see if anything changed and, I found it.

It was nothing at all.

On the front wall of the bottom of the pitfall (?) a small lever appeared. The portion that came out was around 3 cm or so I guess?

In order to observe it better I jumped down on the dirt I created and it seems there's a similar lever on the opposite side of the wall as well.

Ah, I got it. You need to push these levers down?
Not to mention probably from this side as well.

Because, last time I came I didn't put dirt in the middle like this time but I filled it with dirt and then after the {Disk} sunk down, we started to cross over the dirt from this side walking over it like a bridge.

I went all out and tried pulling the lever on the side I came from down. Next I tried pulling the lever on the front side down. I made some dirt and crawled out of the hole before returning to the Y split.

Last time I don't think I buried the opposite side.

If I remember correctly I just checked that the hole had become like a ring shape and then continued ahead. I should probably do that again this time. I continue down the Y shape split and found a hole. Just the same way I sink the {Disk} and look for levers.

..It's there.

This time there's two of them about 1m over on this side and one of them on the opposite.

The problem is what order to pull the two on this side down.

Hmn, how did I create the dirt last time again?

I'm sure that I ended up pushing the two on this side down first..Since I had the bayonet in my right hand and was using magic with my left hand. I feel like I would have ended up burying the left side first.

Then in that case I guess it's to the right from where I'm facing?

If I come this far and make a mistake and, I somehow feel like I'll end up having to start over from the 1st floor..in worst case I might even have to wait another four months.

I can't afford to make a mistake here but thinking about it won't change anything.

There's no hints at all, so I guess there's no choice than to go all out and pull down the right side.

I pulled down the right side, then pulled down the left side. And pulled down the one on the opposite side, and after making more dirt I crawled out.

Ahead of here is the room with four {Snake Generators} which no normal adventurer would be able to make it past. Just like last time, I used {Acid Cloud} after a decent amount of snakes came out and then used {Anti-Magic Field} to retreat. After waiting an appropriate amount of time to continue and burning away the half-melted snakes with {Flame Thrower} I continued forward.

The door is..thank god. It's there.

I take off my gloves, touch the door, and took a step into the fairy village.

Chapter 123: Fairy Village Again 3

Year 7444, Month 5, Day 1

The fairy village doesn't seem to have changed at all since I came at the start of this year. Even though we're inside of the dungeon there's light almost like that from the sun coming from the high ceiling and it might just be my imagination but it feels like the temperature is higher than the dungeon as well. It's a scenery like an illusion of a meadow covered in bushes. I hold back my impatience in order to not scare the fairies and slowly advance towards the center of the pond while circling around it in order to get to the large tree growing in the center.

I lower my bag and first take out the grill. Just like last time the fairies still aren't paying any attention to me. There are ones who take a break on top of my head and shoulder as well but it's limited to just feeling like a short break on a rock as they climb on me. I came to the rock I sat on last time.

Now then, I think it's just before noon now? Just in case I checked the time on my clock magic tool but just as I thought it was about 11 am. I put the clock magic tool in one of my large pockets and take out the stove magic tool from my bag, then places the grill I just took out on that. And, I took out the dried meineiji and lit the fire on the stove.

Several minutes after smoking the dried fish with the fire and a bit of smoke and good smell started to float around the area, I started to notice the fairies gather around me. I wonder if Karl isn't around?

"Karl, if you're here respond to me."

After I said that and

"I've been up here for a while now."

and I heard a reply from on top of my head. So it was you~ the one crossing their legs on top of my head.

“What the, so you were up there? I brought some fish along, you’re eating it right?”

“Eh!!? Is it fine? I’m happy about that, by the way why do you know my name?”

Th..This guy..He forgot about me.

“What are you saying. I brought the dried meinieji at the start of this year right?”

“Ah, so it was Al huh? Since you’re wearing something like this I couldn’t tell.”

Ah, I see. Since I had the hood covered so far down you can’t see much other than my eyes.

“Sorry about that. I’ll take it off now. Just move for a moment.”

After confirming that the fairies on my shoulders and head flew off I took off the coat.

I folded my coat up and placed it on the side of the rock and then sat down again.

Karl flew on to my right shoulder.

“I’m amazed you were able to come again. Not to mention, it’s just you again right? Was the {Snake Generator} not moving?”

“Ah, another snake fountain? No, a lot of snakes came out of it. I killed them all.”

“Hmn..Then you’re considerably strong. Just like George.”

Karl said with admiration.

“Nn, well, I’ve gone through a reasonable number of troubles. I had to teleport from the 1st floor to the 2nd floor over 100 times.”

“Eh?”

Karl raised his voice in surprise.

“Hn?”

“Al, could it be you teleported here from the 1st floor? You really put a lot of effort into it. If you don't have quite a bit of luck then you can't make it from there. But you know, it would have been much easier to teleport from the 3rd floor."

Hey, wait just a minute, what in the world is that!?

"From the 3rd floor? Eh? There's a method like that!? You didn't mention a single word about that last time.."

"I won't say it. Ah, I see, last time was the first time for Al was it. That is~ I won't say it either. Mila will get angry at me. Ah, Mila is my older sister. She's the head of this place. Mila you know, even though she's already at a good age she does nothing but sleep~ Though I'm sure in another 40–50 years I'll be doing that as well though. And, Mila~" "Karl, how do you teleport from the 3rd floor?"

"Al is really impatient right. I think I said it before but if you're like that then you won't~" "Please teach me."

"Really, it can't be helped. Since you've already come twice it's fine to tell you but. It's no good if we don't ask Mila first."

"Then, try asking her! I'm begging you."

"N~ Didn't I just say Mila is sleeping? I'll try asking when she wakes up. Rather than, isn't it about time to move the fish?"

Yes-yes..This is fine right.

"And, that spell you taught me about last time {Report}..I tried to erase it with {Anti-Magic Field} but it was impossible...Is there anything I can do about it?"

"Eh? An, {Anti-Magic Field} you say!? Ahahaha! Al sure is an idiot~ There's no way you could do something about {Report} with that. I said it right, unless it's an existence like a {Demi-God} they can't use it. If it was a half-hearted {Anti-Magic Field} there's no way it could stand up to it I'm sure."

Yeah, I already understand that well. After all it's unreasonable to try and oppose these {Gods} or {Demi-Gods}. But you know {Report}, I still don't like it. Every time they look in a portion of my memories gets sealed away, no matter how I think about it, it's harmful to me.

“Then, what should I do about it? Please teach me.”

“There’s several methods to negate spells that are already complete and in the first place negate the spell when it’s cast on you. It’s true that {Anti-Magic Field} is one of those. It’s the basics of the {Abjuration} system after all. Other than that there’s also {Globe of Invulnerability}, {Dispel Magic}, and {Anti-Magic Shell} that you can resist spells with as well.

Well, the only ones that could be effective against the spell {Report} are {Anti-Magic Field} and {Dispel Magic} since they exist on the same level. It’s impossible for {Globe of Invulnerability}. The only one you could probably manage with your power is {Anti-Magic Shell} I’m sure. Do you know {Anti-Magic Shell}?”

No idea.

“Judging off that face it seems you don’t know. Then it’s impossible. It’s not like you’ll die, you’ll just become a bit more forgetful so it’s not all that harmful right? It would be best if you just give up.”

Like I’ll let things end like that.

“Karl since you know that {Anti-Magic Shell} can you use it?”

“That’s only obvious right? Something like magic I can’t use..There’s a ton of them. But, if it’s on the level of {Anti-Magic Shell} then I can use it.”

“Then, would you please use it on me once?”

“Ah, turn around.”

Ah, yes-yes.

“And, what was it again? Getting here from the 3rd floor? Mila is sleeping right“That’s why you can ask that once she wakes up, if you want you can even go wake her up right now. Rather than about the conversation of using {Anti-Magic Shell} on me to crush that {Report}.”

“Ah, was that right? It can’t be helped..Ah, wait just a moment. Go a little bit further over there. If I use it like this then the fish will..and I guess that area is fine? I’ll say it for once as well but you don’t have any magic tools or {Magical Weapons} right? If you have any on you those will break as well. It negates all magic after all. But, Al you sure are brave. It would be completely impossible for me. Not being able to use magic for the rest“Wait.”

“Really now, what is it, won’t the fish get burnt?”

“I won’t be able to use magic again in my entire life?”

“That’s only obvious, after all {Anti-Magic Shield} negates any magic. There’s some risk but isn’t using Al’s magic skills fine as the catalyst? Since it’s just right that you have all of them.”

There’s no way that’d be fine! This winged insect!

“After all let’s stop. Is there no other method?”

“Other than the ones I just said and, there’s none that are realistic. Ah, as long as you have enough mana you can crush the {Report} with {Anti-Magic Field} though. That’s impossible for the most part though~”

“Hey~ I’m begging you, isn’t there some other method to do it?”

“Hmn, since you went to the trouble of bringing fish again, I want to teach you but you know..I’m sure {Dispel Magic} is impossible..Ah, there is one method. But didn’t I tell Al about it last time?”

Did I hear about it?

“Isn’t it fine if you just have the person who cast the spell on you take it off? If it’s that then you can do it right away, and nothing inconvenient at all should happen.”

I knew that. I feel like I heard about it last time as well.

“I don’t know who the other person is or where they are either.”

“Come to think of it you did say something like that. And, isn’t it about ready?”

Ah, yes-yes. We walked over to the stove and I lifted the meineiji up by it’s tail. Just like last time Karl said “pirururu” to the surrounding fairies and they all swarmed it changing it into just bones. It was really in no time at all.

“Karl, this is meiseiva. It’s a bit large right? It’s delicious.”

I pulled a new dried fish out of my bag and said to Karl and

“It’s big right. And there’s a lot of fat floating on the surface. It really looks delicious. Cook it quickly.”

“Yeah, wait just a minute. Since it’s large it will take a while longer to cook than the meineiji.”

“Yeah that’s fine, since it looks thick I’m sure it’s worth eating as well. Meiseiva was it?”

Karl said while sitting on my lap and observing the dried fish on the stove.

“Yeah, it’s meiseiva. And, returning to the conversation from just now but”

“N~ It’s possible to investigate it using {Detect Magic User} but you know.”

“Is that a spell?”

“That’s right. For example if we were to say you have some kind of magic used on you. It’s a magic that let’s you detect who, where, and what they’re doing right now. Though it requires a catalyst of something like a spherical gem that’s as transparent as possible of this size (20 cm or so). Something like a crystal is best. The more transparent it is the better. Also, the bigger it is the better.”

Ho~

“And, if you use {Detect Magic User} to specify the user then they will show up in the crystal you use as the catalyst. The other side won’t be able to see you from their side. In that case it’s fine if you just use {Telepathy} to talk to them. Though it might come to negotiating from there.

But the thing you need to be careful about is the size of the gem you use as catalyst. I just said that about this size is fine but with this size they’ll only show up for about 100 seconds or so. I think you might already know but {Telepathy} can only be used if you can currently see the target, so you would need to finish up the conversation during that time.”

..I didn’t know. But, it seems like that will become a big clue.

“I see now, then, Karl, I don’t have the gem right now but I’m sure I can prepare one. If I bring it here can you use {Detect Magic User} and {Telepathy} at that time? Since I don’t know either of those spells.”

I shifted the meiseiva while saying that.

“Eh? Why? I mean can’t Al use all magic..Waha~ I bet the levels of your magic skills are low right. Then in that case it can’t be helped. It can’t be used unless all of your skills levels are at least at level 7 after all. Or was it 6 for {Telepathy}? Well I guess it’s no good in either case. Since you brought along fish, it’s fine.”

Eh? What was that, does that mean even I can use it?

“No, all of mine are level 9? Ah, only fire was still level 8 I guess? {Status Open}..All of them other than fire magic at at the highest level.”

Karl was considerably surprised after hearing that and said.

“He~!! That’s amazing. You’re still..16 years old aren’t you! Al sure has some talent with magic. I only reached that class with magic when I was past 200 years old. But in that case, you should do it yourself.”

“No, that’s why I said, I don’t know how to use {Detect Magic User} or {Telepathy}.”

“Ah, I see. Come to think of it Al was still a beginner at magic. I guess it’s not unreasonable that you wouldn’t know..”

I..was just a young fresh beginner of magic huh...Well I guess looking from this guy who’s of the fairy race then it might look that way so it doesn’t piss me off at all, but somehow, you know, I don’t feel satisfied.

“Then Karl, I’ll request again once more. Would you please teach me magic? I said it before but I’ll do whatever I can in thanks. I’m begging you, just like this.”

I lower my head to the fairy that’s on my lap.

“Hmn, I don’t particularly mind though. But if I think about it like that then I guess George was superior huh..Though when he came here it was when he was around 30 years old so I guess it’s strange to compare him to Al? But there’s not much difference between 16 years old and 30 years old so after all I guess Al is the one who’s no good? Though George did have an amazing number of Unique Abilities~”

I feel like there’s a pretty big difference between 16 and 30 years old but I guess to someone that’s over 600 years old it’s the same...

“That’s right, I’ve started to remember them. You know George, he called himself Kurojo, or something like that~ Well that's fine but his Unique Abilities were pretty amazing. Like 【God's Bloodline】, 【Heart of Vengeance】, 【Gift of Heavenly Talent】, 【Greater Identify】, 【Immobile Will】, 【Martial King】, ah, that's right there was also something like 【Power to Understand】. He said it was something like a power that let him forcibly understand things he didn't really get. I wonder if that's why he was able to use magic on such a high level as well~ Come to think of it George said he was going to make a country or something but I wonder what happened? Do you know?"

I know.

"Yeah, I think he was the founding King of Rombert Kingdom. It seems to be a story from over 500 years ago though. Since I think it matches that period as well, it's probably that George or Kurojo that Karl was mentioning that used Rombert as his family name right? In that case there's no mistake it was the founder his majesty George Rombert the First."

"He~ I see. In any case he had something different than normal people after all. Though Al feels like a normal person."

Shut up~ I already know something like that. It's none of your business.

"Umm, well something like teaching you magic is fine. It's nothing in particular after all."

I shifted the mseiseiva again so I don't forget it and had the flame touch the tail.

"Yeah, I'm in your care. Let's start right away."

"Nn, I guess so, then..Let's start with how to knead your mana."

Starting from there? As expected I already know that much.

"That's already fine. I know it."

"He~ I see. I guess that's true. Then in reverse let's start from magic. Do you know {Light}?"

"Yeah, of course."

"How do you use it?"

“I use the mana of my void magic on the objective of..”

.....

After that since we had plenty of time Karl’s lecture jumped from here and there as he started teaching me from the start about the systems of magic, and I had him teach me several spells as well. I’ll just write the important points but,

1. For starters forget about the method of splitting them up by water, fire, wind, earth, and void.
2. Void magic is the foundation of everything in spells.
3. The magic system changes based on the image and method you use void magic with.
4. It’s necessary to think about and get an image of the void magic you plan to use and the elemental magic needed to be added to that.
5. If you can’t do 4 then you can’t skillfully use spells.
6. The best way to do it is to watch someone who can already use it and confirm the effects usage of it.

Is what it came out to. Just, there was a hidden technique as well. That’s incantations. The incantation makes use of the spell Fortune-Telling {Divination}, and when you’re using that it’s necessary imagine the spell you want to use in your head as you construct it. Since the duration of {Divination} itself is limited it seems it’s difficult to use for things that are too advanced but even then I was told that it’s important to start from learning to use {Divination}.

For example a spell I already know that creates light, it’s {Light} but after using the spell {Divination} during the duration it lasts I try to imagine the effects and method to use {Light} in my head during that period and the incantation for kneading the mana on each process of it will float up in my head.

{Light} only uses void magic. The normal process for using the spell is to set the target in your sights and imagine a clump of mana there. During that occasion, if you point your finger or the palm of your hand towards it, it’s even easier. It’s thanks to that process that your hand or fingertip shines with blue light. If you master it you can do it without pointing your finger or hand but since it’s the basics you start imagining while facing your hand. Here the incantation “tozu” appeared in my head.

Next up it enters the stage where it comes to how much mana you’re concentrating into the clump. Normally you adjust the amount of brightness or the duration the light lasts here. If you don’t think anything then you can skip past it. However, if you want to know the incantation you can’t skip past it. Well, I’ll think about it based on the standard. And then the incantations “borusu” and “nobun” appeared in my head.
